Another incentive to prayer for world revival is found in the fact that the Christian church began its career of spiritual advance with a revival of religion so great that the word Pentecost has been a marked note of encouragement to Christians through all the centuries. Pentecostal revivals have been God's gift to the United States repeatedly. The "Great Awakening" of the eighteenth century, the nation-wide revival of the opening years of the nineteenth century, the great spiritual quickening of the year 1857, and other evangelistic movements that could be mentioned, were followed invariably by great spiritual and moral uplifts throughout all our territory. Today our country needs more and greater revivals, revivals more thorough and far-reaching in their results in individual salvation than any of the past, and more complete and permanent, in the moral reformation both of individuals and the nation. For the situation in our country is, from a spiritual viewpoint, at a critical stage. A majority of our male population is not in direct connection with any Christian church, either Protestant or Catholic. Fully forty millions of our adults do not recognize Christian standards of conduct. In addition, many professing Christians have no active interest in the supreme work of the church, the winning of souls for and to Jesus Christ.

In Europe, the situation is strenuous. There professedly Christian nations are killing and wounding men by the millions, and only a great revival of true religion can produce the inward change demanded, the effecting of a mental revolution in the attitude of great nations toward war. And the masses of the warring peoples, as a result of the existing conditions, it is to be noted, are impressed deeply with the value of spiritual realities, so that the church edifices are crowded with worshippers. What is true of Europe is true of other regions. God, as an overshadowing presence, is consciously felt in all the world.

The needs of the hour are definite; the church universal reawakened to duty; the Christian conscience rearoused, and a widespread revival of Christ's redemptive Spirit in the hearts and lives of men. Reform measures, it is true, are accomplishing in some lands much good, but still the hosts and forces of sin advance in many places more rapidly than those of the gospel. The great need is for a change of heart; for a return to the simple virtues of the pious life; for the honoring of God's Word because of its absolute truth and great spiritual power; for a return of the recognition of God at the table and fireside; for a renewal of the honoring of God by attending His house, and above all for prompt and constant obedience to the command implied in the words of Christ, "I am come to seek and to save that which was lost."

This solemn call is also the recognition that the duty of regular daily prayer needs at times to be supplemented and intensified by extraordinary prayer. The need for concerted and extraordinary supplication was involved in the Saviour's words to his disciples, "Depart not from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father." And that prayerful waiting brought Pentecost. Every great revival of religion has been preceded by waiting upon God. We plead, therefore, not only for special individual prayer for revival, but we plead for the whole church in prayer, in the spirit of the Apostle Paul, who exhorts all Christians, not Timothy only, "that supplications, prayers, intercessions and giving of thanks be made for all men, for kings and for all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty. For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Saviour; who will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth." The one continuous petition in intercession, however, should be for that blessing divinely promised, "It shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions and your old men shall dream dreams, and on my servants and on my hand-maidens I will pour out in those days of my Spirit." "And it shall come to pass that whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved."

Let prayer then be made for all men, for all nations and their rulers, for all the churches of Christ in this and every land, for all ministers and church officers, for all church members, for the masses of men and women who are in spiritual darkness, and especially for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit in every land in pentecostal revelations of divine power unto salvation, so that Jesus Christ may be accepted as the divine Saviour by all the world, and the gospel may be so applied by the Holy Spirit that human nature everywhere shall be truly regenerated, and men dwell together here on earth as brethren in Christ, even as it is the assured hope of saved men so to dwell in the everlasting and heavenly kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Brethren in Christ of every denominational and church name, let us unite in prayer for a world-wide pentecost, in his name and for the extension of His kingdom, who died upon His Cross "the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world." Let us pray in the spirit and power of the words, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

In behalf of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

WILLIAM HENRY ROBERTS,

Chairman Commission on Evangelism.

WILLIAM E. BIEDERWOLF,

Secretary of the Commission.

The Gwennap Pit—Cornwall

A Plea for Open-Air Preaching

By Rev. James M. Gray, D. D.

CENTURIES ago, it is said, this was a tin mine, and all the metal having been worked out of it, the mouth of the mine was left unfilled. John Wesley found it a suitable place to gather a multitude for the preaching of the gospel, and he so utilized it many times. His journal records that he preached to as many as twenty thousand people there at one time.

In 1870 the Methodists of the locality (there were only about a dozen houses within a mile of the pit), having obtained permission, reduced the circumference and shape of the pit into the present grassy amphitheatre which will seat about ten thousand people, while many more can be accommodated on the flat plateau round about. Every Whit-Monday a great preaching convention is held there to attend which people come many miles.

The picture on the cover of this magazine was taken while the audience was listening to the preaching on Whit-Monday, 1887, and that of the empty pit in the text of this article was taken after the people had dispersed on the same day.

We are indebted for these pictures and the accompanying data to an old volume entitled, "From Epworth to London, with John Wesley," being fifty photo-engravings of the sacred places of Methodism, by G. W. Edmondson, with descriptions by Mr. George J. Stevenson, M. A., of London.

Our object in calling attention to them just now is the opportunity it affords to again emphasize the summer months as the most propitious period of the year to reach the masses, especially in our large cities, with the gospel of Jesus Christ. We do not often enough ask ourselves the question, what would have been the influence of the work of Whitefield and the Wesleys had they not taken to the open air when the church doors were closed against them?

The Kingswood Colliers

Whitefield was the pioneer, but the Wesleys soon followed in his footsteps. Of the former his biographers tell us that, at Bristol, the taunt was flung at him that if he would convert the heathen he might try his hand upon the Kingswood colliers. Taking up the challenge on February 17, 1739, he first attempted to speak to those wild men on that wild common near Bristol. A hundred came to stare at the enthusiastic stranger, which soon increased to twenty thousand, and down their grimy faces the tears rolled, leaving white gutters in the black soot.

Two extracts from Whitefield's "Journal" indicate the success and blessing attending this innovation. In one he says, "I preached at Kennington and such a sight I never saw before. I believe there were no less than fifty thousand people, near four score coaches, besides great numbers of horses. There was an awful silence among the people. God gave me great enlargement of heart and I continued my discourse for an hour and a half."

In another he says, "I preached in the evening to near sixty thousand people." At another time he estimated his audience at one hundred thousand. In our own land the Philadelphia courthouse steps became his pulpit, and neither he nor the people wearied although the cold winds of November blew upon them night after night.

The throngs and the blessings of the Wesleys corresponded, and no wonder, when we consider the exalted precedents these men had before them. Was not Moses in Egypt, and in the wilderness, an open-air preacher? And what about Samuel the prophet, and the gatherings of the people at Bethel, Gilgal and Mizpah? The greatest open-air preacher of the kingdom period of Judah was Jeremiah.

In modern times the Christians of Great Britain have set us all an example of the practicality and value of open-air preaching. The spirit of Whitefield and the Wesleys seems to abide there, and preachers of all denominations avail themselves of their church greens, the church steps, the parks, the public squares and the street corners to proclaim to the multitude the unsearchable riches of Christ. And this is true not only of the ministry but the laity as well, who high and low, in great numbers, exercise their gift of prophesying in the open air.

The Work in New York and Chicago

In the United States we are greatly behind the mother country in our appreciation of this

The Gwennap Pit—Cornwall

And what reader of the Bible can forget the stirring scene of the post-captivity days in Jerusalem, when "all the people gathered themselves together as one man into the broad place that was before the water-gate," and when "Ezra, the scribe, stood upon a pulpit of wood which they had made for the purpose * * * and opened the book in the sight of all the people," and "gave the sense and caused them to understand the reading." What would our Lord have done for an audience had He not preached in the open air, and what shall we say of the apostles who followed Him, of Peter on the day of Pentecost, and Philip in Samaria, and Paul on Mars Hill?

opportunity. The best work in any of our great cities with which I am acquainted is in New York. The Tent Evangel of Dr. McPherson in the upper part of the city, the broader work of the Evangelistic Committee conducted by the Rev. Dr. Arthur H. Smith, the street meetings under the auspices of the National Bible Institute as it is called, and led by Mr. Don. O Shelton, are an inspiration to all of us, from which we have not profited as we should.

Philadelphia seems to come next in line, where Dr. James B. Ely has been a leader of the forces, but Chicago has never grasped her birthright in this particular. However, some of the churches and pastors here are alive to it, and have learned that one way to fill their churches on Sunday mornings is to preach in the open air adjacent to them in the evenings. The rescue missions do a blessed work in this line and the Moody Bible Institute, as part of the training of its students in practical Christian work, sends them out for four months each summer under skilled supervision into the neglected sections of the city, and in tent, open-air and factory work, carries the gospel to thousands of people. It is with the hope that it may stimulate others in this direction that a page or two from the annual report of the Institute is appended, which speaks of its open-air work last summer as being the largest in its history, over five hundred and seventy-five students being engaged in it, by whom forty-one open-air meetings were conducted weekly. To continue the report:

Upon reaching his home town the first thing he did was to hold an open-air meeting. He writes: "I had considerable trouble in getting enough associates with sufficient nerve to start but I am confident that street meetings have come to stay."

It is not possible to recount the blessing of the open-air work. At a hospital service on a Sunday morning one of the students found a young physician, an interne, rejoicing in the Saviour. The night before, he had accepted Christ at one of the open-air services. At another service, a Gospel by John, in Polish, was given to a man who professed conversion. In following up this case, a student found that the man had taken the Gospel home and his wife had read it. Thus the way was prepared for the student to lead her to Christ, and when he left her home she, too, was rejoicing in the Lord.

Gospel Autos and Workers in Front of the Men's Dormitory, Moody Bible Institute

Forty-one open-air meetings were conducted weekly. Two automobiles, carrying about sixteen students each, added much to the equipment. These, with one gospel wagon, were used to reach the more distant parts of the city, while men organized into gospel teams, each equipped with a folding speaker's stand, reached the sections near the Institute.

The enthusiasm and zeal of the students in this work were signally marked.

Individual Cases

A prominent evangelistic worker, enrolled for the summer term as a student, was assigned to the open-air work. On leaving he confessed to the Director that he had been rebellious at being put into it, but said, "I thank God I had to get into it and that you kept me at it. It has been a great blessing to my soul, and wherever I go, I shall be an open-air worker."

A group of German students were sent out on certain nights to hold open-air services in German in a German section of the city, and on other nights a similar group coöperated with the Chicago Hebrew Mission. The service was given entirely into their hands and the gospel was preached in German to the Jews. The meetings were remarkable in interest and there were conversions reported.

The statistics of the work were as follows:
518 meetings held.

130,330 heard the gospel preached.

9,851 people were personally dealt with.

1,006 professed conversions.

4,665 gospels and 47,332 tracts were distributed.

Will not pastors who read this be persuaded to take up the work this summer? If they have the real love of the gospel and of souls in them, they will need only a taste of it to become enthusiastic in its promotion. And, moreover, it calls for the best talent in the ministry. An indoor audience will tolerate a mediocre preacher, but the man to hold an outside crowd must know what he wants to say and how to say it. Nor let it be supposed that outdoor preaching is merely brief exhortation and appeal. In an article in this magazine last summer, Mr. Munro, of New York, pointed out that the street audience will stand for a twenty-minute address at least, and one that is carefully thought out, if it but be presented with earnestness and attractive force.

It would prolong this article too far to speak of the concomitants of the preaching that go to make an out-door meeting a success, but experience will indicate them if one only will make the trial. "Go ye therefore unto the partings of the highways and as many as ye shall find, bid to the marriage feast." (Matt. 22:9, R. V.). This is a work for laymen as well as ministers, and indeed the former are likely to have the stronger influence. Be urged to do it, brethren, and you will open a new chapter in your life, that will make the sweetest reading you have ever known.

The Church — Past, Present and Future

By Rev. C. I. Scofield, D. D.

(Reprinted from the "Dallas News")

IT WILL be in the interest of clear thinking if we begin with a definition as to what we mean by the church. A few Scripture passages will suffice to give this. In Ephesians 1:20-23, we have an exceedingly important statement as to the church; it is as follows:

"Which he wrought in Christ when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places, far above all principality, and power, and might and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come; and hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the church, which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all."

This passage alone practically defines the church. It is the body of Christ, "the fulness of Him that filleth all in all," and it came into existence after His exaltation to the right hand of God.

Holding now that definition of the church as the body of Christ, we turn to 1 Corinthians, 12:12, 13.

"For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many are one body, so also is Christ. For by one spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free, and have been all made to drink into one Spirit."

The Church is the Body of Christ

The church is the body of Christ, of which He is the living head, and all believers since His advent, baptized by the Holy Spirit, are the living members. The church then is an organism—not an organization. It is a "body" in the same sense that the human body is one. Indeed, the human body is the illustration used in this passage, and just as all the members—hands, feet, eyes, etc., are necessary to make a human body, so all believers by the operation of the Holy Spirit are united to the risen Christ. That, then, is the church.

Of course, this definition does not have in view the vast aggregation visible to man which composes the professing church. The true church is composed of true believers, and it is that that we have primarily in mind when we use that word. This brings us logically to another question, When did the church begin to exist? Certainly not preceding the advent and history of Jesus Christ. In Matthew 16:17, 18, our Lord, then well toward the close of His earthly ministry, speaks of the church as yet in the future.

"Upon this rock I will build my church." He did not say, "am building," but "will build." The great passage (Eph. 3:1-10) expressly declares that the church was not revealed to the prophets of the Old Testament, but was a "mystery hid in God" until revealed to Paul. And, since the baptism of the Holy Spirit is essential to the formation of the church, we know that the church began on the day of Pentecost, when the group of Jewish believers in Christ, including the apostles, were by the Spirit baptized into His body. The day of Pentecost was the birthday of the church.

I need scarcely say that I do not at all mean that salvation began on the day of Pentecost. From Adam down, the power of God had been saving men. The point is that the church is composed of a distinctive body of saved men and women, those namely, who have believed on Jesus Christ since His first advent. His personal believers up to the day of Pentecost were saved, but until the Spirit came they had not been united together and to Christ as one body. John the Baptist, the last of the old Testament prophets, defines the relation to God of the Old Testament saints; they were the "friends of God." (John 3:29; James 2:23).

Faith, Fortitude, Fidelity

That the Old Testament saints are in heaven, enjoying all its felicity and the holy intimacy of God is most true; as also, that in faith, fortitude and fidelity, they are examples to us of the church age, but they do not constitute the church nor are they part of it. That there are two classes of saved ones in heaven is the direct assertion of Hebrews 12:23, where "the general assembly and church of the first born" is distinguished from "the spirits of just men made perfect." These latter are the Old Testament saints.

Let us ask now, what is the mission committed to the church? Nowadays the church is expected to undertake an almost infinitely various work; but the Bible speaks of one and only one work entrusted to her; one duty and one only was directly committed to the church—that of evangelizing the world. (Matt. 28:16-20, and Acts 1:8, 9).

Let it be observed that this duty is to evangelize, not convert the world. The gospel offer is made in good faith to every human being, "Whosoever will may come." But all who hear do not come. The church is composed of those, who hearing the gospel, accept Jesus Christ as a personal Saviour. The duty of the church is to bring the saving knowledge of Christ to every living being on the earth. We, in our generation, could, if we were minded to give ourselves to it, and to use our resources to that end, bring the knowledge of Christ to every living person on this globe within thirty years.

Why has the church so lamentably failed in the past and present to do this? I believe the chief reason is that she has turned aside from this one purpose of her being to do all kinds of second best things, and so her energies and resources have been diverted from the supreme object. The church expends every year in what are called home expenses from twenty to thirty times as much as in spreading a knowledge of the gospel of Christ in the unevangelized portions of the earth.

History of the Church

And now we come directly to our theme: What has been, what is, and what will be, the history of this body, the church?

We have the inspired prophetic answer to this three-fold question in the second and third chapters of the Revelation. In seven messages to seven existing churches in the Roman province of Asia, the risen Christ sets forth the whole course of the life of the church on earth from the year 96 to the end-time. We, of course, are well on toward that end-time and what was prophecy in the year 96 is now history. Let us look briefly at those messages in the light of history. As all modern interpreters of prophecy agree, each of these churches represents a certain phase or period in the history of the universal church. The message to Ephesus for instance, sets forth the general condition of the church at that time, i. e., at the close of the apostolic period. There was much zeal for the name of Christ which had already become a great "cause" in the world. There was zeal for correct doctrine, and for right ecclesiastical order, but the risen Christ found in the condition of his church at that period, one fatal defect, "thou hast left thy first love." There was zeal for the cause, but first love for the person of Christ had waned. The second message, that to the church in Pergamos describes the average condition of the churches at the end of the fourth century. The reputed conversion of the Emperor Constantine is generally accepted as the end of the Pergamos period. Briefly stated, the loss of first love in the Ephesus period had been followed by increasing worldliness, and this culminated, as all know, when the Christian religion became, under Constantine, the official or court religion of the Roman empire in the year 325. This condition is followed by the message to the church, and is historically reproduced in the church of the dark ages.

The message to Sardis marks evidently a new beginning and is universally interpreted as the Protestant Reformation, in which Luther was the chief agent. Protestantism gave back to the laity the Bible and recovered the fundamental doctrine of justification by faith.

But Protestantism was far from having recovered the pristine simplicity. The rebuke given to that phase of the church is, "I find none of thy works fulfilled before my God." (Rev. 3:2.) The message of Sardis brings us down, of course, to our own time, for we are still in the period of the Protestant churches, the fruit and outcome of the reformation.

Two Messages Left

We have now two messages left and these are in the course of fulfilment. These are the messages to the churches of Philadelphia and Laodicea. The first picture is one full of beauty and comes as a great relief after the preceding epochs of declension and failure. Philadelphia and Laodicea are to be understood as representing phases of Protestantism that exist together. It is not that we can identify Philadelphia with this or that particular church or body of Christians, nor can we say of this or that church or body of Christians that they represent Laodicea. What they do represent is two different groups in the same churches. In all of the Protestant churches, will be found a number of Philadelphians, i. e., those who have the Philadelphian loyalty and spirit, and these will be found in the midst of a larger number of self-satisfied, indolent, indifferent and worldly professors representing Laodicea. And it will be found that all the spiritual activities of the churches are in the hands of those who manifest the Philadelphian devotedness and loyalty. We have but to look about us, and that in no harsh or censorious spirit, to perceive that a comparatively small number in all the churches are doing the praying, the serving, and the giving. A great mass of believers are in no definite service, are never seen in the prayer meetings and give, if at all, not to spiritual but to humanitarian and local causes.

What is to follow these two phases in the Protestant churches? The answer is that these two phases constitute absolutely the end. There is no church prediction beyond them. The next event in prophecy is the taking up of the true church out of this mass of indifference, worldliness and profession, after which the Laodicean body, deprived of all spiritual life and activity passes on into the great tribulation and the reign of the beast and false prophet.

Against the true church composed of true believers, "the gates of hell" shall never prevail; but our Lord Himself in the parables of the wheat and tares and of the net in Matthew thirteen, gave a prophetic picture of the mixed multitude that would profess His name without any real faith. It is these and not true believers who become apostate and are left behind when the true church is taken up to meet the Lord in the air. (1 Thess. 4:14-17.)

Cards, Theaters and Dancing,

Considered from the Viewpoint of the New Testament

By Rev. T. W. Callaway, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Dublin, Ga.

IN TAKING up this subject tonight, permit me to state that the speaker is no novice regarding these worldly amusements. He played cards, attended theaters and danced from boyhood until he was converted. Further, he was a church member for some seven years of this time.

We are not so much concerned with the attitude the unsaved take toward the worldly amusements of the day as we are with the attitude of the believer. I am candid in saying, that if I wanted my son to live for the world, never confess Christ as Saviour and join the church, then die and go to hell, I should insist that he get all the worldliness, questionable fun and amusements this side of the grave, for he would have none where he goes. But the Christian is "not of the world." Its pleasures are not his, its ways are not his.

The question is not, should an unbeliever play cards, dance, etc., but should one who professes to be a follower of the blessed Jesus, whom the world hates, dance, attend theaters, etc.

The one question for the Christian to decide, is whether the things mentioned are of the world or not. If worldly, our attitude is clear and unquestionable.

"Enter not into the path of the wicked, and go not in the way of evil men." "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness." "If sinners entice thee, consent thou not." "Blessed is the man who walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly." "Love not the world." "If any man love the world the love of the Father is not in him." "The friendship of the world is enmity with God." "Come out from among them and be ye separate." "The time past of our life may suffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles, when we walked in lasciviousness, lusts, excess of wine, revelings, banquetings." "Ye walked according to the course of this world . . . and were dead." "She that liveth in pleasure is dead while she liveth." "I have called you out of the world."

Is the Dance Worldly?

Why should I take your time to prove that the dance is distinctively worldly? Our common sense should prove that. Today the city churches, especially, have become so dominated by the worldly element that many of the pastors seem to be afraid to speak out boldly on the subject.

Dancing is mentioned in the Bible: (1) As a religious act, performed by maidens, in the day time, in the open air, in highways, fields or groves. There is no instance in the Bible where both sexes united in the dance. (2) Dancing is shown in the Bible as sin, and as engaged in by sinners; vain fellows devoid of shame, irreligious families described by Job. The lascivious dance of Herodias terminated in the rash vow of Herod, and the murder of John the Baptist.

The verse often quoted by those defending the dance is Ecclesiastes 3:4, "There is a time to mourn and a time to dance." Since the Jewish people knew nothing of dancing except as a religious act or an expression of gratitude and praise, the text is a declaration of that fact. Also, the men in the Bible who perverted the dance from a sacred use to purposes of amusement, were called "infamous."

The dance is seen to be worldly by its effect on the believer. It kills piety, dulls the conscience, destroys power, grieves the Spirit, and dwarfs the prayer life. You all know that praying knees and dancing feet are not joined. A dancer may have a form of prayer but no pleading, no supplicating, no influence in prayer. A dancing preacher would have his testimony discounted at once. Who would hear or accept his gospel? Then, also, a dancing church member has no power to lead a lost soul from darkness into the gospel light.

A sheep may dance, but the world will call it a goat. Which is worse, to have the dance in God's house, or to take our house (the temple of the Holy Spirit) and dance over the ballroom floor?

The modern dance is worldly in its origin, its influence and its results. Remember, the dance today is shared by both sexes—a young lady of spotless character is swung around in the embrace of a man, who may be of a most questionable and immoral character. Would a girl of priceless worth allow the privileges of the ball room to be taken when seated alone in the parlor? A thousand times, no. The daughter may forget or fail to note the fact: she is thinking of the music, the whirl of excitement, the fascinating movement, but of what may the partner be thinking? Yes, the dance is worldly, is evil in its tendency, and distinctly fascinating, hence no Christian can follow Jesus and the dance.

The chief of police of New York City said three-fourths of the women and girls that are living lives of immorality, have been led from the path of virtue through the dance.

The universal testimony of rescue homes, is that the dance hall is the chief cause of the defection in the morals of girls.

If a pure girl knew the language used by many of the young men concerning her after the ball was over, she would hang her head in shame.

The National Society of Dancing Masters met in their twenty-third annual convention in Boston some time ago, and went on record as saying, "Dancing today is the most degrading thing on earth. It is demoralizing our young people. If allowed to go on it will bring the country to ruin. It is indecent and disgusting."

The modern dances are beastly and heathenish. The "Tango" is the dance of the natives of South America and is worse than the "Hooche, Kooche." The "Grizzly Bear" dance gets its name from the bear-like hug assumed by the dancers, and originated with the negroes in San Francisco. The "Turkey Trot" was first seen on the "Bowery," and it is a well known fact that the old round dance found its origin in the low places of Paris.

Friends, let me ask that you ponder these things carefully. Do your own thinking, and act according to the Word of God.

Remember that a true Christian, trying to "grow in grace and in the knowledge of his Lord," will abstain from all appearances of evil; they are doing always the things that please Him, and keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

As for the First Baptist Church of Dublin we may have to stand alone, appear narrow because we have selected the "narrow way," realizing that Jesus was the narrowest man that ever lived when it came to making allowances for sin and worldliness, and we shall seek for members only those who will leave the world and follow Jesus.

"And yet—'outside the camp'

'Twas there my Saviour died—

It was the world that cast Him forth,

And saw Him crucified.

Can I take my part with those Who nailed Him to the tree?

And where His name is never praised,

Is that the place for me?

"Nay, world, I turn away,

Tho' thou seem fair and good;

That friendly outstretched hand of thine

Is stained with Jesus' blood.

If in thy least device

I stoop to take a part,

All unaware, thine influence steals

God's presence from my heart."

II. Is the Card Table Worldly?

We cannot enter into its devotees' apology for the card table. We cannot discuss the fact that they claim it meets the just demand for pleasure, nor that it has been embellished by the society of the rich. Our one question is, Is the card table worldly? If so, the Christian is commanded to be separate from its enthrallment. We have no time to discuss the relative harm in playing cards and other games, like "authors," etc. Everyone of intelligence knows that there is a difference.

The card table is the recognized gambling game of the age. As such the acquisition of the knowledge of the game is a temptation against the moral integrity of anyone. Why? Because the private card table is the kindergarten of the gambling hell. Not that every player in the home or parlor becomes a gambler, but that the gamblers first learn to play, and gambling hells have no adjunct school save the drawing-room. It is there the youth learns; there he finds himself lucky; there the first seeds of the gambler are sown.

A magazine article gives a deplorable picture of the dissipation which is going through society and the church, like a deadly epidemic. It says:

"Physicians deplore the craze, claiming that it burdens their hands with hysterical women. Captains of industry say it weakens the stamina of the young men who need their strength for work. It is certainly draining the nerves, the purses, and the characters of those who heretofore made up in our land a sane, substantial society. The bars are now down, and the social climber can cast aside the church and consistency, and while it may not create depravity in everyone, it surely lifts the veil from it."

The card table has invaded both home and church, undermining both health and morals, and often disrupting intimate friendships. Even in what is termed "best society" it is fraught with jealousies, strife and bitterness. In fact, the speaker was in a social game in a certain southwestern Georgia city some years ago, when one woman at the table in rage called another woman a liar before a score of players. Such is the frenzy that is sometimes seen among the devotees of the card table. It robs the heart of its joy, engenders neglect toward the church, and slays spirituality.

Women Gambling

The women, too, in order to enliven the interest and excitement, often play for "prizes," "favors," "silver." Men and women would not play cards were it not for the excitement derived. There is no getting around the fact that especially when these prizes are furnished by a common purse the gambling feature is as much an object as in the police-haunted hell of the common gambler.

The amount may not be so large, but the gambling is as much a matter of fact, and our courts have so held it. If our grand juries did their full duty, they would bring to justice the men and women. Even the late sainted Governor Northen at one of our Georgia Baptist conventions emphasized this fact.

A grand jury's report to Judge Harrison of Kentucky said: "A pink tea where society plays progressive euchre and gives prizes to the winners has the same degrading influence as the gambling house, where roulette and poker are the attraction, the difference being only one of degree. It matters not whether the prize is a silver thimble or a silver dollar. Progressive euchre parties are made alluring with prizes, refreshments, and the knowledge that the local papers will print the names of guests and winners. All are common gamblers, and deserve to be fined."

The court demanded that the euchre players be indicted under the anti-gambling laws of Kentucky, and dealt with as criminals.

It is the feature of "chance" that makes these card games morally, mentally, and spiritually dangerous. From a mental standpoint, it is a sad commentary upon our modern social life, that they cannot amuse themselves without resorting to one of these three worldly amusements. Certainly they are not criterions for culture, refinement, nor even of average intellectual attainments.

Dr. Leslie W. Sprague, lecturer of the Brooklyn Ethical Society, says: "It is the deck of cards that has made conversation the dead art in America."

To entertain at "cards" is the cheapest and easiest way to spend an evening. It needs no sharpened wit, brain power, or range of knowledge, and from the time the playing begins to the end there will not have been an intelligent idea expressed, except about the game. It is, therefore, no recommendation to modern society that it has gone card crazy.

Some Questions

I now wish to give you some "questions and answers" regarding the card table:

1. Jesus said that He did always those things that pleased the Father. (John 8:29).

Can any sane man say that card playing pleases the Father? (1 Cor. 8:12).

2. We are told to "abstain from all appearance of evil" (1 Thess. 5:22).

Every honest Christian must admit there is an appearance of evil in card playing.

3. We are told, "Go not in the way of sinful men" (Prov. 4:14).

Are not cards the tools of the gambler?

4. Is there any difference in the sight of the law and God for men to play cards for a jackpot of silver quarters and the women for a silver vase? The principle is the same, and is outlawed.

5. Have you ever seen a habitual card player who was a soul-winner for Jesus? (Luke 8:14).

6. Have you ever seen a habitual card player attending prayer meetings? (1 Tim. 3:4, 5).

7. Is a game that is dangerous anywhere safe for your home?

8. Is it not true that the expert at home too often becomes the expert in the gambling hell?

9. Should a Christian indulge in anything that he would be ashamed to ask Christ to assist? (Col. 2:21).

10. Can a card-playing Sunday-school teacher consistently tell her children not to gamble? Cards and gambling are inseparably connected in the mind of the child.

11. If it is lawful for the church member to play cards, dance, attend theaters, is it not also lawful for the pastor to do likewise? God does not have two standards. How much respect would you have for a minister of the gospel who indulged in such worldliness? (1 Cor. 10:22, 31).

Testimony of Others

Anthony Comstock gave the following observations of one year's fruitage of cards:

One hundred and twenty-eight shot and stabbed; 24 suicided; 6 attempted suicide; 60 cold-blooded murders; 2 driven to insanity; 32 absconded; 85 embezzlements, amounting to nearly $3,000,000.

Chauncey M. Depew said that 92 per cent of the embezzlements and defalcations were due to cards, much of which started in the home.

A pastor who was once located in Macon, Ga., told me of a young man who killed another over a game of cards, and, rushing home, preparing to leave, his sister met him, and, seeing his excitement, asked the cause. She was crushed to hear the answer: "Sister, I have killed a man over cards; don't speak to me now. I played my first game in the home here with you and your friends." With this he left.

A prisoner in Michigan once said, "Let cards and liquor alone, and you will never be behind the grates."

Beloved, I have had card players open to my observation nearly all of my life, but never have I found the game an aid to those who sought to know and follow Jesus. This is not only my testimony, but that of thousands of other ministers. Society people are always the hardest to reach for Christ of any with which we have to deal. If they profess to be saved, their Christianity has no vital, soul-saving power in it. They know nothing of the sweetness of the fulness of joy at His right hand. They are barren of real spirituality. They may be philanthropic, active in certain church work, but of real prayer life and personal dealing with sinners they know nothing at all. Of these worldings my conviction is that they have a form of Godliness, but know not the power thereof. Such professors certainly are not abstaining from all appearance of evil; they are not doing the things that please Him; they are certainly not keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

III. Is the Theater Worldly?

We are not discussing so much what the theater once was, or what it might be, but what it is today.

However, it is a well-known fact that the ancient writers of moral truth, both Greek and Roman, frowned upon the theater and almost universally condemned it.

Plutarch, Plato, Socrates, Solon, Seneca, Ovid and others raised one common voice against it as hostile to morals. This was said about theaters before women ever appeared in them. I wonder what the old philosophers would say today?

The church, from the day of our Lord until today, has condemned and condoned the theater.

Dr. W. P. Breed said: "There was a theater in Jerusalem in the days of Jesus. Think you He ever attended it? Did the early disciples? So far from it that neither Jesus nor the apostles ever thought of forbidding their attendance upon stage plays."

When Herod introduced the theater, Josephus, the Jewish historian (not a Christian), denounced it as corrupting the morals of the Jewish people.

Lecky says: "After the thirteenth century the theater became one of the most powerful agents in bringing the church and, indeed, religion, into disrepute."

The Theater and the World

But let us ask the question again, should the theater be considered "worldly." Let us enquire:

1. In reference to its managers. The editor of The Century said: "Greed, ignorance, vulgarity on the part of the managers, is largely to blame for current theatrical evils. With the exception of four or five managers in the United States, they are ready to deal out theatrical goods of any description if only some one has made money out of them."

2. In reference to the performers. Moral character is not a condition of admission to the stage. Clement Scott of England, theatrical critic, says: "It is almost impossible for a woman to remain pure on the stage."

MacCreedy said: "None of my children shall, with my consent, have any visiting connection with any play actors or actresses."

Dr. Johnson said: "How can they mingle together as they do, make public exhibitions of themselves as they do, in such circumstances, such surroundings, with such speech. . . in such positions as they must sometimes take, affecting such sentiment and passions—how can they do this without moral contamination?"

3. In reference to its patrons. Certainly the actors play what the managers direct, and the managers select what the people want. The managers are not in the business for their health, and they study the desires of their patrons, and they are on the job to please.

4. In reference to the plays, John Gilbert, a veteran actor, said: "The condition of the stage is a matter of regret, many of the plays are open to severest criticism on account of immorality."

Booth said, "There is not a moral theater on earth." He tried to run one, but failed. Erwin attempted the same thing but failed. Those who defend the theater always speak of the model or puritanic play, but Theodore Cuyler said, "A puritanic theater would become bankrupt in twelve months."

In this town we cannot make a decent lyceum course pay. The great mass of those who frequent the theater, go there for strong, passionate excitements. They go for the very object that makes it dangerous for a servant of Christ. We do not affirm that every popular play is immoral, and every attendant on the scent of sensualities, but the theater is a concrete institution; it must be judged in the gross, and to a tremendous extent it is gilded nastiness. It unsexes womanhood, by putting her publicly in male attire—often in almost no attire at all.

Questions and Answers

Why is the theater harmful to Christians, and classed as "worldly?"

1. Because of the gloss it puts upon sin.
2. Because the base, wicked, and impure, are frequently exalted, and virtue is made sport of.
3. Because religion is scoffed at, blasphemy indulged in, the Bible standard not recognized, and the ten commandments frequently ridiculed.
4. Because criminals become heroes, and the good are made to appear as simpletons.
5. Because great crimes are made light of, while the sacredness of love is trifled with.
6. Because the imagination is inflamed and evil thoughts are awakened.
7. Because the morale of the play is sometimes contemptible and immoral.
8. Because these so-called melodramas are positively teachers of crime.
9. Because three-fourths of the young people of our cities who go wrong can look back to the theater and ball room as the starting point of their downfall.
10. Because of its indecent display of nudity.

11. Because much of the tragedy of the divorce courts can be traced to the stage.

12. Because, as Dr. Gladden says, "No habitual or inveterate theater goer ever achieved conspicuous success in business, in statesmanship, or in professional life."

13. Because temptation is awaiting the actress at every turn.

14. Because wickedness is made to give amusement.

15. Because language which you would not tolerate in your home before your daughter, is indulged in within the four walls of the theater.

16. Because a young man can't take a Christian young lady to the average theater without subjecting her to mortification and embarrassment.

17. Because the "so-called good plays" never come our way. They exist in theory only.

18. Because the Bible settles the question for Christian conduct in saying, "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good, abstain from every appearance of evil."

My friends, the speaker was connected with a theater some years ago as usher, etc., and I have read and seen the bill boards, and I have heard from those that have attended, and truly a more decided contrast between the walk of a Christian and that of a worldling can scarcely be found.

Remember, Christian, "You are not of the world." "The world hateth you."

Tampering With Bible Chronology

By Rev. Martin Anstey, B. D., M. A., London, England

(Abridged from a lecture at The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, stenographically reported)

IN OUR first lecture we dealt with the chronology of the Bible itself and showed that it was not only self-consistent, but also self-sufficient; that there are no gaps in the chronological record; that there is no need to turn from the Bible to any outside source to supplement and make it complete. There is no need to fall back upon Josephus or any other external source whatever. It is all embodied in the text of the Bible itself.

Today we want to prove that the chronology of the Bible is never contradicted by any of the established records of modern discovery. When we have completed our biblical studies and gotten our scheme of biblical chronology from the Bible itself, there are six other sources from which certain chronological facts may be obtained. These are the following:

1. Other texts and versions, such as the Septuagint translation of the Hebrew Bible into the Greek language, a translation in which there were many alterations made to suit the palate of the cultured Greeks of the third century before Christ, when it was made. There is also the Samaritan Pentateuch, a version of the Hebrew Bible which I think is connected in some way with the falling away under Jeroboam, and with the religion which was established in northern Israel when those foreigners were brought there from Babylon and other distant cities in the East (2 Kings 17:24-41).

2. Ancient literary remains, such as those of Sanchoniathon of Phoenicia, Berosus of Chaldea, Manetho of Egypt, Firdusi of Persia, the books of the Old Testament Apocrypha, the works of the Jewish historian Josephus, and the chronological tract of the Jews—called Sedar Olam—the Jewish rabbinical chronology.

3. The monumental inscriptions on rocks, temples, palaces, cylinders, bricks, steles and tablets, and writings upon papyrus rolls, brought to light by modern discovery.

4. The classic literature of Greece and Rome.

5. Astronomical observations and calculations of eclipses of the moon, and of the risings of the day star, Sirius.

6. The works of ancient and modern chronologists.

Let us look first at the antediluvian patriarchs:

We read in our Hebrew Bible that Adam was 130 years old when Seth was born, and he lived after Seth was born 800 years. That makes 930 years as the total length of the life of Adam. Now if you take your Greek version you will find that instead of saying Adam was 130 they say he was 230. They put on 100 years; but they keep the length of his life the same, 930 years. To do that they must take 100 years off the number of the years that he lived after Seth was born—230 plus 700 equals 930. (See chart below.)

Next we have Seth, who was 105 years old when Enos was born, and he lived 807 years after Enos was born, making 912. They take that 105 and add 100 to it in the Greek Septuagint, and say he was 205, and then they take 100 off the residue and make it 707 and that makes 912 as before for the total length of Seth's life.

Enos was 90 years old when his son was born, and he lived 815 years afterwards, making a total of 905; but the Greek translation says he was 190 and lived 715 years afterwards, and that brings him to 905 as before. (See chart below).

tion there. They were learned men and wanted to make the Bible appeal to the culture of their day, and so they modified it in order to meet those views.

Now in regard to the Samaritan Pentateuch. Let us come to the postdiluvian patriarchs. Take Salah in Genesis eleven. He was 30 years old when he had his son. He lived 403 years afterwards. The Scripture does not give us the total; but we can easily add it up—433. And the Samaritan Pentateuch has another motive. It also puts on 100 years, the same as the Greek translation, and says 130 instead of 30, plus 303 to get the 433 as before. We start with that. That is the same principle as before. (See chart below).

Then you come to Eber, 34 years plus 430 equals 464; and the Samaritan Pentateuch has 134 plus 270 equals 404.

For Peleg we have 30 plus 209 equals 239; and for that the Samaritan Pentateuch has 130 plus 109, which gives you 239 as before. You see there is something peculiar about Eber in the Samaritan Pentateuch. Why is it that it gives 270 years for the remaining years after the birth of his son, instead of 430? If you will look at the whole list, you will find that beginning with Adam, and coming down through the antediluvian patriarchs and the postdiluvian patriarchs from Noah to Abraham, and taking the whole list of

	Hebrew	LXX
Adam	130 plus 800 = 930	230 plus 700 = 930
Seth	105 plus 807 = 912	205 plus 707 = 912
Enos	90 plus 815 = 905	190 plus 715 = 905

Why do they do this? You see it is done systematically. Many critics of the present day say you cannot possibly reconcile science with the chronology of the Bible. They say the world must be more than 6,000 years old; some say that the world must be at least 7,000 or 8,000 years old, and others a million years or more. But in the days of the Septuagint translation they were not so bold. They did not mind altering the text a little; but their idea was the same as that which prevails today—that the world must be older than the biblical record represents it. And so by putting on 100 years to each of these patriarchs, six of them at all events, and 50 to another, they make it appear that the patriarchal period from Adam to the flood is 650 years longer than it is represented to be in the Hebrew Bible. The motive is to lengthen the chronology of the Bible to make it palatable to the wisdom of the Greeks. This Hebrew Bible was translated into the Septuagint Greek version about 300 years before Christ, in Egypt; and at that time there was a very advanced state of culture and civilization there. They were learned men and wanted to make the Bible appeal to the culture of their day, and so they modified it in order to meet those views. Now in regard to the Samaritan Pentateuch. Let us come to the postdiluvian patriarchs. Take Salah in Genesis eleven. He was 30 years old when he had his son. He lived 403 years afterwards. The Scripture does not give us the total; but we can easily add it up—433. And the Samaritan Pentateuch has another motive. It also puts on 100 years, the same as the Greek translation, and says 130 instead of 30, plus 303 to get the 433 as before. We start with that. That is the same principle as before. (See chart below).

Then you come to Eber, 34 years plus 430 equals 464; and the Samaritan Pentateuch has 134 plus 270 equals 404. For Peleg we have 30 plus 209 equals 239; and for that the Samaritan Pentateuch has 130 plus 109, which gives you 239 as before. You see there is something peculiar about Eber in the Samaritan Pentateuch. Why is it that it gives 270 years for the remaining years after the birth of his son, instead of 430? If you will look at the whole list, you will find that beginning with Adam, and coming down through the antediluvian patriarchs and the postdiluvian patriarchs from Noah to Abraham, and taking the whole list of

	Hebrew	Samaritan Pentateuch
Salah	30 plus 403 = 433	130 plus 303 = 433
Eber	34 plus 430 = 464	134 plus 270 = 404
Peleg	30 plus 209 = 239	130 plus 109 = 239

all at once—there is no great event in history, but everything takes place a little bit at a time; and therefore when a great event takes place they say that it must have taken hundreds of years, thousands of years, and they are called the school of evolutionary geologists. But there is another school which says there are such things as earthquakes, “leaps,” “lifts,” “saltations” and “jumps”; and sometimes an event will take place which will accomplish as much in a night as five hundred years of evolutionary action and they make their theories to account for these facts. And so it is in regard to these lists. There is an idea in the mind of the compilers that the length of human life cannot have been altered suddenly in any one generation, but gradually; and so they have made their lists represent that idea.

The Khammurabi Code and the Critics

THE large inscribed monument on the right of the doorway in the Babylonian room of the British Museum is a cast of the celebrated Code of Laws of Khammurabi or Hammurabi. He is supposed to be identical with the Amraphel, king of Shinar, mentioned in Genesis fourteen. The twenty-eight columns of text contain a very remarkable series of laws, and the fact that such a wise code should have existed in the time of Abraham has been urged as a proof that the Mosaic law was not a revelation from God, but a copy from Babylon.

As we have already noticed, there is clear evidence from God's words concerning Abraham, that he had already received a “charge,” “commandments,” “statutes,” and “laws.” How God gave these laws to him we do not know, but on the upper part of this cast, Khammurabi is represented “in the traditional attitude of worship, in the act of receiving them from the sun-god, who is seated on a mountain”; and it may be that there is here a much corrupted record of a real fact.

Khammurabi's code seems to explain several of the customs of the patriarchs, such as Sarah giving Hagar to Abraham, Rachel giving Bilhah to Jacob, because they were childless. A provision covering this is in the code. There are also laws concerning the adoption of a slave, thus making him a freeman and the heir of his adopted father, reminding us of Abraham's reference to Eliezer. There are many laws against theft of any kind, a death penalty being attached to robbery from the palace. This reminds us of the supposed theft of Joseph's cup, and explains the fear of his brethren. The customs represented in Genesis twenty-four where Abraham seeks a wife for his son, the giving of gifts, etc., are all in keeping with the code. Another law illustrates the adoption of Ephraim and Manasseh by their grandfather, Jacob.

Before this code of Khammurabi was found, the critics had been saying that the book of Deuteronomy was written in the days of Josiah, and the other books of Moses subsequently. This discovery undermined the very foundations of “the critical hypothesis.” But instead of repenting of their error and folly, the critics turned round, and, with amazing effrontery, declared that the Mosaic code was borrowed from Babylon. This is a most reasonable conclusion on the part of those who regard the Mosaic law as a purely human code. But here the critic is “hoist with his own petard.” For if the Mosaic law were based on the Khammurabi code, it could not have been framed in the days of Josiah long ages after Khammurabi had been forgotten.

This Khammurabi discovery is one of many that led Professor Sayce to declare that “the answer of archaeology to the theories of modern ‘criticism’ is complete; the law preceded the prophets, and did not follow them.”

But even this is not all. It is a canon of “criticism” with these men that no biblical statement is ever to be accepted unless confirmed by some pagan authority; Genesis fourteen was therefore dismissed as a fable on account of its naming Amraphel as a king of Babylon. But Amraphel is only another form of the name of Khammurabi, who now stands out as one of the great historical characters of the past.—Ada R. Habershon in “The Bible and the British Museum.”

Practical and Perplexing Questions

Answered by the Editors

THE JEWISH REMNANT

Question: How can there be a believing Jewish remnant left on earth after the coming of Christ for His church, if all believers are translated at that time?

Answer: No such remnant will be left, but it will come into existence after the church is translated.

JONATHAN A TYPE?

Question: If Saul is a type of Satan, and David a type of Christ, whom does Jonathan represent?

Answer: We were not aware that Saul was commonly regarded as a type of Satan, and while David in some respects is a type of Christ, yet that does not necessitate that Jonathan must have a typical significance as well. We do not recall that Jonathan's life-story has been so used.

PLAYING LOTTERY

Question: Do you regard playing in money lottery as something a Christian should avoid?

Answer: We certainly do. Lottery is a scheme for distributing prizes by chance where a valuable consideration is given for the chance of drawing a prize. It is a scheme for getting something for nothing, which is now almost universally condemned as a form of gambling, and prohibited by law both in Great Britain and the United States.

THE BUILDING OF THE ARK

Question: We are told that Noah was 120 years building the ark, yet he was 500 when he started, and was 600 years old when he entered the ark. Does Genesis 6:3 give us that data?

Answer: We do not think that Genesis 6:3 teaches that Noah was 120 years building the ark, but God waited that length of time to give wicked men a further opportunity to repent. Some commentators think the announcement of the doom of the race was made to Noah in the 480th year of his age.

PERSONALITY OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

Question: Will you kindly define the word "person" as applied to the Holy Spirit in the articles of faith formulated by the late prophetic conference?

Answer: The word "person" is there used precisely as it is in connection with the Father and the Son. Personality consists in intelligence and free-will and is identical with self-consciousness, in which sense it is spirit. Christ always spoke of the Holy Spirit with the use of personal pronouns. Furthermore, the things which the Holy Spirit does can only be done by a person (Rom. 8:14, 27; John 14:16, 17, 26; Acts 13:2; 20:28). When offences against the Holy Spirit are referred to they are only such as could be against a person (Isa. 63:10; Matt. 12:31, 32; Heb. 10:29).

REVIVAL OF PROPHETIC STUDY

Question: Is there prophetic significance in the fact that during recent years there has been a great awakening as to the premillennial coming of Christ?

Answer: We do not know, but would remind the inquirer that Daniel 12:4 declares that in "the time of the end" many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased, which seems to indicate a revival of prophetic study. Some find in the midnight cry of Matthew 25:6 such an awakening, and infer that it presages the coming of the Bridegroom. Again, the increase of spirituality resulting from prophetic study may indicate that the Lord is preparing His bride for "the marriage supper of the Lamb." Interest in such study also leads to prayer for the coming of the Lord, and this will doubtless hasten that event (2 Pet. 3:12). However, there have been other awakenings on this topic, and still the Lord has tarried. Let us be patient, for He is surely coming.

THE NATURE OF GOD

Question: What is the conception of God by the evangelical churches? Is Exodus 3:2 to be taken literally? How does God communicate with men?

Answer: The conception of God held by the evangelical churches is comprehensively expressed in the "Westminster Confession of Faith" as follows: "God is a spirit, infinite, eternal and unchangeable in His being, wisdom, power, holiness, justice, goodness and truth."

Exodus 3:2 is to be taken literally, i. e., there was a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush, in which the Angel of the Lord appeared. Just how the Angel of the Lord manifested Himself is not stated, however.

Sometimes God communicated with men through other men, or through angels, and sometimes doubtless by an audible and articulate form of words, as on Mount Sinai.

THE MANNER OF CHRIST'S SECOND COMING?

Question: Does Zechariah 14:4, 5 teach that Christ's coming with His saints is visible?

Answer: In that passage Israel is seen to flee to the valley, but if Christ were visible the correspondent believes Israel would flee towards and not away from Him. Our opinion is that Christ's coming with His saints will be visible, and the passage before us need not be construed as teaching that Israel flees away after He is seen on the Mount of Olives, but before that event. The order of narration in the prophets is not always, or even usually, the order of the events. The great event is often placed in the foreground, and the minor events as leading up to it are revealed afterwards. In conclusion, we think the Scriptures teach that Christ's coming for His church is invisible, but His coming to Israel later is visible.

DIVINE HEALING

Question: Will you be so kind as to give information about divine healing? We have in our church a father of a family who has become a believer in this doctrine to the detriment of the rest of his family, and I am not in a position to get reliable information as to its errors.

Answer: By "divine healing" we understand the cure or removal of a physical malady without the aid of a human physician or a material remedy, and solely in answer to the prayer of faith addressed to God through Jesus Christ. This seems to be taught as possible and right in James 5:14, 15, and is illustrated by examples again and again in the Old and New Testaments. There has been a revival of faith in the doctrine among the Christians of Europe and America during the past thirty or forty years; and in our own land the name of Dr. A. B. Simpson, of the Christian Alliance, is conspicuously and honorably associated with it. To him we would refer our inquirer for further information and help.

In the meantime, if this father is doing detriment to his family by it, there must be something wrong somewhere. Perhaps he is trying to force his convictions upon them, which can not be done, and is contrary to the spirit of a true Christian. It is for him to bear witness as to what the Lord has done for him, and leave it there. If his family have not similar faith, or if the Lord is leading them in a different way, he should not arbitrarily interfere. They are entitled to a physician and to medicines if they need and desire them.

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST

Question: Has Christ already come in the spirit, and are we to look for no personal coming? Are we entering upon an age of peace preceding the millennium, during which all nations are to be brought into the kingdom of God, or shall we look for trouble, persecution and tribulation? Explain Micah 4.

Answer: Christ came once personally and visibly, and He is to come again in the same way (Acts 1:11). The Holy Spirit is now resident in the church and dwelling in every believer on Jesus Christ, but although the Holy Spirit is, in the God-head, one with Christ, yet His presence here is not the second coming of Christ of which the New Testament so frequently speaks.

As we understand the Scriptures we are not entering upon an age of peace preceding the millennium, for the Scriptures expressly teach that in the last days perilous times shall come (2 Tim. 3:1-5).

Micah 4 refers to Israel's national restoration at the end of this age, which is incident to the inauguration of the millennial age. In the millennial age, the law shall go forth from Zion, and the Lord shall rebuke strong nations, and neither shall they learn war any more.

OLD TESTAMENT PROPHECIES

Question: How shall we understand the Old Testament and the prophecies? Do they apply literally to us or to the Jews as a nation? Is a history of the world revealed in Daniel? Is the 11th chapter of Daniel nearly fulfilled? Does the latter part of that chapter refer to Turkey? Also please explain Malachi 4, up to verse 5.

Answer: The Old Testament prophecies apply literally to the Jewish nation and not to the Christian church, although there is a sense in which many of the teachings of the prophets are for the instruction of the people of God in all the ages. Daniel reveals the history of Gentile dominion in the earth from the time of the Babylonian captivity of the Jews until that of their final restoration in Jerusalem at the end of this age. In our judgment the 11th chapter is approaching fulfilment, but how near we are to its complete fulfilment, we cannot say. For a detailed interpretation of the chapter the inquirer must be referred to some of the many commentaries on that book, and the one by Gaebelein is especially recommended.

Malachi 4 refers to the tribulation through which the nation of Israel will pass at the end of this age, out of which it will come purified and enter upon millennial blessing. Some think that "Elijah, the prophet" referred to there means a literal returning of Elijah who was translated in the Old Testament days. Others think that some other prophet is meant who will come in the power of Elijah.

THE APOCRYPHAL BOOKS

Question: What is the history of the apocryphal books in which there is teaching of the existence of purgatory?

Answer: The apocryphal books were probably added to the Hebrew Scriptures by Alexandrian Jews in the period that elapsed between the completion of the Old Testament canon and the writing of the New Testament. These books are not found in the Hebrew, Jesus never quoted them, and it is doubtful whether the apostles ever referred to them. In 1562 the English church denied them authority as settling doctrinal questions. In 1643 the "Westminster Confession" denied their inspiration and authority as being merely human writings. The Council of Trent (Roman Catholic) in 1546 declared eleven out of sixteen apocryphal books to be canonical, and pronounced a curse on anyone differing from that decision. They were in the earlier English versions of the Bible, but were gradually left out, and even when appearing were placed by themselves between the Old and New Testaments. In 1826 the British and Foreign Bible Society excluded them from all their publications. The American Bible Society has never published them.

THE BOOK OF REVELATION

Question: How shall we understand the book of Revelation? Was it actually revealed on Sunday? Are the Mohammedans and Turks referred to in its prophecy? How do you explain the three angels' messages? When was the last message given? Did Luther and the Reformation give the second? Is any of the prophecy being fulfilled now?

Answer: To answer these questions fully would require all the space of the present issue of this magazine, and we must refer the inquirer to commentaries on the book of Revelation, such as Seiss or Lincoln, or B. W. Newton, or W. W. Mead. The way to understand the book is to read it, looking for the aid of the Holy Spirit in connection with the promise in chapter 1, verse 3; though of course such commentaries as have been named will render great assistance, for the Holy Spirit often uses commentaries. We believe the book was actually revealed to the Apostle John on the Lord's day. Some think that the Mohammedans and Turks are referred to in chapter 9, on which subject the old commentary of Albert Barnes is suggestive. There doubtless is a sense in which some of the prophecies of Revelation are being fulfilled now, though in our judgment their complete fulfilment will not take place until the end of this present age, for we believe their scene is laid in Jerusalem when Israel is restored to her land again, and when she is passing through her hour of tribulation.

JUDGMENT OR JUDGMENTS

Question: Is there to be more than one judgment? Of course, there is to be a final judgment at the end of the world, but is that all? Do we, or do we not, go before God at death to be judged, and then are we judged again at the resurrection? I do not understand why we are to be judged twice, and, if we are not, why we can receive our reward or punishment at death without judgment. Please explain this.

Answer: The moment a man receives the Lord Jesus Christ as his Saviour, and confesses him as his Lord he passes from death unto life, and hence shall not come into condemnation, or judgment, as our Lord says in John 5:24. This means that there is no judgment awaiting him so far as the question of sin is concerned, because he has paid the penalty of it in Christ who died for him on the Cross. But nevertheless at the second coming of Christ he must appear before His judgment seat to "receive the things done in his body according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad" (2 Cor. 5:10). This judgment is to determine the question of his fidelity as a disciple of Christ, and the place he will occupy, or the reward he may receive in the coming kingdom.

Matthew 25:31-46 speaks of another judgment which also will take place at Christ's second coming, but as we understand it, this is to be a judgment of the living Gentile nations on the earth. The criterion of this judgment will be the treatment these nations have accorded God's peculiar people, the Jews.

As our inquirer says, there is to be a final judgment at the end of the world (Rev. 20:11-15), but this, if we interpret it aright, is only for the dead who have died out of Christ, or out of fellowship with God, in all the preceding ages from the fall of Adam until the end.

It follows from the above that when men now die, while they continue in a state of consciousness (whether in bliss or in misery), yet this is not their final state of reward or punishment. The subject is a vast one, whose proper treatment would require volumes, but this is the best answer we can give in the present space and with our present light.

THE LAYMENS COMMENTARY ON THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS

Conducted By James M. Gray

THE GOSPEL OF JOHN

Lesson 11

At Man's Judgment Seat

Chapters 18 and 19

I. A good way to study this lesson is to compare the text with the corresponding places in the Synoptics and observe what is original with John. Any "Harmony" of the Gospels would furnish valuable aid. For example, it is John who names "the brook Cedron" or "Kidron," and identifies the "garden" (18:1). The others speak of "a place called Gethsemane," etc., but nothing more. He, only, tells us that Judas "knew the place," and why (2). John 8:4-8 is new, and one sees its fitness as the design of that Gospel is to emphasize the power and Godhead of Christ. Here we learn the name of the high priest's servant Malchus (v. 10). Again, from verses 13 to 17 are original, verses 19 to 23, also verses 29, 31, 32 and 34-38. These give details of Peter's denial of his Master, and Jesus' hearing before the Sanhedrin and before Pilate.

II. John gives no record of the agony in Gethsemane, which otherwise would have appeared between verses 1 and 2 of chapter 18. Verse 2 affords one of the many illustrations in this chapter of the voluntariness of Christ's death. He did not hide Himself, but went where He could easily be found. Verse 4 is to the same purport. With verse 6 compare Ps. 27:2. Let not verse 8 be passed without noting the illustrations of Christ's constant watchful care and protecting power over all His believing people. Verse 9 shows that one way He keeps His people faithful is by keeping them from being tempted above what they are able to bear. The circumstance in verse 13 is mentioned only by John, and is explained by some in saying that Annas, having served his time as high priest, was living in the same palace with his son-in-law. Certainly their relations were intimate judging by Luke 3:2. There was disorder in the office of the high priest at this period, which must be kept in mind in considering difficulties of this chapter, verse 24 for example. Then, too, for wise reasons, the Holy Spirit may have led one writer to dwell more on one set of facts than another. If each had told the story in the same words, the whole would have been less satisfactory.

III. The larger part of chapter 19 is original with John. The events are the crowning with thorns (1-3); the appearance before the multitude (4-13); the final rejection (14, 15); the crucifixion (16-37); the entombment (38-42).

The outstanding figure from the point of view of human iniquity is Pilate—the double-minded, cruel, deceitful Pilate. Note the scourging of Jesus (1), and remember that "by His stripes we are healed" (Isa. 53:5). Matthew 27:27 tells us that this took place in the "common hall," the soldiers' guard room, the character of which may be imagined by what we know of similar places in modern days. The Roman legionaries were expert in torturing prisoners. Verse 7 refers to Leviticus 24:16. Verse 14 means that it was the day before the great Sabbath of the Passover week (Mark 15:42). There is a difficulty in that John speaks of the sixth hour and Mark the third, a common solution being that the latter reckoned by Jewish and the former Roman time. Note how the close of verse 15 stamps the Jews at this time as an apostate nation. With the word "delivered" (16), compare Romans 4:25; 8:30. And with "led," Isa. 53:7; Acts 8:32. With "went forth" (17), compare Leviticus 16:27; Hebrews 13:12.

At verse 24, Bishop Ryle calls attention to the importance of interpreting prophecy literally, of which importance there are several illustrations in the chapter, for example verses 36, 37. At verses 28-30 observe another proof of the voluntary character of Christ's death, as the final separation between body and soul could not take place until He willed it. The author just quoted thinks the "blood and water" (34), was a symbolic fulfilment of Zechariah 13:1, which the student will look up. Verse 38 was predicted in Isa. 53:9, which should be translated, "His grave was appointed with the wicked; but with the rich man was his tomb."

Question on the Lesson

1. Do you possess a "Harmony of the Gospels"?
2. Name some of the events original with John in these chapters.
3. Name some of the proofs of the voluntariness of Christ's death.
4. What is one of the means by which Christ keeps His people faithful?
5. How often is Isaiah 53 quoted in this lesson?
6. How would you harmonize the difficulty in verse 14?
7. Name some of the illustrations of the importance of interpreting Old Testament literally, when it can be done.

THE GOSPEL OF JOHN.

Lesson 12

After the Resurrection

Chapters 20 and 21

1. The fact of the resurrection, 20: 1-10. The original features are Mary Magdalene's message to Peter and John and the visit of the last two to the tomb. Perhaps the most notable verse is the seventh, which shows the deliberate manner in which the resurrection took place. Everything contradicted the idea that the body had been stolen. Why, thus, should the linen cloths have been left? The quantity of linen must have been large when one hundred pounds of aromatic powder had been used in wrapping the body.

2. The appearance to Mary Magdalene, 11-18. The critical verse is the seventeenth. In view of Matthew 28:9, why should Christ say "Touch me not"? Was it because several women were present then, and here but one? Was it because she evinced extravagant joy in some way? Or, was it because Christ would now teach her of the new relationship to His disciples He was about to assume? (Compare 2 Cor. 5:15-17). And then the words, "I am not yet ascended," what is their significance in this case? We must confess inability to answer these questions satisfactorily.

3. The appearance to the ten, 19-23. With what body did Christ arise? It was of a more spiritual kind than He had before, because He appeared in the room without unfastening the doors, and yet it was a real human body and not a mere shadow nor spirit. "Peace be unto you," was not merely a formal salutation, but a reassurance that all had been forgiven them. The breathing on them is a strong intimation that the Holy Ghost proceeded from Him, and hence another indirect proof of His Godhead (John 1:33; Acts 2:33). It is difficult to interpret the sense in which they now received the Holy Ghost, since they had received Him at their regeneration and conversion (1 Cor. 12:3); and received Him again on the day of Pentecost (Acts 2). May it be that this was a special endowment of power for the intervening period before Pentecost? Of course, the authority to remit sins was not absolute, but declarative, just as the high priest in the old economy pronounced who were clean and who were unclean as to leprosy. It was God who cleansed in the one instance or forgave in the other, but the evidences of either might be made known through His representatives.

4. The appearance when Thomas was present, 24-29. Here is strong indirect evidence of the truth of the Scriptures, as an impostor would not have told us of the unbelief of an apostle. Christ's words to Thomas are a warning to all who demand an excessive amount of evidence before they believe. And yet, when Thomas did express his faith, "My Lord and my God" became an unanswerable testimony to Christ's deity. It was said in the presence of ten witnesses, and our Lord accepted it as a fact.

5. A summing up of testimony, 30, 31.

These verses are parenthetical and break the thread of the narrative. If the Gospel ended here, they might apply to the whole of what the evangelist had written; but, as another chapter follows, he is probably referring only to the proofs of the resurrection.

6. At the Sea of Tiberias, chapter 21. There is little requiring explanation in these verses, but the "Scofield Bible" offers a good interpretation of them. The whole chapter it entitles, "The Risen Christ is Master of our Service." Verses 3 and 4 show us service in self-will under human leadership, and verse 5 the barren result. Verses 6 to 11, on the other hand, show us Christ-directed service and its result, while 12-14 indicate that the Master is enough for the need of His servants. Then, in 15-17 we have the only acceptable motive in service. In 18 and 19 the Master appoints the time and manner of the servant's death. Verses 20-25 show that if the Master returns the servants will not die.

"Naked," verse 7, means presumably the absence of a loose outer garment, the same which he "girt" about him afterwards. That the number 153 has some symbolical significance seems probable, but up to the present it is only speculation. The "third time" (14) means, doubtless, the third time Christ appeared to any number of the disciples gathered together. "Lambs," in contradistinction to "sheep," means probably the young and weak in spiritual experience, whatever their years. Verses 18 and 19 show that the future history of every saint is known to Christ, and it is commonly supposed that, in fulfilment of them, Peter was crucified as a martyr. The latter is interested to know of John's future, and is sharply rebuked for it (20-22). Verse 22 is mysterious, has never been fully explained, and is distinguished as having given rise to the first tradition in the church (23). This tradition, though early and common, was nevertheless false. It is always better to say, "I do not know," than to build up a conclusion on a false premise. In verse 24 John alludes to himself and his authorship of this Gospel, while in 25, according to Calvin, he employs a "figure of speech for commending the greatness of Christ's works."

Questions on the Lesson

1. What are the features original to verses 1-10?
2. What is the most notable verse, and why?
3. What explanations have been offered of verse 17?
4. How might the breathing upon them of the Holy Ghost be explained?
5. What two-fold evidential value is attached to 20:24-29?
6. What spiritual interpretation of chapter 21 has been suggested?
7. What gave rise to the first tradition in the church?

International Sunday-school Lessons

By E. O. Sellers

May 9

Friendship of David and Jonathan

1 Samuel 20:32-42

Golden Text.—“A friend loveth at all times.”
Proverbs 17:17.

There is perhaps no other narrative in all literature which so perfectly illustrates friendship as this. Jonathan was every inch a man; affectionate, sweet and tender, deeply pious and withal loyal to both duty and friends. His royal rights he gladly set aside for David whom he “loved as his own soul” (18:3; 20:17). He (23:17) illustrated the surrendered life.

I. David's Danger, vv. 32-35. Three times in the previous chapter (vv. 5, 14, 30) we read that David “behaved himself wisely.” “Saul eyed David” (v. 19), and his jealousy increased. Jonathan's love for David put him more upon his guard, and determined, if possible, to save both David and Saul.

After David's escape (18:18), he consulted Jonathan regarding his safety (20:1-10). They renewed their covenant with each other, and swore fealty to their households (vv. 11-17). David was safe at Naioth (19:18-24), for his enemies were hindered by the Spirit of Jehovah from the carrying out of Saul's wicked designs. This seemed for the moment to humble Saul (20:1; Ps. 91:1). Jonathan, though great and mighty, was not strong enough to deliver his friend from the renewed wrath of his father. “Vain is the help of man.” “Our help is in the Lord.” Jonathan showed his true friendship by telling the exact state of affairs to David (v. 10).

When Saul became convinced that Jonathan was taking David's part, he tried to kill Jonathan and reviled the mother who bore him (v. 30). In his loss of self-control he allowed David to escape. When God was with Saul (10:7), or His Spirit upon him (11:6), he did battle for God. But his bright beginning ends in an eclipse, the beginning of which was rejection of the word of the Lord (15:23).

II. David Delivered, vv. 35-42. Jonathan did not revile again (v. 34) when insulted and assailed by his father, and his manifestation of just anger (for his mother was reviled) was quite different from that of his father. Any attempt to reconcile Saul to David (v. 34) was a useless exposure to danger. This explains the expedient of shooting arrows in the field. Jonathan shot his arrows “beyond,” that is, David must go “beyond” and out of the reach of Saul. David accepted Jonathan's fidelity

(v. 23) when the test came. How many of us, like Jonathan's lad, unconsciously bear tidings of mighty import, messages of life or of condemnation, as we go about the discharge of our daily duties!

Dismissing the boy, Jonathan drew near to David's hiding place to the south of the stone Ezel (v. 41, R. V.), where a most touching parting took place. First of all David bowed ceremoniously three times, touching his head to the ground, perhaps to show his unshaken loyalty to Jonathan as the king's son. This was but for a moment; as men of the East and friends, they rushed to each other's arms and wept for a long time. These were the manly tears of two brave men not afraid to show their love and emotions. It has been suggested that Jonathan should have accompanied David as God's elect (Heb. 13:13) but duty bade him remain by the side of his sin-stricken father. Only once subsequently, and that briefly (23:16-18), did these two meet (2 Samuel 1:17-27).

The Lessons of the Lesson. True friendship costs. God's love gave to the world His Son. Jonathan's friendship for David was costly but was given gladly. True friendship neither forgets duty, nor neglects the object of its love. When David came into power he remembered the covenant made with Jonathan (2 Sam. 9:3). Our “Son of David” has made a similar covenant with us (Acts 16:31; 2:39). True friendship is of slow growth but is not easily killed by adversity (Prov. 18:24). True friendship is unselfish. It gives and does not seek. Jesus called his apostles friends (John 15:15). True friendship is not conventional; to casually hail the passing stranger by the title “Friend,” is no sign of true friendship. True friendship demands a great soul. Jonathan had a great soul and one of the greatest titles possessed by our great-hearted Lord is “the Friend of sinners.” True friendship is founded upon religion and the best Friend, the ideal Friend, is Jesus Christ. That friendship which is based upon oaths, ritual and dues, is not abiding, nor true friendship for it excludes all who fail to possess the same password or a sufficient amount of currency. That friendship which is based upon expediency, or an exchange of benefits is not true friendship. True friendship, which has as its common center God's best boon, the friendship of His Son, will abide forever and of such it will be said that they loved one another.

Today will be observed by many schools as “Mother's Day.” Contrast our motherhood with that of Mohammedan and other heathen lands. "What causes the difference?"

May 16

David Spares Saul

1 Samuel 26:5-16

Golden Text.—"Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you." Luke 6:27.

Prof. Beecher gives 1065 B. C. as the date of this lesson and the death of Samuel. Saul had been on the throne 37 years and David was 27 years of age. There are ten famous episodes between the lesson of last week and that of today: (1) David and the shewbread; (2) Goliath's sword; (3) David feigns madness (chap. 21); (4) the cave of Adullam; (5) his care for his parents; (6) the killing of the priests (chap. 22); (7) wandering in the wilderness (chap. 23); (8) the cutting of Saul's robe (chap. 24); (9) Nabal's churlishness, and (10) Abigail's kindness (chap. 25). It might be well to have one scholar give a summary of each of these events.

I. David and Abishai, vv. 5-7. Once before the Ziphites had informed Saul as to David's whereabouts (23:19). Learning that Saul evidently intended to follow him into the wilderness (v. 4), David sent spies to learn the exact location of Saul, and the three thousand men under command of Abner. Abner, a cousin of Saul, was a brave man with a remarkable history. Unwittingly they had placed themselves in David's power, and that for a second time (24:3-8). Saul and his men were scattered about sleeping "within the place of the wagons" (v. 5, R. V.), with Saul in the center, the spear marking his resting place, and the bolster under his head. From a neighboring rock David and his friends could distinguish the spear and the outlines of the camp. David's challenge was directed to both of his companions. Ahimelech, the Hittite, declined the summons, whereupon Abishai, David's nephew, who had already proved himself in the affair at the well (2 Sam. 23:13-16), and later a leading figure in David's kingdom, accepted the challenge.

II. David and Saul, vv. 8-12. Abishai was quite right that God had delivered Saul into David's hand (v. 8), but he was wrong in his conclusion as to what that meant. God delivered Saul that he might, if possible, save him. It was a challenge that tested David's magnanimity, and an event wherein he could appeal to Saul's honor. There was ample provocation but David recognized the hand of God, nor would he profit by another's hand upraised "against the Lord's anointed" (v. 9). A less sensitive conscience could have found an excuse for allowing another to strike a blow to his own profit. Saul was rejected of Jehovah, yet David preferred to let Jehovah execute His own decrees (24:15. Compare Ps. 105:15). Here we have a great principle. In this dispensation all Christians are anointed of God (1 John 2:20) and while some of these may be "rejected ones" (24:6, 7; 2 Sam. 1:16) still we must be satisfied to let God avenge our wrongs and establish us in that place to which He has called us. To have yielded to the lower motive would have been termed "good policy" by the world. David yet loved Saul in spite of his cruelty. It appeals to our pride and our love of power to have revenge within our grasp but it is a greater evidence of power and grace to be able to withhold. By keeping Christ before us constantly, remembering that He reviled not, we can forgive even as He forgave, and "do good to them who spitefully use you." Instead of killing Saul, David carried away his sceptre-spear and his cruse, both emblems of Saul's kingly office and power. These would be sufficient evidence that God had delivered Saul's life into David's hands, and that David had not used this opportunity to his advantage.

III. David and Abner, vv. 13-16. Returning to his vantage point, doubtless the brow of a hill on the opposite side of the valley, a point of safety, David awakened the sleeping camp. Abner asked, "Who art thou?" This cry sounds strangely like the present day replies of the challenge when a sleeping camp of sin is aroused. This call came at night. When our King shall return His visit will be unexpected and at night (1 Thess. 5:2-4; Rev. 16:15). It would seem like a humiliation for this proud, haughty general, Abner, to be taunted by David (v. 15). As chief officer he was responsible for the king's safety and his life. David therefore might well reproach and chide him, for his lack of fidelity was worthy of death. When Saul was thoroughly awake to the facts of David's visit to his camp, and that his life had been spared he was moved to another moment of repentance (vv. 17-21), and addressed David in terms of affection as "my son."

IV. The Result, vv. 17-25. David's address to Saul is a remarkable one. He first appeals to reason (v. 18) and desires to know his fault. He next challenges the motives which impelled Saul. Was it God who sent him on this journey, or was it the evil counsel of men (v. 19)? If this latter, then let God deal with them according to their just deserts. And, finally, David uses the two similes of a flea and a partridge, as evidence of his humility, his inoffensiveness and harmlessness (Luke 14:11). Saul's acknowledgment of his sin did not cause him to cease sinning. To be sorry for sin, and to be sorry enough to quit, are two different things. There is a godly sorrow "which worketh repentance." Every sinner who fights against God and against His anointed ones "plays the fool," and will sooner or later, like Saul, awaken to the fact that he has "erred exceedingly." David did not undertake his own deliverance, so "the Lord delivered him out of all his troubles" (v. 24; Ps. 18). David's last message to Saul as he bade them send for his spear, was a declaration of innocence and a prayer to God for his safety, even as Saul's life had been spared. Saul's final word was a blessing and a prophecy of David's ultimate triumph.

May 23

David King Over Judah and Israel 2 Samuel 2:1-7; 5:1-5

Golden Text.—"Jehovah is my strength and my shield; my heart hath trusted him, and I am helped." Psalm 28:7, R. V.

Following the death of Saul and Jonathon as recorded in chapter 1, we have David's lament in chapter 2.

I. David, King of Judah, vv. 1-4. It is now seven or eight years since Samuel anointed the young shepherd to be king in Saul's place. David was probably 29 years of age. He had now a fourfold assurance of his throne, (a) God's decree (1 Sam. 16:11-13); (b) the death of Saul (1: 4); (c) God's command (v. 1), and (d), the choice of the people (v. 4). His every step had been led of God, therefore he had made no false moves (Jas. 1:5-7. See Ps. 19:13, 14). How God by means of the stones in the priest's breastplate made known His will we are not told, and it is useless to speculate. We have a better way, the inspired Word through which we may receive guidance. Such guidance is conditioned upon obedience (1 Sam. 28: 6; Acts 5: 32). God directed David, after Saul's death to "go up" to Hebron, which means "fellowship." It was here that Abraham, the man of faith, had lived. David implicitly obeyed God's decree (v. 2), took his family with him and also brought his men with their households. Here is a suggestion as to household fellowship with God. They left nothing behind to lure them back. These men had been David's partners in his adversity, they are now to share in his glory (See Luke 22: 28, 29; 2 Tim. 2:12; Rom. 8:17, 18). We cannot but condemn David's plurality of wives remembering, however, the lack of a full revelation of God at this time. David was seeking to know, and to serve God with his whole heart (Compare Gen. 2: 24 with Matt. 19: 4-9). David is nevertheless a type of Christ, and his wives are a type of the church, which, having shared in His rejection, will also share in His glorious reign (Rev. 19:6-9). Those who accompanied David were a strange assortment (1 Sam. 22:2, R. V.). Many of those who today rally about Christ, and who will hereafter enter into glory with Him, are often of such classes (See John 14:3; 1 Thess. 4:17). Now a part of the inheritance is about to fall into David's hands.

(2) David's Diplomacy, 2:5-7. It was good politics for David to honor these men of Jabesh, yet he was honest and sincere for he honored Saul as his rightful and God-anointed sovereign (1 Sam. 24:4-8; 26:7-11). These men had shown kindness to Saul, and now Jehovah would show kindness to them (v. 6). As we sow we reap (See Matt. 5:7; 6:14, 15; 2 Tim. 1:16-18). David took pains to inform them that he had been chosen king but assures them that he would strengthen them. To have adopted any other policy would have alienated their support.

(3) Ish-bosheth's Kingdom, 2:8-11. As contrasted with this kingdom of David was the kingdom of Ish-bosheth. His name means, "man of shame." He was Saul's oldest son, but not his intended successor, about forty years of age. Ish-bosheth was: (a) selected by man (v. 8); (b) ruled by man (v. 9) and (c) made war upon God's elect (v. 17; 3:1). Abner's untimely death at the hand of Joab (chap. 3) deprived Ish-bosheth of a leader. He was slain by his own servants and his kingdom passed to David.

II. David, King of Israel, 5:1-5. David passed through a seven and a half years' delay in his progress towards the occupancy of Saul's throne. It was not long after Ish-bosheth's death that there was a great national assembly at Hebron. Every tribe sent soldiers, 280,000 in all, and the elders of the people were the spokesmen. They proclaimed David "bone of their bone" (v. 1) and that even while Saul was king, David had been their real shepherd (v. 12). But better still, they recognized David as God's chosen successor to Saul and proclaimed to all men that they had loyally accepted His choice. The story of Israel of today is one of rejecting her "chief Shepherd," but a time will come when they shall behold "Him whom they have pierced" (Zech. 12:9, 10; 13:1; Rom. 11:25, 26). The Israelites made their covenant with David "before the Lord." It was but for a few fleeting years. Jesus is the "mediator of a new covenant" in "a kingdom which cannot be moved" (Heb. 12:24, 28). The story of David's conquest of Jerusalem and the establishment of the seat of his government at that place is an interesting and suggestive story by itself, which ought to be studied before next Sunday's lesson is considered. After being anointed in Hebron David began at once to subdue the land. He soon conquered the Philistines. He fought the Moabites and made them tributary. Then he conquered the Ammonites and also made a successful invasion as far as Damascus. His empire, which most nearly approximated the territory promised to Moses, extended from the Lebanon mountains on the north to the Gulf of Akaba, and from the Mediterranean to the Syrian desert. David was: (1) Patient, awaiting God's time; (2) energetic; (3) courageous; (4) tactful; (5) trusting; (6) loyal, to friends and to God; (7) patriotic; (8) obedient, and (9) above all, religious. "David waxed greater and greater; for the Lord, the God of hosts, was with him" (2 Sam. 5:10).

May 30

David Brings the Ark to Jerusalem
2 Samuel 6: 12-19 and Psalm 24

Golden Text.—"I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go unto the house of the Lord." Psalm 122:1.

This event probably occurred B. C. 1042, in the twenty-second year of David's reign. It would be a good plan to assign to various pupils such subjects as: (a) What the ark was, and how it came to be lost; (b) What it had been since the days of Joshua; (c) What occurred to it while in possession of the Philistines; (d) Who was Obed-Edom? (e) Uzziah? (f) Michal? (g) How Jerusalem came to be the seat of government.

I. The Ark Recovered, vv. 1-5. David realized that while God was the God of all the tribes still there was no visible religious center with the consequent danger of confounding the local places of worship with that of some local god, and the consequent breaking up of the national reliance upon Jehovah. Kirjath-jearim was perhaps eight or ten miles west of Jerusalem. The ark had lodged here for some seventy years. David and they that were with him followed the example of the Philistines (1 Sam. 6:1-18) in their mode of transferring the ark. (See Josh. 3:3). Preceded by "David and the house of Israel," the leaders and the people began the return journey from the house of Abinadab.

II. The Ark Retarded, vv. 6-11. They had reached one of the open places used as a threshing floor when the oxen slipped and the cart was shaken. Uzziah, one of the two into whose charge it had been placed, laid hold of the ark to keep it from falling, and was slain. How to carry the ark was plainly written (Num. 4:5-12; 7:9). Neglect of God's Word gets many well-meaning and right-intentioned people into trouble along with their friends also. The ark was the symbol of God's presence, and men had to be taught to revere His Holy name and His glorious presence. (See last clause v. 2.) Uzziah's sin was the sin of irreverence. He seems not to have sensed the invisible God in His visible abode. The result struck terror into the heart of David and the people, and the ark was left in the house of Obed of Edom for a period of three months. David's "improved plan" was a proved failure.

III. The Ark Restored, vv. 9-19. David, by thus abandoning the ark, seems to have represented the judgment of God. The ark is a type of Christ. God with us. The ark kept the law of God, so Christ perfectly kept the will and law of God. In the Holy of Holies was the mercy seat where God met His people (Exod. 25:18-22). In Christ we find our mercy-seat wherein we meet God. As this ark brought judgment to Uzziah it brought blessing to Obed-edom (v. 12). Even so Christ brings judgment or joy according to the way we treat Him. Obed-edom so piously cared for the ark that both he and his household were rightly blessed. It has been suggested that Obed-edom was only a heathen by descent, a Gittite (v. 11. See chapter 15: 19), but he welcomed the presence of God in his home. The happenings in his house were quickly noised abroad and David's fear and pique gave way to "joy" (v. 12, R. V.), for this time, David brought up the ark in the God-appointed way. With sacrifices and dancing. To say that the presence of God, or of the Holy Spirit, depends upon physical emotion, holy jumping, trances and the like, is not in accord with the teaching of the Bible. Note this dancing was "before the Lord." Most modern dances seem to be before Satan as the results so well demonstrate. Whenever emotion is seen in connection with religion, someone is always ready to raise objection. In this case the objection came from David's own household. Michal evidenced her father's disposition of churlishness, and in her reproach of David evidently forgot Saul's lack of dignity when he lay naked among the prophets (1 Sam. 19:24). David reminded Michal that God had chosen him instead of her father to rule Israel, and the record adds the punishment which came upon her (v. 23).

IV. The Psalm of Praise, Psalm 24. Though David may not have written this Psalm in connection with this event (1 Chron. 16:7-36), yet it well fits into this connection. In the Jewish synagogue this Psalm is recited at the carrying back of the book of the law to its shrine, and in the Greek church at the consecration of a church. The twenty-second Psalm presents the suffering Saviour; the twenty-third presents the risen Saviour as the shepherd caring for and leading His sheep, and the twenty-fourth tells of the reigning, glorified Lord. The whole earth is Jehovah's (v. 1). He "founded" and "established" it and all "the fulness" and "they that dwell therein" are His by creative and redemptive right. Since we belong to Him we owe Him worship and service and a servant is one who "stands" (v. 3). The conditions of fellowship with Jehovah are "clean hands and a pure heart" (v. 4). The first and the fourth condition relates to others, the second and the third to the inner life (1 John 1:6, 7). The reward of acceptable worship and service is "blessing from the Lord" (v. 5). In verse eight we find Israel's great name for God first used in the Psalms. In 1 Corinthians 2:8 Jesus who was crucified is called the "Lord of glory." Even so our coming King is "strong and mighty" and will prove Himself "mighty in battle" (Rev. 19:19-21).

June 6

Nathan Rebukes David

2 Samuel 11:22; 12:7

Golden Text.—"Create in me a clean heart, O God." Psalm 51: 10.

This is a lesson that demands great care in its presentation and treatment, differing widely according to age of pupil. For the younger the briefest statement that David fell into love with Uriah's wife, and to obtain her had her husband killed, will be sufficient. With such, throw the emphasis upon the danger of harboring evil thoughts and the need of heart purity. See Golden Text.

With adults, however, some time may be devoted to the social evil which is such a menace to every nation, care being taken lest we neglect to teach that the cure is not regulation or reformation, but regeneration of the human heart.

I. David's Many Good Deeds, 2 Samuel, chaps. 7 and 9. As a background for his most repulsive sin David had many most excellent good deeds. His desire for a better abiding place for the ark was not according to God's will for two reasons: (1) Because an ornate house might easily corrupt, through idolatry, the spirituality of the Hebrew religion; (2) David was a man of war, and therefore not qualified for temple building. Though denied, David did not despair but at once provided that his successor should carry out his desire. Again David's treatment of Mephibosheth, Jonathan's son, in accordance with the covenant made between those two men, is an inspiring episode and one of great spiritual suggestiveness.

II. David's One Great Sin, 2 Sam. 11:6. David's victories over his enemies are dismissed in a few verses, yet his sin is set forth in detail, another evidence of the divine origin and inspiration of the Bible. David had followed the example of neighboring kings, and taken to himself many wives. David was "off guard" in the matter of temptation, a dangerous position for all, both soldier and civilian. David had had too long a period of success and prosperity after his long period of privation.

David was "off duty," indulging in ease while Joab did his fighting. As a result he became an adulterer and a murderer, and the record in no way seeks to palliate his guilt. Outwardly prosperous and his army successful, David must have felt in his heart the spiritual blight indicated in the words, "But the thing was evil in the eyes of the Lord" (v. 27, R. V.).

III. Nathan's Parable, 2 Sam. 12: 1-7. It is an evidence of God's grace that He sent His servant to rebuke and restore this "man after His own heart." Such is His mercy for He does not will that any should perish but that all might come to the knowledge of forgiveness (Ezek. 33:11; Matt. 23:37). No parable ever had its desired effect any more quickly than this one. It brought conviction and repentance (v. 13), and led to the writing of the fifty-first Psalm. It was a delicate task set before Nathan thus to rebuke the king. Nathan's task and wisdom is revealed in his approach and the way he led David to condemn, unknowingly, his own course of action. It is far better for a person to discover a relationship such as this, as David did, than to begin by upbraiding and denunciation. Verse two suggests, inferentially, God's great goodness to David and made the offense one of gross ingratitude.

IV.—"Thou Art the Man," v. 7. Thus far the story is one that is too common, then and now, the strong crushing the weak, and often glorying in their selfishness. What follows is the evidence of God's response to man's repentance, and the parallel of which has nowhere else been found in the ancient world. The glory of it is that David heard and heeded God's messenger. The whole sordid story with its resultant action on David's part brings us many priceless lessons. (1) That a man who had lived a life of faith and communion fell most miserably when he neglected his duty and took his eyes off God. There is a grave danger ahead of the man who begins to trifle with sin (1 Cor. 10:12). (2) Though a man fall (the godly man), yet he is not utterly cast down. (3) A man's sins, though he may find pardon, will cloud all of his future. The scar remains and although in God's sight we are "every whit whole," in this life the effects are seen. David felt it in his own life and family; both daughter and sons felt its blight (chap. 13), and it brought forth David's immortal lament over Absalom. David's trusted friend joined the rebellion against him and caused him great sorrow (11:3; 23:34; 15:21; and Ps. 55:12-14). David's hypocrisy upon receiving the news of Uriah's death deceived no one, and put him into the power of Joab, who became a curse to him and whom he constantly feared (1 Kings 2: 19-22). God sternly judges uncleanness and adulterers (Heb. 13: 4).

The Gospel in the World

Edward A. Marshall, Editor

In 1904 America gave for foreign mission work $7,807,992; in 1914, $17,168,611.

Great Britain and America have 20,840 missionaries on the foreign fields.

The Presbyterian churches of South Fukien, China, have decided to take a collection once a year to help evangelize the Jews.

The Gideons are placing Bibles in hotel rooms at the rate of 5,000 a month, the total number placed to date being 160,000.

A Christian student in Peking has recently purchased over five thousand copies of the New Testament to send to his friends.

Bishop Robinson of India reports that in the District of Meerut, 50,000 people have been baptized, though there have been only two missionaries in that area.

Some of the evangelical churches of Russia have been closed and their pastors exiled to Siberia, or elsewhere, under the pretext that they were pro-German and supported by the Kaiser.

Dr. George Heber Jones has recently issued a Korean dictionary consisting of literary, scientific and theological terms, which will be of great service to the 50,000 students of the modern school system.

South America's population of 40,000,000 might be divided as follows: 5,000,000 Indians, 8,000,000 whites and 27,000,000 of mixed blood. The "Missionary Reporter" makes the statement that "at least half the men have broken with Rome. In Cordoba, Argentina, one of the greatest strongholds of Romanism, the last census reports sixty per cent of the men atheistic."

The American Marathi Mission, India, has a missionary force of thirteen married men, three single men, nineteen single ladies, and 462 native Christian workers. It has 65 organized churches with 7,841 communicants, 7,990 pupils in its Sunday-schools, 5,371 pupils in its common schools, 2,400 pupils in twenty-seven boarding schools, and 32 other pupils. Of these 7,803 scholars, 4,595 are non-Christian.

Sunday-schools for non-Christians exclusively are being opened in Korea by native Christians, and are resulting in the parents coming to inquire about the truth being taught to their children.

The Africa Inland Mission is rejoicing in the fact that sixteen missionaries on furlough have safely returned to the field recently, the funds having been provided for them, and also five thousand dollars for a hospital in Kijabe.

The Protestant churches of Great Britain gave last year for the support of foreign missions more than $12,000,000. The native churches under the care of their 10,871 missionaries contributed nearly $3,500,000.

The World's Sunday-school Association reports that up to April 1, 200,000 copies of the New Testament had been provided for by the gifts of American Sunday-school scholars in the movement to raise "A million nickels from a million scholars for a million Testaments for a million soldiers."—"World-Wide Sunday-school News."

The cry of the Jew "Back to Palestine!" which is being heard from some quarters, will burst over the nations with strange significance if that land shall soon fall into the hands of a sympathetic nation, such as Great Britain, and the grand exodus of Jews begins from all lands where they have been scattered.

Under the auspices of the American Sunday School Union 44,000 Sunday-schools have been organized in this country during the last twenty-five years. In these schools there are 180,000 teachers and 1,550,000 scholars, and from them more than 2,000 churches have been developed.—"Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate."

Writing concerning the mission station of Van in Turkey, Mr. E. A. Yarrow states that the attendance in the boys' school, exclusive of the college, is 548, an increase of 37 over last year, and the attendance in the girls' school is 518, which is a few less than last year. Speaking of the war and the financial condition of the mission, he says: "Owing to the income from many sources failing, we will probably run short something over $2,000 for the year."

In some cases where French pastors have been obliged to go to the war, their wives are carrying on the church work, even to preaching sermons.

The American Bible Society will establish a distribution agency at the Panama Canal. The Scriptures will be distributed in 127 languages, and every sailor passing through the canal will be given a Bible.—"Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate."

The Japanese Emperor has tried to rectify the mistake of three years ago, when over one hundred Korean Christians were imprisoned on the charge of being implicated in the assassination of the Japanese Governor-General of Korea. The Emperor has pardoned the only six men who were found guilty and who had been sentenced to six years imprisonment.

The "Illinois State Association Notes" shows that the Y. M. C. A. in Illinois had enrolled in Bible classes last year 101,795 men and boys, exclusive of the student associations. The Association has gone into more than one hundred different places outside of their own buildings with their Bible study program, including such places as shops, fire houses, offices, schools, railroad yards, lumber camps, army posts, and battle ships.

Mr. J. W. Owen of the China Inland Mission writes from Nanchow, Hunan: "To minister to this large parish of a million souls there are only one married and one single missionary, five native evangelists and one Bible-woman. Requests are constantly coming in from all quarters for us to go and open up new work, but as the stations we already have are so sadly undermanned, we have to refuse. The doors are wide open, a thing prayed for so long, and there is no one to enter."

Dr. Andrew P. Stirret, of the Sudan Interior Mission, writes from northern Nigeria: "I have just completed another tour to our stations south of the Niger River. We struck the little town of Oga, where our work in the Yagba had its first root, on New Year's eve. We passed on to Egbe, where Mr. Lang and Guy Playfair (both Moody Bible Institute men) have, together with Mr. Titcombe, helped in the work. Here we had a native conference, the first in our mission history, and it would have gladdened your hearts to have seen the scores, and I may say hundreds, who knelt in prayer at the sunrise meeting and to have heard their requests for prayer for towns and villages of their brethren, who, as yet, have no missionary teacher or church. At the Sunday morning service 99 confessed Christ in baptism, and on the following Thursday, 112 more.

The new Pope, Benedict XV, has recently written a letter to the Italian St. Jerome Society, in which he recommends the home study of the Scriptures in the vulgar tongue. The object of this society, when it was founded in 1902, was to prepare a fresh Italian translation of the New Testament, or at least parts thereof, and to circulate the books at a cheap price for personal reading. The presidency of the society was accepted by the present Pope, who was then Under Secretary of State at the Vatican. Within the first three years, the society circulated 300,000 copies, and by 1908 the number was not far short of a million books. The Gospels and Acts in various editions have been regularly on sale in the Vatican, and have also been distributed by bishops and priests in different parts of Italy. The society has been very inactive during the last few years, but today there are signs of renewed activity, backed by Pope Benedict XV, who is now able, from his powerful position, to foster the undertaking which he helped to found.—"The Missionary Review of the World."

The wisdom of the Sunday-school movement in the mission field is being demonstrated every day. The argument usually advanced for it is that the heathen child is ten times more accessible to Christian teaching than the adult. That is unquestionably true. Another reason is that the heathen's child has greater influence with his parents than any foreign missionary can have. This is vividly shown in a story given by Miss Jennie V. Hughes, of Kiukiang, in a letter to Mr. Frank D. Brown, Joint General Secretary of the World's Sunday-school Association. "The Sunday-schools of Kiukiang," writes Miss Hughes, "are all graded and five are going on at the same time every Sunday, all of them carried on by native Christian workers. In one of these schools is a little ten-year-old girl who has brought her brothers and sisters and now her mother into the Sunday-school. The latter has been in the school for about six weeks. She is a Taoist, and also has imposed on herself vegetarianism for life as a pledge to the gods. Last Sunday one of the teachers came to me after the lesson with a shining face, bearing the glad news that this mother had that morning, in answer to the plea of her little girl, broken her life vow and had accepted Christ. She gave a glowing testimony of faith in Jesus Christ and asked for a Bible to take home to her husband, requesting us to pray for his conversion."—"World-Wide Sunday-school News."

For Sermon and Scrap Book

MARY'S CHOICE

Luke 10:42.

1. A needful thing—One thing is needful.
2. A chosen thing—She hath chosen.
3. A good thing—That good thing.
4. A lasting thing—Shall not be taken away.

H. K. D.

THE CALL OF THE PROPHET IN ISAIAH 6

1. A Consciousness of God followed by a Conviction of Sin (vv. 1-5).
2. Confession of Sin followed by Cleansing from Sin (vv. 5-7).
3. The Call of God followed by Consecration to God (v. 8).
4. The Commission of God followed by Communion with God (vv. 9-11).—W. H. Griffith Thomas.

A BIBLE-STUDY CAMEO

Luke 5:1-7

Failure.—“We have toiled all night, and taken nothing.”

Faith.—“At Thy word I will let down the net.”

Fruit.—“They enclosed a great multitude of fishes.”

Fellowship.—“They beckoned unto their partners.”—G. E. Morgan, in “The Christian.”

THE CHRISTIAN'S WALK

1. The Past Walk (Eph. 2:2)—before conversion.
2. The Present Walk (Eph. 2:10). “Created in Christ Jesus unto good works . . . that we should walk in them.”
3. The Worthy Walk (Eph. 4:1). “Walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called.”
4. The Different Walk (Eph. 4:17). “That ye henceforth walk not as other Gentiles walk.”
5. The Love Walk (Eph. 5:2). “Walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us,” etc.
6. The Light Walk (Eph. 5:8). “But now are ye light in the Lord, walk as children of the light.”
7. The Circumspect Walk (Eph. 5:15). “Walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise.”—Charles Edwards.

PSALM 32

- I. The Condition or State of Being Happy.
 1. What is happiness? (vv. 1, 2).
 2. Who is unhappy? (vv. 3, 4).
 3. How to be happy (vv. 5, 6).
- II. How to Continue in the State of Being Happy.
 1. Our security (v. 7).
 2. Our instruction—
 - (a) Positive (v. 8).
 - (b) Negative (v. 9).
 3. Our faith (v. 10).
 4. Our joy (v. 11).

—E. O. Sellers.

THE SLEEPING AROUSED

“Awake, thou that sleepest, and rise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light.”—Eph. 5:14.

There are many figures used in Scripture to represent the condition of the sinner. He is a wanderer, a slave, “led captive by the devil,” “dead in trespasses,” etc. Here the figure employed is that of sleep. One who sleeps is unconscious and indifferent to all around him.

1. Sleep, a State of Dreams, Delusion and Danger.

The sailor, amid the storm, dreams of home; the soldier, of victory; the sick, of health; the prisoner, of liberty; the beggar, of wealth. When each wakes, behold it is all a dream. So the life of the unconverted. See Luke 15 for the story of the Prodigal; also the parable of the Rich Fool.

2. God Speaks to Men in This State.

He sounds an alarm. Would that men realized their true condition! Life is no dream, sin no trifle. It is a solemn thing to live and die.

3. God Does This by Various Means.

By His Spirit, providence, losses, sickness, special calls. (Example: Jonah.)

4. The Call is to Action.

Not only awake, but arise. It is not enough to hear and admit the truth of what you hear. Act, believe and flee. The Prodigal “arose and came.” “Escape for thy life!”

5. The Promise.

“Christ shall give thee light”; about yourself, about God, about salvation. “If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine.” “The shining light that shineth more and more,” etc.—R. C. R., in “The Twentieth Century Pastor.”

JEREMIAH'S QUESTIONS

1. Ruin—How canst thou say I am not polluted?—Jer. 2: 23.
2. Redemption—How shall I pardon thee?—Jer. 5: 7.
3. Regeneration—How shall I put thee among the children?—Jer. 3: 19.
4. Retribution—How wilt thou do in the swelling of Jordan?—Jer. 12: 5.

W. J. M.

MY RICHES!

Psalm 23

Around me—The Lord.
 Above me—The Shepherd.
 Beneath me—Green pastures.
 Beside me—Still waters.
 Ahead of me—Paths of safety.
 With me—In valley of death.
 Before me—The Lord's table.
 Behind me—My enemies.
 Following me—Goodness and mercy.
 Awaiting me—The house of the Lord.

Note: The shepherd is always on an elevated section of land that he may be better able to oversee the flock. It is from above that the Lord watches me, and from whence my blessings come.

My enemies are truly behind me: they are out of date in their methods of warfare—the child of God relies on God by faith. They depend upon their wisdom and strength—the child of God upon the resources of the Eternal God.—Henry F. W. Uffeln.

THE SIN OF FORGETFULNESS

"When thou hast eaten, and art full, then beware lest thou forget the Lord thy God."—Deut. 6: 10.

Fullness is apt to breed forgetfulness. The multitude of our mercies may act like an opiate and make us heedless toward God. This is one of our subtlest perils. The bright day puts us to sleep. There are ten who can keep awake in the Valley of Humiliation, with Apollyon in fierce antagonism, to one who can keep awake on the Enchanted Ground, where the antagonism is found in the rarity of the air and the softness of the encompassing light. It is the luxuriant isle which becomes our Lotusland. We were all alert when we were driven by the stinging blast, and were in danger of the engulfing deep. And thus it is true that the bright day brings forth the adder. A possible poison lurks in our comforts. We are most in danger when we have no need. When we have everything we want we are in danger of losing God.

And so does the Old Testament bid us "Beware"; and so does the New Testament bid us "Watch." The sentinel of the soul must be continually on guard, and never more so than when the battle seems to be over, and life has become a feast. Our wills must be exercised in deliberate vigilance when we have left the desert behind and have crossed into Canaan. We must open our eyes in resolute purpose to see the seal of the Lord on the mercies which crowd our way. No divine privilege must be allowed to pass as a personal right. On the forehead of every providence we must read the name of the Lord. This must be our wonder: "When all Thy mercies, O my God, my rising soul surveys!" And that healthy wonder will ever be accompanied by the spirit of praise. Then will the songs of battle be sung again at the feast.—J. H. Jowett, in "British Weekly."

"YOU MAY"

Give of your means, as Ananias (Acts 5:1-16); wish to die well, as Balaam (Num. 23:10); bring an offering, as Cain (Gen. 4:3); be a gospel worker, as Demas (2 Tim. 4:10); live with God's people, as Gehazi (2 Kings 5:23-27); hear preaching gladly, as Herod (Mark 6:20); minister in the priest's office, as Nadab (Num. 3:2-4); ask for prayers, as Pharaoh (Exod. 8:8); make long prayers, as the Pharisees (Matt. 23:14); be able to prophesy, as Saul (1 Sam. 10:10); have many followers, as Theudas (Acts 5:36), have the lamp of profession as the foolish virgins (Matt. 25:1-12)—and yet, after all, be eternally lost.—G. P. Ainsworth, in "The Bible Today."

"MOTHER"

As Appreciated by Some Great Men

"If I had all the mothers I ever saw to choose from, I would have chosen you."—Thomas Carlyle, in letter to his mother.

"What would I not give to call my dear mother back to earth for a single day to ask her pardon on my knees for all those acts by which I grieved her gentle spirit."—Charles Lamb.

"All I am, all that I hope to be, I owe to my angel mother—blessings on her memory! I remember my mother's prayers. They have always followed me. They have clung to me all my life."—Abraham Lincoln.

"I should have become an atheist but for one recollection, and that was the memory of the time when my departed mother used to take my little hand in hers and cause me on my knees to say, 'Our Father, who art in heaven.'"—John Randolph.

"If my mother could rise in the dead of night and pray for my recovery from sickness, my life must be worth something. I then and there resolved to prove myself worthy of my mother's prayers."—James A. Garfield, on hearing his mother praying for him late at night while he lay sick in an adjoining room.

These are Troublesome Times

DOES IT PAY TO STUDY THE BIBLE?

WE BELIEVE IT DOES,
DO YOU?

Join Us at 12 o'clock
Each Sunday
Immanuel Men
Immanuel
Baptist Church

The two sides of an attractive invitation card
(Facsimile)

PREACHING TO ONE OR MANY

It often requires more courage to preach to one, than to preach to a thousand. It is the most concentrated form of preaching; the preacher's whole energy directed to a single soul, and that soul obliged to take the whole discourse to himself, since there is no congregation to share the hearer's responsibility. Many strong preachers have to confess that here is the point where they are most weak; that they lack the courage to face a sinner squarely and talk to him of his responsibility. But the timidity which hinders in this duty may be overcome; and it will be overcome, if at all, as Sir Thomas Brown said about his victory over his doubts, "in no martial posture, but on the knees."—A. J. Gordon.

TO MAKE MEMBERS THINK

Rev. H. L. Moore, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Beloit, Wis., secured suggestion for more than one sermon and aroused the interest of his people to new activity by asking each member to fill a card bearing the following words:

1. My favorite hymn is
 2. The sermon that impressed me most was on the theme
 3. I should like to hear a sermon on the subject
 4. I think that the efficiency of our church would be improved if—
 - (a) The members would
 - (b) The pastor would
 - (c) The elders would
 - (d) The deacons would
 - (e) The trustees would
 - (f) I would
- This is what I am going to do about it
- (Signed)

—"The Continent."

PRACTICAL HINTS FOR OPEN-AIR SPEAKING

Don't use hackneyed phrases, meaningless terms, exaggerated expressions, or appeals to sentiment only.

Don't try to be eloquent, clever, comical, or entertaining. We are not all Spurgeons, we are only messengers—"A voice."

Don't provoke unnecessarily; e. g., in a ritualistic district preach the truth. The presentation of truth is the best way to denounce error.

Don't continue talking after you have finished; a wearied audience rapidly diminishes.

Don't throw yourself about, this distracts the hearers. Muscular movements do not always denote earnestness.

Don't exaggerate; God's Word is complete.

Don't speculate; God has revealed sufficient.

Don't shout, this grates on people's ears; distinctness is preferable to volume.

Don't imitate others. Our beauty, if we have any, lies in our own individuality.

Don't belittle the majesty of God. Always give the Lord Jesus Christ His proper title.

Don't compromise, God never goes back on His Word.

Don't argue, the Word of God is beyond argument. "It is written" settles every point.

Don't fear man; his power is limited. Speak in the fear of God, for to Him must we give an account.—"Points, Pictures, Pearls."

It is said that after Whitefield had preached more than 300 times a sermon on the text, "Ye must be born again," he was asked why he preached on that text so often. His reply was, "Because ye must be born again."

Notes and Suggestions

JOSEPH W. KEMP IN NEW YORK.

Pastor Joseph W. Kemp, of Edinburgh, has been invited to supply the pulpit of Calvary Baptist Church, New York, for a few Sabbaths this Spring.

THE TRIUMPHS AND PURSUITS OF PEACE

On April 18 the churches of San Francisco commemorated the great fire of nine years ago in special thanksgiving services and held a mass meeting in the Municipal Auditorium to give united and public expression to their gratitude.

THE CHILD LABOR BILL

The House of Representatives of the State of Illinois is now considering a bill for raising the age at which children may be industrially employed, from 14 to 16. It is believed that the adoption of the bill will be to the advantage of the child educationally, industrially, financially and morally.

REV. F. B. MEYER RETURNS TO CHRIST CHURCH

The Rev. F. B. Meyer, London, has been obliged to cancel all his engagements in this country this summer. The causes operating to that end are his call to the pastorate of his former charge, Christ Church, on the resignation of the Rev. Len. G. Broughton, the illness of his daughter, and the exigencies of the war. March 28, Dr. Meyer read a letter accepting the pastorate of Christ Church, Westminster Bridge Road, London. He takes up the work at the beginning of May.

THE CHICAGO TRACT SOCIETY

Rev. Ernest C. Brooks, the secretary of this society, reports that during the past year 25 missionaries were employed, devoting 218 months of time to the work. They conducted 1,070 meetings, visited more than 56,000 homes and distributed more than 12,000,000 pages of Christian literature. This literature was published in 38 different languages. The work of the society now extends throughout Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Missouri, Wisconsin, and in some sense may be called the Tract Society of the Northwest.

THE HEBREW CHRISTIAN ALLIANCE OF AMERICA

This organization held a conference in New York, April 6-9. Representatives of the leading Jewish missions in the United States and Canada attended and discussed questions vital to the spiritual, national and social welfare of Israel. Rev. S. B. Rohold is president of the Alliance.

PASTOR PAUL RADER

We take much pleasure in presenting to our readers the picture of the pastor of the Moody Church, Rev. Paul Rader, whose very unusual success in that church has attracted very wide attention. In our evangelistic columns there is reference to the particular evangelistic activities of Mr. Rader in the city of Chicago particularly. In the church proper, the work has gone forward in a remarkable way. On a recent Sunday, two large overflow meetings were held in the evening and scores were then turned away. On that particular day it is said that 10,000 people attended the Moody Church, if all the morning, afternoon and evening services, were in mind.

Rev. Paul Rader

Pastor Rader has a most pleasing appearance, an excellent voice, is true to the faith once for all delivered to the saints, and has a fund of illustrations which are remarkably original, and impresses all who hear him with his deep sincerity. With no fears that his present popularity and success will wane, the Moody Church is looking forward to a period of soul winning and Christian edification such as that great church, even under its many great leaders, has never yet experienced.

TRAINING INSTITUTE PRESIDENT.

Rev. Jesse W. Brookes, Ph. D., was inaugurated as President of the Union Missionary Training Institute in Brooklyn, N. Y., March 24. Mrs. Lucy Drake Osborn, the founder of the Institute, was present and took part in the exercises.

Rev. Jesse W. Brookes, Ph. D.

PRIZE ESSAYS

In June, 1913, the American Sunday-school Union offered three prizes, the first $1,000, the second $600, and the third $400, for essays on religious subjects that would be of a high order and merit and germane to the objects of the American Sunday School Union. The first prize was awarded to Rev. A. Ashworth, D. D., of Milwaukee, Wis., on the subject "The Union of Christian Forces in America." The second prize was awarded to Rev. Howard P. Young, Table Rock, Neb., on the subject "Character Through Re-creation," and the third prize was awarded to Rev. Robert Whitaker, Los Gatos, Cal., on the subject "The Christian View of Amusements."

The American Tract Society is offering one prize of $250 and another of $100 for an essay of not more than 75,000 words, on a subject of religious character with a strong Christian motive. The manuscripts must be in the hands of the society by August 1, 1915, and should be addressed to the General Secretary of the American Tract Society, Park Ave. and 40th St., New York City. The money for these prizes is provided for through the George Wood Premium Fund.

THE WORLD'S BIBLE CONFERENCE

This conference will be held August 1-4, at San Francisco, Cal., and President Woodrow Wilson will be honorary president, with Mr. James Wood, actual president. Prof. B. B. Warfield of Princeton University, Dr. Abraham Kuyper of Holland, Prof. Giovanni Luzzi of Florence, Italy, agents of the Bible Society in Constantinople, China and Siam, and many missionaries will be present as speakers. For many reasons this conference will be of very special interest.

THE BROSS LECTURE FOR 1915

Rev. John Neville Figgis, D. D., Litt. D., of the House of the Resurrection, Mirfield, Eng., will give a course of six lectures at Lake Forest University, on "The Will to Freedom, or the Gospel of Nietzsche and the Gospel of Christ," under the foundation established by Lieutenant Governor William Bross in 1879. This lecturer will receive $6,000, which is the decennial price offered in connection with the foundation referred to.

THE LOS ANGELES BIBLE INSTITUTE AUDITORIUM OPENED

The large auditorium of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles was opened to the public on Sunday, April 4. The newspapers report an overflowing audience, although there is capacity for 4,000. Dr. Torrey announced a series of evangelistic meetings to continue there during the period of the Panama Exposition. The speakers thus far announced are: Dr. Riley, of Minneapolis; Dr. Munhall, of Philadelphia; Dr. Evans, of Wheaton, Ill.; Dr. Matthews, of Seattle, and Dr. John McNeil, of Denver.

THE SCRIPTURE GIFT MISSION

This organization has already distributed 1,750,000 copies of the Gospels and Testaments to the soldiers in Europe since the war began. The well authenticated stories of the eagerness with which the Russian soldiers have received the Scriptures are almost beyond belief. The Empress of Russia took to the front 20,000 copies of the Scriptures. A quarter of a million copies have been distributed to the French soldiers and they are calling for more, and the same eagerness for the Gospels is shown in Hungary. There is practically no report of the reception of the Gospels by the German soldiers. $100.00 will provide 10,000 Gospels in any language. The special treasurer for America is Asa S. Wing, 409 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

Book Notices

One Hundred Great Texts and Their Treatment.

This is a large book containing "illuminative comment by noted preachers, and illustrative thoughts and incidents" on one hundred Scripture texts. It contains an introductory chapter by Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, which seems to be taken from his Yale lectures, and does not seem to have any connection with the book, and does not contain a reference to it.

Such books may be crutches to hold up weak men. To say that there is no good in them would not be true, but the danger of inducing clerical laziness is very great.

502 pages 6 x 9 inches. Geo. H. Doran Co., New York. $2.50. J. H. R.

The Gospel of Healing, by A. B. Simpson, D. D.

This is a new edition of an earlier work by this distinguished preacher and Christian leader, which is deserving of great praise, though one may not be able to go the whole length with him in some of his conclusions. He is firmly persuaded that the healing of disease by simple faith in God is a part of the gospel and a doctrine of the Scriptures. For our own part, we are able to say that the healing of disease by simple faith in God through Jesus Christ is a fact, but whether it is for every one in this age we are not so sure. Nevertheless we heartily commend this book, and believe it will have a sanctifying and strengthening effect upon all who read it.

154 pages. 5 x 7½ inches. Morgan and Scott, London. Cloth, 25 cents, net. J. M. G.

The Universal Bible Dictionary, edited by A. R. Buckland, M. A., assisted by the Rev. A. Lukyn Williams, D. D.

This volume will take its place among the best and most useful smaller dictionaries of the Bible. The nature of the contents forbids detailed review, but the reading of many of the leading articles such as Justification, Higher Criticism, the Gospel of John, the Book of Isaiah, etc., are satisfactory to those who hold the conservative position as to evangelical doctrine and the inspiration of the Scriptures. The contributions of such men as S. W. Green and W. H. Griffith Thomas that are found in the volume are in themselves reassuring. The volume should meet a hearty reception from those who do not desire the more elaborate works of the same kind, and those who wish a volume that is not expensive.

511 pages. 6 x 9 inches. Fleming H. Revell Co., New York. $1.50. J. H. R.

God's Gospel and God's Righteousness, A Study of Romans 1-5:11; God's Gift and Our Response, A Study of Romans 5:12-8:13; God's Love and God's Children, A Study of Romans 8:14-16:27, by Philip Mauro, Attorney at Law.

These volumes of expository readings in Romans will attract many who would not be interested in the ordinary commentary. Instead of treating the epistle verse by verse, the author deals with its various topics as they appear, in short, readable sections. The exposition, while popular in form is the result of careful study and is evangelical and dispensational. Mr. Mauro is jealous lest the doctrinal be emphasized at the expense of the practical, and this feeling shapes his treatment. While there are details with which we might not agree, we are glad to commend this work to Bible students generally.

Average, 160 pages per volume, 5½ x 7½ inches. Fleming H. Revell Co., New York, 50 cents, net, per volume. L. W. G.

"Jesus as He Was and Is," a Modern Attempt to Set Forth the Abiding Significance of Jesus Christ, by the Rev. Samuel G. Craig, A. M., B. D., minister of the North Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, with an introduction by Prof. Benj. G. Warfield, D. D., LL. D., of Princeton Theological Seminary.

In writing this book the author has made large use of a series of Sunday afternoon sermon lectures delivered by him in the church of which he is the pastor. It treats of Jesus as Saviour, King, Example, Preacher, Miracle Worker, Healer, as One who died, as Judge, and as The Coming One. The plan is to present these facts in terms adapted to the modern ways of thinking, and while the author is not always as clear and definite as one would like, yet he seems to be thoroughly orthodox and evangelical in his standpoint. Indeed, the introduction by the distinguished Dr. Warfield alone would seem to satisfy as to this point. We believe the book is a useful one for ministers and feel able to commend it.

288 pages. 5½ x 7½ inches. George H. Doran Company, New York. $1.00 net. J. M. G.

The Book of Daniel, A Composite Revelation of the Last Days of Israel's Subjugation to Gentile Powers, by W. C. Stevens, Principal of the Missionary Training Institute, at Nyack, N. Y.

This small volume is one of a series of "Scripture Primers" projected by the author, and dedicated to the men and women in home and foreign mission fields who were under his instruction at Nyack. It was written under the impressions of the first months of the conflict now convulsing the European and Asiatic territory with which the prophecies in Daniel are concerned, the aim being "not to throw light upon Daniel, but to open the windows of ordinary intelligence for the light of Daniel to stream in."

The book contains an introduction by Dr. James M. Gray, who speaks of the "up-to-dateness" of the work, and the skill with which the author brings together the Bible and the last event of history. The method of the book is a very natural and simple one, and we can commend it cordially.

251 pages. 4 x 6½ inches. Publication Office, 644 Merrimac Street, Oakland, Cal. 55 cents, postpaid.

W. J. K.

"The Good News of the Spiritual Realm," by Dwight Goddard.

This book is an interweaving of the four Gospels into one connected account of the life and teaching of Jesus of Nazareth, in which the attempt is made, by free translation and paraphrase, to bring out the unity and reasonableness of His system of thought from the modern point of view. The motive of the writer is good, but we hesitate to commend such books because under the guise of translation and paraphrase erroneous teaching is likely to creep in without any warning to the reader. We do not say that such is the case in the present volume for we have not had time to read it through with care, but as in a circular note the author says, "You must not look to it for exact instruction, for infallible doctrines, for definite commands," etc., we regard it with a question mark. If, as the author desires, it will "win favorable attention to the good news which Jesus brought to this selfish and quarrelsome old world of ours" we shall be glad, but we believe that the plain Gospels themselves in the ordinary King James translation are able to accomplish this better.

372 pages, in addition to the reference index. 5½ x 7½ inches. To be obtained of the author, Ann Arbor, Michigan. $1.00.

J. M. G.

Exposition of Reformed Doctrine, a Popular Exposition of the Most Essential Teachings of the Reformed Churches, by the Rev. M. J. Bosma. Second edition.

As the author says in his introduction, Reformed doctrine is that system of the truths of divine revelation obtained from the teachings of the Word of God, which the Reformed churches have declared to be the expression of their faith, and have, as such, embodied in their standards. These standards are the thirty-seven articles of the Netherland Confession of Faith, the Heidelberg Catechism and the Canons of the Synod of Dordrecht, 1618-19. The subjects treated are in their order—the doctrines of God, man, Christ, salvation, the church, the means of grace, and the last things. The method adopted is that of question and answer, and is most simple, attractive and helpful. The book contains also an excellent index together with a dictionary of English and Dutch words. We can hardly expect a volume such as this to express our views of Christian doctrine in every particular, and yet we can commend this one very heartily. On mooted questions the author shows a desire to state both sides quite fairly, and leave his reader or the student to judge.

307 pages. 5½ x 8 inches. Eerdmaus-Sevensma Co., Grand Rapids, Mich. $1.25. To ministers and students a discount of 20 per cent. J. M. G.

Studies in The Psalms, by Joseph Bryant Rotherham.

This volume is by the well known translator giving us "The Emphasized Bible." It is the last work he did, and fittingly crowns the labors of a long life. He did not live to see his work in print and this volume, as the foreword tells us, is issued by his son.

The author in his preface says that "the aim of the volume is to induce the readers of the Psalms to become students." This is precisely what this book will do, if one yields himself to the skillful guidance of the author.

In the introduction to the book, the author treats helpfully the following subjects: The Psalms as Literature, The Psalms as Lyrics, The Psalms as a Summary of Sacred Learning, The Psalms as a Stimulus to Holy Living.

The text of the Psalms used is that of "The Emphasized Bible," as the author says, "diligently revised." The foot-notes following the text are helpful, and lead into a wider field of study which may profitably be followed.

The expositions which follow the Psalms are fresh and to the point; their brevity commends them, only seven pages being given to the 119th Psalm, and yet while brief, they are full. It would be a very dull, unresponsive student who turned away from these suggestive and stimulating studies without an enriched mind and heart.

If one wants to know the Psalms better; to love them better; to be deepened in his own devotional life, and to be better equipped to open up their riches to others, here is a book that will aid greatly.

611 pages. 5½ x 8½ inches. The Standard Publishing Co., Cincinnati. $2.00.

W. W. K.

The Evangelistic Field

SUGGESTIONS TO OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Evangelists and other Christian workers reporting items or contributing any matter for this department will please arrange to have copy reach the magazine not later than the 10th of the month preceding date of issue.

"The Evangelistic Field" department is intended for news in concise reports of revival meetings, soul-winning campaigns, and a record of evangelistic work in general. We do not invite statements eulogizing the leaders or participants in this line of work, nor can we promise to print them.—Editors.

W. A. and Horace Erwin conducted a record meeting at Sidney, Ia., during March. There were 210 professions in thirteen nights.

J. Ritchie Bell conducted evangelistic meetings the early part of April, at the Methodist church, Clarion, Ia.

F. W. Christ was in Patch Grove, Wis., for two weeks, where he closed on Easter Sunday. Thirty-two joined the local M. E. church.

D. R. Raiser, pastor of the Second Reformed Church, Tiffin, O., will have time for some evangelistic work and is open for dates.

Shearer and Fraser held an evangelistic meeting with C. P. Bolman, pastor at Pekin, Ill., in March, 91 being added to the church.

Dr. W. E. Biederwolf conducted a successful campaign at Meadville, Pa. A total of 3,490 decisions were reported the last Sunday.

The Mills-Huggins Party has open dates for the month of May, and may be addressed at 903 Omaha National Bank Building, Omaha, Neb.

Charles R. Goff and party began a union meeting at Jefferson, Ia., the early part of April. They expect to continue there until May 2.

Benjamin Franklin reports 76 conversions in the regular services of his church, at Springfield, Mass., on March 14. He is very much encouraged.

"April 4 we closed a three weeks meeting at Gresham, Neb., which resulted in 154 decisions for Christ. An old lady 84 years of age was one of the converts."—Archie E. Laraway.

William M. Smith, superintendent of the Union Bible Seminary, Westfield, Ind., is conducting studies in prophecy by correspondence. He reports a good interest.

A report has been received from the Sunshine Mission, Cedar Rapids, Ia., which is in charge of Rev. F. K. Ward. They have had an average attendance of 92, and 92 professed conversions in one month.

Laura Alexander writes encouragingly from Trout Run, Pa., her home town where she reports 128 converts. She also held meetings with Rev. M. S. Q. Mollett at White Pine, Pa., with good results.

L. W. Aldridge assisted Rev. Mr. Allen in a two weeks meeting at Baroda, Mich. There were thirty forward the first week, which was considered very good, as the church has been in a good spiritual condition.

Wood and Brookes closed a successful meeting at Harmony, Minn., with many interesting conversions. The campaign was held in the opera house with large crowds attending. The churches were greatly revived.

W. W. Hall and party conducted a union campaign in Swissvale, Pa., in March and the early part of April, with 1,300 conversions. The next meeting began at Kittanning, Pa., April 11, to continue for six weeks.

John M. Linden and party closed on Sunday April 4, a union campaign with the churches of Shinglehouse, Pa. The population of the town is 1,500, out of which came 550 decisions for Christ and the church. The party is now in a campaign at Nanticoke, Pa.

"Have just closed a fine meeting at West Union, O. There were many conversions and accessions to the church. All the churches in town are sharing in the converts. This has been in many respects the best year in my ministry."—E. B. Westhafer.

S. E. Lewis, pastor of the Baptist church, Lydonville, N. Y., was assisted by F. W. H. Peckham in evangelistic meetings during March. There were over 160 professed conversions. There were many accessions to the Presbyterian, M. E. and Baptist churches.

Henry W. Bromley and party closed their campaign at Howell, Mich., with a great victory. There were 567 enquirers, beside several hundred members of the various churches taking a more definite stand for God.

T. D. Franklin and J. H. Leonard closed a successful campaign at Pickford, Mich., April 4, with 204 conversions, many consecrations, and the whole community greatly shaken for God. From there they went to LeMars, Ia., to begin a meeting on April 7.

Mrs. L. E. Brown closed evangelistic meetings at Broadview, Ill., with 100 conversions and began work in the First M. E. Church,

The Byron J. Clark Evangelistic Party held a successful meeting at the 40th and Harrison St. Church, Kansas City, Mo., during March, and is now in a meeting at Shawnee, Okla. The crowds are taxing the capacity of the church and many have expressed a desire to become Christians.

Paul Henry Packard closed a campaign in Pittsburg, Kan., April 11, with 145 additions to the church. April 12-16, Mr. Packard gave addresses on "Evangelism" at a convention of Christian workers, at Iola, Kan. His next campaign was at Cherokee, Kan., beginning April 25, Charles S. McCray assisting.

The Burke-Hobbs Tabernacle Choir at Jackson, Mo., Herbert G. Tovey, Director

Chicago, April 14. Mrs. Brown is specializing in personal workers classes.

Merril T. McPherson writes as follows from Lethbridge, Alberta, Can.: "Having glorious meetings here. We closed on the north side of the city; then after a week's rest started in again on a city-wide campaign in Wesley Church, the largest in the city, holding about 1,200."

The Miller-Vinaroff Party reported a good meeting at Fulton, Ind. At the time of writing there had been 72 conversions; more than 40 being heads of families. Mr. Vinaroff organized a regular church choir with 40 members. The party next went to Rockford, O.

C. E. Hillis and party held a great revival campaign in Marysville, Pa. A large tabernacle was erected. Two new additions to the Hillis party are A. H. Stahl and H. E. Carroll. Their next meeting was to begin in Steelton, Pa., April 25, in a tabernacle seating 3,500, and continue about seven weeks.

S. D. and B. W. Goodale closed a splendid meeting in Kansas City, Kan. There was a good work among church members, and 154 professions of different kinds. The pastor, Rev. Tilman Sloan, received 88 persons into the church the last night. He expects to receive at least 100 in all. The evangelists next went to St. Louis, Mo., to open meetings in the Rockhill Church.

"Just returned from Centralia where I spent two weeks in the interest of railroad men for the International Committee R. R., Y. M. C. A. Something over 200 men have been interested."—James R. Smith.

Edward D. Fellers writes from Staunton, Va., that the meetings opened there with fine prospects on April 6. He closed his previous campaigns in Mason City, W. Va., with 68 conversions and at Webster Springs, W. Va., with 125 conversions. Mr. Fellers has an open date for the summer, and can be addressed at 814 Ohio Ave., Youngstown, O.

C. A. Erickson and F. A. Geisenheiner closed an eleven weeks campaign, holding meetings in the Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist and Christian churches in Pulaski, Miller, Camden, Laclede and Texas counties, Mo. People of all ages were reached in the meetings, and quite a number for the first time made profession of their faith in Christ.

"We had a fine work in Salem, Ore., in February, then Watertown, S. D., for the month of March. Now we are in Modesto, Cal., and from here we go to South Pasadena. We have had tabernacles in all cities and the Lord has blessed us in a wonderful way. We are with Dr. Henry Ostrom, and enjoy the work."—Arthur W. McKee.

"Chas. T. Wheeler has just closed the most successful evangelistic campaign the city of Edwardsville, Ill., has ever known. There were over a thousand to come forward and the churches were re-made and the community changed. Dr. Wheeler and his associates are now in a union tabernacle campaign at Litchfield, Ill."—A. R. Forsythe.

James M. Williams, pastor of the M. E. church, Perry, Ia., sends an encouraging report of the meetings conducted in his church by Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy. Whole families have been converted and have joined the church and the church is in excellent working spirit. Everybody is happy and conversions are still occurring. Over 260 came to the altar and 140 were received into the church, April 4.

The Hart and Magann meetings opened in Racine, Wis., under favorable conditions on April 4. After preaching the first week to Christians, the sermons were then directed to the unconverted and at the first invitation about 280 went forward. There were not enough personal workers to care for all the converts and it was necessary for the evangelist to again appeal to Christians to give themselves more heartily to the work.

"We have just had a great revival at Haxtum, Colo., with Evangelist Dan Shannon. He preached four weeks in Scott's Opera House. The roads were almost impassable, yet the building was crowded to the limit. Three hundred turned to God."—T. B. Tyre, pastor of M. E. church.

E. J. Forsythe and party opened meetings at Moberly, Mo., April 1. During the early part of the meetings they wrote: "We are in the midst of a wonderful work in this old town. The tabernacle was not finished when we began, but there were over 1,000 people in the building. At the Sunday night service 3,600 people were in the building and over 200 turned away." They had a fine choir of over 300 voices under the direction of Charles R. Forsythe.

Oscar Lowry closed an unusually good campaign March 21, in his home town, Cedar Falls, Ia. Altogether there were 997 professed conversions. While this number was not so large as in other towns the party has visited of the same size, yet for Cedar Falls it is considered very good, as there is a very large per cent of the people already in the churches. The pastors were greatly pleased with the results and the members wonderfully revived, resulting in several hundred re-consecrations. The evangelistic party next went to Fairbury, Neb.

Paul Rader, who after a short evangelistic campaign in Chicago was called to the pastorate of the Moody Church, has spent much of his time in evangelistic meetings. After a series of meetings in the Fourth Baptist Church, he held a month's campaign at the Moody Church, which was productive of much blessing. Since then he has conducted meetings at the North Shore Congregational, Englewood First M. E. and Second Baptist churches. He will soon begin a campaign, in which all the Baptist churches of Chicago will unite, at the Aiken Institute. Besides all this work and preaching in the Moody Church, he is now on his eighteenth week of daily noon meetings, which commenced in Willard Hall, until it was overcrowded, and now continue in the Inter-Ocean Building, 57 W. Monroe St., which is about twice as large as Willard Hall. There have been large numbers of confessions of Christ during the meetings.

FUTURE ENGAGEMENTS

Below are given the engagements, with dates as far as known, of the workers named. Our readers are earnestly invited to remember these laborers and their fields of appointment in their prayers.

Frances C. Allison—Until May 16, Sumpter, S. C.

- George Wood Anderson—Sept. 12, Bellefontaine, O.; Oct. 31, Easton, Pa.
- Hay Bell and Joe Lauderdale—May, Foosland, Ill.; Aug., Menville, Ia.; Sept., Sturgis, Ky.; Oct., Galatia, Ill.
- Chester Birch—May 2-16, Conneautville, Pa.; May 23-June 6, Richboro, Pa.; June 10-27, Deerfield, Mich.
- Dave Bulkley Party—May 2-23, Warsaw, Mo.
- George E. Burgess Party—Apr. 28-June 1, Dansville, N. Y.; June 2-30, Belmont, N. Y.
- Burke and Hobbs Party—May, St. Louis, Mo.; June, Cushing, Okla.
- Will A. Cheesman—May 2-16, Glenmont, O.; May 17-30, Markle, Pa.; May 31-June 13, Leechburg, Pa.; June 14-27, Washington, Pa.; June 28-July 11, Apollo, Pa.
- Byron J. Clark Party—Until May 15, Oklahoma City, Okla.; May 17-June 5, Dacoma, Okla.; June 5-20, Parsons, Kan.
- Glosson Sisters—Until May 9, Newark, Del.; May 30-June 27, Kanawha, Ia.
- H. T. Crossley—May 2-16, Penetang, Ont.
- DeFlon and Lytle—May, Pinckevill, Ill.; June, Scott, Wis.; July, Marcellon and Elkhorn, Wis.
- Edwin R. Dow and party—May, Franklin, Neb.; June, Orleans, Neb.; July, San Francisco, Cal.; Aug., Dallas Center, Ia.
- John W. Erskine—Until May 9, Lone Rock, Wis.; May 12-30, Evart, Mich.; June 5-27, Wilson and West Wilson, Mich.
- Edward D. Fellers—Until May 9, Charleston, W. Va. Open dates for the summer.
- L. E. Finney and party—At Hearne, Alvarado, Waco, Pearsall, Normangee, Tex.; Harrison, Ark.; Sulphur, Okla.
- A. John Fitt—May, Fowler, Colo.; June, Blanca, Colo.; July and Aug., Tent meetings in Colorado.
- George Wm. Forman—May 23-June, Morenci, Ariz.
- E. J. Forsythe and party—May, Moberly, Mo.; May-June, Richmond, Mo.; October, Denison, Ia.; Nov.-Dec., Tippn, Ia.
- T. D. Franklin and J. H. Leonard—May, Spencer, Ia.; June, Burnside, Ia.
- Charles R. Goff and party—Until May 2, Jefferson, Ia.; May 9-May 23, Redfield, Ia.; May 30-June 20, Montezuma, Ia.
- John S. Hamilton and party—Until May 23, Clarksburg, W. Va.
- Hamilton and Stewart—Until May 15, Great Bend, Kan.
- Hart and Magann party—May-June, Green Bay, Wis.
- E. R. Hermiston—May, Van Nuys, Cal.; June, Englewood, Cal.
- "Bob" Johnson and party—May 29-July 12, Punxsutawney, Pa.; Sept. 17-Nov. 1, Kalamazoo, Mich.
- The Bob Jones party—Until May 16, Sumter, S. C.; Aug. 1-15, Elkin, N. C.
- The R. Sam Kirkland party—May, Kirkland, Ill.; May-June, Albany, Ill.; June-July, Fulton, Ill.; open dates last July-first Aug.
- John M. Linden and party—May, Stoughton, Wis.; June, Smethport, Pa.
- Lowry-Moody party—Until May 2, Fairbury, Neb.; May 9—June 13, North Platte, Neb.
- J. W. Mahood and party—Until May 4, Buckhannon, W. Va.
- Frank Mathis and party—May 9-June 6, Cherokee, Ia.
- Mealung and Leonard—Until May 16, Roaring Springs, Pa.
- Paul Henry Packard and party—Until May 9, Cherokee, Kan.; May 16-June 6, Arcadia, Kan.; June 13-July 4, Walnut, Kan.
- Rayburn and Laraway—Until May 9, Valentine, Neb.; May 16-June 6, Bennet, Neb.; June 13-July 11, Kimball, Neb.
- Milton S. Rees—May 16, St. Petersburg, Fla.
- Harold F. Sayles—May 2-18, Reed City; May 23-June 8, White Pigeon, Mich.
- Chas. Cullen Smith and A. C. V. Gilmore—Until May 2, Crawfordsville, Ia.
- V. A. Sunday and party—May 2-June 13, Omaha, Neb.
- Max Wertheimer—Until May 12, Spence St. Baptist Church, Philadelphia, Pa.; May 13-28, Fidelity Baptist Church, Cleveland, O.
- Chas. T. Wheeler and party—May 2, Granite City, Madison and Venice, Ill.; June-July, DeSoto, Mo.
- Wood and Brooks party—Until May 23, Royalton, Minn.; June 6-July 4, Wauconda, Ill.; Aug 1-29, Burr Oak, Ia.
- Toronto, Ont., June 6-13.
- Binghamton, N. Y., June 25-July 4.
- Hebron, Mass., July 4-11.
- Nyack, N. Y., July 4-11.
- Mt. Lake Park, Md., July 13-18.
- Chicago, Ill., July 18-25.
- Old Orchard Beach, Me., July 30-Aug. 8.
- Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 6-15.
- Beulah Park, O., Aug. 13-22.
- Desplaines (Ill.) Camp Meeting, July 7-19, 1915.
- Erisside (O.) Bible Conference, July 23-Aug. 1, 1915 (probably).
- Genl. Assembly Presbyterian Church, in the U. S. A., Rochester, N. Y., May 20-30, 1915.
- Genl. Assembly Presbyterian Church, in the U. S., Newport News, Va., May 20-29, 1915.
- Green Lake (Wis.) Bible Institute, July 28-Aug. 10, 1915.
- Grove City (Pa.) Bible Conference, Aug. 3-13, 1915.
- International Christian Endeavor Convention, Chicago, July 7-12, 1915.
- International Missionary Union, Clifton Springs, N. Y., June 23-27, 1915.
- Laymen's Missionary Movement, Boston, Mass., Nov. 18-20, 1915.
- Lord's Day Congress, San Francisco, Cal., July, 1915.
- Martin Luther Quadricentenary, October 31, 1917.
- Missionary Education Movement Summer Conferences for 1915, as follows:
- Blue Ridge, N. C., June 25-July 4.
- Silver Bay, N. Y., July 9-July 18.
- Ocean Park, Me., July 22-July 30.
- Asilomar, Cal., July 2-July 11.
- Estes Park, Colo., July 16-July 25.
- Lake Geneva, Wis., Aug. 6-Aug. 15.
- Mothers' Day, May 9, 1915.
- Montrose (Pa.) Bible Conference, July 30-Aug. 8, 1915.
- National Board of the Y. W. C. A. of America Convention, Los Angeles, Cal., May 6-11, 1915.
- North Baptist Convention, Los Angeles, Cal., May 19-25, 1915.
- Northfield (Mass.) dates for 1915:
- Young Woman's Conference, June 16-23.
- Student Conference, June 25-July 4.
- Summer School for Woman's Foreign Missionary Societies, July 8-15.
- Women's Summer School for the East, July 16-23.
- Summer School for S. S. Workers, July 17-24.
- General Conference, July 30-Aug. 15.
- Ocean Grove (N. J.) Camp Meeting, Aug. 27-Sept. 6, 1915.
- Presbyterian United Movement Conference, Rochester, N. Y., May 19, 1915.
- Presbyterian Young People's Conventions for 1915:
- Ovoca, Tenn., June 22-30.
- Pocono Pines, Pa., June 30-July 6.
- Winona Lake, Ind., July 13-20.
- Alma, Mich., July 20-26.
- Storm Lake, Ia., July 13-22.
- Hastings, Neb., July 27-Aug. 3.
- Hollister, Mo., Aug. 12-19.
- Prison Sunday, Oct. 31, 1915.
- Quinquennial International Prison Congress, London, Eng., 1915.
- Rockhurst Prayer Conference, San Francisco, Cal., June 14-20, 1915.
- Southern Baptist Convention, Houston, Tex., May 12-17, 1915.
- Southwestern Missionary Conference, Cliffs, Ariz., Aug. 12-21, 1915.
- Stony Brook (L. I.) Prophetic Conference, Aug. 8-15, 1915.
- Winona Lake (Ind.) dates for 1915:
- Summer School of Missions, June 24-July 2.
- Bible School, July 5-Aug. 20.
- Presbyterian Young Peoples' Conference, July 13-20.
- Bible Conference, August 20-29.
- Women's Congress of Missions, San Francisco, Cal., June 6-13, 1915.
- Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 23-Nov. 4, 1915.
- Women's Summer Schools of Missions for 1915:
- Los Angeles, Cal., May 31-June 4.
- Oklahoma City, Okla., June 1-7.
- Denton, Tex., June 3-13.
- Duluth, Minn., June 8-14.
- St. Paul, Minn., June 16-22.
- Winona Lake, Ind., June 24-July 1.
- Blue Ridge, N. C., June 24-July 4.
- Boulder, Colo., July 6-13.
- E. Northfield, Mass., July 8-15.
- Silver Bay, N. Y., July 9-18.
- World's Sunday-school Convention, Tokyo, Japan, Oct. 18-26, 1916.
- World's Temperance Sunday, Nov. 7, 1915.
- Young People's Christian Union of the United Presbyterian Church, Los Angeles, Cal., July 4-11, 1915.
- Young Women's Christian Association Student Conferences for 1915:
- Blue Ridge, N. C., June 4-14.
- Silver Bay, N. Y., June 18-28.
- Eagles Mere, Pa., June 25-July 5.

FORTHCOMING CONFERENCES OR IMPORTANT DATES.

- Anti-Saloon League of America (Biennial Convention), Atlantic City, N. J., July 6-10, 1915.
- China Inland Mission Jubilee Meeting, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., June 15-20, 1915.
- Children's Day, June 13, 1915.
- Christian Workers and Bible Conference, Bible School Park, N. Y., July 23-Aug. 1, 1915.
- Christian and Missionary Alliance Summer Conferences for 1915 (probable dates):

The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

FACULTY ACTIVITIES

Dr. Gray's engagements in April included two lectures on prophecy before the Pittsburgh Union Bible Class; the supply of the pulpit of Immanuel Baptist Church of Chicago, April 18, when he gave by request his address on "The Battle of Armageddon," and two preaching services in the Central Methodist Church, Muskegon, Mich., in connection with the annual meeting of the rescue mission of that city.

Mr. Gosnell gave three days of Bible teaching at the ministers' and workers' conference of the Friends Western Yearly Meeting, held at Mooresville, Ind., April 12-14.

Miss Cary, feeling the strain of her winter's work, spent two weeks last month in rest at Battle Creek, Mich.

Miss Edna Johnson, teacher of Manual Arts and Primary Sunday-school Work on our faculty, was bereaved of her father, after a short illness last month. She spoke of his faith in God as that of a little child who, through all his years as she knew him, was an example of a life "hid with Christ in God."

Mr. Trowbridge has just closed a very successful season with the McCormick Theological Seminary Glee Club, a chorus of twenty-eight male voices from among the theological students. They have given concerts in a number of Presbyterian churches; a "Home" concert in the Seminary chapel, March 25; a concert at the Fourth Presbyterian Church, April 15; and furnished the music for the Seminary Commencement, April 29.

SPECIAL LECTURES

The Rev. William Hay, F. R. G. S., pastor of the Nassau Street Baptist Church, Winnipeg, Can., gave the graduating address before the April, 1915, class. He returned a year ago from a visit to the missionary stations of China, Korea and Japan, where he had an opportunity to travel with some of the members of the new Chinese parliament and to interview Dr. Sun Yat Sen and Gen. Hwang Hsing, the commander of the revolutionary forces. He also was present at the Baptist conference in Shanghai and addressed a number of student gatherings in the different lands he visited. Formerly Mr. Hay was president of the Baptist Union of New Zealand, and chairman of the personal workers during the Chapman-Alexander campaign in Dunedin.

Rev. W. Irving Carroll, D. D., Texarkana, Tex., delivered six lectures on the Second

Coming of Christ during the week, March 31-April 7, 1915.

Rev. J. H. Blackstone of Nanking, China, delivered two lectures on China. Mr. Blackstone spent nine years in evangelistic work in China, and was in the city of Nanking when it was being shelled by the revolutionists.

EXTENSION DEPARTMENT

The regular workers in this department were engaged in service during the month of April as follows: Frances C. Allison with the Bob Jones Evangelistic Party in Crawfordsville, Ind., and Sumter, S. C.; George E. Guille, Athens, Tenn., and Detroit, Mich.; C. P. Meeker, at home, Grand Junction, Mich.; John C. Page, in Cape Breton, N. S., under the direction of the Cape Breton Evangelistic Association; Angy Manning Taylor, Petersburg, and Richmond, Va. Word has been received from Miss Elinor Stafford Millar that she is improving in health and hopes to return to the United States by September 1, 1915.

A number of calls were received for workers, 20 of whom were located; 12 being present students and 6 were former students.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

A Methodist Episcopal pastor in another State, recently sent us a request for prayer concerning a series of evangelistic meetings in his church, introducing the subject with the remark: "My visits to, and contact with students from the Moody Bible Institute are very encouraging. I hope at times in my ministry to take short courses with you, as a stimulus and inspiration."

According to the annual report of the American Sunday-school Union, thirty-three students from the Moody Bible Institute are working in connection with that organization.

April 2 marked the inauguration of the recitals of the advanced piano pupils of the Moody Bible Institute. It has been felt for some time that the advanced piano pupils should have the advantage of playing before a group of people other than their teachers and intimate friends. This would instill confidence and poise into their playing, which they could not get in any other way, and would give them an objective towards which to practice each term.

All of the solos were committed, and well played, a marked enthusiasm pervading the recital throughout. Such composers as Heller, Durand, Leschetizky, Chopin, Grieg, Dvorak, and Hansen, were represented upon the program.

Graduating Class of The Moody Bible Institute, April, 1915

PROGRAM OF CLOSING EXERCISES FOR WINTER TERM

Thursday, April 22, 1915

11:00 a. m. Class exercises in the Moody Church.

5:30 p. m. Reception to class by Faculty in reception room of Women's Building.

6:00 p. m. Supper, with graduating class as guests of honor.

7:45 p. m. Graduation exercises in the Moody Church. Address by Rev. William Hay, F. R. G. S.

A Prayer.

Class song of the April class, 1915, of M. B. I.

W. IRVING BLAIR.

HARRY D. LOMB.

ANGE LEADING OF A STUDENT

ident relates that for years he door to give his life to the gospel, either at home or left London on a visit to islands, and Madeira.

During the voyage heavy weather was encountered, and upon reaching Mazagan in southern Morocco it was impossible to land passengers. For twelve hours the vessel lay out at sea battling with the storm, and during the night of March 31 was driven towards the shore, and struck on a submerged reef, tearing a hole in her bottom. It was only by God's grace that she was saved from going down. It was thirty-three hours from the time she struck before a life boat effected a rescue, when the passengers were then taken into Mazagan.

After two days he was overjoyed at finding two Scotch representatives of the Cross, Mr. and Mrs. Gow, who invited him into their home and did everything possible for his comfort and from the lips of whom he first heard of the Moody Bible Institute. Twelve months afterward he entertained these friends in England, and again they urged him to come to the Institute. At last he applied and was accepted just as the present war was declared, which again brought difficulties and months of delay, but through all these experiences God led him and he is praising Him for being here.

THE MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE UNION OF BOSTON

While Dr. Gray was in Boston last year, at a dinner to the former students of the Moody Bible Institute, it was suggested that a Union be formed whose object would be to meet for fellowship and spiritual uplift. This suggestion was carried out and "The Moody Bible Institute Union of Boston" was organized. Five meetings full of inspiration and encouragement have been held, the last at the home of Mrs. Capron, formerly superintendent of the Women's Department, who had charge of the devotional exercises, while Miss Haratounian from Turkey, a special guest of the evening, related how the Lord had led her into physical darkness, that she might be used of Him in leading the blind children of Turkey into spiritual light. The Union is interesting many who have never seen the Institute, to come as students.

THE MOODY FELLOWSHIP CLUB OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

The Moody Fellowship Club of Southern California is composed of former students of Mr. Moody's schools in Chicago, Northfield and Mt. Hermon. Their fourth annual gathering was held March 19, 1915, at which sixty-five were present, the majority being from the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. John H. Hunter, Secretary of the Club, reported the meeting as follows: "After an enjoyable social time around the table, Dr. Torrey gave a brief address on 'D. L. Moody, The Man as I Knew Him,' and then called on a number of those present to relate their experiences in the various schools. One of the pleasant features of the evening was the presence of P. W. Campbell, Field Secretary of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, who made a very appropriate address. Dr. Torrey then closed the meeting with a ringing appeal to keep true to Mr. Moody's ideal and never slacken our efforts in the winning of men and women for Jesus Christ."

CURRICULUM FOR EVENING CLASSES

A new curriculum for the three years course of the Evening Classes of The Moody Bible Institute has just been adopted, and will be inaugurated next September at the beginning of the new cycle.

The Evening Classes are divided into four terms each year. During the Fall, Winter and Spring terms three classes are held each Tuesday and Friday evening from 6:45 to 9:00 o'clock. During the Summer terms the work is carried on by correspondence, and follows the Chapter Summary method.

In addition to Synthetic Bible Study and Bible Doctrine, which are taught continuously throughout the course, the following subjects are taken up: Biblical Introduction, Christian Evidences, Bible Analysis, Personal Work and Practical Methods, Homiletics, Church History, Orientalisms, Missions and Music. There is also a thorough course for Sunday-school workers, embracing Child Study, Pedagogy, and Sunday-school Organization and Management, for which the students receive the Teacher Training diploma of the Illinois State Sunday-school Association.

At the end of each term a certificate is issued giving credit for work done and on completion of the course the student is granted the diploma of The Moody Bible Institute.

The regular faculty of the Institute are called upon to teach these classes, and it is expected that the following order will be followed:

Synthesis, Rev. L. W. Gosnell and Dr. James M. Gray.

Bible Doctrine, Rev. J. H. Ralston.

Bible Analysis, Dr. P. B. Fitzwater.

Orientalisms and Missions, Rev. E. A. Marshall.

Personal Work and the Sunday-school Course, Mr. E. O. Sellers.

Christian Evidences, Biblical Introduction, and Homiletics, Rev. W. W. Ketchum and Dr. Robert M. Russell.

Music (Theory and Voice), Mr. J. B. Trowbridge.

Music (Piano and Organ), Mr. George S. Schuler.

Many students for financial reasons not able to attend the Day Classes are taking these Evening Classes and quite a number of the former students are now devoting their entire time to some form of Christian work. The chief value of these classes is, however, in their practical contribution to the work of the churches in Chicago.

PERSONALIA

John Baird, '10, is now located at 311 Hodge Hall, Princeton, N. J.

Thomas B. Grass, '06, evangelist, is now conducting meetings at Kasson, Minn.

Andrew J. Whipkey, '10, is pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Charleroi, Pa.

F. E. Holloway, '09, is pastor of the Second Congregational Church, Denver, Col.

D. L. Anderson, '11, Howell, Mich., reports that fine meetings are in progress in his church.

E. M. Anderson, '10, closed a successful revival in his church at Fergus Falls, Minn., April 6, 1915.

Henry D. Clarke, '13, assisted the Rev. A. G. Flexer of Shamokin, Pa., in a week's meetings at Albright College.

John Melmaker, '95, pastor of the First Baptist Church, St. Cloud, Fla., reports that his work is prospering.

Martha Nichol, '95, is doing all she can to keep up the work of a church at Arcadia, Neb., which is without a pastor.

Rev. John Douglas Runkle, '07, pastor of the Baptist church at West Union, W. Va., writes that his work is prospering.

H. B. Sands, '09, evangelistic singer, is assisting Dr. Z. A. Space in his evangelistic meetings in New York State.

Edward H. Page, a student last term, is now at Bemidji, Minn. He is employed by the American Sunday School Union.

Jacob W. Quiring, '07, and wife, are now in Berlin, where Mr. Quiring is at present making use of his McCormick fellowship. Both are well.

James R. Smith, '90, pastor of the Olive Branch Congregational Church, St. Louis, Mo., began union meetings at Bath, Pa., April 14, 1915.

E. L. Powlesland, '10, has resigned his torate at Anacortes, Wash., and has called to the First Baptist Church, Woolley, Wash.

Clement Upham, '03, pastor of Congregational Church, Detroit, sent in a very encouraging report being accomplished by his church.

J. A. McDonald, a contributor in the Bible Doctrine Course of the poem which appeared in the issue of "The Christian Worker" entitled "The European."

Mrs. H. J. Baldwin, formerly Luella Denison, '13, is now writing the column "My Class of Girls" in "The Sunday School Times," succeeding Miss Content Patterson.

Rev. R. H. Crossfield, D. D., President of Transylvania University at Lexington, Ky., and Mr. H. J. Derthick, of Indianapolis, Ind., were visitors at the Institute, March 31.

Orra M. Spear, '07, who until February was secretary in the Y. W. C. A., Saginaw, Mich., is now with the Rev. Luther K. Peacock's evangelistic party in Oneonta, N. Y.

Signe Abrahamsen, '12, left Norway, March 26, 1915, in company with seven other missionaries to take up work under the Norwegian Mission Board at Tengchow, Honan, China.

Bertha Fogelberg, '05, Solomon, Kan., is pastor of the United Brethren Church of the North Kansas Conference. She was ordained three years ago.

W. F. Garvin, '12, has resigned from the Presbyterian church, Rardin, Ill., where he was supplying half time, in order to give his full time to the Presbyterian church at Grandview, Ill.

Clara A. Mason, '07, of Wallair, Norsapattau, India, writes: "My interest in the great work of the Institute and church has not diminished, and I thank God upon every remembrance of you."

James Ostema, '02, has moved from Mattoon, Ill., where he had the privilege of serving as pastor for over nine years, to Anderson, Ind., where he expects to have a better opportunity for service.

Rosa A. Lizenby, '01, Rosedale, Kan., is pastor of a Congregational mission church. This is her second year in this field, and the church has already doubled its membership and paid all church debts except the pastor's salary.

Harry A. Whaley, '10, formerly assistant to the Rev. Dr. Watson at the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant in Cincinnati, O., has accepted a call to be assistant to Dr. Coffman at the First Presbyterian Church, Davenport, Ia.

E. E. Strother, '05, and wife (Christina K. Cameron, '07), general secretaries of the China Christian Endeavor Union, while returning to their work in China, wrote a letter to their friends, which was published in the "Christian Endeavor World," April 1, 1915.

Alveretta W. Bowman, '10, Boyne City, Mich., has been teaching Bible classes in Cairo, Ill., with splendid success. Letters received from the pastors of the First M. E. and the First Presbyterian Churches speak very highly of her work.

Percy W. Stephens, '11, was greatly honored when, at a recent meeting of the membership of the First Baptist Church, Jacksonville, Ill., it was voted to extend him a call to serve as pastor indefinitely, increase his salary, and grant him a vacation of two months to pursue a course of study at the University of Chicago.

J. M. Thompson, '93, was ordained by the presbytery of Rushville, September, 1905, and has been actively engaged in this presbytery since that time; for six years pastor at Brooklyn, Ill.; two years at Macomb, Ill., and for about thirteen years at Warsaw, Ill. The Lord has blessed his work in all these places.

Henry F. W. Uffeln, '09, writes from Brooklyn, N. Y., that he has spent the last three years in pastorates on the Pacific Coast and returned to the East via the Panama Canal. He sent some excellent sermon outlines which will appear in the columns of the magazine in due time.

William Lagerquist, '89, missionary, care C. I. M. Lavhokeo, Hupeh Prov., via Hankow, China, in a recent letter wrote, in part: "Thankful to say that the M. B. I. students are a growing body out here, and as a rule make good missionaries, and are able to take their stand in the front ranks. It would encourage you to hear the testimonies of these dear friends as to the help and blessing they received in the Institute, in which I heartily join."

George W. Rhoad, '02, missionary under the African Inland Mission, Mboni Station, British East Africa, has just finished the translation of the Gospel of John into the native tongue of the tribes in Ukamba, and its influence is already being felt. Isaac S. Caldwell, '10, and wife, are now with the Rhoads, learning the language. Miss Norton is on her furlough, and Hattie Newman, '08, is the only one who can assist much in the work. Mr. Rhoad writes that more workers are needed at his station, and also adds that the work for native girls is well under way.

J. S. Martinez, Santander, Spain, a member of the present graduating class, was recently engaged in evangelistic meetings in Trenton, Mo. A local paper thus speaks of him: "This wonderful man, in his four weeks stay in Trenton, has left an impression such as was probably made by no other person in that time. His influence has done much for the congregations, especially the men and boys with whom he has come in contact. And the impression he left has not been one of sensational character, but of complete and unselfish devotion to God, in the advancement of whose kingdom he has given his life and soul."

BORN

To Mr. and Mrs. Amos Oyer, '07, of Chicago, Ill., March 26, 1915, a son, Robert Samuel.

To Mr. and Mrs. David Gentz, '12, of Hillsdale, Mich., April 3, 1915, a son, Ernest Woodrow.

The Bible Institute Colportage Association

PRAYER AND COLPORTAGE WORK

A "Book Missionary" Testifies

Pettibone, N. D.

When I was a student at the Moody Bible Institute I spent part of my vacation in colportage work near my home town. I shall relate just one incident that took place in a sma'l town.

I had spent the night with some Christian friends and left in the morning with a prayer (as I always did) that God should bless my efforts that day. I went from house to house but somehow, this morning, everybody seemed to "turn me down." In the meantime Satan whispered to me, and said: "You are not doing any good, you might as well go home and do something else to make yourself useful." However, I looked up to Jesus, and went on.

At the next house I was met by a woman who had been converted the previous winter. She was about to shut the door before me when she heard me mention the word "Moody" (I usually mentioned the "Moody Colportage Library books"). Then she invited me to come inside—for by this time she had discovered I knew something about salvation, and she wanted to know more about it. She told me her experience with tears in her eyes, and I told her mine, both of us emphasizing the blood of Jesus. I was so much encouraged by this visit (though I hadn't yet sold one book) that as I left this house and walked along the street I just burst out singing:

"Oh, the blood of Jesus,
It cleanses white as snow," etc.

The Lord wonderfully blessed the rest of that day, not only did I sell books in nearly every home that I came to during the remainder of that day, but I dealt with many about their souls, also was asked to come and preach in one of their vacant churches, which I did.

It is a day which I shall remember as long as I live. May this incident encourage all who are in colportage work, or any other kind of Christian work, never to yield to Satan's suggestions, but to go on in the name of Jesus. He always wins the day.

I will also add that I sold as many as thirty-five books in two hours. In all, I sold about as many as one thousand of the Moody Colportage Library books in a short time.

C. N. W.

Taking the Gospel in Print to the People.

The "book missionary" in the country is needed, welcomed and patronized. Thousands of villages the country over present to earnest men and women countless opportunities for preaching the gospel by voice and book. This method of doing Christian work lay close to the heart of D. L. Moody, who saw in it the possibilities for good upon a self-supporting basis.

TYPEWRITER SENSATION

Free TRIAL---Use as You Pay

Send me only $3.00 a month until the low total price of $48.30 is paid, and the machine is yours

This is absolutely the most generous typewriter offer ever made. Do not rent a machine when you can pay $3.00 a month and own one. Think of it—Buying a $100.00 machine for $48.30. Cash price, $45.45. Never before has anything like this been attempted.

Standard Visible

L. C. Smith Model No. 2

Large Clergyman's and Student's Type if Desired

Perfect machine, standard size, standard keyboard, back spacer. Comes to you with everything complete, tools, cover, operating book and instructions, ribbon, practice paper—nothing extra to buy. You cannot imagine the perfection of this beautiful typewriter until you have seen it. I will send it to you F. O. B. Chicago, for five days' free trial. It will sell itself, but if you are not satisfied that this is the greatest typewriter you ever saw, you can return it at my expense. You won't want to return it after you try it—you cannot equal this wonderful value anywhere.

You Take No Risk—Put in Your Order NOW

When the typewriter arrives deposit with the express agent $9.30 and take the machine for five days' trial. If you are convinced that it is the best typewriter you ever saw, keep it and send me $3.00 a month until our bargain price of $48.30 is paid. If you don't want it, return it to the express agent, receive your $9.30 and return the machine to me. I will pay the return express charges. This machine is guaranteed just as if you paid $100.00 for it. It is standard. Over one hundred thousand people own and use these typewriters and think them the best ever manufactured. The supply at this price is very limited, the price will probably be raised when my next advertisement appears, so don't delay. Fill in the coupon today—mail to me—the typewriter will be shipped promptly. There is no red tape. I employ no solicitors—no collectors—no chattel mortgage. It is simply understood that I retain title to the machine until the full $48.30 is paid. You cannot lose. It is the greatest typewriter opportunity you will ever have. Do not send me one cent. Get the coupon in the mails today—sure.

HARRY A. SMITH, 571-231 N. Fifth Ave., Chicago

H. A. SMITH

Room 571
231 N. Fifth Ave.
CHICAGO, ILL.

Ship me a No. 2 L. C. Smith F. O. B. Chicago, as described in this advertisement.

Equipped with —clergyman's type. I will pay you the $39.00 balance of the SPECIAL $48.30 purchase price, at the rate of $3.00 per month. The title to remain in you until fully paid for. It is understood that I have five days in which to examine and try the typewriter. If I choose not to keep it I will carefully repack it and return it to the express agent. It is understood that you give the standard guarantee for one year.

Name.....

Address.....

A FRANK AND APPRECIATED TESTIMONY

New Wilmington, Pa.

During my own pastorate I distributed hundreds and hundreds of the "Moody" books and some of the most gracious results of my ministry came through the passing of these.

Robert McWatty Russell,
President Westminster College.

A SUGGESTION TO OUR EVANGELISTS

Sigourney, Iowa.

I do not see why the bigness of colportage work hasn't appeared to me before. Everyone wants some kind of "Gospel in print." An ex-convict (a convert) has charge of the selling in our meetings, and he has already taken orders for 140 Bibles, dozens of song books, Colportage books, Gospels of John, etc.

C. R. G. (Evangelist).

WHAT A LAYMAN CAN DO

Wedderburn, Ore.

If these persons to whom I have sent the Moody Colportage Library books find them as valuable as I have found them to be, and become as active in circulating them among their friends, some places that have not been reached by the gospel will find light. At any rate, I shall continue trying to bring the light into dark places by your books and tracts that I could have reached in no other way.

W. H. M.

A FAITHFUL CORRESPONDENT REPORTS

Frenchburg, Ky.

The Colportage Library books you assigned us are doing more good than we thought. We gave a class of girls each a book for a Christmas gift. They have read and borrowed all of them and read them aloud at home where there is drinking fathers and mothers who are not Christians. They have come to us and said that the reading has done much good, and all want to read more.

An evangelist who is preaching here came in yesterday and said: "You are doing more good with these little books here than all the preaching that can be done." One man is under conviction and going to the altar every night, a confirmed drunkard. I sent into his family, not direct to him, "Fifty Temperance Tales." Christians are reading and tell us they are brought to a much deeper sense of the love and peace of God's presence. We have waited for them to write their experience, but can get only words of praise for the books and the fact that they have been so much benefited. May God bless you and all the efforts put forth in His name. Mrs. F. A.

AN EVANGELIST'S DISCOVERY

Sigourney, Iowa.

I do not see why the bigness of colportage work hasn't appeared to me before. Everyone wants some kind of "Gospel in print." An ex-convict (a convert) has charge of the selling, and he has already taken orders for 140 Bibles, dozens of song books, colportage books, Gospels of John, etc.

Charles R. Goff.

"IF YOU HAVE A KINDNESS SHOWN, PASS IT ON"

A Practical Suggestion

Albany, Ore.

Kindly send one copy of Moody's "The Overcoming Life," No. 44 in the Moody Colportage Library, to each of the enclosed addresses. These are Christian people whom I hope to interest in your good books. I am spending my tithe money this way and prefer not to have my name mentioned to any of them. It was in this way that someone sent me a copy of "Back to Bethel" six years ago, proving a great help to my spiritual life so I am trying to pass the good work along. * * *

FREE GRANTS OF BOOKS

The following donations of the Moody Colportage Library books, Emphasized Gospels of John, etc., have been sent out on account of the several book funds named, from March 15, 1915, to April 10, 1915, inclusive, many of which consignments already have been acknowledged with expressions of hearty appreciation:

Prison Book Fund:

Illinois, 25 books, 25 gospels.
Kentucky, 465 books, 65 gospels.
Iowa, 50 books, 50 gospels.
Indiana, 100 books.
Ohio, 10 books.
West Virginia, 25 books, 25 gospels.
New Jersey, 100 books, 100 gospels.
New York, 260 books.
North Carolina, 25 gospels.

Lodging House Book Fund:

Illinois, 100 gospels.

Spanish "Way to God" Book Fund:

Bolivia, 15 books.
Central America, 15 books.
Porto Rico, 15 books.

India Book Fund:

India, 25 books.

Mountain Book Fund:

Kentucky, 50 books.

MR. MOODY'S BOOK FUNDS

The following contributions have been received from March 16, 1915, to April 15, 1915, inclusive:

Prison Book Fund:
18 contributions	$102.64
Lumber Camp Book Fund:
2 contributions	3.50
Mountain Book Fund:
1 contribution	50.00
Seamen's Book Fund:
1 contribution	1.00
Spanish "Way to God" Book Fund:
1 contribution	2.50

Have You A Pocket Bible or New Testament ?

Then WHY NOT

send postal card for our price list? We also have pocket helps for ministers, Bible school teachers and other Christian workers. The best in these lines from the leading publishers at their prices. All pocket editions.

POCKET EVANGEL SUPPLY COMPANY,
501 E. Pennsylvania Ave., South Bend, Ind.

JUST PUBLISHED

THE PRECIOUS PROMISE TESTAMENT

WITH COMPLETE INDEX

The most helpful Testament published. It has all the precious promises in RED. It also has a COMPLETE INDEX to every subject and important word in the New Testament. Descriptive Pamphlet Free. $1.00 BEST LEATHER BINDING ONLY
GLAD TIDINGS PUB. CO., 602 Lakeside Bldg., CHICAGO, ILL.

WANTED

position as chorus leader and personal worker with a live wire evangelist.
Eight years experience. References cheerfully furnished. Address

C. A. Kemp, Winona, Kas.

STUTTERING and STAMMERING

permanently corrected. NATURAL SPEECH TAUGHT. FREE TRIAL WEEK. Six weeks' course. Highly endorsed by clergy, public and school authorities. For catalog, and free information, address
The Reed School, 385 Hubbard Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

YOU CAN AFFORD

Familiar Songs of the Gospel (No. 1 or 2).

Round or shape notes, 33
per hundred; samples, 5c each. 83 songs, words and music.
E. A. K. HACKETT, FORT WAYNE, INDIANA

Deeper Experiences of Famous Christians

By J. GILCHRIST LAWSON

Just published. Is the greatest book on the Spirit filled life. 382 pages. Twenty-one full page portraits. Cloth $1; paper 50c. Agents Wanted.

Glad Tidings Pub. Co., Lakeside Bldg., Chicago

Private Ambulance

Tel. Superior 615

R. A. ALLEN

Funeral Director

859 North Clark Street

CHICAGO, ILL.

Clergymen's
INDEX
AND FILE

EFFICIENCY is gained by indexing the best you read in books, and filing clippings by our almost automatic Topical & Textual system. 80% cheaper and handier than any other thorough method. Sent on approval. Send for circulars. WILSON INDEX COMPANY, 20 Lovett Pl., Lynn, Mass.

Not One Cent

is wasted on a subscription to The Christian Workers Magazine. Every cent the magazine costs you comes back in blessings that cannot be valued in money.

Count the Blessings

you have received. Then ask yourself if you are fair to your neighbor, or friend, or co-worker in the church, if you do not tell them about this magazine, especially when they can get it now, until July 31, for 50 cents a year, Chicago or Canada, 75 cents.

Your Own Money

lying in the bank, if you do not need the interest, could be bringing blessings to some other souls who are denied our magazine because they cannot afford it.

Just Read This, Please

"Mission House, S. India.

"Dear Sir:

"I am a lay worker of the — Mission in this place. About four months ago my missionary sent me a back number of your magazine. After reading the same, my heart was too full to say anything. I think it is the best magazine for preachers and Christian workers.

BUT

how am I to get it? I cannot afford to pay for the same, as my means are much limited. Therefore, I have made up my mind to write and ask you to send me a copy gratis. Please remember that I ask this IN HIS NAME, and if you will, send me a copy. HE WILL PAY YOU FOR IT. This place is a village and there is neither postoffice nor any reading room. It is very hard for a young man like me to live here, but thanks for all the kind friends who send me some papers to read. There is a church and a day school here, which I manage, and I am very happy in the work. I fully trust that you will send me a copy. Thanking you in anticipation, I am

"Yours in His service, _____."

Did We Send It?

Who wouldn't? Yes, we found we had just $8.74 which we could use and this money is for requests like this. Who supplies this money? Our subscribers. They let us send the magazine to the missionaries and keep the fund going. The Lord looks over this treasury. Have you dropped any in?

MISSIONARY FUND
Christian Workers Magazine
163 Institute Place
CHICAGO

We are Advertising for ADVERTISING

A class of university students will be studying this magazine to compare the ads with those of other high class magazines, and to get ideas. Think of it. Sell them something.

A group of machinists will be gathered together at dinner time in one of the largest shops in Indiana, while one of the men reads the articles from day to day, in this magazine. Sell them Something.

Managers and editors of a large number of religious papers will go through these pages this month to see what we are doing. See them smile? Sell them something. Sure, they are buyers.

A large number of advertising managers who use religious papers will go over the ads this month—some of them will wish they had a page in where this one is. Sell them something. They ought to advertise here.

A large number of evangelists working all over the country, will find time to look through these pages—to see where their friends are working, by the reports in The Evangelistic Field. They may be looking for a new song book, or a tent for summer. Sell them something.

A host of pastors will turn eagerly to the pages of this magazine—you can almost hear the paper rattle as they seek the editorials and contributed articles. Some one may be wanting a good stereopticon. If you have a second-hand one to sell, say so in three lines for 30 cents in the column "Where to Get What You Want." Sell them something.

Be wise, Be wise,
The old owl said.
The fellow who is dead
Does not advertise.

There will be some college presidents, numerous professional men, and our large constituency of Christian workers in all departments of the church, who will read this issue. Church officers and superintendents who buy the supplies, like blackboards, collection plates (by the way, you may need some new plates to replace those old ones and we noticed some advertised in a small ad in this issue); also many missionaries on the foreign fields. Sell them something.

Imagine, if you can, all the people who will be buying something advertised in this May magazine, this month. We are always glad when our subscribers buy from those who advertise in these columns. It makes the advertisers happy and then they write nice letters to us and send another order for an ad. All this helps to pay our expenses for printing the magazine.

Be a buyer, Be a buyer,
From an advertiser
In The Christian Workers Magazine.

Some of our readers may be personally acquainted with the advertising managers of firms who would advertise, if our magazine were brought to their attention. Your help along this line will be appreciated. Advertising rates will be sent upon application to

THE PUBLISHING AGENT
The Christian Workers Magazine
163 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

Just Ready

At All Booksellers

Fanny Crosby's Own Story

By S. Trevena Jackson

Illustrated, $1.00 Net

HER SONGS HAVE BELTED THE GLOBE

Here the blind singer tells her own story, drawing on an extraordinary memory for the vivid recollections of nearly ninety years. The author knew "Aunt Fanny" intimately for more than twenty years, and she dictated the material here brought together.

A book filled with memories, impressions, and reminiscences never before related, forming a fascinating record of one whose name is known wherever the English tongue is spoken, and whose ministry of sacred song has belted the globe.

W. N. SCHWARZE, Ph. D.

John Hus, the Martyr of Bohemia

A Study of the Dawn of Protestantism.

The year 1915 marks the five hundredth anniversary of the martyrdom of John Hus. The memory of the great reformer is not only the heritage of Bohemia, but of the whole of Protestant Christendom.

Illustrated, net 75c.

ARTHUR J. BROWN, D. D.

Author of "The Foreign Missionary," etc.

Unity and Missions

Can a Divided Church Save the World?

12mo, cloth, net $1.50

Dr. Brown presents a lucidly written, often passionate, appeal for unity in missionary endeavor. A valuable addition to contemporary missionary literature.

SIDNEY L. GULICK, D. D.

The Fight for Peace

12mo, paper, net 30c; cloth, net 50c.

Beyond the present chaos and turmoil of war, Dr. Gulick looks for an era of world peace. He has faith in its dawning, and lays down a program for its speedier realization.

H. CLAY TRUMBULL

Personal Prayer

Its Nature and Scope

Net 50c.

With Illustrative Answers to Prayer. "Light, comfort, inspiration and encouragement to pray."—The Independent.

Latest Additions to International Leaders' Library. Each 50c net. Post. extra.

ANDREW MURRAY, D. D.

The Inner Chamber and the Inner Life

"Might be used with profit by prayer-meeting services."—Christian Observer.

ANDREW MURRAY, D. D.

The Two Covenants and the Second Blessing

"It calls attention to this neglected field of thought, and finds in it a rich mine of treasure."—Christian Work.

MARCUS DODS

The Parables of Our Lord

A new one-volume edition of this well-known work.

J. REID HOWATT

The Next Life

Light on the Worlds Beyond.

W. P. MACKAY, M. A.

Grace and Truth

Under Twelve Different Aspects. Over 200,000 have been sold in English, and it has been translated into German, Spanish, Swedish, Arabic, Italian, Dutch and Gaelic.

HANNAH WHITALL SMITH

Every-Day Religion or, Common Sense Teaching of the Bible.

GRIFFIN W. BULL, D. D.

Daily Reminders from John's Gospel

"So clear, so concise, so comprehensive are these brief studies that the suggestion has been made to make them the basis of an 'Every-day Brotherhood.'"—Western Christian Advocate.

ROBERT E. SPEER, D. D.

John's Gospel

The Greatest Book in the World. Net 50c.

A study of John's Gospel by a man whose far-reaching influence is one of the great formative forces of religious life in America.

A. F. SCHAUFFLER, D. D.

Chairman of International S. S. Lesson Commission

God's Book and God's Boy

The James Sprunt Lectures for 1914. Illustrated, 12mo, cloth, net $1.00.

"Here is a Boy. In front of him is a Teacher. In his hand, each holds the Bible. What is that Teacher's business? To get the Book into the Boy's mind. If he know only the Boy he will fail. But if he know both the Book and the Boy, he can, with God's blessing, hope to succeed." Thus in arresting fashion, does Dr. Schauffer describe a process of which his own book is such an admirable example.

CHARLES STELZLE

The Call of the New Day to the Old Church

12mo, boards, net 25c.

What the Church needs of new equipment, in order that her answer should be full and adequate is here discussed in Mr. Stelzle's straight from the shoulder fashion.

Mr. Sunday says: "This book has been prepared with my Sanction and Permission by a friend who has known me nearly all my Christian life."

The REAL BILLY SUNDAY By Elijah P. Brown, D. D.

"Ram's Horn Brown"

Illustrated, Cloth, $1.00 Net.

The amazing story of a soul-winner whose record for moral earnestness and religious zeal is equalled only by that of Moody, Finney and Whitefield.

The Western Recorder says: "Here is a book you will surely read. It is simply impossible, to do justice to it. Get the book and read it for yourself."

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY NEW YORK, 158 Fifth Ave.
CHICAGO, 125 N. Wabash Ave.

BIBLE STUDY BOOKS

By W. Leon Tucker

The Book Stall, of Los Angeles, California, offers writings of Mr. Tucker, Editor, Serial Bible Course Magazine

STUDIES IN THE BOOK OF ROMANS. This book contains 45 Lectures on the Book of Romans, originally delivered at the Bible Institute of Los Angeles and published in Volume I of the Serial Bible Course Magazine, which volume is now out of print. The book has passed into many editions, and is enthusiastically pronounced as one of the most valuable helps ever issued in the study of this first of the Epistles. 100 pages, bound in paper. Price 25c.

ONE CORRUPT LEPER AND TWO CLEAN BIRDS. A series of Bible Readings in the Book of Leviticus. It has been said by competent critics to set forth the Salvation of the Sinner and the Sovereignty of God in the same, in simplicity and sublimity. It is rich in illustration. Price 10c.

AN INTRODUCTION TO EPHESIANS. A valuable introduction to the Book which is called the "Alps of the New Testament." The Divisions of the book are outlined, Chapter Contents displayed, Key Words supplied and suggestions for the further study of this wonderful Epistle. Price 10c.

THE PROPHECY OF HIS RESURRECTION. The "Third Day" as Resurrection day is herein traced throughout the Old Testament. It is based upon the Apostle's declaration that "Christ rose from the dead on the third day according to the Scriptures." Price 10c.

WHAT IS RUSSELLISM? The contents of this pamphlet is an address delivered to the Presbyterian Ministers' Association of Southern California. Its publication and circulation was requested by this body. It deals with the teaching of "Pastor Russell" concerning the Death and Deity, Resurrection and Return of Jesus Christ. These fundamentals are faithfully defended. Price 10c.

THE PREFACE PSALM. The author maintains that the Psalms are more than sublime poetry, but are certainly Divine Prophecy. The fixed law of redemption which is the "suffering of Christ and the glory which should follow" is observed in the Psalms. The two advents are in view rather than the events which are at hand. The greater Son of David is before the student in the study of the Psalms. The First Psalm is a Preface to the entire book of Psalms. This book will prove an "eye opener" to many. It is rich in its reference to the Person of Christ and to His people Israel. Price 15c.

THE BLOOD OF HIS CROSS. A series of Bible Reading Sermons on the Cross of Christ, including the following subjects: Was Christ's Death the Moral Solution of a Fatal Situation or the Divine Work of the Servant and Son of God? The First Picture of the Cross. God's Exclusive Demand for Admission. Price 15c.

TYPICAL TRUTH IN THE LITTLE BOOK OF RUTH. This pamphlet is a reprint from the Serial Bible Course Magazine, 1912. It includes a Structural Outline of the Book of Ruth which is helpful to the understanding of its typical Teachings. How sweet and how spiritual is the little book of Ruth! Price 10c.

STUDENTS NOTE BOOK OF EPHESIANS. This is a book of student's note book size, with 24 pages, and with the text of Ephesians published in large black-face type placed in the center of the page, giving an equal margin around the text of more than two inches. This wide margin is used for Notations, Quotations, References, Outlines, Translations, and any matter the student desires to preserve. The book is divided into its Contents and Divisions. Each chapter is prefaced with a Key Word. Ample room is left for notation. At the opening of the book there are blank pages for Introductory Notes, and at the close for Additional Notes. Covered with tough note book manila cover, printed on heavy bond. Price 15c.

Any of the above books or pamphlets sent postpaid to any address upon receipt of price.

The Book Stall 502 Byrne Bldg. Los Angeles, Cal.

Pastors !! Pastors !!

Why not have every family in the church receive The Christian Workers Magazine? The finance committee could recommend that each family add 2 cents a week to the regular pledges, or 10 cents a month, and send us all the names at one time. We will enter the subscriptions until July 31 at 50 cents a year, Chicago or Canada, 75 cents. The balance you receive could be placed in the fund for current or special expenses. Why not try it? Send us the names at once.

The Christian Workers Magazine
163 Institute Place CHICAGO, ILL.

We Do Not Impose on Any Subscriber

When we ask for help to get new subscriptions. It is purely voluntary on your part. Our subscribers always have proved to be our best friends and helpers.

The editors are making a good magazine; getting better all the time; our subscribers are making the circulation grow. Orders are coming in nicely at the half price rate, 50 cents a year, Chicago or Canada, 75 cents. Let everybody help increase the circulation until July 31.

If you want subscription blanks or circulars, write for a supply to pass out at church or young people's meeting.

The Christian Workers Magazine
163 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

Addresses on Prophecy

By C. I. Scofield, D. D.

A valuable book at all times but particularly so in view of the prophecy-fulfilling wars. 130 pp. post-paid 25 cents. Address, Bible House of Los Angeles, 620 Lissner Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

Evang. L. VOORHEES WOOD

H. W. Carlson, chorister. Pianist, Mrs. H. W. Carlson. Now open for dates, for fall of 1915 and spring of 1916. Prompt replies given. ADDRESS, Laurens, Otsego County, N. Y., or St. Joseph, Mich.

READY and RELIABLE

Chemical Illustrations of Bible

Truths For Pastors and Sunday School Teachers
INTERESTING, INSTRUCTIVE and IMPRESSIVE

Many workers use and endorse them. Prepared powders ready to use, with directions and helps.

6 Talks 50 cents, Postpaid.

C. A. SCHMITT 209 Poplar St., Roslindale, Mass.

Church Attendance Depends Upon Church Interest

Without this INTEREST, ATTENDANCE at Church is impossible. Our 12 page folder illustrates simple but positive means of arousing Public INTEREST and INCREASING attendance. Prominent expert Churchmen tell how they Do It. BULLETIN ANNOUNCEMENT CO.
383 Manhattan Bldg., CHICAGO

AGENTS WANTED
for THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

Continuing THE INSTITUTE TIE.
Published on the first of each month by
The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

JAMES M. GRAY, Editor.
J. H. RALSTON, Associate Editor.
S. A. WOODRUFF, Publishing Agent.

To Canada, $1.25. To other foreign countries, $1.36 (5s, 7d). Remittances should be sent by bank draft or postal or express money order, payable to The Christian Workers Magazine. Personal checks must be accompanied with 10 cents additional for exchange.

Change of Address—In sending notice of change of address, give both old and new addresses, and at least fifteen days before the first of the month.

The Wrapper—Indicates the time of expiration of your subscription. Please renew promptly.

Communications should be addressed to
THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE
153-163 Institute Place, Chicago.

Entered as Second-Class Matter, Oct. 7, 1910, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Where to Get What You Want

Advertising under this heading 10 cents
a line. Count seven words to a line

A WARNING TO WORLDLY CHRISTIANS. BY LAIC
(The Church Tramp). By mail Five Cents. Alliance News, Birmingham, Mich.

WANTED—SEVERAL HONEST INDUSTRIOUS PEOPLE to introduce religious literature. $60 a month sure. Nichols Co., Naperville, Ill.

SEVENTH DAY ADVENTISM A FALSE SYSTEM—Ten cents per copy, postpaid; special rates for quantities. Wm. Sickels, Beaumont, Calif.

"THE LORDS RETURN," BY SILVER. ONLY $1.00. A great history, long awaited. Highly endorsed. (Revels.) Order of Bible Institute Colportage Ass'n.

HALF-TONE ENGRAVINGS AND ELECTROTYPES. Jos. H. Barnett & Co., 508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago. Phone Har. 1389. Mail orders promptly filled.

WOOD AND BROOKS WILL CONDUCT (UNION OR single) evangelistic campaigns. For dates and information address, 1805 East Prairie Street, Decatur, Illinois.

UNION EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS—A BOOKLET on how to arrange for them, by W. F. Shearer, evangelist. Mailed free upon request. Address W. F. Shearer, Angola, Indiana.

BETTER THAN GOLD! HOW I CAN BE SAVED and Filled. Book 30c Postpaid. Preface by Dr. C. I. Scofield and Dr. James M. Gray. Evangelist Robert Layfield, Kansas City, Kan.

VOICE LESSONS—12 SYSTEMATIC STUDIES in tone production, "Open Throat Method"; mailed on receipt of $1. A Francke, 61 Auditorium Bldg., Dept. C, Chicago.

FOR SALE—MY "BLICKENSBERGER" PORTABLE typewriter; almost new. Cost $50.00, sell $15.00. Guarantee satisfaction. Leon B. Mayer, Student Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

BARGAINS IN BLACKBOARDS. COLLECTION Plates, Single and Duplex Envelopes, Individual Communion Trays. American Blackboard Co., Gay Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

RELIGIOUS POST CARDS—PRAYERS, BENEDICTIONS, wishes, verses; one cent each, 32 for 25 cents. Rev. Clement C. Cary, Atlanta, Ga.

LEARN TO FIGURE FAST. MY NEW BOOK. ADD, multiply, compute interest, etc., like lightning. Prove in mind. 60 shortest methods on earth. Worth $100 cost $1. Send dime for sample methods and booklet. Salesmen wanted. Prewett Institute, Houston, Texas.

SEND ME YOUR GOSPEL POEMS. IF THEY HAVE merit I will make proposition. C. M. Huggins, composer. Gospel singer and music publisher, Lakeside Bldg., Chicago.

PINT OF GOOD BLUE-BLACK INK POSTPAID—10c. Address Helmer E. Hagberg, Dept. 1, Gothenburg, Nebr.

BIND YOUR MAGAZINES AT HOME. EASY, SIMPLE plan for durably binding magazines, sermons, pamphlets. Materials furnished. Home Bindery, 170 W. Broad St., Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio.

CHORISTER AND PIANIST; WILL BE AT LIBERTY May 1st, as Chorister and Pianist, who uses Trombone in leading, with 8 years study. Ex-Moody Student, member of International Federation of Christian Workers, other reference; to join Evangelist or Party. Address, Mert T. Buckley, Wichita, Kansas.

TENOR SINGER, WITH EXPERIENCE IN SOLO, choir, pastoral, personal and evangelistic work, desires to join evangelistic party or assist pastors in revival meetings. Special attention to home mission work where harvest is great and laborers few. Rev. Irvin E. Jolly, Birney, Montana.

AN EVANGELISTIC PARTY DESIRING TO SAVE tabernacle building expenses, can secure a good assistant with his large portable tabernacle, O. K. for 10,000 population. Many years experience. References furnished. Rates reasonable. Address, Tab. Owner, care of the Christian Workers Magazine.

ENGAGEMENTS FOR EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS. union or denominational, in churches, hall, or in our portable tabernacle, rent free, saving building expenses. Address H. B. Seese, 641 Linden, Johnstown, Pa.

MEN AND WOMEN, BOYS AND GIRLS, WANTED as representatives for the Christian Workers Magazine in every church and town. Liberal commission allowed on all orders. Whether you wish to take subscriptions to make money, or only to help us along, send us your name at once. Agents Dept., Christian Workers Magazine, Chicago, Ill. See advertisement elsewhere of 2 cents a week plan.

"FLASHES FROM THE WIRE," BOOK OF RED hot revival sermons, that have won thousands to Christ. It takes brains to appreciate brains. If you are slow as a crippled snail, or a candidate for the position of driving a hearse, don't send. If you want something that is up to snuff, or a pinch or two over, send sixty cents to Dan Shannon, Stanwood, Mich., and you will get your money's worth.

STRONG EVANGELIST WANTING SINGERS. MAN and WIFE as SINGERS and PIANIST with PARTY NOW but want to make change. 9 YEARS EXPERIENCE. State in first letter when wanted also salary. Address "SINGERS" c/o C. W. Magazine.

SECOND HAND BOOKS

Select stock, fine condition; also new books of all publishers; special prices; catalog free.

Hays, Cushman Co., 201 Athenaeum Bldg., Chicago

Second Hand Theological Books

Bought and Sold

Largest stock in America. Over 50,000 volumes carefully classified by subject. Catalogues frequently issued, free upon request. Good books purchased for cash in large or small lots.

Schulte's Book Store 132 East 23rd St., NEW YORK, N. Y.

For $2.50 You Can Join the "500 Lange Club"

You get the benefit of the lowest price ever made on LANGE'S COMPREHENSIVE and EXHAUSTIVE COMMENTARY, covering the Whole Bible in 25 large volumes, over 15,000 pages, edited by Philip Schaff, D. D.

DO NOT DELAY YOUR ORDER. ONLY 500 sets available. Advance orders save you an extra $2.50 if you sign and return order blank before June 1st.

Was $75.00
Now $30.00
YOU SAVE $45.00

Greatest Theological Work of the Age

now offered at less than half the former price. In every point of manufacture—typography—paper and binding, the set is absolutely first-class and is equal to the $75.00 edition published in America by Chas. Scribner's Sons. We offer 500 sets to 500 ministers in the United States.

It is exegetical—doctrinal—orthodox—comprehensive and complete.

This is the most comprehensive and exhaustive Commentary on the whole Bible ever published in this or any other country.

The German work, on which this edition is based, is the product of about twenty distinguished Biblical scholars, of Germany, Holland and Switzerland, and enjoys a high reputation and popularity wherever German theology is studied.

The American edition is not a mere translation (Although embracing the whole of the German), but, to a large extent, an original work; about one-third of the matter being added, and the whole being adapted to the wants of the American student.

The press has been almost unanimous in its commendation of LANGE'S COMMENTARY. It is regarded as being, on the whole, the most useful Commentary, especially for ministers and theological students—in which they are more likely to find what they want than in any other. It is a complete treasury of Biblical knowledge, brought down to the latest date. It gives the result of careful scholarly research; yet in a form sufficiently popular for the use of intelligent laymen. The Homiletical department contains the best thoughts of the great divines and pulpit orators of all ages, on the texts explained, and supplies rich suggestions for sermons and Bible lectures.

TERMS TO ADVANCE SUBSCRIBERS---Good until June 1st ONLY

Send us $30.00 cash (cash price to be advanced to $32.50 June 1st) and the complete set of 25 volumes, boxed, will be sent by prepaid freight, or Send us $2.50 cash with your order and agree to pay $2.00 each month for 15 months, or $32.50 in all, (this price to be advanced to $35.00 after June 1st) and the full set will be sent by prepaid freight.

Sent on ten days' approval—to be returned if not entirely satisfactory. Order from

The Westminster Press

Chicago Depository, Dept C. W.

509 S. Wabash Avenue CHICAGO

W. P. BLESSING, Mgr.

ORDER BLANK

Date.....

The Westminster Press,
Chicago Depository, Dept. CW
509 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

Please send me on ten days' approval, your complete set of Lange's Commentary, 25 vols. boxed, free of delivery charges.

I enclose $2.50 (or if cash purchase $30.00) as first payment and I agree to remit $2.00 each month thereafter for fifteen months, or $32.50 in all. If not satisfied I will return the set within ten days and you are to refund amount paid.

Signed

Address

The Greatest Gospel Song
Book of the Century

Great Revival Hymns No. 2

The book that contributes so effectively to the success of the wonderful

"Billy" Sunday Campaigns

The Book that Has Stirred Millions to Enthusiasm

We will gladly send you a returnable copy for examination, but you will make no mistake if you order a complete supply at once. The air is electric with the spirit of evangelism and you should be alive to the opportunity that is before you. Get a real, live evangelistic song book—the one that has proved its power in the greatest evangelistic campaigns of modern times—wake up the dry bones about you and make your various services the power for good that they should be. "Brighten the corner where you are."

Special Cash With Order Prices.
Cloth, 35c per copy, postpaid; $25.00 per 100, express not prepaid.
Limp, 25c per copy, postpaid; $18.00 per 100, express not prepaid.
Manilla, 20c per copy, postpaid; $12.50 per 100, express not prepaid.
Any number at 100 rate.
Orchestrations, $1.50 per volume, or $10.00 for the complete set of eight volumes.

Children's Day Services 1915 issue. Three new ones—"Sunshine and Flowers"—easy, but bright and sparkling music and plenty of recitations and class exercises. Sample copies on request.

The Gospel Choir Subscribe now for this new, attractive monthly journal devoted to the interests of Choirs, Choir Leaders, and Evangelistic Singers. It furnishes fresh, inspiring, singable music for the "average" choir. Subscription Price only $1.00 per year. 10 or more copies, 65 cents per year.

Songs for Men A New Collection of Evangelistic Music for Men. Edited by Dr. D. B. Towner and Homer A. Rodeheaver, assisted by Charles H. Gabriel. This book contains a liberal collection of well chosen New Songs, covering a wide range of subjects; also the old favorites. 128 pages, neatly bound in full cloth. Price, single copy, 50 cents, postpaid; four copies, $1.75, postpaid; $4.80 per dozen, not postpaid.

The Live Wire A 32-page collection of live, stirring prohibition songs, including "De Brewer's Big Hosses," that will be found very helpful in Temperance meetings. 10 cents per copy by mail. Special rates in quantities.

Choice Evangelistic Solos and Duets

Was It For Me? (Solo).....	Gabriel	Beulah Land, My Home (Solo).....	Demos
Jesus (Solo).....	Ackley	Because He Loved Me So (Solo).....	Ackley
Forgive Me, Lord (Solo).....	Ackley	A Vision of Jesus (Duet, Ten. & Al.).....	Ackley
The Love of Christ (Duet, Sop. & Ten.).....	Gabriel	Out of the Depths (Solo).....	Gabriel
The Touch of Thy Hand (Solo).....	Gabriel	I'm Not Alone (Solo).....	Ackley
An Evening Prayer (Solo).....	Gabriel	O, To Be Like Him (Duet, Al. & Ten.).....	Gabriel
Nobody Like Jesus (Solo).....	Gabriel	On the Road to Jericho (Solo & Chorus).....	Gabriel
I'll Trust Him All the Way (Duet, Al. & Ten.).....	Gabriel	Some Mother Prays for You (Solo).....	Ackley
The Better Country (Solo).....	Gabriel	If I Forget (Solo).....	Ackley
My Little Boy (Solo).....	Gabriel	On the Edge of the Kingdom (Solo).....	Thomas
Sweeter as the Years Go By (Duet, Ten., Al.), Morris		When the World Forgets (Solo).....	Ackley
		Better Each Day (Duet, Al. & Ten.).....	Ackley

Price, 10 cents a copy, or 3 for 25 cents, postpaid.

Favorite Songs for Shop Meetings A splendid selection of 32 pages of the favorites from Great Revival Hymns No. 2. Evangelists and preachers who speak in shops and factories have need for a small book that they can carry to a meeting of this kind. Price, 5 cents a copy, postpaid; $3.00 per hundred, not prepaid.

CHICAGO
1051 Monon
Building

T H R O D E H E A V E R O
G O S P E L M V S I C

PHILADELPHIA
333 Lippincott
Building

LEVEL
ONE

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

JAMES M. GRAY
EDITOR
J.H. RALSTON
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

A Strong Patriotic and Missionary Number in July—Including the Following Topics

Agriculture and Foreign Missions.

The Imperative of a Missionary Evangelism.

Interesting Stories from Nicaragua.

How Three Great Field Marshals Look at Missions.

Why send Missionaries to the Mormons?

Why We Should Pray for Missionaries.

Negro Education and Missionary Effort.

*Practical and Perplexing Questions
Next Month Will Cover Six Pages*

10 Cents a Copy

JUNE, 1915

$1.00 a Year

D. L. Moody said

"Bilhorn is the only man that writes, plays and sings his own music and makes and plays his own organs."

No one knew better than Mr. Moody the need for spiritual songs. Mr. Bilhorn's great success came through the introduction of songs that reach deep into the hearts of the people such as "Sweet Peace" and "I Will Sing the Wondrous Story," and "Keep Sweet."

Voices of Victory

is Mr. Bilhorn's latest selection of the choicest hymns. The use of this song-book for church services, Sunday Schools, Revival Meetings, etc., quickens the hearts and puts new life into the church work.

Children love to sing them and they gladden the hearts of the older folks. Songs arranged for all kinds of meetings. Songs of "War or Peace," "Happiness," "Soul-Winning," "Joy," "Love," "Songs for the Children," "Songs of Heaven," "333," every one a gem.

Price, Full Cloth, 30c.

Flexible Cloth, 20c.

Manila, 15c.

FULL score-form ORCHESTRATION $1.50 per copy; 3 copies or more, $1 per copy

Send 10c and mention this magazine and we will mail you a nice copy of "VOICES OF VICTORY"

Bilhorn's Famous Portable Telescope Organs

3 & 5-Ply Oak or Leatherette Cases. Fully Guaranteed
Used by Leading Church Workers Everywhere

Our Special $10.00 Offer

As a special offer we will ship to you by Express our Style "X" FULL 4 OCTAVE Folding Organ in Ebony Finish, which is listed at $35.00, for only $10.00. To buy mention this magazine, and send money with order, if personal check add 10c, or send for catalog giving full description.

Bilhorn Organs are all we claim, and speak for themselves; we need no further recommendation. But as our competitors are trying hard to disprove our special offer and persuade our buyers to disbelieve our statement, just ask the Publishers of this Magazine about us and our Organs.

Just Published

Bilhorn's Gentlemen's and Ladies' Voices No. 2, two choice selections of new music. Solos and parts, duets, trios and quartettes, parts for humming or whistling. Each, 35c per copy; per doz., $3.60. Flexible cloth, sewed, fits pocket. Special Prices to Evangelists.

BILHORN BROS., 136 West Lake Street, Chicago, Ill., U. S. A.

THE CAMPAIGN IS ON!

At a recent meeting the Trustees decided that $115,000 in cash or pledges added to what has been paid or promised will justify us in beginning the erection of the Administration Building

They are averse to running into debt and would rather not have the building than to have it mortgaged. So the amount must be secured. The building is now

Proposed, Approved and Two-Thirds Guaranteed

Necessity demands immediate action in the matter of securing the remaining $115,000 of the $375,000 originally needed.

15,000 (including yourself) Will Read This Call

If each would give even a small amount, the entire sum could easily be realized. Don't let the cause lose the impetus which your gift would lend it. If you can't give as much as you would like, send five dollars or two dollars, or any amount you can spare!

As proposed and approved

This much guaranteed

Will You Help Finish It?

Address

THE MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE

153-163 Institute Place, CHICAGO, ILL.

Estimates on the cost of furnishing certain classrooms, etc., as memorials, will be furnished upon request.

ALERT CHRISTIANS

will use these books for personal growth and guidance in service

THE MEANING OF PRAYER

Art Leather .50

HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK

It is generally admitted that there is a great deal of misunderstanding about prayer, and that comparatively few people realize its power and use it for their own needs, as a source of personal realization of God and of conscious fellowship with Him, and as an effective means of helping others and advancing the Kingdom of God in the world. The author in his fresh, vigorous style throws much light on God's attitude toward us and our needs, and on the obstacles in character, attitude and purpose that make prayer powerless. Each daily reading is accompanied by a prayer of a notable Christian, and by comment that brings out the truth clearly and impressively, with fine illustrative material.

CHRISTIAN EQUIVALENT OF WAR

Cloth .50

D. WILLARD LYON

A timely and constructive work, of which a prominent Christian layman says: "A very interesting and thought-provoking book; I shall pass it on to others." The author makes a keen study of the elemental factors in the use of force, in an effort to respond to the insistent demand for more conclusive thinking regarding the application of definite Christian principles to international and inter-racial relationships.

CHRISTIANITY AND AMUSEMENTS

Art Leather .50

RICHARD HENRY EDWARDS

"In this long-awaited first book of its kind primary emphasis is placed on a formative ideal, a constructive method and a positive program. All dogmatism is thrown aside, and an inductive method is used throughout. No such systematic and adequate treatment of Christian principles in relation to modern amusements has been attempted hitherto."—GRAHAM TAYLOR.

INTRODUCING MEN TO CHRIST

Cloth .50

W. D. WEATHERFORD, Ph. D., Nashville, Tenn.

"The essentials of Christianity and the fundamentals of our faith are clearly dwelt upon, but perhaps the highest recommendation of the book is that it is written in non-technical phraseology, and in a way that is concise, fresh and understandable by present-day men."—Record of Christian Work.

"This splendid book reveals how thoughtful men may be led to Christ through wise personal effort."—Wisconsin State Work.

TEACHING OF BIBLE CLASSES

Cloth .60

EDWIN F. SEE

An enlightening statement of the principles of teaching as they apply to instruction in the Bible. The teacher, the student and the lesson are thoroughly discussed. Valuable sections on questioning and illustrating, and on the teacher's preparation and relation to the student.

"See's Teaching of Bible Classes is unsurpassed in its special field."—CLARENCE A. BARBOUR, D. D., Rochester.

ASSOCIATION PRESS NEW YORK: 124 East 28th Street
LONDON: 47 Paternoster Row, E. C.

THE Christian Workers Magazine

Continuing THE INSTITUTE TIE

New Series, Vol. XV

JUNE, 1915

No. 10

Editorial Notes: Cut From the Loaf; Child Conversion; Justice for the Great; Sunday Closing; A Prophet Corroborated; Spiritual Conditions in Great Britain; The Coming and Kingdom of Christ.....	603
How May We Know Jesus Better?.....George F. Truett.....	605
Holy Living: What It Is and How to Maintain It.....J. Stuart Holden.....	610
Christ's Portrait (Poem).....Nahum Wesley Grover.....	613
Three Coming Persons.....C. I. Scofield.....	614
My Experience in Christian Science.....A Student.....	616
Working for Souls Among the English "Tommys".....Mrs. Ralph Norton.....	621
The Deadly Gun (Poem).....	622
Jewish Christians Getting Together.....S. B. Rohold.....	623
How a Live City Solves the Problem of the Bible in the Public Schools.....James M. Johnson.....	625
Religious Errors and Their Starting Points.....Martin Anstey.....	625
Practical and Perplexing Questions Answered.....Editors.....	626
The Laymen's Commentary on the Old and New Testa- ments.....James M. Gray.....	629
International Sunday-school Lessons.....E. O. Sellers.....	632
For Sermon and Scrap Book.....William Norton.....	636
Book Notices.....	638
The Gospel in the World.....E. A. Marshall.....	639
Notes and Suggestions.....J. H. Ralston.....	641
The Evangelistic Field.....S. A. Woodruff.....	642
Forthcoming Conferences or Important Dates.....	644
The Moody Bible Institute.....W. J. Kramer.....	645
The Bible Institute Colportage Association.....	649

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE: $1.00 a year to any address in the United States or its possessions, or in Mexico. To Canada, $1.25. To other foreign countries, $1.36 (5s 7d). 10 cents a copy. Remittances should be sent by bank draft, or postal or express money order.

Advertising Rates Sent on Application.

Do not make checks or money orders payable to individuals, but to

The Christian Workers Magazine

153-163 INSTITUTE PLACE, CHICAGO

Copyright, 1915, by The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

STOP and THINK

how many times YOU have been influenced directly and beneficially, by a tract, pamphlet or book, which has come into your hands. In a similar way the printed page affects every one generally. It is one of the most powerful agencies for good [or evil] in the world today. DO YOU USE IT? Under the blessing of God a prayer-sent leaflet or volume will lead a soul -- yea, many souls -- to Christ, will give new and proper direction to a nominal Christian life, will, through God, be the humble instrumentality of winning a willing heart into a Spirit-filled experience. Can you longer permit to slip by the timely opportunities which come to you every day to use this mighty force for blessing? Send for book list and tract catalogue today, and become acquainted with our time-tested plans for the practical use of "the Gospel in print."

No charge for this service

The Bible Institute Colportage Association
826 North La Salle Street CHICAGO, ILL.

The Allegheny House Mountain Lake Park, Md.

Is one of the oldest and most desirable in the Park, situated on half acre of ground, two blocks from Auditorium, large airy rooms, all modern conveniences, Virginia home cooking, moderate prices.

E. S. Martin, - Proprietor

Addresses on Prophecy

By C. I. Scofield, D. D.

A valuable book at all times but particularly so in view of the prophecy-fulfilling wars. 130 pp. post-paid 25 cents. Address, Bible House of Los Angeles, 620 Lissner Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

FREE FOR POSTAGE

Sample Copy of HALDEMAN'S S. S. LESSON QUARTERLY. Different from all others. Original and inspiring. Send 5c for mailage of a sample copy. CHARLES C. COOK, 150 Nassau St., NEW YORK

The Pocket Testament League

The Pocket Testament League is a world-wide movement to link together people everywhere to do three things:

1. Carry a Testament or Bible everywhere.
2. Read at least a portion each day.
3. Use God's Word to win the unsaved.

The League is for men, women and children of every race, class and condition. Is for members of the Sunday school from Primary Department to Men's and Women's Bible Classes and Home Department. The movement is for Christians, that they may grow strong in the Lord, and become soul-winners; it is for the Unsaved, that through reading and carrying God's Word they may find eternal life.

Leather League Testaments

King James Version. Size, 2 1/4 x 3 3/4 inches, 1/2-inch thick. Flexible leather binding with one colored frontispiece.

Price, No. 2A, suede leather (colors, purple, brown, red and green), or No. 3B, full black morocco, 50 cents each or $5.00 a dozen, postpaid.

American Standard Version. Size, 2 1/4 x 4 1/4 inches. 1/2-inch thick. Is furnished only in one style and one color (brown) flexible leather. With black and white frontispiece illustration. Price, 50 cents each, postpaid.

Cloth League Testaments

King James or American Revised Versions

The King James Version. Size, 3 1/4 x 4 1/4 inches, 1/2-inch thick. Bound in cloth with a colored illustration on the cover.

American Standard Version. Size, 3 x 4 1/4 inches, 1/2-inch thick.

Price, 25 cents each; $2.50 a dozen, or $20.00 a 100 prepaid.

Membership Cards

Containing the League pledge and giving suggestions for members. Sent Free on Application. Membership Cards are printed on the inside covers of the Testaments and Gospels.

The Pocket Testament League

Headquarters

133 Witherspoon Bldg. Philadelphia

Mountain Lake (Md.) Bible Conference

Rev. James M. Gray, D. D., assisted by members of the Faculty of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, and others, will conduct the Bible Conference at

Mountain Lake Park, Maryland,
August 1st to 8th inclusive

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK is located at an altitude of 2800 feet in the Alleghany Mountains, on the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad from New York to Cincinnati and St. Louis, and is the centre of the summer resort region including Deer Park, Aurora, Brookside, Terra Alta and Oakland. It embraces 800 acres of forest and glade, rich in wild flowers, and with superb views opening in all directions. Its invigorating atmosphere, pure, crystal water and magnificent roads make it an ideal resting place. The country round about is replete with nature's wonders, while the Park itself possesses the conveniences of city life, natural gas, electric light, city water, sewer system, stores, physicians, livery, etc. There are also golf links, tennis courts, row boats, bathing houses, saddle horses and other facilities for outdoor pleasures, not excepting the most charming footpaths through the woods.

There are about 225 private houses, hotels and boarding houses in the Park. The streets are 50 feet wide and there is no crowding anywhere. The sanctity of the Lord's day is observed. There are no saloons, and it is a perfectly safe place for Christian families to come.

For details concerning board or renting of cottages address
The Mountain Lake Park Association
Mountain Lake Park, Maryland

For railroad accommodations, excursion rates, etc., address
General Passenger Agent, B. & O. R. R.
Baltimore, Maryland

For complete program of the Conference address
Moody Bible Institute
153 Institute Place, Chicago

¶ If you live in Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, Southwest Pennsylvania, Southeast Ohio or other nearby points, plan to attend Conference for a physical and spiritual refreshing.

Vacation Employment for Boys

Wide-awake boys, living anywhere in the United States are wanted by The Bible Institute Colportage Association, 826 North La Salle Street, Chicago, to act as agents and local representatives for their publications.

Sales are quickly made, the profits are excellent, and, best of all, the literature handled is of the very best, consisting of fascinating Gospel stories, helpful addresses, practical sermons, inspiring biography, entertaining short sketches, interesting anecdotes, etc.

There are over 100 titles and six languages represented in the Moody Colportage Library series. The authors are some forty in number, including many of the most prominent speakers and story writers of the world. The books are all uniform in size, style and price—15c. each, 8 for $1.00, which is so low that nearly every one can buy. (Agent's price made known upon application.)

Why boys are wanted to sell the Colportage Books.

Because they are usually hustlers.

Because they know the community in which they live.

Because they are themselves well known and need no introduction.

Because they need the help, and this work puts them in honest, clean and enjoyable employment at once.

Because the plan of work suits those having little capital with which to begin. Even twenty-five cents gives one a fair start.

Where and how boys can readily sell the Colportage Publications.

At home, next door and at all the neighbors.

Throughout the village, town or city, making a systematic home-to-home canvass.

At the mid-week church services, sociables, etc.

On the street at stands temporarily established by themselves.

On the electric and steam railroads.

At the railway stations.

At the piers and wharves.

In stores and offices.

Get people to promise to take one, two or more books each week or month. Remember, there is a long list of titles to draw upon without duplication.

Canvass the territory again and again until you have sold and shown them every book on the list. Many purchase eight books for $1.00 at once.

Boys in various parts of the country are selling these books. It is not an experiment.

The Book That Lives

Synthetic Bible Studies

BY

Dr. James M. Gray

North, South, East and West Bible Classes are continually being formed by using it as a basis

It covers the whole Bible from Genesis to Revelation and is commended by Pastors, Professors, Theological Students, Sunday-school Teachers and Christian Workers generally

8vo, cloth, net $1.50

The Bible Institute Colportage Ass'n
826 N. La Salle Street CHICAGO, ILL.

Eleventh Hour Laborers

Union Bible Seminary is conducting a Highway and Hedge Campaign with a view to reaching the common people with the glorious news of the Second Coming of Christ, and need to add us the following volunteer helpers:

1. A few picked men full of the Holy Ghost, orthodox in belief, pre-millennial, with experience in public speaking to act as state agents and lecturers on Bible Prophecy.

2. A large number of sub-agents to take up county work under the state agents, and give addresses when qualified.

3. A host of class organizers to work in every community to interest people in systematic Bible study on prophetic lines.

The laborer is worthy of his hire, and our system is calculated to produce support for such as devote time to the work.

Our Method is to induce individuals and classes to study our

PROPHECY STUDY COURSE BY MAIL

A Lesson Sheet Each Week for 20 Weeks for $1.00 to read the beginner's book

"A Primer of Prophecy"—15 cents to subscribe for our monthly organ

"The Friends Minister"—25 cents per year (After July 1, 50c)

Inform yourself and qualify to speak intelligently on the timely subject of the Coming of the Lord, by enrolling as a student.

If prepared for any of the above positions write

Union Bible Seminary

Westfield, Indiana

STUTTERING and STAMMERING

permanently corrected. NATURAL SPEECH TAUGHT. FREE TRIAL WEEK. Six weeks' course. Highly endorsed by clergy, public and school authorities. For catalog, and free information, address The Reed School, 365 Hubbard Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

Christian Endeavor Academy

A preparatory home school, co-educational, positively Christian, accredited, in a country village without the saloon; expenses for tuition, board and room for school year, $140 to $160.

W. M. ELLIS, Principal

Endeavor, Wis.

THE LAST WORD In Bible Marking By J. Gilchrist Lawson The Precious Promise Testament

Completely indexed and with all the Precious Promises marked in red. Pastors, Teachers, Bible Students, will find this Testament indispensable. Large, clear type. Flexible French Morocco binding, price $1.00, postpaid.

THE NATIONAL BOOK AND BIBLE CO.

1510 North American Building, Chicago, Illinois

STAMMER NO MORE

If you stammer, I can cure you. Attend no stammering school until you hear from me. WRITE at ONCE for MY FREE BOOK.

Albert R. Bellerose Principal of the Connecticut SCHOOL for STAMMERERS 69 Park St., Dept. 1, Meriden, Conn.

BAPTIST MISSIONARY TRAINING SCHOOL

2969 Vernon Avenue - CHICAGO, ILL.

A Residential School for Young Women Desiring Preparation for Christian Missionary Work on the Home and Foreign Field.

The curriculum includes an undergraduate course of three years for High School graduates, a graduate course of two years for those holding degrees from a normal school, or college, or university, a special course for those who desire to take certain courses only, with no view to graduation.

The subjects covered lie in the department of Bible, religious education, church history and Christian doctrine, missions, sociology, home economics and industrial arts, languages, business administration, physical education and music. The courses prepare young women for pastor's assistants and church workers, Sunday-school leadership, Christian social service, and for various positions on the home and foreign field, such as general missionaries, teachers, school administrators, etc.

Special attention is given to study of the evangelistic message and methods, including evangelistic singing. Practice work in churches, missions, institutions is afforded and required.

Send for a Catalog to

DR. WARREN P. BEHAN, President.

AN EVANGELISTIC Baptist Seminary

John Marvin Dean, President of the Northern Baptist Theological Seminary of Chicago, is a member of the Commission on Evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ of North America. He was formerly an evangelist and has preached around the world the unsearchable riches of Christ.

Four great evangelists are on the advisory board—W. E. Biederwolf, J. Q. A. Henry, T. T. Martin and W. B. Riley.

The Seminary offers a special course on Evangelism—Vocational, Parishonal and Personal.

The Seminary is the first to offer a scholastic degree to accredited evangelists. The degree of Graduate of Evangelism (Ev. G.) is offered for one year's resident work at the Seminary and three years of study while in the evangelistic field.

The faculty is composed of soul-winning men. The students are required to maintain the evangelistic spirit. Thirty-one courses of study are offered, ten of these in English Bible.

Friends of evangelism are asked to investigate and support by prayers and gifts the

Northern Baptist Theological Seminary
Corner Jackson Blvd. and Lincoln St.
CHICAGO

SEND FOR CATALOGUE

See some of our students in photo, page 646

→ Vacation Bible Study ← By Correspondence

June, July and August are favorable for Bible study on the part of those who have been in theological seminaries, colleges, academies and high schools during the months gone by.

The Bible can be studied anywhere. A student finished the Synthetic Bible Study Course, "in the Bering Sea region of Alaska, and while traveling up and down the Yukon River from Nome to Dawson."

Write for full particulars about the following courses:

Introductory Bible Study, Synthetic Bible Study, Bible Doctrine, Bible Chapter Summary, Practical Christian Work, Christian Evidences, Evangelism and the

Scofield Bible Correspondence Course

More than 600 students enrolled in these courses since Jan. 1, 1915. Address

The Moody Bible Institute

153-163 Institute Place

Dept. 3

Chicago, Ill., U. S. A.

Why Not Buy Second-Hand Books? Over 50,000 Theological Books in this Department

New Catalog ready. Sent free on request.

We can supply most all your needs in good second-hand condition at a Saving of 50 to 75 per cent.

The Westminster Press

509 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Write Us Today

Chicago Depository

W. P. Blessing, Mgr.

Make Your Spare Time Pay

Christian men and women can increase their income by representing us in the sale of Wall Mottoes and Texts among their friends and neighbors. Experience unnecessary. Liberal commissions paid. We carry the largest and most complete stock in the United States. Write for particulars.

Reliance Motto Co., 122 West 14th Street, New York City

Middy Blouses

Tailor-Made
To-Order

Regulation U. S. Style with red watch mark on left shoulder. Made of spotless white, finest quality bleached drill, diagonal weave, soft texture. They launder beautifully. I make these myself, having had TEN years' experience as a tailor in the U. S. Navy. Orders filled promptly. Give your bust, hip and height measurements.

SPECIAL OFFER $1.⁰⁰

Postpaid Anywhere

J. A. KNABB "The Navy Tailor"

321-323 Washington Ave.

Citizen's Bank Building

Bremerton - - - Washington

"The Puget Sound Navy Yard."

Get the Best Selling
Hymn Book

THE "NEW MAKE CHRIST KING"

EDITED BY
Prof. E. O. Excell, Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, Dr. H. W. Stough, Dr. M. H. Lyon and 50 other leading evangelists.

The Latest, Best and Most Popular Hymn Book.

Every Hymn in this Book is a Gem. All the Best Old Favorite Hymns. The Best
New Copyright Hymns.

The old "Make Christ King" was the most popular song book on the market, and the new one is better. Send 15c for sample copy.

BIEDERWOLF

EXCELL

STOUGH

LYON

The Glad Tidings Pub. Co., Lakeside Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Typewriters Slightly Used and Rebuilt All Makes—Cash or Payments

Guaranteed perfect machines at a saving of 50% to 75%
on manufacturers' prices.
Write today for our new bargain list.

Ben Samuelson & Co.
217 S. Dearborn St
Chicago, Ill.

Mention this magazine when writing and remember "number nineteen"

Read What Dr. Gray Says:

"Dear Mr. Blessing:

"I notice that you are offering Lange's Commentary for $30.00. I write unasked to say that you are doing a fine thing. You have not said a word too much about its merits, and what is still more to the point, it is pretty orthodox and evangelical for these times. It is a real benediction to young pastors and Christian workers to get such a commentary at that price, and on such easy terms; and instead of 500 sets to sell, I wish you had 5,000, and that they might all be sold, and drive out some of the other kind of commentaries that are doing a good deal of harm.

Wishing you great success, I am,

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) JAMES M. GRAY."

Mr. W. F. Blessing,
509 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Special Advance Order Price—Good until June 15th only—25 volumes boxed, $30.00 prepaid cash, or send $2.50 cash and agree to pay $2.00 per month for 15 months ($32.50 in all). Set sent on 10 days approval if desired.

The Westminster Press Dept. C.W. 509 S. Wabash Ave, Chicago
Chicago Depository W. P. Blessing, Mgr.

Suppose America Went to War?

Would you a Christian, join in the wholesale murder and butchery? In other words

SHOULD A CHRISTIAN FIGHT?

This burning question is treated in a simple, clear, convincing and Scriptural manner in BLOOD AGAINST BLOOD by A. S. Booth-Clibborn, son-in-law of the late General Booth, of the Salvation Army. Many who have read it have only one dictum, "It is unanswerable."

PRICE

The Life of Faith says: "Mr. Clibborn's book is an appeal to Christians, and if it is read by such it can hardly fail to inspire something of the passion and enthusiasm with which it has been written. His experience of the military systems on the Continent gives him a right to speak that few advocates of peace possess."

50c

Bible Institute Colportage Association, R 27, 826 N. LaSalle Street CHICAGO

Three Powerful Books

BY DR. W. E. BIEDERWOLF.

"Spiritualism," "Russellism Unveiled," "The Unvarnished Truth about Christian Science."

Latest, plainest, and most convincing books on these subjects.

15 cents each, postpaid; 3 for 40 cents
Glad Tidings Publishing Co., Lakeside Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

This Is the Attachment

The "True-Tone Re-Animator" added to your Victor Victrola, Grafanola or any make of Phonograph will positively PERFECT your social and educational HOME PLEASURES. Price, and it's remarkably good value

$7.00

This diaphragm is inserted in the reproducer and the material is such, as well as its construction, that it vibrates in absolute unison with every tone transmitted by the reproducer. The result is a complete reproduction of the original tone. (Agents wanted, either sex.) Order the attachment for your machine today.

J. H. Ellis 410 Jefferson Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

YOU CAN AFFORD

per hundred; samples, 5c each.

Familiar Songs of the Gospel (No. 1 or 2).

Round or shape notes. $3
83 songs, words and music.

E. A. K. HACKETT, FORT WAYNE, INDIANA

Dr. James M. Gray

Dean of Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

SAYS: "The milestones

on my spiritual pathway have been marked by certain books I have read, and one that stands out in my memory more than any other is Gausson's great work, 'The Plenary Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures.'

The day it came into my hands as a young minister just beginning his work marks an epoch, and I speak from experience when I say that a Christian who reads and studies it need never again be troubled by attacks on the Word of God. For years it has been out of print in this country, and hardly to be obtained, even in an old bookstore. Now that The Bible Institute Colportage Association has purchased the plates and brought out a new edition, my heart rejoices that earnest Christian workers of this generation may have the same opportunity to be established in the faith that God thus sent to me at that time."

Theopneustia The Plenary Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures

By L. Gausson, D. D.

Fully Indexed—12mo. Fine Cloth 363 pages 55 cents Net

The Bible Institute Colportage Association
826 North La Salle St. CHICAGO, ILL

FOR EVERY DEPARTMENT OF CHURCH WORK

This is the verdict of all who have used

The Ideal Song and Hymn Book

By PROF. D. B. TOWNER

A Leading Evangelist in the Eastern States uses this book in all his engagements, and says it has no equal for worth and durability.

A Choir Leader in one of the largest cities in Indiana writes:—"The books are being splendidly received. I have never seen its equal for good, singable and attractive gospel songs."

A Congregational Pastor in Wisconsin writes:—"It has been my privilege to test the merits of The Ideal Song and Hymn Book, and it seems to us ideal in more senses than one. This book has taken the place of four books, and with satisfaction to all. It seems admirably adapted for use in Church, Sunday School, Young People's Society, and Prayer-Meeting, even as it is intended. It satisfies for the morning church services, where the hymnal has always been used and demanded. It satisfies those who want livelier music for other services, but gives the best grade of music we have discovered in any book. Every selection is singable, giving the greatest variety in the smallest compass."

Regular Edition Full cloth, 35 cents, postpaid; $30.00 per 100, carriage extra.

Abridged Edition Bound in strong manila with cloth back, 15 cents per copy postpaid. $12.50 per 100; transportation extra.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY, Publishers

NEW YORK, 158 Fifth Avenue

CHICAGO, 125 N. Wabash Avenue

"MAKE CHRIST KING" THE KING OF SONG BOOKS

Over two million sold. Thousands monthly. The Song Book that is used by most of the leading Evangelists of the country. For Churches, Sunday Schools and all Religious services. Edited by E. O. Excell, W. E. Biederwolf and fifty other successful Evangelists. Prices: Manila Binding, 15c. postpaid. Flexible Cloth, 20c. postpaid. Cloth Board, 30c. postpaid.

THE NATIONAL BOOK AND BIBLE CO.
1510 North American Building, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Have You A Pocket Bible or New Testament?

Then WHY NOT
send postal card for our price list? We also have pocket helps for ministers, Bible school teachers and other Christian workers. The best in these lines from the leading publishers at their prices. All pocket editions.
POCKET EVANGEL SUPPLY COMPANY,
501 E. Pennsylvania Ave., South Bend, Ind.

Are Jews Worth Converting?

Blind, bigoted leaders of blind, ignorant Israel, enraged at the phenomenal success of Christianity among the Jews, have found a new method for venting their bitter attacks upon Jewish Missions. "No converted Jew has ever amounted to anything," they blatantly assert, "and what conversions you do get, are only from the scum of Judaism; they aren't worth getting!"

Of course they know that this is a wicked and wilful falsehood, but in their desperate plight they resort to desperate measures, hoping they may deceive Christian people, and induce them not to support Jewish missions.

The Actual Truth

The real truth is, that, not only are Jewish missions more productive in quantity (7 to 2) than any other missions, but they hold the same advantage when it comes to quality. Some of the world's most brilliant leaders have been Jewish Christians. Omitting the early days when only Jews were Christians, like Paul, or Peter, or James or John, etc., a glance at later dates reveals to us such names as Benjamin Disraeli, premier of England—a Jewish Christian; Sir William Herschel, the great astronomer—a Jewish Christian; Jacobi, the mathematician—a Jewish Christian; Mendelssohn, the musician; Ricardo, the economist; Ganz, the jurist; Edersheim, the theologian; Neander, the church historian—all, all Jewish Christians. Three of England's greatest Bishops of the 19th century were Jews—Bishops Alexander, Hellmuth and Schereschewsky. Our space forbids continuing.

Now, are they worth converting? And don't you want your share in that bright galaxy of Israel's stars that shall shine in that day when our Lord shall make up His Jewels? What will you do? What can you do? Let us hear from you. We want first your prayers; then, your gifts. Your money will be acknowledged promptly, and we will send you our literature regularly, whether you send us a dollar or a thousand. Our paper, "The Chosen People," is worth your reading, and your gift will entitle you to receive it for a year.

But, write now—right now.

WILLIAMSBURG MISSION TO THE JEWS
Station A BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Mention this magazine when writing and remember "number nineteen"

THE Christian Workers Magazine

JUNE, 1915

Editorial Notes

"Forbearing one another in love, endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace."—Ephesians 4:2, 3.

Some years ago, it was proposed to purchase an organ for the Friends' meeting-house in a certain town in Ohio. An aged Quaker strongly opposed the innovation, for at that time the use of musical instruments was not so common among the Friends as it is today; but, in spite of his opposition, the organ was installed. The old man did not stay away from meeting, but the instrument was evidently a great cross to him. Finally, the minister went to him, and the following conversation took place:

Cut from the Loaf "Friend," said the minister, "thee seems grieved at the organ in the meeting."

"I cannot tell thee how grieved I am," was the reply.

"Well," said the minister, "if thee feels that way about it, I will take the organ out of the meeting-house with my own hands."

"No, no," demurred the old man, "if thee feels that way about it, let it stay."

And stay it did!

In the pastoral experience of the Editor it was the normal thing to see children brought to the Lord and publicly confess His name and unite with the church. He never Child Conversion preached sermonettes to children preceding the preaching to adults, but tried to preach to the latter, so that children might be interested and helped, relying upon the Holy Spirit to work in their hearts as in those of their elders. He has now lived long enough to see many of those children grow up into manhood and womanhood, and continue to "adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things." He is reminded of this by a letter that has just come to him from one who, as a lad, united with the church of which he was the pastor twenty-nine years ago, and from whom he has no recollection of having heard in all the intervening years. His correspondent reminds him of the time he accepted

Christ, and bears his testimony to the faith today in words of the greatest comfort and encouragement. He says, "I was reading a leaflet the other day, entitled 'How to Eat the Word,' and I know from experience that it is the man who 'eats' it that gets the benefit out of it."

We write these words in the approach to Children's Day, and hope they may stimulate some pastor to seek the salvation of the children under his care, and instruct him in the way to go about it. The Holy Scriptures are able to make us wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus. This applies to the lambs of the flock as well as the sheep. May God help pastors to be faithful to all the members of their flocks, which means that they must be faithful to His Word!

The miscarriage of justice in this country is such a frequent source of satire that when the opposite takes place it is worthy of special mention, even in a religious periodical.

Justice for the Great Last month the "Associated Press" reported that 27 men were convicted in Indiana by a jury in a Federal court for participation in a conspiracy to defraud the government in an election. In all, indeed, 116 men were sentenced, 89 of whom pleaded guilty. Of the 27, however, one was the mayor of the city, who was sentenced to six years imprisonment and a fine of $2,000, while corresponding sentences were pronounced upon the sheriff, the president of the board of works, the assistant city engineer, the assistant city comptroller, a street commissioner, a circuit judge and a city judge, besides other officials of less importance. Events like this, though they do not transpire often, help us to breathe freer when they come. If all our courts and juries could be depended upon to do their duty impartially in such cases, our politics would be quickly purified, and our cities and towns made more fit to live in. It is an impressive fact that this conviction took place in a federal court, which again raises the question so often asked by the laity, as to why justice seems more secure in such courts than in those under our state governments? The friends of popular sovereignty, who are in the habit of inveighing against centralization in our government, should take serious notice of this fact. Home rule is good when it is a righteous rule, but in the long run most men will be found willing to yield the privilege of ruling themselves if they can better obtain righteousness by the rule of some one else. It is this feeling which at last will make for the development of the Antichrist, though the world will be awfully deceived and disappointed in him when he comes. It is the Lord Jesus Christ, and He only, who shall govern the people in righteousness, and He is our hope.

Chicago last month discovered that her liquor saloons could be closed on the Lord's Day. It came about by an accident. It seems that a Sunday Closing large distillery company fell into the hands of a receiver, and so came under the jurisdiction of the United States courts, and Uncle Sam found himself running 89 saloons in different parts of the city. On Monday it was reported to Judge Landis that several of these saloons had been doing business on the previous day, and he was asked if he desired to be known as a law-breaker? They were ordered closed on the following Lord's Day, and some of them obeyed the order. However, there were others who felt that the order might be winked at and opened their doors as usual, only to find Uncle Sam's officers after them. A few who were still recalcitrant were hauled before the judge for contempt of court, thus discovering that the United States is not to be trifled with. The result is that the Law and Order League, which has waged an unsuccessful battle for Sunday closing hitherto, has taken new hope and gotten a new "tip." The tip is for a non-resident owner of Chicago property adjoining a saloon to petition through the federal court for its closing on Sunday, on the ground that to keep it open injures and depreciates his property. We will all be interested to see how the fight comes out, and in the meantime this tip is passed on to other cities which may be afflicted by the same plague.

Ezekiel, chapters 38 and 39, is interpreted by many as applying to a great conflict at some period in the Day of the Lord, when Russia and her allies will be in the

A Prophet Corroborated forefront against Israel, restored to her own land. Not to insist just now upon the application in detail, we wish to speak of the terrible slaughter of human lives it foreshadows. "Seven months shall the house of Israel be burying them, that they may cleanse the land." "And they that pass through the land * * * when any seeth a man's bone, then shall he set up a sign by it till the buriers have buried it in the valley of Hamon-gog."

Men have smiled at this and other descriptions in the prophecy, calling the language figurative and extravagant to incredibility. But we should like to place side by side with it current reports of the battle fields of France, Belgium, Poland and Servia, that have been fought over again and again, and where but a thin layer of earth covers the hastily buried bodies of those that have fallen. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, of New York, tells of a report of a gentleman just home from the other side, the details of which are too offensive to be published. In many cases but a few inches of soil separated his footsteps from masses of decaying corpses, with such results, as he passed over the ground, as can be easily imagined. Dr. Parkhurst thinks this is part of the schooling with which God is disciplining a world that is wicked enough to plunge itself into diabolic excesses that record the most crimson chapter in history, but he takes no cognizance of that "crimson chapter" of which Ezekiel speaks, and which is yet to come. The world is being disciplined, indeed, but discipline cannot save it. Only Jesus Christ can save it, but the world will not have this Man to reign over it. Nevertheless, God's Word standeth sure, and they are the wise who take it at its full face value, and square their belief and their conduct accordingly. May the reader have grace to do this.

The latest we hear from private sources concerning the war fever in Great Britain is that it is increasing in intensity, and that the nation is Spiritual Conditions in Great Britain	responding gloriously in many ways to the demands upon it. The self-denial and sacrifice is spoken of as beyond all expectation, and yet the spiritually-minded see no repentance and no brokenness of heart towards God. To quote the language of a correspondent: "No statesman has yet said publicly, 'We have sinned.'" The same authority speaks of drunkenness as playing terrible havoc among the people, and laments that the government, though pressed to prohibition, has not apparently sought to follow the example of Russia. While these things are true of the national conditions, they seem to be correspondingly true of the professing church as well, if one may judge by the fact that Dr. R. J. Campbell was seriously proposed for the chairmanship of the Congregational Union of England and Wales. The attitude of this distinguished man towards both the written and incarnate Word of God has been so radically unevangelical as to approach blasphemy. The circumstance that he could have been chosen for so important a position in the church leads our correspondent to believe that "we have touched a period in this dispensation which is a beginning of the end." However, there is a silver lining to the cloud, for, as he testifies, the hope of the coming of the Lord is shining brighter and brighter in the hearts of the godly on the other side of the water, and all are on the tiptoe of expectancy.

--	---

A year ago last February a great prophetic conference was held in this city under the auspices of the Moody Bible Institute, the addresses of which were published subsequently in book form, under the title, "The Coming and Kingdom of Christ." After the expenses of the conference were met, a balance was left to send copies of the book gratuitously to theological students and foreign missionaries, nearly one thousand of whom have been thus enriched in their spiritual lives and their equipment for service. However, the fund is now exhausted, and, like Oliver Twist, the Moody Bible Institute asks for more. If our readers will peruse the following from a missionary among the Telugus in India, we believe they will contribute gladly to the fund:

"About a year ago you sent me a copy of 'The Coming and Kingdom of Christ.' I went to a hill station in April, where a course of lectures was given on 'Prophecy' by the Rev.

_____, a strong Bible teacher, and pastor _____, of the Union Chapel. Before the lectures began I spoke to the last named about the book, who was most anxious to see it, and he used it in his lectures a great deal. He said he had nothing nearly as recent as that, and before I came away he told me he had lent it to Lady _____, whose husband is surgeon-general of the Madras Presidency. These fashionable hill stations are where English officialdom gets away from the heat of the plains, and I hear that this course of lectures attracted hundreds, though I was obliged to leave before they were completed.

"I thought it would interest you to know that far away in India this book was being used for the glory of God. Oh, how refreshing it was to hear the great truths of His indwelling and His second coming taught as they are at the Moody Bible Institute! We missionaries get worn and jaded with our constant fight with the powers of darkness, but how sweetly we are revived by the revelation of new beauties in our Blessed Redeemer!

"And now I have a question, could you possibly send me another of these books, or possibly two? Some of my friends are just clamoring for them, and as mine has been given away, I have none to lend."

Contributions for this fund may be sent to this office, or directly to the Moody Bible Institute at the same address.

How May We Know Jesus Better?

By Rev. George F. Truett, D. D., Pastor of the First Baptist Church, Dallas, Tex.

(An address before the Faculty and students of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, and stenographically reported)

I WOULD be allowed a moment to express the pleasure I have for the privilege of looking in upon this student body and having a glimpse of this plant. I have a double reason for this pleasure. First, many whom I know and hold in high esteem are students here from my section of the country, and to see them and to know where they work gives me pleasure. Then I am glad to feel the touch of this institution whose influences are world-circling. There are two men I have ached in heart to see and know, and whom I am to be with in the wonderland—D. L. Moody and Charles H. Spurgeon; two men who have moved the world in a marvelous way toward the heavenly hill. I thank God for them, and for His wonderful grace upon this institution.

I.

As I have cast about in my mind for some simple word to say in this address, it seems to me that I could bring no more vital word than to collect our thoughts around the simple question:

How May We Know Jesus Better?

The knowledge most of all desirable and necessary, is the knowledge of God. The age-long cry of the race has been for the revelation of a personal God. Plato voiced it when he said, "We look for a God, or a God-inspired man who will show us our duty and take away the darkness from before our eyes." From the days of Job the cry of man has been, "Oh, that I knew where I might find him!" When our Lord was here revealed, the Greeks came saying, "We would see Jesus." Philip said, "Show us the Father, and it sufficeth us." Jesus answered, "Why, he that hath seen me hath seen the Father. I am God uncovered. I am God brought down so that men may see Him, and trust and preach and follow Him." Now, how may we know Jesus, God manifest in the flesh, better?

First, I should like to ask, "How much do we know about Him now?" For we are to remember that Jesus is a person just as truly as our mother is, or our dearest earthly form and face. There is a cult that says He is a principle, but it is an error. God announces principle, declares principle, but God is personal, God in Christ is personal, not a delightful dream, not some far-off abstraction, but a personal God. He is to be touched, trusted, loved, followed forever. How much do we know about Him today? Is Jesus real to us like other persons?

I was speaking to a group of university men some time ago, and next to the last morning the senior class waited on me in a body with the exception of one man. The twenty-nine said, "How long will you be in the university?" I replied, "This morning and tomorrow morning. Today is my last day for conferences with the men." Then they said, "Do your best for our thirtieth man. He is not a Christian. He is a skeptic. He does not believe what you preach or what we profess. He is the cleverest man in the university, but an utter disbeliever. Do your best for him."

That conversation changed my whole line of thought for the day, and in my address I said, "Christ is to be experienced, to be tested, to be known consciously. 'He that hath the Son of God hath the witness in himself.'" I made the insistence that men experimentally may know Christ. Then I added, "I will be in the president's room to see men who are interested." Nor had I more than reached the room till there was a knock on my door. When I opened it, there stood the skeptic, the thirtieth man. I offered him a chair, but he said, "No, you will do me in just one short sentence or two; please forget that you are a preacher and I a college senior. I want to ask a question as one man of another man." Then coming closer to me, he looked deeply and steadily into my eyes as if reading my deepest soul, "Mr. Truett," he said, "is Jesus Christ real to you? By which I mean, does He help you as you are conscious some teacher or some loved earthly friend helps you?" That is a very serious question, is it not? I looked into that young man's face and said, "If I am capable of speaking the truth, if I know what sincerity is, then Jesus is the most real personality in all the world—more real than mother, father, brother, wife or child. When all had failed; when my soul was storm-swept, He spoke the word of quietness and calm and peace. He spoke that word which gave rest and assurance to my heart." Not to follow the story—he looked at me and said, "You have spoken the truth, I will seek Him." In the morning I stood on the platform to speak the last word, and when finished I asked, "Is there another man to tell us that he has trusted Christ, and that he has the consciousness within that Christ is his Saviour?" And down the aisle came the senior, and a thousand men threw their hats to the ceiling, and then bowed their heads and sobbed till they could be heard a block away. Christ is a reality and may be known.

How may we know Him better? I have several simple suggestions to give you. Every one of them is familiar.

I. If we are to know Jesus better we are to Make Much of His Book

God's best gift to mankind is Jesus Christ, the Only Begotten Son of the Father, but His second best is His holy Book. That we should have such a gift, that we need it and that we cannot do without it, is evidenced by various considerations. If we were without a Bible we should have as many different standards of conduct as there are different people. We should not know the mind and character of God, all would be dark concerning the future. We should not know the terms upon which God proposes to save the sinner. If we are to know about Jesus the Word divine, we are to know this Word written. Christ and the Bible stand or fall together. One is the complement and counterpart of the other. Christ and Bible study are the binomial Word of God. We must have the Bible to know Christ. The monologues of the mountains do not reveal Christ, the surges of the ocean do not, the beautiful flowers do not. God has given us the Bible that we may therein search to find out God's way to man and man's way to God. It is the Jacob's ladder up which the human race is to climb—to be at peace and rest and safety, in the sight of God. One of the tragedies of our time is the ignorance of people concerning the holy revelation from God. Many clever people are lamentably ignorant of the Word of God. Here is the sanest book in all the world, the indispensable Book for the guidance of the race.

"Holy Bible, book divine, Precious treasure, thou art mine!"

Chinese Gordon, that great philanthropist and soldier, when he went into the Sudan, took a library with him. But years later he said he did not need that library at all. He needed but two books, the Holy Bible and a concordance, that he might quickly find the passages which he desired. If Jesus is more and more to be made a conscious, living reality to us, we must more and more know His Book.

II. If we are to know Jesus better there must be provided in our life.

Time and Place for Meditation

I wonder if meditation, in these days of haste and hurry, is not a lost art? How much do we wait upon God? How much do we detach ourselves from others around us, and thus isolated and alone wait upon God? You remember the vision which Ezekiel had of the living creatures with wings and faces. The prophet describes them thus: "When they stood, they let down their wings." In these days of press, and hurry and extravagance, how important that every one of us shall find time and place somewhere each day when we personally, and alone, wait upon God. The Psalmist said, "Wait, I say, on the Lord. Wait, I say, on the Lord, and he shall strengthen thine heart." "Be still and know that I am God." See to it, each of you, that there is a time and place daily in your life; no matter how stressful or pressed it may be, when alone—you shall be still in the sight of God that you may know Him better.

III. If we are to know Him better we must Make Much of Secret Prayer

I wonder if it is not at that point we oftenest fail? What if I were to ask this group of men and women this point-blank question, "How much do you pray in secret?" I am persuaded that at that point we ministers oftenest fail.

At a meeting with a group of twenty men, (all ministers), in a quiet place, we searched each other's hearts with vital questions, and probed one another concerning temptations that beset a minister's path. When it came my turn, I said, "My brothers, how much do you pray in secret?" And every man came out of that inquiry deeply probed and distraught in heart.

Oh, how busy we are, how frequent the ring of the telephone, how extreme the converging tides that beat upon us constantly, so that if we do not fight for the time and the place, secret prayer shall be crowded out of our lives. I tell you, men and women, when it is, we may come with our testimony, but we shall be "as sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal." Arnold of Rugby said, "I believe the man who wrote, 'No matter what a man's difficulty, or temptation, or duty, or sin, he will get past it or above it, if he will find a time and place daily for secret prayer.'" "But thou, when thou prayest," said Jesus, "enter into thy closet and shut the door." Be alone with God when thou speakest in the ears of God, the Father, for though He hears in secret He shall reward thee openly.

It was when Moses was alone with God that God gave him the sight of the bush that burned and was not consumed. It was when Joshua was alone with God that God gave him the commission that he should be the victorious successor of Moses. It was when Isaiah, who before had lived on Fifth Avenue and felt the world's ambitious currents, was alone with God that God gave him the threefold vision. He saw God high, holy and lifted up and afterwards there were new notes in his prophetic address. It was when he was alone that God gave him a vision of the sinfulness and weakness of the people around him. It was when Paul was alone with God that he was caught up into the third heaven, and heard and saw what was not possible to tell. It was when Bunyan was alone with God that he had a vision which he put into a book that, next to the Bible, has moved the world heavenward. It was when Luther was alone with God in the Wartburg Castle, that he had visions which he translated into convincing speech that brought on the Reformation and moved thrones and tyrants throughout all Europe.

You must find time to be alone with God if you are to know the secrets which Christ has for the children of men.

IV. If Jesus is to be more and more a conscious reality then we must wage an

Uncompromising Warfare Against All Sin

The one thing God hates is sin. The one thing which separates between God and us is sin. Sin is the veil through which Christ cannot be seen. It is the insulator which cuts off the current between God and us. The Palmist says, "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart." It is the pure in heart who shall see God—see Him here and now. That means that we are to wage a continual warfare against the little sin. The sin of envy—not little at all. It is as rottenness in one's bones. The sin of jealousy—not little at all. It is incipient murder. Uncharitableness—how it blights and darkens the judgment and desensitizes the conscience if it is allowed to go on! If you do not watch and wage a continuous warfare against all forms of sin, even the smallest and least, in some great hour of unpreparedness when life's testing time comes, you will go down in the maelstrom in the great test that awaits you.

V. Again, if Jesus is to be known we are to make much of Fellowship with the Right Kind of Christians

The longer I live, the more I am finding out how vitally life's companionships influence us. "He that walketh with wise men shall be wise, but the companionship of fools shall be destroyed." "Evil communications corrupt good manners." In a marvelous way God reveals His secrets from one man to another, from one life to another. One human who has dealt vitally with God impresses such knowledge personally to some other human, and there comes in grace and glory from such fellowship. There are times when we can learn from certain Christians who tread the secret places in their conscious apprehension of Jesus Christ. From them we can learn as from none others in all the world.

Years ago there lived an old shoemaker—he was almost eighty. He was the greatest Christian man my life has ever touched. Sometimes when I could not get a text in the Bible to give up its secret to me I would pick up my hat, and go down the quiet street in the downtown section to the old shoemaker's shop. I would say, "Have you time once, again to tell me your Christian experience?" And he would put aside his apron, and hammer and the unfinished shoe, and with glowing face say,

"Time to tell you my Christian experience, my boy, when you have asked the very thing I want to tell!" Then he would begin at the beginning and tell me of his self-righteousness, phariseism, cynicism in early years, and how once in a simple service a man of God took the truth of God and declared it so that it was sharper than a two-edged sword in reaching the sinner's heart, and how when the service was done he sought out the minister and said, "Where is the Saviour, and how can I find Him?" And how when he made a complete surrender of himself to Christ, Christ came and became to him a personal Saviour and Master. In after years when prop after prop fell away, when father and mother, sister and friends, and property were taken, more and more his heart knew Christ as a living and glorious reality. And he said to me, "Some morning they will come and find me quiet in death in my little shop, but remember that perhaps the same chariot that came and took Elijah shall have come for me. At any rate I shall be absent from the body and present with the Lord." It happened just like that. I never went to see him and talk with him that sermons did not fly up in my mind like blackbirds startled in the woods. I could preach on this, that and the other—the power of Christ's truth to search the heart, the sufficiency of God's grace even in the presence of death, the immortal hope revealed in Christ, because a man who felt, and realized and tested it had told it back to me. If we are to know Christ better, we must have fellowship with those who know Him.

VI. If we are to know Him better and better,

We Must Be Busy for Jesus

What a menace is idleness in every realm, and equally so in religion. The supreme sociological problem today is idleness, the problem of the idle rich. We talk about the problem of the idle poor. God knows it is great enough, but the problem of the idle rich is the greatest sociological problem today in our American life. "An idle brain is the devil's work-shop." Satan will find mischief for idle hands. If we are to know Jesus better and better, we are to be busy for Him. Read the life of George Whitefield. See him dying at the age of fifty-six, and before he went away he had preached Christ eighteen thousand times. No wonder he moved the world! Read the story of John Wesley, in labors abundant. No wonder he left tracks in the sands of time ineffacable, glorious forever.

A running stream is the living stream, and the stagnant stream is the one which breeds poison, sickness and death. The running active Christian shall have a thousand secrets of God that the idle Christian shall never know.

"Turn Me Out of the Church"

Years ago a young business man came one evening to my church. He was serious, and after coming for five consecutive evenings, he confessed Jesus as his Saviour, and followed Him in baptism and took his place in the church. For a year and a half every time the church doors were opened that young fellow was there, but presently something bewitched him and he was missed from the Bible class, the prayer meeting and the Sunday evening services. Then he came less frequently to the morning services. I asked the men about him. They said, "He is bewitched by some cause and is dropping away from the life and service of the church." One morning I saw him in church, and poured out my heart if haply I might reach him. He bowed his face and wept. After the benediction he followed me into my study and said through his tears, "When is the next business meeting of the church?" I said, "Wednesday." He said, "Have my name erased from the roll." I said, "For what?" He said: "I have been thinking now for months that I have missed the way, and I have no business in the church. A man who is not a Christian has no business in the church." "There must be a reason," I said, "a good reason." He told a story I need not relate, and then added, "You had better have me turned out." I said, "Come back again thirty minutes before church this evening, and we will talk about it once more." He promised that he would. When he came, I said, "Will you do me a favor? Take this little Bible of mine and go to the outskirts of the city and read in it to an old blind man—too old to come to church." He said, "After what I have told you, shall I dare to read the Bible?" I said, "Certainly, anybody ought to read the Bible to a blind man." He said, "What shall I read?" I said, "Read the 23rd Psalm, the 14th chapter of John, the 8th chapter of Romans, the 150th Psalm." He went away with a long face, and I went with an anxious heart. He came back five minutes before the time appointed, sobbing and laughing both at once, and said, "Don't say a word about turning me out of the church." "What has happened?" I inquired. He answered, "I read those chapters to the old man and about ten more, and presently he said, 'Son, won't you kneel down and pray for me? I hear so few people pray—just the pastor now and then. Won't you pray for me?' I knelt and prayed, and the old man shouted, and I think I shouted, too. Don't say any more about turning me out."

I heard John R. Mott, that most influential young man for students in the world today, say: "When a great period of skepticism came over me, and horrible doubt, a friend who understood it said, 'Mott, you come with me,' and we went to a great room full of notorious prisoners. He said, 'I am going to talk to these men,' and he talked to them about the reality of the help of Christ, and told them that there was no hope for men outside of Christ. Then, when he had talked for a while, he said, 'Men, I have asked Mr. Mott to come with me, and I want him to say something to you.' He stood up in darkness of soul, pitiful and helpless, but in that prison he was as conscious of God's presence as of his own being, and he realized that the only power that could help a man in the world was the divine Saviour, and so he fell back into the great everlasting arms, and light came while he talked. Be busy for Christ.

VII. Once again, if we are to know Christ better

We Must Be Willing to Pay the Price

No cheap business will do it. Paul said, "What things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ. Yea, doubtless, and I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord; for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but refuse that I may win Christ." It is a truism that in the market of life we must pay full price for success. It is those men and women who rise up early and toil until late nightfall who win legitimately. If we are to enter into the secrets which Christ waits to impart, it must be by paying the price, just as the student pays the price for the knowledge which he acquires.

"The heights by great men reached and kept
Were not attained by sudden flight,
But they, while their companions slept,
Were toiling upward in the night."

If we would know Christ and the realities which Christ would vouchsafe to us, then we must pay the price to know Him. David said long ago, "Neither will I offer burnt offerings unto the Lord of that which doth cost me nothing." It is when men die to self that they enter into the marvelous apprehension of the secrets of grace, wisdom and light, which Christ Jesus has for them. Do you not remember the testimony of the early Christians? "They overcame by the blood of the Lamb and the word of their testimony and loved not their lives unto the death." Every man of us ought to be willing, either by life or by death, if Christ wills it, to magnify His name.

Mrs. Comstock, that great missionary to India, when she came to the time to return to her native land to educate her children, faced the question, "Shall I send them back and stay here with my chain of mission stations? Shall I be separated for years from these agencies on the mission field, or trust my own little ones to friends in the homeland?" She fought the battle out and said, "I will stay by the task God has given me. I will put these children in the hands of loved ones and Christ. She took the children down to the great steamer and prayed for them there, and saw the little ones going further and further away from her and waving their little handkerchiefs. Then she dropped on the sand and said over and over again, "Lord Jesus, I am doing this for Thee. I am putting Thee before my little girls." Then she went back to her work and her mighty mission transformed deserts into gardens for the Lord. We must pay the price.

I went to a town in the eastern part of my state to preach a dedicatory sermon. The officers of the church led me aside, and said, "We want you to preach the dedicatory sermon, but before the dedicatory prayer we must get $6,500 in money." I said, "Where are we going to get it?" They said, "We think we can get $500 out of our church, and you must get $6,000 out of the town." I said, "No, it will not come that way. If we get that $6,500, $500 may come out of the town; the other $6,000 must come out of the church. If you are redeemed men and women, why should you not make it up?" We went with long faces, and after thirty minutes $3,000 had been raised—$3,000 in thirty minutes! Then I said, "What shall we do? There are $3,500 more to be raised. What shall we do about it?" A little woman bowed her face in her hands, then rising up with something of a sob, she said to her husband near the pulpit, taking down the count, "Charlie, we were offered $3,500 in cash yesterday for our little cottage. We had just got out of debt. I wonder if you feel as I do. If you do, we will give that house, and then God's house will be out of debt. Charlie, Jesus bought us with His blood, and you and I can work. If you are willing, we will just give it." And he answered, "Jennie, I was thinking of the same thing. That is what we will do." But they did not do it. Men of the city had stood around the walls—men of the banks, and stores and factories, worldly men, critical men, and they shot out their lips in scorn at that church, but they are not shooting out lips of scorn now. A man who had given $50 now arose, and said, "I have sinned, make it $500." Another, who had given $25, said, "Make mine $250." And a woman who had given $5 arose and said, "Add $245 to mine." And faster than two clerks could take it down they provided that $3,500. And that was not all—that was not the best. Some of those men who had stood around against the wall came down the aisle and said, "Where is the Saviour, and what must we do to be saved?" They had seen Christ in human lives, and when this world sees Christ in human lives it will come. Don't get away from the cross. Incarnate Christ in your life. Count no sacrifice too great for Him. Go to the most difficult field for Him. Live on bread and water for Him. Go without fine clothes for Him. Lay your life on the altar for Christ, and the kingdom of God will come in your midst, and you will go home to Him with your arms full of sheaves, and the King of Glory will give you a welcome that will make you ineffably happy forever more.

Holy Living: What It Is, and How to Maintain It

By Rev. J. Stuart Holden, M. A., London, England

(Stenographically reported for "The Christian Workers Magazine")

IT IS impossible in our limited time to deal in any sense exhaustively with the subject of biblical holiness. When one begins to ponder on the title he is lost with the sense of its immensity—the nature of holiness, its attainment, its limits, its distortions. For perhaps there is no subject which has been so distorted; about which the malicious powers of the devil seem to have been so successfully exercised as biblical holiness. On the one hand, an altogether disproportionate emphasis upon the objective side of the work of Jesus Christ, and on the other an unwarranted subjective emphasis. There is, perhaps, no subject about which there is such misconception in the church of Christ. Holiness is power, power to do, to influence, to realize the divine ideals and objectives both in life and in service, and hence, if we fail here, we fail at the root of things. We may become experts in theoretical holiness, become entirely orthodox, if I may use that word, with regard to its nature and its attainment, and yet our own hearts be dry and barren. As dry as was Gideon's fleece when the ground all 'round was wet.

Holiness Not a Theory

Holiness is not a theory, and the way of holiness is not for men to wrangle over, but rather to walk in. Therefore, I do not propose to attempt the academic, but as God will help me, to speak to your hearts as God speaks to mine, as to the necessity of our lives becoming, in an ever-increasing degree, what the Lord said they should be when He died for their redemption.

I remember some years ago being in a gathering similar to this in Glasgow. At the close of the meeting I was talking to some brethren, while down at the end of the hall there was a group of people. One man seemed to be talking volubly and to be the center of the group. I was beckoned down, and I found a Christian brother in the act of violently disputing what they had been proclaiming with regard to holiness. I suppose the young man who beckoned me regarded my coming as a reinforcement and wanted to turn me loose on the disputer. He said, "I do not believe anything you men have been preaching, I have not got all this in Christ." I asked, "Haven't you got it in Glasgow?" Then he lost his temper and said he did not think I was converted. That was the end of it. A lot of people wrangle about the subject of holiness, and do not seek to be holy. A lot of people dispute as to revealed theories of holiness without even attempting to bring their lives under the spell of Jesus Christ and His transforming influence.

It is impossible for any man to read the two books, the "Word of God and his own life, without being convinced of two great outstanding facts which he would find protested and clear in each of them. First, responsibility, and, second, inability. You cannot read the New Testament without having it borne in with ever-increasing strength that we are bound, if we name the name of Jesus Christ at all worthily, to reflect Him; and when we read the book of our own lives we find there an entire inability to fulfill this responsibility, our limitations weak, our resources inadequate, the net result of our best endeavors failure. Who is there who has not had the experience of utter discouragement? Failure is the largest fact in the realm of many a Christian life. Failure to realize success in an honest and sincere attempt to work for Christ. Who is there that has not again and again to mourn over the resurrection of old temptations which he thought long conquered and forever rid of? Who is there who has not again and again been forced to his knees because of his discrepant life? I say, is it possible to read the Book and then to read the volume of our own lives without being face to face with these two great facts? Holiness is not a possession on our part; it is rather an obligation. "Be ye holy, for I am holy." That is the fundamental principle which is to guide us in all our thinking and for all our activity.

Holiness an Obligation

I am responsible to the world if I am a Christian, but still I am unable to come to any other conclusion with regard to my life than that to which Paul came, when at a stage in his experience he said, as the result of all his self-examination, "I know that in me there dwelleth no good thing." If I am to be holy, it will never be by the mere development of what I at present possess, but rather by the reinforcement of every weak activity and prayer of mine by the great omnipotence of God. Let us settle this as fundamental, that holiness is not a possession but an obligation. It is not something that a man can go in for as a student does for a course of study or a contest. It is not an attainment to the present Christian life and profession which I seek to obtain, rather is it the root and branch of the life which Christ has redeemed, ever leading forth to the fullest apprehension of that for which I have been apprehended by Him.

The theme of the Old Testament is holiness, and the theme of the New Testament is the same. In the Old Testament it is the holiness of God. In the New Testament it is the holiness of the people of God. In the Old Testament the holiness is ceremonial. In the New Testament it is actual. In the Old Testament the holiness is largely by separation from the unclean, whether ceremonial or actual. In the New Testament it is not by separation, but assimilation, by union with holiness. It is the normal path in the Old Testament and the New only with the distinctions I have tried to draw. It is the normal life that the people of God should try to live. Normal indeed it is in purpose, and you may perhaps best understand it by taking two of the simplest laws into consideration and believing them. First, in 1 John 2:6, "He that saith he abideth in him ought himself also to walk even as he walked." One of the strongest words in the New Testament is this, great and all comprehensive. One might take the whole of our little time this morning ringing the changes to emphasise these various words. "Every man that walks" or its prior word "talk." Every man that talks ought to walk in union with that which he professes, from a sense of obligation, something I cannot get away or excuse myself from. If I say I abide in Christ, then the world is not interested a moment in my profession unless it is translated into acts. The world has no interest in my profession of belief, my profession of an unseen relationship. But begin to translate that profession into life and holiness among individuals, begin to translate that profession of union with Jesus Christ into practical deeds, into that sincere influence which always emanates from true and not spurious goodness, and then the world is impressed by God's grace savingly.

The Bulbs and the Flowers

When I was at Cambridge I remember that close to my college was a seedman's shop. I had passed that shop many times and had not been interested in the seeds and bulbs displayed. But one day, after a Christmas vacation, I came back to find they had a new front put into the shop. A double front, a door in the middle and a window at either side. And in one window there was a profusion of spring flowers, hyacinths, tulips, snowdrops, all blooming beautifully. In the old window there were the old bulbs. I had never been impressed with the display of bulbs before, but seeing the hyacinths and tulips which the bulbs produced, I decided to invest my slender means in some of the bulbs which might bloom in my room. The seeds did not attract me till I saw what they produced. The world is not interested in the Bible or Christian doctrine. I have found it more interested in the newspaper, in sport or politics. But let the world begin to see in the lives of those who profess to believe in Jesus Christ, flowers and fruit. Let the world begin to realize the sweet savour of Jesus Christ, a perfume subtle and indefinable, but, oh, how real, in these poor lives of ours, and I doubt not, men and women will begin to ask the way to Zion. That would be the strongest argument for the Christian life. The strongest argument for power which Christ has committed to His church is concrete holiness. Do not let us forget, gifts are good, grace is better. Gifts without grace are hard, mechanical, uncongenial and do nothing. I am to walk even as He walked. I add to that scripture a word with which we are all familiar. "Christ also suffered for us; leaving us an example, that we should follow his steps" (1 Pet. 2:21). Are we all at one in this? Do we follow one another when we say the best explanation of a holy life is one which is obviously following the steps of Jesus Christ? How did He walk? In every man's life there are three currents, outward, inward, upward. This threefold relationship embraces the whole of life in all its details, a relationship, selfward, worldward, Godward. How did the Lord Jesus walk in regard to these? What were the currents of His life? Truly towards Himself, abnegation, an utter self-denial, a selflessness characterized Him as a man. He lived in a pathway in which there was no self-pleasing. He lived a life in which there was no self-assertion, but utter, entire self-abnegation, hiding Himself always for the fullest revelation of His Father. His life before the world, separation and, it seems to me, isolation. He said, "I am not of this world," and I can imagine the people who knew Him best, and understood Him least, in His village, who knew Him before His manifestation, saying every day, "He does not belong to us. He is not our sort at all. He is obviously not of the world. He is a good carpenter, never a man made tables and chairs as He does, and yet He does not belong to us, something is in Him which lifts Him above us. He does not talk much, never shares in the gossip of the village, never has been known to speak an evil word about anyone. Knows more about everything than anyone else, yet never sets people down as being superior to them." Not of the world. The spirit of the world was not in Him. And yet at the same time, no one ever touched the world as closely and munificently as Jesus did. This is His rule for His people, "Father, they are not of the world but I have sent them into the world." His vision was directed to taking the world out of their hearts and sending them back into the world. We should follow His steps. Lives, not so much of worldliness but of other-worldliness. Lives that touch the need, the great, gaping, bleeding sores of the world with things clean, and gentle, and tender and strong and true. His relationship Godward, utter devotion. If there was one who could say: "I delight to do thy will, O, my God," it was our Lord Jesus Christ. To Him the will of God had ceased to be a matter of deliberation. It had become a matter of positive instruction and of progress in holiness and grace. He withdraws from even the holiest activities of life in order that He may wait upon God. The Lord Jesus stands before us today as one who walked in such a pathway, and He has left us this entirely unmistakable example to follow His steps. So, friend, it is well for us to ask ourselves the question, "Do I thus walk? What is my relationship toward myself? Am I constantly seeking my own pleasure? Is it normal in my life to seek my own good? Do I seek to please my own esthetic taste, my own convenience, or is it subordinated to the great purpose and will of God? Am I living a worldly life? Is there any difference between me and those who are frankly, obviously worldly? Do I spend my time and money with them? Do I seek my pleasure with them? Do I rule my life by their standard, or am I as the Lord Jesus in this respect at least, not of the world, but sent into the world to represent a holy God?" Beloved friends, this has a lot more to do with the study of biblical holiness than we may suspect. It is ours to be a pattern of holiness.

What Is a Saint?

The Epistle to the Romans Paul wrote to those in Rome who were in Christ Jesus, called to be saints. What did he mean by that? You read in the Revised Version "called saints." This is their vocation, but it is to become increasingly their designation. They are called the saints, and in the divine purpose are to become saints. Their calling is to become their character. Saints in Rome. In one of his later epistles the apostle refers to some who obviously have realized this divine purpose, and speaks of them as saints, in Rome, in Caesar's household. Think what that means. What it meant to them and what it means to us. It meant a victory for two things, for the two great forces which today we call heredity and environment. These men by heredity were not anything like saints. They were not holy. Holiness was not normal to them. They lived in an environment, and under circumstances the most uncongenial. Nothing could have been more fatal to the growth in grace and purity than the atmosphere of a city whose influence was, on the one hand, looseness; on the other hand, tyrannical. They are called to be saints. The inference is the gospel of Jesus Christ is a sovereign tonic, has adequate power to make men saints, whatever their past has been and whatever their surroundings. And if we have not a gospel that is stronger than heredity, we have not a gospel at all. If Jesus Christ does not and cannot make a man holy despite all the conditions of environment, despite all the deterioration and devitalization of capacity and faculty which is the result of wilful sins and ignorance, then I say He is discredited. Oh, the responsibility resting upon us who know Him in all His highest offices, to prove the contrary to a world which says that the past life which we can see and which needs no description, makes it impossible for a man to realize holiness of life! He may be a Christian, but under the circumstances and amid all the adverse influences of the world it is impossible for him to be holy! Is this true? If it is not true, two things have got to take place in our lives. Two things which ought to be there have got to be brought in, and two things have got to be ejected. For instance, as I yield myself in surrender to Christ who bought me, as a result of that surrender is the power of His Spirit getting to work in my life? The Spirit of God will bring into my consciousness things I never knew before, and with that enlightenment another thing wonderful occurs, and that is complete renunciation.

When the light of God begins to shine upon my heart, I begin to see myself with all these things, selfishness, pride; things that ought to have no place in the life of a man who names the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. And with this self-discovery there must be new self-surrender, and with self-discovery and self-surrender then, thank God, there is the impartation. That is simpler than it sounds. God has convinced me of pride, and I yield to Him by faith in the blood. He reveals to me that in Christ Jesus my Lord there is the cross for me, which is the antithesis of pride, and I come to Him and claim it. There is a point in our intercourse with God when faith merges into acceptance, I come forward and claim the cross which is the concrete opposite of the sin of which I have been convicted. That is the process, and that process goes on unhindered, save by some unwillingness to be following Him. "Be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind" is the divine command following upon the exhortation, "Yield yourselves unto the Lord who has bought you."

Photographing the Stars

In an observatory yonder at Greenwich, there is an instrument by which the stars are photographed. Though miles and miles away, the camera does its work. It is the duty of the astronomer to keep that instrument so in tune with the motion of the earth, to synchronize it so delicately that the star shall never be off the center point. The light takes the photograph, the astronomer does not. He has nothing to do with it, yet everything to do with it. His business is to fix the plate. It is Christ's work to make me holy. It is my work to ever be beholding Him, to maintain that attitude of heart in which it is possible for Him to work. Christ's work to transform, Christ's work to make me, in an ever-increasing degree, like Himself. It is my part and your part to be co-operating at all times with the Lord, seeking His light upon our lives, and then quietly willing and sensitively obedient to every bit of light that He gives us, whatever it may be, whether it be cutting off some treasured sin, the right hand, or the right eye. Only so shall we know the greatness of His power and the fulness of His indwelling and transforming Spirit.

Have I spoken too exclusively from the human side of it? "Called to be saints." Oh, I want a genuine getting back to the Old Testament. "Gather my saints together unto me, those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice." Have we done that, you and I individually, made a covenant with the Lord by sacrifice, at the place of sacrifice, there at the foot of the cross? Have we entered into a covenant of unswerving, loyal obedience to every precept as we apprehend it there? I turn to the Epistle to the Ephesians and read, "God's inheritance in the saints." The saints, those who have made a covenant with Him by sacrifice, at the place of sacrifice, pledging themselves to any sacrifice in order that His will may be perfectly done. God's inheritance in the saints. His response to that attitude. His coming to dwell in the yielded temple, blessing the life and carrying on His work unhindered.

Take these two words together, and it seems to me you get as simple and yet as comprehensive a description and definition of holiness as the Word of God affords. If it be true, and I verily believe it to be, then beloved, holiness is not human life in its highest development, but divine life at its lowest descent. Not my taking something from God, but God taking possession of me and reproducing His life in me. If it be true, and I verily believe it is, then holiness is not merely my yielding myself to obey commandments. It is rather my humble surrender to the in-possession of a new power. God is now to possess me and to carry out all the perfect will of God in my life.

I hear some one say. "Is that immediate or progressive? Can that be done now? Is it the work of a moment or of a lifetime?" My answer is, both. It is both a crisis and a process. A crisis which leads to a process. The crisis not complete in itself. When a man tells me he has been sanctified then I am suspicious. Yet we are to try men. I can turn to an illustration which shall be my last word. I have spoken of astronomical photography, now I come to the photography with which we are more familiar; the hand camera process. You present your camera to the object you want to take. Having adjusted it carefully, you press a button. If anyone asks you if it is done, you say "Yes." But it is not done. Is the photograph taken? "Yes." Well, let me see it. "It is not done yet." That is the crisis only. What is going to happen now? A good deal yet. This thing has got to go through darkness that will help its development. This thing has got to be washed again and again before it is ready to be seen. Beloved friends, the getting into attitude, the covenanting by sacrifice, the expression of surrender and heart-willingness to walk as He walked and to follow His steps is the work of a moment. I do not care how long the process which leads up to that moment, but somewhere in the history of every one of us there has got to be a definite moment when we may cross the absolute line of surrender. Then the process will begin. All done, and yet all to be done. Perfect and yet to be perfected. Holy in Christ, and then to be made holy in life. There is all the difference in the world between being truly His and wholly His. Truly His in the sense of being redeemed. Truly His in the sense of having eternal life. But wholly His in the sense of my life being yielded to Him so that He can work out the purpose of His grace without any let or hindrance, unstayed by my unwillingness, my disobedience, my cowardice.

CHRIST'S PORTRAIT

By Nahum Wesley Grover

Thy Life, O Lord, appeals to me
To consecrate my life to Thee;
Be Thou my strength, my hope, and joy,
And guide my course in Thine employ.

But Righteous One,
"Thy will be done."

Grant me a faith that works with might,
And reaps results to Thy delight;
That offers Thee prevailing prayer,
And thrills the soul with visions rare.

But Righteous One,
"Thy will be done."

Give me a heart that throbs like Thine
With sympathy and love divine,
For children and for all mankind.
The weak and strong, the sick and blind.

O Righteous One,
"Thy will be done."

Thy Spirit, Lord, I would possess,
To live like Thee, the world to bless,
And speed on earth Thy reign of peace,
When envy shall forever cease.

O Righteous One,
"Thy will be done."

Thy faithful servant, Lord, make me,
That I may win some soul to Thee,
And add a jewel to Thy crown,
Thou King of kings, of world renown.

But Righteous One,
"Thy will be done."

Three Coming Persons

By Rev. C. I. Scofield, D. D.

(Reprinted from the "Dallas News")

I NEED not say that I refer to persons whose coming is predicted in the Scriptures. How many persons great and small may yet appear upon the stage of human history I do not know. If the present world system holds together for any considerable length of time we may be confident that in the future, as in the past, there will rise up great statesmen and warriors and poets and orators, and by them the movement of events will be powerfully influenced.

It is a familiar thought to students of the philosophy of history that the great changes in human conditions are wrought chiefly by the appearance among men of individuals having great gifts of initiative and leadership. That these will continue to appear so long as the present framework of society holds together may be confidently anticipated. But my theme has in mind no guess as to all this, but rather the presentation of the prophetic statements concerning three personages whose future presence and activity in human affairs are absolutely certain.

I shall speak of these in the order in which they will appear.

The First Coming One

The first of these prophetic persons is variously called the "Little Horn," "Man of Sin," "Abomination of Desolation," and "The Beast." Since all our knowledge concerning this person is drawn from the Scriptures, we will pass rapidly over the great prophetic passages which bear on his personality and career.

He first appears in prophecy in the seventh chapter of Daniel, and I will read the passage from the fifteenth verse to the end, as these verses contain the angelic interpretation of the vision described by the preceding verses of the chapter. Briefly, Daniel has seen in a vision "four great beasts" that "came up from the sea, diverse one from another" (v. 3). [The succeeding verses to the seventh describe these four beasts.] The first resembled a lion with eagle's wings, the second, a bear; the third, a leopard having four wings and four heads; and the fourth, a "beast dreadful and terrible and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth; it devoured and brake in pieces and stamped the residue with the feet of it, and it was diverse from all the beasts that were before it; and it had ten horns."

Certain of these words are evidently used symbolically, and as they occur in many places in Scripture and always with the same meaning, it may make the subject clearer if at this point

I remind you that in biblical usage the "sea" is the symbol of the mass of humanity. Out, then, from the mass of men come these "beasts." The symbolical meaning of "horns" is fixed in the interpretative passage (Dan. 7: 24), where it is explained that "the ten horns are ten kings that shall arise." A "horn," then, is symbolical of kingly power.

The great explanatory portion of this prophecy follows:

"I Daniel was grieved in my spirit in the midst of my body, and the visions of my head troubled me. I came near unto one of them that stood by and asked him the truth of all this. So he told me and made me know the interpretation of the things. These great beasts, which are four, are four kings, which shall arise out of the earth. But the saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom and possess the kingdom forever, even forever and ever. Then I would know the truth of the fourth beast, which was diverse from all the others, exceeding dreadful, whose teeth were of iron, and his nails of brass; which devoured, brake in pieces and stamped the residue with his feet; and of the ten horns that were in his head, and of the other which came up, and before whom three fell; even of that horn that had eyes and a mouth that spake very great things, whose look was more stout than his fellows. I beheld, and the same horn made war with the saints and prevailed against them, until the Ancient of days came and judgment was given to the saints of the Most High, and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom. Thus he said, The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be diverse from all kingdoms and shall devour the whole earth, shall tread it down and break it in pieces. And the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise, and another shall arise after them, and he shall be diverse from the first, and he shall subdue three kings, and he shall speak great words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High and think to change times and laws, and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and the dividing of time. But the judgment shall sit, and they shall take away his dominion, to consume and to destroy it unto the end. And the kingdom and dominion and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him. Hitherto is the end of the matter."

The Last World Empire

The last of the world empires, Rome, described as the "fourth beast," is to exist at the end-time, as ten separate or distinct kingdoms, covering the sphere of rule anciently governed by Rome. Out of these kingdoms or "horns" appears one "horn" or king called the "little horn." Three of these kingdoms or "horns," he plucks up by the roots, becoming in this way, the king or emperor of four of the ten kingdoms existing at the end-time. He exceeds in power the other kings and is from that time, though the other kings are suffered to continue a shadowy semblance of rule, really the despot of earth. He is specially characterized by enmity against the Most High and he makes the saints of the end-time the special object of his persecution and this continues "until the Ancient of days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the Most High; and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom."

This is Daniel's picture. There are additional details in the great prophecies of Daniel, especially in chapter 9, verses 26 and 27. Here he is represented as entering into a covenant with the Jewish people to restore their ancient worship and temple in Jerusalem. The duration of this authority is fixed by Daniel as one week of years, i. e., seven years. In the middle of that week, he breaks his covenant with the Jews, and demands that divine honors be paid to him in the temple of God.

Turning now to the New Testament, we find in Matthew 24:15 reference to this event. "When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, stand in the holy place (whoso readeth, let him understand)." In the twenty-first verse we have the following statement: "For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be."

Passing now to 2 Thessalonians, and the second chapter, we find added detail concerning this fearful personage. I read verses 3 to 12.

"Let no man deceive you by any means; for that day shall not come, except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition; who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God. Remember ye not, that, when I was yet with you, I told you these things? And now ye know what withholdeth that he might be revealed in his time. For the mystery of iniquity doth already work; only he who now letteth will let, until he be taken out of the way. And then shall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming: even him, whose coming is after the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders."

The significant feature of this passage is that the end and the manner of the end of the rule of the beast is here described, "Whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming."

We turn now to the thirteenth chapter of the Revelation. In that chapter we have first of all the description of the political condition of the earth at the end-time, exactly corresponding to that described in the Daniel prophecy, and the characteristics of the beast are the same.

"He opened his mouth in blasphemy against God to blaspheme his name and his tabernacle and them that dwell in heaven. And it was given unto him to make war with the saints, and to overcome them; and power was given him over all kindreds and tongues and nations."

Details follow as to his cruel persecutions of all who will not worship him. This, then, is a brief description, drawn from the prophets, of the last great emperor of the earth. He will be the most absolute and relentless of all the despots that have ever cursed humanity.

The Second Coming One

We come now to the second of the prophetic personages in order of appearance, and upon him we need spend comparatively little time. In the First Epistle of John 2 and 4, he is called the Antichrist. In the thirteenth chapter of Revelation, from the eleventh to the sixteenth verses, he is described as "the beast out of the earth," and elsewhere he is called "the false prophet." He is associated with the emperor-beast as a kind of high priest of the religion of the end-time, which, as we have seen, is the deification of man in the person of the emperor-beast. If anything, the false prophet is more cruel than the emperor himself.

The Third Coming One

The appearance of the third prophetic personage is the greatest event yet to occur in the history of this earth—the second advent of Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory. The immediate result of His glorious appearing is the overcoming of the beast and the false prophet who are cast into the lake of fire and the utter destruction of their rule.

As the second advent of Jesus Christ is not disputed, but an article of faith in all the great creeds of all the churches, it demands of me no proof.

The human race is divided in the Scriptures into three great groups, "the Jew, Gentile and the church of God," and it will be found upon an examination of the predictions concerning the second advent that the return of the Lord has a relation to all three of these groups.

The first of them to feel the blessing of this return is the church. The church, as we have seen in previous addresses in this series, is caught up to meet the Lord in the air, and is forever associated with Him. This event precedes the manifestation of the emperor-beast and of the great tribulation which results from his rule. It is the first event in unfulfilled prophecy.

Then the return of the Lord has relation to the ancient promises to Israel. It is the time when the Messianic kingdom, predicted and described by all the prophets, will be set up on earth and Israel, restored to her land, will be at the head of the nations.

To the Gentile the return of the Lord is the time of judgment upon the living Gentile nations (Matt. 25: 31-46). The effect of that judgment is described in the second chapter of Daniel as the smiting blow of a "stone cut out without hands," which utterly destroys the whole fabric of Gentile political authority in the earth. That henceforth is to be given, as Daniel says, to "the saints of the Most High." It is the setting up over the earth of the kingdom of heaven. Into the detail of this I do not now enter.

Briefly summarized, the word of prophecy announces the coming, first of the Lord Jesus into the air to receive His own. With them He returns to heaven. There is then manifested on earth the last great despot, a man who will blasphemously assume to be God and associate with him the false prophet, who in religious matters will exercise the whole power of the empire to compel men to worship the beast, and the beast and false prophet are brought to an end and the kingdom of heaven set up by the appearance of the third of these prophetic personages, the Lord Jesus Himself.

My Experience in Christian Science

By a Student in The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

(The writer was for years a Christian Scientist. She is a plain woman, who has told her experience to others with profit, and a desire has been expressed for its publication. —Editors.)

I HAVE been asked to write my experience in this misleading cult, and I do so with the thought of helping those who are being tempted to go into it, and for the benefit of the relatives and friends of those who have been misled by it. A cry has gone out into the night, and some are waking up to the awful danger which thus masquerades as an angel of light.

I was led into Christian Science by the efforts of my brother and his wife. They were anxious for me to know "the truth," and gave me "Science and Health," and my sister-in-law made a trip from her home to mine (across a state) just to get me established in it, and to see that I was making progress. I remember watching her erase the word "lie" that I had repeatedly written on the margin. But let me say that in spite of the fact that I did not believe all its pernicious teachings, the studying of it every day for three years, was enough to ensnare me so that it was impossible to get free from it, except for divine interposition. Soon after my sister-in-law's visit, I received a letter from my brother, asking me to come to his home and go through a class in Christian Science, which was then forming. The letter was followed by a telegram asking me to come at once, and saying that all expense would be met by him. I went, and when I arrived, discovered that the class was full, being limited to thirty. But my brother was so anxious for me to have the instruction, that he had me come so that if, at the last moment, some one should drop out, I would be ready to take the vacant place. Such loyalty is worthy of a better cause. My brother was honest and really thought he had found the truth at last, as he expressed it. And I honestly believe they all really think they have found the way of life.

I was in poor health, and to regain that was the bait, as it is in nearly all cases. If the Christian church lived up to her privileges, Christian Science would not be known today.

I received treatment several weeks from a practitioner, with no benefit, though my pocketbook was perceptibly lighter from week to week. I never could understand how they could say "there is no disease or sickness" and then take your money for pretending to cure what you could not possibly have. I finally moved to the city where my brother lived, and joined the Second Church (Scientist), and took special instruction in the next class formed, my brother paying the bill. At first the price was $300. It was reduced to $100 and then to $50. That was ten years ago.

Testimonies to "Healing"

When I was examined for church membership, there was not a word said about belief in God, but my belief in Mrs. Eddy was very thoroughly questioned. They asked me if I thought she was divine, and I readily expressed my firm belief that she was. As I answered that question satisfactorily and many others on the same order, I was duly accepted into full membership, and faithfully attended the Sunday services, also the Wednesday evening prayer-meeting (?). Why they call them prayer-meetings I cannot tell, as there is no prayer offered, either there or in the church services, except Mrs. Eddy's idea of the Lord's Prayer, which is very different from the true meaning as given in God's Word. Then sometimes we would have a few moments of silent prayer, which was simply denying sin, sickness and death, and affirming that all is good, perfect, sinless, etc. So while pretending to worship God, they were really making Him a liar, for He says there is sin, sickness and death. All the Wednesday evening meetings consisted of, was the relating of some wonderful cures somebody else had heard of. Their stories were marvelous indeed, and so related as to impress even a heart of stone. Mrs. Eddy always received the glory. One remarkable testimony I remember, was about a woman who had been cured of five incurable diseases. As they place no confidence in doctors, I wonder how they knew they were incurable. But I noticed that when they related a cure, they were careful to say that "the doctors had given them up." It is my testimony, that in all the years I was in Christian Science, I never knew of a cure of any organic disease, or any other disease, except one, which was not a test case. Their cures are very much exaggerated, and confined principally to hysteria. They have learned that two-thirds of the people who think they are sick, are not sick at all, and when they think there is something being done for them, they get well. My brother is a physician, and said to me that he had told more than one, to go home and not take any more medicine, that there was nothing the matter with them, and they obeyed, with a light heart, and got well. Mrs. Eddy frankly confesses that she cured a patient, sinking in the last stages of typhoid fever, by administering salt water attenuated until there was not a single saline property left (Page 153, S. and H. 1907.—Ed.). She relates how Sir Humphry Davy once apparently cured a case of paralysis simply by introducing a thermometer into the patient's mouth. This he did merely to ascertain, the temperature of the patient's body, but the sick man supposed the ceremony was intended to heal him and he recovered accordingly (Page 152, S. and H.).

I remember one man who used to testify to his wonderful healing in Christian Science. He had a deathly pallor and I knew he was sick. One day he disappeared and no one mentioned the fact, but I discovered that he had died.

While I was visiting at my brother's home, I one day mentioned the fact that a doctor had told me that I had heart disease, but said I did not believe it, as there was no evidence of it. My sister-in-law wanted me to testify at the prayer-meeting to the fact that I had been healed of that dread disease by Christian Science. I refused, she insisted, but I could not testify to an untruth, so that wonderful testimony of deliverance from an incurable disease was never given.

I have no quarrel with Christian Science for curing imaginary disease. If they would only stop there I would say: "Amen," but that is only the trap to entangle the soul and lead it to certain destruction.

Creeds and Ceremonials

The church services are conducted by readers. The first reader reads "Science and Health" and the second reader reads the Bible. "Science and Health" is superior to the Scriptures, and the Scriptures are always made to conform with "Science and Health." The places where they are to read are carefully selected; also for the daily reading of all the members. No sermons are allowed, nor any remarks whatever, and the members are not allowed to gather together to study or talk about Christian Science. That always seemed strange to me, as if they were afraid somebody would stumble onto the truth.

When they have what they call communion, there is no bread and wine, but just silent prayer (?), as they call it. As Christ never died for our sins and His body never was broken for us, that way of taking the sacrament is very appropriate. Besides Mrs. Eddy claims that the prophecy in Isaiah 9:6 "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given," refers to her book and means "Immanuel," or "God with us," and she says, "Why do you need memorials of a friend when that friend is with you?" She also says that "the material blood of Jesus was no more efficacious to cleanse from sin when it was shed upon the accursed tree, than when it was flowing in His veins, as He went daily about His Father's business" (Page 25, S. and H., 1907). That one statement is enough to stamp it as coming from the pit.

It is not my purpose to go at length into the details of this teaching, but to briefly state some of the leading facts of this subtle falsehood. Mrs. Eddy claims that Jesus Christ was no more divine than man, but He is God's idea, the same as man. But she speaks of Him so often and in such ambiguous terms, that her followers do not understand her meaning. I once said to my sister, who is a loyal Christian Scientist, that she had no Saviour, and she became very indignant. As a general rule, I believe they are deceived. They call Jesus the "Way-shower." I remember one thing I was taught in the class was, that Mary's idea of God was much inferior to Mrs. Eddy's idea, for Mary's idea partook of mortal error, while Mrs. Eddy's was all spiritual. Her son is "the Christ," or divine science.

The Social and Home Life

In regard to their promise to love one another, and to be meek and merciful, etc., I will say, that Christ Jesus wept with those who wept and mourned with those who mourned, and commanded us to do so. But Christian Scientists do not believe in compassion, and are positively forbidden to sympathize with any one. As they thus go on steeling their hearts against all love and sympathy, they soon come to have no more feeling than the stones in the street. The head of the church to which I belonged had been a Scientist for twenty years and had been with Mrs. Eddy for three years, which she considered the height of earthly glory, and which she never missed an opportunity to mention. This woman lost her mother, and she stood over her casket without a tear or the slightest emotion whatever. A member of the church lost her father and went to her for comfort, to whom she said, "You never had a father." As I looked at her I thought, "If that is the result of twenty years in Christian Science, I do not want it."

They look down upon marriage, and when a couple marries, they lose caste. They claim marriage is not necessary for reproduction, and I have heard of at least three children that have been born without fathers. They do not hesitate to separate husband and wife, for they say Christian Science is the second coming of Christ, when "there is no marriage nor giving in marriage." While they pretend to be doing so much good, and look so happy and have such sweet dispositions and do not think evil, etc., if their belief were generally put into practice, there would follow indescribable horror and darkest paganism. What comfort is there in just trying to believe you are not suffering, you are not ill, you are not troubled, you are not struggling with poverty? What will you do when the darkness comes and terrors sweep over your soul, and you have no God to go to? Mrs. Eddy says you might as well pray the principle of mathematics to solve the problem as to ask God to do anything for you; and she says: "God is not influenced by man. The divine ear is not an auditory nerve. The habit of pleading with the divine mind as one pleads with a human being perpetuates the belief in God as humanly circumscribed—an error which impedes spiritual growth" (Page 2, S. and H.).

How I Got Out of It

A Christian minister came to see me and tried by argument, with open Bible, to convince me that Christian Science was wrong, but I refused to listen, and thought he was in darkness and that I had a superior understanding of the Bible and the science of being. When he quoted God's Word I scoffed at it, and felt superior and exalted in my possession of the real truth, as I then supposed. I now never argue with one who is thoroughly entrapped, for I know from experience that you might as well talk to the north wind. They do not believe God's Word, so there is nothing you can do; one cannot convince a person who does not believe God, or has a distorted idea of Him. This man of God came three times, but to no purpose. Who sent him, or where he came from, or what his name was, I never knew, but I know he prayed for me, for I began to see something was wrong. There was a feeling of unrest and distrust that I could not explain, but I kept on reading the literature and still counted it food for my soul.

Some time after I went to Boston to the dedication of the Christian Science Temple, and while there I saw the sham and hypocrisy, the display of feathers, and elegant apparel, and jewelry, and it came over me that this parade was not the real religion of the meek and lowly Nazarene, but a deception and a fraud.

Why did Mrs. Eddy, who claimed to be so superior to Christ Himself and able to heal all manner of diseases, not come forth, and heal and comfort her followers who came from the ends of the earth to pay tribute to her shrine? But she was conspicuous by her absence, and we were told not to go to her home (which was a few miles away), as she did not want her people to make any demonstration over the material, but to think only of the spiritual. Crowds went just to get a glimpse of her as she took her daily drive, but they were silent when they came back. I learned afterwards that she was a poor, palsied, old woman, not able to even ride out, but had a substitute to take her place, and when she died, contrary to her teaching, still her dupes did not desert the cause, but are increasing every day.

Visiting the "Mother Church"

The temple was very beautiful, and there were no colored glass windows, but all was a blending of gray and white, as I remember it. The architecture was embellished with Masonic emblems. I wondered what there was about that order that was Christian, and learned that Mrs. Eddy was very partial to them, as they, at one time, helped her out of some trouble. Above the pulpit was a quotation from "Science and Health" and on the opposite side one from the Bible. You will find that in all of their churches. The first Sunday in Boston, some of the Scientists went for a ride and there was an accident and several of them were hurt, which made them the laughing-stock of the common crowd. It made quite a commotion, and some, in sending papers to their friends, cut out the part which described the accident.

There was a room in the old church called "Mother's" room, and the crowds approached that room as though they were treading on holy ground, with bared head and reverent step and hushed voices. It made a deep impression on me. I was not permitted to enter, but felt I was in a very sacred place.

While on that trip I was in great physical distress, and thought that while so many were together who were agreed that there was no disease, I would surely be healed; but as one after another gave me treatment with no results, and I was "nothing bettered, but rather grew worse," I began to be weakened in my faith.

They had many things to sell, and among them souvenir spoons, with the temple in the bowl and Mrs. Eddy's head on the handle. They sold for $3.50 and $4.00 each, and all Scientists were supposed to buy at least one, and those who could afford it were to buy a dozen. They also sold pictures of Mrs. Eddy, never less than a dollar.

All of these things began to affect me, and when I arrived home, I felt impelled to go to my brother and tell him it was all wrong. At first I hesitated, realizing something of the trouble I would get into, but could not get away from the fact that I ought to go. Finally I went to his office and told him how he was hypnotized and misled. I do not remember all I said but it was enough as circumstances proved. He thanked me for it, and said, "If you see a snake coiled at my feet, that I do not see, and do not tell me, you are responsible for my life." If I had stopped there, it may be this article never would have been written, but I had a little controversy with three others about something they had said or done, and I went to see them. They denied everything, as they are taught to do in their sinless (?) religion. Then I went to the head of the church and told her a few things that I did not like in one of her professions. She tried to convince me that she was right, and from that day there was a battle royal between the Scientists and myself.

A Battle Royal

The head of the church went to my brother and told him that I was not his sister, but only error, evil, a lie, etc., and the other names they use of people they do not like. A few days later, my brother came to my house in wrath, and told me I had made up all I had said, and ordered me to never darken his door again. I was so astonished that I could only stare at him, for he was greatly beloved, and had never given me a cross word before. He was so angry that he trembled, and as he walked out I thought "good-bye," but could not say a word. Some time after, I met his wife on the street car and she would not speak to me. You hear on all sides how sweet they are, and how they think no evil—that is when you are on their side, but turn against them, and they will give you the "death treatment." As my brother was the first reader in the church, he had the privilege of sending mental waves against me and to try to think me out of existence. He acknowledged it to me afterwards and said that they take up all their enemies in that way every morning. He said that is what opened his eyes, and he came to the conclusion that a thing that pretended to be religious and made one deny his own sister, was not from God. It worked for good after all.

Just how much I was affected by it, or whether I was affected by it at all, I cannot say, for I was sick before. But I do know that I got worse and finally went to a hospital and was only saved through prayer. God raised up people to pray for me.

One day, about three months after my brother had told me never to darken his door again, he sent for me to come to his office, and when I came he treated me kindly and said, "You were right, I was hypnotized, and when I tried to get away, it was like getting out of a steel trap." They had a large sum of money which they considered a present from him, and when asked to give it back, they refused and sent one after another to try to induce him to let them keep it, but the more they talked, the angrier he got, until finally he said, "I will give you until ten o'clock tomorrow morning to bring it back, or I will begin suit." And not until they knew he meant it, did they return the loan.

An Appeal to Pastors

While I knew they were wrong, and turned against them, I did not know how they were wrong, and was not free from its power by any means, but God was working, and one day, while sitting in the silence of my own home, I heard a voice which said, "you are feeding on husks." I was not frightened, but on picking up the New Thought paper I was reading, my eyes were opened and the scales fell from them in less time than it takes to tell it, and I said "How could I read that folly?" What a miracle had been performed that one should come from heathen darkness to the light of God so soon? In that moment I heard the voice of the Son of God and lived. Oh, praise His name! Why He took the trouble to do that wonderful work in me and for me, I do not know, I only know that from that day to this, I have been a humble follower of the blessed Saviour of the world, my Lord and Master Jesus Christ. But while I lived and stood upon my feet at the sound of His voice, I was bound hand and foot with grave clothes like Lazarus. As He said to the people standing near, "Loose him, and let him go," so He spoke to some of His faithful ones who were led to pray for me. But I was not free at once. I went around like an interrogation point asking, "What is the difference between Christian Science and the true religion?" Some tried to explain, but gave me no light; some made light of it, and others thought it was not worth noticing. But that is where they are greatly mistaken. I appeal to pastors to wake up and see what their people are believing rather than what they are doing, for it does its deadly work in the church and carries off the choicest of the flock, and possibly the pastor himself, without a protest from any one.

After several months of fruitless search, one day a little tract was put into my hand entitled "The Masterpiece of Satan," by St. Clements, and after reading that I said, "Now I see the difference between Christian Science and the true religion." I thank the author now for that message from God, and with his permission, will quote from it the passages that helped me. He goes on to explain how Satan calls his workers together and tells them he is going to create a church of his own, "which will so counterfeit the genuine, that it cannot be detected save by experts in the knowledge of God. Supernatural works and all the graces and beauties of Christianity will be its credentials to men. It will heal the sick. It will teach love, joy, humility, peace, gentleness, long-suffering, patience, etc., and nearly all the fruit of the Spirit of God. All this will be done in the name of Christ. It will even emphasize the study of the Bible, which I will interpret by a key. Its membership will be given a peace and rest such as I have never yet conferred upon my worshipers, I will place confidence in their hearts, oil upon their tongues, and a radiance upon their faces. It would deceive even you demons who helped organize it, were you not privy to its formation." Satan continues, "None of these things which I have named are essential to salvation. I propose to appropriate the fruits of salvation, and leave the salvation out. I will conceal the essentials of salvation from the people by allowing them to suppose they have them. There are but two. The first is that Jesus Christ is deity and the second is belief in His shed blood. We will tell them that Jesus is the Son of God, but that they, also, are sons of God, and as they become exalted in their own opinions consequent upon this teaching, the necessity of exalting the doctrine of the deity of Jesus will disappear. Thinking they worship Jesus, they will be really worshipping themselves, which is equivalent to worshipping me." But he is asked, "How can you hide the blood? From lid to lid, the Bible is full of that." Satan replies, "The Scriptures declare that 'the blood is the life,' we will ring the changes upon this, and by the time we get through with it, the blood will have disappeared and the life only remain. We will continually show forth the beauties in the life and character of Jesus and discount the value of His sacrifice and death. We will also show how shocking to refined sensibilities is the thought of blood. When questioned concerning the blood, we will simply declare that the blood is the life, and it is the life we are after. And now," continued Satan, "you will admit that so long as the membership of our church do not believe in the deity of Christ and the blood atonement for sin, they may believe and practice everything else in the Bible and still belong to us. My church is called the Church of Christ (Scientist)," said Satan.

The fact that I now knew the difference between Christian Science and the true religion did not set me free, it only removed one of the grave-wrappings which had held me in a death grip. God sent two of His servants, both missionaries, to my home to pray for me, and as we knelt, one on either side of me, they poured out their hearts to God for me with such earnestness and fervor as one seldom hears. Still I was not free, only another death hold removed. Finally, as I was suffering physically and mentally, God sent a neighbor, a godly woman, who told me that if I did not leave home I would die, and she knew a rest home where people could go and be prayed for and refreshed in Spirit. I went, and God was present there in mighty power. I feasted at the King's table, and listened to the instruction of the servants of God who had charge of the home, and as the Word was unfolded to me, and I beheld, for the first time, God's wonderful plan of salvation, and how He was working it out, I would go to my room and fall on my face and praise Him for His wonderful works to the children of men.

NONE KILLED IN THE EUROPEAN WAR

Although for six months the greatest war of the world's history has been raging with unprecedented fury on two great 300-mile battle fronts in Europe, not a solitary person has yet been killed or even wounded—in the columns of the "Christian Science Monitor." We have not, it is true, read every issue of this excellent journal since the war began, but we have made thorough search in and about the columns of several issues and have failed to discover any killed or wounded. Plenty of prisoners and guns are taken, but the shrapnel and bullets never hit anybody. The phrase, "heavy losses," is the nearest that the "Christian Science Monitor" comes to speaking of that illusion of mortal mind—death. We wish that Mr. Alfred Farlow would tell us in simple, de-Eddyized Anglo-Saxon just what the attitude of the leaders of Christian Science thought is in relation to the war, especially how they look upon the work of the Red Cross.—"The Standard," Chicago.

His "well done" is worth a shipful of "good-days" and earthly honors.—Rutherford.

Working for Souls Among the English "Tommys"

By Mrs. Ralph C. Norton

AT THE outbreak of the war in August, 1914, among many disrupted plans were those of the Chapman-Alexander Party for evangelistic work in Great Britain. A whole season's schedule of work had to be cancelled. It came about, that during the months of October, November and December, it was given to my husband and myself to have the great privilege of devoting our time to evangelistic work among the soldiers in Great Britain and France, principally successful through the medium of intercession.

A brief account of the work of the past year may be of interest, as future work will doubtless follow the same general lines, except that now the Y. M. C. A. has put its marquees, or recreation halls, in many of the bases in France, so rendering it possible to reach the soldiers fresh from the trenches, as they are constantly passing back and forth through these bases. And how eager they are for the message of salvation!

Ralph Norton and the "Tommys" Before a Shelled Building in France in the training camps for recruits in England, and under the direction of the Y. M. C. A. In these meetings, in some twenty different camps, we saw over 1,000 men take a straight-out stand for Christ. The work at the time so gripped us, and the daily consciousness of the opportunity across the sea has so clung to us, that after much prayerful consideration, we have decided to return to that field of service the last of May, to pursue the same line of work until the end of the war.

In forthcoming numbers of this magazine we hope to bring to its readers fresh reports of our work across the sea, and thus stimulate the prayers and interest of those of God's children who perchance can not render such service, but who can make the work possible and "Tell me," my husband asked one wounded soldier back from the front, who, with bandaged head and arm, had clambered stiffly into our compartment in a train bound from London to an outlying suburb; "tell me what you and the other men first think when you file into the trenches for the first time." The soldier's lips closed grimly. "We think of God and our sins," he replied tersely. Many another soldier back from the front has told us a similar story. One said that although his battalion filed into the trenches singing a music hall ditty, that when they were entrenched and the shells began to burst overhead, that he has seen a whole line of men fall on their knees in prayer. So it was to such men with the thought of death constantly before them, that we went with the message of salvation.

Our meetings were all similar in character. Whether held at Epsom among the university and high school men, or at Woking among men from London's East End, the same message was given and the same songs and choruses sung, and the wonderful part was that everywhere was there the same response.

At Epsom the first man to press forward and declare his willingness to accept Christ was a young fellow in monogrammed coat, and as he shook hands, he slipped a pound note into my husband's hand. "God bless you for what you have done tonight," he said, "and use this to help with your work elsewhere."

Always as we went to a camp for a night meeting, a telegram from the Y. M. C. A. headquarters in London would have preceded us, announcing to the men our coming—but as we entered the tent, or marquee, we had to create our own atmosphere. The air was almost invariably blue with tobacco smoke, and the men busied writing letters, drinking tea, reading or chatting. Sometimes we had to break up an impromptu concert which consisted mainly of "Tipperary" repeated indefinitely. My husband would walk to the platform, announce the meeting, ask some men to volunteer with the distributing of the little song books, which we always carried down with us, then he would say, "Now Mrs. Norton is going to sing a little chorus for you men, and I want you to listen carefully as I shall ask you all to sing it in a moment." I would sing it once or twice, and in an incredibly short time they would all be singing it. Then we would sing the "Glory Song," and for a solo, I would give them "Tell Mother I'll Be There," for those two songs, above all others, are the soldiers' favorites. Then would follow a short address, and by that time pipes and cigarettes would be forgotten and many a soldier's cheeks would be wet with unwonted tears at the song of mother love. In the address care would be taken not to minimize the dangers to which they were going, as in many cases, we talked to men of regiments who were to leave for the front the morning after. Also mention would be made of the great soldiers of England whose greater allegiance had been to Jesus Christ. Then would come the appeal to men sobered and quieted in a hush of the Spirit's own making—and they would come forward one or two at a time until I have seen as many as 300 crowding into the aisle to declare their acceptance of Christ. And as they gripped Mr. Norton's hand one would say, "I have prayed the seven-worded prayer tonight, 'God be merciful to me a sinner,'" and another would say, "A great burden has been lifted from me tonight, I'm going to write my old mother tomorrow and tell her—she's been praying for me for years."

At Bedford we saw forty-seven stalwart Highlanders of the Argyle and Sutherland regiment come forward, and at Caterham, where were quartered the six-foot Grenadier, Coldstream and Scots Guards, pride of the British Army, over eighty of those splendid soldiers pressed their way forward to the acceptance of Christ. Truly a wonderful privilege to work with these men, and one carrying its own great reward.

Later I hope to tell you of the work in hospitals and of the distribution of God's Word among the soldiers in England and France.

THE DEADLY GUN

Oh, thou old gun! thou deadly gun!
In taking life thy fame was won!
Of all destructive engines made—
The knife or spear, or trusty blade—
No one of all the host we see,
Nor all combined, can equal thee!
From tiniest bore to inches wide
Art ever found the slayer's pride.

Conceived in man's desire to slay,
Red seas of blood have marked thy way.
Proud arm art thou of all the rest
Hast done thy deadly work the best;
Is not thine only worth today
Thy fearful power to maim and slay?
What other thing beneath the sun
Whose only use is such an one?

Thou fruitful cause of human woe,
What other fruits hast thou to show?
Hast ever wiped away a tear,
Or brightened face of anguish here?
Art thou a source of greatest good,
Promoting peace and brotherhood?
But, no! we must arraign thee sore
And wish on earth thy reign were o'er.

Ah! could we sink this mighty arm,
Allay in man its power to charm,
What burglar then would ply his trade,
Or warrior e'er again parade?
Poor Europe too would stand aghast,
Her bloody conflicts stilled at last;
Would not these fearful earth-wars cease
And nations hail the Prince of Peace?

—A. A. Johnson.

Jewish Christians Getting Together

By Rev. S. B. Rohold, F. R. G. S.,

President of the Hebrew Christian Alliance of America

THE united leadership of Hebrew Christians has long been felt to be its clamant need. Every true Hebrew Christian's heart yearns for union, and for a fellowship with his brethren who have left Judaism and become humble followers of the lowly Nazarene, Jesus, the Christ of God. But this is not merely a sentimental racial affection. The loyal ones from within Israel know that the Hebrew Christians suffer from a fearful malady, that of being internally divided. The Hebrew Christian is misunderstood. The Gentile Christians often misunderstand him, and he misunderstands them. He is often led away into the wilderness and left alone, and tempted by the devil. But even this is nothing compared with the internal malady of being "divided."

This cankerous disease of petty jealousies and silly strifes has been rampant; it is eating away at the very heart; it has robbed the happiness of many a loyal Hebrew Christian, and frustrated all their noble efforts and self-sacrificing labors.

More than this, this want of united leadership opened a wide door for "the little foxes that spoil the vines." Black sheep posing as converts are with an amazing brazenness marauding this continent, defrauding the guileless Christian, yea, even the church, by their plausible, invented stories, such as claiming to be ex-rabbis, etc. Ministers, by giving their pulpits to these impostors, are exposing their people and actually aiding this fearful imposition, and the result is that Jewish missions, otherwise so successful, have been blighted, and are fallen in the estimation of the church in general. Jewish missions have no place in aggressive missionary programmes.

This awful situation has at last become the burden of all true and loyal Hebrew Christians and the absorbing theme of all their prayers; with the result that they gave themselves to fostering and advocating their cherished hope. Three preliminary meetings were convened, one at Pittsburgh, one at New York and one at Brooklyn. Officers were appointed, and propaganda inaugurated calling for prayerful, united action. The response was most gratifying, and the whole condition so matured, resulted in sending out "The Call for The Conference."

The Conference

Within the Assembly Hall, United Charities Building, New York, April 6-9, the Hebrew Christian Alliance of America held its first conference, and those who were privileged to be present, firmly believe that it has changed the history of Hebrew Christians on this continent. It is just such events that alter the current of history. The noble ideas conceived by some noble souls, slowly trickle down from the few, into the hearts of the many, until they become part of life and decide the future of nations and ages.

The conference was comprehensive, representative and united. The subjects deliberated were not matters of petty doctrines or church government, but vital questions affecting the life and existence of Jewish missionary enterprise. From the first session there was a spirit of expectancy, which was kindled into a true spirit of devoted enthusiasm, in the hearts of all.

The delegates came from distances—Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Texas, Tennessee, Georgia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and the Provinces of Canada. All the large cities of the United States and Canada and almost all missions were represented. There were messages of encouragement and greetings from the London Jews' Society; Bishop Arthur Lloyd; the Federal Council of Churches; Dr. John R. Mott, Chairman Continuation Committee; Rev. W. R. Hogue, Baltimore; Rev. A. Merzel, Chairman Board of F. M. German Evangelical Synod; The New York Board of Presbyterian Missions; The Congregational and Methodist Boards of Home Missions; The Toronto Branch of the Hebrew Christian Alliance, and Mr. Daniel Rose, Cincinnati. A deputation from the Federal Council of Churches was welcomed by the president, consisting of Dr. Albert G. Lawson; Dr. Charles L. Thompson; Dr. Rivingston D. Lord, and Dr. Charles MacFarland, Secretary, who in introducing the deputation, reminded us that the Council represented thirty Protestant bodies with perhaps 150,000 churches, and something like 17,000,000 church members.

The members of the deputation expressed their delight at being present and meeting with so many Hebrew Christians, and assured us of their true sympathy and sincere co-operation, and that they would encourage the Alliance by every means in their power. They have also agreed to bring before the Council of Churches for favorable consideration, the following resolution:

"Be it resolved, that the Hebrew Christian Alliance of America request the Federal Council of Churches in America to urge upon the evangelical churches of this land, the observance of an annual Day of Prayer for Israel; and we suggest the Day of Atonement, or the Sunday preceding the Day of Atonement, as a suitable day for the purpose of prayer and intercession on that solemn occasion."

Among other representatives welcomed by the conference, were Mr. Delevan L. Pierson, editor-in-chief of "The Missionary Review of the World"; Mr. Gilbert A. Beaver; Dr. McKenzie; Dr. Tyndall and Dr. Shriver.

The subjects discussed were: (1) Co-operation between different Jewish missions and the Christian churches. (2) Modern needs of the Jewish people. (3) Training of Jewish workers. (4) Conservation of converts. A constitution and by-laws were discussed and adopted; officers were elected and important resolutions were adopted, which will be the guide and policy of the Alliance.

The amount of work accomplished and the good spirit that prevailed through the conference, were remarkable. Here were gathered together a group of Jews, belonging, according to birth and the ties of citizenship, to all the belligerent nations, where Jew is killing Jew in this fearful titanic struggle of the nations for supremacy, and we were at perfect harmony with never a whisper of war, excepting in prayer when we interceded with our Heavenly Father, that He may be pleased to restore peace speedily and that His kingdom of peace may come.

Every morning an hour was given to devotion, and from the first the messages had a sweet savor, and a spiritual atmosphere was realized. The speakers knew that this Alliance could only be made possible by a spiritual uplifting, and a real Christ-union of the Hebrew Christians, which is the only medium of true Christian development, forcing into a true union. A new covenant with the Lord and with the Hebrew Christian, was the burning theme of many Spirit-filled messages. The result was that towards the end of the conference the brethren did not want a nominal union, and tangible expression was given as we sat down to that never-to-be-forgotten Supper of the Lord, before we separated, perhaps never to meet again. The President (Presbyterian) conducted the communion service; Rev. A. R. Kuldell (Lutheran) gave the address; Rev. A. Lichtensteir (Baptist), Rev. S. Needleman (Methodist) and Captain Hirschler (Salvationist), acted as elders. Those partaking of the elements included Presbyterians, Anglicans, Reformed, United Presbyterians, Methodists, Congregationalists, Baptists, Christian Missionary Alliance, Lutherans, Brethren, and some we could not classify. Our hearts were thus visibly united—British, German, French, Austrian, Russian, Arabian and American, celebrating this most holy ordinance, instituted by our blessed Lord Himself: "One in faith, one in doctrine, one in charity." But we were not careless, for no one can become a member of the Alliance unless he has signed the following Profession of Faith, indicating his doctrinal beliefs:

1. The deity of the Lord Jesus Christ; His virgin birth; His vicarious atonement for our sins; His resurrection; His ascension and His session at the right hand of God.

2. That all Scripture is given by inspiration of God (1 Tim. 3: 16).

3. The Messianic prophecies of the Old Testament, pointing to our Lord Jesus.

Results

The Hebrew Christian cannot go back to live the same life as before. New depths of spiritual experiences and of consecration to the work of Christ have been sounded.

The Information and Investigation Committee will keep the church informed through the Federal Council of Churches and other channels of authority, of impostors and any other abuses. Individuals pretending to carry on work and not actually doing it, will be called to account, and none of such can afford to ignore us, for this committee will have the means of communication throughout the country, and in this way will be a means of remedying a great many wrongs.

The Missionary Committee will reach the ear of the Christian church, calling attention to needy fields, and will secure a place for Jewish missions on her missionary programme. The committee will recommend consecrated Hebrew Christians to ripe fields of labor. Consecrated young Hebrew Christians, who have received the call for service, will be guided and aided to secure the needed education.

The officers and Executive Committee will keep in constant touch with the different committees to carry out the different resolutions passed at the conference, the conservation of converts, uniting them into a corporate testimony, to raise and uplift the spiritual standard of the Hebrew Christian, and to encourage them to come out openly and boldly in their confession of Christ.

All the delegates to the Hebrew Christian Alliance pledged themselves to go from strength to strength in the name of our blessed Lord, using all the powers our loving Heavenly Father has granted to them, to labor for the cause. The Hebrew Christian is in very deed making a great effort to lift himself from this awful humiliating position, to be a real living testimony for Christ and His gospel. God has in very deed been with us during this conference, and so we have perfect confidence for the future. He sent His salvation from Zion: assuredly He will send peace upon His people.

New York, noted for its sins and follies, has become fragrant with blessed memories to us all, inviting us to a closer walk with God, and to a deeper realization of the Holy Spirit's power as the Christian's heritage.

How a Live City Solves the Problem of the Bible in the Public Schools

By Rev. James M. Johnson

Pastor of the First Reformed Church, Gary, Ind.

(Requested for publication by the Editors)

THE principle upon which this work is based, is that the public school has no right to take the pupils during all the hours when instruction can most easily be given them. Realizing this, Superintendent William A. Wirt gave to the churches of Gary an opportunity to give definite instructions to their children, which was readily grasped by the different churches represented here. Some of the denominations had men sent in to give their entire time to developing the work.

The Gary school system is such that at different periods during the day pupils can be dismissed for an hour at a time at periods from 8:15 a. m. to 3:15 p. m., for definite religious instructions during either an auditorium or play, and at times an application, period. At present it is impossible to have grades dismissed separately and so several pupils of the same grade have to be taken into the same class; however, this is not a serious difficulty. The plan for the next year is to have all high school grades together; sixth, seventh and eighth grades together, fourth and fifth together, third grade pupils by themselves, and first and second together. Each class will be divided into two sections because of the dual feature of the school system.

Results so far have demonstrated that the plan is practicable. In the short time that the work has been carried on, much has been accomplished. The course of study as carried out by myself is, in giving the main teaching (in story form) of the Bible, commencing with Genesis, and going through. In addition to this method, teaching in order and worship, both as to word and song, is given; also an interest in missions is aroused by a study of the needs, etc., of the missions, and, greater than all, the need of Jesus Christ in the lives of the pupils. To this work, I give two days, Tuesday and Thursday, having a class at 8:15 a. m. and the next 3:15 p. m. giving three-quarters of an hour each time, the other fifteen minutes being required to return to school.

Not all the difficulties have been eliminated, but the interest shown by the pupils, and the co-operation from the home and school, and the amount of instruction that can be given, also the marked school atmosphere plus that of the church, proves the inestimable value of the plan. In the words of Rev. Mr. Owens, religious instructor for the Presbyterian denomination, "It is undoubtedly here to stay, and to be perfected."

Religious Errors and Their Starting Points

By Rev. Martin Anstey, A. M., B. D.

Errors which have their starting point in the truth, running on the one hand to ritualism, and on the other to rationalism.

THE TRUTH

Ritualism
Pharisee
Roman Catholic Authority, the Church
Seventh Day Adventists

Jew
Christian Protestantism
Bible
Calvinist
Arminian

Rationalism
Sadducee
Unitarian Reason Universalist

High Tractarian

Low
Evangelistic Revival
Bible School Movement
Keswick Movement, etc.

Broad Higher Criticism

(Cardinal Newman)

PAGANISM

Errors which have their starting point outside the truth.

Under the cloak of Christianity:

* Millennial Dawn
Christian Science

Openly Pagan:

Spiritism—frivolous, fraudulent, real.
Theosophy—an enlarged Spiritism.

[* We would question this classification, believing this error has its starting point in the truth.—Editors.]

Practical and Perplexing Questions

Answered by the Editors

LIFE INSURANCE

Question: Does Matthew 6: 25-30 condemn life insurance?

Answer: We think not. The words, "take no thought," are rendered in the Revised Version, "be not anxious," and the carrying of life insurance need not indicate anxiety but only prudent foresight. 1 Timothy 5: 8 may be taken to commend life insurance as a provision for our families after death.

SALVATION OF ISRAEL

Question: What is meant by the expression, "All Israel shall be saved" (Rom. 11:26)?

Answer: Paul does not mean by this every Israelite that ever lived. He is referring to the nation of Israel as it shall be existing on the earth in the day of which he speaks. This is the day of the return of our Lord and the ushering in of the millennium. It will be a sudden and miraculous occurrence brought about doubtless by the appearance of our Lord before them much as He manifested Himself to Saul en route to Damascus (Acts 9). See Zechariah 14:4; Revelation 1:7 and kindred Scriptures.—"Bible Problems Explained."

WOMAN'S COVERING IN 1 CORINTHIANS 11

Question: What did the Holy Spirit mean in 1 Corinthians 11, where He speaks of a woman being covered, does he refer to her hair, or was it a covering besides her hair? When should this covering be put on?

Answer: The covering was artificial, and with Hebrew women it was the "talitha" or veil, a covering that is used still. The time of using it would be at worship, as indicated by verse 13. The propriety of wearing it would vary according to local custom. The instruction of the apostle should be interpreted by good sense and Christian intelligence.

THE HOLY CITY DURING THE MILLENNIUM

Question: If Christ brings the saints of all the ages with Him at His second coming, will the earth be large enough to contain them?

Answer: As we understand it, the glorified saints will not dwell on the earth during the millennium, but in the holy city, the New Jerusalem, which will be over the earth at that time; the saints, however, will have access to both heaven and earth. However, the millennial earth will doubtless afford room for more inhabitants than the present earth because of great physical changes (Isaiah 11 and 35; Amos 9:13; Rom. 8:18-22). Indeed, there is plenty of room on the earth at present for a great many more people than it holds.

THE DIVINITY OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

Question: In answer to the question "When Christ comes will the Holy Spirit go back to the Father?" you give answer, "Always remember that the Holy Spirit is Himself God, the Third Person of the Adorable Trinity." Will you please explain where I shall find that in the Bible? Shall I take the Bible or the "Westminster Confession of Faith" for authority?

Answer: The Holy Spirit is God because to Him belong divine attributes (Heb. 9: 14; Luke 1:35; 1 Cor. 2:10, 11; John 16:13); because He performs divine works (Job 35: 4; Ps. 104: 30; 2 Sam. 23: 2, 3); and because His name is so coupled with the name of the Father that He must be God (1 Cor. 12: 4-6; Matt. 28: 19; 2 Cor. 13: 14).

The "Westminster Confession of Faith" is one of the great historic formulas of Christian belief, but the only authority it has is agreement with the Bible. The Bible is above individual judgment, creeds, councils, and the universal church.

UNIVERSAL SALVATION

Question: In 1 Corinthians 15:21, 22, it says that death came by one man and life by another, that all die in Adam and all shall be made alive in Christ. Does that mean that all shall be saved? We are all sinners because of Adam's fall, and we have no voice in the matter, whether we wish to be sinners or not. Now it seems to me that all will be saved—Christ died for all. But some object and say that, inasmuch as we fall under sin through Adam, we cannot be saved unless we accept Christ. It seems strange to me that we are all through one man counted sinners, and have no voice in the matter, but cannot be saved unless we say we wish to, or accept Christ. I think that, as we all fall under sin through Adam, logically we all come under salvation through Christ. Christ's death offsets the sin of Adam, of which we all partake. Do the verses quoted bear me out, or am I wrong?

Answer: Adam represents the race of man as naturally springing from him, and Christ represents a spiritual race that springs from Him. Adam's descendants are natural, according to the flesh, Christ's are spiritual, according to the power of the Holy Spirit. There are two distinct companies, one dying in Adam, the other being made alive in Christ. Paul is here not speaking of the resurrection of all men, but only of those who "are Christ's" (v. 23).

The objection that man is condemned because he did not have a voice in the matter is but one phase of the objection constantly made to God's dealings with men, and for which He does not give reasons. If we use the argument that, because we are condemned without our voice in Adam, we ought to be saved without our voice in Christ, it would logically follow that, if a man is constitutionally weak without his consent, God is under obligation to make him strong without going to a physician.

Universalism is not taught in the Bible, when its teachings are considered as a whole.

WHAT WE THINK OF BILLY SUNDAY

Question: What do you think of Billy Sunday as an evangelist? Do his converts stick? I cannot get used to his vulgar style. Is it true that he took $75,000 for his work at Pittsburgh? I can not see how a man can have power with God and take that amount for his labor.

Answer: We think well of Billy Sunday and believe his converts stick as well as the average. If converts do not stick, it is not always the fault of the evangelist. Sometimes "converts" are not converted, for even Peter was deceived in Simon Magus (Acts 8). Then again they may be converted without at first uniting with a church, and backslide through lack of instruction and discipline. Or, uniting with a church, they may not receive the spiritual nourishment requisite to growth in grace and hence relapse, temporarily at least, into ways of sin. The evangelist has done his part when he moves the convert to openly confess Christ and puts him in touch with some church, but after that he can hardly be held responsible for him.

As to Billy Sunday's "style," there are others who cannot get used to it, but it certainly attracts and pleases the multitude. His "vulgarity" may not be as bad to listen to as to read in print, and we must remember that this is a "vulgar" age, and his style may be as truly suited to it as the style of his predecessors may have been suited to the times in which they lived.

We do not know how much money he received at Pittsburgh, or anywhere else, and are inclined to make great allowances for what the newspapers say on that score. However, this is not offered in apology for greed or commercialism in connection with the preaching of the gospel, which we deplore, but because we are not in possession of all the facts. On the other hand, the people who give the money to Mr. Sunday are not complaining, and as to whether God's power is resting upon him notwithstanding, our inquirer is as well able to judge as we. Certainly some of the best and most thoughtful Christians in our land today believe such to be the case.

THE DIFFERENT CREEDS

Question: The Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist and Congregational churches have different creeds, and yet all claim to be founded on the Bible.

The Presbyterians believe that some have been elected of God without faith, but according to His foreknowledge, while all other people are lost if not in the church of the elect.

The Methodists believe in the election of faith in Jesus Christ and through obedience to the call of the Holy Spirit, also that it is possible to fall from grace and be lost.

The Baptists believe in immersion, while the rest of the churches believe in sprinkling.

The Congregationalists choose their creed from the Bible as the individual likes.

Now, which is right? May the Catholics claim the same right to believe in their creed?

Answer: These questions are somewhat involved in character, and based on partially erroneous views of the different churches, and we can reply to them only in a general way.

In the first place, the fact that all these churches get their creeds from the Bible proves that they regard it as the sole source of authority, and therefore our inquirer should follow their example and go there to see for himself which is right.

In the second place, the Presbyterians do not believe that any one is saved without faith in Christ; but it goes without saying that God knows all things, and hence He knows who will be saved, so that in that sense the saved are the elect, while if any are not saved they are not among the elect.

As to the Methodists, it is indeed true that they believe it is possible to fall from grace and be lost, and it is a good thing they do, because they keep the Presbyterians and some of the rest of us who do not agree with them from being sure of salvation to the danger point.

In the same way we are grateful that the Baptists believe in immersion as the form of baptism while others are satisfied with sprinkling, because their insistence upon it keeps us all thinking on the subject, and saves us from disregarding the ordinance of baptism altogether, as might be the case. We believe this difference of view is somehow of God, and a means of grace to us all.

It is no more true that the Congregationalists choose their creed from the Bible as the individual likes, than it is of the Presbyterians, Methodists and Baptists. In other words, if any of these are really intelligent and thoughtful in the matter, they will join those churches not because other people join them, but because their creed in the given case seems to them nearest in its expression to the Word of God. Of course the Roman Catholics have the same right, whether they exercise it or not.

These differences of creeds is a splendid testimony to the truth and to Christian unity, and ought to make the man of the world think. Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Congregationalists, all believe the Bible is the Word of God, and that Christ is the Son of God and the only Saviour of men. They believe men are lost outside of Christ, and that faith in Him is necessary to salvation. In fact they believe alike on all the great fundamentals, and leave the sinner, the skeptic and the unbeliever without excuse.

SEVENTH DAY ADVENTISM, AND THE DOCTRINE OF THE TRINITY

Some time ago we were asked to summarize the doctrines of Seventh Day Adventism and in our reply remarked, that "they reject the doctrine of the trinity, which involves the deity of Christ, though this is not stated." The question and answer subsequently appeared in "Bible Problems Explained," by the editor, who recently has been taken to task for the remark by one of the ministers of that denomination. Out of the correspondence ensuing, we now feel it our duty to correct the error which then seems to have been made, and in doing so to publish herewith the substance of a letter from the minister referred to, the Rev. Lee S. Wheeler, of Detroit, Mich.:

"In answer to your inquiry if we have put out any official statement of our faith by which our position upon such questions may be ascertained, I have to reply that the denomination has declined to adopt such a creed; not from any difference of opinion, but purely that we may be free to walk in the light, as God may see fit to guide us in the future, by the Holy Spirit. Our teaching, however, upon all subjects as published in our regular church organs, as well as any book upon our faith issued by our publishing houses, can be taken as authority, since such publications are approved by the General Conference. I regard our position upon the trinity as in harmony with that of other evangelical Christians. The statement of the Baptist Church Manual, that, 'In the unity of the Godhead there are three persons, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost,' expresses our view.

"From a 'Special Testimony to Ministers and Workers, No. 10,' issued under the direction of the General Conference Committee, as far back as 1897, an article entitled 'Holy Spirit versus Selfishness,' I am pleased to quote to you as follows: 'The great office work of the Holy Spirit is thus distinctly specified by our Saviour. And when He is come, He will reprove the world of sin. * * * Evil had been accumulating for centuries, and could only be restrained and resisted by the mighty power of the Holy Spirit, the third person of the Godhead, who would come with no modified energy, but in the fulness of divine power' (p. 25).

"There is nothing ambiguous nor equivocal in the teaching among us upon any such subjects, and I think I can say that what I have given you upon this subject, as upon the deity of our Saviour, is the unanimous teaching of our ministry, as it is also of our seventy colleges, academies, and training schools."

In the last quoted paragraph, the correspondent alludes to what he had previously given us upon the subject of the deity of our Saviour. This consisted of quotations from standard publications of his denomination, as follows:

"While He was on earth as a man, He recognized His essential deity."—"Bible Readings for the Home Circle," p. 67. "As a personal being, God has revealed Himself in His Son. The outshining of the Father's glory 'and the express image of His person,' Jesus, as a personal Saviour, came to the world. As a personal Saviour, He ascended on high. As a personal Saviour, He intercedes in the heavenly courts. Before the throne of God in our behalf ministers 'One like unto the Son of man.'"—"Ministry of Healing," p. 419.

"So Christ was to come in 'the body of our humiliation,' 'in the likeness of men.' In the eyes of the world He possessed no beauty that they should desire Him; yet He was the incarnate God, the light of heaven and earth. His glory was veiled, His greatness and majesty were hidden, that He might draw near to sorrowful tempted men."—"The Desire of Ages," p. 24.

To Our Correspondents: We regret that we have been unable better to keep up with the number of questions sent us for answer and which have accumulated beyond expectation. We desire to give them all thoughtful consideration and to slight none, but as we can only afford about three pages of space for them, the problem is apparent. However, in our next issue we hope to double the space given to this department, and thus reply to a number of questions that have been waiting a long while.—Editors.

THE LAYMENS COMMENTARY ON THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS

Conducted By James M. Gray

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

Lesson 1

From the Resurrection of Christ to the Day of Pentecost Chapter 1

Following our plan in the preceding books, we waive the consideration of the human authorship of the Acts, and other questions of biblical introduction, and enter at once on the text. It is assumed from verses one and two, compared with the opening verses of the third gospel, that "Luke, the beloved physician" (Col. 4: 14), was the author chosen by the Holy Spirit. It is also assumed from verse two, that it is not so much the acts of the apostles he here records, as the acts of Jesus Christ through the apostles in the power of the Holy Spirit.

These two verses constitute the first division of our lesson. The second includes verses 3 to 11, being an outline of the events from the resurrection to the ascension. The features to note are: (a) the evidence of Christ's bodily resurrection in verse 3, accentuated by His mingling with the disciples for six weeks; (b) the teachings "pertaining to the kingdom of God," which are outlined in the verses immediately following (vv. 4-8); (c) the ascension (v. 9); (d) the promise of His return (vv. 10, 11). Under (b) our Lord taught three things: first, the distinction between receiving the Holy Spirit and the baptism of the Holy Spirit (vv. 4, 5); secondly, the distinction between the church of Christ and the kingdom of Israel (vv. 6, 7); and thirdly, the distinction between the evangelization and the conversion of the world (v. 8).

These disciples had previously received the Holy Spirit in regeneration or else they had not been His disciples at all (to say nothing of the specific experience in John 20: 22), yet they were to be "baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days hence." The kingdom of Israel promised in the Old Testament, and of which so much has been said in previous lessons, was not immediately to be set up, the church of Christ was to take its place for the time being, but that did not mean that the promise concerning it had failed. It was coming on the earth, but "the times" and the "seasons" were in the Father's keeping. Witnessing unto Christ was left for the disciples in the meantime, but nothing was said about waiting for the conversion of the world before that witness could have accomplished its purpose. As to the ascension, the probabity is that the "cloud" was not the vaporous material of which we are cognizant, but the Shekinah glory which overshadowed Christ on the Mount of Transfiguration. The testimony of the angels to His return shows that it will be a personal, in the sense of a visible, appearing.

The remainder of the chapter requires but little explanation. The "upper room" (v. 13) may have been the same as that in John 20: 19. Observe the presence of Mary and the brethren of Jesus (v. 14) with the others, and in no position of superiority whatever. The "scripture" Peter refers to (v. 20) is Psalms 69: 25 and 109: 8. That he should have been so intelligent and positive in his position is probably explained by such post-resurrection teaching of Jesus as in Luke 24: 27, 46, and verse 3 of this same chapter. There is no contradiction between verse 18 and Matthew 27: 5, as doubtless the rope broke, by which the traitor hanged himself. Notice the qualifications for an apostle (v. 21). The "lot" was legitimate at that time as the disciples were still on Old Testament ground (Prov. 16: 33), but for us to use it would not be equally so, as we have the complete Word of God and the Holy Spirit to lead us into the meaning of it.

Questions on the Lesson

1. Who was the human author of this book?
2. How does the text lead to that conclusion?
3. What four things are included in the second division of this lesson?
4. What three things did Jesus teach pertaining to the Kingdom of God?
5. What "cloud" may that have been in which our Lord ascended?
6. What is the testimony of the angels as to the character of His second coming?
7. What explains Peter's intelligent leadership in the choice of Matthias?

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

Lesson 2

The Formation of the Church Chapter 2

1. The descent of the Holy Spirit (vv. 1-4). "The Day of Pentecost" alludes to the Levitical feast, with which we became acquainted in the Old Testament. The word is Greek, meaning "fifty," the feast occurring fifty days after the offering of the barley sheaf in the Passover Feast. It commemorated the wheat harvest, and was sometimes called "the Feast of Harvest" (Exod. 33:16), or "the Feast of Weeks" (Exod. 34:22), or the "Day of the First Fruits" (Num. 28:26). After the Babylonian captivity it came to commemorate the giving of the law on Mt. Sinai. There is reason to believe that on this occasion it occurred on the Lord's Day, which explains the declaration in verse one. The "wind," the "tongues" and the "fire" were not the Holy Spirit, but the signs of His advent. Their being "filled with the Holy Ghost" was the fulfilment of Matthew 3:2, Luke 11:13, John 1:33; 7:37-39; 14:16, 17, Acts 1:5, etc. This was the gift of the Spirit, the promised Comforter, the baptism of the Holy Ghost. He came to dwell in the believers individually, and yet that individual indwelling by the one Spirit naturally resulted in a corporate work, uniting them all in one body which is the church of Christ (1 Cor. 12:13). Since that day, whenever a sinner believes on the Lord Jesus Christ, he shares in that baptism and becomes a member of that one body of which Christ is the head (1 Cor. 6:19; Eph. 1:23; 4:3-6). From a scriptural point of view, it is therefore improper for a believer to pray for the gift of the Spirit, or for a greater baptism of the Spirit, because these blessings are already his; but it is different with reference to being filled with the Spirit, if one may judge by Acts 4:8, 31; 6:5; 7:55; Ephesians 5:18.

2. The immediate effects (vv. 5-13). The first of these was given in verse four, the speaking "with other tongues as the Spirit gave them utterance"; the second was the coming together of the multitude in consequence of this, and the third, the conclusion the latter reached. As to the first, the thought is that the disciples, not of their own volition, but as instruments of the Holy Spirit, proclaimed not the gospel as such, but the praises of God in various languages heretofore unknown to them. Their act had been symbolized in the cloven tongues of fire that had sat upon each, and it prophesied that the Holy Spirit had come to make known through them the gospel to all nations under heaven. It is not likely that they continued thus to speak in different tongues. In Acts 10:46 it is referred to again as an evidence that the Gentiles had received the gift of the Holy Ghost the same as the Jews had on the Day of Pentecost, and in Acts 19:6 it shows that the Jewish disciples of John had received it, but beyond this it is not named further and these were all special and initial cases. The passage in 1 Corinthians 14 will be considered when it is reached. In the meantime a caution is necessary because phenomena of this character can so easily be counterfeited by evil spirits.

3. Peter's discourse (vv. 14-36). This may be divided at each of the verses where he directly addresses his hearers: "Ye men of Judea" (v. 14); "Ye men of Israel" (v. 22); "Men and brethren," or simply "Brethren," as the Revised Version puts it (v. 29). In the first division he disposes of the charge of drunkenness, and shows the relation of that which had occurred to the prophecy of Joel 2:28, 29. He does not say that Pentecost was a complete fulfilment of that prophecy, which will not take place until the end of the age, but it was a foretaste of it. In the second division, he describes the death of Christ and charges that sin upon them; and in the third, he affirms His resurrection as proven by the Scriptures, by the testimony of the disciples who were its eye-witnesses (Ps. 16), and by the event that was just transpiring.

4. The first converts (vv. 37-47).

Questions on the Lesson

1. What does "Pentecost" mean, and to what does the feast allude?
2. Have you re-examined the New Testament Scriptures which predicted this event?
3. How does 1 Corinthians 12:13 interpret this event?
4. What is the thought of verse four?
5. Of what was their act at once a symbol and a prophecy?
6. Why is a caution necessary about "speaking with tongues?"
7. Analyze Peter's discourse.

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

Lesson 3

The Offer of the Kingdom Renewed

Chapters 3-4:30

The disciples are still in Jerusalem, and the preaching is still limited to Jewish hearers, and in a sense we are still on Old Testament ground. An illustration of this is found in the previous lesson, for example, where in 2:38 to "repent, and be baptized" was essential "for the remission of sins," and to "receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." But this is no longer so when the Gentiles are being approached (10:44-48). The Jews who had openly rejected Jesus of Nazareth must openly accept Him in order to receive the blessing, but with the others grace deals in a different way. That is not to say that repentance and baptism are no longer necessary; indeed repentance is always involved in saving faith; but baptism now follows the gift of the Spirit as a sign of it, rather than precedes it as a condition. As a further illustration of Old Testament conditions the disciples are still worshipping in the Temple (v. 1), at one of whose gates this miracle occurs in the name of the rejected and now risen One (vv. 2-11). It is Peter's discourse in this case that justifies the title of this lesson, especially verses 19-26. This work had not been wrought in the names of the apostles but in Christ's name, whom they had crucified (vv. 12-16). This fulfilled prophecy (vv. 17-18) Let them now repent that the Lord may "send the Messiah who hath been appointed for you" (v. 20, R. V.). The inference from all this to the end of the chapter is that had they as a nation repented, the Messiah would have returned at that time to set up His kingdom in Israel.

But the opposite took place as indicated in the next chapter, the facts of which are, (a) the arrest of Peter and John (vv. 1-3); (b) their defense (vv. 5-12); (c) their threatening and their deliverance (vv. 13-22); (d) their return "to their own company" with the spiritual quickening that followed (vv. 23-30).

Questions on the Lesson

1. What is to be remembered in the study of this part of the Acts?
2. Give an illustration of this from the preceding chapter.
3. Also from this lesson.
4. What justifies the title of this lesson?
5. What inference is deducible from this?

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

Lesson 4

Varied Experiences

Chapters 4: 21-5

1. Unity of love (4: 31-37). The quickening mentioned in the last lesson was associated with another outpouring of the Holy Spirit, but not another "baptism," and some who had been filled before were refilled, with results following: (a) courage in preaching (v. 31); (b) unity of soul (v. 32); (c) power in testimony (v. 33); (d) love in practical conduct (vv. 34-37). This last result has sometimes been quoted as favoring Christian communism, but it is to be remembered that it was voluntary in origin, temporary in duration, and limited in its application. Where such communism is the result of the work of the Holy Spirit on regenerated hearts, and accompanied by such fruit as it here revealed, no one need have any apprehension in regard to it.

2. Pride and hypocrisy (vv. 1-11). But there is mildew in every garden, and the opening of the next chapter shows its presence here. Notice in verse three the testimony to the personality and power of Satan, and the personality and Deity of the Holy Spirit. One can not "lie" to an "influence" or a mere "principle of good." Moreover, in verse five the Holy Spirit is identified as God. The penalty on Ananias and Sapphira does not necessarily involve eternal retribution, inasmuch as, notwithstanding their sin, they may have been in vital relationship to God through faith in Christ (1 John 1:8). But it is an illustration of God's chastening His people on earth, paralleled by the cases of Nadab and Abihu, and Achan, in the Old Testament (Lev. 10, Josh. 7), and the Corinthians in the New Testament (1 Cor. 11: 30-32). (Compare here, 1 John 5:16).

3. Power and persecution (vv. 12-42). Note in passing, the continued growth of the church (v. 14); the unusual nature of the signs wrought by Peter (v. 15); the continued enmity of the Sadducees because the apostles preached the resurrection (vv. 17-18); the supernatural deliverance (vv. 19-24); the defense before the Sanhedrin (vv. 25-32); the unexpected advocate (vv. 33-39); the penalty (v. 40); the effect on the apostles and the church (vv. 41-42).

Questions on the Lesson

1. What were the results of the filling with the Holy Ghost?
2. What are the distinctions between the charity of the early church and the modern communism?
3. What sin in the heart led to the open hypocrisy of Ananias and Sapphira?
4. How is the Deity of the Holy Spirit proven in this lesson?
5. Is there a distinction between the divine retribution of the unbelieving and the divine chastening of the followers of Christ?
6. Give some Old and New Testament illustrations of the latter.
7. Give in your own words the story told above under the head of "Power and persecution."

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

Lesson 5

The First Christian Martyr Chapters 6 and 7

The church was being blessed and multiplied, but the conditions were not perfect. The flesh was asserting itself. Verse one carries us back to the close of chapter four, and we see that the charity which led to hypocrisy there, led to "murmuring" here. "Grecians" should be translated "Grecian Jews" to distinguish them from the native born. The apostles who had been distributing the alms could do so no longer, and hence the institution of the office of "deacon" (v. 5), after the Greek of "serve tables" (v. 2). (It is an interesting fact that their names are all Greek.) Note in passing, the exalted nature of the Christian ministry (v. 4), the high qualifications of those who even should carry on

(Continued on page 657.)

International Sunday-school Lessons

By E. O. Sellers

June 13

The Blessedness of Forgiveness

Psalm 32

Golden Text.—“Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered.” Psalm 32:1.

This psalm is believed to have grown out of David's experience with Nathan (see Rom. 4: 6-8). It is one of the seven so-called “Penitential Psalms,” the others being 6, 38, 51, 102, 130, 143. While it contains a strain of sadness, it is one of the most joyful of all psalms. It is the record of bitter sorrow and also heartfelt praise, and is as vital in its message today as when written.

I. The State or Condition of Happiness

(1) What is happiness? vv. 1, 2. The blessed or happy man is the one whose sin is covered. God only can forgive sin and has plainly set before us His agency, viz., the shed blood. David, as king, enjoyed the pleasures of life, but he also knew the joy of sins covered. This joy is offered all who accept God's gift of forgiveness (Acts 10:43). The psalmist seems to multiply words. “Transgression” means rebellion; “sin” to miss the mark (Rom. 3:23); “iniquity,” to be crooked. When men try to cover sin we are expressly told the result (Prov. 28:13), but God literally takes away when He covers sin (John 1: 29; Ps. 103:12; 85:2). Neither man nor devil can uncover what He has covered.

(2) Who is unhappy? vv. 3, 4. Contrasted with the state or condition of happiness granted to the forgiven sinner is presented that of those unforgiven. David kept silence without, only to have a raging tempest within—lips silent, bones “roaring.” Supreme misery contrasted with supreme happiness. During the days of David's silence following his sinful act, he was guilty of increased acts of sin and cruelty (2 Sam. 12:31). The origin of the word Selah is not known. It probably indicated a musical interlude, and in this psalm most appropriately and dramatically appears. The word may be omitted in reading.

(3) How we may be happy, vv. 5, 6. All sin is uncovered to God. His all-seeing eye can penetrate man's futile endeavors to hide his transgressions. The first step to forgiveness and to happiness is confession of guilt. God's heavy hand wrought saving faith in David, and such faith has confession as its first condition. “I acknowledged my sin.” The next step is to “ask” (Luke 11: 9, 10). Then there is imputed to us the righteousness we did not possess (Luke 22:37; Jas. 2:23); then we have forgiveness of sin (Ps. 99:8; Lev. 4:20; Matt. 26:28).

The godly man prays in a time “when thou mayest be found,” or (see marg.), “in the time of finding out sin” (v. 6, R. V.). The prophet tells us that there is a time when we may not find God (Isa. 55:6), and Paul tells us when He may be found (2 Cor. 6:2). There is a time of not finding (Prov. 1: 28). Nowhere do we find promises for tomorrow.

II. How to Continue in the State of Being Happy

(1) Our security, v. 7. When men forgive they do not “cover.” What God hides He forgets (Isa. 38:17; Micah 7:19). Our security, our “hiding place,” is Jehovah. Our preserver is Jehovah (Ps. 91:31; Isa. 32:1, 2). Jehovah preserves from trouble those whom He forgives (Ps. 34:19). Such men have a serenity, a “peace of God,” which the sinner can never have. (See Isa. 26: 3; Rom. 5:1; Phil. 4:7).

(2) Our Instructor, vv. 8, 9. (a) Positively. We have one who not only forgives and blots out the past, but to “instruct,” to “teach” and to “guide.” Nearly all believe that the introduction of the personal pronoun in verse eight indicates that God is speaking in response to David's appeal recorded in verse six. Jehovah guides with His “eye upon thee” (v. 8, R. V.). He instructs us by His Spirit through His Word. (See Ps. 119:105; John 16:13). (b) Negatively. Some have to learn through bitter experience. We have our choice. Those who will not listen to instruction are compared to the horse and the mule which “have no understanding.” Only thus can some “come near” (v. 9, R. V.), though that is better than not to be brought near at all.

(3) Our faith (v. 9). What kind of life will God's forgiven children live? What is one of the foremost characteristics of a happy life? Here is the answer. “He that trusteth in the Lord.” This is the conclusion of the whole matter. The man of faith “overcomes the world.” His mercies “compass him about,” and that mercy keeps him in, and through it evil cannot break in upon him. Outside of it are the sorrows of the wicked like a raging sea (Rom. 2:8, 9).

(4) Our joy. Thrice the psalmist reiterates his cry of gladness, “Be glad.....rejoice.....shout” (v. 11). He expresses it in the form of a command, even as Paul later commands the church at Philippi to rejoice (Phil. 4:4). Our joy is in the Lord, “who hath done marvelous things whereof we are glad." In Christ we have God's forgiveness. He supplies our every need (Phil. 4:19). He pardons, heals, restores, directs, gives power (Matt. 28:18-20). Joy and impurity are never companions. Only the pure can purify. Only the healthy can heal. Only the righteous and free can pardon. Christ alone can save, for He alone needs no saving. "Rejoice in Jehovah! and leap for joy, O righteous! and gladly shout all ye upright in heart."

—Maclaren. To shout a godly and acceptable shout demands that we be "upright in heart."

June 20

A Prayer for the Tempted Psalm 141

Golden Text.—"Keep me from the snares which they have laid for me." Psalm 141:9.

This psalm closely resembles those psalms usually attributed to David in the first part of the psalter, and we feel confident David was its author. In it are presented complaint, prayer and confident hope of relief. It is a petition for deliverance from sins, to which his afflictions tempted him, and from the enemies who caused his affliction.

I. Prayer. "My prayer directed," vv. 1, 2, R. V. There is good reason for believing David wrote this while going through the experiences recorded in 1 Samuel 24. A time of stress and dire need was upon him, for he urges "haste" in giving heed to his call (Luke 18:1-8). David looks to Jehovah as his only and sure helper. Every human help had failed and faith turned to God. Can God be urged? We are taught that God respects His "remembrancers" who cry day and night (Psalm 40:13; 69:17, 18; 70: 5; 71:12; 143: 7). Weakly to fold the hands and to "bide His time" is usually an evidence of spiritual debility, and of a desire to shirk the work involved in a true exercise of prayer. True faith knows but one way of deliverance—prayer (Phil. 4:6, 7), and those who call in faith get deliverance (Rom. 10:13). We are to pray to God through the sacrificed Son and in the Holy Spirit. Such prayer is "set forth before thee" as a sacrifice of sweet-smelling savor.

II. Practice. "Incline not my heart.....to practise wicked works," v. 4. Such prayer as here suggested demands personal purity. As the "incense" was prepared with great care (Exod. 30: 36) and its fragrance was brought out by fire (Rom. 8:26, 27; Eph. 6:18), so likewise there must be a continual practice of prayer and an absence of "wicked works." In no way are we so apt to sin as with our lips, but back of the lips is the heart (Matt. 15:11; Luke 6:45). The tongue can no man tame (James 3:8). David recognized that the heart is the source of "wicked works" and prays that he be not even "inclined" to it (Matt. 6:13; Jas. 1:13). If He "keeps the door," we have a safe guard (Ps. 127:1). Circumstances sometimes test our inclinations and our desires. David pleads for a heart that is not inclined to evil, and that he be delivered from intercourse with "men that work iniquity." Association with such men separates us from God (Isa. 59:2). Thus David prays for a separated life.

III. Position. "Let him reprove me," vv. 5-7. "Faithful are the wounds of a friend." This seems to be the position David desired to occupy, one that would be "a kindness" to him. Such correction is as sweet oil. Oil is healing and soothing, and here symbolizes the healing effect of correction. Fools hate reproof, wise men plead for it. David not only welcomed wisdom, but (see R. V.) promises to pray for such friends when calamities come upon them, and in the time when they are overcome by wickedness. When such are cast down by the rocky roadside "they shall hear my words," says David, and they will be sweet. A careful reading of verse seven reveals David's dire extremity (see R. V.). Death stared him in the face; his soul is torn as "one ploweth and cleaveth the earth."

IV. Protection. "In thee do I put my trust," v. 8, R. V. David knew to whom to turn. The church of Christ needs to look to God, to become like Him. It needs the transforming, encouraging, energizing vision. David is now taking his eyes off the difficulties and fixing them on the One who enables him to overcome. "Look unto me, and be ye saved." Literally his prayer is, "make not my soul naked" or "pour not out my soul." David had made proof of God among the sheep, at the court, as a fugitive, on battle field, in adversity and in prosperity, even in gross sin, yet God had not forsaken him. Our David has promised to abide with all who put their trust in Him (John 14:18, R. V.). As His enemies had set their snares, God had delivered David from them. Satan's gins or snares are pride, passion, sensuality, intemperance, sloth, greed, malice, covetousness, hatred, falsehood, etc., hard to be recognized as snaring our feet. We need to pray, "Keep me" (v. 9), as well as the prayer of verse ten. Whomever else a man harms by his sin, he harms himself most. Saloon-keepers and their sons most frequently fill the grave of the drunkard. Gamblers nearly all lose their easy gains. They that take the sword perish by the sword. Our only safety is Jehovah. He is the only successful "gold cure" against intemperance, our only safeguard against the temptations of the world, the flesh and the devil. God is constantly answering this last prayer, and we do see the wicked falling into their own nets (Ps. 7:15, 16; 37:14, 15; Exod. 7:10).

This lesson has a strong temperance suggestion and an application. (1) Prayers that God will hear; (2) Preparation of the mouth and heart; (3) Petition for reproof to learn thereby; (4) Protection from temptation and trial.

June 27

Review, Second Quarter

Reading Lesson: Psalm 78:65-72

Golden Text.—“I myself will be the shepherd of my sheep.” Ezek. 34:15, R. V.

The approximate time covered by these lessons is from 1091 or 1078 B. C. to 1035 or 1023 B. C., somewhere between 50 and 60 years. The most prominent character in the lessons of this past quarter is David. He is related to every lesson, except the first, either as an actor or an author. This fact gives us a center for our review. By making assignments a week in advance, a chapter summary of David's life can be presented as follows: Chapter 1, Saul's disobedience, and its relation to David. Chapter 2, The secluded shepherd boy and Samuel. Chapter 3, The boy and the giant. Chapter 4, The musician and the king. Chapter 5, The boy and his friend. Chapter 6, The young man in exile. Chapter 7, The young man is king. Chapter 8, The king and the ark. Chapter 9, The king's great sin. We may call the whole program,

“From Obscurity to Power”

An excellent suggestion is made in “Peloubet's Select Notes.” Make a large chart, ruled vertically into five columns and horizontally into twelve spaces, one for each lesson. Label the vertical columns respectively, Place, Characters, Intervening Events, Key Verse and Principal Teaching. Then have each of the sixty different spaces assigned to classes, or to individuals, who will each in turn, beginning at the upper left-hand corner with Lesson 1, fill in the different spaces in order until the whole chart is covered. If a blackboard is used, these facts can be written within the different squares, otherwise care must be taken to have the facts written upon previously prepared pieces of cardboard, or paper, each to correspond to the dimensions of the various squares on the large chart. As in the case of the “Chapter Review,” previously suggested, Lessons 3, 11 and 12, being from the Psalms, may be read, and no further attention be given to them so far as the chart is concerned. For the younger classes a good story-teller can give a running story of the lessons which will prove intensely interesting. To drill the school, or the separate classes, on some of the outstanding facts of the books of 1 and 2 Samuel and the Psalms will be profitable. For illustration: Who are the heroes of 1 Samuel? Of 2 Samuel? What chief events in the life of David are recorded in 1 Samuel? In 2 Samuel? Where is the record of David and Goliath? Of David and Jonathan? How many psalms are recorded in the book of that name? Which are the most famous psalms? Which one was sung by the Levites when the ark was brought to Jerusalem? Where is the record of Nathan's parable?

If a running commentary is desired, the following suggestions may help:

Lesson 1. Saul is set aside; hence the need of David, “a man after God's own heart.”

Lesson 2. Samuel's choice set aside, and David, the youngest son, is selected to be king.

Lesson 3. The wonderful “Shepherd Psalm,” which is a “testimony” of David, the shepherd king. Have the school recite it in concert.

Lesson 4. A venture of faith, Jehovah's watchful care over David, and the downfall of a mighty foe.

Lesson 5. Saul's vain attempt to slay David. The development of hatred, the protecting care over those who “put their trust in Jehovah.”

Lesson 6. The love of David and Jonathan, an illustration of the surrendered life, and a type of the love of One for us who has said, “Henceforth I call you not servants, but friends.”

Lesson 7. David's generosity to his persistent persecutor. David did not do to Saul what Saul tried to do to David. Though selected to become the king, David recognized in Saul one of God's chosen men and patiently bided his time till God should remove this recreant, disobedient servant and place him in the position of power.

Lesson 8. David exalted to be king, first over Judah and later over the entire nation. Also the record of his shrewd manner of making friends with all of the tribes of Israel.

Lesson 9. David established Jerusalem to be both the civic and religious center of the nation. His joy in worship and in God's service points forward to our “Chief Shepherd.”

Lesson 10. David was, after all, only human. In the midst of his luxury he succumbed to the allurements of temptation and committed an awful sin, an act that involved many others and made the sum total one fearful to behold. How are the mighty fallen! God dealt sternly but lovingly with His repentant servant in vital contrast with His dealings with unrepentant Saul.

Lessons 11 and 12. David is forgiven, cleansed, restored and given the assurance, “I will guide thee with mine eye.” Let this part of the review consist of reading the psalms with but little, preferably no, comment. If what has gone before has been prayerfully and vividly presented, comment on these two lessons is needless. The review may end with the psalmist's note of prayerfulness and his trust in Jehovah, the testimony of his personal knowledge and experience.

July 4

Absalom's Failure
2 Samuel 18:1-15

Golden Text.—“Children, obey your parents in the Lord; for this is right.” Ephesians 6:1.

His connivance with Joab, in the death of Uriah, was a costly bargain for David, and the development of sin in his family, with its long train of fearful consequences, teaches us that sin respects not person nor position. The dark story of chapter 13 involves Absalom's flight and Joab's strategy in getting him back to Jerusalem (chap. 14). All is not as well, however, as it outwardly appears, for Absalom, the beautiful (14:25), soon stole the love of the ten tribes (chap. 15), from his indulgent and indifferent parent. Then follows the story of that father's flight and of the son's entry into the capital city.

This entire story is one of the most wonderful dramas recorded in secular or sacred history. It may be divided roughly as follows: Act I, Absalom slays his brother. Act II, David fails to become fully reconciled. Act III, Absalom's rebellion. Act IV, David's grief. The lesson for today has to do with Acts III and IV.

Act III. Scene 1. David's Flight and Finesse, chapters 15-17. "A foolish son is a grief to his father, and bitterness to her that bare him" (Prov. 17:25). On the other hand, an indulgent and an indifferent father brings grief to his son.

Act III. Scene 2. The Battle of Mount Ephraim, chapter 18. David at the gate, vv. 1-5. The place where David numbered (v. 1) his followers was Mahanaim (17:27), where Jacob saw the two "hosts" of angels (Gen. 32:1, 2). What David saw was quite different. As he waited he had time to contemplate that other time that he remained behind when he ought to have gone forth to battle, and which resulted in the sin for which he is even now suffering (11:1-7). Absalom was shrewd as men count shrewdness, but he made one fatal omission in planning his campaign—he left God out of his reckoning (17:14, R. V.). David's use of Hushai was fully justified by the situation into which this reckless son is precipitated, still it is probable that David listened to the advice of his followers (v. 3) more willingly because of his reluctance to fight against his own son. It is, indeed, a sad spectacle to see David standing watching his army go out to battle and perhaps to slay his son. His exhortation to his three captains (v. 5) falls upon dull ears in the case of Joab. David's chief concern is with Absalom, not for himself nor for his army, but the time when his anxiety would avail had passed.

Act III. Scene 3. Absalom's Defeat, vv. 6-10. The battle was so planned that the advantage of the forest was on David's side, and more of the enemies of David were smitten by the hand of God (v. 8) than were slain by the servants of David. These men brought judgment upon themselves through their disloyalty to God's chosen king (Judg. 5:20, 21, and in this we see a type of that final victory which shall end our David's engagement with His foes (Rev. 19:11-21; 2 Thess. 2:8). Men who today are disloyal or disobedient to God's chosen King can only expect "a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries" (Heb. 10:27). At the end of the battle proud Absalom is found not in his chariot, but helplessly entangled in the crown of his pride, his hair (v. 9), while both his men and his mule flee, leaving him to his fate.

Act III. Scene 4. Absalom's Death, vv. 11-15. "Absalom chanced to meet" (v. 9, R. V.). There is no chance in the providences of God. His desire to meet David's servants is granted, yet that meeting brought Absalom dismay, defeat and ruin.

Joab now takes matters into his own hands. He held David in his power, and had a debt to pay to Absalom (14:29). Most dearly did Absalom pay his penalty to this vengeful, time-biding soldier. Joab was not content to slay this proud youth, but to show his contempt he cast the dead body into a pit and raised over it a great heap of stones (v. 17). So Absalom's proud monument (v. 18) failed of its intended purpose.

Act IV. David's Grief, vv. 19-33. The Messengers. Again our attention is centered upon the grief-stricken father. His anxiety is sincere and heartbreaking, but it is tardy. The first messenger, Ahimaaz, is a good man, but does not bring good news. Is our message one of life or of death? The second messenger gives a diplomatic, but a blunt, answer to David's anxious inquiry. What cared David for his enemies, his army, nay, for himself, if only the "young man" be safe? We cannot measure the agony of this father (v. 33), who beheld the temporal and spiritual ruin of his son, and at the same time knew that the responsibility of that ruin rested upon himself. This is one of the saddest pictures in all history.

Application. "Is the young man safe?" Industrially, socially, physically, morally, spiritually, his safety depends upon the guidance of the home, the father and the church. Only as parents hear the Master's words, "Bring thy son hither" (Luke 9:41), and obey, is the young man safe. David's sin was not, however, sufficient cause for Absalom's downfall; he courted his own ruin (John 5:40). David's sorrow finds its counterpart in the grief of Christ (Luke 19:41, 42); David's cry that he might die for Absalom, in that Christ died for His enemies. The great outstanding lesson of this entire drama, extending from the 11th to the 19th chapters, is: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

For Sermon and Scrap Book

FULNESS OF JOY

Ps. 16: 11

1. Quality—"There are pleasures."
2. Quantity—"Fulness."
3. Dignity—At God's "right hand."
4. Duration—"For evermore."

JOSEPH AS AN EXAMPLE

Loving to his father.
Forgiving to his brothers.
Honest to his master.
Helpful to his country.
True to his God.

THE PRODIGAL SON

Luke 15

In two chapters:

Chapter 1.	Chapter 2.
Rashness.	Repentance.
Reveling.	Resolution.
Reaping.	Return.
Remorse.	Reward.
Reflection.	Rejoicing.

SPIRITUAL REMEDIES FOR SPIRITUAL MALADIES

Bad temper (Ps. 34: 1).
Evil speaking (Ps. 35: 28).
Melancholy (Ps. 70:4).
Scandal (Ps. 71:8).
Self-righteousness (Ps. 71: 15).
Fear (Ps. 71: 24).
Boasting (Ps. 44:8).
Envy (Prov. 23:17).
Evil thoughts (Ps. 119:97).

AN IMPORTANT QUESTION

"Do ye now believe?"—John 16: 31.

Questions abound in the gospel—ten in first chapter. Christ was often subjected to examination and cross-examination. Sometimes He becomes the questioner.

1. A Plain Question. Characteristics of the gospel message and appeal.
2. A Practical Question. Concerns daily life.
3. A Personal Question. God deals with men as individuals as congregations.
4. A Pressing Question. "Now."

"MADE FREE"

From the condemning power of law (Rom. 7:6).
From the controlling power of sin (Rom. 6: 12).
From the conquering power of death (1 Cor. 15: 57).

MANNA: A TYPE OF CHRIST

John 6: 32-35

1. Mysterious. Its name—"What is it?" Jesus was not understood (Isa. 53: 2).
2. Small. Jesus was humble (Phil. 2: 8).
3. Round. Emblem of His eternity, without beginning or end (Heb. 7: 3).
4. White. Representing His purity (Heb. 7: 26).
5. Sweet. Type of His grace (John 1:16).
6. Heavenly. It came from above (Exod. 16: 4).

THE CHILD SAMUEL

1 Sam. 1; 2: 1-21; 3:1-19

The child of God—asked of God and given to God.
A dedicated child.
A converted child.
A ministering child.
A called child.
An obedient child.
An instructed child.
A listening child.
A rewarded child.

LESSONS TO BE LEARNED FROM THE YOUTH OF JESUS

Luke 2

True greatness is humble (v. 40).
Every child should be trained to Bible study (v. 42).
Never go a step without making sure Jesus is with you (v. 44).
It is a serious matter to lose communication with Christ (v. 45).
The places we frequent are an index of our character (v. 46).
Jesus is our Example as well as our Saviour (v. 51).
Silent hours are not necessarily lost hours (v. 51).
A holy life is pleasing to God, and attractive to good men (v. 52).

OBEDIENCE

Jas. 1: 22

Four things which every one has who hears and heeds the Word of God:

1. A quick ear. Hears at once, however softly spoken, as Samuel and Eli.
2. A cautious tongue. Quick to hear, slow to speak. Children's tongues say untruths, unkind words. Little words quickly spoken may cause great havoc.
3. A calm temper. Slow to anger. Hasty temper leads to dreadful results. Control early, or it will master you when older.
4. A pure heart. As hands and faces often need washing, so our hearts, if neglected, become fouled with sin. Cleansed through His Word.

COMMUNION WITH GOD

Isaiah 40: 31

Introduction: This passage is like a rose, with many leaves; or, a rope with many strands. We look at them separately.

I. The Method of Communion with God.

"Wait upon the Lord"—

As Noah waited in the days before the flood.

As Abraham waited the fulfilment of God's promise.

II. The Need of Communion with God.

"Renew their strength."

In the toil and care of our lives we grow weary.

In the conflict of the Christian life. Eph. 6: 10-12.

III. The Effect of Communion with God.

"Mount up on wings like eagles."

1. The eagle is swift. Deut. 28: 49. (In obedience and service.)

2. The eagle soars high. (Above the storm, in the sunlight of His promises.)

3. The eagle is strong. Ps. 103: 5; Phil. 4: 13.

4. The eagle nests high. Jer. 49: 16. (Safe from foe and storm.)

5. The eagle has strong vision. Job 39: 29. (The Christian's hope.)

IV. The Practical Application.

1. "Run, and not be weary."

Run in the Christian race. Heb. 12: 1-2; Phil. 3: 12-14.

2. "Walk, and not be faint."

As Enoch walked before God in an age of apostasy, so the Christian having communion with God will be a living witness.

Are you having this communion with God?
—S. C. Theo Ramsey.

A STUDY IN 1 CORINTHIANS 15

What I was—earthly (v. 48).

What I am—heavenly (v. 48).

What I shall be (v. 49).

What I ought to be (v. 58).

WHAT HAVE YOU?

Remember Shamgar had only an "ox goad."

David only "a sling."

Boy only "five loaves and two fishes."

Poor widow only "two mites."

Weeping woman only "a box of ointment."

Another widow only "a little oil."

Dorcas only a "needle."

You may think you have "little"—have not you as much as these had? Certainly. Use it, then, for God's glory, and it will increase in your hand as with them.—Exchange.

HOW HE REMEMBERED SPURGEON

Once a man who was a warm admirer of the great preacher, Spurgeon, had visiting him a friend who had never heard that master of Christian oratory. Of course the visitor was sent to the Metropolitan Tabernacle, and when he returned his host asked him eagerly, "Well, what did you think of him?" "Nothing," was the disappointing answer. "No, nothing," he said again. But after a minute, his eyes filling with tears, he added, "All I can think of is the preacher's Saviour!"—"The Christian Herald."

WHO IS A PREACHER?

Behind the word "preacher" of the New Testament Scriptures there are half a dozen original words, each with its own distinctive suggestion, each contributing its own item of color to the description of the mighty office. The preacher is a "herald," a public crier, a man with an imperial proclamation, charged with a message which must be announced from the housetops with all the urgency of a sovereign command. The preacher is an "evangelist," with a message which is almost a song, full of sweetness and of light, the speech of the wooer, laden with tenderness and bright with the promise of glad some days. The preacher is a "logician," engaged in strenuous reasonings, seeking to gather together the loose and incoherent thoughts of men and bind them into firm and well-knit spiritual decision. Then the preacher is a "conversationalist," who sometimes lays aside the spacious function of the public minister, and, discarding the formalities of linked and well-connected discourse, engages in homely intercourse, in fireside speech with his fellow-men.—J. H. Jowett.

Book Notices

A CORRECTION

The following words which should have concluded the notice of "Jesus as He Was and Is," in our May issue, were omitted: "except as to its last chapter on the coming of the Lord, with which we thoroughly differ."

The Inner Temple of the Inner Life, by Andrew Murray.

This book has been before the public for several years, but now appears in the International Leaders Library. The name of Andrew Murray in connection with a publication needs only to be used to secure the certainty of its reception by tens of thousands of Christians.

170 pages, $5\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Fleming H. Revell Co., New York. 50 cents. J. H. R.

Stephens' Dispensational Chart

This chart is in substantial accord with most of the charts prepared by the teachers of dispensational truth and will tend to impress its teachings on those who study it, largely because of its lurid coloring. To the mind of the reviewer a very simple outline is much to be preferred to the elaborate details that are found in this chart.

Printed in five colors on enameled paper. 6 x 5 inches. The Bible Institute Colportage Association. 25c. J. H. R.

A Complete Analysis of the First and Second Books of Samuel, with Annotations, by A. C. Gaebelein.

We are pleased to announce this book which is Nos. 14 and 15 of the Bible Study Course, now being put forth by the editor of "Our Hope."

234 pages, $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8$ inches. Our Hope Publication Office, No. 456 Fourth Ave., New York. Single copies, 40 cents, postpaid; 25 copies or more, 30 cents a copy; 100 copies, \$25, postpaid. J. M. G.

The Bible and Modern Life, by Joseph S. Auerbach.

This essay is a plea for Bible study by a layman of broad culture. While emphasizing the literary features of the Scriptures, the author believes that those attracted at first by these features will find deeper prospects opening before them. We join with others in praise of this writer's finished style and in so far as he exhibits the majesty and beauty of Holy Writ we are in sympathy with his work. But we are quite unsympathetic with his viewpoint, for he makes the Bible a book of myths and legends, as reconstructed by the higher criticism. We believe he cherishes a vain hope in holding that such a presentation of the Scriptures by the pulpit will win the thoughtful and devout; as a matter of fact, such a presentation has not won these classes. We speak decidedly for we have found a more excellent way, and one which brings increasing delight and confidence in the Bible to those who follow it.

140 pages, $5\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Harper and Brothers, New York and London. 75 cents, net. L. W. G.

Christian Workers Commentary on the Old and New Testaments, by Rev. James M. Gray, D. D.

This is a remarkable work, destined, we believe, to years of wide usefulness. The author has condensed into one volume a treatment of the whole Bible, presenting in clear and readable form the fruit of a lifetime of study. His grasp of dispensational truth illuminates neglected portions of Scripture, such as the prophecies, yet a proper balance is preserved and no single phase of truth unduly stressed. The author is a master teacher, and his very name assures a book loyal to the Word of God.

This commentary treats the text of Scripture in brief sections, rather than verse by verse, and is adapted for continuous study as well as for reference. It will be welcomed by those who have used Dr. Gray's "Synthetic Bible Studies" and who wish to do more detailed work. At the same time it will attract those who might not do the extensive Bible reading required in synthetic study, since the lessons are shorter. It is eminently suited for adult classes in their study of the Bible "by wholes," and also for use at the family altar. The minister will be assisted in expository preaching, and communities which have no ministers will yet flourish, spiritually, if the people study the Bible with the help of this work. It recalls Spurgeon's words on Matthew Henry's exposition: "It is the poor man's commentary, the old Christian's companion, suitable for everybody, profitable for all." We advise the Christian worker to sell his coat, if needs be, to buy this book. 447 pages, 6 x 9 inches. Fleming H. Revell Co., New York. $2.00 net.

L. W. G.

The Gospel in the World

Edward A. Marshall, Editor

Six thousand children of the Navajo Indian tribe are without church or school.

All Presbyterian missionaries left Mexico in May of last year. A few have now returned.

Twenty-five of the missionaries of the London Missionary Society are prisoners of war.

The Baptists of Illinois raised for foreign missions last year, $32,157.—"Illinois Baptist Bulletin."

Korea has 395 foreign missionaries, and 1,103 native workers are giving full time to Christian work.

Many of the relief workers in Erzroom, Asia Minor, have been stricken with typhus fever, and two of their number have died.

In Germany one out of every four male communicants over seventeen years of age is in the army.

There are 650,000 members of the Young Women's Christian Association in the world.—"Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate."

The Foochow Woman's Conference held in October of last year reported twenty Bible women at work on the Foochow district. They now have twenty-four, some eight of whom are in Foochow, and the rest in centers on the district.

During the occupation of Vera Cruz by American troops, the Rev. J. L. Griffes, a chaplain in the army, held revival meetings in the Mexican Presbyterian Church with the assistance of an interpreter. There were more than twenty conversions.

A little glimpse into Albania by a Congregational missionary reveals destitution and misery there on account of the war. In districts recently occupied by the Greek government, practically the whole Moslem population have fled from their homes.

The gods of India are supposed to have human needs and desires, so the farmer provides a horse, made of brick and clay, upon which the god may travel in comfort from the temple to his farm, thus insuring protection to his farm by visits from the god.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society has been spoken of as one of the great peace movements. There are no less than forty Women's Boards with a chain of peace stations extending around the world. Their outlay for this purpose is $5,000,000 annually.

The Moravian church has 40,000 members in the home church and 96,000 in the mission fields. Three-quarters of the money to carry on the missionary work of this church has been coming from Europe and the mission fields, making its income very uncertain at this time.

The Vice-president of China believes that the present remarkable opportunity in that land will have passed in five years. If this be so, there is great need for many young missionaries to get the language and make a start in the work before difficulties and limitations increase.

Indians in the United States number 323,000. Nearly 32,000 of these are Protestant communicant Christians, and 35,000 more are classed as adherents. There are 456 organized Protestant churches and 556 additional stations where services are held. Ordained white ministers number 221 and ordained Indian ministers number 222.

The island of Java has an area to 50,000 square miles and a population of 33,000,000. Ninety-seven per cent of the people are nominally Moslems. Missionaries from Holland and America working on the island are winning considerable success. The British and Foreign Bible Society has in its employ there eight native colporteurs and one Chinaman.

Christian appeals from China to America are coming rapidly, addressed to the Government at Washington and to the various denominational headquarters. We are just now in receipt of an appeal from the Chinese Christian students of the East, outlining the strategic condition in China and appealing for the backing of our public opinion and Christian prayers.

Five denominations in Montclair, N. J.—Baptist, Congregational, Episcopal, Presbyterian and Methodist—united in holding Sunday evening preaching services, mission study classes and neighborhood devotional meetings during the six weeks of Lent. Forty-four mission study classes were formed, with an enrolment of 580, and about fifteen homes were opened each week for the devotional meetings.

The Guatemala Mission has been enabled to buy a fine printing press through a bequest of $2,500 from the late Henry Sayre Osborne. This press has been set up in Guatemala and will be named after the donor. For years missionaries in Central America felt the need of a press and much effort was made to obtain one, but without much success, until in 1908 a fine job press was given to the mission, which has been doing good work. This new and larger press is one of the greatest blows ever delivered in Central America against superstition, ignorance and vice.

A Korean thus tells the story of his conversion: "I bought a Testament from Mr. Saw when he came to Korea. It was a strange book to me, and at first I was not very interested in its contents; finally it was used to paper the walls of my room. About two years afterwards I became curious to know what the book contained, and I began to read the pages on the walls. As I read, I grew more and more deeply impressed and eagerly devoured every word that was visible. As the pages were printed on both sides, I could read only half the story, and that was in many cases so disconnected that it was impossible to understand it. Finally I bought a fresh copy, and through reading that book I was brought to the Saviour."

When the Russian troops in January withdrew from Urumia and the surrounding province in Persia, the unprotected natives fled from their homes, fearing the wild Kurdish tribes. Many thousands fled to the Russian border, leaving all their possessions behind. Thousands more sought shelter on the Presbyterian Mission property in Urumia. Others who remained too long in their villages were massacred by the Kurds. Fifteen thousand were being cared for in the different mission compounds in Urumia, according to the Presbyterian "Bulletin." It has taken three tons of bread a day, costing about $200, to keep them from starvation. The American Committee on Persian War Relief is appealing to America for $100,000 with which to save these people and to help carry on other relief work.

In Syen Chun, a town of about 5,000 population in the north of Korea, there are two large churches with combined seating accommodation for 3,000. At the time of the Sunday services there are very few vacant seats. At one of these churches, when a special service was held, with the representatives of the British and Foreign Bible Society present, the Korean pastor rose and said, "I have received a letter from the Korean pastor in Manchuria, who is supported by this church, asking for the Scriptures, and for tracts for free distribution among the Koreans in his district, who are too poor to purchase them." He then proposed that his congregation should send them the Gospels. The people readily responded and in a short time 1,500 copies were contributed.

In 1908 the Bible House of Los Angeles proposed to the China Inland Mission the establishment of a Bible Institute in China, and an agreement was drawn up between the two societies. The money was sent to China and a location was sought. It was then recalled to mind that Mr. F. C. Dreyer was already carrying on such an institute in some old sheds on his premises, with seventeen earnest students. The China Inland Mission, after consulting with Mr. Dreyer, decided to build the Bible Institute in the province of Shansi where Mr. Dreyer was working, and asked Mr. Dreyer to become the superintendent. Mr. Dreyer now has thirty students, though the buildings are not yet completed.

A bulletin on Mexico, published by the Presbyterian Board, gives the following short account of the hardships of a Mexican pastor during the war: "The Rev. Jose Coffin, a Mexican Presbyterian minister, and his wife, have for a number of years carried on successfully a school for Mexican youth in Paraiso. The war caused sufferings to both themselves and their school. Mr. Coffin engaged in Red Cross work upon every opportunity, but on one occasion, when he buried nine soldiers of one faction, he was suspected as a partisan and put in jail and barely escaped execution. At another time he was compelled to go into hiding in a remote town. There he slept in the tropical woods at night to escape being surprised and taken by marauding bands. During his absence from Paraiso his house was looted and the school building was nearly destroyed by fire. Nothing daunted, when the fortunes of war gave him the opportunity, he came out of hiding, secured temporarily some huts by the seashore and began to gather in children made orphan by the war. He is now at San Juan Bautista where he has rented a property for his school and is bringing his orphans to this new location to get started on a more permanent basis."

Notes and Suggestions

MISCELLANY

The fiftieth anniversary of the organization of the National Temperance Society was observed in the leading cities of the country, May 16.

Up to May 1, 260,000 copies of the New Testament had been provided for the soldiers of the various European countries at war under the World's Sunday-school Association's "million nickels" plan. Those who wish to help should write to Mr. Frank L. Brown, 216 Metropolitan Tower, New York City. A nickel will send a Testament to a soldier.

Mr. E. K. Warren, chairman of the Samaritan Committee of the World's Sunday-school Association, reports that, despite disturbing rumors of suffering in Palestine, the Samaritans are being well taken care of by representatives of the committee. Their Samaritan schools, both for the boys and for the girls, have been kept open; and the poor, especially unsupported women and little children, have been kept supplied with food during the hard times brought on by Turkey's participation in the war.

The first financial statement ever issued by the Mormon church was made April 4, for the year 1914, showing that $1,887,920 was collected from tithes for various purposes. The Mormon relief societies gave an additional $150,290, and $33,000 was contributed to the European war relief fund of the church.

Rev. Daniel S. Gregory, D. D., died in East Orange, N. J., April 14, at the age of 83. He was a graduate of Princeton University, was professor at Wooster University, and president of Lake Forest University. He was managing editor of the "Standard Dictionary," also editor of the "Homiletic Review" for some years. He held firmly to the faith once for all delivered to the saints, and was a good friend of the Moody Bible Institute.

In view of the expected destruction of the liquor traffic in the United States, a plan is being inaugurated to provide for laborers who will be thrown out of employment on that account. It is believed this can be done by establishing temporary labor exchanges, by co-operating with existing labor agencies, and such other methods as may seem desirable. The movement has the cordial endorsement of William Jennings Bryan, Theodore Roosevelt, William Phillips Hall, J. Wilbur Chapman, Richard P. Hobson, Francis E. Clark, and others of national reputation.

"The International Missionary Union will hold its annual conference at Clifton Springs, N. Y., June 23-27. The members number over thirteen hundred, scattered in all the mission fields of the world. But missionaries, either at present active or retired, will be most welcome at the conference, and may become members of the Union. The sanitarium founded by Dr. Henry Foster will entertain the missionaries for the five days of the gathering. Mrs. H. J. Bostwick, Clifton Springs, N. Y., the corresponding secretary, will furnish full information to all who apply for it."

The Utah Gospel Mission in its wagon work since the middle of last July, has made 14,000 calls, distributed 1,550,000 pages of literature, sold 2,000 Bibles, and held 275 meetings. Some of the workers leave this month, and consecrated, adaptable men, with fair education and knowledge of Bible truth, are needed to fill the vacancies. For further information, address Utah Gospel Mission, 1854 E. 81st St., Cleveland, Ohio.

Y. M. C. A. HOTEL IN CHICAGO

A nineteen-story hotel is about to be erected in Chicago by the Y. M. C. A.; it will be centrally located. It will contain 1,800 sleeping rooms which will be rented to transients at from 25 cents to 40 cents per night. The cost of the building will be about $1,100,000, of which eleven parties in Chicago have contributed $50,000 each, which, together with other contributions, have placed $635,000 in the hands of the Association. The following indicates the purpose to be served by the hotel:

"The Y. M. C. A. through this hotel, will be able to serve the self-respecting, transient type of young men as they come to the city, assist them in securing employment, and later direct them to a permanent home within the department buildings or in carefully selected private homes. The Association will seek under this hospitable roof to protect young men from the country, from smaller cities and from other lands at the threshold of their city experience, from the dangerous and immoral association which is usually found in the less expensive lodging-houses and hotels in and near the loop district."

The Evangelistic Field

SUGGESTIONS TO OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Evangelists and other Christian workers reporting items or contributing any matter for this department will please arrange to have copy reach the magazine not later than the 10th of the month preceding date of issue.

"The Evangelistic Field" department is intended for news in concise reports of revival meetings, soul-winning campaigns, and a record of evangelistic work in general. We do not invite statements eulogizing the leaders or participants in this line of work, nor can we promise to print them.—Editors.

The Bridgers-Corder party held a most promising meeting at Morristown, Tenn., in May.

E. G. Dunlap began a series of meetings in the Blackburn M. E. Church, Lowber, Pa., April 25.

Clare Harding says: "We had fine meetings in Pittsburgh, Wheeling, Shinnston, and Cameron, W. Va."

Evangelistic services were commenced May 2 by Harold F. Sayles in the M. E. Church at Reed City, Mich.

"We closed a good meeting in Santa Ana, Cal. About 100 came forward and made public confession of Christ."—E. R. Hermiston.

F. M. Ross closed a four weeks campaign at Fleetville, Pa., in April. There were many manifestations of the power of God to save souls.

"We closed a meeting at Lone Rock, Wis., with Rev. Homer Vreeland. God blessed our work in the salvation of souls."—John W. Erskine.

Rev. John H. Elliott, president of the Australasian Chapman-Alexander Bible Institute, has forwarded an encouraging report of the Institute for the past year.

A John Fitt, writing from Calhan, Colo., says: "We have had a very successful revival here and many found Christ. The membership has been greatly helped."

The Mills-Huggins Party began a union meeting at Webster City, Ia., May 23. The party has an open date June 20. Address 903 National Bank Bldg., Omaha, Neb.

Z. O. Avery closed a union campaign at Scottville, Ill., with good results and opened another meeting in a large tent at Titonka, Ia. He is assisted by Harry Beckman.

Mrs. Bertha Harris and Helen Byrnes held a meeting at Portsmouth, Va., May 9-24. At the close of this meeting they planned to take a vacation for the summer months.

J. Dimmick Taylor has been called to the pastorate of the First Baptist Church at Astoria, Ore. His address is 524 Exchange Street. Mr. Taylor has been in evangelistic work.

"We are engaged in a series of Union Meetings in Fernwood, Chicago. Souls are being saved and the place shaken by the Holy Spirit. Please remember us in prayer."—Green and Clark.

A. W. Littrell held a meeting with Immanuel Tabernacle Church, Mishawaka, Ind., March 29-April 11, with 60 professed conversions. The church was carrying a debt of $1,125 and on the last day $1,250 was raised.

"We have just closed a great meeting at the First United Brethren Church, Decatur, Ill. The pastor of the church, Dr. S. E. Long, did the preaching and I had charge of the choir."—Clarence E. Edwards.

"I am helping Pastor J. H. Cozad, at East Park Baptist Church, Decatur, Ill. In two weeks 69 have confessed Christ. We expected to have meetings for only two weeks, but the people would not let us close—55 united with the Baptist church."—Geo. Preston.

The Bandy-Poulter Evangelistic Party reported encouraging work. Mr. Bandy says: "The Lord has been gracious to us in Pentecostal fashion this winter. We have some open dates for the summer." They may be addressed at Pond Creek, Okla.

"I assisted the pastors of the churches at LeRoy and Sidney, Ill., in two good meetings last month, resulting in getting quite a number of converts. I begin my summer work in the south, at Hernando, Miss., with Rev. L. R. Phelps."—Geo. "Irish" McGowan.

Rev. J. E. Davis, pastor of Nebo Baptist Church, writes as follows: "Wonderful success is attending the efforts of John M. Linden, the evangelist at Nanticoke, Pa., When the trail was thrown open in his meeting, Sunday, April 18, 281 came forward, of which number 85 gave their hearts to Christ for the first time."

"We are in the first union meetings ever held in Clinton, Ia. The city is long and narrow, on the west bank of the Mississippi river, and has an unusually fine appearance for a river town. We are holding meetings in the City Coliseum. Two hundred and fourteen came forward for Christ on Sunday."—Charles Reign Scoville.

Lance E. Appleby and party closed a successful three weeks campaign in the Vermilion Heights M. E. Church in Danville, Ill., with 149 confessions. April 25, they opened in the Lincoln M. E. Church of Danville with prospects bright for a good meeting. During the month of June, they will hold a tent meeting in Vincent, Ia.

"Bob" Johnson has conducted some unusually successful campaigns in Pennsylvania during the past year. The year's record of his work shows that he won to Christ over 25 per cent of the combined population of the towns in which he labored. In different instances churches had to be enlarged to accommodate the great numbers who sought admission.

Charles Mundell and Lloyd Basford were in a union campaign in Lordsburg, N. M., April 11-May 2. The campaign resulted in more than a hundred professions. The churches taking part were greatly revived, hundreds renouncing cards and the dance, and the whole town stirred from center to circumference.

W. J. Morris writes: "I have had some great meetings this winter. At East Avenue Church, Springfield, Mo., there were 200 additions to the Baptist church and at Tower Grove Church, St. Louis, there were 124 additions. In the past twelve months there have been 1,500 additions to the various churches and more than 1,200 to the Baptist."

Many have found Christ as their Saviour at the Lynn Gospel Rescue Mission, Lynn, Mass., a mission lately organized, of which Homer Stanley Morgan is superintendent. Mr. Morgan will have a few open dates during the summer and fall that he can devote to evangelistic meetings anywhere in the eastern states. Address him at 107 Green St., Lynn, Mass.

John S. Hamilton and party opened a campaign in Clarksburg, W. Va., April 11, and at the close of the fourth week there were more than 1,100 decisions with a deepening interest and increasing power. A tabernacle with about 5,000 capacity is well filled at each service. A noon luncheon for Christian men has become a great power in the campaign. It is a workshop where plans for the prosecution of the campaign are worked out.

"We have just closed the first week of a union campaign here at Franklin, Neb. All the churches are back of the movement. We were obliged to turn people away the opening night of the campaign and the building has been thronged all the week.

"The first three invitations have resulted in 58 professed conversions. The cottage prayer meetings are largely attended and we have a splendid band of earnest personal workers."—Edw. R. Dow.

The Claude A. Gunder Party closed a union meeting at Conesville, Ia., resulting in 179 accepting Christ. This was a most remarkable meeting as the town has a population of only 400 with a good farming community around it, and it is estimated that one-third of the entire population was born into the kingdom of God during this campaign. The Gunder Party are now in a meeting at Eldon, Mo.

"We closed a successful campaign in Lethbridge, Alberta, Can. We started a city-wide movement in the Wesley Methodist Church in North Lethbridge, all the churches uniting. There were 308 persons signed our books in the inquiry room. I am associated with Evangelist Harold H. Gilbert. I have charge of the music, also a great deal of the work in the inquiry room. We are now in Stettler, Can. This is a town of about 1,200. Everything seems favorable for a great awakening."—Merrill T. McPherson.

The attendance at Poplar Hall Mission, 884 South State Street, conducted by the Presbyterian Church Extension Board of Chicago, for six months ending May 1, was 30,000. The number of individuals personally dealt with was 2,500 and there were 728 professed conversions.

C. E. Hillis and party closed a successful tabernacle campaign in Marysville, Pa., April 18, 46 responding to the last invitation, making a total of 454 conversions, which was one-quarter the population of the town. Over one-half of the conversions were men, a large per cent being men from the railroad yards. This revival has made a new Marysville. Entire families were converted and over 100 family altars were established. This party began a tabernacle campaign in Steelton, Pa., May 2, in a tabernacle seating 3,000 people. Ten or twelve churches are united in this effort. Lawrence A. Stahl, the musical director, W. F. S. Yates, the pianist, and John J. Carroll, the custodian, are the new members of the Hillis Party.

Bob Jones closed another one of his good revival campaigns at Crawfordsville, Ind. In writing about the meeting he said: "The conservatism has made a longer campaign necessary than usual. The meeting will look bigger to the more conservative people in a few weeks than it does now." Mrs. Frances C. Allison, organizer of the personal work, said, "The work of the women and girls has been an important and far-reaching part in the Crawfordsville campaign." The "Crawfordsville Journal" said, "No public speaker who ever visited Crawfordsville held such large audiences as visited the tabernacle. At the close of the revival, the cards showed 1,854 converts, most of whom it is expected will place their names on the church books."

FUTURE ENGAGEMENTS

Below are given the engagements, with dates as far as known, of the workers named. Our readers are earnestly invited to remember these laborers and their fields of appointment in their prayers.

George Wood Anderson—Sept. 12, Bellefontaine, O.; Oct. 31, Easton, Pa.

Hay Bell and Joe Lauderdale—May, Foosland, Ill.; Aug., Menville, Ia.; Sept., Sturgis, Ky.; Oct., Galatia, Ill.

Chester Birch—May 23-June 6, Richboro, Pa.; June 10-27, Deerfield, Mich.

Dave Bulkley—May 31-June 13, Millville, Ark.; later Allen, Kans.

George E. Burgess Party—Apr. 28-June 1, Dansville, N. Y.; June 2-30, Belmont, N. Y.
Burke and Hobbs Party—May, St. Louis, Mo.; June, Cushing, Okla.

Will A. Cheesman—May 31-June 13, Leechburg, Pa.; June 14-27, Washington, Pa.; June 28-July 11, Apollo, Pa.

Byron J. Clark Party—May 17-June 5, Dacoma, Okla.; June 5-20, Parsons, Kan.

Closson Sisters—May 30-June 27, Kanawha, Ia.
DeFlon and Lyle—June, Scott, Wis.; July, Marcellon and Elkhorn, Wis.

Edwin R. Dow and party—June, Orleans, Neb.; July, San Francisco, Cal.; Aug., Dallas Center, Ia.

John W. Erskine—June 6-23, Wilson and W. Wilson, Mich.; Sept. 4-27, Pewaukee, Wis., or Spring Green, Wis.; Oct. 2-25, Mt. Morris, Mich.

Edward D. Fellers—Until May 9, Open dates for the summer.

L. E. Finney and party—At Hearne, Alvarado, Waco, Pearsall, Normangee, Tex.; Harrison, Ark.; Sulphur, Okla.

A. John Fitt—May, Fowler, Colo.; June, Blanca, Colo.; July and Aug., Tent meetings in Colorado.

E. J. Forsythe and party—May-June, Richmond, Mo.; Oct., Denison, Ia.; Nov.-Dec., Tipton, Ia.

T. D. Franklin and J. H. Leonard—June, Burnside, Ia.

Charles R. Goff and party—May 30-June 20, Montezuma, Ia.

Claude A. Gunder Party—June, Kanawha, Ia.; July, Williams, Ia.

John S. Hamilton and party—Sept.-Oct., Marion, Ohio; Nov.-Dec., Hastings, Neb.

E. R. Hermiston—June, Englewood, Cal.
"Bob" Johnson and party—May 29-July 12, Punxsutawney, Pa.; Sept. 17-Nov. 8, Kalamazoo, Mich.; Nov. 12 to Dec. 20, Blairsville, Pa.

The Bob Jones Party—Aug. 1-15, Elkins, N. C.
H. D. Kennedy and party—June, Dallas, Ia.

The R. Sam Kirkland party—June-July, Fulton, Ill.; open dates last July-first Aug.

John M. Linden and party—June, Smethport, Pa.
Lowry-Moody party—May 9-June 13, North Piatte, Neb.

Frank Mathis and party—May 9-June 6, Cherokee, Ia.

Geo. "Irish" McGowan—May 23-June 3, Cleveland, Miss.

W. J. Morris—Aug. 22-Sept. 20, Aurora, Mo.; Sep. 20-Oct. 20, Springfield, Mo.; Oct. 24-Nov. 14, St. Charles, Mo.; Nov. 14-Dec. 4, St. Joseph, Mo.; Dec. 4-Dec. 20, Hopkins, Mo.

Paul Henry Packard and party—May 16-June 6, Arcadia, Kan.; June 13-July 4, Walnut, Kan.

W. E. Parrish—Aug. 29, Salem, W. Va.; Oct. 3, Atlanta, Ia.; Nov. 14, Petosky, Mich.

Rayburn and Laraway—May 16-June 6, Bennett, Neb.; June 13-July 11, Kimball, Neb.

Milton S. Rees—June, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Aug. 8-Aug. 15, Dudley St. Bap. Church, Boston, Mass.; Sept. 19, Albion, N. Y.; Oct. 17, Boston, Mass.

Harold F. Sayles—May 23-June 8, White Pigeon, Mich.; June 13-29, Flint, Mich.

Chas. Cullen Smith and A. C. V. Gilmore—May 16-June 6, Howard Lake, Minn.; June 13-July 5, Lexington, Ill.

W. A. Sunday and party—May 2-June 13, Omaha, Neb.

Chas. T. Wheeler and party—June-July, De Soto, Mo.
Wood and Brooks party—June 6-July 4, Wauconda, Ill.; Aug. 1-29, Burr Oak, Ia.

E. L. Wolsagel until June 6, Little Rock, Ark.; June 6-20, Chattanooga, Tenn.; June 22-24, Dalton, Ga.

Erlside (O.) Bible Conference, July 23-Aug. 1, 1915 (probably).

Green Lake (Wis.) Bible Institute, July 28-Aug. 10, 1915.

Grove City (Pa.) Bible Conference, Aug. 3-13, 1915.

Huss—500th Anniversary of the Martyrdom of John Huss, July 6, 1915.

International Christian Endeavor Convention, Chicago, July 7-12, 1915.

International Missionary Union, Clifton Springs, N. Y., June 23-27, 1915.

Keswick (Eng.) Bible Conference, July 19-24, 1915.

Laymen's Missionary Movement, Boston, Mass., Nov. 18-20, 1915.

Long Beach (Cal.) Assembly and Bible Conference, Aug. 2-29, 1915.

Lord's Day Congress, San Francisco, Cal., July, 1915.

Martin Luther Quadrcentenary, October 31, 1917.

Missionary Education Movement Summer Conferences for 1915, as follows:

Blue Ridge, N. C., June 25-July 4.

Silver Bay, N. Y., July 9-July 18.

Ocean Park, Me., July 22-July 30.

Asilomar, Cal., July 2-July 11.

Estes Park, Colo., July 16-July 25.

Lake Geneva, Wis., Aug. 6-Aug. 15.

Montrose (Pa.) Bible Conference, July 30-Aug. 8, 1915.

National Council of Congregational Churches of the U. S. Biennial Meeting, New Haven, Conn., Oct. 20-29, 1915.

Northfield (Mass.) dates for 1915:

Young Woman's Conference, June 16-23.

Student Conference, June 25-July 4.

Summer School for Woman's Foreign Missionary Societies, July 8-15.

Women's Summer School for the East, July 16-23.

Summer School for S. S. Workers, July 17-24.

General Conference, July 30-Aug. 15.

Ocean Grove (N. J.) Camp Meeting, Aug. 27-Sept. 6, 1915.

Philadelphia School of the Bible:

Summer Bible Conference, Aug. 12-15.

Annual Bible Conference, Oct. 3-10.

Presbyterian Young People's Conventions for 1915:

Ovoca, Tenn., June 22-30.

Pocono Pines, Pa., June 30-July 6.

Winona Lake, Ind., July 13-20.

Alma, Mich., July 20-26.

Storm Lake, Ia., July 13-22.

Hastings, Neb., July 27-Aug. 3.

Hollister, Mo., Aug. 12-19.

Princeton (N. J.) Conference for Christian Life and Service, July 17-25, 1915.

Prison Sunday, Oct. 31, 1915.

Quinquennial International Prison Congress, London, Eng., 1915.

Rockhurst Prayer Conference, San Francisco, Cal., June 14-20, 1915.

Southwestern Missionary Conference, Cliffs, Ariz., Aug. 12-21, 1915.

Stony Brook (L. I.) Prophetic Conference, Aug. 8-15, 1915.

Winona Lake (Ind.) dates for 1915:

Summer School of Missions, June 24-July 2.

Bible School, July 5-Aug. 20.

Presbyterian Young Peoples' Conference, July 13-20.

Bible Conference, August 20-29.

Women's Congress of Missions, San Francisco, Cal., June 6-13, 1915.

Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 28-Nov. 4, 1915.

Women's Summer Schools of Missions for 1915:

Los Angeles, Cal., May 31-June 4.

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 1-7.

Denton, Tex., June 3-13.

Duluth, Minn., June 8-14.

St. Paul, Minn., June 16-22.

Winona Lake, Ind., June 24-July 1.

Blue Ridge, N. C., June 24-July 4.

Boulder, Colo., July 6-13.

E. Northfield, Mass., July 8-15.

Silver Bay, N. Y., July 9-18.

World Bible Congress, Panama-Pacific Exposition, San Francisco, Aug. 1-4, 1915.

World's Sunday-school Convention, Tokyo, Japan, Oct. 18-26, 1916.

World's Temperance Sunday, Nov. 7, 1915.

Young Peoples' Christian Union of the United Presbyterian Church, Los Angeles, Cal., July 4-11, 1915.

Young Women's Christian Association Student Conferences for 1915:

Blue Ridge, N. C., June 4-14.

Silver Bay, N. Y., June 18-28.

Eagles Mere, Pa., June 25-July 5.

FORTHCOMING CONFERENCES OR IMPORTANT DATES

Anti-Saloon League of America (Biennial Convention), Atlantic City, N. J., July 6-10, 1915.

China Inland Mission Jubilee Meeting, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., June 15-20, 1915.

Children's Day, June 13, 1915.

Christian Workers and Bible Conference, Bible School Park, N. Y., July 23-Aug. 1, 1915.

Christian and Missionary Alliance Summer Conferences for 1915 (probable dates):

Toronto, Ont., June 6-13.

Binghamton, N. Y., June 25-July 4.

Hebron, Mass., July 4-11.

Neack, N. Y., July 4-11.

Mt. Lake Park, Md., July 13-18.

Chicago, Ill., July 18-25.

Old Orchard Beach, Me., July 30-Aug. 3.

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 6-15.

Beulah Park, O., Aug. 13-22.

Desplaines (Ill.) Camp Meeting, July 7-19, 1915.

The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

DR. GRAY'S ENGAGEMENTS

During the month of May, Dr. Gray, accompanied by Mr. Guille, conducted a Bible conference in Detroit. He also addressed the Baptist ministers of Cleveland and lectured in the Fidelity Baptist Church of that city, on "The Battle of Armageddon." On Sunday, the 23rd, he supplied the pulpit for Bishop Cheney at Christ Reformed Episcopal Church, Chicago. On the 28th he left for Shreveport, La., to conduct a Bible conference under the auspices of the churches of that city.

THE NEW SECRETARY OF THE EXTENSION DEPARTMENT

Mr. E. B. Buckalew, has accepted the call of the Institute to become Secretary of the Extension Department. He was born in north-eastern Pennsylvania and trained in the schools of that state, and became a Christian worker almost immediately on his conversion as a youth. As a salaried worker, however, all of his experience has been in the Y. M. C. A. At an early period he was so fortunate as to come into relationship with Charles E. Hurlburt, then state secretary of Pennsylvania, but for some years the director of the Africa Inland Mission, and through whom he was led into a knowledge of the deep things of God. Subsequently he was chosen as Mr. Hurlburt's successor in the office of state secretary, holding the position until about six years ago, when in order to be more at home with his family he accepted the secretaryship of the large and important association at Scranton.

E. B. Buckalew

His acceptance of the call of the Institute is coincident with a new love for Christ, and a new tenderness for the lost that has come to him, as a result of which he has made a new dedication of himself to God, and desires the rest of his life to count for the most in witnessing for Christ. Speaking of the work of the Extension Department, he says: "It grips my heart and imagination, and stirs my enthusiasm. I feel in my soul that I can set a great work in operation."

Mr. Buckalew is to be envied in the commendations the Institute has received concerning him from representative men who have known and served with him in Christian work for years. Among them are two who were candidates for the office of governor of Pennsylvania. Some of the others are well-known educators, railroad managers, pastors like Dr. John F. Carson, of Brooklyn, and manufacturers and business men of the type of Charles L. Huston, of Coatesville, and last, but not least, Evangelist William A. Sunday. These men are able to speak not only of his executive ability and other mental qualifications, but also to testify that his character is consistent with his faith. On the other hand he has the love and esteem of leaders in the Y. M. C. A. like Messrs. Brown, Douglas, Morris of Baltimore, Whitford of Buffalo, Stacy of Indiana, and others.

Mr. Buckalew's work as Secretary of the Extension Department will include among other things, placing in the field the Bible teachers and evangelists now on the staff of the department, and such others as may be added to it from time to time. The department also operates a Christian Workers Bureau which locates graduates and former students as well as other applicants in Christian service in the home and mission lands, and arranges occasional meetings in Chicago and other parts of the country for visiting missionaries, evangelists, preachers, and others. Besides this it organizes and conducts Bible or gospel music classes, Bible conferences and evangelistic meetings anywhere, in which the services of the faculty may be employed. It is expected that the new Secretary will push the work of this department with wisdom and energy.

The regular workers of the department have been engaged as follows during the last month: Frances C. Allison, with Bob Jones, in Crawfordville, Ind., and Sumter, S. C.; George E. Guille, in Bible conferences, in Detroit, Mich., Cleveland, O., and Bourbon, Ind.; C. P. Meeker took part of his vacation at his home in Michigan and then went to Granite City, Ill., to assist Charles T. Wheeler; John C. Page closed his work with the Evangelistic Association of Nova Scotia, and after a few days at the Institute went to Hermosa Beach, Cal., with his family; Miss Anny Manning Taylor reports successful Bible classes in Richmond, Appalachia, and Cobham, Va.

During the month of April, the Extension Department placed the following students: Harry Beckman, a recent graduate, was placed with the Avery Evangelistic Party as chorus director; Harry A. Whaley, was located as pastor's assistant and choir director at Davenport, Ia.; E. I. Hall, a recent graduate, was located in a pastorate at Denver, Colo., and W. S. Ross, another recent graduate, has been placed in a pastorate at Grand Junction, Mich. John M. Kane, a graduate of December, 1914, has been located as missionary for the American Sunday School Union at Parker, S. Dak. Mrs. Wadsworth, a former student, has been located in a pastorate in Wisconsin.

President John M. Dean, of The Northern Baptist Theological Seminary, made mention of the M. B. I. students in the seminary in a recent letter from which we quote the following: "We had picture taken recently of the Moody men who are in our seminary here. They make quite a group and we think very highly of them." We are pleased to repro-

C. H. Jack Linn, a present student, conducted meetings in several churches of Chicago during the winter term and had nearly a hundred professed conversions.

Fred Keifer, '11, has accepted the pastorate of the Presbyterian church, Normal, Ky., where he has been conducting special meetings for the past two months.

Isaac S. Caldwell, '10, wife and son are located at Kangundo Station, British East Africa. He says the work is very promising, the people friendly and the attendance at all the services is large. This year they expect to build two dwelling houses, a chapel, school-house and a boys' home.

J. T. Hartmann, '97, a Sabbath-school missionary laboring in the mining district of southeastern Kansas, during the past year or-duce the picture herewith. They are, front row, left to right—F. E. Bennett, Aug. '12, A. Oyer, Dec. '13, J. G. Stephenson, Apr. '13, D. L. Lloyd, Apr. '13, R. C. House, Aug. '11; second row—R. Morton, Aug. '14, E. S. Sorvaag, Aug. '13, E. S. Boyden Apr. '14, F. H. Luhman, Aug. '13; third row—A. Matheson, A. Dexter, Dec. '14, B. J. Adcock, Aug. '14, T. S. Homme, Aug. '14.

Former M. B. I. Students now at Northern Baptist Theological Seminary

In the May issue of "China's Millions" six of the contributions were by former students of The Moody Bible Institute.

PERSONALIA

F. O. Scurrah, '04, has been called to the First Presbyterian Church of Big Rapids, Mich.

ganized 17 Sunday-schools; reorganized two; traveled 10,950 miles; visited 1,630 families; distributed 1,950 tracts; gave 116 gospel talks and had 43 professed conversions.

Frank Dyer, '95, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Tacoma, Wash., in a recent sermon discussed the question of whether or not religion is advancing and the church declining, and said in part, "Christianity is not dying out. Nineteen hundred years ago there was not a Christian in the world. What are the facts concerning the religions of the world today? Christianity 564,000,000; Confucianism, 300,000,000; Hinduism, 210,000,000; Mohammedanism, 221,000,000; Buddhism 138,000,000. Thus you see Christianity has now more followers than any two of its competitors combined."

Vance S. Shober

his visit. He made many friends in Bonham whose prayers will follow him and who will rejoice to hear that the Lord is richly blessing his service."

George C. Crockatt, '11, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, White City, Kansas, was ordained April 15, 1915.

Bert S. Hughes, '03, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Grove City, O., is making splendid progress in his work.

Jay J. Pease, '13, and wife assisted A. N. Riley, '09, pastor of the Baptist church, Cassville, Wis., in evangelistic meetings.

Alexander Douglas, '12, pastor of the United Baptist Church, East Dixfield, Me., reports that special meetings were held in his church recently.

Walter B. Williams, '97, superintendent of the Nanah Kroo Mission, Nanah Kroo, Liberia, West Central Africa, reports that his field is a very difficult one.

The accompanying picture of the India Prayer Band was taken in front of the Women's building on Graduation Day, April 22, 1915.

This band meets every Friday at 1:10 p. m. in the Faculty dining room. The large map of India in the background was made by J. Allen Anderson, a present student.

India Prayer Band.

Martha Nichol, '95, is pastor of the Congregational church, Arcadia, Neb.

Archie E. Laraway, '09, is holding a three weeks tent meeting in Bennett, Neb.

J. O. Duffy, '11, pastor of the United Evangelical church, Wolf Point, Mont., was ordained in March.

Benjamin C. Kelly, '11, of Galatia, Ill., writes of a great awakening in his church as the result of union meetings.

Clement Upham, '03, pastor of the Mount Hope Congregational Church, writes encouragingly of his work.

Harriet Carstens, '11, has recently accepted a position with the Huntington Union Rescue Mission, Huntington, W. Va.

Ethel N. Rood, '11, writes, "I leave Almond, N. C., for my home in Terre Haute, Ind., having been here for one and a half years."

James Ostema, '02, pastor of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, Anderson, Ind., reports that his new work is growing and becoming more aggressive.

S. E. Taylor, '00, of Richland Center, Wis., has for the past winter been engaged in evangelistic work and expects to engage in tent work during the summer.

C. S. Kerfoot and Adena Malmsten, present students, held very successful meetings in the M. E. church, Plainfield, Ill., during vacation week, following the winter term.

Signe Abramhamsen, '12, missionary on her way from Norway to Tengchow, Honan, China, writes from Chang Chun, Manchuria, that "She often thinks of the M. B. I."

C. S. Blackburn, '93, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Greer, S. C., is having a series of meetings in his church conducted by W. D. Wakefield, '05, of Columbia, S. C.

Willard H. Perham, '03, is in Manchester, N. H., temporarily, to improve in health but he has been able to do supply work and is praising God for the souls God is giving him.

Doralie Vause, '01, writes from Academy, Gaylesville, Ala., "I have charge of the music department in one of the high schools owned by the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention."

James Watt, '12, of Carlton, Minn., and Wm. Morrison, of California, stopped to visit the Institute while on their way to attend the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, as commissioners, at Rochester, N. Y.

Mrs. C. L. Bragg, '09, of Rockford, Ill., has been assisting the Rev. Mark Williams, Milwaukee, Wis., in evangelistic meetings. She has charge of the music, women's meetings, house prayer meetings and does visitation work.

F. D. M. Martin, '12, was graduated from the Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky., in April and is going to work among the lumbermen of Minnesota under the Home Mission Board of the Presbyterian Church.

Iona Brosius, '04, 315 W. Maryland Avenue, Sebring, O., sends in the following request, "May we not have a call for news from the students of 1905 and 1906 through the magazine? I rarely hear anything of those who were there at that time."

E. B. Young, '03, pastor of the M. E. church, Hemiker, N. H., writes, "After leaving Chicago, I attended and graduated from the Boston University School of Theology, but nowhere have I been able to find that close touch with the Master as at The Moody Bible Institute. Often do I think of you and hope sometime to be able to visit you again."

I. Newton Earle, Jr., '05, of Jaro Industrial School, Iloilo, P. I., speaks encouragingly of the conversion of the boys under his care, who when they become Christians are of a very inquiring sort. He has many difficulties, but we quote: "In the midst of such a maze I look to the holy Spirit to bless my judgment and I find much comfort in His presence."

Paul Little, '01, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Waitsburg, Wash., secretary of the Columbia River Annual Conference and trustee of Williamette University, is now editing a volume of sermons entitled, "The Pacific Northwest Pulpit." He says, "I always have and will have a warm place in my heart for the Moody Institute for in my younger days it was so helpful to me."

F. E. Gainder, '09, pastor of the First Baptist Church, St. Louis, Mich., writes "I have been here just two years and the church has prospered, both spiritually and numerically. It has been brought about mainly through prayer. We have just come through a gracious revival in which 175 were won for Christ. Our Sunday-school is so large that we have been compelled to pitch a tent on the lawn for the housing of a part of it. It is only due the Institute to say that the M. B. I. boys have had a share in it, for I sent in a request for special prayer in the fellowship meetings and I know they are a power for good."

F. W. Sass, '03, Sunday-school missionary for the state of Michigan under the direction of the Michigan Congregational Conference, Lansing, Mich., writes of his work as follows: "My work comprises that of Sunday-school and home missions, looking after the churches receiving aid, strengthening the work wherever needed, organizing schools, holding Institutes and conferences with individual schools and occasionally attending and participating in conventions. I preach every Sunday from one to three times, teach Bible classes, etc. Now and then I have the privilege of addressing the public schools when I always put in a good word for the Lord."

BORN

To Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kaptyen (Beatrice Pawsey, '11), of Benito, Africa, January, 1915, a daughter.

MARRIED

G. T. Thiessen, '14, to Miss Agnes Ratzlaff at Jansen, Neb., Jan. 24, 1915. At home after April 20, at Langhaw, Sask., Canada.

William Jung, '09, to Elizabeth Engel, '11, at Chicago, Ill., April 24, 1915. At home after May 10, at 1957 West Twentieth St., Chicago.

Herbert C. Tovey, '14, to Miss B. Plant, at Kansas City, Kan., May 4, 1915.

John J. Ross, '12, to Miss Mary Agnes Cowell, at Cincinnati, O., May 24, 1915. At home after June 21, at 3091 Beekman St., Cincinnati, O.

DIED

Mrs. Julia Richardson, '95, 20 Clarence St., Johannesburg, S. Africa, has written us of the recent passing away of her husband.

Chas. S. Knight, '03, Director of Berea College Bible School, writes of the passing away of his wife on April 19, 1915.

Jestia A. Moses, '10, who was employed as secretary to Dr. Evans and went to Monrovia, Liberia, West Africa, fifteen months ago, was taken sick with African fever and passed away May 9, 1915. Services were held in memory of her in the Grace Lutheran Church of which she was a member, Rev. E. A. Marshall, director of the Missionary Course of The Moody Bible Institute, and the Rev. T. F. Dornblaser, pastor of the church, being the principal speakers. In the accompanying picture, Miss Moses is seen on the left.

Jestia A. Moses at Left

The Bible Institute Colportage Association

EMPHASIZING THE FUNDAMENTALS OF CHRISTIAN TRUTH

There is need today for a re-emphasis upon the great fundamentals of the Christian faith and Christian truth. It is undeniably true that a dangerously liberal theology is being taught in novel, lecture, in certain magazine articles, and in conversation.

It has become popular in certain quarters (not a widespread popularity) not only to point out the failings and the shortcomings of the church, but to hold it up to ridicule as an effete institution which has served a good purpose in the centuries that have gone, but for which our twentieth century civilization has no place. Proprietors of several widely-read magazines have scoured christendom to find some one who would for a consideration write a sensational article for publication, denying some well-established and approved doctrine of Christianity.

It is well, we believe, in these days of destructive criticism and the supposed passing of what were once regarded as fundamentals of the Christian faith, that parents in the home, teachers in the Sabbath-school, and ministers in the pulpit should strive to fix in the minds of the young people the great fundamental principles of Christian truth and teaching.

The inspiration and authority of the Holy Scriptures, the divinity of Jesus Christ, the character of Christ's suffering and death as differentiated from every other death, the personality and the renewing and sanctifying work of the Holy Spirit, the necessity for regeneration, and the continuity of the soul after death—are not these and others among the great essential truths which in this commercialized and materialized twentieth century should be taught with clearness and strong emphasis, in the home, in the pulpit, and in the Sabbath-school class?

If these great fundamental doctrines are kept before the youth, there will be little danger of skepticism or false liberalism in mature years. The pulpit is in need of this hint no less than the home and the Sabbath-school. It will not do for pastors to take too much for granted in the way of clear and definite doctrinal knowledge in their people. These old fundamental articles of Christian belief should certainly have a place in every year's course of preaching. If we overlook them in our teaching, whether in the home, the Sabbath-school, in the pulpit, or in the press, we shall have a sad harvest to reap by and by—even a harvest of skepticism, if not of downright unbelief.

Let us awake to our opportunity and consequent responsibility!—"The Brethren Evangelist."

A Great Spread for Hungry Hearts (see item below)

ENFORCING THE VERBAL MESSAGE

The accompanying cut illustrates how conveniently and attractively a book table may be set up for the Moody Colportage Library series. The arrangement is adapted to the individual church as well as to an evangelistic or union revival meeting. In many towns or villages the accessibility of such excellent books as these would be a direct boon to the people, who would purchase for themselves, for others and to give away. A few words of commendation on the part of the pastor or evangelist, perhaps drawing special attention to some particular book or title, will suffice to get the attention of the people towards the books and the plan for placing them.

A "SKY PILOT" FOR THE LUMBER-JACKS TESTIFIES

Big Falls, Minn.

After working in one camp of 67 men with the Colportage Library books and preaching the Word all winter, the camp was visited the other day by a Bible colporter, who sold twelve expensive Bibles to the men. One sows and another reaps. While I have not the time to canvass the men and haul around a stock of Bibles, as this man was doing, yet it is evident that the way has been prepared for him by the Moody Colportage Library books and the presentation of God's truth. We may well thank God for the privilege of service in the light of such opening manifestations of interest upon the part of these lumberjacks.

W. C.

WHAT A THOUSAND COUNTRY PREACHERS MIGHT DO

With Profit—Spiritual and Financial

"I am writing you with regard to the 'book missionary' work. The thought occurred to me that I might be able to do a little of this work during the summer. There are four reasons for it: (1) I would probably have a little extra money; (2) I would be spreading the gospel and sound literature; (3) God, I believe, would be glorified; (4) I would get a little experience in this line and have opportunities to talk with people along spiritual lines. I thought I could take the towns nearby and either go from house to house, or have a sale at some of the churches. I will be preaching every Sunday and will only be able to give a little time each week."—(Signed by a Minnesota pastor.)

THE "MOODY" BOOKS A FACTOR IN SPIRITUAL RESULTS

A Prison Worker's Testimony.

Joplin, Mo.

We are using considerable literature in our jail meetings and with the prisoners at other times. One thing is certain, we have had more conversions in these meetings during the past winter than we have ever had before. It is nothing unusual for us to have eight men come forward in a meeting on Sunday. I am under the impression that the reading matter furnished the prisoners has had considerable to do with this. Certainly the Bibles and Colportage Library books are read by a number of the men, and they are demanding more all the time. We generally have thirty to fifty in our city jail at all times, therefore we can always make use of any literature which you can send us. We and the men appreciate it.

J. S. G.

A PARAGRAPH THAT WOULD CHEER MR. MOODY'S HEART

Harris Memorial Bible Woman's Training School, Manila, P. I.

Please find enclosed money order for $18, for which please send me the following list of Colportage Library books.

Many of these books we have put into the "required reading" part of our course. The students find them easily understood and greatly enjoy them. I find they make a great impression on their minds and hearts, so we continue to send in our yearly order.

M. M. D.

A SUGGESTIVE VACATION INQUIRY

A Country Pastor Wishes to Do Good and Get Good

"As summer approaches, the question of vacation naturally presents itself, and I believe you may be able to help me decide where to go to spend a month profitably from the standpoint of 'recreation, while I work.' I have been wondering if it would be a good plan to work in the country near some of the various Bible conferences, doing 'book missionary' work for the B. I. C. A. My desire is to do some good, and at the same time get in touch with some of the conferences for my own good."

FREE GRANTS OF BOOKS

The following donations of the Moody Colportage Library books, Emphasized Gospels of John, etc., have been sent out on account of the several book funds named, from April 10, 1915, to May 15, 1915, inclusive, many of which consignments already have been acknowledged with expressions of hearty appreciation:

Prison Book Fund:

Missouri, 77 books, 75 gospels.
 Pennsylvania, 20 books, 20 gospels and tracts.
 Michigan, 20 books, 20 gospels and tracts.
 Iowa, 45 books, 45 gospels and tracts.
 California, 50 books, 50 gospels and tracts.
 Maine, 50 books, 25 gospels.
 Ohio, 200 books, 234 gospels, 600 tracts.
 New Jersey, 190 books.
 Indiana, 45 books, 50 gospels.
 Kansas, 5 books, 5 gospels.
 North Dakota, 15 books, 15 gospels.

Mountain Book Fund:

Kentucky, 55 books, 50 gospels.

Lumber Camp Book Fund:

Minnesota, 100 books.

Hospital Book Fund:

California, 75 gospels.

Army and Navy Book Fund:

Ohio, 1,466 gospels.

MR. MOODY'S BOOK FUNDS

The following contributions have been received from April 16, 1915, to May 15, 1915, inclusive:

Prison Book Fund:
14 Contributions	$57.60
Alaska Book Fund:
1 Contribution.....	5.00
Lumber Camp Book Fund:
1 Contribution	5.00

"Rescue the Perishing"

The Great Personal Workers' Book

The best recommendation this book can have is the fact that it is the outgrowth of the experience of the MOST SUCCESSFUL PERSONAL WORKERS AND SOUL WINNERS.

By FRED R. SEIBERT

It is the very Best Book for Personal Workers

It contains 130 Pages of Bible Hints

Carefully arranged and indexed so as to enable anyone to turn instantly to verses on any

"FRED" Important subject—"How to Become a Christian," "Regeneration," "Repentance," "Unbelief," "False Hope," "Difficulties," "How to Study the Bible," "Assurance," "Prayer," "Amusements," "Conversion," "Soul Winning," "Secret of Victory Over Sin." The book is vest pocket size, 3x5 1/4 inches.

In Bright Red Manilla, 10c; by the hundred, $6.00; by doz., $1.00. In Morocco, 25c; by the hundred, $18.00; by doz., $2.40.

Rev. W. A. Sunday, the Famous Evangelist, says: "This book is the result of a life time of research and practical effort, and has been forged on the anvil of experience." Every Teacher, Preacher, Student and Religious Society should have this book. AGENTS WANTED. Special rates in quantities. Write for terms.

Over 100,000 Have Been Sold. Order Now. Mention The Christian Workers Magazine.

Address orders (Coin or P. O. Order) to FRED R. SEIBERT, care Rodeheaver Co., 440 S. Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Wood and Brooks Are Succeeding in solving the problems of genuine evangelistic work of today. Their management in organization and follow-up plans are practical common sense, not narrow or sectarian in their views, but work for the masses and have the faculty of stirring communities and many are won to Christ.

Rev. Wood's message is to the point, no dodging the issue, acquainted with human frailty and divine power and is proving that the gospel has not lost its power in leading men where they can see the light.

Mr. Brooks is a graduate of the Moody Bible Institute, and is making good as a musical director and soloist, having had several years of experience and possessing a voice of rare sweetness and wide range, enlisting old and young in the song service with a spirit of enthusiasm and joy.

Rev. W. W. Smith

Chairman of Evangelistic Committee, writes the following letter of commendation:

"Harmony, Minn., April 7, 1915.
"Rev. Wood is a strong preacher, a consecrated man of God sent to call sinners to repentance. He has a good voice and a splendid delivery. He has also a deep, rich, Christian experience which enables him to reach others for God.

"Mr. C. B. Brooks is a splendid singer, his voice is strong and well trained. He knows how to sing the Gospel to the heart and conscience of people so as to lift them to God.

"The spiritual tone of the churches was quickened and many in and out of the churches were reconciled to one another and to God. The cottage prayermeetings were the best I ever attended.

"I can heartily commend Wood and Brooks as a good gospel team."

Wood and Brooks

Home Address: 1805 E. Prairie St.

Decatur, Illinois

Want An Evangelist?

For this fall or winter? Now is the time to engage him. The undersigned, a college and theological school graduate, who spent 14 years in the pastorate and past 8 years (part of each year) as an evangelist and singer, author of "Personal Evangelism" and other volumes, will be glad to mail pastors an 8-page folder telling of his work as an evangelist and singer, including commendations of pastors in different states, terms, etc. Address:

Rev. R. C. Miller

Box A 265

Yonkers,

N. Y.

To Pastors and Ministerial Associations

Dr. Arthur Crane, Pastor-Evangelist is booking engagements for Union Meetings 1915-16, or Single Churches in Large Cities. Refers to Dr. Parley E. Zartmann, Sec. Int. Assn., of Evangelists and those he has assisted.

"No Evangelist we ever had came nearer giving perfect satisfaction. He has no objectionable methods, no sensationalism, but only the plain gospel of grace, which he preaches with earnestness and power. Rev. R. B. Garrett, D. D., Portsmouth, Va." Address

810 Flatbush Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Begin now your interest in the New Covenant Mission To the Jews

$1.00 will secure the Glory of Israel, choicest Hebrew Christian Magazine, till 1916, and 50c worth of selected tracts for Jews in different languages, also 50c worth of wonderful Hebrew Christian experiences

Address Rev. Maurice Ruben, Supt., 333 42nd St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JUST OUT---No. 5---JUST OUT

Object Lessons of Scripture

Companion to No. 1, No. 2, No. 3 and No. 4; available for all; 12 Object Lessons in each Pamphlet.

Price, 15c Each. Order by Number

REV. CHAS. EICKENBERG, 4029 N. Hermitage Avenue, Chicago, Illinois

Immersion Scriptural Baptism

Sprinkling, Pouring and Infant Baptism, products of the Roman Catholic Church, as truly as the dogma of purgatory.

Price 15c.

H. J. ILER

79 Linden Ave.

Dayton, Ohio

Mention this magazine when writing and remember "number nineteen"

"I Will Buy Something"

"From some advertiser in The Christian Workers Magazine, SURELY this month, just to help the publishing agent to interest the advertisers in placing more advertisements in the July and August numbers.

"Also, because I can just as well buy from an advertiser in this magazine as elsewhere. Then, every time I buy from these advertisers it helps their business, they pay for their ads in the magazine, that helps to pay for the printing of the magazine, then the publishing agent can afford to spend some money to interest more subscribers, and the circulation of the magazine is increased, more people can read the good things that I enjoy—and, and, why should I be selfish about it? If my spending a little, along with 10,000 or 12,000 more, even if all the readers should not buy, will mean $5,000 or $10,000 business, why shouldn't I do it? I will buy something.

"There are so many good books advertised, and commentaries (even on payments), and music books, organs, then that Bible conference where Dr. Gray will be, and a hotel there, blackboards, collection plates, a training school for missionaries, land in Florida, electrotypes and engravings, schools for stammerers, an academy, Sunday-school lesson quarterly, evangelists wanting engagements, a gospel paper, a daily Bible-reading magazine, duplicators for letters, a farm, church furniture, and a phonograph attachment, voice lessons, bottle of ink, second-hand books, middy blouses—middy blouses—let me see that again—middy blouses—yes, it surely is. I know that will interest the girls. Then there's work for boys in vacation.

"A pastor wants a church, second-hand stereopticon for sale (that man must have seen the ad last month with that suggestion, he ought to find a buyer), then there's Bible study by correspondence for vacation—I'll make a note of that and get the circulars.

"Then look at the chopped off walls of that fine building for which they need money—why, that's the building the Christian Workers Magazine will have its office in—and they chopped right through where the office will be—I wonder—I wonder—if all the subscribers to the magazine would put their pocketbooks together if they couldn't put the whole top on the building—I believe they can, and I hope they all will remember to speak a good word for the magazine when sending in their gifts, and mention to credit the gift to 'account number 19,' for that's the magazine number for the new building. Now do remember, everybody, say your gift is for 'NUMBER NINETEEN.'

"Now, I must not forget to spend or give something—then there are bulletin boards for churches, a theological seminary, wall mottoes and texts, the first announcement of a new song book, Jewish missions, typewriters, chemical illustrations for sermons, object lessons, preachers and teachers to represent a seminary, communion sets, index for clippings, then, then there's an undertaker.

"And now I know what I will do—when I write to an advertiser I will say I saw the advertisement in The Christian Workers Magazine, and when I am writing letters to my friends I will also mention to them that they can get the magazine at half price in June, and tell them also to remember the new building the magazine is to be in, and if they can give something towards it to be sure and have it credited to account 'NUMBER NINETEEN,' for that's the magazine account.

Remember!

"Number Nineteen"

"I am so glad The Christian Workers Magazine has so many good advertisements in it."

One of our subscribers wrote a few days ago, "My mother wishes me to ask if you get out pictures of the Institute. . . . mother is so much delighted with the magazine she would like to see some of the place whence it comes."

Pipe Tone Folding Organs $10.00 AND UP

AFTER 30 YEARS' EXPERIENCE in the manufacture of ORGANS we have PERFECTED a FOLDING ORGAN that is without question the best in point of Construction, Durability, Tone and Volume of anything of its kind that has ever appeared on the market—namely—our Waterproof Leatherette Covered Instruments. We can Positively Guarantee that White's system of Leatherette Covered Folding Organs will outwear any other make. 15 year Guarantee or exchanged for new one in 5 years. We Ship Our Organs On Approval—

ABRAHAM LINCOLN once said: "You can fool part of the people all the time, all of the people part of the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all the time."

No one will ever be fooled at anytime who buys an A. L. WHITE PIPE-TONE FOLDING ORGAN. Remember, we make folding organs with COUPLES.

You Are the Judge. Proof of the pudding is the eating thereof. The Best is the Cheapest in the end. We have a few slightly showworn, and a few rebuilt Organs, good value for the money. Now then it costs money to advertise. To say more costs more, and we would rather put the extra money value into the Organ and give you the benefit. Tell us your needs—place your order with us—The Organ will complete your happiness. Write, to-day.

A. L. White Mfg. Co. Dept. C. W. Englewood Ave., Chicago

AGENTS WANTED

for THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

Deeper Experiences of Famous Christians

By J. GILCHRIST LAWSON

Just published. Is the greatest book on the Spirit allied life. 382 pages. Twenty-one full page portraits. Cloth $1; paper 50c. Agents Wanted.

Glad Tidings Pub. Co., Lakeside Bldg., Chicago

President Charles A. Blanchard's New Book

Getting Things From God

CONTENTS.

PART ONE. WHAT IS IT TO PRAY?

- I. "DIALOGUE OR MONOLOGUE?"
- II. WHAT IS AN ANSWER TO PRAYER?
- III. CAN A SINNER PRAY?
- IV. DO CHRISTIANS ALWAYS PRAY?
- V. THE SIN OF PRAYERLESSNESS.
- VI. TALKING WITH GOD.

PART TWO.

THE CONDITIONS OF SUCCESSFUL PRAYER.

- I. THE SECRET OF SUBMISSION TO GOD'S WILL.
- II. "WITH THANKSGIVING."
- III. "CONFESS YOUR FAULTS ONE TO ANOTHER AND PRAY."
- IV. "WHATSOEVER YE SHALL ASK IN MY NAME."
- V. "ACCORDING TO HIS WILL."
- VI. WITHOUT FAITH, IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO PLEASE HIM.
- VII. "ALWAYS TO PRAY, AND NOT TO FAINT."

PART THREE.

WHY DOES GOD ANSWER PRAYER?

- I. BECAUSE HE HAS PROMISED TO DO SO.
- II. LOVING HIS OWN. HE LOVED THEM TO THE END.
- III. GOD WISHES US TO SERVE OTHERS.
- IV. TAPPING THE INFINITE RESERVOIRS.
- V. "KNOWETH THAT YE HAVE NEED OF THESE THINGS."
- VI. THE "WHY" OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

PART FOUR.

HOW DOES GOD ANSWER PRAYER?

- I. BY CHANGING THOSE WHO PRAY.
- II. BY DIRECTING MINDS TO SOURCES OF HELP.
- III. BY CHANGING THE ORDER OF NATURE.
- IV. BY CHANGING THE HEARTS OF MEN.
- V. A FEW WORDS AT PARTING.

Dr. Blanchard Says: "I send out this book because it seems to me to be greatly needed by multitudes of my fellow toilers. How many tens of thousands of men and women and children are weary and heavy laden! How many are fiercely tried by temptations of body, soul and spirit! How many suffer in the alienation of those who have been friends! How many find their work in home or church, or society failing to accomplish what they desire! And how the heart of God yearns over these sick, tempted, neglected, weary, discouraged souls! How He longs to comfort, to enlighten, to strengthen, to deliver! That He may graciously make these testimonies really helpful to my brothers is my earnest prayer."

12mo., 270 pages, paper, 35 cents, net, postage extra, 5 cents; fine cloth, 75 cents, net, postage extra, 8 cents.

THE BIBLE INSTITUTE COLPORTAGE ASS'N

826 North La Salle Street

CHICAGO

CHURCH FURNITURE

Chairs, Pulpits, Pews, Altars, Desks, Book Racks, etc. The finest furniture made. Direct from our factory to your church at wholesale prices. Catalog free.

DeMoulin Bros. & Co. Dept. 89, Greenville, Ill.

CLEANLINESS OF OPERATION

is one of the strong features that has helped to earn the present world-wide reputation and endorsement of the DAUS IMPROVED TIP TOP DUPLICATOR. No printer's ink used, thus avoiding soiled hands and clothing. No expensive supplies. Always ready for use.

100 Copies from Penwritten and 50 Copies from Typewritten Original
SENT ON TEN DAYS' TRIAL Without Deposit
Complete Duplicator, cap size (prints 8 3/4 x 13 in.) contains a continuous roll of our new "Dausco" Oiled Parchment Back Duplicating Surface (which can be used over and over again), 2 bottles of ink, Rubber and Powder. Price $7.50 less special discount of 33 1-3 per cent net Circular of larger sizes upon request. Take advantage of our Trial Offer.

$5

FELIX H. DAUS DUPLICATOR CO., Daus Bldg., 111 John St., NEW YORK

Mention this magazine when writing and remember "number nineteen"

JUST PUBLISHED

THE PRECIOUS PROMISE TESTAMENT
WITH COMPLETE INDEX

The most helpful Testament published. It has all the precious promises in RED. It also has a COMPLETE INDEX to every subject and important word in the New Testament. Descriptive Pamphlet Free. $1.00
BEST LEATHER BINDING ONLY
GLAD TIDINGS PUB. CO., 602 Lakeside Bldg., CHICAGO, ILL.

Journeys of Jesus A Book for Sunday-school Teachers and Bible Students. Publisher's price, $2.25. Agents wanted. Large commission. Mennonite Publishing Co., Elkhart, Indiana.

Church Attendance Depends Upon Church Interest

Without this INTEREST, ATTENDANCE at Church is impossible. Our 12 page folder illustrates simple but positive means of arousing Public INTEREST and INCREASING attendance. Prominent expert Churchmen tell how they Do It. BULLETIN ANNOUNCEMENT CO.
383 Manhattan Bldg., CHICAGO

Private Ambulance

Tel. Superior 615

R. A. ALLEN

Funeral Director

859 North Clark Street

CHICAGO, ILL.

READY and RELIABLE
Chemical Illustrations of Bible
Truths For Pastors and Sunday School Teachers
INTERESTING, INSTRUCTIVE and IMPRESSIVE

Many workers use and endorse them. Prepared powders ready to use, with directions and helps.

6 Talks 50 cents, Postpaid.

C. A. SCHMITT 209 Poplar St., Roslindale, Mass.

Clergymen's
INDEX
AND FILE

EFFICIENCY is gained by indexing the best you read in books, and filing clippings by our almost automatic Topical & Textual system. 80% cheaper and handler than any other thorough method. Sent on approval. Send for circulars. WILSON INDEX COMPANY, 20 Lovett Pl., Lynn, Mass.

25000 CHURCHES
USE THE THOMAS
INDIVIDUAL COMMUNION SERVICE

Does your church use this cleanly method? If not, send for Catalog and "SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER." Our noiseless, dust-proof, self-collecting trays save 1/2 cost of other services. Shallow glass used—no tipping of head. Outfits on trial. State number communicants. Thomas Communion Service Co., Box W, Lima, Ohio

FLORIDA Reclaimed upper Everglades, richest land in the world; easy terms; free booklet and sample of soil; ag'ts w'ntd. J. BARE & CO., 1111 Cornell Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

We Wanted a New Premium for Our Subscribers and wrote for a sample of a Bible Dictionary. Read the publisher's letter to us:

"As requested, we are sending you a sample copy of SMITH-PELOUBET BIBLE DICTIONARY, in GENUINE FLEXIBLE FRENCH MOROCCO, with Patent Thumb Index. When you examine the book and its binding, we are sure you will agree with us that, at the marvelously low price, it is the best proposition ever offered the religious press.

"Almost every reader or user of the Bible knows Smith's Dictionary—for many years it has been the standard popular Dictionary of the Bible, and with the well-known revision by Dr. Peloubet, this edition has been in larger demand than any other. It requires no words of commendation—the names of the Author and Reviser tell the story of its worth at once—and in this new and substantial binding, it is certain to be in largely increased demand.

"When you consider the fact that we have sold TENS OF THOUSANDS OF COPIES, in the regular cloth binding, and now offer this attractive volume, bound in Genuine French Morocco, Flexible, at a low price, the full value of our offer will be patent. It is only by anticipating the demand and binding in very large editions that we are enabled to make this price.

"We shall supply the book to you, for use in connection with your publication, with thumb index, same as sample sent you."

Do you want one of these Dictionaries?

We will send one with a year's subscription to The Christian Workers Magazine for $2.25

Or we will send a Dictionary to you if you will send us Fifteen new subscriptions to the magazine, at the special prices until July 31, 1915.

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE
163 Institute Place CHICAGO, ILL.

DROP A QUARTER

25c

into a Coin Card, or change it into 2c stamps and send it for a subscription to Daily Bible from now until January 1916

WHY?

Because Daily Bible is the most concise form of Bible study for individual or family devotions, the busy man's best guide to the Bible, the surest way of getting an entire Church to reading the Bible, and so increasing prayer meeting interest. For other reasons, read a sample copy, sent free for the asking. Special rates to Churches. A valuable course this summer in Psalms

IT WILL PAY YOU to make this small investment. Literally 8 months for the price of 5. Write to-day

WORLD'S MORNING WATCH

Room 311 30 E. 42nd St. New York

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

Continuing THE INSTITUTE TIE.
Published on the first of each month by
The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

JAMES M. GRAY, Editor.
J. H. RALSTON, Associate Editor.
S. A. WOODRUFF, Publishing Agent.

To Canada, $1.25. To other foreign countries, $1.36 (5s, 7d). Remittances should be sent by bank draft or postal or express money order, payable to The Christian Workers Magazine. Personal checks must be accompanied with 10 cents additional for exchange.

Change of Address—In sending notice of change of address, give both old and new addresses, and at least fifteen days before the first of the month.

The Wrapper—Indicates the time of expiration of your subscription. Please renew promptly.

Communications should be addressed to
THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE
153-163 Institute Place, Chicago.

Entered as Second-Class Matter, Oct. 7, 1910, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Where to Get What You Want

Advertising under this heading 10 cents
a line. Count seven words to a line

FOR UNION EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS WRITE
Floyd John Evans Party, 136 Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

PINT OF GOOD BLUE-BLACK INK POSTPAID, 10c.
Address Helmer E. Hagberg, Dept. 1, Gothenburg, Nebr.

A WARNING TO WORLDLY CHRISTIANS, BY LAIC
(The Church Tramp). By mail Five Cents. Alliance News, Birmingham, Mich.

WANTED—SEVERAL HONEST INDUSTRIOUS PEOPLE to introduce religious literature. $60 a month sure. Nichols Co., Naperville, Ill.

SEVENTH DAY ADVENTISM A FALSE SYSTEM—
Ten cents per copy, postpaid; special rates for quantities. Wm. Sickels, Beaumont, Calif.

HALF-TONE ENGRAVINGS AND ELECTROTYPES.
Jos. H. Barnett & Co., 508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago. Phone Har. 1389. Mail orders promptly filled.

MUST SELL SECTION RICH BOTTOM LAND, NEAR
Poplar Bluff, Mo., and on the Inter-river drainage canal. H. F. Davis, 33 Gay Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

"THE LORD'S RETURN," BY SILVER. ONLY $1.00.
A great history, long awaited. Highly endorsed. (Revels.) Order of Bible Institute Colportage Ass'n.

VOICE LESSONS—12 SYSTEMATIC STUDIES IN tone production, "Open Throat Method"; mailed on receipt of $1. A Francke, 61 Auditorium Bldg., Dept. C, Chicago.

AGENTS WANTED—EASY SELLING SETS OF BOOKS indispensable to Ministers and Bible Students. Send at once for particulars. W. P. Blessing, 509 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—MACINTOSH STEREOPTICON IN GOOD condition, complete with 45 ft. cable. Both carbon and 400 candle-power Tungsten attachments. 87 slides colored and uncolored, illustrating songs and Bible subjects. Total value, $85.00. Sale price, $40.00, transportation extra. Sent C. O. D. Address, 516 Nevada Ave., Trinidad, Colo.

BARGAINS IN BLACKBOARDS. COLLECTION
Plates, Single and Duplex Envelopes, Individual Communion Trays, American Blackboard Co., Gay Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

UNION EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS—A BOOKLET
on how to arrange for them, by W. F. Shearer, evangelist. Mailed free upon request. Address W. F. Shearer, Angola, Indiana.

FOR SALE—MY "BLICKENSERFER" PORTABLE typewriter; almost new. Cost $50.00, sell $15.00. Guarantee satisfaction. Leon B. Mayer, Student Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

BETTER THAN GOLD! HOW I CAN BE SAVED
and Filled. Book 30c Postpaid. Preface by Dr. C. I. Scofield and Dr. James M. Gray. Evangelist Robert Layfield, Kansas City, Kan.

TYPEWRITER BARGAIN—HAMMOND ($100.00) MAchine, with case, new ribbon and several extra type wheels; all in good working order, $15.00 cash. Rev. F. W. Sass, 235 Shepard St., Lansing, Mich.

"THE WORLD'S SATURDAY NIGHT"—A LECTURE
on the second coming of Christ—46 pp., 10 cents; Also "Down Grade," 57 pp., 10 cents; These are good. Address the author, D. R. Raiser, Tiffin, Ohio.

WE NEED A FEW COPIES OF THE MARCH CHRIStian Workers Magazine. If any reader can spare us a copy, it will be appreciated. Address Christian Workers Magazine, 163 Institute Place, Chicago.

ENGAGEMENTS FOR EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS.
union or denominational, in churches, hall, or in our portable tabernacle, rent free, saving building expenses. Address H. B. Seese, 641 Linden, Johnstown, Pa.

THE EVANGELIST D. B. BULKLEY AND SINGER will have a few weeks open beginning June 15 and would be willing to assist in a tent or church meeting at that time. Address D. B. Bulkley, Y. M. C. A., Little Rock, Ark.

WANTED—A CHRISTIAN YOUNG MAN WITH knowledge of bookkeeping and some experience. A good opening for one willing to work. Address Best Book Publishers, care this Magazine. Give age, experience and church reference.

THE FRAZIER EVANGELISTIC PARTY, CONSISTing of four members, is ready for engagements. Jacob A. Frazier of Winchester, Ind., the evangelist. Good references can be furnished. Terms reasonable. Union campaigns preferred.

EVANGELISTIC PASTOR ABOUT TO GIVE FULL time to evangelistic work desires engagements—with or without chorister—early correspondence invited for meetings. Address Pastor-Evangelist, care Christian Workers Magazine.

GEORGE PRESTON (IRISH TENOR). GREAT GOSpel Soloist and Leader, reference every meeting past four years, and H. Monroe, Pacific Garden Mission, Chicago. Will help pastors or join good evangelist. Address, 153 Institute Place, Chicago.

SPECIAL OFFER—CLEAN, FULL GOSPEL MONTHly, clear, strong, definite teaching of Bible salvation from sin, victorious Christian life. Live testimonies, interesting anecdotes. Not a hobbyist. 6 months trial, 15c. Address, The Crusader, Bradford, Pa.

HOMER STANLEY MORGAN, FORMER PASTOR, now mission supt. and M. B. I. graduate. Will have a few open dates for evangelistic meetings, anywhere in New England or eastern states during the summer and fall. Address, 107 Green St., Lynn, Mass.

AN EXPERIENCED KINDERGARTEN TEACHER desires Christian work with children—must be Evangelical, not simply uplift work. Will send full particulars about training and work done by addressing Kindergarten, care Christian Workers Magazine.

HELLO, CENTRAL: BAPTIST PASTOR WANTS
call eastern part United States. Have taken Bible Institute and Seminary Extension Course. Can sing solos, conduct singing and play organ. Will consider call evangelistic work. W. A. Stevenson, Conklin, N. Y.

THE REVELATION—A STUDENTS' HANDBOOK.
Just off the press. A sane, clear exposition of this interesting book by Mrs. Iva D. Vennard. Especially adapted for devotional or class study. Cloth bound, $0.75 per copy, postpaid. CO-OPERATIVE BOOK-STORE, 1754 Washington Blvd., CHICAGO.

Mention this magazine when writing and remember "number nineteen"

HEART AND LIFE SONGS—A NEW, HIGH-GRADE
Collection of over 160 sweet songs of salvation. Contains ALL of Evangelist George Bennard's songs, such as "The Old Rugged Cross," "Jesus Is Dearer Than All," etc. Chorus, hymns, solos, duets. Just what you are looking for. Limp cloth, $0.20 per copy, postpaid. INSTITUTE PRESS, 1754 Washington Blvd., CHICAGO.

MEN AND WOMEN, BOYS AND GIRLS, WANTED
as representatives for the Christian Workers Magazine in every church and town. Liberal commission allowed on all orders. Whether you wish to take subscriptions to make money, or only to help us along, send us your name at once, Agents Dept., Christian Workers Magazine, Chicago, Ill. See advertisement elsewhere of 2 cents a week plan.

"FLASHES FROM THE WIRE," BOOK OF RED hot revival sermons, that have won thousands to Christ. It takes brains to appreciate brains. If you are slow as a crippled snail, or a candidate for the position of driving a hearse, don't send. If you want something that is up to snuff, or a pinch or two over, send sixty cents to Dan Shannon, Stanwood, Mich., and you will get your money's worth.

SECOND HAND BOOKS

Select stock, fine condition; also new books of all publishers; special prices; catalog free.

Hays, Cushman Co., 201 Athenaeum Bldg., Chicago

LAYMEN'S COMMENTARY

(Continued from page 631.)

the secondary work of that ministry (v. 3), the democratic nature of the church assembly, and yet the respect for order and authority (v. 6). The whole multitude selected the deacons, but the apostles ordained them. Note also the direction in which the truth of the gospel was now advancing (v. 7).

The above leads up to the personal history of Stephen, whose ministry was not limited to that of an almoner, and who was endowed with miraculous power (v. 8). Verse 9 is explained by the fact that in addition to the Temple in Jerusalem there were many synagogues, where the Jews from different countries assembled according to local preferences. (The "Libertines" were Jews from Rome.) "The servant is not greater than his master," and if false witnesses caused the death of the One, the other need not expect different treatment (vv. 11-14), but the Master has not forsaken His servant (v. 15).

The defense of Stephen before the Sanhedrin (Chap. 7) is a historical address carrying his hearers through the glory of God's dealings with Israel from the call of Abraham to the building of Solomon's Temple, special emphasis being laid on Joseph and Moses who were remarkable types of Christ (vv. 2-50). One instinctively feels that he was proceeding to a climax in his witness to Christ and the resurrection, when he was diverted by the gathering opposition of his hearers, and broke off in the language of rebuke at verses 51-53. Their fury vented itself upon him at this time (vv. 54, 57, 58); but he was marvelously sustained, and had a marvelous testimony to bear of what he saw, which enabled him, as his Saviour before him, to pray for the forgiveness of his murderers with his last breath.

A comparison of Stephen's words with the Old Testament records show certain variations, but the Holy Spirit through him may have been adding details to that record. On the other hand, Stephen was a Grecian Jew, using doubtless the Septuagint or Greek translation of the Old Testament, which would explain some things.

Note in verse 55 the first manifestation of the glorified Christ on record. Note in verse 58 the illegality of Stephen's judges when compared with John 18:31. And in the same verse the presence of Saul, who in a sense, owed his conversion to this scene, and of whom we are soon to learn more. (Compare 22:20.)

The second offer of the kingdom to Israel is brought to an end here, and in our next lesson we enter on the transition period through which the story of the church passes out of the Jewish into its Gentile stage.

Note in closing, that the name "Jesus" (v. 45), should be rendered, as in the Revised Version, "Joshua," the two in the original being the same.

Questions on the Lesson

1. To what earlier event in the history of the church is the opening of this lesson related?
2. What is the significance of "Grecians" in 6:1?
3. Whence does the word "deacon" originate?
4. What distinguished men of Israel were now uniting with the church?
5. What is the interpretation to be put upon the synagogues of the Cyrenians, etc.?
6. What was the character of Stephen's defense before the Sanhedrin?
7. What important epoch is thought to have come to an end at this time?

THE SPIRIT OF GOD MOVES AMONG THE PRISONERS

Newark, O.

You would feel delighted to witness the appreciation with which the prisoners in the jail received those (Colportage Library) books—especially the testaments. The men keep these copies and take them away with them. On the jail floors I hold such services as the circumstances demand. I may have five or six men take part in prayer and invite others to accept Christ, and hardly a service is held without some profess conversion. The services are quite a surprise in getting some of the most unlikely and "down and out" characters to be leaders to get the others to the services.

R. N.

Agents Wanted for
The Christian Workers Magazine.

"Sanitary" Collection Plates

10-in. diameter, light or dark finish, removable plush mats, only $3.00 per pair.

"Just It" Flexible Blackboards

48-in. square, double surface, roll like a map, with crayons, eraser and rubber tipped pointing rod, only $4.00 each.

Postpaid to any office in the U. S. on receipt of price, subject to immediate return, unused, if not entirely satisfactory, and money refunded.

W. A. CHOATE SEATING CO. 57 State Street, ALBANY, N. Y.

Mention this magazine when writing and remember "number nineteen"

Songs For Service Facts in a Nutshell

288 pages, printed from new plates, on better-than-usual paper, and very attractively bound, the cloth edition in special made-to-order cloth.

A department of Children's Songs.
A department of Men's Songs.
A department of Chorus Selections.
A department of Invitation Hymns.
A department of Devotional Hymns.
A fine selection of Devotional Readings.
All the old favorites of the "Billy" Sunday campaigns.

Dozens of new songs that have been tested in the "Billy" Sunday campaigns, that have been received with great enthusiasm and that have as yet never appeared in any book.

ORCHESTRATED FOR TWELVE INSTRUMENTS.

SHAPED NOTE EDITION FOR THE SOUTHERN TRADE.

Another Great Rodeheaver Songbook

The foremost factor, the most dynamic force in the evangelistic movements of the present day is "Billy" Sunday and the "Billy" Sunday campaigns. High amongst the compelling forces that contribute to the great successes of these campaigns is the marvelous singing in which tens of thousands of people led by mammoth choirs under the direction of Mr. Homer A. Rodeheaver peal forth the old Gospel Story in volume and grandeur never before heard by mortal ear.

As has always been the case in the history of great evangelistic movements, the "Billy" Sunday campaigns have brought to the fore a new and immensely popular class of gospel songs—in this case they are popularly known as "the Billy Sunday songs." These popular and very effective songs are the product of The Rodeheaver Company. Many of them were in our two previous great books—"Great Revival Hymns" and "Great Revival Hymns No. 2." Nearly two million copies of these two books have been sold and the demand for them is unabated. And now comes a new and, we fully believe, greater Rodeheaver songbook—which contains the best of these popular favorites and in addition contains a large number of new songs that have been thoroughly tested in the Sunday campaigns and elsewhere, but as yet have not appeared in any other book. There is not a bit of deadwood in the whole book. There are very few pieces (outside the old hymn section) on which the copyright is more than a few years old. There is a bunch of real, live, vigorous evangelistic music between its covers such as never before has been gathered within the limits of one book.

Songs for Service

This great new songbook is the joint work of CHAS. H. GABRIEL and HOMER A. RODEHEAVER. The former is the greatest living composer of gospel songs and the latter's connection with the Sunday campaigns enables him to learn unerringly just what songs are most useful to the masses. The result of their labors is the most useful, the most comprehensive, the most effective gospel songbook yet compiled.

But—don't take our word for it. Apply at once for a copy of SONGS FOR SERVICE for FREE EXAMINATION. It will be ready for delivery about July 1, 1915. Just drop us a card saying that you want a copy for 15 days' examination; that you will return it in good condition at the end of that time; if you do not wish to retain it; or, if you wish to retain it, you will promptly remit the price—35c for cloth-bound, 25c for limp cloth, 20c for manila. Be sure to state which binding you desire to examine.

440 South
Dearborn St.
CHICAGO

THE RODEHEAVER ROC
GOSPEL MUSIC

46 North
Twelfth St.
PHILADELPHIA

XV 22 11

LEVEL ONE

THE Days

CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

JAMES M. GRAY
EDITOR
J.H. RALSTON
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

Our Great Missionary Imperative

The church of Jesus Christ faces another crisis today. Once more dark clouds of national and racial hatred have settled down over the world. All of our dreams of universal peace and brotherhood have been shattered. National agreements and treaties have been violated. Human systems and philosophies from which men hoped so much have utterly broken down. Man is at war with his brother man because man is a sinner. There is no remedy for war till man ceases to be a sinner. There is no remedy for sin but in Jesus Christ. He alone is the Prince of Peace. There can be no peace till He is enthroned in the hearts of men. He is our great Missionary Imperative. "After Jesus, there is either His religion or no religion." We hold in trust the panacea for the world's ills, the remedy for the world's unrest. If ever men needed to be confronted with the fruits of the supernatural, a living God back of the church, who does hear and answer prayer, guide by His providence, and convert by His grace, that time is now.

The Rev. Perry V. Jenness, in the Report of the Committee on Foreign Missions to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, Rochester, N. Y., May, 1915

10 Cents a Copy

JULY, 1915

$1.00 a Year

D. L. Moody said

"Bilhorn is the only man that writes, plays and sings his own music and makes and plays his own organs."

No one knew better than Mr. Moody the need for spiritual songs. Mr. Bilhorn's great success came through the introduction of songs that reach deep into the hearts of the people such as "Sweet Peace" and "I Will Sing the Wondrous Story," and "Keep Sweet."

Voices of Victory

is Mr. Bilhorn's latest selection of the choicest hymns. The use of this song-book for church services, Sunday Schools, Revival Meetings, etc., quickens the hearts and puts new life into the church work.

Children love to sing them and they gladden the hearts of the older folks. Songs arranged for all kinds of meetings. Songs of "War or Peace," "Happiness," "Soul-Winning," "Joy," "Love," "Songs for the Children," "Songs of Heaven," "333," every one a gem.

Price, Full Cloth, 30c.

Flexible Cloth, 20c.

Manila, 15c.

FULL score-form ORCHESTRATION $1.50 per copy; 3 copies or more, $1 per copy

Send 10c and mention this magazine and we will mail you a nice copy of "VOICES OF VICTORY"

Bilhorn's Famous Portable Telescope Organs

3 & 5-Ply Oak or Leatherette Cases. Fully Guaranteed
Used by Leading Church Workers Everywhere

Our Special $10.00 Offer

As a special offer we will ship to you by Express our Style "X" FULL 4 OCTAVE Folding Organ in Ebony Finish, which is listed at $35.00, for only $10.00. To buy mention this magazine, and send money with order, if personal check add 10c, or send for catalog giving full description.

Bilhorn Organs are all we claim, and speak for themselves; we need no further recommendation. But as our competitors are trying hard to disprove our special offer and persuade our buyers to disbelieve our statement, just ask the Publishers of this Magazine about us and our Organs.

Just Published

Bilhorn's Gentlemen's and Ladies' Voices No. 2, two choice selections of new music. Solos and parts, duets, trios and quartettes, parts for humming or whistling. Each, 35c per copy; per doz., $3.60. Flexible cloth, sewed, fits pocket. Special Prices to Evangelists.

BILHORN BROS., 136 West Lake Street, Chicago, Ill., U. S. A.

Open Air Ministry

Here are some results accomplished last year by the Practical Work Department of The Moody Bible Institute

An Open Air Force

518 meetings held
130,330 in attendance
9,850 persons dealt with individually
1,006 professed conversions
51,997 gospels and tracts distributed

During the present summer the Department hopes to reach

Two Hundred Thousand

To do so, it will require not only more effort, but more money, as expenses will be heavier. We have two gospel autos, one wagon, and a number of folding platforms and organs. Over 500 students are ready to do the work. Will you help bear the expense?

A prominent evangelistic worker enrolled for the Summer term as a student, was assigned to the open air work. On leaving he confessed to the Director that he had been rebellious at being put into it, but said, "I thank God I had to get into it and that you kept me at it. It has been a great blessing to my soul, and wherever I go I shall be an open air worker." Upon reaching his home town the first thing he did was to hold an open air meeting. He writes: "I had considerable trouble in getting enough associates with sufficient nerve to start, but I am confident that street meetings have come to stay."

The command is "Go Ye"
It's only substitute is "Send Ye"

How Much Will You Send?

$25? $10? $5? $1?

Ten Dollars Sends Them One Day

Address The Moody Bible Institute
153-163 Institute Place Chicago, Illinois

Where victory over sin awaits the message

Thousands Consider It The Best Haldeman's Sunday School Lesson Quarterly

Different from all others, original and inspiring. Send 5c for mailage of a sample copy.

NEW PAMPHLETS AGAINST RUSSELLISM. Just out. By I. M. Haldeman, D. D.

"TWO MEN AND RUSSELLISM," an interesting dialogue, 64 pages.....$0.10
"THE GREAT COUNTERFEIT," This description of Russellism fully proven, 39 pages..... .10

PAMPHLETS OF ABSORBING INTEREST

"THE WAR IN THE LIGHT OF THE WORD," By F. C. Jennings, 2nd edition.....$0.15
"RUSSIA'S DESTINY IN THE LIGHT OF PROPHECY," By Alfred Burton, 64 pages..... .15
"THE FUTURE OF EUROPE," By Alfred Burton, 62 pages..... .15
"THE SIGN OF HIS COMING," By Rev. J. J. Ross, 47 pages..... .10
"THE SEVEN GREAT PARABLES," By Mrs. G. C. Needham, 47 pages..... .10

CHARLES C. COOK

150 Nassau Street, New York, N. Y.

NEARLY 800 New Correspondence Students Since January 1, 1915

Write for full particulars about the following courses:

Introductory Bible Study, Synthetic Bible Study, Bible Doctrine, Bible Chapter Summary, Practical Christian Work, Christian Evidences, Evangelism and the

SCOFIELD BIBLE CORRESPONDENCE COURSE

Address THE MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE

153-163 Institute Place

Department 3

Chicago, Ill., U. S. A.

DON'T BE FOOLISH And Pay Fancy Prices
For Large Hymn Books
"Best Hymn" has plenty 162. Million sold. Manila cover $5.00 per 100; Limp cover $8.00 per 100; Cloth cover $15.00 per 100.
Evangelical Publishing Co. Lakeside Bldg. Chicago, Ill.

"Rescue the Perishing"

The Great Personal Workers' Book

The best recommendation this book can have is the fact that it is the outgrowth of the experience of the MOST SUCCESSFUL PERSONAL WORKERS AND SOUL WINNERS.

By FRED R. SEIBERT

It is the very Best Book for Personal Workers

It contains 130 Pages of Bible Hints

"FRED" Carefully arranged and indexed so as to enable anyone to turn instantly to verses on any important subject—"How to Become a Christian," "Regeneration," "Repentance," "Unbelief," "False Hope," "Difficulties," "How to Study the Bible," "Assurance," "Prayer," "Amusements," "Conversion," "Soul Winning," "Secret of Victory Over Sin." The book is vest pocket size, 3x5 1/4 inches.

In Bright Red Manila, 10c; by the hundred, $6.00; by doz., $1.00. In Morocco, 25c; by the hundred, $18.00; by doz., $2.40.

Rev. W. A. Sunday, the Famous Evangelist, says: "This book is the result of a life time of research and practical effort, and has been forged on the anvil of experience." Every Teacher, Preacher, Student and Religious Society should have this book. AGENTS WANTED. Special rates in quantities. Write for terms.

Over 100,000 Have Been Sold. Order Now. Mention The Christian Workers Magazine.

Address orders (Coin or P. O. Order) to FRED R. SEIBERT, care Rodheaver Co., 440 S. Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Trained Christian Workers Available For Service

in connection with colportage, or "book missionary" work, from Aug. 13 to Sept. 8, 1915, for points (towns and villages especially) within 250 miles of Chicago. Some preach with great acceptance, some sing the Gospel story, others have ability to reach the children especially, all are accustomed to evangelistic work, being students of the Moody Bible Institute. Either men or women workers are available for the time specified. We will endeavor to supply the particular need of the field. Correspondence with pastors especially solicited. Write early!

The Bible Institute Colportage Association
826 NORTH LA SALLE STREET, CHICAGO

THE Christian Workers Magazine

Continuing THE INSTITUTE TIE

New Series, Vol. XV

JULY, 1915

No. 11

Editorial Notes: Cut From the Loaf; Our National Problems; Peace or War; Italy in the War; "Wild Utterances;" Why Should They; The Christian Endeavor Convention	665
"A Glorious End" (Poem).....	Annie J. Flint.....667
Agriculture and Foreign Missions.....	F. A. Steven.....668
The Spiritual Conscience or the Imperative of a Missionary Evangelism	William Hay.....670
The Sacrament of Pain (Poem).....	Albert Simpson Reitz.....673
Interesting Stories from Nicaragua.....	Lorenzo Taylor.....674
How Three Great Field Marshals Look at Missions.....	675
Why Send Missionaries to the Mormons?.....	R. L. Warnock.....676
Why We Should Pray for Missionaries.....	Wm. C. Burns.....678
Negro Education, a Missionary Effort.....	H. M. McIntosh.....678
John Huss, the Reformer, Patriot and Martyr.....	J. H. Ralston.....682
The Theology of Luther and Calvin.....	Clara Louise Webster.....686
The Substitutions of Grace.....	Howard W. Pope.....688
Practical and Perplexing Questions Answered.....	Editors.....689
The Laymens Commentary on the Old and New Testaments	James M. Gray.....695
International Sunday-school Lessons.....	E. O. Sellers.....698
For Sermon and Scrap Book.....	William Norton.....704
Book Notices	707
The Gospel in the World.....	E. A. Marshall.....709
Notes and Suggestions.....	J. H. Ralston.....711
The Evangelistic Field.....	S. A. Woodruff.....714
Forthcoming Conferences or Important Dates.....	717
The Moody Bible Institute.....	W. J. Kramer.....718
The Bible Institute Colportage Association.....	722

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE: $1.00 a year to any address in the United States or its possessions, or in Mexico. To Canada, $1.25. To other foreign countries, $1.38 (5s 7d). 10 cents a copy. Remittances should be sent by bank draft, or postal or express money order.

Advertising Rates Sent on Application.

Do not make checks or money orders payable to individuals, but to

The Christian Workers Magazine

153-163 INSTITUTE PLACE, CHICAGO

Copyright, 1915, by The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

You Could Have Saved $5.00

By accepting our offer on life subscriptions in May at $20. The price is now $25. Same conditions as before. Deposit $25 with The Christian Workers Magazine and we will send the magazine to you for life. Write for information. Always answer an advertisement the first time it appears. See other good ads this month and mention this magazine when writing.

A Hundred Thousand Strong

Is the coveted goal for our subscription list. We are growing. The number of our friends is growing. We are not in it to make money. The bigger our subscription list is the more influence we will have for the gospel. Thanks to all those who so generously responded to our letters and are now working for new subscriptions. New agents are being enrolled and some old agents are taking hold again to help us. Will you recommend our magazine at the Bible conferences and camp meetings this summer, please?

Where To Get What You Want

—See the new ads this month. Some are very interesting. A pastor in a frontier town wants gifts for a building—a gentlemen with leisure time in Chicago offers to visit invalids and read to them or converse—no remuneration wanted—books from a physician's library for sale—insurance policies offered by one of our subscribers who is agent for a large company, etc. It will be worth while to read all the ads. If you have something to sell or a gospel tent to rent advertise next month.

The Christian Worker's Commentary

By Dr. James M. Gray

We could have made you wait until all the lessons had been printed in the magazine before offering it to you, but Dr. Gray thought it best to put it into book form and it is now ready. Covers all the lessons on the whole Bible as given in The Laymens Commentary. A fine volume suitable for the Family Altar or Adult Bible classes. With a year's subscription (new or renewal) to the Christian Workers Magazine for only $2.50. Order at once as the first edition may soon be sold out.

The Christian Workers Magazine

163 Institute Place, Chicago

You Need Tracts For Highway Witnessing

We have them. Send 15 cents for a good-sized package of assorted kinds

They will aid you to "rescue the perishing"

The Bible Institute Colportage Ass'n
826 North La Salle St., CHICAGO ILL.

A SYNOPSIS of the CONTENTS

OF

"UNDER THE BLUE CANOPY OF HEAVEN"

THE OPEN AIR WORKERS' HAND BOOK

By H. B. GIBBUD

I. THE OPEN AIR MEETING.

1. PRELIMINARY PREPARATION.
2. PERMIT FOR MEETING.
3. PLACE OF MEETING.
4. PORTIONING OUT OF THE WORK.

Leader—Speakers—Singers—Organist—Man to Prevent Disturbance, Count Crowd, etc. — Tract Distributors.

THE MEETING ITSELF.

1. THE SONG SERVICE.
Position of Singers—Song Slips and Other Helps.
2. SPEAKER'S POSITION.
3. HOW TO SPEAK.
4. WHAT TO SAY.

Introductory Remarks—Suggested Topics and Outlines for Talks—Some Important "Don'ts" for Speakers—Helps to a Speaker.

5. CLOSING THE MEETING.

Invitation—Closing Songs—After-Service.

II. GOSPEL WAGON WORK.

Description and Estimated Cost of Suitable Wagons—Use of the Scriptures—Place for Services—Various Uses of Gospel Wagons—The Adaptation of the Plan for Rural Districts—Necessary Outfit—Methods of Work, etc.

III. GOSPEL TENT WORK.

Cost of Tent—Situation, Erection and Care of Tent—How to Advise the Meetings—How to Conduct the Services.

IV. PREACHING THE GOSPEL IN THE OPEN AIR ON CIRCUS DAY, AT COUNTY FAIRS, ETC.

Opportunity—Methods—Results, etc.

"Mr. Gibbud was perhaps best known as an out-door worker among miscellaneous crowds. We doubt if an equal amount of experience and of practical common sense in this particular line of Christian work was ever before packed into a book and put at a buyer's disposal for 50 cents."

The Church Economist.

"Probably the most successful worker in open air Gospel meetings in this country was H. B. Gibbud, so well known to Christian Endeavorers. He has placed the religious world under a genuine obligation by his little book, 'Under the Blue Canopy of Heaven,' which is a thorough-going manual of open air Gospel work. Mr. Gibbud treats all phases of the subject, including a thousand little points which no one but a practical worker would think of, but which contribute materially to the glorious results. It is written in a very inspiring style, and we are sure that everyone who reads it will feel impelled to undertake just such work himself."

The Christian Endeavor World.

About 100 Pages, Illustrated, Cloth Covers.
50 CENTS.

THE BIBLE INSTITUTE COLPORTAGE ASS'N
826 LA SALLE AVENUE, CHICAGO

AUGUST 1 to 8

Bible Conference at Mountain Lake Park, Md.

Conducted by Rev. James M. Gray, D.D. assisted by members of the faculty of The Moody
Bible Institute of Chicago, and others.

Mountain Lake Park is at an altitude of 2,800 feet in the Alleghany Mountains, on the B. & O. R. R., and is the centre of a summer resort region.

The country round about is replete with nature's wonders, while the Park itself possesses the conveniences of city life, natural gas, electric light, city water, sewer system, stores, physicians, livery, etc. There are also golf links, tennis courts, row boats, bathing houses, saddle horses and other facilities for outdoor pleasures, not excepting the most charming footpaths through the woods.

Program of Conference will include

Bible Teaching by books and topics, including prophetic studies in the light of the European war, by the Rev. James M. Gray, D. D., Mr. A. C. Gaebelein, editor of Our Hope, and Miss Angy Manning Taylor.

Inspirational addresses by the Rev. Don S. Colt, D. D., of Baltimore, Evangelist Bob Jones, of Montgomery, Ala., and the Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D.

Illustrated lectures on Archaeology, Biblical Chronology and the Old Testament Monuments by Prof. Melvin Grove Kyle, D. D., LL. D., of Philadelphia.

Illustrated lectures on the History of Religious Education, and Hymns and Hymn Singing, and Study Classes in Sunday-School methods, Young peoples work and other forms of Christian service, by Prof. E. O. Sellers of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Devotional hours for the deepening of the spiritual life will be conducted by Mr. Charles G. Trumbull, Editor of the Sunday School Times, and Mr. Fred L. Rosemond, Attorney-at-Law, of Cambridge, Ohio.

Missions in Home and Foreign lands will be emphasized by representatives of the different boards.

FURTHER INFORMATION

For details concerning board or renting of cottages address The Mountain Lake Park Association, Mountain Lake Park, Maryland.

For railroad accommodations, excursion rates, etc., address General Passenger Agent, B. & O. R. R., Baltimore, Maryland.

For program of the Conference address The Moody Bible Institute, 153 Institute Place, Chicago.

FAITH HOME

Beautiful Location, Modern Improvements. Accommodations for 75.

Terms Reasonable

Sarah C. Harris, Mountain Lake Pk., Md.

The Allegheny House Mountain Lake Park, Md.

Is one of the oldest and most desirable in the Park, situated on half acre of ground, two blocks from Auditorium, large airy rooms, all modern conveniences, Virginia home cooking, moderate prices.

E. S. Martin, - Proprietor

Have You A Pocket Bible or New Testament ?

Then WHY NOT send postal card for our price list? We also have pocket helps for ministers, Bible school teachers and other Christian workers. The best in these lines from the leading publishers at their prices. All pocket editions.
POCKET EVANGEL SUPPLY COMPANY,
501 E. Pennsylvania Ave., South Bend, Ind.

These

Where were the dead before Christ came?

Questions

What is their condition now?

are

What will it be during the Millennium?

Answered

And after death, what?

in

"Progress in the Life to Come"

BY

Dr. James M. Gray

Boards, 35 cents, net

Address with remittance

The Bible Institute Colportage Association

826 N. La Salle Street

CHICAGO, ILL.

Our August Issue

will be marked by unusual variety, befitting the vacation month, and will include:

1. The Life Story of Sir William M. Ramsay, the Great Archæologist, told by himself.
2. An instructive and interesting article for preachers on "The Art of Expository Discourse," by "the Spurgeon of Scotland" who has just been called to Calvary Baptist Church, New York City.
3. A practical discourse on "The Four Parts of the Temperance Movement," by Pastor A. C. Dixon, D. D., of the Metropolitan Tabernacle, London.
4. A New Testament study on "The Use of the Word 'We' in the Epistles," by the Rev. W. J. Erdman, D. D.
5. Two discourses on prophecy by the Rev. C. I. Scofield, D. D., and the Rev. Gerrit Hayser, pastor of the Marston Ave. Presbyterian Church, Detroit.
6. Two timely editorials copied, one from The Continent on "Billy Sunday," and the other from The North American on "The Revival of Revivalism."

Also brief reports of The Jubilee Conference of The China Inland Mission, and The Christian Endeavor Convention.

Send copies of the August issue to your friends. It will be worth while. Single copy 10 cents; five or more 7 cents a copy.

The Christian Workers Magazine

163 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

Stars In Your Crown!

Send the Gospel Message to the Vast Military Camps of Great Britain and France

Where immense armies of men are held in preparation and readiness for dispatch to the front of battle. 2,500,000 British soldiers alone are in the camps, hospitals, enroute or at the firing line. To all these the Gospel in print, winsomely presented, appeals strongly. The written truth will find "a sure place," will deepen the impress of home and church, will awaken a need of a Saviour, will lead to a decision for Christ. The experience of Christian workers testifies to a degree of responsiveness among the soldiers, which they have never before seen to this time.

Doctor Len. G. Broughton, late of London, said recently: "The present opportunity among the soldiers of Great Britain for winning men to Christ is unparalleled."

25,000 copies of the Moody Colportage Library books are urgently called for to meet the present imperative need. These attractive and evangelical volumes—many written by Mr. D. L. Moody, who was so greatly loved by the people of England—will meet with immediate and hearty acceptance.

The reader of these lines is asked to contribute as liberally as possible to assist in defraying the expense of furnishing and shipping the really necessary consignments of Gospel literature.

Mrs. Ralph C. Norton "caught" at work distributing the Gospel in print in France, within the sound of the big guns.

An emergency shipment of 2,000 copies has already been sent forward, others should follow at once. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Norton, for years members of the Chapman-Alexander Evangelistic Party, have already done personal evangelism among the soldiers with immediately responsive results. They return to give their entire time and efforts to the sacred work of soul-winning among the English and French soldiers. The Nortons will personally see to the careful placing of the literature referred to in this appeal.

"Tell me," Mr. Norton asked one wounded soldier back from the front, who, with bandaged head and arm, had clambered stiffly into a train, "tell me what you and the other men first think when you file into the trenches for the first time." The soldier's lips closed grimly. "We think of God and our sins," he replied tersely. Many another soldier back from the front has told a similar story. Another said that although his battalion filed into the trenches singing a music hall ditty, when they were entrenched and the shells began to burst overhead, that he had seen a whole line of men fall on their knees in prayer.

Remember, men are facing death, and they know it. The eternal issues of life are before them. Help these men to decide aright, and to do it now. Your contribution of $5.00 will put 60 books in the hands of as many soldiers; a gift of $10.00 will place 125 copies similarly; larger sums in proportion.

Contributions are solicited from anyone willing to help. No gift is too small to be appreciated and judiciously used. Donations, in any bankable form, designated "for the Military Camp Book Fund," may be made payable to

A. F. GAYLORD, Treasurer, and addressed to 826 North La Salle St., Chicago
Headquarters of the Bible Institute Colportage Association, which administers the Fund.

"The Voice of Thanksgiving"

This New Hymn Book has been adopted by The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, The Moody Church, Chicago, The Ruggles Street Baptist Church, Boston, and many smaller Societies throughout the country.

The Standard, Chicago, says:

The quality of "The Voice of Thanksgiving" is assured by the editorship of Doctor Towner, of the Moody Bible Institute. It contains a considerable number of hymn tunes by the editor, whose influence is steadily on the side of real dignity in connection with attractive melodies and harmonies. More than half of the book is devoted to the good "standard" hymns; and we are glad to see a goodly number of the real old-fashioned compositions, like "Lenox," the singing of which brings to memory the vigorous religious faith of our grandfathers and helps to keep unbroken the religious traditions embodied in worship. If Doctor Towner will create in his students a real appreciation of this splendid inheritance, he will find many to rise up and call him blessed. This book marks a step in the right direction. Selections of Scripture for responsive readings are found in the back of the book. Presswork and binding are unusually attractive. The book deserves a wide welcome.

Full Cloth, 50c, postpaid; $40.00 per 100, transportation extra
Economy Edition, 30c postpaid; $22.50 per 100, transportation extra

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY, Publishers

New York, 158 Fifth Avenue

Chicago, 125 N. Wabash Avenue

Addresses on Prophecy

By C. I. Scofield, D. D.

A valuable book at all times but particularly so in view of the prophecy-fulfilling wars. 130 pp. post-paid 25 cents. Address, Bible House of Los Angeles, 620 Lissner Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

RELIEF FOR CHURCH TREASURERS

If your position as Church treasurer gives you "an everlasting lot of work" and keeps you up late at night making out statements and posting up accounts, let us show you how to reduce your work 40 or 50% by using our new Time-Saving Church Account Book. Sample sheet and explanation to any Pastor or church official. Ask also for our low price on "Duplex" church envelopes.

MEIGS PUBLISHING CO., Indianapolis, Ind.

For They Say, and Do Not! [Matt 23:3]

Frankly, what's the use? What's the use of saying pretty things about the Jews, and then not lifting one finger to give them the Gospel of their Risen and Living Savior? What's the use of saying "Every time I see a Jew I want to take off my hat to him," when you are not willing to take out your dollar to help him know of that Name through which alone he can be saved? What's the use of the pre-millennial doctrine if it teaches by innuendo that "we must leave the Jews alone in this age." Is that Scriptural? Is it honestly handling God's Word? Did you ever realize the solemn warning in James 3:1, "Be not many teachers, knowing that we shall receive the greater condemnation?"

WON'T YOU SEARCH YOUR HEART?

Are you obeying God in your work, prayer and gifts in behalf of the Jew? Are you a layman? Just how much did you give for Jewish Missions last year? And how much of all other missions? Are you a pastor? How much did your church give for Jewish Missions last year? Think over these things! Some day you will be required to give an accounting of your stewardship!

Suppose, just for a start, you send us one dollar; we'll enter your name for a year's subscription for The Chosen People (50c) the best Jewish Mission paper in America, we will also send you the life-story of Ex-Rabbi Leopold Cohn (25c), a thrilling story of a Rabbi's search for the Messiah; and for the remaining 25c we will send you some helpful tracts on the Jewish work. After you have received all this literature you can ask the Lord, "what wilt thou have me to do," and you can do accordingly. If you want to send a larger sum right now, it will be most welcome. Our mission merits your every confidence and support.

But whatever you do, do it now—write NOW.

Williamsburg Mission To The Jews
Station A., Brooklyn, New York

THE Christian Workers Magazine

JULY, 1915

Editorial Notes

"Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. All these are the beginning of sorrows."—Matthew 24: 7, 8.

Do our readers grasp the fact that, out "of the four hundred and fifty-three millions of people in Europe (including that portion of Turkey which lies in Asia) four hundred and nine millions are now engaged in the most stupendous war that has been staged since the dawn of time? Of the forty-three and a half millions not at war, six millions in Portugal are engaged in revolution and half the remainder—in Roumania, Bulgaria and Greece—are more than likely to be involved before the struggle comes to an end. Only Spain, Norway and Sweden, Switzerland, Holland and Denmark appear to have a hope of escape."

When this fact was brought to our attention recently in a southern newspaper, we confess to a great shock. And yet this is not the worst, if the Bible be still true. O, what an appeal to move sinners to flee from the wrath to come, and to arouse the witnesses for Christ to hold forth to them the Word of life!

The stress and strain of the past year, so far as international questions are concerned, has preoccupied our minds to the neglect somewhat of the serious problems

Our National Problems in the midst of us. Our contributors this month call attention to two of them, the Mormons and the negroes. Political and social are both of these, and yet their menace in those directions is minimized as soon as the gospel of Jesus Christ is enabled to pour in its light upon them. We urge the reading of Mr. Warnock's plain testimony of an eyewitness as to what Mormonism really is in its own home, and we trust that as the result of it some things may follow. We trust that church members may enquire of their home boards for more literature on the subject, and that when their pastors appeal for funds to promulgate the work of those boards it may not be in vain, as too often has been the case. And are there not more young people in our churches to whose Christian heroism such a situation appeals? Who seriously believes that if the right kind of missionaries were offering for such a work, the means to send them would not be found? Indeed, are there not many Christian parents of means in our churches who would be more than happy themselves to support their sons or daughters in such a service did they devote their lives to it?

And then the negroes. We are so glad that the southern conscience is waking up to its responsibility in this regard. The "Southern Workman" says that Mrs. Hammond's book, "In Black and White," "could not have been written in the South ten years ago." Then how glad we are it could be written now! Their "white folks" are the truest and most intelligent friends the southern negroes have, and when these begin to tackle the problem of the black slums at their own doors, the whole country will breathe freer. In the meantime read what Col. McIntosh says on another page, for he knows. And if you want an investment in negro betterment in the South, the kind that cleans up the inside of a man as well as his surroundings on the outside, place it in his hands for the Albany Bible and Manual Training School in the black belt of Georgia. Dr. Holley, the negro principal of that school, knows God and His Son Jesus Christ, and he is turning out not only good agriculturists, mechanics, dressmakers and housekeepers, but men and women who know how to teach the Bible and preach the gospel of salvation to lost souls.

Will our country become embroiled in the present war? Like most of our readers we pray that it may not; and like some of them, we are thankful that the Progressive party did not win at the last national election, for

Peace with Mr. Roosevelt in the White or House, how could we have kept out War of it?

And yet, we are living with the rest of the nations in a powder magazine, and the lighted match that may produce combustion at any moment is merely the ill-considered word or action of some government representative or for that matter, any ordinary citizen, or subject, of this or some other land.

For this reason the position of the extreme pacifists seems to justify the strictures made upon them by Mr. Roosevelt, some time ago. They seem foolish at least, but we could not call them base.

Were we in the millennium, or if our country itself were so subject to God as to claim supernatural interposition it would be different. But like the other nations we are taking matters in our own hands, and it becomes a question only of what is the truest wisdom in the human sense.

We would not go to the opposite extreme. We are not militarists as that word is frequently understood, but we believe the only real protection of our nation against aggression is an army and navy that will command respect if not awaken fear.

Let us therefore keep looking for the Lord to come, but in the meantime not handicap our government by contributing to a false sentiment about peace, when under existing conditions there can be no peace.

We had written the above and put it away to season, just as the awful Lusitania loss occurred, since which time we have been astounded to read the war talk in many of our leading newspapers all over the country. If the administration at Washington does not involve us in a clash with Germany, it will not be for lack of both Republican and Democratic "egging on" as the saying is. But to our mind there is sober truth and wisdom in the utterances of journals like the "Chicago Tribune," the "New York Herald" and the "Pittsburgh Dispatch," that concerning the Lusitania, some points have been raised which would leave us in an embarrassing situation did we decline entirely to discuss them.

The great purpose of Italy in entering into the war is said to be to gain possession of a sweep of Austrian territory to the north and east near the head of the Adriatic Sea.

Italy This territory is called "Unredeemed in the Italy" because it once formed part of War the Italian States of the Middle Ages, and indeed is still Italian in all but nationality. The reference to the Middle Ages brings us back in mind to the old days of the Roman Empire, which is still existing geographically, as well as in some other respects. It also recalls the predictions of the prophets that it will be restored again in more than its former strength and glory, with reference to the crisis at the end of this age. Is this movement of Italy thus a sign of the nearness of the end? How thrilling the possibility! And what peculiar interest it gives to the speculations of some that there is a secret understanding on which Italy joins the allies, involving a regrouping of all the nations on the European continent! This may we'll be in the light of what God revealed to His people so long ago in the books of Daniel and Revelation.

A contemporary emphasizes the censure recently expressed by Dr. Butler, President of Columbia University, against the propensity of college professors to break

"Wild Utterances" loose in wild utterances on all sorts of subjects. Is it not strange that such men who, by education are supposed to possess balanced judgments, should so frequently make such fools of themselves and do so much harm? But the editor says truly that the same censure applies to some preachers who because of their inadvisable speeches also do harm to the religious and ethical verities of life. He quotes one in New York who shocked the clergymen of his own community and the people of the entire country with the crazy declaration that "if marriage is founded on the affection of two persons for each other, then with the disappearance of such sentiment disappears the only ground for marriage." What a horrible idea for any sensible man to propose, much less a professed minister of the gospel and pastor of a Christian flock! And then there is the Rear-Admiral of our Navy who a few weeks ago gave public expression to an idea of national aggrandizement that was enough to get this country by the ears with every other country in the western hemisphere. It became necessary for our Secretary of State to issue a communication to the press to offset what he said. We are reminded by these wild utterances of an expression in the 73rd Psalm where Asaph says, "If I say, I will speak thus; behold, I should offend against the generation of thy children." The precise application of these words may be difficult to make, but one thing is clear, his purpose to hold his tongue with reference to some of the feelings of his heart or conceptions of his brain, lest he should injure other people by his ill-digested speeches. How much all of us need to pray the prayer, "Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth; keep the door of my lips."

A certain minister of the new school who believes much in "modern scholarship" as applied to Scripture, and who thinks the latter is not verbally inspired nor "a fixed and finished standard of morals and faith," complains that many people "can not pass a ward school examination in the Bible."

Why should they, if the Bible be nothing more than that which he makes it out to be. If it were not inspired of God, but only grew out of the national life of Israel as he claims, why should people in this day and generation bother themselves about it so very much? Its ethical value? Yes, but there are other sacred books that possess that, the people think. Good literature? Yes, but there is other literature, almost as good, that does not condemn sin so hard, why not learn that in school?

The Bible is facing neglect, Mr. Minister, is that what you say? Let us warn you that such as you are the cause of that neglect. The church that is keeping such preachers in her pulpits is sowing the wind for the next generation to reap the whirlwind. The European conflict today is directly traceable to that kind of preaching, heard in so-called Christian pulpits for the last fifty years or more. Weaken the hold of the people upon the Bible as the very Word of God, and you weaken the hold of divine sovereignty upon the people. And weaken, the hold of divine sovereignty upon the people and it is only a question of time when lawlessness is supreme, and self is rampant, and like wild beasts, we are clutching each other's throats. In the long run, among the most dangerous men alive are false teachers of religion.

As this issue leaves the press, Chicago will be getting ready to welcome the International Christian Endeavor Convention. We trust the delegates may be preserved in their journey hither, and that they may hold one of the happiest and most blessed gatherings in all their history. The men at the head of that organization bear names that are fragrant throughout the world—especially is this true of its honored founder, Dr. F. E. Clark; and under God, the whole church owes them a debt of gratitude it never can pay. It is easy in these days to criticise the Christian Endeavor Society and to talk about something better in its place, but we wait to see what is proposed. As for ourselves, we would sadly mourn the day it ceased to be, although we do devoutly wish it could go back to its first love. We long for a revival of the Holy Spirit to be experienced by it, making it the simple, Bible-loving, soul-winning aggregation of young people it used to be. The stream rises no higher than its source, and if the church were living where it ought to be we might expect the same of the organizations which owe their life to it. But O, if God would only use the child to bless the parent in this case!

"And the Spirit of God came upon Azariah, the son of Oded." That is the simple explanation of one of the greatest revivals in the history of Judah. Will there be some Azariah in this convention on whom the Spirit of God will fall? He need not be a man much heard of hitherto. God uses the weak things to confound the mighty. O, Righteous Father, hear us for Thy Son's sake, and pour out Thy Spirit now!

"A GLORIOUS END."

By Annie J. Flint

The soldier tells of that fierce charge
In which our hero-brother died;
The father stands with lifted head
As if he saw the splendid ride;
The sister hears with face grown pale
And eyes that brim with tears of pride;
The mother does not heed the tale—
She only knows that he has died.

She makes no moan, she sheds no tears,
She feels no thrill of pride or joy;
For looking back across the years,
She sees a little, little boy;
She hears the lisping baby speech
That begs for some beloved toy;
She feels the clasp of little arms
That tell a love without alloy.

Their words are but an idle tale
Of war and battle, sword and gun;
She has not heard that he was brave,
She does not care what he has done;
She only turns her head aside,
She has no thought for glory won,
She only knows that he has died—
Her son—her son—her first-born son.

Agriculture and Foreign Missions

By Rev. F. A. Steven

Of the China Inland Mission

INTENSIVE farming is necessary in populous countries, and it pays well until the limit of increased production is reached, provided the labor is not disproportionate to the gain. It is not suited, however, to new lands, where thousands of acres of virgin prairie await the plow. A far larger crop, in relation to the labor expended, is to be reaped from a hundred acres rapidly and roughly tilled and thinly seeded, than could be expected from the most scientific development of three acres, with the remaining ninety-seven acres left untouched.

A wise farmer wishes to bring all his tillable land under cultivation, and to win at least a small crop from every available acre, as quickly as possible, for he not only gains large aggregate returns in the first year's crop, but this hurried, and faulty, yet early and widespread, cultivation, prepares the land for more thorough work in the next season. He aims at producing large quantities of sound grain for the market, rather than at winning renown for the beauty of his fences or the perfect symmetry of his ploughing, or even at obtaining the utmost possible yield and the finest grain from a few rods of ground, for statistical or exhibition purposes. Herein the practical farmer differs from the experimenter, the market gardener and the flower grower; each of whom has his own proper place and work.

Different Methods of Tillage

The practice of those who till the soil, in different ways and upon divergent principles, is strikingly illustrative of the Kingdom of Heaven, as we see it among men. Our Lord says, "The field is the world." "The sower is the Son of man," The good seed, these are the sons of the kingdom" (Matt. 13: 37, 38). The whole of this parable shows the active opposition of the Devil to Christ: by sowing the tares, which are "the sons of the evil one" in the field, among the good seed. He corrupts the crop by duplicate sowing of deceptive seed. In the earlier parable in Matthew 13 and Luke 8 "The seed is the Word of God." The sower is evidently the preacher of the Word. Our Lord teaches a broadcast sowing of the good seed, upon all kinds of soil. Here the opposition of the Devil is seen in his snatching away the good seed; his stirring up persecution because of the Word, and his choking the Word by the thorns of worldly care and the engrossment of wealth.

This broadcast distribution of the gospel seed is also taught—in fundamental principle—by all the statements of the Scripture in regard to the race-wide scope of Christ's atonement, "He died, the just for the unjust." "He bore our sins in his own body on the tree." "He died for . . . the sins of the whole world," and—in direct command—by His words, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," or His farewell words of power and commission, "Ye shall receive power, the Holy Ghost coming upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto me, in Jerusalem and in all Judea and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth" (Acts 1: 8). Moreover our Lord's purpose is reflected in the apostles' apprehension of it, and in their eager going forth as His messengers. Paul is anxious to fulfil his stewardship, to discharge his debts, to preach "where Christ is not so much as named," to go to "the regions beyond you," to leave the rejectors of Christ and "turn to the Gentiles," and "not to build upon another man's foundation."

The World Range of Man's Need

It is a cause for the deepest thankfulness on our part that the early servants of Christ apprehended the world range of man's need and of their own commission from Christ, and did not say "let the heathen alone, we have work enough to do among our own people." They saw the broad fields needing to be brought under cultivation for Christ, and they started out to do the work. Not intensive gardening in Judea, but extensive farming for the world, became their aim, and because of this, we and our forefathers have been blessed with the gospel, as we could not have been had they stayed at home. The same choice is before the servants of Christ in every age. They may, and many do, elect to stay in the home lands and work among those who already know the gospel. Thank God if theirs is truly intensive gardening, to fruitful ends, and if some neglected corners at home are cultivated in the process. Alas, that so often there is trouble between the gardeners about the borders of their allotments, and the kind of seed to be sown, and the method of harvesting, whilst time is wasted and the ground is trampled, and growing plants are crushed or uprooted. Just as "too many cooks spoil the broth," so too many gardeners waste labor and spoil the crop. Some few make the wiser choice, and, in fellowship with the missionary heart of Jesus, move out from the center toward the circumference, with the good tidings which is just as necessary for each spot on the earth, where man is found, as it is for Jerusalem, or New York, or London, or Chicago.

Rain and Sunshine Vital Factors

If, in agriculture, the processes of growth, as well as those of cultivation, had all to be promoted by man's hands, intensive cultivation would surely be called for. If water had to be carried and electric energy generated to cause life and growth, only a little ground could be covered, but God's rain and God's sunshine are great vital factors, which limit the need for the farmer's efforts; and enable him to cultivate square miles instead of square rods of land. There is a parallel to all this in gospel farming. One fears that much of the church work of today, is a series of mechanical efforts to make the seed germinate. And sometimes indeed the supposed seed itself is a mistaken mechanical substitute. It is "the Word of God" alone that is spoken of as "the seed." We might well venture upon far larger gospel enterprises if we practiced larger confidence in the life germ within the seed. Having been dropped into the ground of a human heart by preaching, by conversation, or by printed page, the seed may lie dormant, it may be snatched away by the evil one, or in the early growth of the germ it may be choked by weed-growths of evil, before it has taken vital root-hold in the life. It may, on the other hand, find good ground and, under the power of the Spirit of God, be quickened to active growth and fruitful harvest. For good seed deposited in good ground, God's rain and sunshine are sufficient, and we should till more ground, rather than be sitting up at night anxiously watching for sprouts, or plying our watering pot and galvanic battery.

Christ's Vast Estate

The purchase price which Christ has paid, covers the whole of a vast estate—the world, and His heart yearns to have the whole of His property brought to spiritual fruit-bearing. To this great end, He calls His saved people, and equips those who are willing, for service. They are called to become ambassadors, builders, fellow-laborers, soldiers, shepherds, preachers, teachers, evangelists, pastors. From these and many other names, we see that the purpose of our Lord embraces going, testifying, building, fighting, watching, teaching, and other service, but almost every title implies activity in ministering the Word, of glad tidings to those who have it not, though there is the further duty of protecting and nourishing believers also.

A multitude of facts bear testimony to the living power to the Word of God as the seed. A torn leaf from a Bible is blown out of a window, a careless passer-by picks it up and reads the Word. The seed has entered, and the life of Christ is born in the reader's heart. The text, uttered by Charles Spurgeon, in the vast empty space of the Crystal Palace, as he tested the acoustics of the building, reached the ears of a workman and sank into his heart, leading him to Christ. Mr. Hudson Taylor said that he knew of instances in China in which each of the four Gospels had proven the seed of life to one person at least, apart from preaching or pastoral care. Perhaps almost every missionary could narrate similar incidents.

The early "circuit riders" used to cover great distances in their efforts to bring occasional gospel ministry to widely scattered settlers, and it is so still in the great Northwest. It did not provide all that might be desired for any of the people, but it provided something of priceless value for all the people. Not a full measure of seed for any particular acre, but a thin scattering over many miles of land.

Wide Travelling and Preaching

Such a plan as this has been the beginning of any extensive work in newly entered missionary lands and notably so in China. When the early missionaries went into the inland provinces they travelled widely, preaching as they went. There was in their minds the purpose of exploring routes, cities, and means of communication, with a view to more settled work in the future; but there was also the purpose of giving as wide a preliminary heralding of the gospel as possible, with the expectation of faith that the Holy Spirit would fructify some of the scattered seed; the desire to deliver the gospel message to some of those in the "uttermost parts of the earth" for whom our Lord issued it, as truly as for those nearer to the center.

This was not ideal as a thorough operation, in spiritual husbandry, but, partial as it was, it opened up large districts for future work, prepared the way for missionary settlement, and some of the scattered seed grew and spread among the people when the sower had passed on. Without such a broad plan of pioneer effort, the settlements of later years, would have been much more difficult and slow.

Weeping and Bearing Precious Seed

There was another weighty reason why the early missionaries to the interior were almost wholly engaged in itinerant work, and a reason too, in which the enmity of Satan and his servants was used to work out the plan of God. Throughout many provinces the literati and officials used both guile and force to keep the foreigners "moving on," and so, with no home, and little rest, with scant appreciation and few kind words, and scarcely any apparent results, they journeyed on ever scattering the seed. It was truly "going forth weeping, bearing precious seed." Some of those early inland pioneers are still with us, to rejoice with the reapers of today, in the garnered sheaves, which their early faith and courageous adventure for God did so much to make possible.

In order to reach the untouched millions of any land rapidly, there must be the great aim of preaching "the gospel to every creature," a comprehensive, well subdivided plan of co-operation, and also a willingness to pass on and leave God to care for the seed sown. Later on will come the processes of instruction and pastoral care, perhaps in other lands, as well as this.

We desire to urge upon young Christians, who have their lives before them, and may yet make new decisions, the claims of the wide prairie land of darkened nations, and of untaught souls. O, that the youths and maidens of our land who love their Lord and who long to be useful to Him, might have a vision of the pitiful, frightful condition of their blood kindred in other lands, and of the transforming power of saving grace, brought to them by some very ordinary person—like themselves—who has gone forth to represent Jesus.

The Spiritual Conscience or the Imperative of a Missionary Evangelism

By Rev. William Hay, F. R. G. S.

Pastor of the Nassau Street Baptist Church, Winnipeg, Canada

An Address before the Graduating Class of The Moody Bible Institute.

BY THE spiritual conscience I mean the conscience awakened, vitalized and swayed by the Holy Spirit.

The need of this conscience is realized more widely and definitely today than it has been in modern times as the supreme essential to the salvation of our civilization from becoming the curse of our modern life. Out of the suffering, and tears and blood caused by the awful tragedy of war, there is emerging a higher and greater philosophy of life than that which results in a materialized conscience and a materialistic ideal. The chief reason of my pleasure at being here this evening, and of the tribute of honor I lay before this Institute, its Faculty and its students, is that the spiritual side of life and the spiritual ideal are made supreme here; that the supernatural element in the Word of God is upheld inviolate, and that while you recognize the necessity of knowledge and training, you also recognize that an absolutely essential equipment for effective Christian service is a spiritual conscience and the inspiration that is born in the heart and is aflame with the fire of the Holy Spirit. O, if this were the condition of the Christian church everywhere, what a mighty power it would be! When you realize this, it is heart-breaking to witness the emphasis that is placed upon the merely social and secular side of the life and activity of the Christian church. I have been in a good many cities of the world, but I have never known that emphasis to be so great as in the city in which I am carrying on my work as a minister of Jesus Christ. And an emphasis of that kind must result in failure, so far as the truest mission of the church in the world is concerned.

Not many years ago the world of science stood for the materialistic ideal and the materialistic view of the universe. Today it is criticising and challenging the church, not for its spiritual attainments, but for lagging behind in the realization of the spiritual ideal. Sir Oliver Lodge, the great scientist of today, boldly tells the church that it has forgotten the secret of its power, which he asserts is prayer, and which many of us know is prayer, without being scientists. Prayer and the materialistic ideal are absolutely incongruous. Prayer and the spiritual life and spiritual power are so closely related that they can never be separated. Indeed, so closely related are they that, to use James Russell Lowell's words, "In the gain or loss of one, all the rest have equal claim." The scientist is right, the forgotten secret of power is prayer, and spiritual power is the supreme essential in Christian life and service.

The Spiritual Conscience and the Person of Christ.

1. This spiritual conscience, by reason of its being swayed and vitalized by the Holy Spirit, demands that Jesus Christ be accorded the fullest honor that the attributes of Deity entitle Him to receive. The Holy Spirit is the Revealer of Christ just as Jesus Christ was the Revealer of the Father; and that Holy Spirit is the very same that inspired John to write in the prologue to his Gospel, "All things were made by him, and without him was not anything made that was made" and the same Holy Spirit that inspired Paul to write to the Colossian Christians, "In whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins. Who is the image of the invisible God, the first-born of every creature: For by him were all things created that are in heaven and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers; all things were created by him and for him. * * * * And he is the head of the body, the church; who is the beginning, the first-born from the dead; that in all things he might have the pre-eminence." That must be the vision to the soul when the conscience is dominated by the Holy Spirit. The argument that Paul became so obsessed with the image of his hero that it grew within his biased thought, as Mary has grown in the thought of the papists to become the queen of heaven, is an impossible one. The sentiment that became such a sublime passion in this brainy apostle's life, was so allied to reason and to sense that the Pauline doctrine of Christ is, after more than nineteen centuries, the unshaken, authoritative exposition of the being and the attributes of Christ. And this, despite some who are little theologians and little philosophers, who beg the whole question by the assertion that they do not deny that Christ is divine, only you, and I, and they are also divine! No greater tribute to human fame could be uttered than that which Virgil puts into the lips of Æneas in his apostrophe to Queen Dido, "When the rivers no longer run into the sea, when the shadows no longer move over the hills, when the stars no longer light the vault of heaven, thy name and thy fame shall abide." The attribute of Jesus Christ must be infinitely greater, for He Himself shall abide, from all eternity to all eternity, unchanged and unchanging forever, who, with eyes aflame with a light that the ages cannot dim carries at His girdle the keys of Hades and of death. There are those who would robe Jesus Christ with the silks of all the universities of the world, till the eternal Christ were hidden beneath the academic Jesus. But how utterly paltry such patronizing rags on the regal shoulders of the King of kings! How utterly mocking to the human heart, that seeks not a pedagogue but a Saviour King! And the spiritual conscience cries, "Take them away, and give Him but the faded purple robe from Pilate's hall, and the crown of piercing thorns, and the human heart will be content with even these emblems of His Kingship, until the splendor of His Deity shall break through the mists of the eternal morning.

The Lesson of the Hollow Image

2. Now it is just this great truth concerning the Deity of Christ that makes imperative a missionary evangelism that has ever been an expression of the truest genius of the church. To withhold the evangel of Christ is to withhold Christ Himself. He is the Logos, or the living Word of God, whether that Word be written upon the physical universe, or upon the human conscience and the human heart.

Lifeless ideals of morality, whether they evolve from the thought of a Confucius, a Buddha, or a twentieth century theosophist, may be beautifully plausible and plausibly beautiful, but never have lifeless ideals had a greater power to uplift than sin has had to pull down. Is there anything more lofty or beautiful in earlier ethics than the ideals of Plato's philosophy which has been described as a prodigy of beauty, as Christianity is a prodigy of sacredness? And yet Athens, in the psychological hour of her history, with the fascinating ideals of her greatest philosopher shining out before her, was putrid to the core! What more beautiful ideal could be lifted up before a people than that which Vivekenanda, the high priest of Hindu religion and ethics, gave to the world, when he said that "the whole struggle in their system is a constant struggle to become perfect, to become divine, to see God and reach God, becoming perfect even as the Father in heaven is perfect?" A most plausibly beautiful ideal, and yet that is striven after through giving rein to the most debasing passions, and the prescriptions of a ritual of worship too foul to be translated. My argument holds good equally in relation to China, and Japan, and any other part or people in the world. When in Tokio, the capital of Japan, two years ago, I was taken by one of our missionaries to the great Asakusa Buddhist temple, and witnessed the stream of people that gravitate to that place day and night almost without ceasing. That temple is right in the heart of the courtesan quarter of Tokio, and so closely associated are religion and vice there that there is no line of demarkation between them. At Kamakura, Japan, is the famous Daibutsu, the great bronze image of Buddha. I stood one day and studied the wonderful calm of Nirvana written upon the massive face. Presently I went behind the image and found that it was——hollow! The image was hollow; and I thought what a striking emblem of the hollowness of the religion it stands for, and of the calm or peace it is supposed to produce!

An ideal, or an ethic, will never drive the devil out of the human heart, any more than a law upon your statute books will drive him from the country. If ethical teaching of the highest excellence could save society, and build up a church in unity and life, then Unitarianism should be in the front rank. Yet long ago Martineau confessed that when he wanted to get the depths of his heart stirred he had to turn to the hymns of Wesley and Cowper. What are they?

"Thou, O Christ, art all I want,
More than all in Thee I find."

"There is a fountain filled with blood,
Drawn from Immanuel's veins,
And sinners plunged beneath that flood,
Lose all their guilty stains."

Stopford Brooke's sermons are masterpieces of ethics, and eloquence and literary beauty, but he has confessed that he could stand it no longer. Unitarianism has no missionary power; it is stricken with spiritual paralysis. Its atmosphere freezes the emotions and sterilizes the heart. Some men I know who preach about almost everything under the sun but the gospel of the Crucified, get together and tumble over one another in their eagerness to get William Sunday to come and conduct a mission in their midst—the man who declares that "It is Jesus Christ or hell for every man and woman on God Almighty's dirt." And so the spiritual conscience accepts the imperativeness of faithfully fulfilling the commission of Christ to go into all the world and preach the evangel to every creature, because the presentation of the evangel of Christ means the presentation of Christ Himself. Because it discerns in the offering of love on the altar of sensualism, in the reaching out after satisfaction by the violation of life's most sacred laws, in the seeking of some lifting power by the more stagnant races of the earth, and in the tear of sorrow that falls by the waters of the Ganges, or the Congo, or in the drawing-room, or the slum district, in our western cities, the yearnings of humanity which the Christ of all eternity reaches out through all saved and consecrated life today, to draw to Himself, that in Him they may find a glorious and eternal satisfaction.

The Evolution of China

Perhaps it would be of special interest to say something of the development of the spiritual conscience in the Orient, and especially in China. In Korea there has been a wonderful work of salvation. One of the greatest inspirations I received during my tour of the Orient was received at a prayer-meeting in Pyeng-Yang. I had the privilege of addressing, in the theological seminary there, about two hundred students for the Christian ministry, and about the same number of Bible women in training. Not for centuries has the Orient been so intensely interesting as it is today; but if I were going to the mission field, and wanted to select a field of missionary service, where there were the greatest opportunities, I think I would give the preference to China. The greatest fact of all in China, of recent date, was the revolution; but a renaissance preceded it and is was really evolution rather than revolution. And renaissance in the history of any nation, as you know, has meant opportunities for imparting truth, and receiving truth, such as there were not before. That is true of China, though at the present time she is one of the backward countries of the world. There are those who doubt whether the Chinese will ever rise above imitation of more advanced nations and become independently progressive and creative. Their emulation of Japan is frequently referred to by those who forget that it was China who taught Japan arts and letters. My friend, Dr. Chambers, of Canton, said to me, "They are not so smart as the Japanese, but for sweep of intellect, for profound reasoning, for insight into things, they are the peers of any race in the world." The Chinese often make you cross with them. They will be rude to you in the street, but people are rude elsewhere than in China. The Japanese are very polite, except perhaps, the irresistible "rickshaw man." An instance of their great politeness was related to me by Rev. Mr. Wynd, one of our missionaries in Tokio. He and his wife were out one afternoon, she with her bicycle, which she had just learned to ride. She was able to manage the machine fairly well, and, mounting it rode on ahead of Mr. Wynd; but presently she came into collision with a house which could not get out of the way. The head of the household came quickly to the door to ascertain the cause of the disturbance. Mr. Wynd soon came upon the scene, and after attending to his wife, he began to apologize to the head of the household who had been disturbed. To his surprise, the Jap himself began to apologize, saying, "It is really all my fault, for I ought to have been more thoughtful and not have placed my house in such an inconvenient position!!" The Chinese were very cocky when I was there two years ago; and in most parts of China there are those who will rob you of everything you have. But those who know the Chinese, and have a vision of their opportunity, are devoted to their advancement. A young lady from one of the best universities of this country who travelled with me from Hangchow to Shanghai, expressed to me with enthusiasm her sense of the greatness of the work of educating and training the girls of China, who as mothers in future years will have such power in the molding of individual and national character. As an instance of the tremendous change that was taking place then, I went one day to the Temple of Heaven, in Peking. This temple used to be the most sacred place in the empire. But, standing in its spacious parks, its splendid altars and great braziers will, we believe, never again be used for the purpose for which they were placed there. The rooks caw in the old cedar trees that have stood the storms of centuries; and as I stood beneath the great dome of blue, and green, and red and gold, and thought of its deserted altars, and its forsaken courts, I said to a companion, "Thus passeth away the pomp and pageantry, and even the worship of the ancient Orient." The next day I visited the magnificent temple of China's great sage—Confucius. On the first and fifteenth of every moon, and at certain festivals, all the civil and military officers of the city, the literati and élite would go to the temple to do homage to the ancient sage. But many of the Confucian temples are now deserted, and are used for other purposes, or are entered merely by the curious. Sir John Jordan, our British Minister at Peking, told me, however (and this should be a stimulus to missionary enterprise and service in China), that the Chinese were abandoning their temple worship much more rapidly than they were accepting Christianity, and were in danger of becoming as utilitarian as the Japanese—more utilitarian than religious. Will western missionaries be required in China as heretofore? is an important question that is being asked by many today. They will be required, most certainly, but not to be sent out with the mere idea of flooding China with foreign evangelists, so much as a careful selection of those who are best fitted for leadership by training, and spiritual understanding and insight, to teach and prepare the Christian Chinese to be the preachers, and teachers and leaders in evangelism and every other form of Christian service.

Dr. Jowett's Day Dream

4. The spiritual conscience, dominated by the Holy Spirit, demands from us an evangelism that is passionate, because its driving force is the passion of Christ Himself reaching out to win and to save those who have not surrendered to his claims. If we fail in this, we not only misrepresent Him, but become the foes of humanity. In no narrow and little sense are we called to this service, but the supreme, the most divinely beautiful task that is ours, if Christ is ours, is still expressed in the old phrases, "the seeking of the lost," and "the winning of souls to the Christ of God." That is ever our supreme service though the years come laden with a myriad other problems; and we cannot do much until this service is passionate. The fields are already white unto harvest, but they can never be reaped by passionless servants of a passionate Christ. Is it true, as Dr. Jowett says, that "the ministers of Calvary must supplicate in bloody sweat, and their intercession must often touch the point of agony"? Is not the sublimest history of soul-winning a witness that that is true? "Give me Scotland or I die," prayed Knox, and the passion of that prayer has been the passion of every great soul-winner. Yes, a passionate evangelism is the sublime ideal of every man and woman who has felt the touch of the once pierced but omnipotent hand that awakens a soul to the life divine, and kindles within the heart the flame of His own divine passion. The fitness and equipment for your service are beautifully illustrated by a day-dream Dr. Jowett had. He was in his study in the early morning, and somewhat sadly contemplating the shortcomings in his personal life and ministry. While he pondered with closed eyes, he became aware of a presence before whom his spirit bowed in trembling awe. "He lifted," says Dr. Jowett, "my garments; and I saw that they were badly stained. He went away, and came again, and again He lifted my robes and began to remove the stains, and I saw that He was using the ministry of blood. And then He touched my lips; and they became pure as the lips of a little child. Then He anointed my eyes with eyesalve, and I knew He was giving sight to the blind. Then He breathed upon my brow, and my depression passed away like a morning cloud. I wondered what next my august companion would do, and with the eyes and ears of my spirit I watched and listened. Then He took a pen, and putting it into my hands, He said, 'Write, for I will take of the things of Christ and shew them unto thee,' and I turned to my desk, and I wrote in the power of the Holy Spirit." The dream, perhaps, is not for you or for me, but the experience is; and whether you write, or preach, or teach, or sing, or minister in any other way, you can do all in the power of the Holy Spirit, and you must do all in His power if you are to have success and victory. May splendid success and victory of this very kind be yours.

THE SACRAMENT OF PAIN

By Albert Simpson Reitz

When we read the mystic language
Of those long-lost, cherished years,
And we find at least a rainbow
Flung across those far-off tears—
O, the memories that meet us
In the twilight's softened glow,
As we bring the hidden treasures
From the Land of Long Ago.

When we touch the silent heartstrings
That on lutes of love were strung,
And we hear again the music
Of those songs so long unsung,
How the thoughts come thronging o'er us,
Bringing back the bitter loss,
'Till we find that God, in mercy,
Has a crown for every cross.

It is then we prove His promise:
"No good thing will He withhold,"
And "all things shall work together"
Doth its mysteries unfold;
Thus we feel that in the future
He shall grant us greater gain,
For the cross still finds its glory
In the sacrament of pain.

Interesting Stories from Nicaragua

Told by Lorenzo Taylor in "The Moravian"

THOSE who spend their lives wandering along the byways of life, just a few days' journey from the lands of bright possibility, need often to remind themselves that even their drab existences, though they matter but little to the great world just beyond, may yet be vital to Him who controls the perfect whole.

In these days of specialization, one lays oneself open to criticism every time one steps aside to do some little service by the way, but the missionary in Nicaragua must by force of circumstances lend a hand whenever he sees the opportunity. He is called upon in turn to fill the gaps, as preacher, teacher, doctor, counsellor and administrator. His life must be one of intolerable inaction, or a strenuous seizing of small opportunities, mindful always that "The hum of a bee may reach the stars."

The Mosquito people are not the only people with semi-nomadic tendencies in Latin America, for it is no uncommon sight to see Creoles or Spaniards from no one knows whence, wandering they cannot tell where, bed and baggage, chickens and children bringing up the rear. Of course they are not of the missionaries' flock, but to whom do they belong? They belong to Him who said "Go out into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in."

The stories of work in our various congregations are well known to all readers of this paper, but few know of the great work which our missionaries are doing amongst the Spaniards and other wanderers in Nicaragua.

The Old Spaniard

It was not long after landing in this country that the writer found himself visiting the sick in the Bluefields Hospital. On one occasion he noticed an old Spaniard who seemed very much neglected. Conversation revealed the fact that the poor old man had wandered from the interior in search of employment. He seemed to be interested in news from overseas, and like almost every Spaniard had an insatiable appetite for politics and law. On one occasion the superintendent sent a few Spanish Gospels for distribution. A copy of St. Luke fell to this old man's portion, and it made one glad to see how that poor invalid loved and read his Gospel. "It is the most beautiful book I have ever read," he at length exclaimed. It was more than a month later that the sick man was found lying listlessly on his bed, as if some light had gone out of his life, and before one could ask the cause of his gloominess he remarked "It was so wonderful I could not keep it to myself; I have sent my Gospel to a dear friend in Granada." It was with a sigh of relief that he received a copy of the New Testament. Yet apart from this one case there was not much to show that the weekly visits were enjoyed to the extent which afterwards became apparent to the writer.

The Dying Indian

Evening service had just finished and the Indians were already making their homeward way across the savannah, when the missionary's wife heard someone coughing most violently, and urged her husband to go and try, if possible, to ease the sufferer. Under a shed some seventy yards away he found a man, reduced almost to a skeleton by the ravages of that dread malady, consumption. It was not long before the poor man was housed in the little hospital, eating a good meal. The following day after he had taken his medicine, he said, "Padre, did you come here after you left Bluefields?" Then he told his life story. How he had fought in the revolution and had been left for two days amongst the dead. His sufferings had been terrible, and he had never recovered from the horrors which he had seen. He told all as a man making his dying confession. How he had been sent by public subscription from the Cape to Bluefields, how feeling himself growing weaker he had tried to return to his people to say "Good-by" before he died. How in a state of exhaustion he had crawled into the shelter in which he had been found. "Little did I know that you who visited us in the Bluefields hospital would be here to minister to me in the hour of my death," he remarked. But he did not die in Twappi; careful nursing, nourishing food and medicine worked wonders, and tears filled his eyes when just over a week later he stepped on board a small boat which was to take him to his people. He did not live very long—but to the day of his death he cherished a little keepsake in the form of a New Testament.

The Spaniards and Mosquito Indians.

On returning from another station the writer was one day politely asked how soon it would be convenient for him to see the interrogator's wife, who appeared to be very ill. The woman was soon in the little dispensary, and it was evident that an operation was inevitable. With but the help of the patient's husband, the missionary performed the operation, and three days later had earned the esteem and gratitude of Don Manuel. As for the woman, only a few days ago she asked for instruction prior to becoming a member of the church. This couple live some three hours' journey from the mission station, and though they attend services on an average only one or two Sundays per month, yet it is gratifying to be able to keep in constant touch with them by means of the printed Word, and an occasional tract, both of which are greatly appreciated.

That a great work could be done in the Spanish centers is evident, but the Moravian church is concerned chiefly with the work among the Moskito Indians. The mission board of late years has done what it could to make a little work in an unofficial way possible by training several of their men to speak a little of the Spanish language, but were it not for the most generous grants of literature, sent carriage paid, from the Bible House of Los Angeles, much of this work would be impossible.

The results of this kind of work one cannot always see, but when the night of darkness has passed away, and the morn breaks, when the full light of God shall shine forth, shall be seen wanderers entering into their rest. By God's grace they will pass from "the land of tomorrow" and be with Him in the "land of forever."

How Three Great Field Marshals Look at Missions

IN A recent number of the Church Missionary Society's "Gazette" there is published the following letter, written some time ago by the late Lord Roberts, Lord Grenfell and Lord Methuen. It was intended for private circulation to officers going on foreign service, but is now made public by permission of the two last-named of the signatories and the Dowager-Countess Roberts. It will be read with deep interest as a testimony to missionaries and their work paid by men at the head of their profession, occupying positions of high responsibility. The letter is as follows:

"Dear Sir—As officers who have had the honor of serving the Crown in many lands and among people of different races, we desire, from our own experience, to draw your special attention to a subject which we judge to be of the highest importance to a British officer.

"Holding His Majesty's commission, you will probably before long serve abroad among non-Christian peoples. We would venture to remind you of the great influence of such a position, and the serious responsibility it entails.

"Whether we recognize the fact or not, our personal lives materially affect the estimation in which the claims of Christianity are held by numbers of natives around us. For instance, a thoughtless word, or careless behavior may give them wrong and unfavorable impressions as to beliefs and institutions which we are sure you at any rate in your heart really value, and would wish to honor. Respect for the Christian Sunday, and the attitude of a British officer towards Christian worship, are closely observed, and have great effect on the native mind. During his recent visit to India the high example of His Majesty the King in these two particulars has made a profound impression.

"Besides this (sometimes unconscious) personal influence, there is the fact that you will almost certainly come into contact with the representatives of various Christian missionary societies, whose special work it is to show to non-Christian peoples the love of the Christ whom we profess to serve. We commend these missionaries to you as a body of men and women who are working helpfully with the Government, and contributing to the elevation of the people in a way impossible to official action. Some object to Christian missions in ignorance of their real value. We would suggest that you will use all opportunities of making yourself personally acquainted with the work they are doing, and the character of the converts. Most missions will bear looking into, and we are convinced that, if you will do this, you will never afterwards condemn or belittle them.

"Already the results of Christian missions in many places are very striking. For instance, in the Uganda Protectorate (Central Africa) there is now a prosperous and peaceful community of nearly 90,000 Christians, where not one existed thirty years ago, and where unutterable atrocities were of daily occurrence—while on the N. W. Frontier of India the pacific influence of missions among the fierce Pathan tribes has been of incalculable value to our Government.

"Some of the noblest characters we have met have been missionaries, and the friendships we have made with them are among our cherished memories.

"We venture to hope you will make the acquaintance of such men, thus showing a fellow countryman's sympathy in what is frequently a very difficult and discouraging effort, sometimes sorely trying to health and spirits.

"We earnestly hope you will receive this letter in the friendly spirit in which it is sent.—Yours very truly,

ROBERTS, F. M.
GRENFELL, F. M.
METHUEN, F. M."

The value of a letter such as the above cannot be over-estimated. Missionaries have never been slow to appreciate the work done by the soldiers of the King, and it is gratifying to find these in their turn ready to acknowledge the services rendered by the messengers of Christ.

Why Send Missionaries to the Mormons?

By Rev. R. L. Warnock

THE question of Mormonism in its relation to our own nation and the church of Jesus Christ is one of the most vital which confronts the servants of the Lord. Perhaps none other is more discussed by students of home missions. In most of these discussions in the East, the civil phase of the question is specially emphasized, showing how the promises made by the citizens of Utah when seeking statehood have been violated, and the manifesto issued by the president of the Mormon church (so-called) forbidding polygamy has been disregarded.

These are certainly important questions and have both a moral and religious bearing. But the Mormon question will never be solved until the church considers the religious conditions more carefully than has been done by most people and applies herself more diligently to preaching the true gospel of Jesus Christ* to the Mormon people.

Mormon Views and Conditions

The errors referred to above are simply the outgrowth of erroneous religious teaching. When the homes are visited and the truths of the gospel presented, some give expression to ideas which reveal religious views and conditions which are almost incredible.

In a very brief period of travel through northern Utah and southern Idaho in mission work among Mormon people, some things have been learned about their teaching and the ideas held by the people which could scarcely have been believed had they been seen in print.

One may travel extensively through Mormon communities and yet be deceived—forming a splendid opinion of Mormonism. An occasional visit to Salt Lake City, or even an extended sojourn among the Mormon people will give no idea of their religious destitution until they are visited in their homes and engaged in conversation, regarding their hope for salvation, and drawn on to discuss their peculiar religious views.

Mormon Progress

Much has been said about the material progress of the Mormons. A very stanch Mormon who lives in Utah and probably knows practically nothing of any other part of the country, said to the writer: "You have seen considerable of the country. Is this (the Cache Valley of northern Utah) not the best and most advanced you have seen anywhere?" When told it was not, he said, "Perhaps you have seen small sections which surpass it." He was informed that very large sections in many parts of the United States are far in advance of it.

The Mormons have some very progressive people who have advanced rapidly in material wealth, but that in no way proves their religious position is correct. They are not in advance of other people of equal opportunity, and it is very doubtful whether they are equal to the majority of others who started as they did in a fertile land.

So many people from the East having seen the best part of Salt Lake City, and a few choice ranches, conclude all is like this, tell the Mormon people they are the greatest on the earth and publish similar statements on returning East, until the Mormons have concluded they are the specially favored and prospered people of the world and claim it is because they have the only true religion.

Mormons Courteous

As a rule the people are very courteous, and most of them listen very attentively to the gospel truth. Some tell us they treat us well because they or some of their friends have been on a mission.

When in our meetings or in personal conversation the truths which strike at the foundation of their religious system are presented, there is often manifested very great opposition to the teaching of God's Word. Most of them claim to believe the Bible, but say they accept it only so far as it is correctly translated.

Their position will be most clearly set forth by giving some statements made by them in meetings or in conversation:

In a ward meeting house in Salt Lake City (a ward corresponds to a congregation in an ordinary Christian church) the following statement was made at a testimony meeting: "Paul said of a certain branch of the church, 'They confessed God, but denied him by their works.'" The inference if not the positive statement, was that this is true of all branches of the church except the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints. If some one can inform the writer where this statement (?) of Paul is found he will greatly appreciate it.

The Mormon Gospel

In the same meeting another summed up Christian duty or really the way to be saved as follows: 1. Tithing. 2. Obedience to the priesthood. 3. Feeding the poor. 4. Observing the sacraments and fasting. This is the essence of the "Mormon gospel." It is salvation by works, which is directly opposed to the teaching of Ephesians 2:8, 9, and many other Scriptures.

A bishop when asked to quote one verse from the Bible supporting the idea that we are saved by works, secured his "Ready Reference" (a small handbook of Scripture quotations which is very convenient for Mormons who know very little about the Bible) and read verse after verse from the eleventh chapter of Hebrews, and similar Scripture, and when urged to give a verse in support of his position, his wife said, "He has read several to you and you will not accept them."

In the meeting referred to above, another said his work was mainly among the young people, and his aim was to inspire them to have faith and a testimony. He said: "I always ask them, 'Have you ever been able to stand up and say, 'I know Joseph Smith was a prophet,' If not you have never had a testimony.'" This explains what is meant by "faith and a testimony."

Ignorance of the Bible

The son of a bishop, a young married man, asked the writer if Christ did not say, "We shall take up our mortal bodies, and the spirit shall flow through our veins." When he was given a New Testament and asked to find certain statements, he did not know where to turn for a certain book. Being referred to the Gospel of John and told it was in the first part of the book, on turning the leaves he came to the Epistles of St. John and thought they were the same as the Gospel of John.

In one home after having told the story of Christ's life and salvation through Him, the lady said: "Our missionaries teach the same." When told they taught or their people held other ideas, she asked what they were, and celestial marriages or sealing for eternity was mentioned, and the case of the woman who had seven husbands (Matt. 22:23-32) was cited as evidence that earthly marriages are not recognized in heaven. She said: "It would have been a great calamity for her to have had seven husbands," and when told it would be no worse than for a man to have several wives, she said: "Sure it would!" One other woman openly defended polygamy in talking to the writer.

An aged man in talking in defense of their ideas regarding God (or gods, rather) referred to 1 Corinthians 8:5 as proof that there are many gods. They claim that when Christ said, "I and the Father are one," He simply said, "We are one in purpose." The same man quoted Joseph Smith's statement, "As we are now, God once was; as God is now, we shall be," and insisted that it is in the Bible. He was told plainly of his mistake, and his daughter finally acknowledged that it was in some of the Mormon writings. After a discussion of about a half hour the father and daughter became quiet, and for another half hour Christ and His atonement was preached to them.

A young married woman said to one of the workers of our party: "I would as soon worship a tree as a god without a body."

One man asked the writer by what authority he preached Jesus Christ as the Saviour of men and when he replied, "By the authority of God," he said: "How did you receive it?" and when told, "By a message from the Holy Spirit," he said, "I would not preach if I had no more authority than that." When questioned about his knowledge of the Bible, he confessed that he had probably read it through twice during his lifetime. He was at least fifty years of age. Because he had received the authority of the priesthood he was better prepared to preach with his two readings of the Bible than any man without that authority, no matter how much he had studied God's Word. Indeed, a man without this authority is not fitted and has no right to preach at all no matter how eminently spiritual and learned he may be. Neither spirituality nor learning is necessary to preach Mormonism. All he needs is authority from the priesthood.

A man whose name is Nephi Christensen was sure he had a good Bible name, "both parts of it" (giving his own words).

What can Christian people who know what it is to have their sins forgiven think of such a religion as this? More than one has said: "You can not have eternal life here, no one can know he is saved," entirely ignoring such statements as John 3:36, 5:24, 6:47, and 1 John 5:12, 13. These facts certainly show there is great need for the preaching of the true gospel among them. What will the church do about it?

We do not mean to intimate that the church has done nothing; work has been done. But there are many places which do not have any true gospel preaching except what is done by a small band of missionaries traveling in wagons. Their visits are very brief—usually two to four days in a community, with meetings each evening, then no more for two or three, possibly four, years. Some places have Christian (or Gentile) churches, but the Mormons seldom or never go there, while they will come to meetings held in or near their own meeting houses by traveling missionaries. In addition to the meetings all the homes of the community are visited, the truth of the gospel explained and literature left with them.

The Mormons have about two thousand men out preaching their falsehood continually. What will the churches do to present the truth to these deluded people?

Why We Should Pray for Missionaries

From the Memoirs of William C. Burns, M. A., Missionary to China, 1847-1868

"THE benumbing influence of continual contact with heathenism, and the danger generally of losing the keen edge and high tone of practical godliness while dwelling in a land in which all the usual means and incentives of the spiritual life are in so great a measure withdrawn, is at once touching and instructive, and suggests to us an aspect of the missionary life of which most of us at home but little think.

"We are apt to regard the Christian missionary, as, by the very act of his consecration to so sublime a vocation, at once raised to a region of exalted faith and fervor far above us, in which all the ordinary perils to the life of the soul are unknown. The idea of a casual, formal, perfunctory, unspiritual and commonplace missionary, seems to us almost a contradiction in terms. We think naturally of those brave athletes of the Cross, very much as ordinary Christians in early days thought of the ascetic recluses of the desert, as men by the very nature of their calling pre-eminently devoted in heart to God, and almost as a matter of course and ipso facto, 'full of faith and of the Holy Ghost.'

"No mistake, I believe, can be more grievous. The whole history of missionary life and labor abundantly shows how possible it is to lose the life of faith, even while seeking the propagation of the faith; to leave house and home and kindred for Christ's sake and the gospel's, and yet in a heathen land to breathe little either of the love of Christ or the grace of the gospel.

"Most of us little think how hard a thing it must be for a solitary wanderer to maintain the life of Christian godliness in the very atmosphere and element of heathenism—without a Sabbath; without Christian fellowship or brotherhood; without a Christian face to look into or a Christian hand to grasp; with an utter disbelief of all Christian truths, and of everything belonging to a higher world, looking out from the eyes of all around him; with nothing left to feed the inner springs of the soul but his Bible, his closet (if indeed he can command a closet), and his God.

"The brightest lamp will burn dim in an impure and rarified atmosphere. It is only by a special miracle that the children of Israel can thrive and be of fair countenance on the pulse and water of Babylon. The palm tree of the desert 'knoweth not when the heat cometh,' but it is because its roots are watered by hidden springs far under the ground.

"We can understand then how the missionary so continually casts himself on the succor of his brethren's prayers, not only for the success of his labors, but for the very life of his own soul. 'The wilderness and the solitary place' are indeed often made glad for him, and the parched ground becomes as 'a pool, and the thirsty land springs of water'; but he feels that it is so, and only can be so, by a special miracle of grace."

Negro Education, a Missionary Effort

By H. M. McIntosh

President of the Dougherty County, Ga., Board of Education

(We are personally acquainted with the Albany Bible and Manual Training Institute referred to in this article, with its able and devoted principal, the Rev. Joseph W. Holley, A. M., D. D. He is a Booker T. Washington in statesman-like ability and zeal for the upbuilding of his race, and by God's grace he is a saved soul who seeks the salvation of other souls. The school over which he presides is based upon the Bible, and that precious revelation of God has the first place in all his work.—Editor-in-Chief.)

IT IS not the purpose of this article to enter into an academic discussion of negro education, but rather to deal with facts and conditions as we find them. Many things occur to me which might be written in all sincerity and with timely appropriateness for home consumption only, but I forbear, lest I provoke controversy—controversy of a sort that might do more harm than good.

There are many intelligent and well-meaning people all over the country who cannot discuss this subject fairly and on its merits. It is constantly before us, however, and has to be dealt with as an integral, material part of our state and municipal school systems, and to me there is as much in it to appeal to the patriotism and Christian benevolence of every American—especially if he be a southerner and former slave owner, or the descendant of one—as there is, ever has been or ever will be, in the field of Christian endeavor popularly known as foreign missions, in which the American people spend millions of dollars annually.

Here in Dougherty county, where the negroes outnumber the whites at a ratio of something like five to one, there is a broad field and an abundance of material for the exercise of Christianizing benevolence and charity of the proverbial sort that "begins at home," and the longer we neglect our duty and shirk the responsibility that God has placed upon us, the worse it will be for us.

"Good Business" for the Southern People

Leaving out all consideration of a Christian and benevolent character and viewing the subject from a cold-blooded, material, dollars-and-cents standpoint, it would be "good business" for the southern people, especially in communities where there is a large negro popu-

An indolent and vicious citizen is not only undesirable from any standpoint, but is liable to become a menace and burden, and if we abandon the negroes entirely in an educational and religious way, they will inevitably drift back into paganism and heathenism. The trend of this sort of retrogression may already be seen in some parts of our country.

There are negro preachers in this county who are as ignorant, superstitious, and devoid of moral character, as the average tribal leader in the jungles of Africa or the wilds of the Philippines, although they are not as warlike and vicious. The same might be said of other counties in nearly every southern state. Left lation, to take an active interest in their education, giving it such direction as would naturally and inevitably make these people more capable, efficient and reliable in the various spheres of our domestic and industrial life in which they serve.

Students in Carpentry

But there is education and education, and of this I shall have something to say later in connection with an institution where, I believe, earnest effort is being made to educate negro youth on the right lines.

Every negro in the community is a consumer, and if we neglect them and pay no attention to their education and moral training, we may expect only a small percentage of them to become self-sustaining producers. The more ignorant and indolent they become in a state of abandonment in an educational, religious and moral sense, the greater may we expect the percentage of inefficiency, industrially, to be, and the greater the burden that will naturally be imposed upon the community at large.

to themselves, we cannot expect the negroes to make any progress, morally or industrially, with such preachers as teachers.

What is here said is, of course, not intended as a wholesale arraignment of our negro preachers. We have some here, and all over the South, who are men of piety, intelligence and character, and are doing the best they can with their opportunities in their respective fields of labor; but the best and most intelligent of them are confined within the narrow limitations of their immediate pastorates, and are greatly outnumbered and badly handicapped by the ignorant, licentious, vociferous negro preachers who roam the woods and are to be found on nearly every plantation.

A Visiting Clergyman from the North and His Impressions

Something over a year ago the pastor of a church in one of the large cities at the North came to Albany, accompanied by one of his ruling elders, to visit the Albany Bible and Manual Training Institute, of which institution I have been a trustee since its organization, some nine years ago. These good men had manifested an interest in this school for negroes, and had come down to see what it was doing. In order, to give them an object lesson that would demonstrate the difference between the negro under intelligent teaching, and surrounded by a wholesome, moral atmosphere, and the negro when neglected by the white man and left to the care of such shepherds as he would likely choose for himself, I carried them out on Sunday to two country churches in that part of the county which is inhabited almost entirely by negroes, and they were simply amazed at what they saw and heard.

First the cultured and dignified divine from the North was intensely interested; then amazed, and finally almost horrified. When asked what he thought of the performance, his reply, in substance, was "I have heard of such as this, but I had never expected to see and hear with my own eyes and ears any such travesty on religious worship in any part of this Christian land of ours. It is simply inconceivable. My people at home will not believe me if I tell them the whole truth about what I have seen. These people are fast drifting back into the primeval heathenism of their race."

A religious service in the chapel of the Albany Bible and Manual Training Institute presented a contrast that was most striking and pleasing, and these visitors from the North went away enthusiastic over the work being done here by Rev. Joseph W. Holley, D. D., and his assistants under the general direction of a board of trustees composed of leading business men of Albany and several gentlemen at the North who have lent their names and given of their means to the institution.

Country Negro Schools

There are in Dougherty county, outside of Albany, twenty-three negro schools, while there are only five for white children, all supported by the state under our county board of education. Much of the money that is spent in these country negro schools is wasted, but this cannot be avoided under the present law and public school system.

The greatest drawback to negro education is in the scarcity of competent and worthy negro teachers. There are negro educational institutions that are turning out both men and women who are competent to teach, but a college graduate is not willing, except in rare instances, to go into a country settlement and teach a school of negro children in the "primary branches of an ordinary English education," as the law expresses it, but sometimes more forcibly, if not elegantly expressed in the alliterative three R's—readin', 'ritin', and 'rithmetic—at the small compensation usually allowed.

White people will supplement the appropriation from the county Board of Education with a fund sufficient to procure the services of a good teacher and keep the school open for nine months each year; but it is different with the negroes. Not all of them take enough interest in the education of their children to send them to school regularly even when it is absolutely free.

Besides the public school for negroes supported by the city as a part of the city public school system, there are two negro schools supported by benevolence, and at both of these good work is being done. The oldest of these is the Albany Normal School, an institution established by the American Missionary Society. While my duties as a member of the County board of education and of the city board of education have never called me to this school, I am glad to be able to say a good word for it. The men who have been placed over this school have, without exception, been men of education and exemplary moral character. A healthy moral atmosphere has been preserved in the institution, competent teachers have been employed and the curriculum will compare favorably with that of the average high school for whites. Graduates from this institution make good teachers and are filling positions of usefulness throughout southwest Georgia.

The Albany Bible and Manual Training Institute

This institution is, in my honest opinion, not only doing a splendid work, but is destined to take the lead and set the pace in negro education in the "Black Belt" of southwest Georgia. Here an earnest effort is being made to give the negroes the sort of education they need to fit them for honorable, useful lives. Those who take the full course of instruction are given a good high-school education, and along with it they are taught that labor is honorable and are required to learn how to do something with their hands. The girls are given a thorough course in domestic science, and are required to sew, cook, wash, iron, etc., and the boys are instructed in the mechanics and agriculture.

This school has had a struggling existence and is not yet as well equipped for what it is undertaking to do as it should be or as those who have been trying to help it along hope it will be, but it has for the current quarter an attendance roll of 305, with 67 boarding pupils. All the domestic work necessary for this big family, including the teachers, is done by the boys and girls themselves under the direction of competent instructors. In addition to this the girls are instructed in needlework, cutting, fitting, mending, etc., and the boys are given manual training in cabinet work, carpentry, brick masonry and agriculture. The instruction is all on practical lines, and the boys and girls are required to do actual work with their own hands. Some twenty or thirty acres of land are kept under cultivation, and no outside help is employed in cultivating the crops. I have already said that there is education and education, and the point that I now wish to impress upon our people is the importance of taking more interest in the education of the negro with the view of giving it the proper direction—giving the negroes the kind of education they need to make them useful, not only to themselves, but to the com-

It makes no difference whether you favor it or not, my friend; the taxpayers of the state, including you and me, are paying for their education in the common schools, just as we are paying for the education of the whites, and they are going to get their education—some sort of education—whether we favor it or not. Now, had we not better take at least enough interest in the matter to see that the education they receive is the right sort? Are we not serving ourselves and our state well if we can give such direction to negro education as will turn out young negroes of good moral character instead of leaving them to grow up with no character at all? Would we not be serving the same good purpose by teaching them how to do

Dr. Holley and Faculty of the Albany Bible and Manual Training Institute

munity at large. This means, first of all, that the cultivation and molding of the moral character must not be neglected. Education that is not based upon a moral structure is liable to do the youth that receives it more harm than good, and it is worse than folly to educate the head of the negro without educating his heart and hands along with it.

It is this sort of education that the Albany Bible and Manual Training Institute is trying to give to the negroes, and, while the progress made with the limited financial support that has been given it is slow, I am convinced from actual experience and observation that the plan upon which the institution is working is the one upon which the problem of negro education must eventually be solved.

Taking an Interest

"But I am not in favor of negro education," says one.

something with their hands and to do it well? If we can take a young negro who, if left to himself, would grow up in ignorance and idleness and never be of much use to himself or anybody else, and make a good mechanic or thrifty farmer of him, is it not to our interest and that of the community and state at large for us to do it?

The education that the Albany Bible and Manual Training Institute is trying to give to the negroes is on the lines suggested in the foregoing, and in time I expect to see it extended, as far as practicable, to our negro schools generally.

I want to say in conclusion that we have in Rev. J. W. Holley, the principal of the Albany Bible and Manual Training School, a man of education, real piety, high moral character and exceptional common sense. He is doing a great work and is worthy of the confidence of all good people, white or black.

John Huss, the Reformer, Patriot and Martyr

By Rev. J. H. Ralston

JULY 6, 1915, will mark the five hundredth anniversary of the burning alive of John Huss at Constance, Switzerland. This event will be commemorated very widely over all the Protestant world, and in Prague, Bohemia, it will have national commemoration July 19, 1916, the date being carried forward because of the war in Europe.

This event brings before the Protestant

The Early Life and Career of Huss

John Huss was born at Husinec in southern Bohemia about the year 1370. His parents were of the peasant class, but seem to have been careful of the boy's education. He must have been trained in the highest type of morals, for in all the opposition that was given him through his life there was never an intimation of fault in his character. Completing the work world one of its greatest heroes. John Huss may be called the "Dawn" of the Reformation, which was characterized by the fame and name of Martin Luther. John Wycliffe of England has been called the "Morning Star" of the Reformation, and as he was also very prominent in connection with the work of John Huss we observe that the "Morning Star" and the "Dawn" come close together. We must not exalt John Huss as the only man in Bohemia who stood for the principles that are connected with his name. As Luther was preceded by the Humanists such as Reuchlin and Erasmus, paving the way for his more distinctive work, Huss was preceded by men who taught substantially what he taught. These were men of scholarship, of exalted character, of political influence, and by them the people of Bohemia, especially the capital city, Prague, were prepared for the work of Huss. Among these were Miltiz, Conrad and Janow, whose names are held still in most grateful remembrance.

Birthplace of John Huss

In the schools of his native village, he went to a neighboring town for better school privileges and afterwards entered the University of Prague which ranked with Oxford, in England, and Paris, in France, and preceded the organization of the University of Leipsic many years. In this university he chose a course in theology which he pursued with remarkable credit to himself. After finishing his course of study he was soon established as a professor and eventually as rector of the university. He was consecrated to the priesthood in 1400, and most conscientiously gave his best efforts to his sacred calling, and soon became the confessor of the wife of King Wencislav. During these years he was studying the evils and the chaotic condition of the church, and freely gave forth his views. These teachings found rich soil in the minds of the people who had already been taught by his predecessors.

The interest in his teachings was so increased that John of Milheim, and a tradesman by the name of Kriz, erected Bethlehem Chapel in Prague, where the Word of God could be preached in the language of the people. Here for twelve years the voice of Huss was heard very frequently, for it was a stipulation of the men who erected the chapel, that the Word must be preached there twice each Sunday and on each feast day. Here it was particularly that Huss had his opportunity of impressing his views on the people by oral address, as Luther afterwards had in Germany through the invention of printing. Thousands hung upon the eloquent words of the great preacher, and the seed was germinating which sprang up afterwards and in part saved Bohemia to Protestantism.

In this connection it is well to remember the influence of this preaching which was afterwards illustrated in the case of Savonarola in Florence and still later by Luther in Wittenberg. It is well to recall, also, that when Huss afterwards went into exile for two years he preached in towns and market places, behind hedges, in villages, castles, fields and woods, and thus gave testimony to the value of outdoor preaching. We find, further, that those who came after him in their propagation of the truth of the Scriptures followed the same practice.

Huss in Controversy -

As early as 1408 there were whispers that

Huss was a heretic. At that time there were two popes ruling, one at Rome, and one at Avignon, France. An effort was made by the reformatory council at Pisa, Italy, to depose these popes. Another pope was elected to supersede them and to bring the great schism to an end. But this made three popes instead of two, for the other two popes declined to be deposed. In this connection a revolution arose in Bohemia and Huss was charged with instigating it. He continued his preaching at Bethlehem Chapel and the clouds thickened around him. He was soon summoned to Rome but declined to go, being supported in his action by his many friends in Prague. In March, 1411, Pope John XXIII excommunicated him. Archbishop Sbynko, who attempted to restrain Huss, died in 1411, and a stronger man took his place. The new archbishop favored the sale of indulgences, which a hundred years after this date was the occasion

John Huss in the Pulpit of Bethlehem Chapel, Prague. (Ad. Liebscher.)
See page 34

sion for the Reformation under Martin Luther, and which now gave occasion for Huss to severely condemn them, in which condemnation he had the sympathy of the entire nation. It was not long until the "Great Anathema" was pronounced against Huss. Bethlehem Chapel was ordered to be burned down, and Prague was put under the interdict. Huss now voluntarily exiled himself for some two years, visiting Prague on occasion. The situation in the empire of Sigismund was a trying one, as there were three popes claiming to be the head of the church, and the church and state were trying to be united. Ultimately a great council was called by the emperor, and Huss was summoned to appear before him.

The Trial and Death of Huss

Years before Huss was summoned to Constance he had favored a great church council, sincerely believing that such a council would dispose of the abuses that were connected with the rival popes, with the gross immoralities of the priesthood, and the abuses connected with the sale of indulgences.

The great council assembled at Constance, did not, however, protect him in the least. On November 28, 1414, he was summoned before the cardinals, which was in itself an act of defiance to the safe conduct. He was shortly afterwards placed in an underground dungeon in the tower of the monastery, where the noxious stench of a sewer soon threw him into a fever. He was removed to a more healthful place, for his enemies did not want him to die a natural death. He remained here for two and a half months, his friends in the meantime working for his release. News of his treatment reached Bohemia and the people were filled with indignation. On the 24th of March he was confined in the castle

Condemnation of Huss. (Brozik.)

Switzerland, in October, 1414, and was one of the most impressive of the Middle Ages and was in session for three and a half years. Besides the emperor and Pope John XXIII, there were thirty cardinals, four patriarchs, thirty-three archbishops, one hundred and fifty bishops, seven hundred doctors of theology, four thousand priests, four electors, twenty-four princes, seventy-eight counts and six hundred barons present. Many merchants, artisans, retainers and visitors swelled the number in attendance to fifty thousand. It may be said, therefore, that this trial and condemnation of Huss was not a thing "done in a corner."

For three weeks Huss journeyed from Prague to Constance, speaking to vast congregations on the way. Arriving at Constance he was given comfortable lodgings and had free access to his friends, something accorded him practically all through his various imprisonments while at Constance, because it was hoped that his friends would secure his recantation in some way. He had been granted a safe conduct by the emperor which of Gottlieben, being placed in a cage, at night his arms being pinioned to the wall and his feet chained to a block. While here, not being in good health, he suffered great agony.

After being again brought to Constance he was confined in the Franciscan monastery, and on June 5, 1415, he was brought to his trial. An attempt was made at first to have him condemned without his personal presence, but his friends succeeded in defeating it. When personally brought before the council, certain articles in his writings were being misrepresented and he protested. He was promptly silenced, this course of procedure characterizing his trial which continued through the next and the third day. Sentence was delayed for a month, for it was hoped that he might recant. If this recantation had been secured the truths that he had taught would have been crushed with one blow, but Huss never flinched. Among the abuses in his trial was the charge that he claimed to be the fourth person in the holy trinity, a charge without the least foundation and which Huss most indignantly repudiated.

On Saturday, July 6, Huss was condemned as unworthy to be a priest of the Romish church and was unfrocked with every mark of shame and contumely. His writings were burned, and he was turned over to the civil authorities by whom capital sentence could be executed. Taken to the place of execution he was bound to the stake with moistened thongs and a heavy chain. Appeals were then made to him by his enemies to recant, but he absolutely declined to do so. The torch was applied to the fagots heaped about him. His agony was short, and his spirit went to its home. His body was taken from the stake, his skull hacked to pieces and his bones ground to powder. Every shred of clothing and the stake were reduced to ashes and the ashes cast into the Rhine. A huge boulder now marks the spot of the execution, on which are engraved the names of John Huss and Jerome of Prague, who died there nearly a year later.

"For all Thy saints, O Lord,
Who strove in Thee to live,
Who followed Thee, obeyed, adored,
Our grateful hymn receive.

"For all Thy saints, O Lord,
Accept our thankful cry,
Who counted Thee their great reward,
And strove in Thee to die."

—Hymn in the Memorial Liturgy of the Moravian Church.

The Doctrines of Huss

For a clear and concise view of these doctrines we are indebted to W. N. Schwarze, professor in the Moravian College and Theological Seminary at Bethlehem, Pa.

Huss had a high view of the supreme authority of the Scriptures, holding the Bible to be the only infallible norm of truth. Like Luther afterwards, he was constantly recurring in his disputes with his enemies to the Holy Scriptures. He accepted much of the teaching of the Romanists as to God and His attributes, but differs in many respects from them. His doctrine as to the natural man agree only in part with that of the Romanists. His doctrine of justification by faith, which was afterwards the great key doctrine of Luther's reformation, was evangelical to a high degree. As to the doctrine of the church, he believed the Romish papacy to be radically wrong, denied that Christ had made Peter pope and said that Peter never claimed the primacy. He did not believe that any man should govern the church and the whole world. He was really on Protestant ground, although he did not intend it to be so. As to the Word and sacraments he believed that the best agency for the propagation of the truth was the preaching of the Word to the common people, rather than in the use of the ceremonials of the church. Huss did not free himself from the Romish error of the seven sacraments, was not clear in his view of the Virgin Mary, believed in purgatory, and did not condemn those who made prayers for the souls of those undergoing purification. Had Huss lived a decade or two longer, for he died at the age of about 42, he would likely have thrown off all of the errors of Romanism. So much was he in agreement with the beliefs of Luther that Luther afterwards said that he and his contemporaries were Hussites and did not know it.

The Literary Work of Huss

We have already seen that Huss was a student, a scholar, and a man of prodigious labor in the University of Prague. During his comparatively short life he wrote seventy-four works in Latin, one in German and thirty-six in Bohemian, besides writing many letters, copies of which are still in existence and are treasured above all his other writings. His work, "De Ecclesia," was the one that was chiefly used against him at his trial. It contained much that was very obnoxious to the Romanists, but in the trial which was largely a farce, the teachings of that book were perverted and he was not permitted to make explanations. All of the writings of Huss were not destroyed when he was put to death, and in Bohemia many of these were found and were read and studied with intense interest.

It is well for us to remember that the great Hussite movement which is keenly felt at this day, was connected with scholarship and deep study. The predecessors of Huss and Luther were men of scholarship, and so were Huss and Luther themselves. It is also well for us to recall that the book of deepest study and research was the Bible itself, and not the writings of the fathers.

The Legacy of Huss to the World

Huss practically redeemed Bohemia politically and to this day his name is remembered with intense enthusiasm. In the great celebration that is to be held in Prague in 1916, both Romanists and Protestants will unite, for the work of Huss was not simply one of religious reformation but of political freedom.

Huss sowed the seeds of Bible truth in Bohemia that have borne fruit to this day. There are now 150,000 Protestants in Bohemia, 125,000 of them belonging to the Reformed church, the remainder to the Lutheran church.

Bohemia was somewhat like Scotland, in that the people revelled in theological discussion. Soon after the death of Huss, those who had followed him divided into two great parties known as Utraquists and Taborites. The former were aristocratic, and held to many Romish views and hoped some day to return to the Romish church. The Taborites were far more evangelical, but went to the verge of fanaticism. The Romanists eventually succeeded in arraying these parties against each other. In the years of political and religious confusion, John Ziska became a great leader

Supper was to be received in both kinds, doctrine was to be defined by the Scripture and Christian life was an essential as an evidence of saving faith. It was this body that existed up to the days of Martin Luther, having at that time 400 parishes with 200,000 members.

Memorial Stone

and has been looked upon by Bohemia, as Oliver Cromwell was looked upon in England. He organized great armies and defended his country against the armies of Europe, which were used by the Romanists to crush Bohemia. While these wars, continuing until 1434, were being waged, there were devout men in Bohemia who were formed into a brotherhood known as the Unitas Fratrum. They accepted the Bible as the only source of Christian doctrine, public worship was to be conducted on the model of the Apostolic Church, the Lord's

In the cruel thirty years' war from 1618 to 1648, this brotherhood was almost crushed. A remnant, however, was saved, and from a center at Herrnhut, Saxony, has grown the Moravian church, the most zealous missionary body of Christians in the world. From all this we see that the Reformation of John Huss, more than a hundred years before Martin Luther, had a direct connection with the Reformation through the truth that was sown throughout Germany by the Unitas Fratrum.

The Theology of Luther and Calvin

By Clara Louise Webster

✓
IN PRESENTING a brief summary of the theology of Martin Luther and John Calvin, it is necessary to glance briefly at the age in which they lived. Ulrich von Hutten cried out, "O, century when studies bloom and spirits awake, it is happiness to live in thee! Raphael and Luther were born in 1483. It is the age of Erasmus and Michelangelo, of Leonard da Vinci, Henry VIII, Charles V, William of Orange, and Francis I. The age of John Calvin, John Knox, Melancthon, the age of Titian, Correggio, Cortez and Copernicus. An age plethoric with discoveries, artists, architects, theologians, sculptors, statesmen, soldiers, thinkers, a noble band of men of great parts and famous deeds." Martin Luther and John Calvin hold high rank in this illustrious company.

Martin Luther, we read, "is many things, but in them all, he is supremely the preacher." He is not a creative theologian. Like Calvin he was an expositor of Augustinianism. But "Luther's achievement is of great and permanent significance. Freedom of opinion is more indebted to him perhaps than to any other modern man. To him, for indispensable conditions of life, science is under everlasting obligations. For this inestimable service his reward was largely suffering."

Somewhere we have read that Christ has been most to the greatest souls. With Luther we find Christ was all. He believed that to know God, to understand the doctrines of the Holy Trinity, we must know Christ. "He calleth His own sheep by name * * * * * and the sheep follow Him, they know His voice * * * * * they know not the voice of strangers."

He believed in the fact of sin and that only through Christ could we know God. He believed in the preaching of the Word, baptism and the Lord's Supper, the Christian church, punishment of the wicked and heaven for the righteous, and the resurrection body. To sum it all up briefly, while "it cannot be said that the beginning of the Reformation in every land came from Luther, it can scarcely be denied that he gave to his contemporaries the inspiration of courage and of assured conviction. He delivered men from the fear of priestcraft; he taught men in a way that no other did, that redemption was not a secret science practiced by the priests within an institution called the church, that all believers had the privilege of direct access to the very presence of God; and that the very thought of a priesthood who alone could mediate between God and man was both superfluous and irreconcilable with the truest instincts of the Christian religion." He believed that the very essence of Christianity is "unwavering trust of the heart in Him who has given Himself to us in Christ Jesus as our Father, personal assurance of faith because Christ with His work undertakes our cause."

It has been truly said that "in the sixteenth century, Calvinism saved Europe." Bancroft says, "He that will not honor the memory and respect the influence of Calvin, knows little of the history of American liberty." John Morley says, "To omit Calvin from the forces of Western evolution is to read history with one eye shut." Dölinger says, "That commanding figure of such vast power, yet somehow with so little luster, by his unbending will, his pride, his gift for government, for legislation, for dialectics in every field, his incomparable industry and persistence, had conquered a more than pontifical world. He meets us in England as in Scotland, Holland, France, Switzerland and the rising England across the Atlantic."

This great man has given to Christianity a wonderful system of theology. We may differ with him in many points of doctrine but remember an intensely religious spirit moved all the great reformers. "It was an unselfish purpose to do the will of God as they understood it." It needs to be said that we "seriously misread history when we attempt to measure one generation of men by the light and the knowledge of a subsequent generation. If there is not advance in the moral (and spiritual) perceptions and judgments of men as the years roll on, then all progress and all hope of progress are at an end." These words are true also of the Puritans and Pilgrim Fathers who followed so closely the old paths of the great reformers. They too were the largest and loftiest men of their generation, but remember they were men of their time. Men who are ahead of their time lose the sympathy of their generation and their influence is utterly lost.

Truly "the voice of Calvin is still the mightiest in that his errors were those of his day, while the truth he fought for is for all time." Briefly stated his principal doctrines were: (1) The Sovereignty of God. (2) All revelation contained in the Scriptures. (3) Man. (4) Faith. (5) Salvation. (6) Predestination, together with the doctrines of Election and Reprobation. (7) The Christian Church. (8) The Sacraments. To sum it all up briefly, one of the greatest lessons John Calvin teaches us today is, that it is our duty to know and do the will of God. Luther and Calvin believed above everything else that may be condemned in their doctrine today, that when we surrender all, Jesus comes in. If we say they were great theologians but erred, and "that the work of theological reconstruction must be done," how sure can we be that they were far wrong when it is said by those of authority "we must all become better Christians before we can hope to see great theologians."

Let us pray that men's hearts today may be purified and their wills surrendered entirely to Christ, following, like Luther and Calvin, in the old paths of righteousness.

There is a submission because you cannot help it, and there is a submission because you like it. There is a sullen bowing down beneath the weight of a hand which you are too feeble to resist, and there is a glad surrender to a love which it would be pain not to obey.

O Savior, what a precedent is this—the thief on the Cross—of Thy free and powerful Grace! Where Thou wilt give, what unworthiness can bar us from Thy mercy? When Thou wilt give, what time can prejudice our vocation? Who can despair of Thy goodness when he, that in the morning was posting to hell, is in the evening with Thee in paradise?—Bishop Hall.

Some one asked a Scotchman if he was on the way to heaven, and he said, "Why, man, I live there; I am not on the way." That is just it; we ought to live in heaven. While we are walking in this world it is our privilege to have our hearts and affections there.

Dwight L. Moody.

The Substitutions of Grace

By Rev. Howard W. Pope

A Breakfast Talk at the Moody Bible Institute

ISAIAH 55:13—"Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle tree."

In this verse we have a striking lesson on the substitutions of grace. It would be a good deal to dig up the thorn, and cut down the briars, but God does far more. He substitutes for the thorn bush the tall and beautiful fir-tree, and for the hateful briars the graceful myrtle.

Occasionally a student comes to our office after a stay of a few days, and informs us that he is about to leave the school. When we inquire for the reason, he answers that he does not like the teaching. When pressed for an explanation, he says, "Well, you do not teach the doctrine of eradication." "And what do you mean by that?" "I mean that God removes the roots of sin from our nature, so that one will not sin, and your school does not teach that doctrine, does it?" "No, but we teach something far better." "What do you mean? I did not know that there was anything better than the eradication of sin." "Oh, yes, the substitution of grace is far superior. Instead of digging out the roots of sin, God plants in our nature the germs of grace, which overrun, and in time run out the seeds of evil." "Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle tree."

Luther Burbank takes the prairie cactus whose sharp thorns are the terror of man and beast, and converts it into a nourishing food, on which the cattle fatten and flourish. What was once a thing to be dreaded, is now a means of support. The apple tree which once bore nothing but sour and bitter fruit, small in size, and rough in appearance, by the simple process of grafting can be made to produce apples which are large, sweet, and luscious. It is the same old tree, but a new principle has been introduced, and that new nature dominates and determines the whole output of the tree. I once saw a lemon tree in California which had been grafted until it was bearing twenty-two different kinds of luscious fruit. What Burbank and others are doing in the realm of nature, God is continually doing in the realm of grace. He does not destroy the tree which bears bitter fruit, but He grafts into it the grace that is in Christ Jesus, and soon that tree is rich and beautiful with all the fruits of the Spirit.

"Thou art Simon," said Jesus, the first time He met him, and Simon in his circle of friends was a synonym for fickleness, and instability. But knowing what grace could do for that big-hearted fisherman, Jesus added, "Thou shalt be called Cephas," which means A Rock, and is a symbol of firmness. "It was a long, long way to Tipperary," but Peter finally reached the point where he could truthfully say that he was kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation. So solid and substantial did he become that Christ made him a corner stone of His church.

James and John were so hot tempered and violent, that they were surnamed "Boanerges"—sons of thunder, but grace led one of them to die as a martyr, and the other to be called the Apostle of love. What God has done for others, He will do for us. If there are thorns of selfishness and briars of envy or malice in our character, we must not be satisfied with their extermination, but ask God to give us the very opposite of these, the love which suffereth long and is kind, which envieth not and is not puffed up.

Where the thorns of criticism and fault-finding grew, there let us claim a tall and stately growth of generous praise, and hearty appreciation. Let us never be satisfied with overcoming the petty faults and foibles of our character, but ask God also to adorn our lives with all the graces and virtues that are in Christ Jesus, instead of the briars, the beautiful myrtle, the graceful smilax, and the sweet scented arbutus.

It may be that there are some thorns in our own environment, as well as in our character; some things which are hard to bear, and painful to endure. God can change these thorns into roses, these painful conditions into a source of gratitude and praise. Paul had a thorn in his flesh, and so perhaps have you—a disagreeable employer, or an uncongenial room-mate. Paul found God's grace sufficient to change that painful thorn into his greatest blessing, and so may you and I.

Christ by His resurrection has even robbed death of its sting and converted it into a gateway to heaven. Yes, grace is sufficient for all things.

"Grace, fathomless as the sea,
Grace flowing from Calvary,
Grace enough for eternity—
Grace enough for me."

Within the chosen family there are chastisements unknown to the outside world.—Spurgeon.

Practical and Perplexing Questions

Answered by the Editors

DATE OF CHRIST'S BIRTH

Question: What verses in Scripture prove that Jesus Christ was born December 25? Please explain and so state the matter that I can teach others.

Answer: There is no verse in Scripture that proves this but only a general consensus of opinion. (See any good "Life of Christ.")

GOD'S FOREKNOWLEDGE

Question: Please explain Acts 15:18. Did God know just what men would do in the future, or did men become more wicked than God knew?

Answer: Of course God knew what men would do because He is omniscient, in which sense the Scripture verse referred to carries its explanation or meaning on its face.

SEISS' LECTURES ON THE APOCALYPSE

Question: What is your opinion of "Lectures on the Apocalypse," by Seiss?

Answer: These lectures are a scholarly and exhaustive treatment of the Revelation, from the premillennial viewpoint. There are details of interpretation with which we might not agree, but this is not surprising in a work on the Apocalypse.

THE COMMUNION OF SAINTS

Question: Please explain "communion of saints." Does it refer to the Lord's table?

Answer: The Greek word translated "communion" four times in the New Testament, is also translated "fellowship" twelve times, indicating that the idea of fellowship should be prominent. "Communion" is used in connection with the Lord's Supper in the sense that there is fellowship there with Jesus Christ and with one another.

THE SEVEN SPIRITS OF GOD

Question: What is meant by "the seven Spirits of God" in Revelation 1:4; 3:1 and 5:6?

Answer: The Holy Spirit. This expression sets forth the perfection of the Holy Spirit's energy, seven being the number of perfection. In this connection, note the sevenfold Isaiah 11:2: "The spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord."

POWER FOR THE CHURCH

Question: On the basis of Matthew 28:19, 20, and John 14:12, should not the church today have the same power as in the days of the apostles?

Answer: Yes. It may have such power, even though the working of miracles has ceased; these were necessary at the introduction of Christianity, though even then not all believers wrought them (1 Cor. 12:29, 30). But the full power of the Holy Spirit for life and service remains.

USE OF THE TITHE

Question: Would it be proper to use part of my tithe to buy an automobile, which I need to do my pastoral work most efficiently?

Answer: The fact that our correspondent makes this inquiry indicates that he would never be happy over such a transaction. This is apart from the question whether a Christian should tithe his income, for the writer has evidently decided it is his duty to do so. Let him continue to honor the Lord with his substance, and meanwhile present his request to God, who promises to supply all our need.

PERPETUITY OF THE EARTH

Question: Do you believe in the perpetuity of the earth as the habitation of man?

Answer: Yes. The "passing away" spoken of in 2 Peter 3:10, 13, does not imply destruction. In verses 5 and 6 of the same chapter we are told that "the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished"; but whether the reference is to the original creation (Gen. 1:1, 2), or to the earth of Noah's time, it was not destroyed. The earth will be renovated by fire and there will be "a new heaven and a new earth." To the renewed earth, the holy city will descend (Rev. 21:1-5).

SONS OF GOD AND SONSHIP TO GOD

Questions: Are we made sons of God by faith—John 1:12? And what relation does the prodigal son represent, or is God the Father of all mankind?

Answer: To the first question we answer, yes. To the second we say that God is the Father of all mankind in the sense that He is their creator and preserver (Acts 17:28); but He is the Father of a part of mankind only in the sense that all have not received and confessed His Son as Saviour and Lord, and hence are not regenerated. (John 1:12, Gal. 3:26, and Rom. 8:14).

THE EUROPEAN WAR

Question: How is the European war connected with prophecy? Where can I get a good late map of the war country? Have you any good prophetic news?

Answer: We have mailed this inquirer a copy of Dr. Gray's article, "The Battle of Armageddon," which is the best answer we can give in brief space to his first and third inquiries. The best late map of the war country of which we know is that published a few months ago by "The Literary Digest," of New York, but if that is not attainable, any good book store or first class stationery store would procure one for our correspondent.

PRAYING FOR FAITH

Question: Where are we commanded in the Bible to pray for faith or an increase of faith?

Answer: We do not know of any such command, but there are two passages that Christians recognize as an injunction to pray for faith or its increase. We have Luke 17:5, where the disciples said to our Lord, "Increase our faith," and Mark 9:24, where the father of the child with the demon spirit said, "Lord, I believe, help thou mine unbelief."

Remember that the obligation to duty is not always dependent on a specific command. All things within God's will are proper subjects of prayer, and faith and the increase of it are within His will.

THE SERVANT CAST OUT

Question: In the parable of the talents, the unprofitable servant is ordered to be "cast out" into outer darkness. Are we not to believe that only regenerate persons are to receive rewards as servants and was not Christ teaching of rewards in this parable? And yet here is a man cast out, which could not apply to a saved person. The parable of the pounds does not present this difficulty to me, as the slothful servant is not ordered to be cast out.

Answer: The servants may be taken as the whole body of those who profess to be such, some of whom may not be true servants and consequently there is no inconsistency in casting them out.

Only true Christians are to be considered as receiving rewards, but in the mixed state of Christian society there are many who seem to be Christians who are not, and in speaking of the whole body they are considered as a part of it, although not really so.

DR. BULLINGER'S WORKS

Question: Several inquiries have come to us about the writings of the late Dr. Bullinger, of England.

Answer: We have asked a competent authority on the other side of the water for information. He writes thus: "Some of Dr. Bullinger's earlier pamphlets were good, especially 'The Importance of Accuracy in the Study of Holy Scripture,' and 'The Inspiration and Authority of Holy Scripture,' also 'The Man of God.' There was a good one on Matthew 13 in its earlier editions, but it became more and more ultra-dispensational until finally the author declared that no part of that chapter applies to this dispensation at all. His large book on 'Figures of Speech' is valuable to those who wish to study deeply, though it has some blemishes. The two pamphlets that did so much harm were 'The Rich Man and Lazarus' and 'Spirits Imprisoned.' Because of this I find it difficult to recommend any of his books, for if people get one and like it they naturally try the others."

ABEL'S SACRIFICE

Question: What reason is there in Genesis 4 for believing that a holy God can be approached only by blood?

Answer: Compare Hebrews 11:4, which shows that Abel's sacrifice was offered "by faith." This must mean faith in some previous revelation or promise of God touching the way a guilty sinner may approach Him. Such was doubtless given in Genesis 3:21, in connection with the "coats of skins" which God provided to cover the nakedness of Adam and Eve. These must have been obtained by the sacrifice of an innocent animal, shall we say a lamb? In this circumstance there is set before our first parents in type the truth afterwards revealed, that without shedding of blood is no remission (Heb. 9:22). In other words, there is such a thing as a sinner's placing the life of another between his guilty soul and God. Abel grasped this truth by faith and submitted his will to God's testimony regarding it. He approached God in the way that had been revealed, while Cain refused to do so.

THEISTIC EVOLUTION

Question: What is theistic evolution? Is it scriptural?

Answer: "This term is used with considerable range of meaning, but may be defined as that doctrine of evolution which holds that God directly interposed at several points in the process of creation, viz., at the origin of matter, the production of life and the formation of man. It is at these points in the account of Genesis 1 that the Hebrew word,

"bara," indicating creation out of nothing, is used (vv. 1, 21, 27); at other places, where only transformations are meant, another word, translated "made," is used. The Biblical account would seem to leave room for evolution within any one of the systems of existence already named, i. e., matter may evolve itself into various forms of matter, animal life into various forms of animal life, and human life into various forms of human life. This is different, however, from that other kind of evolution which would make man the descendant of an ape and drive God out of the universe He has made. It should be kept in mind that, so far as science is concerned, evolution is an unproved hypothesis." —"Christian Workers Commentary."

GLORIFIED SAINTS AND THE KINGDOM

Question: Are the earthly promises of the kingdom to apply to the glorified saints during the millennium?

Answer: The promises of earthly blessing in the land are primarily for the Jews,—the Gentiles incidentally, both of whom will be still in the flesh and subject to human conditions. The blessings of the glorified saints will be of a heavenly character, befitting their nature and sphere, citizens of the New Jerusalem reigning with Christ above the earth.

Question: Why are the people in the kingdom age to be put under the law? It is a ministry of condemnation and cannot justify; why are they then put under it?

Answer: Law never ceases, thank God, and the only reason fallen man does not like it, is because through sin he does not keep it. Grace finds a way to deliver man from the condemnation of the law, and doubtless grace will continue so to operate as long as it is necessary, in the kingdom age as well as this age. But O, for the time when we will love the law of God as Christ did and as the holy angels do, and grace in the saving sense may not be necessary.

THE RITE OF CONFIRMATION

Question: What place does confirmation hold in the Word of God, and is it essential to the complete consecration of the believer?

Answer: This is a rite in the Roman Catholic, Greek, Anglican, Lutheran and other churches, consisting of the laying on of hands of an officiating bishop, or pastor, with prayer, implying the confirmation or strengthening of the soul by the Holy Spirit, and is a solemn form of induction into the visible church. In the Roman Catholic and Greek churches it is a sacrament which is thought to leave in the soul a special seal, but in the other churches it is a ratification by the individual himself of the covenant made for him by his sponsors in baptism, and has no sacramental character. Its scriptural warrant is found in the apostolic practice of Acts 6:6; 8:17; 13:3; 19:6; 28:8.

We agree that it has no such sacramental character, as Baptism and the Lord's Supper, but consider it a very beautiful and appropriate form of induction into the church. The Baptists do not require it because of the immersion of adult believers, and other churches substitute for it the right hand of fellowship as it is called, but it takes its place with these forms as one way of publicly confessing Christ and uniting with His people. In that sense, but not in any other, may it be said to be essential to the complete consecration of the believer.

ANGLO-ISRAELISM

Question: What is the Anglo-Israel theory, and what are the objections to it?

Answer: The theory is that the Anglo-Saxons are the ten "lost" tribes of Israel, and that the British Empire has been great and prosperous because inheriting their covenants and blessings. It further holds that those we know as Jews are not of the ten tribes, but descendants of Judah and still under the curse. So that according to this all the blessings are applied to the Anglo-Saxon while all the curses are left for the Jew.

Some of the objections to this theory are stated thus by John Wilkinson, in "Israel, My Glory":

1. "The people (of Israel) shall dwell alone and not be reckoned among the nations" (Num. 23:9). This is not true of the Anglo-Saxons, but it is true of the Jews.

2. The prophets state that Israel is to remain many days without king or prince, and without a true knowledge of God (Hos. 3:4, 5), which of course is not the case with the Anglo-Saxons.

3. The prophets also state that the twelve tribes while outside of Palestine, are to be few in number and under national curse. But the Anglo-Saxons, though outside of Palestine, are enjoying national blessing, and are not few in number.

4. Anglo-Saxons, when converted, become members of the church and secure a heavenly inheritance rather than the earthly blessings promised to Israel. Anglo-Israelism would substitute these earthly blessings for the heavenly calling of the church, greatly to our loss.

THE TEN VIRGINS

Question: Who are represented by the ten virgins of Matthew 25:1-13?

Answer: Some hold that they represent the Jewish remnant at the time of the end, but to others it does not seem likely that these would "slumber and sleep" in those trying days. Again there are those who think they represent the professing church going forth to meet the Bridegroom, but in this case the question arises who is the bride? The answer would be Israel, since the heavenly bride, the church, had not been revealed at the time this parable was spoken. F. W. Grant says: "It is when Christ comes to take Israel into relationship with Himself that on the way Christians are called out to meet Him and come with Him to the marriage."

"The Christian Workers Commentary" puts it thus:

"The phrase 'the Kingdom of heaven' or 'the Kingdom of the heavens' recalls the parables of chapter 13, and applies to the same thing, viz., the sphere of professing Christianity, i. e., Christendom during the absence of the King. At the first, that is, after our Lord's ascension, the attitude of the disciples was that of going 'forth to meet the bridegroom' (v. 1). In other words they were 'waiting for the coming of our Lord' (1 Cor. 1:7.) But 'the bridegroom tarried,' and 'they all slumbered and slept' (v. 5). The 'midnight' is coming however, when the cry is made 'Behold the bridegroom!' The wise virgins are the true believers, 'the oil in their vessels' (v. 4) symbolizing the indwelling of the Holy Spirit (Romans 8:9). The foolish virgins are the mere professors, as is evident from 'I know you not' (v. 12)."

WHO MAY PARTAKE OF THE LORD'S SUPPER?

Question: Is it right for a pastor to invite any one to participate in the Lord's Supper, Christians and those who would like to be, or any one who loves the Lord? Are we not one with those who partake, and in a measure share the responsibility of their sin, provided they are not living a clean, consecrated life?

Answer: Pastors must be the judges, under the regulations of the communions to which they belong, as to the breadth of the invitation to partake of the Lord's Supper. It is a conviction with many that all who are in the Lord should be cordially welcomed to the Lord's table, the question of whether they are in the Lord being left to the individual conscience. But, of course, persons of scandalous lives should be prevented from partaking.

Sharing the sin of those who unworthily partake, is a question of spiritual metaphysics difficult of solution. To sit in judgment on others as unworthy, unless we are officials of the church and have the keys of admission or rejection in our hands, smacks of the spirit of self-righteousness. We might judge certain as unworthy to partake, and partake ourselves, when those judged would be accepted of the Lord while we would not be.

Of the several passages of Scripture cited by the inquirer in support of the proposition that such persons should not partake even though they be members of the church, only one refers to the Lord's Supper (1 Cor. 10:16-21), and in that the association is not with unworthy people but with demons. In none of the other passages (1 Cor. 1:10-13; 5:11; Eph. 5:7-11; 2 Thess. 3:6-14) is there reference to the Lord's Supper, all of the injunctions being as to social intercourse. This association may have application to the Lord's table, but when we are not in authority as to who shall participate in that service, guilt will not attach to us if we worthily partake, however unworthy others are who do partake.

CRITICISM OF EVANGELISTS

Question 1. Is it proper for an evangelist to name from the platform public men in the liquor trade or those engaged in other business of a vicious character?

Question 2. Is it proper for an evangelist to agitate the question of a strike or any other civic or social problem of a like character?

Question 3. Is it proper for an evangelist to use the Sunday newspapers to advertise himself and then purchase them for free distribution in his tabernacle?

Other questions follow too personal for these columns.

Answer: As to question one, our inquirer thinks that if the men in question are to be won for Christ the evangelist, or his workers, should first exhaust every resource in showing them their sin by personal work before denouncing and ridiculing them in public. We agree with this, although we have known of good results which have followed the other course. Evangelists in these days have terrific opposition to meet, and if they are men of prayer and exhibit wisdom in counseling with the pastors of the churches which they serve, they will be likely to make no mistake in the methods they adopt.

As to the second question, we doubt the wisdom of an evangelist taking up the question of a strike, but here again circumstances alter cases, and while nine times out of ten it might be harmful to do this, an occasion might arise when the duty of the evangelist was very clear.

As to Sunday newspapers, we are opposed to them on principle. We do not advertise in them, and we do not read or purchase them. We doubt not that there is some good reading matter in them, but we consider it a Satanic blind to cover the mass of evil they contain. Were we conducting an evangelistic meeting we would not feel that our example in advertising in such papers was a helpful one, nor would we believe that their circulation among the people would contribute, except in an accidental way, either to the quickening of saints or the saving of souls.

CHRONOLOGICAL DIFFICULTIES

Question: 1. According to Genesis 11:26, 32, and 12:4 Abram must have been 60 years in Canaan before Terah died. How can you harmonize this with Acts 7:4, "when his father was dead, he removed, etc."?

2. Another difficulty is the following: If our Lord was crucified on Friday afternoon and rose again on Sunday morning, how was he "three nights in the heart of the earth" (Matt. 12:40)?

(The following answers are kindly given by the Rev. Martin Anstey, B. D., of London, author of "The Romance of Chronology."—Editor).

Answer:

1. Gen. 11:26 does not say that Terah was 70 years old when Abram was born. When Terah died at the age of 205 (Gen. 11:32) Abram was 75 years old (Gen. 12:4). Therefore, when Abram was born, Terah was 130 years old. Though mentioned first, he was probably the youngest son of Terah. In Genesis 12:1 the word "had" must be deleted. Two distinct calls were addressed to Abram. In response to the first call Abram came and dwelt in Haran (Gen. 11:31). In response to the second, he came into the land of Canaan (Gen. 12:5). Acts 7:2-4 makes explicit what is implicit in Genesis 11:27-12:5. For full details see Anstey's "Romance of Bible Chronology," vol. 1, p. 78.

2. The common explanation is as follows: The term "day and night" is an equivalent for our "day of twenty-four hours." It is conceived of as a unity. The oriental method of reckoning was integral and inclusive. It was integral—any portion of the twenty-four hour day was reckoned as one day. It was inclusive—the period from any point of time in one twenty-four-hour day to any point of time in the following twenty-four-hour day was reckoned as a period of two days. Hence from 3 p. m. on Friday to "very early in the morning" on the following Sunday would be reckoned as a period of three twenty-four-hour days, or in the idiom of the original "three days and three nights."

SANCTIFICATION AND SAINTHOOD

We are grouping several questions under this head as follows:

1. Is a person after he accepts Christ to be referred to as a saint?

2. Can a person be a saint and a sinner?

3. Can a man live without sin?

4. What about secret sin, such as selfishness, pride and lust? Has every man secret sins, and if so how can he be sanctified?

5. Will you explain Romans 6:6? If the "old man" is crucified with Christ and the "body of sin" is destroyed, how can there be any striving within?

6. Does 2 Corinthians 5:17 mean that by faith or the grace of God we are free from the old nature which was handed down from Adam and Eve? Christ's own words in Matthew 5:8 are, "The pure in heart shall see God." This I believe means a clean, sanctified, holy life, is it not so? See also 1 John 3:8, 9.

Answer: A person who accepts Jesus Christ as Saviour is properly referred to as a saint, for a saint is one who is set apart for God through faith in Him. But he can be a sinner too in the sense that although set apart for God he is still but partially sanctified so far as his actual experience is concerned.

The Holy Spirit in 1 John 1:8 answers the question as to whether a man can live without sin. The text applies with emphasis to such sins as selfishness, pride and lust. Every man has secret sins, but this does not deny that he may be in a state of sanctification, for that does not mean the eradication of sin.

The term, "old man," in Romans 6:6 refers to our corrupt nature inherited from Adam, including the inborn tendency to evil. The "body of sin" is difficult to explain. Some say it means the "mass of sin" but we think rather the corporeal body in which sin is committed. This is destroyed, not that it no longer exists, but in the sense "that henceforth we shall not serve sin" in it. That is, we shall no longer be in bondage to sin through its members. Sin may be in our bodies still, but there is no necessity as formerly that it should reign there (verse 12).

2 Corinthians 5:17 does not say we are free from the old nature, but as the Revised Version expresses it, "there is a new creation." In other words, we have a new nature side by side with the old one, and as a result all things become new in the sense of new opinions, new convictions, a new mode of living, etc. We agree with the writer as to Matthew 5:8.

THE MEANING OF LEAVEN

Question: (We have several inquiries about the meaning of "leaven" in the parable in Matthew 13, including objections to our view of it as given in these columns a few months since. It is inconvenient to reply to all these inquiries in detail, but we give herewith the full and excellent treatment of the subject as found in the "Scofield Reference Bible," and with that we must conclude our references to it for the present. We cannot guarantee to change the opinions of our correspondents by anything we say, but we are responsible to tell what we believe the Bible teaches.—Editors.)

That interpretation of the parable of the Leaven (v. 33) which makes the leaven to be the gospel, introduced into the world by the church, and working subtly until the world is converted is open to fatal objection: (1) It does violence to the unvarying symbolical meaning of leaven and especially to the meaning fixed by our Lord Himself (Matt. 16:6-12; Mark 8:15.) (2) The implication of a converted world in this age is explicitly contradicted by our Lord's interpretation of the parables of the Wheat and Tares, and of the Net. Our Lord presents a picture of a partly converted kingdom in an unconverted world: of good fish and bad in the very kingdom-net itself. (3) The method of the extension of the kingdom is given in the first parable. It is by sowing seed, not by mingling 'leaven'. The symbols have, in Scripture, a meaning fixed by inspired usage. Leaven is the principle of corruption working subtly; is invariably used in a bad sense, and is defined by our Lord as evil doctrine (Matt. 16:11, 12; Mark 8:15). Meal, on the contrary, was used in one of the sweet-savour offerings (Lev. 2:1-3), and was food for the priests (Lev. 6:15-17). A woman, in the bad ethical sense, always symbolizes something out of place, religiously. In Thyatira it was a woman teaching (compare Rev. 2:20 with Rev. 17:1-6). Interpreting the parable by these familiar symbols, it constitutes a warning that the true doctrine, given for the nourishment of the children of the kingdom (Matt. 4:4; 1 Tim. 4:6; 1 Pet. 2:2), would be mingled with corrupt and corrupting false doctrine, and that officially, by the apostate church itself (1 Tim. 4:1-3; 2 Tim. 2:17, 18; 4:3, 4; 2 Pet. 2:1-3).

Summary: (1) Leaven, as a symbolic or typical substance, is always mentioned in the Old Testament in an evil sense (Gen. 19:3, references). (2) The use of the word in the New Testament explains its symbolic meaning. It is "malice and wickedness," as contrasted with "sincerity and truth" (1 Cor. 5:6-8). It is evil doctrine (Matt. 16:12) in its threefold form of Pharisaism, Sadduceeism, and Herodianism (Matt. 16:6; Mark 8:15). The leaven of the Pharisees was externalism in religion (Matt. 23:14, 16, 23-28); of the Sadducees, scepticism as to the supernatural and as of the Scriptures (Matt. 22:23, 29); of the Herodians, worldliness—a Herod party amongst the Jews (Matt. 22:16-21; Mark 3:6). (3) The use of the word in Matt 23:33 is congruous with its universal meaning.

Mark 16: 15.

WINE IN THE BIBLE

Question: Did they have wine at the marriage feast (John 2) prior to Christ's converting the water into wine?

Answer: We think they did.

Question: "Did Jesus drink real wine, if so how do you reconcile this with the modern teaching about total abstinence?"

Answer: We presume the reference here is to the Lord's Supper where "the fruit of the vine" was used, which may mean the pressed juice of the grape in an unfermented state as yet.

Question: "Cannot understand how God can approve of His people indulging in wine and strong drink which causes them to lose their reason and makes it impossible for them to serve Him" (Duet. 14:26).

Answer: (1) The wine and strong drink of the patriarchal days was very different from the mind and body destroying stuff which so called civilization eventually produced. (2) Israel, being a simple, pastoral and temperate people, drunkenness at that time was practically unknown, and this privilege to which you refer might safely be given without danger of abuse. Later when Israel began to corrupt herself by intercourse with the surrounding heathen nations, God's warnings and prohibitions and denunciations against drunkenness revealed to mankind His attitude toward that evil. See I Cor. 5:11 and 6:10.

We feel led to add to this the following quotation from an answer on this same subject in Bible Problems Explained, by Gray, p. 86:

"The whole trend of the Bible is against the saloon, against social-treating customs, against the manufacture and sale (except as poisons) of such stuff as now go under the names of wine, whiskey, beer and the like; and against even the private and moderate drinking of pure wines and liquors on the part of professed disciples of Christ, for reasons given very plainly in such passages as I Corinthians 8 and Romans 14. There are many things other than wine-drinking which may not be sins in themselves, but which become sins in certain circumstances, and surely this is to be said for everything associated with the saloon."

Humility is perfect quietness of heart. It is to have no trouble. It is never to be fretted, or vexed, or irritated, or sore, or disappointed. It is to expect nothing, to wonder at nothing, that is done to me, to feel nothing done against me. It is to be at rest when nobody praises me, and when I am blamed or despised. It is to have a blessed home in the Lord, where I can go in and shut the door, and kneel to my Father in secret, and am at peace as in a deep sea of calmness, when all round and above is trouble.—Andrew Murray.

THE LAYMENS COMMENTARY ON THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS

Conducted By James M. Gray

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

Lesson 6

The Transition Period

Chapters 8-9:30

We explained in the last lesson the meaning of the "transition period" which continues to chapter 13. The first sentence in this chapter is more properly the concluding one of the last, although it introduces the account of the persecution following in which Saul was the leader (8:1-3). With the account of this persecution compare Hebrew 10:32-34, and for Saul's part in it, Acts 22:4, 19,20; 24:10,11, and parallel places.

"The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church," as the results in verses 4-8 bear witness. Notice in this case that every one was a preacher, somewhat as in the later instances of the Waldenses and Huguenots. John 4:42 shows how the soil had been prepared in Samaria. Miracles were in order here, because the New Testament had not come into existence, but in our day faith in the Word of God is substituted for them.

Simon, or "Simon Magus," was one of Satan's instruments to anticipate the coming of the gospel and counterfeit God's power (vv. 9-11). Compare 2 Thessalonians 2:9 for the multiplication of such persons towards the end of the age. His pretended faith deceives even Philip (v. 13).

Verses 14-17 have led to error in two directions. Some teach therefrom that one may believe in Christ and yet not possess the Holy Spirit, whose reception it is claimed is distinct from conversion. While others affirm that the laying on of hands by so-called successors of the apostles, as in the rites of confirmation and ordination, are needful to His reception. The correction of these things is found in the dispensational character of this part of the book. The Samaritans who had a controversy with the Jews (John 4:19-24), had to be identified with those in Jerusalem, after their conversion, hence the gift of the Holy Spirit was withheld in their case till Jerusalem sent the apostles to them.

To quote Gaebelein, "Peter uses the keys here as with the Jews on the day of Pentecost, and the Gentiles later in the case of Cornelius" (Acts 10). Nowhere in the New Testament is it taught that the believer on Christ should seek the gift of the Holy Spirit afterward, nor that He is to be received only by the laying on of hands. The believer may be "filled with the Spirit" many times, but the Spirit comes to dwell in him once and forever.

"Simony" is the name given to the offense of the impostor recorded in 18-24, and it stands for any attempt to make merchandise of the gifts of God. In so far as Christian Science, claiming to be divine, demands pay for its healing benefits, it is guilty of this sin.

The remainder of the chapter is quite plain. As a soul-winner all must be impressed with Philip's obedience (vv. 26, 27), tact and intelligence (vv. 30-35), and success (v. 38), but the explanation is that he was "full of the Holy Ghost" (Acts. 6:3). Verse 37 is omitted in the Revised Version as not belonging to the text. It states a great and important truth, but it anticipates the latter teaching of Christianity which was given Paul to reveal (Acts 9:20; Gal. 1:12). The catching away of Philip (v. 39) suggests 1 Thessalonians 4:17, and is a kind of type of that which will occur when the church as a whole has finished her labors here, and will be translated to "meet the Lord in the air."

We include the conversion of Saul in this lesson, as the opening of chapter 9 leads us back to that of chapter 8, showing the intervening narrative as a parenthesis. With the exception of the descent of the Holy Spirit, the conversion of Saul is the most important event in the book. For something of his early history see Acts 22:3,28; 23:6; Galatians 1:13,14; Philippians 3:5,6. What happened on the way to Damascus was unique (vv. 3-7), and will not be repeated till Zechariah 12:10 is fulfilled at the end of this age. It is related twice again, and with more detail, in chapters 22:5-16; 24:12-18. The "light out of heaven" (9:3) was doubtless the glory of the Lord, but later on it is the Lord Himself who appears unto Saul. For proof of this compare verse 5 with verses 17 and 27 of the same chapter, also 26:16, 1 Corinthians 9:1 and 15:8, 9.

Note the identification of the Lord and His people, the Head and the members of the body in the words, "Why persecutest thou Me?" Note the correspondence in the two visions to Saul and to Ananias (vv. 6,10-16), which establishes the actuality of the occurrence. Note the particularities of God's knowledge of man—the name of Ananias, the city, the street, the house in which he dwelt, the name of Saul, his birthplace, his present occupation! How real and startling it all is! And Ananias is an ordinary disciple, not an apostle, to whom the great commission is accorded (Gal. 1:1). Note the first indication of what Paul's mission is to be (v.15). Note that he was first filled with the Spirit and afterward baptized (vv.17,18), which was different from Acts 2:38; 8:16 and 10:44. "Evidently had there been uniformity in all these cases it would have resulted in the belief that to receive the Spirit, the same method always must be followed, which has to be avoided. It is to be remembered that these cases were all unique as taking place in the Jewish and the transition stages, while the present method of receiving the Spirit is revealed in Ephesians 1:13."—Gaebelin.

We pass over the remainder of this story except to notice verse 23. The many days doubtless included the journey to Arabia and back spoken of in Galatians 1:17, and which will be treated when that epistle is reached.

Questions on the Lesson

1. What is meant by the transition period?
2. Have you carefully examined the other Scriptures referred to in this lesson?
3. What is now substituted for miracles?
4. In what two directions has the translation in 8:14-17 led to error?
5. In what is the correction found?
6. What is "simony"?
7. What marks Philip as a soul-winner?
8. What is suggested by his being caught away?
9. What comparison is made between the conversion of Saul and other events in this book?
10. How is God's knowledge of our intimate life shown in this lesson?
11. What did we note about receiving the Holy Spirit?
12. What is included in the "many days" of 9:23?

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.

Lesson 7

The Door Opened to the Gentiles Chapters 9:31-11:18

The closing of the 9th chapter shows Peter on a tour of visitation, and the performer of two great miracles, it being significant that the greater of the two was in answer to prayer (v.40). Almost all the commentators regard these miracles as having a bearing on the crisis of the church recorded in the next chapter. In that chapter Peter is again to use the "keys," this time in opening the door of the gospel to the Gentiles. Indeed, since the occupation of a tanner was unclean in the eyes of a Jew because of the handling of the skins of dead animals, it is seen that Peter in Joppa is already breaking with the customs of his nation.

As an introduction to chapter 10 carefully read Paul's words in Ephesians 2:11-18. Note, in passing, that the Caesarea in this case was not that of Matthew 16, but another city of the same name, located near Joppa, which the Emperor Augustus gave to Herod, and which the latter greatly beautified.

The description of Cornelius (vv.1-8), shows this Gentile Roman soldier very near the kingdom of God, and an example of how God will reveal more light to any man who lives up to the light he has. But the need of this "more light" in the sense of the knowledge and acceptance of Jesus Christ as a Saviour, is also revealed with equal clearness.

Passing to the vision of Peter (vv. 9-23), the "vessel" represents the Christian church; the "four corners," the four corners of the earth; the clean animals, the Jews; the unclean, the Gentiles. In the church, however, all are cleansed (read here 2 Corinthians 6:11 and Ephesians 3:6). The Lord providentially interprets the vision in verses 17-20. Note the proof of the personality of the Holy Spirit found in verses 19 and 20—"the Spirit said * * * I have sent them."

We are now in the centurion's house and listening to Peter's sermon (vv. 24-43). He has had his eyes opened to the great truth expressed in verse 34. This does not mean that any man merits God's acceptance by his natural morality, for the true fear of God and the working of righteousness are always the result of His grace. It means that God vouchsafes this grace to men of every nation, whether Gentile or Jew. Verse 43 emphasizes this, being the first echo of John 3:16 in the history of the church.

That the household of Cornelius acted on this promise by faith is seen in the result (vv. 44-48), which demonstrates that the Holy Spirit is given to men without either water baptism or the laying on of hands, but simply by believing (Gal. 2:2). Water baptism followed, but not as an act of Peter himself, as is worth noticing (v. 48).

The next chapter indicates that party spirit showed itself early in the church. "They that were of the circumcision" (11:2), means the Palestinian Jews as distinguished from the Grecian Jews or "Hellenists" as they were sometimes called, and who whether born in Greece or not, adopted Greek customs. The priests and the Pharisees belonged to the former who were more zealous for the letter of the Mosaic law than the others (Acts 21:20). As we shall see later (Chap. 15), they thought it necessary for a Gentile to become a Jew before he could be saved, i. e., he must submit to be circumcised at least. But Peter rehearses all the circumstances in the case of Cornelius, and at this juncture they appear to be more than satisfied (v.18).

Questions on the Lesson

1. Name the two miracles of Peter at the close of chapter 9.

2. What is Peter about to do in chapter 10?
3. Have you read Ephesians 2:11-18?
4. Give a brief history of Cæsarea.
5. What does the history of Cornelius teach?
6. Explain the housetop vision.
7. What proof of the personality of the Holy Spirit is here found?
8. How is 10:34 to be interpreted?
9. How is the gift of the Holy Spirit received?
10. What distinguished the Palestinian Jews from the Hellenists?

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.

Lesson 8

The Church at Antioch Chapters 11:19-13:3

By connecting the first verse of this lesson with 8:4, it will be seen that all intervening is a parenthesis, an important one indeed, but making it necessary now to return to the martyrdom of Stephen for a new start. Be sure to consult a map for the localities in verses 19 and 20. Antioch, now coming into prominence as the headquarters of the Gentile church, was a beautiful and influential city in Syria, but luxurious and immoral. It was founded about 300 B. C. Saul's great life work really begins here (v. 25), and here also the name of Christianity takes its rise (v. 26). Antioch is said to have been famous for its witty epigrams, and it is thought that such was the origin of the name "Christian." The church there was richer in this world's goods than at Jerusalem, which enabled the Christians to show the beautiful spirit of verse 29.

Another parenthesis meets us at chapter 12, the closing verse of which brings us back to Antioch. Chapter 12 is of events in Jerusalem, the martyrdom of James by Herod, the imprisonment and deliverance of Peter, and the fate of the wicked king.

To begin with the last-named. Four Herods are mentioned in the New Testament, Herod the Great who killed the innocents in Bethlehem, Herod who killed John the Baptist, this Herod, and he before whom Paul stood later on.

The story of this, the second, persecution of the church is told in verses 1 to 5. The James here mentioned was the one honored by our Lord on the Mount of Transfiguration, and in Gethsemane. See also the memorable circumstance in Matthew 20:23. Peter was now the only apostle remaining in Jerusalem. The four quaternions, 16 soldiers, "to keep him," suggest that the enemies of the church in Jerusalem had not forgotten his earlier deliverance (chap. 4).

The story of the present deliverance is told in verses 6-17, and is so plain we need not dwell upon it.

The judgment on Herod (vv. 18-23), suggests to some "the presumption and fate of the Antichrist," who also will persecute the Jewish saints, claim divine honors and assume the place of God (2 Thess. 2:3-8).

In verses 24 and 25 Barnabas and Saul have returned from their mission of bearing the alms of Antioch to Jerusalem and have brought John Mark with them.

It is now that Antioch comes to the front as the second great center of Christianity, and with it Paul, no longer called Saul, the great apostle to the Gentiles. The time is supposed to be toward the spring of A. D. 46. Verses 1-3 tell the story. Five names are given, one of them very prominent in social circles—Manaen, a foster-brother of Herod. Note the phrase "they ministered to the Lord." How? Just by quiet worship. And, oh! who can measure the results to the church and to the world that came of it! What a contrast with the present-day "movements" of one kind and another, the banquets, conventions, newspaper advertisements, photos, and "whoop-'em-up" song services, to say nothing of meetings for the so-called deepening of the spiritual life. The simplicity of ministering to the Lord strikes us here, and the circumstance that He Himself is present to guide into large things through the voice of His Spirit, who can be recognized by all who are holy enough and quiet enough to hear.

The laying on of hands in this case is hardly identical with modern "ordination," but simply the testimony of the church to the genuineness of the call that had been received, and their outwardly expressed "fellowship and identification with the two" who had thus been set apart by the Holy Spirit. This is the way all true missionary work should begin, and the only way to insure a blessing.

Questions on the Lesson

1. With what earlier event is this lesson connected?
2. Have you located the cities on the map?
3. What do you know about Antioch?
4. To what locality do the events of chapter 12 belong?
5. Name these events.
6. Identify the different Herods.
7. Identify James, the first of the apostles to suffer martyrdom.
8. Of whom may this Herod be taken as a type, and in what particulars?
9. At what date did the great work of missions to the Gentiles begin?
10. What is here meant by ministering to the Lord?

International Sunday-school Lessons

By E. O. Sellers

July 11

Solomon Anointed King

1 Kings 1: 28-40

Golden Text.—“Know thou the God of thy father, and serve him with a perfect heart and with a willing mind.”—1 Chronicles 28:9.

David was an empire builder, an organizer and an accumulator of wealth. Read carefully 1 Chronicles 29: 28. Three characters in this lesson are outstanding.

I. David. 1. He had to make a selection (vv. 20, 27), but God makes His own choice of Solomon (Jedidiah, “the beloved of Jehovah,” 2 Sam. 12:25). 2. David had a promise he must needs fulfill (vv. 17, 30). While his second son who sought to usurp his throne, is engaged with his fellow conspirators (vv. 9, 41) in feasting and rejoicing in their supposedly easy victory over the aged father, David rallies and gives direction for the public proclamation of Solomon as king, thereby redeeming his promise. Bath-sheba, emboldened by her need (v. 16), enters the king's chamber where now another ministers in her stead, and lays the facts of Adonijah's rebellion before David, concluding her petition with the dramatic words of verse twenty. Bath-sheba's petition is reinforced by the words of David's faithful mentor, Nathan (vv. 22-27). Turning again to Bath-sheba David emphatically reiterates his determination to carry out God's commandments relative to his successor. Even in the hour of his departure David remembers that it is Jehovah “that hath redeemed my soul out of all distress” (v. 29). 3. David then gives careful command relative to the public proclamation of the new king (vv. 32-35). Calling to his help his trusted and tried friends, Zadock, the priest, Nathan, the prophet (2 Sam. 12: 24, 25), and Benaiah, the soldier (1 Chron. 11: 22-25), he directs them to place Solomon upon his own mule (v. 33) and take him to Gihon there to be anointed and proclaimed king in David's stead. Contrast David's scrupulous obedience regarding the use of horses (Deut. 17: 16) with that of Absalom (2 Sam. 15: 1) and Adonijah (v. 5). Note also it was the priest and the prophet alone who were to anoint the king (v. 34). In this we see a parable of the establishment of the everlasting kingdom of righteousness by the Prince of Peace and not by means of the sword. This anointing was a symbol of dedication to God (Lev. 8: 10-12). But as this was only outward form and symbol, they must petition Jehovah to keep the new king (v. 34). 4. David took no chances but stepped aside fully, while he yet lived, that all question of Solomon's right should be removed (v. 35). Solomon had the added security in that he had been appointed also by Jehovah to be a prince over Israel and Judah. It was Benaiah, true to his training, who reported to the king the execution of his orders and swears fealty to his successor, at the same time interceding for Jehovah's blessing upon Solomon.

II. Solomon. 1. He was chosen of God (1 Chronicles 28: 5; 29: 1). Solomon was the first son of David and Bath-sheba after their legal marriage. His name signifies “Peaceful” (see 1 Chron. 22: 9) and may signify the fact that David had found the peace of forgiveness. Solomon inherited the strength of David's maturity and chastening also, and through his mother, the wisdom of Ahithophel, whose advice “was as if a man had inquired at the oracle of God” (2 Sam. 16: 23). 2. He was chosen because of intercession (chap. 1: 17). The standing of the Christian is what it is in the sight of God because of One who intercedes on his behalf (John 17). 3. He was chosen in the midst of controversy and as against antagonists (v. 5). So the Christian, chosen before the foundation of the world in Christ, also has great opposition and a dangerous antagonist and, like Solomon, he is secure in spite of the assaults of the evil one (1 Cor. 10: 13, Jude 24). 4. Solomon was chosen for a definite work (1 Chron. 28: 10). 5. Solomon was promised help (1 Chron. 28:9)—so are we. “I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me” (Phil. 4: 13). The people (v. 40) accepted Solomon, “born to the purple,” as one worthy the position. We are chosen to be “kings and priests unto God,” to be saints, because God has chosen us “in the Beloved.” The rules of the kingdom are simple (Micah 6: 8; John 15: 14-27).

III. Adonijah. 1. He was a self-selected king (v. 5), and as such lacked not only the approval of God but the ability to execute his designs. He had Joab, the bloody soldier, and Abiathar, the jealous priest, as his co-conspirators, yet all combined could not set aside the decree of God. 2. He was a spoiled child. “His father had not displeased him at any time” (v. 6). True, he was David's eldest living son, yet he was not in the line of God's selection. Brought up probably in the harem, lacking the father's discipline, he was lacking in those essential elements that belonged to the responsibilities of a king. 3. He had to acknowledge David's authority. His weak imitation of his half-brother, Absalom, is soon made to be a mockery (v. 41), and his followers are scattered (v. 49), while he is seized with abject fear (v. 50). 4. His refuge. There is, however, the suggestion of hope in that Adonijah found a safe refuge (vv. 50, 51).

July 18

Solomon Chooses Wisdom

1 Kings 3: 4-15

Golden Text.—“The fear of Jehovah is the beginning of wisdom.”—Proverbs 9: 10, R. V.

~ Last week we had the story of a young man whose childhood was unrestrained and ungoverned, who proved unable to govern the kingdom he so much desired. Today, by contrast, we study the life of a younger brother, who chose the way that led to true success. Emphasize the fact that this Sunday is “Decision Day.”

The only discordant note here struck is that recorded in verses one and two. Solomon’s “affinity” (though his Egyptian wife may have abandoned idolatry), is not expressly censured like his connection with other foreigners (chap. 11: 1-3).

I. Solomon’s Part, vv. 3-9. 1. Preparation (v. 3). The text suggests that there was preparation for his hearing of God’s wonderful promise, “Ask what I shall give thee.” (1) He “loved the Lord” (v. 3). It was in the “statues of David” and in the worship of Jehovah that Solomon had his chief delight. (2) He “went to Gibeon” (v. 4) because there at the Tabernacle (the Temple was not yet built) Jehovah particularly manifested Himself to the people (1 Chron. 21: 29; Exod. 29: 42, 43, R. V.).

2. Presentation (v. 4). He offered a thousand burnt offerings, when one would have sufficed. The tabernacle was a type of Christ (John 1: 14, R. V. and John 14: 6), and each of the one thousand sacrifices also pointed forward to the Christ. The Christian has a better ground whereon to approach God (Heb. 10: 1-22). 3. Revelation (v. 5). God appeared to Solomon in a dream; we have a better revelation in Jesus and the inspired Word. Dreams are most probably the “concentrated essence of the main stream of waking thoughts.” Visions furnish ideals and inspirations. Let the church keep before itself the vision of a perfect church, world, and city of God. “Life is no dream, but life is nothing without great dreams”—Dr. Cope. Subsequent developments amply demonstrated that God really spoke to Solomon that night. 4. Position (vv. 6, 7). In reply to God’s wonderful setting before him of His infinite resources, Solomon first of all acknowledged his debt to David, his father. God’s kindness, His faithfulness and “bounty” (marg.) to David, had been according to the manner of his walking in “uprightness of heart”; and to crown that kindness, he, Solomon, is “the son to sit on his throne.” This acknowledgment involved a definite obligation of service for which Solomon felt his unworthiness. It is such a spirit that God delights to honor and in response to it He has set the infinite resources of His power (John 14: 13, 14; 15: 7; 15: 16; 16: 23, 24; Mark 11: 24; 1 John 3: 22; 5: 14, 15). Solomon was perhaps twenty-one years of age yet in God’s sight he is but “a little child.” 5. Petition (vv. 8, 9). Seeing the greatness of the responsibility now resting (v. 8) upon him, Solomon’s plea is for wisdom. Already he had shown that he had in him the root of true wisdom (Prov. 1: 7 and Golden Text). Solomon seemed to sense his responsibility first to God, and then to the people, for he said, “Who is able to judge this thy great people?” (R. V.). He asked for a “hearing heart” (R. V. marg.). Such a request was of more value than great riches (Prov. 3: 13-18), and was in line with his father, David’s, petition (1 Chron. 22: 12; 29: 19). Christians may pray this same prayer (James 1: 5-7) and in addition have the promise of One, the Holy Spirit, who shall guide them into all truth (John 16: 13). It is the Spirit’s work to impart wisdom, and thus equipped the Christian is not overwhelmed by a sense of his inefficiency or his responsibility. This petition was for the glory of God (Jas. 4: 2, 3). It represents the highest form of wisdom, of moral integrity and discernment.

II. God’s Part, vv. 10-15. 1. His Pleasure (vv. 10, 11). It is a greater thing to make a speech that pleases God than one to please man. Verse eleven tells of some of the things for which doubtless many of us would have asked under the same circumstances. 2. His performance (v. 12). But Solomon made a wiser choice, hence God’s pleasure to do not only all he had asked, according to his human words, but more also. Solomon’s name is as a proverb, synonymous with the greatest wisdom (v. 28, chap. 4: 29-34; 5: 12, etc.). 3. His promise (v. 14). As though to heap up His goodness, as a sort of a reward of merit, God offered Solomon “long life” on one condition only—obedience. Such a promise is ours and the world has yet to realize the wisdom of God’s ordinances for the good of our physical well-being (Deut. 5: 16; 25: 15; Prov. 3: 1; 14: 15-23; 1 Tim. 4: 8). All of God’s promises are conditioned upon our obedience. It is sad to think that with all of his wisdom Solomon failed to learn the wisdom of obedience (1 Kings 11: 42), and died a comparatively young man. 4. Conclusion (v. 15). Solomon awoke but the vision remained and he showed his acceptance of God’s promised goodness by his sacrifices (Heb. 13: 15, 16, R. V.).

July 25

Solomon Dedicates the Temple1 Kings 8: 22-30.

Golden Text.—“My house shall be called a house of prayer for all people.”—Isaiah 56: 7.

To teach this lesson properly reference must be made to the building of the Temple (chap. 6), to the building of Solomon's palace and that for his Egyptian wife (chap. 7), and also to the removal of the ark from the city of David, “Zion,” in the “tent of meeting,” to its new dwelling place in the Temple. The time consumed in erecting the Temple (seven years, 1 Kings 6: 38), the number of men employed, approximately 150,000, and the skill and magnificence of the building (1 Kings 6: 7) will serve as an interesting introduction to the dedication ceremonies proper. Those present on this occasion are suggested in verses two and three; the time consumed was seven days (v. 66), and the condition of Solomon's heart (v. 5) is seen in the multitude of his sacrifices. The Temple marks the beginning of a new era in Hebrew history, one of great outward glory, though it was not one of inward strength, as the speedy breaking up of the kingdom and the final captivities give evidence. Prof. Beecher sets the date of this event as being “about the first of October in the eleventh or twelfth year of Solomon's reign—say 1012 B. C.”

I. Solomon's Veneration, vv. 22-24. Solomon's Temple was a place of sacrifice but more than all it was a house of prayer (Matt. 21: 13), and his dedicatory prayer is the longest prayer recorded in the Scriptures. In it is to be found no mention of the Temple as a place of sacrifice, yet no prayer is heard apart from sacrifice. Each article of the Temple furniture had its special teaching but the greatest teaching of all was that of God's nearness and of His readiness to hear the petitions of His servants. Solomon personally brought his thanks and his petition before the altar whereon lay the sacrifice (Heb. 9: 22; 10: 19, 20; John 14: 6), and even there he “spread forth his hands” in token of supplication, adoration and worship. We can “come boldly to a throne of grace” and need not priest or sacrament, for we have one who “ever liveth to intercede for us.”

Solomon showed reverent boldness and pious confidence in his words. It is a great blessing when the leader of any people sets them a pattern of such piety and prayer (Prov. 14: 34). In this Solomon is a type of “great David's greater son” (Heb. 7:25). This prayer is twice recorded (2 Chron. 6: 13-42) and it begins with an acknowledgment of God's blessings previously granted (See Phil. 4: 6). These were the basis of Solomon's new plea. In verse 23 two titles are given to God (See Exod. 24: 10; 1 Sam. 1: 17; Ps. 41: 3; Isa. 41: 17; 45: 3).

II. God's Word Verified, vv. 25, 26. Solomon repeatedly referred to the fact that he has fulfilled God's promise to his father David in building the Temple. God is a covenant-keeping God, and upon this fact Solomon voices his plea for future blessings. Solomon's “therefore” (v. 25), reveals his acceptance of God's words to David (chap. 2:4). This word of Jehovah is sure and steadfast (Jer. 33: 17-26), and Solomon's use of God's promise (2 Sam. 7: 12-16) is an exhortation to us that we base our petitions upon some one of God's promises. Praying thus we can rest assured that our prayer is in the will of God and therefore that it will be heard (1 John 5:14, 15). The full application of this is in the fact that our Lord Jesus is the true King of Israel.

III. God's Vision, vv. 27-30. See also 2 Chronicles 7: 1-3; 12-22; 1 Kings 9: 1-9. As the king concluded his prayer the cloud resting over the Holy of Holies grew bright and dazzling, and fire fell upon and consumed the sacrifices. The priests stood without in awe and amazement, and the whole people fell upon their faces, and worshiped and praised Jehovah. Even with all of this special manifestation Solomon did not conceive of Jehovah a “local, tribal deity.” Earth could not contain Him, nor the heaven and the heaven of heavens (v. 27). God fills the whole universe (Ps. 129: 7-16), yet He did and does give us special local manifestations of Himself. It is this same God who dwelt fully in Jesus Christ (John 1: 14; Col. 2: 9). Solomon coveted scrutiny for in that Temple God had said “My name shall be there” (v. 29), and His name is “Love” (1 John 4:8). See also 2 Chronicles 6: 20, 40. This prayer is for us granted in Him whom the Temple typifies, our Lord Jesus Christ (John 14: 13, 14). The eyes of God are ever towards Him, and ready to answer the petition made in His name. There is a great lesson for the Christian and for the Christian's special places of worship, our churches, in this wonderful promise of Jehovah regarding His name.

Accompanying this ceremony was the “Feast of Tabernacles” (vv. 62, 63; 2 Chron. 7:4-11) which usually lasted seven days, but, on this occasion continued for fourteen days. It was a time of great joy and gladness of heart for all the goodness and mercy of the Lord (see 1 Kings 8: 65, 66; 2 Chron. 7: 9, 10). Solomon assumed that Israel would constantly be sinning (vv. 34, 36, 39, 43, 49). This proved to be true, but no matter how frequently they sinned forgiveness was at hand if they truly repented and turned to Jehovah.

Application. We are building a temple (Eph. 2: 19-22); we must dedicate that temple to God (Rom. 12: 11); our trust, our rest will only find its full satisfaction in Him (Matt. 11: 28, 29; Heb. chap. 4).

August 1

The Queen of Sheba Visits Solomon

1 Kings 10: 1-10, 13

Golden Text.—“Wisdom is better than rubies.”—Proverbs 8: 11.

The visit of this wealthy queen from the region of southern Arabia has always appealed to the imaginations of men. Solomon's kingdom was at the apex of its glory, there were no wars, Israel's borders were extended, and the Temple and other wonderful buildings had all been completed.

The chief value of this lesson is in what Christ, of whom Solomon is a type, has done, is doing, and will do.

I. “Hard Questions,” vv. 1-3. Solomon is here a great type of Christ. 1. His greatness could not be hid (Mark 7:24). Solomon's fame filled the known world (1 Kings 4: 34). The fame of Solomon drew to his court this queen and we must recall that it was probably a 1,500-mile, toilsome, camel-back journey for her. 2. She brought a “very great store” (v. 10) of gifts which, according to oriental custom, she presented to Solomon. Our best gift to our King is ourselves (2 Cor. 8: 5). 3. She came to learn of “the name of the Lord” who had done so much for Solomon and his people; to learn wisdom for the guidance of herself and her people. We come to a King who possesses all wisdom (Matt. 12: 42). Solomon had a wonderful missionary opportunity. God is today sending heart-hungry people to this land from the most remote parts of the earth. Are we using our privilege to point them to the true God, and to Jesus, His Son? This queen did not believe what she had heard (v. 7) and resolved to find out for herself. The queen of Sheba will rise up in judgment against all who refuse to “come and see” (John 1: 39, 45-51; Matt. 12: 42). 4. This visit is a prophecy of that day when the kings of Sheba and Seba will come with their gifts for the greater Son of David (Ps. 72: 10, 15; Isa. 60: 6-9). The wisdom which our King bestows is eternal life (Prov. 2: 2-6; John 17: 3). 5. Our King is ready to answer “hard questions” provided they are honest and sincere (John 4: 29; 7: 17). He courts investigation. In exchange for her gifts the queen carried away much treasure (v. 13; Isa. 55: 1; Luke 4: 18). In like manner her servants were profited. She also “communed” with Solomon “all that was in her heart.” Such communion with Christ, our King, is the privilege of every seeking trustful heart.

II. “Had Seen All,” vv. 4-7. When she had listened to Solomon's wisdom and heard the answers to her questions, the solutions to her problems, and had witnessed the wonders of his temple, court and ministers, “there was no more spirit (breath) in her” (See Josh. 5: 1). A similar experience came to the three who went to the Mount of Transfiguration with Jesus. Solomon's wisdom is fulfilled in Christ (Col. 2: 3). “The house that he built” is a type of that temple He is building of living stones (1 Pet. 2: 4, 5; Matt. 16: 18). “The meat of his table” is excelled by the food on our King's table, the Word of Life (Jer. 15: 16; Ps. 119: 103). Our King, too, has His servants (Eph. 2: 6; Rev. 3: 21). Their “appeal” is not to be compared with the “robe of His righteousness” and our “standing” (2 Cor. 5: 21) is more exalted than that of any at Solomon's, or other earthly courts. We are not servants but “friends,” yet we are “his ministers” (Rev. 5: 10; 1 Pet. 2: 9). The queen was compelled to admit that the evidence of her eyes of the glories was even more incredible than the fame which had reached her far-off court for, said she, “the half has not been told me.” All who really come to know Christ give this testimony. It was a true report and she nobly acknowledges the same without envy. Such testimony is pleasing to our King.

III. Praises, vv. 8-10, 13. 1. By testimony (vv. 8, 9). “Happy are thy men” who listen to such wisdom, who dwell in the midst of such achievements. One of the greatest joys is to converse with the wise and the good. Our happiness is in our privilege of standing before Christ and to hear His wisdom (Luke 10: 39-42; Prov. 13:20; 3: 13, 14); no servant is debarred (John 12: 26). The queen glorified the source of Solomon's glory, which was all the gift of Jehovah's grace (See 2 Sam. 12: 24, 25, R. V. marg., Matt. 3: 17; Isa. 42: 1). She did not see the oppression of the people, the temptation to luxury and the decline in religious life which so soon led to decay after Solomon's death. When our King shall reign He will “do judgment and justice.” Jehovah still loves His Israel and will one day make the returning Christ their King (Rom. 11: 26). 2. By gifts (vv. 10, 13). From her great wealth the queen added to the treasurer of Solomon's kingdom (2 Cor. 8: 2). All nations shall yet bring their treasures to Jesus' feet (Ps. 72: 10, 15). Solomon gave her back all she had given him and “whatsoever she asked in addition” (v. 13). Even so our King blesses us abundantly “above all we can ask or think” (John 10: 28; 17: 22). The kingdom of heaven is greater than Solomon's (Matt. 12: 42)—(1) in wisdom (1 Cor. 1: 24); (2) in riches (Eph. 3:8); (3) in power (Heb. 2: 8); (4) in blessings (2 Chron. 1: 15, compare Phil. 4: 19), and this kingdom is “among you.”

Men “see” what they are searching after; they receive true knowledge through experience. We may see this kingdom and its working if we let Him, who is the “light of the world” enter our hearts and lives.

August 8

The Kingdom Torn Asunder1 Kings 12: 6-16

Golden Text.—"Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall." Proverbs 16: 18.

Solomon's kingdom, though outwardly magnificent, contained germs of oppression, formal religious observances, and the lax example of an indulgent monarch, which speedily led to its disruption after his death. The latter end of Solomon's life was not peaceful. "He loved many strange women" and "his heart was not perfect with the Lord his God" (11: 1,4). Rezon was his "adversary" (11: 25), and Jeroboam whom he at first sought to conciliate (11: 26-28), was finally driven from the land (v. 40). Chapter eleven contains the prophecy of which this lesson is the fulfilment. "And Rehoboam, his son, reigned in his stead" (11: 43).

I. The Convention at Shechem, vv. 1-5. This place has an important history, beginning in the days of Abraham and Jacob. It was a city of the Levites, and the place where Joshua gave his final charge (Josh. 24: 1, 25). Abimelech destroyed it though it was soon rebuilt. Here Israel gathered to confirm Solomon's son upon the throne. Jerusalem and Judea readily accepted Rehoboam as king but the ten tribes hesitated and, according to one translation, there was a year's delay during which time Jeroboam is sent for and certain reforms were proposed (v. 2). Their charges were entirely selfish and made no reference to the rights of Jehovah nor offered any protest against the increasing idolatry. Before allegiance was sworn Jeroboam as spokesman presented these reforms (v. 4) and Rehoboam wisely asked for time to consider them (v. 5).

II. Good Counsel Neglected, vv. 6-12. Rehoboam came of bad stock (chap. 14: 21) yet his first step was a wise one. His name means "Enlarger of the people," but he sadly belied this name. The northern tribes suffered greatly through taxation, and shared none of the prosperity of Jerusalem. Solomon's "yoke," like that of every earthly monarch, had been heavy (Matt. 11: 29, 30). The counsel of the old men was good (v. 7), kingly, manly.

Rehoboam next consulted those of his own circle who "were grown up with him," men who had no sympathy but were conceited, overbearing, selfish. Rehoboam asked "advice" (v. 6) of the old men, but asked for "counsel" (v. 9) of the young men, but in neither case is there any suggestion that God was consulted (James 1:5). These young men counseled a boasting and burdensome course which brought Rehoboam to grief. Oppression always results in rebellion, a fact that those who govern or employ others should ponder well. Rehoboam's choice of counselors and his consequent course of action was the height of foolishness (Prov. 13: 20).

III. Bad Counsel Confirmed, vv. 12-14. Jeroboam's subsequent career confirms us in believing that he more than all others encouraged and fostered the division of the kingdom. But he, and the proud, foolish princeling were only carrying out the word and will of Jehovah (v. 15; Ps. 76: 10). Not content with declaring his acceptance of the evil counsel he spoke "roughly" (v. 13), and this verse suggests to us that "the old men's counsel" was known to the people, thereby aggravating his offence. Rough words wound or madden but, "by using soft words you may lead an elephant by a hair." Not content to refuse, Rehoboam threatens added burdens (v. 14). Josephus says that the people were "struck by his words as by an iron rod," and they at once exclaimed "what portion have we (the northern tribes) in David?" (v. 16).

IV. Conclusion. God turned away the kingdom from Solomon's house because Solomon had turned away from God (11: 9-11, 31, 33). A true prophet foretold what would happen, the "cause was from the Lord that He might perform His saying" (v. 15, compare 11: 31, 32). God is constantly and literally fulfilling prophecy. Those which have been so fully and so minutely fulfilled are a warrant that in due time all will likewise "come to pass." Rehoboam is a lesson to the young men of today: 1. He was imperial and the character of his choices lay in his own hands (Prov. 16:18). 2. His great act was the sum of his wisdom in small affairs. Our companions indicate our character. 3. He was not entirely ruined. David's faithfulness saved one tribe for Rehoboam. God's grace is unto generations without number, and His ear ready to hear the penitent's cry. As long as life remains it is our privilege to serve God and our fellow-men.

Solomon's example did not measure up to his teaching if it had the chances are, the son's history would have been different. Solomon's sin was primarily the cause of Israel's division (chap. 11: 9, 13). Rehoboam is also a lesson for present day fathers.

Finally Rehoboam is a lesson to all who are set in authority. To close our ears to the cry of the needy, to forget our obligations to God and to men (Matt. 25), inevitably court disaster. Men who rule with authority seldom boast and those who do boast usually flee for safety at the first intimation of danger (see v. 18). The King of kings, who in fulfilment of prophecy came once, will come again. His finger (v. 10) and hands were used in loving ministries, and the only chastisement (v. 11) He ever permits is that which proves us to be "sons," not slaves (Heb. 12: 6-11).

August 15

Jeroboam Leads Israel Into Sin

1 Kings 12:25-33

Golden Text.—“Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth; thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them.”—Exodus 20:4, 5a.

Whether Jeroboam incited Israel's rebellion, or was summoned home because of his being known as an opponent to Israel, we cannot say. He must certainly have remembered Ahijah's prophecy (11:29-40), and he had another prophet on his side, Shemaiah (12:22-24), though Ahijah afterwards deserted him (14:1-18). In Egypt Jeroboam had learned of the worship of the bull Apis and upon setting up his kingdom saw at once the need of centering the religious life of the people elsewhere than in Jerusalem.

I. “Calves of Gold,” vv. 25-30. Given these ten tribes by God (11:31), the people had chosen Jeroboam apparently without consulting God, and the result was a tragic future for the Hebrews. Rehoboam's second attempt at coercion (12:21-24), is rebuked and he settles down in Judæa, but fortifies many cities (2 Chron. 11:5-12; 1 Kings 12:24; 14:17). Jeroboam likewise built cities, Shechem and Penuel, but the result of the schism was a weakened people, and Israel was the first to be carried into captivity. Defensed cities are not a proper safety for any nation (11:38; 2 Chron. 20:20; Zech. 1:4, 5). As a matter of political prudence Jeroboam's scheme of removing the center of worship from Jerusalem succeeded admirably. The Temple had no image, and his setting up of his images of bulls was a backward step, though doubtless it was regarded as best for the nation. Jeroboam's fatal error was in deflecting the people from the invisible Jehovah to the visible creations of their own hands. Mankind always prefers to trust to its own devices and to plan its own deliverance rather than to trust in God. The evidence of our trust in God is obedience to Him. Jeroboam took counsel, not as did Rehoboam of the aged or the young, but “in his heart.” We are not to lean to our own understanding but upon the Holy Spirit (John 16:13).

The errors and “isms” of today are but a repetition of the false teachings of former days dressed in a new garb, labeled with a new name. Jeroboam's excuse was plausible enough (v. 28), and appealed to the ever present weakness of the human heart to seek some easier way of serving God. But man's way always becomes the hardest way. Jeroboam today would be classed as a “liberal,” and held up as a “broad-minded man.” Note his cunning appeal to sacred memories (v. 28).

II. “Priests of the Lowest,” vv. 31-33. Jeroboam's real concern was not that of the people but the permanency of his kingdom. Jeroboam was not introducing a new god, but a new way of worship. One step always leads to another, and to establish fully this new way, and at the same time entirely to control the situation, he selected from among “all the people” priests who were to carry on Jehovah's worship. God had selected the sons of Levi and specially set them apart for this service (Num. 3:10). When the Devil introduces a new religion, or any false idea of Christ, or the Bible, he always appeals to sacred memories, or else claims a “modern expression of the truth.” Jeroboam not only chose those who would be beholden to himself, but he also selected locations in his kingdom, each of which was easily accessible. Thus to build and to select others than the sons of Aaron as priests, were both expressly forbidden. But such is the natural perversity and stubbornness of the human heart, that it readily follows its leaders into all sorts of apostasy and error (Rom. 8:7). Jeroboam also changed (v. 32) the feast ordained of God on the fifteenth day of the seventh month (Lev. 23:33, 34), to one occurring in the eighth month. No possible appeal of local interests warranted any such a substitution. The last verse (33) tells us whence all these changes originated, “of his own heart”; hence it is not any surprise that he finally assumed to himself the priest's office (1 Sam. 13:12, 13; 2 Chron. 26:16), a crowning act of apostasy and presumption.

III. The Main Teaching. Jeroboam's chief purpose was not the glory of God, but this new religion was for self-glorification. His cunningly devised program became the agent of his own and the nation's destruction (13:34; 14:7-11; 2 Kings 10:29, 31), and to him belongs the opprobrious title, “Which made Israel to sin.” Graft and trickery succeed for a time, but only those who obey God in all things build on a solid and lasting foundation. Boys do not succeed by breaking the rules of the game. Bad habits and vice are but a defiance of God's laws. There is no sadder sight than that of shipwrecked souls seeking their own gains at the cost of the ruined bodies and souls of their fellowmen. To seek to clothe the calves of Egypt with modern religious inventions is the Devil's most cunning device.

True wisdom is to know God, and to obey Him without hypocrisy. True statesmanship is to find out God's will and to set ourselves to the task of ushering in His kingdom.

For Sermon and Scrap Book

EPHESIANS 3: 6

Co-heirs.
Co-members.
Co-partners.

GOD'S PURPOSE IN OUR SALVATION

God-ward (Deut. 5:5).
Christ-ward (1 Cor. 1:9).
Spirit-ward (1 Cor. 6:19).
Saint-ward (John 13:34, 35).
World-ward (John 17:16).
Satan-ward (1 John 2:14).
Self-ward (Luke 9:23).

SEVEN WONDERS OF THE CROSS

1. The Shame of the Cross (Phil. 2:8).
2. The Work of the Cross (Col. 1:20).
3. The Message of the Cross (1 Cor. 1:18).
4. The Power of the Cross (Gal. 6:14).
5. The Triumph of the Cross (Col. 2:14).
6. The Mark of the Cross (Phil. 3:18).
7. The Fruit of the Cross (Heb. 12:2).

—Charles Edwards.

NEHEMIAH, THE LAYMAN

"Remember unto me for good, O my God, all that I have done for this people."—Neh. 5: 19.

The Bible is a book of the ministry of laymen. The laity gave us the prophets; sacerdotalism, the priests. The call of Providence today is underscoring the ancient emphasis. This is seen in the various denominational lay movements. Nehemiah is an example of the successful activity of a layman.

I. The Layman's Call. Found in:

1. A recognition of contemporary conditions.
2. A perception of a measure of individual ability.
3. A conviction of a corresponding degree of obligation.

II. The Layman's Ministry. Characterized by:

1. Prayerfulness.
2. Tact.
3. Courage.
4. Efficiency.

III. The Layman's Reward. Found in:

1. The joy of accomplishment.
2. The reception of spiritual grace.—"Homiletic Review."

FACTS OF THE RESURRECTION

1 Cor. 15: 13, 14

1. A Primal Fact. Great, supernatural, all-important, fundamental.
2. A Prominent Fact. Christ died.
3. A Predicted Fact. According to the Scriptures.
4. A Proved Fact. Risen Christ seen by Cephas, the Twelve, the five hundred, by James.
5. A Prefigured Fact (John 12:24).
6. A Powerful Fact. "By the grace of God I am what I am" (1 Cor. 15: 10).
7. A Proclaimed Fact. "So we preach" (1 Cor. 15: 11).
8. A Pronounced Fact. "Now is Christ risen" (1 Cor. 15: 20). Echoed through the ages.

WHAT GRACE HAS DONE FOR THE BELIEVER

1. Has chosen us in Him (Jesus Christ) from before the foundation of the world (Eph. 1:4; 2 Thess. 2:1).
2. Called us with an holy calling (2 Tim. 1:9).
3. Gave us Jesus, that He might deliver us from this present evil world (John 3:16; Gal. 1:4; 1 Tim. 2:6; 2 Tim. 1:10).
4. Provided redemption through His blood (Eph. 1:7; Titus 2:11, 12; 1 Pet. 1:18, 19).
5. Forgave sin (Eph. 1:7; Col. 1:4).
6. Justified through His grace, "we have peace with God" (Rom. 5:1; Phil. 4: 7, 9).
7. Made us accepted in the beloved (Eph. 1:6; 2:18; 3:12).
8. "Quickened" us from death (Eph. 2: 1-5; Col. 2:13).
9. Lifted us up to a new realm—the heavens in Christ Jesus (Eph. 2:6; Col. 1:13).
10. Delivered us from the law and its condemnation (Rom. 6:14; Rom. 8:1; Gal. 4:4, 15).
11. Delivered us from the dominion of sin (Rom. 6:14; Col. 1:13).
12. Provided, in the Holy Spirit, the enabling for a holy life (John 7: 37-39; Rom. 8:4).
13. Gave us an example (1 Pet. 2: 21).
14. Gave us exceeding great and precious promises, etc. (2 Pet. 1:4; 2 Tim. 3:16, 17).
15. Made known unto us the mystery of His will (Eph. 1:9; 5:17; John 7:17).
16. Gives us a blessed hope by which to live (Tit. 2: 13, 14).—E. E. Pohle.

BRIEF PRAYERS

"Beginning to sink, he cried, saying, Lord, save me."—Matt. 14: 30.

1. Sinking times are praying times with the Lord's servants. In our hours of bodily pain and mental anguish we find ourselves naturally driven to prayer.

2. Short prayers are long enough. Not length but strength desirable. A sense of need is a mighty teacher of brevity.

3. Our extremities are the Lord's opportunities. When we can do nothing, Jesus can do all things. Let us enlist His powerful aid upon our side and all will be well.—C. H. Spurgeon.

WET PAINT

A Sermon for Children

I suppose, children, you have all noticed on a newly painted gateway or railing or on the woodwork around a store window the warning words plainly marked thus, "Wet Paint." The painter put the notice there. He wanted all who passed by to be careful not to come in contact with the paint, and thus avoid staining their fingers or clothes. But as often as the sign appears, I have observed, just about as often a boy or a girl will go forward, touch the wet paint, saying, "Oh! so it is."

Perhaps you have done this very thing. I know I have. Does it not strike you as strange that the warning words, instead of making a boy keep away from the wet paint, incline to invite him to touch it? He daubs his finger on the wet surface and says, "Oh! so it is." He seems almost surprised that the warning words are true. There is in human nature a deeply embedded trait, a strong desire to touch the forbidden thing. This began in the Garden of Eden. You remember the story in Genesis. God forbade Adam and Eve to touch the fruit of the tree in the midst of the garden, and as soon as God's back was turned, so to speak, they approached the tree, looked longingly at its fruit, handled the fruit, and finally ate it.

Mother, before going out, says, "Mary, I don't want you to touch anything in that bureau drawer." Mary had no occasion to think of the drawer, to be near the drawer, to go into the drawer, but as soon as mother was gone that drawer seemed to be calling Mary to come and peep into it, and Mary yields.

Now the moment the boy touches the wet paint his fingers are stained; the moment Mary rummages in the forbidden drawer her conscience is stained. Both of those young people have marks upon them that had better not have been there.

We cannot touch wet paint and not be stained; we cannot touch sin and not be marked. Boys and girls, every time we do the forbidden thing there is a mark, a stain that will be hard to erase. The repeated performance of the forbidden thing makes blackened, bad lives. If our lives have already begun to be marred with the stains of touching the forbidden things the only cure I know is to repent, and get before God and ask forgiveness, offering the earnest prayer of the writer of that grand old hymn:

"Wash me in the blood of the Lamb,
And I shall be whiter than snow."

—Alex. Fraser, in "Christian Work."

TEN QUALIFICATIONS OF A PREACHER

He should be able to preach plainly and in order. He should have a good head, good power of speech, good voice, and a good memory. He should be sure of what he means to say, and be ready to stake body and life, goods and glory on its truth. He should know when to stop. He should study diligently, and suffer himself to be vexed and criticized by every one.—Martin Luther.

HE LIKED THE SAMPLE

A poor English costermonger went to a mission one night and asked, if they had any more religion there. When they asked him what he really wanted, he replied: "I want you to give me some of the kind our Bess has." It seemed that she had lived a stormy life until going to the mission, but she had become so changed, so gentle, and sweet that her husband wanted for himself some of the kind of religion of which he had seen so good a specimen.

LIGHT PROVIDED WHEN NEEDED

A train was sweeping along in the bright sunshine, when an attendant passed through the cars and lighted the lamps. The passengers wondered why this should be done at midday; but while they were talking about it, asking what it meant, the train plunged into a long, dark tunnel. Then all understood why the lamps had been lighted back there in the sunshine. This providing of light in advance prepared for the gloom in the tunnel's deep night. This illustrates what God's words stored in the heart do for us when our path suddenly bends into the darkness. . . . He who in the sunny days has not made the divine promises his own, when trouble comes has no comforts to sustain him. But he who has pondered the holy Word and laid up in memory its precious truths and assurances, when called to pass through affliction has light in his dwelling.—J. R. Miller.

A SERMON IN THE SCOTTISH DIALECT

Luke 8: 43-48

The folks kept croodin' roun' aboot,
And jostlin' ane anither;
For Jesus cured, beyond a doot,
First ane and then the tither.

To ask wha touch'd Him sounded queer,
And Peter thoct it funny;
Sae up he spak, "What needs ye speir
When jostled by sae mony?"

Yet ane there was wha ken'd fu' weel
The touch the Saviour meant,
For she alane was made to feel
The virtue that He spent.

"Wha touch'd me?" yet again He speir'd,
As 'f might be to forbid it,
When oot she cried, though unca fear'd,
"Twas me, guid Lord, that did it."

But list we what the Saviour said
As in aboot she stole,
"Gae hame in peace, be not afraid,
Thy faith hath made thee whole."

Her what? Weel what but just her faith—
Anither word for "tryst,"
For in her hairt—deep in anaith,
She *lippen'd sair to Christ.

For twal lang years in sair distress,
At ance restored to health;
A pity could she no confess
How she cam' by her health!

Would we sae glory in her place
And praise the Saviour's name?
Or maun we say, to our disgrace,
We daurna dae the same?

We canna gie Him a' His dues,
But pass Him by—we mauna;
For wha on earth that love abuse
In heaven could sing hosannah!

By faith the evenin' brings a' hame,
Sae *lippen, hairt and soul,
Till comes the nicht, wi' words the same,
"Thy faith hath made thee whole."

*Lippen, to trust to or place dependence on.
—J. M'Combie Murray.

SAYING A GOOD THING WELL

Meanwhile, we venture to characterize some of the defective styles of preaching which have become familiar. There is the tame delivery—preaching which has no grip to it, in which the preacher never lets himself go. In the effort to avoid "oratory," he falls into a manner merely humdrum. President King spoke recently of a minister who found himself delivering his carefully prepared manuscript in such fashion that it had no meaning even for himself, and in the midst of it suddenly closed the pages, saying, "And so on and so on for fifteen or twenty more pages of the same sort of talk; let us pray." No man ever had that inclination when he had caught fire in his preaching.

Over against it we could put the explosive delivery, preaching which runs to sound. Lyman Beecher bemoaned his pulpit failuré one day as he went home from church, but young Henry protested, declaring that he had never before heard his father preach with such vigor. "Oh, yes," said Lyman Beecher; "I always 'holler' when I have nothing to say." Some of the brethren "holler" when they have anything to say. An elder, sitting under the preaching of one such minister, said, "I cannot make out whether he is deaf or thinks we are, but it is certain we will soon be if he keeps that up." It is always regrettable when a ten thousand voice is used on a one hundred congregation.

Indistinctness in speech is most complained of, we suppose. That is the main trouble at Assembly. Always it is laid to the building; commissioners regret that architects seem not able to erect a church in which acoustics are good. Often the architects might retort with the regret that men seem not able to erect voices that are good. We should think it a great benediction to a young minister to have in his congregation a few only fairly patient people who are slightly deaf, and who really want to know what he is saying—doubly fortunate if there is one of them who will ask him not to shout but to say his words clearly and to keep his voice up to the end of the sentence.

Most of us know the phenomenon of the rapid speech of all foreigners in their own language. If French people did not speak so rapidly, we could follow them. To which criticism they make the identical reply regarding themselves. It suggests the obvious fact that we slip our words abominably, cutting off the beginning here and the ending there. That is bad enough in common talk; it is ruinous in public talk.—From an editorial in "The Continent."

"THESE ARE CONTRARY"

Gal. 5: 17

Christ praying—Peter sleeping.

Christ submitting—Peter fighting.

Christ suffering; like a lamb—Peter cursing and swearing.

Book Notices

Before the Throne, by George Darsie.

Any book which emphasizes the importance of prayer has a certain value. This book is simple in style, earnest in spirit, and Scriptural in its teaching.

139 pages. Standard Publishing Co., Cincinnati, O. H. W. P.

"One Hundred Texts" is the title of a four page tract published by the Rev. W. C. Stevenson, of the Institute class of 1889. The purpose is to encourage the memorizing of Scripture and the arrangement will certainly conduce to that end. The tract can be secured from the publisher, Columbus, O., at 20 cents per hundred copies, postpaid.

J. H. R.

Lessons from the Life of George Whitefield, by Rev. John Greenfield, M. A.

This is a stirring pamphlet and will promote the revival spirit wherever read. The author has drawn from many sources, and makes the times and work of Whitefield live before us; there is not a dull line in his presentation.

58 pages. 6 x 7 inches. Sturgis & Co., Nazareth, Pa. 25 cents, postpaid; special rates on quantities.

L. W. G.

Winsome, or the Abiding Life, by Calvin Yoran.

This is a study of the journey of Israel from Egypt to Canaan, as illustrating "a Christian's journey from sin to holiness." The author's special design seems to be to set forth the need of a second definite experience of sanctification. The work may prove helpful to some, but to our mind it is verbose, and somewhat hard to read.

458 pages. 5½ x 7½ inches. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky. $1.50.

L. W. G.

Old Truths in New Dress, or Today's Theology for Laymen, by Rev. George E. Ackerman, D. D.

The author states that a more descriptive title would be, "The Fundamental Findings of Biblical and Theological Scholarship, Clothed in the Everyday Language of Non-professional People." He deals with God, the Bible, sin, salvation, etc., and is loyal to the Word of God.

154 pages. 5½ x 7½ inches. Pentecostal Publishing Co., Louisville, Ky. 50 cents.

L. W. G.

Dwight L. Moody, by John McDowell.

A bright and breezy study of Dwight L. Moody's life and work by one who knew Mr. Moody intimately, loved him devotedly, and who is himself one of the most illustrious graduates of the Mount Hermon School. He traces the wide, and ever widening, influence of Mr. Moody's life, the secret of his success, and the appeal which his life and work should make upon men. It is fresh, instructive, and inspiring. It is a splendid book to loan to young men.

64 pages. 4½ x 7½ inches. Fleming H. Revell Co. 25 cents net.

H. W. P.

Untangling Live Wires; or, Light on Some of the Problems of Divine Guidance, by W. W. Newberry, Pastor, Gospel Tabernacle, Newark, N. J.

Here is timely help and warning both to those who are seeking the deep things of God, and to those who are being caught in the meshes of false teaching of various kinds, spiritualism, fanaticism, and other devices of Satan. The following chapter headings suggest the contents of the book: "Guidance through Common Sense," "Guidance by the Holy Spirit," "False and Mistaken Guidance," "Guidance through the Bible."

128 pages. 5 x 7½ inches. Christian Alliance Publishing Company, 692 Eighth Avenue, New York. Price 50c.

H. M. S.

Joy to the World.

This is a new book of hymns and sacred songs for the church and Sunday-school, edited and compiled by E. O. Excell. This distinguished all-round musician in the sphere of sacred song is always trying to improve upon himself, and in his foreword to this book expresses his honest opinion that it is his best and most satisfactory endeavor. A cursory glance through its pages impresses us with the large number of the older gospel hymns which it contains, which by no means detracts from its greater usefulness. We observe one or two hymns that closely resemble some of other authors, but whether the copying has been done in this instance, or in the others it is difficult to say.

282 pages. 5½ x 8 inches. Hope Publishing Co., Chicago. Price, cloth, 35 cents; muslin, 25 cents, postpaid. In lots of 100, cloth, $25.00; muslin, $18.00, not prepaid.

J. M. G.

The Epistles to the Thessalonians, With Notes Exegetical and Expository, by C. F. Hogg and W. E. Vine, M. A.

This treatment of Thessalonians fills a long-felt need. It is based on a thorough study of the Greek text, but the results are made available for English readers. The work is more than a commentary. Every word and topic of these epistles is traced through the Bible, so that this volume is a treasury of Scripture knowledge, which the indexes make instantly accessible. The treatment is sound, as well as scholarly, and from the premillennial standpoint. We wish the authors might deal with other books after the same fashion.

307 pages, 5½x8½ inches. Alfred Holness, 14 Paternoster Row, London, 3s. 6d. net.

L. W. G.

The Holy Gospels Opened, by Rev. J. Stuart Holden, M. A., Vicar of St. Paul's, Portman Square, London.

Anything written by this distinguished Anglican divine, who is so well-known in this country through the Bible conferences in which he has taught, will be appreciated by a large circle of evangelical readers. The purpose of this volume is stated to be to afford help in the daily gathering of the manna to those who come to the Holy Word for spiritual sustenance and strength. It aims to aid the large number of Christians who have little time for regular study, and are desirous of getting something from the morning or evening chapter to help nourish their souls.

144 pages, 5 x 7½ inches. Morgan and Scott, London, Cloth, 2 s. 6 d.

J. M. G.

Missions and the Church, by W. B. Stover.

The volume contains the following chapters: "Missionary Zeal of the Early Church," "Ancient Churches of the East," "The Roman Catholic World," "The Mohammedan World," "The Mormon World," "A Survey of China," "A Survey of India," "Other Opportune Fields," "The Need of the City," "The Call of the Country," "The Landlord and the Tenant," "What 100,000 Good People Can Do If They Want To."

It is replete with appendixes and illustrations. The book is of primary interest to the church represented by the author. Mr. Stover writes with the enthusiasm of the true missionary; his spirit is a contagion to every one who has experienced God's saving grace. We wish it a wide circulation. However, we cannot follow him when he touches upon dispensational matters.

204 pages. Brethren Publishing House, Elgin, Ill. 60 cents.

P. B. F.

A Manual of Physical Training for Boys and Girls, by William G. Anderson and William L. Anderson.

Probably the strongest recommendation for this book is not its simple directness, its freedom from technicalities, nor its careful adaptation of exercise to physical strength, although all three are decidedly marked; but, rather, the placing as the goal of all physical training, the building of character. Running, vaulting, jumping are not considered as ends in themselves, but as means to an end. A boy entering athletic training is not advised to refrain from smoking, swearing or from living an unclean life, that he may become a good "animal" merely, but because bodily cleanness conditions moral cleanness.

Every young man who expects to direct the physical training of boys would do well to read this book before undertaking such a moral responsibility. The acceptance, both in theory and practice, of the principles herein set forth might become to the well-trained director the mark of "A" in the examination for "fitness."

145 pages. 5½x7½ inches. United Society of Christian Endeavor, Boston and Chicago. $1.00 net.

E. G. J.

Psychological Aspects of Christian Experience, by Richard H. K. Gill.

The field that is covered in this small volume is a large one, as indicated by the titles of the nine chapters—Sin, Awakening, Penitence and Repentance, Conversion and Regeneration, Development of Christian Strength, Apostasy, Emotions in Religious Life, Conscience, Illusions and Hallucinations.

There is nothing pedantic in the book. It is scholarly and apparently scientific. Such technical expressions as "hypertrophe of attention becoming strong enough for dynamogenesis," and "malhypertrophe of attention," etc., are to be expected in such books.

We are entirely dissatisfied with the treatment of sin, and as that is fundamental in connection with Christian experience, the treatment of all other subjects is more or less unsatisfactory. While the author is giving psychologic explanation of certain experiences he should, as he is evidently a minister of the gospel, have given some credit here and there, to the operations of the Holy Spirit. He places the conversion of Carlyle and Tolstoi on a par with those of the evangelists Munhall and Yatman. In all the experiences referred to everything is accounted for on the naturalistic basis. Running through the book is what the author calls "the control of attention" which practically explains every experience.

104 pages. 5½x7½ inches. Sherman, French & Company, Boston. $1.00, net.

J. H. R.

The Gospel in the World

Edward A. Marshall, Editor

The China Inland Mission was fifty years old June 25, of this year.

The membership of the Methodist church in Liberia is 10,799.

There are about 5,000 Koreans in the Hawaiian Islands, 3,000 of whom are Christians.

One-third of the three hundred girls in the American Girl's College in Cairo are Moslem and Jewish.

Last year the Wesleyan Methodist church in Italy received into its membership from the Romish church 114 adults.

In Tirhoot, North India, there are four thousand Christians today, where six years ago there was not one.

The British and Foreign Bible Society has helped to produce or to circulate the Scriptures in 487 languages.

A new magazine for children, entitled "Happy Childhood," is to be published in China by the Women's Boards of Missions.

A serious threatened diminishing of church supply in one district in China was overcome by the purchase of motorcycles, which enable ten pastors to fill seventeen pulpits.

One of the plans of the American Bible Society is to found a Bible House at Panama for the purpose of supplying Bibles to the different nationalities passing through the canal.

A pillaging of churches in Mexico shows that the spell of superstitious reverence for the buildings has been broken. A new day may now have a chance to break forth.

With the war in Turkey has come a deepening of religious convictions at Aintab. In Central Turkey College a number of the students and some of the teachers have been converted.

The Maharajah of Bhutan, on the southern border of Tibet, has expressed his desire to have Christian teachers for his own family and also to send twenty-five sons of his chief men to the mission school.

The Friends Foreign Missionary Society has 106 missionaries and 1,116 native workers in India, Madagascar, Syria, China and Ceylon.

In the Wonsan district of Korea the Sunday-school teachers have been organized into a Sunday-school Teachers' Union, and Sunday-school teachers' institutes are being held. This is the first organization of its kind in Korea.

When the government of Sierra Leone opened a school without religious instruction, the Sierra Leone people refused to send their children and forced the government to introduce the Christian religion into the school.

A "Bible-pocket" is fast becoming an addition to the old style of dress among the Christian Koreans. The Korean costumes had no pockets, until, influenced by the missionaries, one was adopted in which to carry their much-used Bible.

The deep financial need of the Evangelical Missionary Society of Paris should find a hearty response among American Christians. Rev. E. A. Ford, a former American Presbyterian missionary, is representing the society in the United States.

A new translation of the entire Bible into the Portuguese language, for use in Brazil, was completed last year. This work was begun in 1903, and has been accomplished by the co-operation of the British and American Bible societies and missionaries in South America.

A Latin America Missionary conference is being planned, to meet at Panama, February 10-20, 1916. It will be the first great international Christian gathering since the beginning of the world's greatest war. Leaders are expected from North and South America and Europe.

There are 54 union educational institutions in China and Korea, including 10 colleges of arts and sciences, 15 theological schools, six high schools, two nurses' training schools, and seven normal schools; 38 societies co-operate in one or more of these institutions—22 American, 10 British, four Continental, two Australian, two in New Zealand. "The Missionary Outlook."

The bitter feeling between the German and English nations threatens to so disrupt missionary work that the 495 German missionaries who have been laboring in British territory may have to abandon their fields, some of which have been occupied for two or three generations.

The Island of Cyprus, where Barnabas lived and which was the scene of some of the activities of the apostle Paul, has recently been annexed to England. Two hundred and fifty thousand persons will thus pass from under Turkish rule.—Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate."

It is said that under the present conditions of the European war 100,000 shrapnel-shells are used each day, at a cost of twenty dollars a shell. Twenty dollars spent in this way may destroy twenty or more lives, while the same amount, spent on a boy in India or China, will keep him in school one year.

A report of the missionary work in Hai-Ju district, Korea, by Mr. Nathaniel D. Chew, shows that the Christian church there has 925 members, an increase of 109 during the past year. A new church and girls' school have been built at Hai-Ju city during the year and the boys' school has had an enrollment of 70 boys.

The Board of Church Erection of the Presbyterian Church has assisted congregations in the building of over ten thousand churches and manses in the United States during its seventy-one years of service. During the past year it has assisted in building two hundred and seventy in all parts of the United States, and in Cuba, Porto Rico and Alaska.

In Brazil a colporteur found a band of milkmen busy washing their cans. They asked him: "Does your Book condemn putting water into milk?" He opened the Bible at 1 Peter 2:2 and read aloud: "As newborn babes, desire the sincere milk of the word"—where, in the Portuguese version, "sincere" is rendered by "unadulterated." "If your Book talks like that," said the milkman, "let me have a copy."—"The Bible in the World."

Mr. F. G. Mitchell writes from Tolchaco, Ariz., concerning the work among the Navajo Indians as follows: "At Leupp, fifteen pupils, including several of the largest boys, have yielded to Christ. At Tuba nearly twenty of the pupils of the government school meet for prayer each week. Soon there will be an imperative demand for a splendid Christian school to care for the youth who are accepting Christ in the government schools. In two or three years we must be prepared to take care of at least a hundred of them."

In an article concerning the war and missions, "The Missionary Review of the World" quotes a Moslem teacher in North Africa as saying to a Christian missionary: "I have been reflecting on this awful war, how the Christians have brought the Moslems from Africa, the heathen from India, the idolaters from Japan, and the Jews, also, to crush another Christian state. Now, in all the history of Islam you could not find a parallel to the present war, that is, of the Moslems joining hands with the heathen, the idolaters, the Christians, and the Jews to crush another Moslem state. I thought, after what has happened, that you could not refrain longer from publicly becoming a Moslem."

From "The Foreign Field" we quote the following, written by Rev. A. B. Fisher of the C. M. S. in Uganda: "Twenty-three years ago it cost the Church missionary Society £1,000 to send a missionary to Uganda. It was a journey of from eight to ten months, and the traveller was pleased if he got there at all. The year before I went out ten strong men died on the way. Today you can do the journey in twenty-four days from London, and the cost is £35. Then we had only one church—outside like a great barn, inside like a forest of poles. But five thousand chocolate-colored men and women crowded in and knelt down to thank God for our coming. Now we have some two thousand churches scattered all over the land. Then we had but one native preacher; now we have 3,000, many of them ordained. Then we had only 200 baptized converts; now we have over 100,000."

Missionary work has been opened up among the Jaba tribe in Northern Nigeria by the Sudan Interior Mission. Concerning the work at Kwoi, Mr. William Watson writes: "We are having fine times here at present; the young lads, especially, are coming out bravely for Christ. We have now at least eight young men who have openly confessed Christ, and who, although laughed at and persecuted, refuse to attend the native dances. One of them, Jai, has been thrashed again and again, his books and clothes have been torn, but he still keeps smiling. He says they can only kill him, and as he would go to Jesus he does not fear death. But during the past weeks he is having an easier time of it. He sleeps in the compound here, and we keep his clothes for him, and also his books. These lads have much to contend with, but the Lord is able, and they and we rejoice in Him and have really happy times together."

Notes and Suggestions

THE FANNY J. CROSBY MEMORIAL

The Christian Union of Bridgeport, Conn., is erecting a combined rescue mission, settlement house, and industrial center, at a cost of $100,000. Because of the wide interest in Miss Fanny J. Crosby, who lived in that city, and who recently died, the building will be called the "Fanny J. Crosby Memorial." The lovers of Miss Crosby's hymns in all lands are asked to contribute to the work, and Rev. John R. Brown, 482 Colorado Ave., Bridgeport, Conn., may be addressed in that connection.

A CHURCH NOT AFRAID

The Second Congregational Church, Denver, Colo., Rev. F. E. Holloway, pastor, prints the following on its bulletin for March 14-20, 1915:

"This church stands for the deity, the incarnation and atoning sacrifice of the Lord Jesus Christ; the verbal inspiration of the Bible; salvation by grace through faith; the eternal security of believers; the 'great commission' to preach the gospel to every creature; and the premillennial coming of the Lord Jesus Christ."

THE ONE BY ONE BAND

Over fifty thousand persons have been enrolled as members of this band. It now has members working in eighty-two different countries.

Every member receives the Throne of Grace Book, a statement of what the band stands for, and an enrolment letter from the founder, and pays an annual membership fee of ten cents; those who receive also the "Quarterly Magazine" pay twenty-five cents. Enrolment cards can be secured from J. A. Gordon, 536 S. Hope St., Los Angeles, Cal.

BILLY SUNDAY'S PATERSON CAMPAIGN.

The following statistics indicate that Mr. Sunday's relative success in reaching the people in his Paterson, N. J., campaign was greater than in any previous one.

Duration of campaign, seven weeks. City population, 133,000. Those signing cards, 14,456. Those shaking hands with Mr. Sunday, 18,600. Total contributions, $62,598.97. Local expenses, $31,463.90. Charities, $6,449.98. Offering to Mr. Sunday at last reports, $24,688.09.

"BILLY" SUNDAY IN BOSTON

"The Presbyterian Banner" thus speaks of Mr. Sunday's first proposed visit to Boston in the fall of 1916:

"'Billy' Sunday in Boston! The city of culture and of Harvard, of icily cold respectability and hypercritical and supercilious Unitarianism, is to be invaded by the red-hot evangelist who in a rude wooden shed will pour forth volcanic speech and vulgar slang, and cast all conventionalities and many proprieties to the winds. How shocked and scandalized these bespectacled Bostonians, clad in scented silk and fine linen, will be. How their sensitive noses will turn up and their proud lips curl with scorn. Not will such plain speech about sin and hell have been heard in old Massachusetts since Jonathan Edwards preached his fiery, sizzling sermon on 'Sinners in the Hands of an Angry God.' Not will a city have been so shocked since John the Baptist poured out the wrath of God on the Pharisees and scribes of Jerusalem, or since Jonah walked the streets of Nineveh uttering his ominous cry."

B. FAY MILLS RETURNS TO THE EVANGELICAL FAITH

The return of Mr. Mills to the evangelical faith last month was an event of very great interest. He began his ministry by pastorates in the Congregational and Presbyterian denominations many years ago. In the '80's he took up evangelism and soon secured very wide fame, his converts being said to have numbered 500,000. About eight years ago he withdrew from the evangelical ministry and became a preacher in Unitarian pulpits, openly disavowing the evangelical faith. During this period he was active in Boston, Oakland and Los Angeles, Cal., and Chicago.

Very recently he acknowledged a change of view, and meetings of ministers of various denominations in Chicago were held to hear him express his views. He addressed popular meetings in different churches, speaking particularly on the deity of Christ and giving his reasons for the return to the evangelical faith. He wished it distinctly understood that the church had not come to his view but that he had returned to its view. He was received as a member of the Presbytery of Chicago, June 21. He will give himself chiefly to evangelistic work, believing this to be the field of his greatest usefulness.

BIBLE DISTRIBUTION IN NEW YORK CITY

Within the last one hundred years, 6,500,000 copies of the Holy Scriptures, in 53 languages, have been distributed by the New York City Bible Society. Last year the distribution was 326,000 copies in 47 languages. One hundred and thirty workers were engaged in the distribution and served immigrants, sailors, hotels and various city institutions.

THE NATIONAL ABSTINENCE UNION

This organization was the immediate result of the great temperance meeting, March 15, in Philadelphia, in the "Billy" Sunday Tabernacle, and at which William Jennings Bryan was the chief speaker. Rev. Rufus W. Miller of Philadelphia, is president and Charles Scanlon, the Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Temperance, is general secretary. The headquarters of the organization will be in Pittsburgh, Pa.

A KESWICK CONFERENCE IN CHICAGO

Rev. John Gardner, pastor of the New England Congregational Church, Rev. John M. Dean, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, Rev. Charles F. Wishart, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Rev. James S. Stone, Rector of St. James Protestant Episcopal Church, Rev. Elmer L. Williams, pastor of Grace M. E. Church and Rev. Paul Rader, pastor of the Moody Church, joined in a request for meetings in the Moody Church, June 16-18, afternoons and evenings.

These meetings were called a Keswick Conference, because it was felt that something of that character was needed in Chicago and the city could avail itself of the services of Rev. W. H. Griffith Thomas, D. D., of Wycliffe College, Toronto, who has been one of the leading speakers at Keswick, in England. The meetings were held as planned and the Bible expositions of Dr. Thomas helped scores of Christian men and women to deepen their spiritual lives.

THE BREAD THAT DOES NOT PERISH

The New York Bible Society is distributing the Scriptures on the various "Bread Lines" in the city. These are: The Bowery Mission, the Hadley Rescue Hall, the Knickerbocker Hotel, the "New York Sun," three "Bread Lines" of the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America. The distribution of the Scriptures thus far is in twenty different languages: English, Bohemian, Danish, Dutch, Finnish, French, Gaelic, German, Greek, Hungarian, Indian (Navajo), Irish, Italian, Lithuanian, Polish, Russian, Ruthenian, Spanish, Swedish and Yiddish. Next to those in English, the largest number of volumes distributed are those in Russian and Polish. Thus far in this distribution over fourteen thousand volumes have been given out. To many of these people the gift of a gospel portion containing the chapter on the bread of life is a real message of good cheer. Instances are told of those who, receiving the book, continue to read it until midnight and even until 3 o'clock in the morning. Many of these people have not seen a Bible in years, and many have never owned a copy.—"Episcopal Recorder."

CARE IN ORDAINING

The following resolution was unanimously adopted at the recent meeting of the Presbyterian General Assembly at Rochester, N. Y.:

"Whereas, It is reported that in many parts of our church there has been wide tolerance in the licensing of theological students and in accepting into the ministry, through ordination, those who misrepresent the fundamentals of our faith. And

"Whereas, The Presbyterian church has always stood for those doctrines coming to it from the Holy Scriptures, and gloriously emphasized in the Reformation of the sixteenth century, be it

Resolved, That our Presbyteries are instructed and enjoined not to receive students who are not clear in their belief in those important doctrines which are the fundamentals of our faith, viz: the incarnation of our Lord, the deity of Jesus Christ, His resurrection from the dead, His atonement for sin and the authority and integrity of the Bible."

MISCELLANY

The Rev. A. C. Dixon, D. D., of the Metropolitan Tabernacle, London, writes: "The work at the Tabernacle goes on as well as might be expected under all the circumstances. About 800 of our young men from the church, its missions and Sunday-schools, have entered the army, and some of them have already been killed. When this terrible war will end, is very uncertain."

At the 90th Anniversary of the American Tract Society the general secretary, Rev. Judson Swift, D. D., reported that the society had issued 9,117 different titles during its history. The total of 317,830,428 copies of tracts, 295,460,168 periodicals, and 35,018,140 volumes have been issued. The grand total of all publications is 791,142,050 copies.

Steps are already being taken by the Lutherans of this country for the celebration of the 400th Anniversary of the Reformation. It is proposed to raise $1,000,000 to endue educational institutions of the Lutheran church.

The Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions will send out about fifty missionaries this summer. Those going to China, Japan, Korea, the Philippines and Siam will have no special difficulty in traveling. Those going to Persia will have special difficulty, and will probably have to travel through Russia.

More than 3,800 charitable, civic and religious organizations are working for the benefit of the public in New York City, according to the directory issued March 10 by the Charity Organization Society. Churches to the number of 1,800; 191 social centers and settlement; many hospitals, kindergartens, nurseries and twelve war relief bodies are included in the list. About 6,000 persons are associated with the charitable agencies.

A meeting was held in Queen's Hall, London, Monday, June 7, for the purpose of reviving family prayers. The chair was occupied by the Archbishop of Canterbury. In connection with this meeting it is recalled that in the House of Lords, November 18, 1914, Lord Curzon read a letter from Lord Roberts, in which he spoke of family prayers having been observed in his family for fifty-five years with great blessing.

The "Negro Year Book" for 1914-15, containing nearly 400 pages, records many most interesting facts. There are in the United States 38,360 negro churches with 4,257,401 members. There are 36,259 Sunday-schools with 1,740,099 Sunday-school scholars. The value of church property is $56,725,825. Negro churches have contributed more than $200,000 to home missions, and $100,000 to foreign missions. They support 200 home missionaries and aided 350 needy churches.

To the 500,000 depositors of the postal savings system of the United States, many thousands will quickly be added because provision is now made that any person ten years old or over, may open an account in his or her name, and a married woman can open such an account without interference from her husband. Arrangements also are being made that persons who do not reside where postal savings banks are found, may deposit by mail, the local postmaster seeing that the necessary identification is prepared and forwarded to a near-by post office authorized to accept deposits. This brings the benefits of the system to the door of anyone within reach of the mails. In April of this year there was a net gain of $19,000,000 in deposits, as compared with $8,000,000 one year previously.

The program number of the "Winona Quarterly" has been received, presenting the regular program of the Winona Assembly for July 6-August 19, and the Bible Conference, August 20-29. The summer school of missions, representing the Women's Boards of Missions for seventeen denominations, will be in session June 24-July 2, during which Miss Angy Manning Taylor will conduct the daily Bible hour. Other conferences, institutes, congresses, etc., will make Winona an interesting place to visit.

A national missionary campaign, was launched by a conference of nearly one hundred ministers and laymen in New York recently. The outline of the campaign was given by J. Campbell White and W. B. Miller, general secretaries of the Laymen's Missionary Movement. The plan has been endorsed by prominent missionary secretaries and board officers of the country. About eighty cities have already accepted invitations for conventions and it is planned that the campaign close with a great national congress in Washington, in April, 1916.

A most unique and really heroic action of Dr. H. P. Packard, the head of the Presbyterian Hospital at Urumia, Persia, is recorded. We take the following from "The Continent":

"It will be remembered that it was Dr. Packard whose proposed transfer from Urumia led to that most humble petition to the board in New York, signed by the highest Moslem ecclesiastics and nobles in north-western Persia, wherein the board was besought not to take away from them so useful a friend. That Dr. Packard is not only worthy of this popularity, but knows how to use it in times of crisis is indicated by an incident reported in this last message from Tiflis, which relates his heroic intervention in the village of Geogtopa, where 3,000 Nestorians had fought off the Kurds for three days and had finally exhausted their ammunition. When Dr. Packard heard of their plight, he took an American flag, hastened to the village, wrapped the flag around his body and so marched boldly into the firing zone between the Kurds and the endangered band of Christians. By this daring act he induced the Kurds to withdraw and saved the helpless Persians from massacre. Probably no missionary ever put to his credit more gallant and chivalric an act."

The Evangelistic Field

SUGGESTIONS TO OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Evangelists and other Christian workers reporting items or contributing any matter for this department will please arrange to have copy reach the magazine not later than the 10th of the month preceding date of issue.

"The Evangelistic Field" department is intended for news in concise reports of revival meetings, soul-winning campaigns, and a record of evangelistic work in general. We do not invite statements eulogizing the leaders or participants in this line of work, nor can we promise to print them.—Editors.

Harold F. Sayles closed a meeting June 20 at Flint, Mich.

W. E. Bieuerwolf conducted a revival meeting in Bradford, Pa., during June.

H. S. Kimura has opened up his evangelistic meetings in Japan under encouraging conditions.

Fred W. Christ had charge of the music in a series of special meetings at Santa Ana, Cal., in June. He was helping Rev. E. L. House.

T. C. Nelson and party held a tent meeting at Minonk, Ill., in June and expect to go to Bowman's Grove and Correction Grove, Ia., in August.

Haudenschild and Pugh held a tabernacle meeting at Collinsville, Okla., May 23-June 21, after which they began a meeting at Central City, Ia.

George "Irish" McGowan announces that he has cancelled his engagements in the south and has gone to England to take up Red Cross work.

Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman and Charles M. Alexander closed their season's work in the south. In Atlanta, Ga., and Charlotte, N. C., they had good results.

"We are having a glorious meeting in Webster City, Ia. Souls are being saved at every service. We go next to Ollie, Ia."—Mills-Huggins Party.

Mr. A. C. Gaebelein held a five day Bible conference at the First Methodist Church, Oak Park, Ill., June 6-10, dealing principally with prophetic teaching.

Frank O. Cunningham conducted a three weeks campaign in Fishkill, N. Y., closing May 29. The average attendance was good and the results encouraging.

Jay J. Pease, who has been pastor of the First Baptist Church of Cassville, Wis., has resigned the pastorate to take effect Aug. 30, and will take up evangelistic work. Mrs. Pease will assist in the work as musical director and personal worker.

Harry Dixon Loes has been in a union tent meeting with J. F. Wilkins at Inland, O. He says the greatest work is among the back-slidden church members.

F. F. Leonard assisted J. Wesley Oborn in a revival campaign at Dana, Ind., in June. Large numbers attended the meeting, and they expected a great victory.

J. M. Berwick writes about the evangelistic work he has been doing with the assistance of Mr. and Mrs. George Crane in Minnesota. Many noteworthy conversions.

The Bulkley Evangelistic Party closed a gracious meeting in Bearden, Ark., June 6, with 119 conversions. It was a tent meeting, participated in by the different denominations.

John S. Hamilton closed his meetings in Clarksburg, W. Va., with a total of 2,659 professed conversions. His work was highly commended by all who participated in the campaign.

"We have just closed a splendid meeting at Rock Hill Church in St. Louis. Whole families were brought to Christ. People of every class were saved, and there was an unusual awakening among church people."—S. D. Goodale.

"We are closing a great meeting in Cortland, N. Y., June 6. Christians have been quickened, and souls born again. During the rest of the month, we will be at Morton, N. Y."—Sands and Slocum.

The Clark Evangelistic Party closed a tent meeting in Oklahoma City, Okla., recently, in the Second United Brethren Church, with 150 conversions. Their address for the summer will be 1531 East Walnut St., Des Moines, Ia.

John M. Linden closed a union campaign May 30, with the churches of Stoughton, Wis., in the Armory. There were 432 professed conversions. On June 10, he opened a tabernacle campaign with the churches of Smethport, Pa.

Harold F. Holbrook, who is directing the singing with Edwin R. Dow, reports a big meeting at Franklin, Neb. At the time of writing Dr. Dow was in Orleans, Neb., and they expected great things from the Lord there.

The meetings in Ida Grove, Ia., conducted by the Newlin Evangelistic Party, increased in interest as the meetings progressed during the early part of June. One feature of the meetings was to have a reading of the entire Bible. The New Testament was read from the pulpit; forty people reading one-half hour each, without interruption.

The Mealing-Leonard Party closed their meeting at Roaring Spring, Pa., and all the churches received members and were greatly benefited. There were about 418 converts. The evangelists will spend the summer at Winona Lake, Ind.

Sarah C. Palmér, who is with the Stough Evangelistic Party, writes from Reading, Pa., "Our meetings are fine, though the work is uphill, as the majority of the people belong to the liturgical churches, and personal work is difficult on that account."

Wood and Brooks closed a remarkable meeting at Royalton, Minn. Many professed conversion and the Christian people reconsecrated themselves to the Lord's work. The campaign was thoroughly organized and the power of the Spirit was manifested.

Mrs. L. H. Linder, Pucheng, China, thanks us for the "Christian Workers Magazine," and says she is pleased with the reports of all kinds of Christian work, and states: "We, too, have just had the joy of receiving 26 members into our church through baptism."

Henry B. Roller conducted a union revival meeting of five churches in Stuttgart, Ark., in May and accomplished much good. On May 30, he preached the baccalaureate sermon in his home city—Huntingburg, Ind. He later returned to Arkansas to continue evangelistic work.

Charles R. Goff and party held a series of meetings at Montezuma, Ia., in the M. E. church. At the first invitation given, on June 6, 65 responded. W. L. Rugg, who is now with the party, led the chorus choir of 70 voices. They expected great things from God during the rest of the meeting.

"Bruce Evans is with our churches at this time in the greatest revival ever known in our community. We are using the opera house. The interest shown was so great that the moving picture show was compelled to shut down." —Richard Hocking, Pastor M. E. Church, Oakland, Ore.

Floyd John Evans and party are busy in Oklahoma. Their work in Osage and Pawnee counties resulted in 1,000 decisions. They are now in a union effort at Oilton, Okla.; they will, later on, go to Texas. The party has two open dates for next season and may be addressed at 136 West Lake Street, Chicago.

On June 1, Gypsy Smith, Jr., graduated from Crozer Theological Seminary, after three years of successful work. Just previous to graduation he finished a most inspiring and successful three weeks campaign at Haddonfield, N. J., during which more than 200 accepted Christ. On June 6, he began a union campaign at Warrenton, Va. In July he will conduct a campaign at Culpeper, Va., and has engagements for more than a year ahead.

Z. O. Avery and Harry Beckman closed a revival at Titonka, Ia.; the campaign lasted three weeks, during which time the weather was very unfavorable, yet there were about 75 conversions and reclamations. The party next went to Omro, Wis., where a campaign was held under favorable weather conditions.

The Stony Brook Bible Conference, Long Island, N. Y., promises to be good the coming month. Many prominent Bible teachers and speakers will be present. The Prophetic Conference, Aug. 8-15; Sunday School Conference, Aug. 16-20; general Conference, Aug. 22-29; and a Gospel Mission Conference, Aug. 29-Sept. 1.

The Forsythe Evangelistic Party recently held a union revival effort at Moberly, Mo. A tabernacle to seat 3,600 people was erected in the heart of the city. The confessions and reconsecrations totalled over 1,600. The party is now at Richmond, Mo., in another tabernacle campaign. Miss Myrtle E. Scott and J. Harold Rhodes, former students at the Institute, are with the party.

F. M. Ross reports a revival at Lenoxville, Pa., after which he began a campaign at Foster, Pa. At the close of this meeting, he will spend his summer vacation at Factoryville, Pa.

"Closed a meeting here in the Lutheran church with over 50 conversions. The community was well shaken, and the church strengthened. They want us to return again."

—Harry and Walter vom Bruch.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Butts have been engaged by the New York Evangelistic Committee, for this Summer's Tent and Open-Air Campaign which begins June 14 and closes September 13. This is their tenth season with the committee. Mr. Butts besides directing the music, has charge of the great open-air meetings at Madison and Union Squares. Mrs. Butts is director of the boys and girls' work.

Preparations are being made for the Mountain Lake Park Conference to be held August 1-8, under the direction of Dr. James M. Gray, assisted by members of the faculty of the Moody Bible Institute and others. A wide range of subjects and Bible teaching by books and topics, as well as inspirational addresses, will make it worth the while of all who can, to attend. For full particulars with regard to the speakers, etc., see the advertisement elsewhere in this magazine.

The Erieside Bible Conference will be held this year at Willoughby-on-the-Lake, near Cleveland, O., July 23-August 1. The speakers will include Dr. F. W. Farr, W. L. Pettingill, W. Leon Tucker, Ivan Panin, Charles A. Blanchard, George E. Guille, Thomas M. Chalmers, George A. Mackenzie, W. M. Lau, and others. Full particulars with regard to programs, etc., may be secured from Pastor H. Mackenzie, 2186 East 74th St., Cleveland, O.

Charles Mundell and party closed a union meeting at Columbus, N. M., June 13. The meeting continued for three weeks and many were won for Christ. The population of the town is only about 300, but during the time of this meeting some 1,200 soldiers were stationed there to guard the borders, many of whom were among the converts. Lloyd Basford is soloist and musical director of the party. They next go to Clifton, Ariz., for a union meeting.

The third year of the open-air services in the City Park of Norfolk, Va., was inaugurated May 23. Among the speakers were several delegates to the recent convention of the International Union of Gospel Missions held in Norfolk, under the auspices of the Central Y. M. C. A., and conducted by Henry H. Kratzig, superintendent of the Union Mission. The second annual convention of the International Union of Gospel Missions was opened with an address by Governor Stewart. The Mayor of Norfolk also welcomed the delegates and highly commended the work of Mr. Kratzig. It was decided to hold the next meeting at Toledo, O. Mrs. E. M. Whittemore was re-elected president, and E. G. Randel of Newark, N. J., was added to the executive committee.

Henry H. Kratzig

"H. H. Gilbart and I closed what the townsfolk termed as undoubtedly the most successful revival meeting ever held in Stettler, Alberta, Canada. Although the Methodist church was the only one in the campaign, we had the hearty support of many members of the Presbyterian and Anglican churches, both of which sent to us a written vote of thanks and appreciation. A wonderful interest was shown from beginning to end; almost all the high school pupils took the stand for Christ. During the campaign there were 130 decisions."—Merril T. McPherson.

Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, D. D., of Westminster Chapel, London, has accepted the invitation of W. R. Moody, to be one of the speakers at the General Conference for Christian Workers at Northfield, Mass., July 30-Aug. 15. The announcement of his visit to America this summer will be welcomed by a large circle of friends. Plans are already well under way for the annual series of religious conferences to be held at Northfield this summer. These conferences were inaugurated by Mr. D. L. Moody in 1880.

CONSERVING EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS

E. B. Buckalew, the Secretary of the Extension Department of the Institute, has suggested a plan for conserving the evangelistic campaign at Millville, N. J., under the Rev. George Wood Anderson and party. The suggestions were worked out by Norman H. Camp and the pastors of that vicinity, the plan embracing the following features:

There is first the worker's enlistment in which he promises to say something to as many as three converts up to a certain period; to report the interviews with these and to attend the meetings of the conservation campaign. The interview is intended to secure information as to whether the convert has a good Bible, whether he reads it, what church he attends, whether he is regular in attendance, or has a period for reading the Bible and prayer, and is engaged in any service is willing to give his pledge for such attendance. During the campaign two meetings each week will be held for the workers and on Friday night of each week there will be a union Bible class in some prominent church. Other meetings are arranged for converts among boys and girls in the public schools and Sunday-schools.

FUTURE ENGAGEMENTS

Below are given the engagements, with dates as far as known, of the workers named. Our readers are earnestly invited to remember these laborers and their fields of appointment in their prayers.

George Wood Anderson—Sept. 12, Bellefontaine, O.;

Oct. 31, Easton, Pa.

Avery and Beckman—June, Omro, Wis.; July, Wesley, Ia.; open dates after Sept.

E. H. Baker and party—Oct. 17-Nov. 14, Washington, D. C.

Hay Bell and Joe Lauderdale—May, Fossiland, Ill.;

Aug., Moville, Ia.; Sept., Sturgis, Ky.; Oct., Galatia, Ill.

Chester Birch—May 23-June 6, Richboro, Pa.; June

10-27, Dearfield, Mich.

Dave Bulkley—After June 13, Allen, Kan.

George E. Burgess Party—June 2-30, Belmont, N. Y.;

Will A. Cheesman—June 14-27, Washington, Pa.;

June 28-July 11, Apollo, Pa.

Byron J. Clark Party—June 5-20, Parsons, Kan.

Edwin R. Dow and party—June, Orleans, Neb.; July, San Francisco, Cal.; Aug., Dallas Center, Ia.

John W. Erskine—June 6-28, Wilson and W. Wilson, Mich.; Sept. 4-27, Pewaukee, Wis., or Spring Green, Wis.; Oct. 2-25, Mt. Morris, Mich.

Edward D. Fellers—Open dates for the summer.

L. E. Finney and party—At Hearne, Alvarado, Waco, Pearsall, Normangee, Tex.; Harrison, Ark.; Sulphur, Okla.

A. John Flitt—July and Aug., Tent meetings in Colorado.

E. J. Forsythe and party—Sept.-Oct., Kirksville, Mo.; Oct.-Nov., Denison, Ia.; Nov.-Dec., Tipton, Ia.

Claude A. Gunder Party—July, Williams, Ia.

John S. Hamilton and party—Sept.-Oct., Marion, Ohio; Nov.-Dec., Hastings, Neb.

C. R. Haudenschield—July, Central City, Ia.

"Bob" Johnson and party—Until July 12, Punxsutawney, Pa.; Sept. 17-Nov. 8, Kalamazoo, Mich.; Nov. 12 to Dec. 20, Blairsville, Pa.

The Bob Jones Party—Aug. 1-15, Elkins, N. C.
The R. Sam Kirkland Party—July, Fulton, Ill.; open dates, last July-first Aug.

Mills-Huggins Party—Until July 11, Ollie, Ia.
W. C. Moorman—Until July 18, Coolidge, Kan.

W. J. Morris—Aug. 22-Sept. 20, Aurora, Mo.; Sept. 20-Oct. 20, Springfield, Mo.; Oct. 24-Nov. 14, St. Charles, Mo.; Nov. 14-Dec. 4, St. Joseph, Mo.; Dec. 4-Dec. 20, Hopkins, Mo.

O. A. Newlin—July 25-Aug. 22, Spencerville, O.; Aug. 29-Sept. 15, Hillsboro, Ind.; Sept. 19-Oct. 24, Audubon, Ia.; Nov. 7-Dec. 12, Eagle Grove, Ia.

Paul Henry Packard and party—July 11-Aug. 8, Arcadia, Kan.; Aug. 15-25, Pittsburg, Kan.; Aug. 28-30, Perry, Ia.; Aug. 31-Sept. 4, Hammond, Ind.; Sept. 5-25, Cleveland, O.; Sept. 26-Oct. 24, Topeka, Kan.; Oct. 25-Nov. 28, Olathe, Kan.; Nov. 29-Dec. 24, Belleville, Kan.

W. E. Parrish—Aug. 29, Salem, W. Va.; Oct. 3, Atlanta, Ia.; Nov. 14, Petoskey, Mich.

Rayburn and Laraway—Until July 4, Kimball, Neb.; Sept. 12-Oct. 10, Menominee, Wis.

Milton S. Rees—Aug. 8-15, Dudley St. Baptist Church, Boston, Mass.; Sept. 19, Albion, N. Y.; Oct. 17, Boston, Mass.

Harold F. Sayles—Until June 30, Flint, Mich.; Sept. 5-21, Flushing, Mich.

Chas. Cullen Smith and A. C. V. Gilmore—July 18-Aug. 8, Lexington, Ill.; Aug. 29-Sept. 19, Morris, Minn.

R. H. Willis and A. R. Lytle—July 30-Aug. 15, Glen Oak, Wis.; Aug. 17-Aug. 29, Dalton, Wis.; Aug. 31-Sept. 12, Detroit Harbor, Wis.

E. L. Woltslagel—July 1-11, Clayton, N. C.; July 12-18, Greenville, S. C.; July 20-27, Bristol, Va.; July 28-Aug. 1, Pelham Heights, Ala.

Wood and Brooks Party—July, Sauk Rapids, Minn.; Aug., Burr Oak, Ia.

Missionary Education Movement Summer Conferences for 1915, as follows:

Blue Ridge, N. C., June 25-July 4.
Silver Bay, N. Y., July 9-July 18.
Ocean Park, Me., July 22-July 30.
Asilomar, Cal., July 2-July 11.
Estes Park, Colo., July 16-July 25.
Lake Geneva, Wis., Aug. 6-Aug. 15.

Montrose (Pa.) Bible Conference, July 30-Aug. 8, 1915.

Mountain Lake Park (Md.) Bible Conference, Aug. 1-8, 1915. (Camp Meeting, July 2-12.)

National Council of Congregational Churches of the U. S. Biennial Meeting, New Haven, Conn., Oct. 20-29, 1915.

Northfield (Mass.) dates for 1915:
Student Conference, June 25-July 4.
Summer School for Women's Foreign Missionary Societies, July 8-15.
Women's Summer School for the East, July 16-23.
Summer School for S. S. Workers, July 17-24.
General Conference, July 30-Aug. 15.

Oakdale Park (Ill.) Camp Meeting, Aug. 19-29, 1915.

Ocean Grove (N. J.) Camp Meeting, Aug. 27-Sept. 6, 1915.

Philadelphia School of the Bible:
Summer Bible Conference, Aug. 12-15.
Annual Bible Conference, Oct. 3-10.

Presbyterian Young People's Conventions for 1915:
Ovoca, Tenn., June 22-30.
Pocono Pines, Pa., June 30-July 6.
Winona Lake, Ind., July 13-20.
Alma, Mich., July 20-28.
Storn Lake, Ia., July 13-22.
Hastings, Neb., July 27-Aug. 3.
Hollister, Mo., Aug. 12-19.

Princeton (N. J.) Conference for Christian Life and Service, July 17-25, 1915.

Prison Sunday, Oct. 31, 1915.

Quinquennial International Prison Congress, London, Eng., 1915.

Rockhurst Prayer Conference, San Francisco, Cal., June 14-20, 1915.

Salvation Army Congress, San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 4-7, 1915.

Southwestern Missionary Conference, Cliffs, Ariz., Aug. 12-21, 1915.

Stony Brook (L. I.) Conferences for 1915:
Prophetic Conference, Aug. 8-15.
Sunday-school Conference, Aug. 16-20.
General Conference, Aug. 22-29.
Gospel Mission Conference, Aug. 29-Sept. 1.

Training School for Christian Workers, Waukesha, Wis., July 25-Aug. 1, 1915.

Volunteers of America, San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 3-7, 1915.

Winona Lake (Ind.) dates for 1915:
Summer School of Missions, June 24-July 2.
Summer Bible School, July 6-Aug. 13.
Winona Assembly, July 6-Aug. 19.
Conference for Presbyterian Young People, July 13-16.

Church Efficiency Congress, Aug. 9-13.
Christian Citizenship Institute of National Reform Association, Aug. 9-19.
Conference on Pastoral Evangelism, Aug. 16-19.
Bible Conference, Aug. 20-29.

Women's Congress of Missions, San Francisco, Cal., June 6-13, 1915.

Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 28-Nov. 4, 1915.

Women's Summer Schools of Missions for 1915:
Los Angeles, Cal., May 31-June 4.
Oklahoma City, Okla., June 1-7.
Denton, Tex., June 3-13.
Duluth, Minn., June 8-14.
St. Paul, Minn., June 16-22.

Winona Lake, Ind., June 24-July 1.
Blue Ridge, N. C., June 24-July 4.
Boulder, Colo., July 6-13.
E. Northfield, Mass., July 8-15.
Silver Bay, N. Y., July 9-18.

World Bible Congress, Panama-Pacific Exposition, San Francisco, Aug. 1-4, 1915.

World's Sunday-school Convention, Tokyo, Japan, Oct. 18-26, 1915.

World's Temperance Sunday, Nov. 7, 1915.

Young People's Christian Union of the United Presbyterian Church, Los Angeles, Cal., July 4-11, 1915.

Young Women's Christian Association Student Conferences for 1915:
Blue Ridge, N. C., June 4-14.
Silver Bay, N. Y., June 18-28.
Eagles Mere, Pa., June 25-July 5.

FORTHCOMING CONFERENCES OR IMPORTANT DATES

Anti-Saloon League of America (Biennial Convention), Atlantic City, N. J., July 6-10, 1915.

Baptist Young People's Union of America, San Francisco, Cal., July 7-11, 1915.

Christian Workers and Bible Conference, Bible School Park, N. Y., July 23-Aug. 1, 1915.

Christian and Missionary Alliance Summer Conferences for 1915 (probable dates):

Binghamton, N. Y., June 25-July 4.
Hebron, Mass., July 4-11.
Nyack, N. Y., July 4-11.

Mt. Lake Park, Md., July 13-18.
Chicago, Ill., July 18-25.

Old Orchard Beach, Me., July 30-Aug. 8.
Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 6-15.

Beulah Park, O., Aug. 13-22.

Desplaines (Ill.) Camp Meeting, July 7-19, 1915.

Erieside (O.) Bible Conference, July 23-Aug. 1, 1915.

Green Lake (Wis.) Bible Institute, July 28-Aug. 10, 1915.

Grove City (Pa.) Bible Conference, Aug. 3-13, 1915.

Huss—500th Anniversary of the Martyrdom of John Huss, July 6, 1915.

International Christian Endeavor Convention, Chicago, July 7-12, 1915.

Keswick (Eng.) Bible Conference, July 19-24, 1915.

Laymen's Missionary Movement, Boston, Mass., Nov. 18-20, 1915.

Long Beach (Cal.) Assembly and Bible Conference, Aug. 2-29, 1915.

Lord's Day Congress, San Francisco, Cal., July 27-Aug. 1, 1915.

Martin Luther Quadrcentenary, October 31, 1917.

The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

FACULTY ACTIVITIES

Dr. Gray conducted a Bible conference at Shreveport, La., in which practically all the churches of the city were united. He supplied the pulpit of the First United Presbyterian Church of Chicago for one Sunday, gave one of the noonday talks at the "Inter-Ocean" building in the loop district of Chicago, and presided at the meetings of the Keswick conference conducted under the auspices of the Institute.

Mr. Sellers spoke at the Illinois State Sunday-school Convention at Danville, Ill., June 15, on "Adult Work." On June 16 he delivered the alumni address at the high school, Lansing, Mich.

SPECIAL LECTURES

The Rev. George E. Guille was a guest of the Institute May 27 - June 12. He taught doctrine during the absence of Dr. Gray.

The Rev. W. H. Griffith Thomas, D. D., has been a guest of the Institute since June 8. He taught doctrine, gave examples of expository preaching and lectured on pastoral theology and Bible analysis.

EXTENSION DEPARTMENT

The regular workers of the Department spent the month of June as follows: Mrs. Frances C. Allison, who has been with the Bob Jones party throughout the season, was compelled to give up her work and take a rest. George E. Guille spent two weeks in the Institute, and two weeks in special Bible teaching in the railroad Y. M. C. A., Pitcairn, Pa. C. P. Meeker was associated with the Charles T. Wheeler Party in doing special work in the campaign in Granite City, Ill. John C. Page spent a part of the month in the Sunshine Mission, Denver, Colo. Miss Angy Manning Taylor was at St. Louis, Mo., Minneapolis, Minn., and Winona Lake, Ind. Word has just been received from Miss E. Stafford Millar that she expects to arrive in Vancouver, B. C., about July 1, and fully expects to be able to resume her work not later than the first of September.

The following former students have been located in pastorates during the month of May: A. H. Fardon at New Cambria, Mo., Congregational church; James B. Muir at Athens, Ill., Presbyterian church; W. R. Johnson at Green Ridge, Mo., Congregational church.

John J. Foster has accepted the position of assistant to the Rev. G. A. Watermulder, missionary to Winnebago Indians, Winnebago, Neb., and to take charge of Indian church on west side of the reservation.

Floyd Johnson supplies for the summer at the Clinton Avenue Baptist Church, Detroit, Mich.

D. M. Kellam has been engaged to supply the pulpit for the summer in the absence of the pastor of Maple Street Baptist Church, Manistee, Mich.

Allen E. Groeneveld is supplying the Congregational church at Wayland, O.

John C. Page conducted meetings in Denver, Col., during the first week in June. In a letter recently received from the superintendent of the Sunshine Rescue Mission in that city, Mr. Page's work was referred to as follows: "The voice of the Lord sounded through him with no uncertain sound in the upbuilding of the church and reconciling the saints to one another through the unsearchable richness of God's grace. Many souls professed Christ and many who were once 'professors' are now 'possessors' and are able to call Jesus, Lord, by the power of the Holy Ghost. You have made no mistake, I assure you, in adding Brother Page to your already well selected members of your Extension Department."

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Miss Emma Moody Fitt, daughter of Mr. A. P. Fitt, one of the Board of Trustees of the Moody Bible Institute, and granddaughter of D. L. Moody, was a member of the graduating class at the Northfield Seminary, East Northfield, Mass., June 8, 1915.

The students of the Evening Classes and their friends had an outing in Jackson Park on Saturday, June 5. About one hundred were in attendance. The afternoon was spent in playing outdoor games and in races. A baseball contest was held, Mr. Sellers acting as umpire. The bountiful picnic lunch was followed by a brief fellowship service presided over by the Director. Many testimonies were given of the blessing received in studying the Word of God in the Evening Classes. The day was closed with the singing of familiar gospel songs.

The Moody Fellowship of Southern California of which John H. Hunter is Secretary-Treasurer held a meeting on Saturday evening, June 19, in the dining room of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, the occasion being the presence in the city of Rev. William Evans, D. D., the first graduate of The Moody Bible Institute.

CORRESPONDENCE DEPARTMENT

A letter has been received from a chaplain of a penitentiary in the East, saying some of the men were interested in the study of the Bible by correspondence but had no money with which to pay the enrollment fee. He asks if there is a fund out of which such fees could be paid and says that "anyone placing this opportunity of study within reach of these men would be doing a splendid work."

Not infrequently do the most touching letters come from deserving persons saying that they would be glad to enroll as correspondence students but do not have money with which to pay the fee. The department would be glad to receive donations to a fund for the purpose of meeting just such cases.

PERSONALIA

Calvin L. Herrick, '97, is now in his fourth year as pastor of the Baptist church, Worcester, N. Y.

William A. Cook, '93, Bancroft, S. D., is serving two churches in that very needy field and reports progress.

H. P. Hitchcock, '08, pastor of the Congregational church, Sanford, Me., was ordained February 10, 1915.

J. H. Schoechert, '02, pastor of the Moravian church at London, Wis., reports that his work is progressing.

Cora A. Syron, '98, in company with Ruth L. Vorhorst, '11, has been doing home missionary work at Irvine, Ky.

Warren Hoover Hershey, '11, graduated from the Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J., May 20, 1915.

R. E. DeArmond, '99, of Los Angeles, Cal., writes: "I shall never lose the help received while at the Moody Bible Institute."

Irvin Kauffman, '07, minister of the United Evangelical church since leaving the Institute, now has a church in Cleveland, O.

Hartley C. Shafer, '04, is located at Detroit, Mich., where he is deacon in the Ferry Avenue Baptist Church, and teaches an adult Bible class.

Thomas Gordon, '11, missionary under the Congregational Home Missionary Board, is pastor of the Congregational church at Big Horn, Wyo.

R.M. Booth, '09, singing evangelist, will be located this summer at Scottsbluff, Neb., as assistant to the pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church.

John G. Grace, '06, pastor of a Baptist church, Lowell, Mass., is doing a successful work in the State Infirmary singing and talking to the patients.

T. Bertrand Frary, '92, is pastor of the Grand Avenue Baptist Church, St. Louis, Mo. This is a live church. Last year they welcomed exactly 100 new members.

Lovick P. Law, '01, evangelist, Siloam Springs, Ark., will be assisted in his work by his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Storer, who are now with the Billy Sunday party.

Robert A. Cameron, '03, has been located in Anaconda, Mont., since Easter, 1915, as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, which has a membership of nearly four hundred.

Edgar B. Morton, '13, has been taking academic work in Galesburg, Ill., and expects to enter college next year. He has been in charge of the Appleton U. B. mission since January, 1915.

D. H. Barnwell, '07, of Creal Springs, Ill., although unable to do active Christian work on account of the poor health of both himself and wife, is still remaining steadfast in the faith, in spite of suffering.

James F. Dingman, '95, writes from Mount Forest, Ont., "Have been here about five and one-half years; believe in the power of the old gospel; and am preaching the vital truths of a crucified and risen Lord."

Fred A. Enslow, '98, Kewanee, Ill., recently closed a three months revival campaign in some of the Methodist Episcopal churches of Seattle, Wash. After a vacation they expect to resume their work in Iowa about August 1.

Mrs. B. DeYoung, '09, (nee Martha Van Dyke), writes that she and her husband have recently left Gray Hawk, Ky., where they were engaged in work among the mountain whites, to take charge of a small country church at Clymer, N. Y.

O. N. Beldin, '02, has been pastor of the Presbyterian church, Dillowvale, O., since January, 1915. As an indication of the splendid success he is having, he reports that his Sunday-school has already grown in attendance from 22 to 119.

Tilden Sloan, '06, has been pastor of the Congregational church of Kansas City, Kan., since December 1, 1914. He found the church greatly in debt and the people discouraged; now all debts are paid and the church is in a flourishing condition.

Thomas Hodge, '95, is supplying three churches in a missionary field under the Presbyterian Home Mission Board, at Torrington, Wyo. He writes, "I owe all my training for Christian work to the dear Moody Bible Institute. It is dear to my heart."

F. P. Patrono and wife, '02, are laboring as missionaries among the Italians in Calumet, Mich. They find their field a very difficult one on account of a racial prejudice between the Italians from northern Italy, and those from the southern part of that country.

E. L. Reiner, '07, pastor of the Waveland Avenue Congregational Church, Chicago, Ill., has given the members of his church the task of making 2,000 "friendly calls" on families living within a radius of three blocks of his church and his Sunday-school aims to secure 700 members by June 30, 1915.

H. H. Savage, '11, pastor of the Baptist church, Barron, Wis., for a little over three years, is now pastor of the First Baptist Church, River Falls, Wis. During his pastorate in Barron practically every department of his church work was more than doubled, and the work was left in a flourishing condition.

Miss Janet Houston, '12, Pittsburgh, Pa., has been working since the beginning of the year as the church missionary of the Jackson Street Baptist Church, Scranton, Pa., where she will assist in caring for and developing almost nine hundred new members received into that church.

Samuel Martinez, '13, has recently been in Indianapolis, singing in some special meetings in the First Presbyterian Church and at the commencement exercises of the Fishermen's Bible Institute. He also gave some teachings in Hamilton, Ohio, on Bible dispensations, illustrating with chart.

F. C. H. Dreyer, '92, of Hungtung, N. China, writes that he not only rejoices in the steady development of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, but praises the Lord for the work which the Shansi Bible Institute is doing in China. Twenty-nine bright, earnest young men from three provinces of China are taking a two years' course in their school.

J. M. Johnson, '11, Gary, Ind., was elected president of the Illinois Classis of the Reformed Church, U. S. A., May 25, 1915. Mr. Johnson is making a specialty of teaching the Bible in the public schools of Gary. He recently addressed the Woman's Missionary Society of that city on "The Importance of Religious Instruction in the Public Schools."

F. Wight Twigley, '09, Action, Mass., writes: "God has wonderfully blessed my work for Him and my prayers are for the continuance of the great work of the Institute, and that everyone who intends to enter the ministry take the course there, so as to be rooted and grounded in the Bible before going to the seminary."

Frank A. Carpenter, '06, Los Angeles, Cal., is president of the Los Angeles Hermon Club, and consequently his interest is now divided between the Moody Church, the Institute, the Mount Hermon School and the Los Angeles Bible Institute. He sends as his message for the Institute, the verse which Mr. Sankey wrote in his Bible in 1890, Colossians 3: 16.

F. A. Geisenheimer, '99, evangelist, a member of Chicago Presbytery, recently held a series of meetings in Hope Mission and Bible School of Peoria, Ill., of which Rev. C. F. Thomas is superintendent. Mr. Thomas speaks in the highest terms of Mr. Geisenheimer and his work as an evangelist and commends him to any who may need such assistance.

Helen K. Strain, '93, who established a "Home for Girls" at Bluff, Yokohama, Japan, is now entering upon her new field of labor as "Field Secretary" of "The World's Morning Watch" at Albany, N. Y. She writes "An altar in every home" rings in my ear like the voice of God calling me into the homes of the rich and poor."

Norman H. Camp, '00, Bible teacher for the Extension Department, visited Charleston, S. C., and Tifton, Ga., during the months of April and May. The work at Tifton was with the Rev. Daniel Iverson, '11, pastor of the Presbyterian church. At present Mr. Camp is conducting a conservation campaign at Millville, N. J., following the six weeks tabernacle meetings held by the Rev. George W. Anderson and party, resulting in 4,000 conversions. This summer he expects to go to California and Missouri for meetings.

Adelaide L. Stone, '92, missionary, is working in the mountains of northern California, sixty miles from the railroad. She finds there the most awful conditions of sin that she has ever met anywhere, although she has been in the work over twenty years in this country. South America and Porto Rico. The camp has been unusually straitened financially, and the people have had little to give, but the Lord has supplied all her needs without ever taking a collection or asking for money.

G. W. Forman, '02, after serving one year in the Extension Department of the Institute, engaged in evangelistic work until the fall of 1909, when he took a pastorate at Phoenix, Ariz., and joined the conference of the Methodist Church, South. He spent two years at Phoenix, two years at Redlands, Cal., two years at Los Angeles, Cal., and last year was made conference evangelist for southern California and Arizona. He writes "Arizona's going dry" has been a great blessing to the people, and all classes are rejoicing in the change."

Rev. J. C. deBohun, a correspondence student, is in charge of the Mission De la Boca, Buenos Aires, Argentine, and not only preaches the gospel, but ministers to the material, social and moral needs of the people without distinction of nationality or religion. An employment office is also maintained. For the work of charity $500 a month could be used for the relief of the misery that is near at hand in that great city. Any funds contributed to this mission will be forwarded by the Correspondence Department of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

John M. MacInnis, '93, since leaving the Institute has graduated from the Temple University, Philadelphia, Pa., as well as the Syracuse University, Syracuse, N. Y., and has received the degrees of B. A., Litt. D., B. D. and Ph. D. He is now president of the O X B society in the last-named university, and pastor of the largest Presbyterian church in Syracuse, having about 1,000 members, and 850 in the Sunday-school. He writes, "I am endeavoring to preach a full-orbed gospel, and the Lord is graciously blessing my efforts in the salvation of souls."

Larkhall, Strathaven, Airdrie, Carlisle, Lanark, Glassford, Uddingston, Cambusnethan, and Newarthill. In several places a series of addresses were given; in others, only one meeting could be held, but with the use of some very good diagrams and a wide knowledge of this great subject from the Word of God, Mr. Steen made the subject of Christ's coming live before his hearers and much blessing resulted from his visit, as was evident from the many expressions of gratitude received from those who attended the services.—Annual Report of Lanarkshire Christian Union.

Dr. B. M. Platt with a Group of Natives and Workers of the Episcopal Mission, Banguio, P. I.

B. M. Platt, '91, physician, Episcopal mission, Banguio, P. I., is now home at Sheffield, Mass., on furlough for one year. The accompanying picture shows Dr. Platt to the right of a group of natives and workers of the mission.

The following former students of the Institute were commissioners to the General Assembly at Rochester, N. Y. From a geographical standpoint it will be noticed this is a splendid showing: W. Morrison, '03, Colorado; James Watt, '95, Minnesota; A. K. Locker, '10, Arizona; E. C. Cargill, '08, Arkansas; C. R. Scafe, '99, Washington; W. H. Evans, '98, California; J. E. Faucett, '96, Oregon.

On account of the war, it was found impossible to hold the usual Lanarkshire Christian Union convention in October. But God in a wonderful way made up for this by the unexpected visit to our country of Mr. J. Charleston Steen, British Representative of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. As Mr. Steen has given much of his life to the study of prophecy, it was decided to make a tour of some places in the county, giving addresses on that most important truth for the present time—"Our Lord's Second Coming." This was done and we visited Motherwell, Hamilton, Wishaw,

A minister on the advisory board of a theological seminary recently called at the Institute seeking student help, saying that he preferred our students because they were more intelligent in the doctrines of the faith and in their knowledge of the English Bible.

BORN

To Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cadwell, '10, Wilkes Barre, Pa., May 27, 1915, a daughter, Olive Estelle.

To Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Knox, '03, Coffeyville, Kan., May 14, 1915, a son, William Franklin.

MARRIED

Edward Kelley Temple, '06, to Miss Ella Gandy at Homer, La., June 3, 1915. At home at Athens, La.

Frederick W. Christ, '07, to Miss Martha Shroeder at Santa Ana, Cal., June 15, 1915. At home at 1908 Balencia St., Santa Anna, Cal.

Harry James Bray, '13, to Ruth Moerdyke, '14, at Holland, Mich., Tuesday, June 8, 1915. At home at 144 East Sixteenth Street, Holland, Mich.

The Bible Institute Colportage Association

CIRCULATING LIBRARIES FOR NEEDY PREACHERS

The evangelical preacher over a small charge in a remote locality is deserving of thoughtful attention and sympathetic co-operation by those more favorably situated. His outlook upon life in the realm of the mind and heart naturally corresponds with his limited vision in the physical sense. His brain needs the stimulus of other people's ideas expressed in their words. He lacks the inspiration to Christian endeavor which the experience of fellow-laborers elsewhere might give.

To relieve the monotony and ineffectiveness of the condition duplicated in thousands of small and isolated communities is one mission of the truly good book, such as is found among the varied and practical titles of the Moody Colportage Library. Again, the poor preacher that is described is a man of extremely small means which seldom affords an appropriation for library purposes. To such a handicapped servant of the Lord, the "Moody" books will carry cheer, encouragement and definite direction. The donation or loan of even a few carefully chosen, true-to-the-Bible volumes will bring blessing to the donor, as well as to the recipient and those similarly situated to whom the books may also be passed.

For this laudable purpose the books of the Moody Colportage Library are admirably adapted for they are brief, readable, immensely practical, and written by some of the world's most eminent preachers and teachers. Last but not least, they are so inexpensive as to make possible the utmost circulation with a minimum of expense.

"WHY AM I READING THIS?"

There are an immense amount of books in existence which the world would do very well without—even of books which may be called wholesome and unobjectionable, immense fens of stagnant literature which can produce nothing but intellectual malaria. And, as a rule, the reader has to wander in this mighty maze wholly without a plan, without discrimination, and without knowledge. He spends his years in munching crab apples, unconscious of the immediate neighborhood of the choicest fruits of the tree of knowledge. That is an incident which may well cost him his career.

But, at any rate, every reader can exercise this amount of discrimination for himself. He can ask himself occasionally, "To what good shall I read this; or, Why am I reading this?" That is a test thought which is not without use, and which can be applied by everybody. If it be found that the answer is invariably relaxation and amusement, it may suggest to the reader that he might change his course; for, after all, a great deal of literature would be justifiable if we had eternity to read it in, which is intolerable in view of the confined limits of life.—Lord Rosebery, in "The Christian Endeavor World."

TWO COLPORTAGE LIBRARY BOOK CONTRIBUTORS

Mrs. Alfred Gatty, the wife of an English clergyman, was born at Burnham, Essex, June 3, 1809, and died at Ecclesfield, Yorkshire, October 4, 1873. Mrs. Gatty was the younger daughter of the Rev. Dr. Scott, Lord Nelson's chaplain and foreign secretary. She was a lady of fine literary taste, and joined her husband in writing several books, including "Parables from Nature," selected by Mr. Moody for the Colportage Library.

Charlotte Maria Tucker, better known as "A. L. O. E." (A Lady of England) was born in England, May 8, 1821. Her father was Henry St. George Tucker, a prominent Bengal civilian, and later on, chairman of the East India Company. A. L. O. E. is known the world round as a helpful writer for children, though she did not begin to write until after she was thirty. She took a marked interest also in the welfare of industrial schools, prisons, workhouses, etc. She was a liberal woman and led a simple and plain life. When she was thirty-four years old she went as a missionary to India, and worked there for eighteen years. She wrote more than fifty volumes the proceeds of which were used for the benefit of missions. Miss Tucker died in India, December 2, 1893. She was the author of "The Robbers' Cave," an excellent gospel story for boys.

ABOUT BOOKS

There is nothing like books. Of all things sold incomparably the cheapest, of all pleasures the least palling; they take up little room, keep quiet when they are not wanted, and when taken up bring us face to face with the choicest men who have ever lived, at their choicest moments.—Samuel Parker.

Boys, Free from School Duties During the Summer, Make Cheerful and Successful "Book Missionaries." Can Work with a Better Aim Be Suggested for Them?

READING FOR THE CHILDREN

There is no matter of greater importance than the kind of reading we arrange for our children, says "The Herald of Holiness." We are satisfied that one common mistake is in beginning too late. The wise plan is to begin the moment the children can read, and keep books and periodicals of the very best kind always in abundance where they will see and handle them. Then, be a great reader yourself, and the child will inevitably become a reader of that which is always most convenient to him. This is the best and wisest plan for bringing up the children with a taste for the good and pure in literature. It is the best plan also for forestalling the entrance of that which is impure into their hands and their minds. Get the right taste implanted and it will be all but impossible for the wrong to get into their tastes and minds. "The Wesleyan Methodist" gives the experience of one who tried this plan as follows:

"When children began to come into our home," said a wise father the other day, "I resolved to surround them by the very best influences. Good books were purchased and placed where they were easy to find. Religious periodicals were put on the library table. My idea was that as the boys saw their father and mother reading this literature they would be curious to read it for themselves. This was exactly what happened, with the result that they early came into the church as intelligent Christians."

That was fine strategy. It was divinely beautiful craftiness. It caught the boys through their inquisitiveness, the healthy instinct by which the devil allures so many young persons to their destruction. A shudder runs through the soul of the pastor as he looks at the array of wholly unreligious and sometimes unmoral magazines and papers which lie open to the young in the homes he visits. Indeed, without being flagrantly vicious, much of the periodical literature of the day is subtly immoral, being pervaded by false views of life expressed in terms of respectability, but tainted with the poison of an infidelity which is the more dangerous because it is so polite.

A DISCRIMINATING CORRESPONDENT

Cornelia, Ga.

I want nothing but the best of books and magazines—such as Wesley and Moody and Talmage would select, if Jesus were to send them back here for the express purpose to select a library of the best books for both young and old people to read.

F. M. P.

MR. MOODY'S BOOK FUNDS.

The following contributions have been received from May 16, 1915, to June 14, 1915, inclusive:

Prison Book Fund:
6 Contributions	$17.83
Africa Book Fund:
1 Contribution	3.00
Alaska Book Fund:
2 Contributions	5.00
Army and Navy Book Fund:
1 Contribution	3.00
Fire Station Book Fund:
1 Contribution	3.00
Hospital Book Fund:
1 Contribution	3.00
India Book Fund:
1 Contribution	3.00
Lumber Camp Book Fund:
1 Contribution	3.00
Mountain Book Fund:
19 Contributions	56.62
Seamen's Book Fund:
1 Contribution	3.00

FREE GRANTS OF BOOKS

The following donations of the Moody Colportage Library books, Emphasized Gospels of John, etc., have been sent out on account of the several book funds named, from May 16, 1915, to June 14, 1915, inclusive, many of which consignments already have been acknowledged with expressions of hearty appreciation:

Prison Book Fund:
California, 67 books, 15 gospels.
Florida, 13 books, 10 gospels and tracts.
Georgia, 36 books, 30 gospels.
Iowa, 4 books.
Illinois, 40 books.
Ohio, 500 books, 1,000 gospels.
Texas, 74 books, 55 gospels.
Vermont, 50 books, 50 gospels.
Washington, 48 books, 65 gospels.
Mountain Book Fund:
Tennessee, 380 books.
Military Camp Book Fund:
England, 2,000 books.
Seamen's Book Fund:
Illinois, 40 gospels.
Hospital Book Fund:
Illinois, 31 gospels.
Fire Station Book Fund:
Illinois, 12 books.

WANT AN EVANGELIST?

The undersigned, a college and theological school graduate, who spent 14 years in the pastorate and the past 8 years (part of each year) as an evangelist and singer will be pleased to mail pastors an 8 page folder in which others tell of his work. Mr. Miller is author of "Personal Evangelism" and other volumes. Address

REV. RENNETS C. MILLER
Box B 255 Yonkers, N. Y.

Begin now your interest in the New Covenant Mission To the Jews

$1.00 will secure the Glory of Israel, choicest Hebrew Christian Magazine, till 1916, and 50c worth of selected tracts for Jews in different languages, also 50c worth of wonderful Hebrew Christian experiences

Address Rev. Maurice Ruben, Supt., 333 42nd St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

When Planning Evangelistic Meetings write to Lance E. Appley Evangelistic Party

dates now being made for future meetings. Good chorister, Bible teacher, and leader for children's meetings. Single or union, tent or church meetings.

153 Institute Place, Chicago.

WANTED

position as chorus leader and personal worker with a live wire evangelist.

Eight years experience. References cheerfully furnished. Address

C. A. Kemp, Winona, Kas.

To Pastors and Ministerial Associations

Dr. Arthur Crane, Pastor-Evangelist, is booking engagements for Union Meetings 1915-16, or Single Churches in Large Cities. Refers to Dr. Parley E. Zartmann, Sec. Int. Assn., of Evangelists and those he has assisted.

"No Evangelist we ever had came nearer giving perfect satisfaction. He has no objectionable methods, no sensationalism, but only the plain gospel of grace, which he preaches with earnestness and power. Rev. R. B. Garrett, D. D., Portsmouth, Va." Address

810 Flatbush Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Clergymen's INDEX AND FILE

EFFICIENCY is gained by indexing the best you read in books, and filing clippings by our almost automatic Topical & Textual system. 80% cheaper and handier than any other thorough method. Sent on approval. Send for circulars. WILSON INDEX COMPANY, 20 Lovett Pl., Lynn, Mass.

Deeper Experiences of Famous Christians

By J. GILCHRIST LAWSON

Just published. Is the greatest book on the Spirit filled life. 382 pages. Twenty-one full page portraits. Cloth $1; paper 50c. Agents Wanted.

Glad Tidings Pub. Co., Lakeside Bldg., Chicago

Three Powerful Books

BY DR. W. E. BIEDERWOLF.

"Spiritualism," "Russellism Unveiled," "The Unvarnished Truth about Christian Science."

Latest, plainest, and most convincing books on these subjects.

15 cents each, postpaid; 3 for 40 cents
Glad Tidings Publishing Co., Lakeside Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Christian Endeavor Academy

A preparatory home school, co-educational, positively Christian, accredited, in a country village without the saloon; expenses for tuition, board and room for school year, $140 to $160.

W. M. ELLIS, Principal

Endeavor, Wis.

JUST PUBLISHED

THE PRECIOUS PROMISE TESTAMENT

WITH COMPLETE INDEX

The most helpful Testament published. It has all the precious promises in RED. It also has a COMPLETE INDEX to every subject and important word in the New Testament. Descriptive Pamphlet Free. $1.00 BEST LEATHER BINDING ONLY
GLAD TIDINGS PUB. CO., 602 Lakeside Bldg., CHICAGO, ILL.

Private Ambulance

Tel. Superior 615

R. A. ALLEN

Funeral Director

859 North Clark Street

CHICAGO, ILL.

YOU CAN AFFORD

Familiar Songs of the Gospel (No. 1 or 2).

Round or shape notes. $3

per hundred; samples, 5c each. 83 songs, words and music.
E. A. K. HACKETT, FORT WAYNE, INDIANA

CHURCH FURNITURE

Chairs, Pulpits, Pews, Altars, Desks, Book Racks, etc. The finest furniture made. Direct from our factory to your church at wholesale prices. Catalog free.
DeMoulin Bros. & Co. Dept. 69, Greenville, Ill.

RUNYAN RUECKERT Evangelists

have open date for Union or Single Church meeting in September. References furnished. Address

Rev. W. M. Runyan, Baldwin, Kan.

JUST OUT---No. 5---JUST OUT Object Lessons of Scripture

Companion to No. 1, No. 2, No. 3 and No. 4; available for all; 12 Object Lessons in each Pamphlet.

Price, 15c Each. Order by Number

REV. CHAS. EICKENBERG, 4029 N. Hermitage Avenue, Chicago, Illinois

FLORIDA Reclaimed upper Everglades, richest land in the world; easy terms; free booklet and sample of soil; ag'ts w't'd.
J. BARE & CO., 1111 Cornell Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

Don't Take Our Word!

TRY IT YOURSELF FOR 10 DAYS WITHOUT DEPOSIT

If not satisfactory simply return it and no questions asked. The Daus Improved Tip Top Duplicator is the result of 25 years' experience and today is used and endorsed by thousands of business houses and individuals, including prominent Railroad and Steamship companies, Standard Oil Co., U. S. Steel Corporation, etc.

Our negative rolls now have our new "Dausco" Oiled Parchment Back, giving additional strength and efficiency. 100 Copies from pen-written and 50 Copies from type-written originals—Clear, Clean, Perfect.

Complete Duplicator, cap size (prints 8 3/4 x 13 in.) price $7.50. Less Special Discount of 33 and one-third per cent net.....

$5.00

FELIX H. DAUS DUPLICATOR CO., Daus Bldg., 111 John Street, NEW YORK

Make Your Spare Time Pay

Christian men and women can increase their income by representing us in the sale of Wall Mottoes and Texts among their friends and neighbors. Experience unnecessary. Liberal commissions paid. We carry the largest and most complete stock in the United States. Write for particulars.

Reliance Motto Co., 122 West 14th Street, New York City

ARE YOU REACHING THE FOREIGNERS FOR CHRIST?

Don't wait for an interpreter, or for a church to be organized in their midst—offer them the Word of Life in their very tongue. Anyone will accept an attractive-looking book, many will read and heed. We recommend the bright, pointed Gospel messages found in the Moody Colportage Library Series, especially those written by Mr. D. L. Moody himself. They have been mightily used among all classes. Help to extend their ministry for blessing now. See list below:

- No. Swedish—
 25 Vagen Till Gud (The Way to God). D. L. Moody.
 27 Himmelen (Heaven). D. L. Moody.
 29 Segervinnande Bon (Prevailing Prayer). D. L. Moody.
 31 Forborgad Kraft (Secret Power). D. L. Moody.
 33 Udvalda Predikningar (Select Sermons). D. L. Moody.
 35 Bible Berättelser for Barn (Bible Stories for Children).
German—
 37 Der Himmel (Heaven). D. L. Moody.
 39 Verborgene Kraft (Secret Power). D. L. Moody.
 117 Wie Beten Wir? (How to Pray). R. A. Torrey.
 140 Der Weg zu Gott (The Way to God). D. L. Moody.
Danish-Norwegian—
 41 Himmelen (Heaven). D. L. Moody.
 43 Selvende Bon (Prevailing Prayer). D. L. Moody.
 45 Forborgene Kraft (Secret Power). D. L. Moody.
 47 Udvalgte Prædikener (Select Sermons). D. L. Moody.
Spanish—
 97 El Camino Hacía Dios (The Way to God). D. L. Moody.
Bohemian—
 118 Cesta k Bohu (The Way to God). D. L. Moody.
Italian—
 124 La Via Che Mena A Dio (The Way to God). D. L. Moody.

Each book in neat paper covers, 4 1/4 x 6 1/4 inches, about 125 pages per volume, 15 cents; eight copies for $1.00; fifty copies for $5.00 (special). All prepaid.

The Bible Institute Colportage Association
 826 North La Salle Street, Chicago

Fall and Winter Dates

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Harding Song Evangelists for either Pastors or Evangelists

SPECIALTIES

Chorus
 Solo & Duet
 Personal
 Junior chorus
 Chalk talks

WORK

PREPARATION—Both are students of the Moody Bible Inst., Mr. Harding being a graduate as well as a member of the Apollo Music Club, the North Shore Festival Chorus and the I. A. E.

RECOMMENDATIONS—Rev. Parley Zartmann, Winona Lake, Ind., Rev. Peter Ainslie; Chas. Reign Scoville; Fourth St. M. E. Church, Wheeling, W. Va., and many others.

Permanent Addresses

Central, Mexico, Mo. Eastern, Cameron, W. Va. Western, 3312-31st, San Diego, Cal.

Write for Terms and Circular

Pipe Tone Folding Organs $10.00 AND UP

AFTER 30 YEARS' EXPERIENCE in the manufacture of ORGANS we have PERFECTED a FOLDING ORGAN that is without question the best in point of Construction, Durability, Tone and Volume of anything of its kind that has ever appeared on the market—namely—our Waterproof Leatherette Covered Instruments. We can Positively Guarantee that White's system of Leatherette Covered Folding Organs will outwear any other make, 15 year Guarantee or exchanged for new one in 5 years. We Ship Our Organs On Approval—

ABRAHAM LINCOLN once said: "You can fool part of the people all the time, all of the people some of the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all the time."

No one will ever be fooled at anytime who buys on A. L. WHITE'S FOLDING ORGAN. We make folding organs with confidence.

You Are the Judge. Proof of the pudding is the eating thereof. The Best is the Cheapest in the end. We have a few slightly shopworn, and a few rebuilt Organs, good value for the money. Now then it costs money to advertise. To say more costs more, and we would rather put the extra money value into the Organ and give you the benefit. Tell us your needs—place your order with us—The Organ will complete your happiness. Write to-day.

A. L. White Mfg. Co. Dept. C. W. Englewood Ave., Chicago

Typewriters Slightly Used and Rebuilt All Makes—Cash or Payments

Guaranteed perfect machines at a saving of 50% to 75% on manufacturers prices. Write today for our new bargain list.

Ben Samuelson & Co.
217 S. Dearborn St
Chicago, Ill.

Get the Best Selling Hymn Book

THE "NEW MAKE CHRIST KING"

EDITED BY
Prof. E. O. Excell, Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, Dr. H. W. Stough,
Dr. M. H. Lyon and 50 other leading evangelists.

The Latest, Best and Most Popular Hymn Book.

Every Hymn in this Book is a Gem. All the Best Old Favorite Hymns. The Best New Copyright Hymns.

The old "Make Christ King" was the most popular song book on the market, and the new one is better. Send 15c for sample copy.

BIEDERWOLF

EXCELL

STOUGH

LYON

The Glad Tidings Pub. Co., Lakeside Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Perilous Times!!

Like these demand an intelligent study of the revealed Word of God.

Jesus Is Coming!

Don't waste time reading the speculations of unsaved men. Go to the "sure word of prophecy." Buy a copy today of

THE REVELATION

A Student's Handbook By Mrs. Iva Durham Vennard, and get a Sane, Scriptural, Spiritual vision of the plan of redemption as God is now working it out.

Cloth-Bound, $75 per copy, postpaid.

Chicago Evangelistic Institute Press
1754 Washington Blvd. Chicago, Ill.

Prepare Now for the Coming Revival

Rev. Jay J. Pease is now making engagements for the fall and winter of 1915-16. Pastors—have you secured him to help you in meetings? If not, do not wait, but correspond with him at once. Don't try to "get up" a revival, pray one down.

Write today for our new six-page folder containing picture and full particulars of our party, campaigns and meetings; also testimonials as to our methods and work, preaching and singing. Permanent address:

THE PEASE EVANGELISTIC PARTY,
153 Institute Place Chicago, Ill.

Journeys of Jesus A Book for Sunday-school Teachers and Bible Students. Publisher's price, $2.25. Agents wanted. Large commission. Mennonite Publishing Co., Elkhart, Indiana.

WAR

Startling 1915 Prophecies

Redding foretold present War; also Turkish War—gave exact dates 18 years ago; says War and Anarchy will soon reign here; existing Governments and Institutions be utterly destroyed; will drift to religious basis; become bitter beyond description; Multitudes devouring his Inspired book. "Our Near Future"; intensely fascinating; Convincing; Biblical proofs; Creating profound sensation; Startling disclosures. Edition nearly exhausted; Money back if order comes too late. Silk-cloth, 216 pages, postpaid, $1. E. H. Loomis, Peekskill-on-Hudson, N. Y.

Rev. Jas. B. McClure and Evangelistic Party

are receiving calls from the smaller centres for—Union-Meetings—Have open dates. Member of I. A. E. Formerly assistant to Nicholson-Hemmlinger.

Address: Tamaqua, Pa.

25000 CHURCHES USE THE THOMAS INDIVIDUAL COMMUNION SERVICE

Does your church use this cleanly method? If not, send for Catalog and "SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER." Our noiseless, dust-proof, self-collecting trays save 3/4 cost other services. Shallow glass used—no tipping of head. Outfits on trial. State number communicants. Thomas Communion Service Co., Box W Lima, Ohio

The King's Business

Dr. R. A. Torrey, Editor

Published by the

Los Angeles Bible Institute

Los Angeles, California

Price, ONE DOLLAR Per Year

An Undenominational Monthly Magazine, founded upon the Whole Bible and devoted to the dissemination of

The Great Fundamentals of Scripture

As set forth by some of the World's Most Famous Preachers and Writers

A COMPLETE EXPOSITION OF

International Sunday School Lessons

for each month by Dr. R. A. TORREY and T. C. HORTON. Invaluable to every teacher and Bible student. Every Christian home should have it for Daily Devotional Studies in New Testament by Dr. Torrey. Subscribe today

SPECIAL INDUCEMENTS offered to prospective students of our Free Bible School whereby they can pay their living expenses by securing subscribers to The King's Business. Full particulars free by mail.

THE BIOLA BOOK ROOM sells a complete line of religious books, Bibles Testaments and miscellaneous literature on the vital religious subjects, at moderate prices, and in combination with the King's Business.

The King's Business 536 and 538 So. Hope Street
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

Continuing THE INSTITUTE TIE.
Published on the first of each month by
The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

JAMES M. GRAY, Editor.
J. H. RALSTON, Associate Editor.
S. A. WOODRUFF, Publishing Agent.

To Canada, $1.25. To other foreign countries, $1.36 (5s. 7d.). Remittances should be sent by bank draft or postal or express money order, payable to The Christian Workers Magazine. Personal checks must be accompanied with 10 cents additional for exchange.

Change of Address—In sending notice of change of address, give both old and new addresses, and at least fifteen days before the first of the month.

The Wrapper—Indicates the time of expiration of your subscription. Please renew promptly.

Communications should be addressed to
THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE
153-163 Institute Place, Chicago.

Entered as Second-Class Matter, Oct. 7, 1910, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Where to Get What You Want

Advertising under this heading 10 cents
a line. Count seven words to a line

FOR UNION EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS WRITE
Floyd John Evans Party, 186 W. Lake St., Chicago, Illinois.

SONG—"GOD SAVES ETERNALLY," SHEET music, 15c per copy, postpaid. Address, Franklin Babb, Lee's Creek, Ohio.

EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS; UNION OR INDIVIDual Churches. Excellent testimonials. Rev. Joseph
C. Ludgate, Wheaton, Ill.

"FROM BALL ROOM TO HELL," HAVE YOU READ it? 25 cents. Rocky Mountain Pub. Co., 1788 South
Clarkson St., Denver, Colo.

FILMS DEVELOPED AND PRINTED. PICTURES
copied and enlarged. Send for prices. Mahlon C.
Bingham, 272 Genesee St., Auburn, N. Y.

WANTED—EVANGELISTIC MUSICAL DIRECTOR desires to associate with LIVE WIRE Evangelist.
Address communications to (Director) care C. W.
Magazine.

PRINTED PENCILS FOR CHURCH AND SCHOOL.
Work or Business. Great "pulling" medium! A nickel brings samples. Grabill & Co., Lancaster, Pa.

WANT TO RENT GOSPEL TENT, ABOUT 30 x 60
ft. or larger, for July and August. State lowest price. H. Oscar Meyer, 3640 S. Hoyne Ave., Chicago.

A WARNING TO WORLDLY CHRISTIANS, BY LAIC
(The Church Tramp). By mail Five Cents. Alliance News, Birmingham, Mich.

WANTED—SEVERAL HONEST INDUSTRIOUS PEople to introduce religious literature. $60 a month sure. Nichols Co., Naperville, Ill.

SEVENTH DAY ADVENTISM A FALSE SYSTEM—
Ten cents per copy, postpaid; special rates for quantities. Wm. Sickels, Beaumont, Calif.

HALF-TONE ENGRAVINGS AND ELECTROTYPES.
Jos. H. Barnett & Co., 508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago.
Phone Har. 1389. Mail orders promptly filled.

"THE LORD'S RETURN," BY SILVER. ONLY $1.00.
A great history, long awaited. Highly endorsed.
(Revells.) Order of Bible Institute Colportage Ass'n.

VOICE LESSONS—12 SYSTEMATIC STUDIES IN tone production, "Open Throat Method"; mailed on receipt of $1. A Francke, 61 Auditorium Bldg., Dept.
C, Chicago.

FOR RENT—SMALL COTTAGE ON CRYSTAL LAKE.
Mich. Accommodations for 7 people. $7 wk. or $25 mo., July and Aug. E. A. Frisbie, care Christian Workers Magazine.

EVANGELISTS, STUDENTS, PREACHERS NEED
the "BLICK," portable typewriter. Like new. Only $15.00. Factory guaranteed. Leon B. Mayer, Student Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

UNION OR SINGLE EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS;
how to conduct them to obtain the best results.
Address: Wood & Brooks, 1805 East Prairie St., Decatur, Illinois.

FOR SALE—MEDICAL LIBRARY OF DECEASED
Physician, 35 vols. including Osler, 7 vols. (cost $45.00), and Fajous, 6 vols. Sell all for $30.00. Address, R. H. Armstrong, Athens, Pa.

BETTER THAN GOLD! HOW I CAN BE SAVED
and Filled. Book 30c Postpaid. Preface by Dr. C.
I. Scofield and Dr. James M. Gray. Evangelist Robert Layfield, Kansas City, Kan.

COTTAGES FOR RENT AT MOUNTAIN LAKE
Park, Md., Camp Meeting, July 2-12, and during Bible Conference, Aug. 1-8. Also cottages for sale.
Address J. A. Enlow, Mt. Lake Park, Md.

"THE WORLD'S SATURDAY NIGHT"—A LECTURE on the second coming of Christ—46 pp., 10 cents;
Also "Down Grade," 57 pp., 10 cents; These are good.
Address the author, D. R. Raiser, Tiffin, Ohio.

STRONG EVANGELIST, WHO IS ALSO A GOOD singer, now open for evangelistic engagements, union or single. For dates and information, address P. J. W., care of Christian Workers Magazine.

ELDERLY GENTLEMAN WHO HAS TRAVELED extensively, and has some leisure time, would be glad to visit invalid gentleman in or about Chicago, to read or entertain. No remuneration wanted. Address W.
C., care Christian Workers Magazine.

WE NEED A FEW COPIES OF THE MARCH CHRIstian Workers Magazine. If any reader can spare us a copy, it will be appreciated. Address Christian Workers Magazine, 163 Institute Place, Chicago.

EVANGELISTIC PASTOR ABOUT TO GIVE FULL time to evangelistic work desires engagements—with or without chorister—early correspondence invited for meetings. Address Pastor-Evangelist, care
Christian Workers Magazine.

TWO IN ONE. IF YOU CANNOT AFFORD AN evangelist and singer, get Colburn. He preaches and sings. Many years as a gospel singer. Address 1977 Garfield Ave., Kansas City, Kan.

BARGAINS IN BLACKBOARDS. COLLECTION
Plates, Single and Duplex Envelopes, Individual Communion Trays. American Blackboard Co., Gay
Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

UNION EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS—A BOOKLET
on how to arrange for them, by W. F. Shearer, evangelist. Mailed free upon request. Address W. F.
Shearer, Angola, Indiana.

GEORGE PRESTON (IRISH TENOR), GREAT GOSpel Soloist and Leader, reference every meeting past four years, and H. Monroe, Pacific Garden Mission, Chicago. Will help pastors or join good evangelist.
Address, 153 Institute Place, Chicago.

W. E. STRATTON, CHORUS DIRECTOR AND Baritone Soloist. Mrs. Stratton pianist. Open for engagements in Union Evangelistic meetings during season 1915-16. Experienced. Address 113 North Park
St., Bellefontaine, Ohio.

ENGAGEMENTS FOR EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS, union or denominational, in churches, hall, or in our portable tabernacle, rent free, saving building expenses. Address H. B. Seese, 641 Linden, Johnstown, Pa.

WANTED—A CHRISTIAN YOUNG MAN WITH knowledge of bookkeeping and some experience. A good opening for one willing to work. Address Best Book Publishers, care this Magazine. Give age, experience and church reference.

THE FRAZIER EVANGELISTIC PARTY, CONSIST- ing of four members, is ready for engagements. Jacob A. Frazier of Winchester, Ind., the evangelist. Good references can be furnished. Terms reasonable. Union campaigns preferred.

J. O. DONER—GOSPEL SINGER AND PERSONAL worker. Mrs. Doner, pianist. Now open for dates for the fall of 1915 and spring 1916. Have experience in church and tabernacle work. Write for references, 13010 Euclid Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

THE CHARLES MUNDELL EVANGELISTIC PARTY is open for correspondence in regard to revival campaigns anywhere in the United States. References, terms, and plans will be cheerfully sent upon request. Address P. O. Box 223, Grand Saline, Texas.

THOMAS EVANGELISTIC PARTY CONDUCTED successful meetings in Illinois last year at Farmer City, Rantoul and Rankin. In Kansas at Quenemo and Cimarron. Now booking dates. T. Edward Thomas, 1208 Broadway, Muncie, Ind.

I WILL DO YOUR RUG CLEANING AND REPAIR- ing in Chicago. Also sell carpets and rugs, and have vacuum machines for rent by day or hour. Cleaning 12½ cents sq. yd. Churches, schools or houses cleaned. Yodeda L. James, 914 Rush St., Chicago.

WANTED—DONATIONS OF $1 AND UP TO HELP build a new church in a frontier town where a revival has swept the community and no building large enough to hold services. A good opportunity to do home missionary work. It is an urgent call. Help us. Send donations to Rev. J. J. Fleming, Calhan, Colo.

WANTED—MEN AND WOMEN EVERYWHERE. Government Jobs. $70 month. Short hours. Vacations. Rapid advancement. Steady work. Many appointments during Summer and Fall. Common education sufficient. Full unnecessary. Write immediately for list of positions now obtainable. Franklin Institute, Dept. A. 122, Rochester, N. Y.

HEART AND LIFE SONGS—A NEW, HIGH-GRADE Collection of over 160 sweet songs of salvation. Contains ALL of Evangelist George Bennard's songs, such as "The Old Rugged Cross," "Jesus Is Dearer Than All," etc. Choruses, hymns, solos, duets. Just what you are looking for. Limp cloth, $0.20 per copy, postpaid. INSTITUTE PRESS, 1754 Washington Blvd., CHICAGO.

MEN AND WOMEN, BOYS AND GIRLS, WANTED as representatives for the Christian Workers Magazine in every church and town. Liberal commission allowed on all orders. Whether you wish to take subscriptions to make money, or only to help us along, send us your name at once. Agents Dept., Christian Workers Magazine, Chicago, Ill. See advertisement elsewhere of 2 cents a week plan.

"FLASHES FROM THE WIRE," BOOK OF RED hot revival sermons, that have won thousands to Christ. It takes brains to appreciate brains. If you are slow as a crippled snail, or a candidate for the position of driving a hearse, don't send. If you want something that is up to snuff, or a pinch or two over, send sixty cents to Dan Shannon, Stanwood, Mich., and you will get your money's worth.

SEND FOR FREE CIRCULAR OF OUR ACCIDENT and health policy. $7.50 a year buys our Accident and Health Policy, which pays $3,500 for loss of life or serious dismemberment; increasing 10 per cent a year until 50 per cent has been added, but no increase in cost. Also provides weekly benefits for loss of time, $20 to $40 a week; hospital benefits, also emergency relief fund of $100, if sick or hurt away from home. Company in business more than 20 years; assets more than $1,000,000. Details on request. Chas. A. Jamison, General Agent, Indianapolis, Ind.

WHO WILL CONTRIBUTE TO SEND THE CHRIS- tian Workers Magazine to the Y. M. C. A. reading rooms in the training camps for soldiers going to the war? Many of the young men are confessing Christ and will appreciate this magazine as a help to them. Send gifts, any amount, to The Christian Workers Magazine, 163 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

SECOND HAND BOOKS

Select stock, fine condition; also new books of all publishers; special prices; catalog free.

Hays, Cushman Co., 201 Athenaeum Bldg., Chicago

10 DAYS FREE TRIAL IN YOUR HOME

NO IFS, ANDS or BUTS ABOUT IT. We want you to test the "COMFORT" self-heating gasoline iron in your home at our expense. If you decide to keep it—the price is ONLY $3.75 postpaid. The latest invention in gasoline appliances. It is stove, fuel, heat, all in one. Fire's inside. Carry it about. Iron any place. Don't stay in hot kitchen. Save time, labor and money. It does ordinary family ironing and you do it in the cool "COMFORT-ABLE" way. Write for illustrated circular and FREE TRIAL OFFER.

F. F. BRANAN CO., 724 Lakeside Bldg., Chicago

AN EVANGELISTIC Baptist Seminary

John Marvin Dean, President of the Northern Baptist Theological Seminary of Chicago, is a member of the Commission on Evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ of North America. He was formerly an evangelist and has preached around the world the unsearchable riches of Christ.

Four great evangelists are on the advisory board—W. E. Biederwolf, J. Q. A. Henry, T. T. Martin and W. B. Riley.

The Seminary offers a special course on Evangelism—Vocational, Parishional and Personal. The Seminary is the first to offer a scholastic degree to accredited evangelists. The degree of Graduate of Evangelism (Ev. G.) is offered for one year's resident work at the Seminary and three years of study while in the evangelistic field.

The faculty is composed of soul-winning men. The students are required to maintain the evangelistic spirit. Thirty-one courses of study are offered, ten of these in English Bible.

Friends of evangelism are asked to investigate and support by prayers and gifts the

Northern Baptist Theological Seminary
Corner Jackson Blvd. and Lincoln St.
CHICAGO

SEND FOR CATALOGUE

See some of our students in photo, page 640

Smith-Peloubet Bible Dictionary, morocco, indexed, with one year's subscription to the Christian Workers Magazine - - - $2.25

The King's Business with Christian Workers Magazine for one year - - - $1.75

Lincoln --- The Man, by Ida M. Tarbell. 2 vols. with one year's subscription to the Christian Workers Magazine - - - $2.50

Songs For Service Facts in a Nutshell

288 pages, printed from new plates, on better-than-usual paper, and very attractively bound, the cloth edition in special made-to-order cloth.

A department of Children's Songs.
A department of Men's Songs.
A department of Chorus Selections.
A department of Invitation Hymns.
A department of Devotional Hymns.
A fine selection of Devotional Readings.
All the old favorites of the "Billy" Sunday campaigns.

Dozens of new songs that have been tested in the "Billy" Sunday campaigns, that have been received with great enthusiasm and that have as yet never appeared in any book.

ORCHESTRATED FOR TWELVE INSTRUMENTS.

SHAPED NOTE EDITION FOR THE SOUTHERN TRADE.

Another Great Rodeheaver Songbook

The foremost factor, the most dynamic force in the evangelistic movements of the present day is "Billy" Sunday and the "Billy" Sunday campaigns. High amongst the compelling forces that contribute to the great successes of these campaigns is the marvelous singing, in which tens of thousands of people led by mammoth choirs under the direction of Mr. Homer A. Rodeheaver peal forth the old Gospel Story in volume and grandeur never before heard by mortal ear.

As has always been the case in the history of great evangelistic movements, the "Billy" Sunday campaigns have brought to the fore a new and immensely popular class of gospel songs—in this case they are popularly known as "the Billy Sunday songs." These popular and very effective songs are the product of The Rodeheaver Company. Many of them were in our two previous great books—"Great Revival Hymns" and "Great Revival Hymns No. 2." Nearly two million copies of these two books have been sold and the demand for them is unabated. And now comes a new and, we fully believe, greater Rodeheaver songbook—which contains the best of these popular favorites and in addition contains a large number of new songs that have been thoroughly tested in the Sunday campaigns and elsewhere, but as yet have not appeared in any other book. There is not a bit of deadwood in the whole book. There are very few pieces (outside the old hymn section) on which the copyright is more than a few years old. There is a bunch of real, live, vigorous evangelistic music between its covers such as never before has been gathered within the limits of one book.

Songs for Service

This great new songbook is the joint work of CHAS. H. GABRIEL and HOMER A. RODEHEAVER. The former is the greatest living composer of gospel songs and the latter's connection with the Sunday campaigns enables him to learn unerringly just what songs are most useful to the masses. The result of their labors is the most useful, the most comprehensive, the most effective gospel songbook yet compiled.

But—don't take our word for it. Apply at once for a copy of SONGS FOR SERVICE for FREE EXAMINATION. It will be ready for delivery about July 1, 1915. Just drop us a card saying that you want a copy for 15 days' examination; that you will return it in good condition at the end of that time if you do not wish to retain it; or, if you wish to retain it, you will promptly remit the price—35c for cloth-bound, 25c for limp cloth, 20c for manila. Be sure to state which binding you desire to examine.

440 South
Dearborn St.
CHICAGO

T H E R O D E H E A V E R C O .
G O S P E L M U S I C

46 North
Twelfth St.
PHILADELPHIA

739-830

Deep
XV no 12

LEVEL
ONE

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

JAMES M. GRAY
EDITOR

J. H. RALSTON
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

CHICAGO IN SUMMERTIME

View in Lincoln Park Near Grant Monument—Lake Michigan to the Rear, Just Over the Hill

$1.00 a Year

AUGUST, 1915

10 Cents a Copy

Here We Come Again! Eleventh Wonder!

Bilhorn Suit Case Organ

STYLE "S"

A JEM

A JEWEL

A JOY

Finest of Them All

A Musical Wonder in the Musical World

The Most Unique Invention

Charmingly Beautiful

More Convenient than a Suit Case

No Burden nor Embarrassment

Weight only 17 LBS.

It is the smallest folding organ in the world, yet perfect in every detail and meeting every demand for efficiency.

Simplicity Personified

Hitherto, efforts to construct as light a weight organ as possible have been done at the expense of durability. In this organ we have produced the lightest weight organ ever made without sacrificing in strength and durability. We accomplished this compactness through our new folding device, which is simplicity personified. In tone it has volume of surprising power and sweetness. It is sure to prove popular in the house, cottage meetings, street and shop meetings, class rooms, camp meetings, Sunday Schools and especially with missionaries and those who travel great distances.

Construction

The case is well built of 3-ply veneering, as all of our high-class organs are, all joints strongly glued and fastened, after which it is carefully treated and covered with water-proof pebble grain leatherette covering which greatly protects the exterior as well as the interior of the organ, strengthens the case and when mounted with the brassed trimmings gives it a very handsome and rich appearance.

When open, the double acting cover forms a book rest, convenient to the player. When closed the organ measures in height 15 inches, length 23½ inches, and width 6½ inches. We can furnish either Concert or International pitch, Loud or Soft tone.

BILHORN TELL
Folding ORGANS HE ALE

$10 UP We Guarantee
Send for Catalogues

BILHORN BROTHERS
136 W. Lake St., CHICAGO

As Conditions Demand

While we need the Administration Building very much, our need for general maintenance is now so urgent that it is necessary to use our space in this issue to bring the matter to the attention of readers of The Christian Workers Magazine.

We face the question of raising $16,000 before August 31st, or of closing our books on that date with a deficit.

By the multiplicity of small gifts this need can be met and we appeal to you to be one of the number to lend your help, before our fiscal year closes.

927 students have been enrolled in resident work this year, besides over 500 in the Evening Classes and 2400 in the Correspondence Department

The sum of $16,000 mentioned above is in addition to what we usually receive during August from those who give regularly to the work

Will You Help!

If you cannot send the money now, please indicate in blank, the amount you will give, and send it to us NOW so we will know what to expect.

The Moody Bible Institute

153 Ins'titute Place
Chicago

The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

I will give $..... before August 31st, 1915, to meet the need for general maintenance.

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

DATE _____

Are You Armed? Have You Ammunition?

The loudest cry now made by the leaders in the European war is not for men, nor camp and hospital equipment, but ammunition. That is precisely the need of today on the part of the soldiers of Jesus Christ. The arsenal of God is fortunately full but the soldiers are not supplying themselves sufficiently. That arsenal is the Bible. There is where the 42 centimeter truths, the quick firing truths, and the keen sword of the Spirit are found.

The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago has the means of helping thousands of Christians to get into the arsenal of God, wherever they may be found—in city or countryside, in the home land or foreign land—in short, wherever the mails go.

Write for full particulars about the following courses:

Introductory Bible Study, Synthetic Bible Study, Bible Doctrine, Bible Chapter Summary, Practical Christian Work, Christian Evidences, Evangelism and the

SCOFIELD BIBLE CORRESPONDENCE COURSE

ADDRESS

THE MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE

153-163 Institute Place

Department 3

Chicago, Ill., U. S. A.

Pipe Tone Folding Organs $10.00 AND UP

AFTER 30 YEARS' EXPERIENCE in the manufacture of ORGANS we have PERFECTED a FOLDING ORGAN that is without question the best in point of Construction, Durability, Tone and Volume of anything of its kind that has ever appeared on the market—namely—our Waterproof Leatherette Covered Instruments. We can Positively Guarantee that White's system of Leatherette Covered Folding Organs will outwear any other make. 15 year Guarantee or exchanged for new one in 5 years. We Ship Our Organs On Approval—

ABRAHAM LINCOLN once said: "You can fool part of the people all the time, all of the people part of the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all the time."

No one will ever be fooled at anytime who has seen a WHITE PIPE-TONE FOLDING ORGAN. Remember, we make folding organs with COUPLEDERS.

You Are the Judge. Proof of the pudding is the eating thereof. The Best is the Cheapest in the end. We have a few slightly shopworn, and a few rebuilt Organs, good value for the money. Now then it costs money to advertise. To say more costs more, and we would rather put the extra money value into the Organ and give you the benefit. Tell us your needs—place your order with us—The Organ will complete your happiness. Write to-day.

A. L. White Mfg. Co. Dept. C. W. Englewood Ave., Chicago

A Book of Especial Helpfulness!

THE NEW LIFE IN CHRIST JESUS

by

Rev. C. I. SCOFIELD, D. D.

CHAPTER TITLES:

- I. The Inner Life
- II. The Imparted Life
- III. The Tragedy of the Inner Life
- IV. The Delivered Life
- V. The Larger Christian Life
- VI. The Spirit-Controlled Life
- VII. The Joyous Life
- VIII. True Consecration
- IX. Defilement and Cleansing

If the reader is tired of an unfruitful and defeated life—an experience called "Christian," but without joy and victory over sin—there is a clear message of hope and instruction for him in these winsome addresses. They have been blessed to hundreds but now they go forth to minister similarly to thousands.

16mo, Art Stock Covers, 25 cents net (postage 4c extra); Fine Cloth Covers, 50 cents net (postage 6c extra).

The Bible Institute Colportage Association
826 NORTH LA SALLE STREET, CHICAGO

THE Christian Workers Magazine

Continuing THE INSTITUTE TIE

New Series, Vol. XV

AUGUST, 1915

No. 12

Editorial Notes: Cut From the Loaf; Urban Attractions;
The Cat Out O' the Bag; Munition Wanted; Listen to This!; Paul's Sociology; "Erudite Piffle"; "Pastor"
Russell's Heresies; The Moody Bible Institute Gospel Party

Editorial Notes: Cut From the Loaf; Urban Attractions; The Cat Out O' the Bag; Munition Wanted; Listen to This!; Paul's Sociology; "Erudite Piffle"; "Pastor" Russell's Heresies; The Moody Bible Institute Gospel Party	739
I Am the Way, the Truth, the Life (Poem).....	Ella E. Pohle 742
The Life-Story of a Great Scholar.....	William M. Ramsay 743
The Footprints of God in the Temperance Movement.....	A. C. Dixon 747
"The Blessed Hope" (Poem).....	Homer Black 750
Satan's Great Masterpiece.....	Gerrit Huyser 751
The Word "We" in the Epistles.....	W. J. Erdman 755
The Kingdom of Heaven—What It Means.....	C. I. Scofield 756
"Pastor" Russell's Christ Not the Christ of the Bible.....	Philip Sidersky 758
China Inland Mission Jubilee Conference.....	S. A. Woodruff 760
Psalm 37: 1-7 (Poem).....	Charles F. Sheldon 762
A Rejoinder From a Christian Scientist.....	763
The Revival of Revivalism.....	764
The Christian Endeavor Convention at Chicago.....	S. A. Woodruff 766
Sunday Good—Should Be Better.....	768
He Holdeth Me Safe in His Arms (Song).....	E. O. Sellers 770
Practical and Perplexing Questions Answered.....	Editors 771
The Laymens Commentary on the Old and New Testa- ments.....	James M. Gray 773
International Sunday-school Lessons.....	E. O. Sellers 777
For Sermon and Scrap Book.....	William Norton 781
Book Notices.....	784
The Gospel in the World.....	E. A. Marshall 786
Notes and Suggestions.....	J. H. Ralston 788
The Evangelistic Field.....	S. A. Woodruff 790
Forthcoming Conferences or Important Dates.....	793
The Moody Bible Institute.....	W. J. Kramer 794
The Bible Institute Colportage Association.....	798
Index to Volume XV.....	805

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE: $1.00 a year to any address in the United States or its possessions, or in Mexico. To Canada, $1.25. To other foreign countries, $1.36 (5s 7d). 10 cents a copy. Remittances should be sent by bank draft, or postal or express money order.

Advertising Rates Sent on Application.

Do not make checks or money orders payable to individuals, but to

The Christian Workers Magazine

153-163 INSTITUTE PLACE, CHICAGO

Copyright, 1915, by The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

A GREAT BIBLE NUMBER

The Bible as Literature

By PHILIP WENDALL CRANNELL, D. D.
President Kansas City Baptist Theological Seminary

The Bible, the Christian's Standard of Faith

By ROBERT McWATTY RUSSELL, D. D.
Teacher of Bible Doctrine and Homiletics in the MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE

The Bible in Relation to Soul-Winning

By THE REV. FULLER GOOCH
LONDON, ENGLAND

The Art of Expounding the Bible

By PASTOR JOSEPH W. KEMP
EDINBURGH, SCOTLAND

The Bible and Some of Its Critics

By EVANGELIST F. O. CUNNINGHAM
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Bible in the Public Schools

From "BIBLE IN SCHOOL PLANS OF MANY LANDS"

By REV. WILBUR F. CRAFTS, Ph. D.

The Christian Workers Magazine For SEPTEMBER

10c a copy

Tell Your Friends About It

$1 a year

"I Can Make You A Convincing Speaker— A Powerful Preacher"

Says Grenville Kleiser, Former Instructor, Yale Divinity School

His Mail Course in Public Speaking and the Development of Self-Confidence, Power and Personality has developed thousands of clergymen into persuasive, polished pulpit orators.

This Course Will Surely Teach You

HOW TO SPEAK ON ALL OCCASIONS

Confidently—Fluently—Powerfully
HOW TO

Make After-Dinner Speeches—
Propose Toasts—
Tell Stories—
Address Board Meetings—
Develop Power and Personality—
Improve Your Memory—
Increase Your Vocabulary—
Acquire Poise and Self-Confidence—
Speak and Write English Correctly—
Earn More—Achieve More.

Rev. Donald MacIntyre, Calvary Baptist Church, New York City, says: "I can not adequately express my appreciation of this Course in Public Speaking. I shall be happy to give it my unqualified endorsement whenever occasion permits."

"It is a great aid toward carrying conviction to the hearer," says Rev. Matthew J. Helmig, Burkettsville, Ohio.

This widely commended Course will organize your every force toward the attainment of great success in the pulpit, and if this is true, you certainly want to know about it. Send a post-card today for full, free particulars of this novel and eminently successful work.

Dept. 416, Funk & Wagnalls Company, New York, N.Y.

Suppose America Went to War?

Would you a Christian, join in the wholesale murder and butchery? In other words

SHOULD A CHRISTIAN FIGHT?

This burning question is treated in a simple, clear, convincing and Scriptural manner in BLOOD AGAINST BLOOD by A. S. Booth-Clibborn, son-in-law of the late General Booth, of the Salvation Army. Many who have read it have only one dictum, "It is unanswerable."

The Life of Faith says: "Mr. Clibborn's book is an appeal to Christians, and if it is read by such it can hardly fail to inspire something of the passion and enthusiasm with which it has been written. His experience of the military systems on the Continent gives him a right to speak that few advocates of peace possess."

PRICE

50c

Bible Institute Colportage Association, R 27, 826 N. LaSalle Street
CHICAGO

D. B. TOWNER FOLDING ORGAN An organ that IS an organ

GUARANTEED FOR FIFTEEN YEARS against defective parts!

The RICH PIPE-TONE of the TOWNER ORGAN is surprisingly pleasing. The Reeds are a special scale, made of the finest pipe and bell metal obtainable. They are guaranteed not to rust or corrode, and will stand in tune indefinitely. The case is made of laminated, or three-ply, basswood, which obviates all danger of splitting, warping, swelling or shrinking. It is covered with beautiful wairus leatherette, also waterproof, and handsomely embossed. The case is very rigid when in use, being supported by automatic spring-stays and resting upon extra heavy rubber feet.

Other Points of Superiority Summarized

Easy action. Metal foot-guard. Superior swell effect. Riveted pedals. Continuous music desk. Compactness when folded. Waterproof cement glue joints. Stands the test of hot and damp climates. Convenient height for playing. Music holder keeping sheet music or book flat and in position for reading. Double reinforced gum rubber sheeting used in the bellows. Patent inverted extra large bellows—30 lbs. spring pressure. Middle board securely braced overcoming the usual jerky, "short-winded" effect. Case handsomely ornamented with nickel and oxidized trimmings and embossed designs.

PRICES: Carefully crated or boxed for immediate shipment to any part of the world.
 3 ¼ Octaves, F to G. Size closed, 28 ¾ in. long, 10 ¾ in. deep, 13 in. high. All leatherette covered.
 Single Reed (28 ½ lb. net).....$23.00 net
 Double Reed (30 lb. net).....25.00 net
 5 Octaves, F to F. Size closed, 35 ¾ in. long, 10 ¾ in. deep, 19 in. high.
 Double Reed (42 lb. net).....$35.00 net

Send for descriptive list of the Non-Folding TOWNER ORGAN, ranging from $15 upwards.
 THE BIBLE INSTITUTE COLPORTAGE ASSOCIATION, 826 North La Salle Street, Chicago.

Smith-Peloubet Bible Dictionary, morocco, indexed, with one year's subscription to the Christian Workers Magazine - - - $2.25

The King's Business with Christian Workers Magazine for one year - - - $1.75

Lincoln --- The Man, by Ida M. Tarbell. 2 vols. with one year's subscription to the Christian Workers Magazine - - - $2.50

Agents Wanted for
The Christian Workers Magazine.

Presbyterian Theological LOUISVILLE Seminary KENTUCKY

Full staff of professors. Modern curriculum with practical training. Expenses moderate. Students received from any Evangelical Church. Session begins October 6, 1915. Write the President.

Charles R. Hemphill

Oskaloosa College, Oskaloosa, Iowa

Departments: Graduate, College, Divinity, Normal, Commercial, Preparatory, and Music, by mail and in residence. Degrees conferred. Grades from standard institutions and conference work accepted. Catalog.

37¢

buys this guaranteed $1.50 self-filling fountain pen, delivered to any address.

SPECIAL Send $1.00 and receive above pen, together with 3 extra points, 14K gold, to fit above pen, value 75c, and a guaranteed silver-plated safety razor and 6 blades, value $1.00. All above listed goods sent to you prepaid for only $1.00. Express or money order. Address J. H. Wiens & Co., Clarkboro, Sask., Can.

"A DREAM OF HISTORY

Or Is the World Growing Better or Worse?"

and

"THAT BLESSED HOPE

Or The Second Coming Of Christ?"

are the titles of two Chapters in

Satan and the Saint

Or The Present Darkness and the Coming Light

by

Dr. JAMES M. GRAY

"A most timely book, in which is clearly and concisely answered some of the perplexing and vital questions of belief that every Christian, and those who are not Christians, should have settled, such as, the personality and power of Satan; the evil of Christian Science; Spiritualism; Millennial Dawnism or Russellism."

128 pages, clear print, with paper covers, 15 cents; eight for $1.00. Attractive cloth edition, 50 cents net.

The Bible Institute Colportage Association

826 North La Salle Street, CHICAGO

President Charles A. Blanchard's New Book Getting Things From God

CONTENTS

PART ONE.

- I. WHAT IS IT TO PRAY?
- II. Talking With God.
- III. What Is an Answer to Prayer?
- IV. Can a Sinner Pray?
- V. Do Christians Always Pray?
- VI. The Sin of Prayerlessness.
- VII. Dialogue or Monologue?

PART TWO.

- THE CONDITIONS OF SUCCESSFUL PRAYER.
- I. The Secret of Submission To God's Will.
- II. "With Thanksgiving."
- III. "Confess Your Faults One to Another and Pray."
- IV. "Whatsoever Ye Shall Ask in My Name."
- V. "According To His Will."
- VI. Without Faith, It Is Impossible To Please Him.
- VII. "Always To Pray, and Not To Faint."

PART THREE.

- WHY DOES GOD ANSWER PRAYER?
- I. Because He Has Promised To Do So.
- II. Loving His Own, He Loved Them To the End.
- III. God Wishes Us To Serve Others.
- IV. Tapping the Infinite Reservoirs.
- V. "Knoweth That Ye Have Need of These Things."
- VI. The "Why" of Christian Science.

PART FOUR.

- HOW DOES GOD ANSWER PRAYER?
- I. By Changing Those Why Pray.
- II. By Directing Minds To Sources of Help.
- III. By Changing the Order of Nature.
- IV. By Changing the Hearts of Men.
- V. A Few Words at Parting.

12mo, 270 pages, paper, 35 cents, net, postage extra, 5 cents; fine cloth, 75 cents, net, postage extra, 8 cents.

THE BIBLE INSTITUTE COLPORTAGE ASS'N
826 North La Salle Street CHICAGO

DR. SCOFIELD REVIEWS

Dr. Gray's New Commentary

This article, from The Sunday School Times, reviews The Christian Workers Commentary on the Old and New Testaments, by James M. Gray, D. D., Dean of The Moody Bible Institute; Consulting Editor of the Scofield Reference Bible; Author of "Synthetic Bible Studies," etc.

At last! A truly competent commentary on the whole Bible in one volume, and for a price within the reach of all. These are desiderata long agreed upon, but never, in a really popular sense, met before.

Dr. Gray brought to the task of producing such a book the powers at their maturity that have made him one of the foremost Bible teachers of the English-speaking world. Clearness of thought; the mastery of condensed expression without the sacrifice of lucidity; immense industry; adequate scholarship; thoroughness; a joyous trust in the truth of the Scriptures; a spiritual mind, and that sense of relative values, of proportion, of what is supremely important where all is precious—these qualities, schooled and disciplined in above thirty years of Bible teaching, have made this book possible.

As to method, Dr. Gray has taken the English Bible as he finds it. For better or for worse—I think greatly for the better, our Bible, the Bible of the people, is in chapters. Theoretically, division by paragraph seems to many the more logical way; but then there is endless disagreement as to where the paragraphs begin and end. In any case it is a question for scholars interested in abstract questions.

But, while the comment follows the order of the chapters, it does so for convenience only. Always there is in view the book of which the chapter is a part, and the distinctive place of that book in the Divine revelation; and the treatment, though specific as to the chapter, produces a growing, and at the last irresistible, sense of the unity of the Scriptures.

Dr. Gray freely uses the Socratic method—which is also the biblical method—of question teaching. This not only gives a vivid interest to the study of Scripture, but compels clear and accurate thinking. The vice of much so-called Bible study is vagueness of result. We remember only that which we have clearly understood.

It seems to me that no English-speaking Christian can afford to be without this book.

And that inclines one to quarrel a little with the title. "Christian Worker" has come to signify a Christian other than a minister who is in some form of definite work for Christ. But no one will benefit from the use of this book in equal measure with the minister. Not at all because his special training will make it clearer to him than to any layman, but because it opens such treasures of preaching material. The minister who will make a re-study of his Bible by the method of this Commentary will rise from that study with more sermons than he will live long enough to preach.

But it remains true that this is eminently the Commentary of the people. No Sunday-school teacher can afford to be without it, and in any Christian home it will enrich the family devotions, answer the children's questions, and stimulate the study of the sacred Oracles.

I cannot forbear expressing my earnest wish that every possessor of the Scofield Reference Bible, in the preparation of which Dr. Gray was my valued counselor, might also have this great Commentary.

C. I. SCOFIELD.

$2⁵⁰

The Christian Workers Commentary is given with a year's subscription to The Christian Workers Magazine (new or renewal) for only

$2⁵⁰

The Christian Workers Magazine 163 Institute Place Chicago

Make Your Spare Time Pay

Christian men and women can increase their income by representing us in the sale of Wall Mottoes and Texts among their friends and neighbors. Experience unnecessary. Liberal commissions paid. We carry the largest and most complete stock in the United States. Write for particulars.

Reliance Motto Co., 122 West 14th Street, New York City

NOTE THE SIMPLICITY

of making perfect Duplicates with the

Daus Improved Tip Top Duplicator

No intricate mechanism. No printers' ink. Always ready.

100 Copies from Penwritten and 50 Copies from Typewritten Original

Useful in any business for making duplicates of circular letters, trial balances, invoices, price lists, reports, menus, manuscripts, drawings, specifications, etc.

Sent on 10 Days' Trial Without Deposit

Our negative rolls now have our new "DAUSCO" OILED PARCHMENT BACK, giving additional strength and efficiency. Complete Duplicator, cap size. Prints 8 3/4 x 13 inches. PRICE, $7.50. Less 33 1-3 per cent discount.....

$5.00

Circular of larger sizes upon request

FELIX H. DAUS DUPLICATOR CO., Daus Bldg., 111 John Street, NEW YORK

CHURCH FURNITURE

Chairs, Pulpits, Pews, Altars, Desks, Book Racks, etc. The finest furniture made. Direct from our factory to your church at wholesale prices. Catalog free.

DeMoulin Bros. & Co. Dept. 99, Greenville, Ill.

"Rescue the Perishing"

The Great Personal Workers' Book

The best recommendation this book can have is the fact that it is the outgrowth of the experience of the MOST SUCCESSFUL PERSONAL WORKERS and SOUL WINNERS.

By FRED R. SEIBERT

It is the very Best Book for Personal Workers

It contains 130 Pages of Bible Helps

Carefully arranged and indexed so as to enable anyone to turn instantly to verses on any important subject—"How to Become a Christian," "Regeneration," "Repentance," "Unbelief," "False Hope," "Difficulties," "How to Study the Bible," "Assurance," "Prayer," "Amusements," "Conversion," "Soul Winning," "Secret of Victory Over Sin." The book is vest pocket size, 3x5 1/2 inches.

In Bright Red Manilla, 10c; by the hundred, $6.00; by doz., $1.00. In Morocco, 25c; by the hundred, $18.00; by doz., $2.40.

Rev. W. A. Sunday, the Famous Evangelist, says: "This book is the result of a life time of research and practical effort, and has been forged on the anvil of experience." Every Teacher, Preacher, Student and Religious Society should have this book. AGENTS WANTED. Special rates in quantity. Write for terms.

Over 100,000 Have Been Sold. Order Now. Mention The Christian Workers Magazine.

Address orders (Coin or P. O. Order) to FRED R. SEIBERT, care Rodenheaver Co., 440 S. Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.

DON'T BE FOOLISH

And Pay Fancy Prices For Large Hymn Books
"Best Hymn" has plenty 100. Million sold. Manilla cover $5.00 per 100; Limp cover $8.00 per 100; Cloth cover $15.00 per 100.
Evangelical Publishing Co. Lakeside Bldg. Chicago, Ill.

Private Ambulance

Tel. Superior 615

R. A. ALLEN

Funeral Director

859 North Clark Street

CHICAGO, ILL.

Clergymen's INDEX AND FILE

EFFICIENCY is gained by indexing the best you read in books, and filing clippings by our almost automatic Topical & Textual system. 80% cheaper and handier than any other thorough method. Sent on approval. Send for circulars. WILSON INDEX COMPANY, 20 Lovett Pl., Lynn, Mass.

BE SURE IT'S A THOMAS INDIVIDUAL SERVICE COMMUNION USED IN OVER 25,000 CHURCHES

Does your Church use this Cleanly method? Send for catalog of noiseless, dust-proof, self-collecting tray—saves 1/4 cost of other services. Special introductory offer makes purchase easy. Outfits on trial. State number communicants. Thomas Communion Service Co., Box W, Lima, Ohio.

You Should Have This Beautiful Scripture Calendar

"Thoughts For Daily Meditation"

THE cover picture, "Except You Become as a Little Child," is a rare work of art; the Child's facial expression is charming, and the height and harmony of the coloring—richly set in gold—produces a most pleasing effect. A full page for each month, a famous Bible painting for each page, a comforting Scripture promise for each day, and each International S. S. Lesson Title, Golden Text and Lesson reference for the year, makes it an article of intrinsic value for every day use.

Notice Its Rapid Growth in Popular Favor!

Over a quarter of a million copies sold last year with tremendous increase in sales this year.

Size, 9 $\frac{1}{4}$ x 16 $\frac{1}{4}$

A Welcome and Useful Gift for Christmas, New Year or Birthdays. Ideal for Superintendent's or Teacher's present to the class.

One copy 25c; 2 copies 45c; 5 copies $1.00;
25 copies $4.25 prepaid. 50 copies $8.25;
100 copies $15; 200 copies $25 not prepaid.

MESSENGER PUBLISHING COMPANY
22 Quincy Street CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Begin now your interest in the New Covenant Mission To the Jews

$1.00 will secure the Glory of Israel, choicest Hebrew Christian Magazine, till 1916, and 50c worth of selected tracts for Jews in different languages, also 50c worth of wonderful Hebrew Christian experiences

Address Rev. Maurice Ruben, Sept., 333 42nd St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JUST PUBLISHED

THE PRECIOUS PROMISE TESTAMENT

WITH COMPLETE INDEX

The most helpful Testament published. It has all the precious promises in RED. It also has a COMPLETE INDEX to every subject and important word in the New Testament. Descriptive Pamphlet Free. $1.00
BEST LEATHER BINDING ONLY
GLAD TIDINGS PUB. CO., 602 Lakeside Bldg., CHICAGO, ILL.

"The Voice of Thanksgiving"

This New Hymn Book has been adopted by The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago,
The Moody Church, Chicago, The Ruggles Street Baptist Church, Boston, and many smaller Societies throughout the country.

The Standard, Chicago, says:

The quality of "The Voice of Thanksgiving" is assured by the editorship of Doctor Townner, of the Moody Bible Institute. It contains a considerable number of hymn tunes by the editor, whose influence is steadily on the side of real dignity in connection with attractive melodies and harmonies. More than half of the book is devoted to the good "standard" hymns; and we are glad to see a goodly number of the real old-fashioned compositions, like "Lenox," the singing of which brings to memory the vigorous religious faith of our grandfathers and helps to keep unbroken the religious traditions embodied in worship. If Doctor Townner will create in his students a real appreciation of this splendid inheritance, he will find many to rise up and call him blessed. This book marks a step in the right direction. Selections of Scripture for responsive readings are found in the back of the book. Presswork and binding are unusually attractive. The book deserves a wide welcome.

Full Cloth, 50c, postpaid; $40.00 per 100, transportation extra
Economy Edition, 30c postpaid; $22.50 per 100, transportation extra

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY, Publishers

New York, 158 Fifth Avenue

Chicago, 125 N. Wabash Avenue

Addresses on Prophecy

By C. I. Scofield, D. D.

A valuable book at all times but particularly so in view of the prophecy-fulfilling wars. 130 pp. post-paid 25 cents. Address, Bible House of Los Angeles, 620 Lissner Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

GOSPEL TRACTS

Send ten cents Today for one hundred

BETTER WAGES!

Excellent for Open-air-work, Prisons, Jails, Shop meetings etc.
Or Send Stamp for Sample Copy. Don't Wait—Send Now!

PIONEER TRACT SOCIETY

233 Elgin Avenue

FOREST PARK, ILL.

CONFIDENCE

A gentleman writes us: "Thank you for calling attention to my debt to the Jew. For years I have been burdened with a feeling that after all my giving, perhaps I have neglected that which to my Master must be very important the evangelization of His brethren. But I never knew of any effective Jewish mission to which I could give with confidence. I am glad now to have a share in the grand work you are doing," etc.

To the man or woman in the same position, we particularly direct this message: The Williamsburg Mission to the Jews is a channel through which you can safely spread the Gospel message to the Jews. It is regularly incorporated; its field of operations is the strategic Jewish centre of the world; a representative Board of nine holds its property and has direct management of its affairs; they are supplemented by an Advisory Council of eleven prominent laymen and clergy-men; our methods, finances and entire organization are open for inspection at all times. We are simply your servants, ready to do your bidding in the task of evangelizing the Jews. Twenty years of work in one city has given us an experience and a reputation thoroughly dependable. Among our supporters are some of the shrewdest business men of America. It is a proverb among them, "When it comes to Jewish Missions, the Williamsburg Mission simply has no equal. It is amazing what they accomplish with their resources."

COME THOU WITH US

We invite you to cast in your lot with us, to tread the path others have trod. "Come thou with us and we will do thee good." Will you come? May we send you literature? No obligation on your part. Or if you send us your gift first, we will forward literature just the same, and will send you "The Chosen People" regularly. Just now your help would indeed be appreciated. But write now—right now!

Williamsburg Mission To The Jews
Station A., Brooklyn, New York

THE Christian Workers Magazine

AUGUST, 1915

Editorial Notes

"For this thing I besought the Lord thrice, that it might depart from me. And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee."—2 Cor. 12:8, 9.

Colonel Shields, of the League of American Sportsmen, tells of walking through the woods and coming to a plank underneath which he saw a spider fighting a lizard. The latter was putting up the best battle he could, but every now and then the spider would administer to him a hypodermic injection of his poison which would seriously weaken his strength. However, alongside of the plank there was a growing plant, which proved to be God's apothecary shop for such emergencies. The lizard would return to it, and imbibe its substance, and after it had taken effect, he would face the spider again until he was poisoned once more, when he would renew the process of healing. The observer wondered what the lizard would do if the plant were taken away, and so he removed it, and when the wounded warrior sought and found it not, he just rolled up and died.

The spirit that removed the plant is that of the enemy of souls who would deprive a man poisoned with sin of the gospel of the grace of God. This is the remedial system which God has provided for all our race, and is sufficient, not only for salvation, but as Paul discovered, for every trial and testing that may follow after.

This is the height of the vacation season, and everyone who can get away from the crowded cities is hurrying to do so. But after all the number who go is small Urban Attractions in comparison with those who remain. How grateful should we be therefore for the urban attractions in summer time!

A contemporary remarks that the joy of possession of a large estate is the least of its benefactions. The real happiness depends upon the capability to enjoy color, to relish deep draughts of fresh air, and to be glad in God's wonderful kindness to His creatures. But all these things are possible right here in Chicago. The broad, smooth, grass-bordered boulevards, the fine shade trees, the squirrels playing back and forth on their branches, the birds twittering among their leaves; the magnificent park system, bringing the country to the very doors of the people, north, south and west; the playgrounds, the fountains, the swimming-pools; the gorgeous flower-beds, the rich shrubbery, the interesting zoo, the free tennis courts, golf links and ball grounds; the bridle-paths, the trolley cars with a transfer system carrying passengers almost a half-day's journey for a nickel; the wonderful Lake Michigan, so like the broad ocean, lapping the curved edge of the great city, the children playing on its beach, the lazy fisherman (and women) angling on its banks, the pleasure boats carrying the lighthearted on its rippling waves; picnic parties everywhere playing, dancing, singing, on the lawns.

This is what one sees and hears just now in the great metropolis of the middle West, of which so many people, who know nothing about it, think so differently. And this says nothing concerning the climate—so healthful, the temperature so equable. Rockefeller and Vanderbilt have not as much, and yet all this belongs to the poorest of us, and especially to the large middle class so far as they have eyes to see, and ears to hear and hearts to enjoy it all. And it is enjoyed, unconsciously enjoyed, while seldom do we give thanks to our public-spirited citizens or our municipal authorities who make it possible, much less to the Author and Giver of all good. How greatly would it enhance their happiness if the stay-at-homes would count their blessings and cultivate the art of gratitude! Their envy would be turned to pity for some of them, who "go away to have a good time," and perhaps they might look "Not from nature up to nature's God,

But down from nature's God, look nature through."

The Hon. Winston Churchill, in his frank speech to his Dundee constituents last June, declared that the Premier had sent him to the Admiralty office in 1911 with orders to prepare the navy for a conflict with Germany. We are surprised that the secular press of this country has not made more of this admission. To be forewarned is to be forearmed, and if the English Navy was thus prepared, as all the world admits, we believe, why was not the English army equally so? We recall at this time the strong appeals of the late Lord Roberts and other English military leaders that this should be done, and we recall also the deaf ears upon which those appeals fell apparently. The situation seems inexplicable to us, nor is it any the less so when we find it paralleled in a way in our own land. It is supposed that our navy and our coast defences are in a fairly strong condition to resist attack, but it is continually affirmed by those in a position to know, that our army is so weak as to neutralize that advantage in great measure. Why this hesitancy and delay to profit by the mistake of our neighbors across the ocean, and our own mistake indeed, as we recall the early stages of the civil war, and the pitiful blunders which marked the mobilizing of our troops against Spain?

But after all, it is not these things, grave as they are, that interest us primarily. A greater crisis is before us to which these things seriously point. The Coming of the Lord draweth nigh. Now is the time nearer than when we believed. The signs are multiplying, two of which must startle everyone who thinks—the unprecedented conflict among the nations of the prophetic earth, and the appalling spread of apostasy from the faith throughout the whole of Christendom. We lift a warning voice to all our readers. We know of professing Christians whose lives are very Godless—without the Bible, without prayer, without testimony or service for Christ. And not only Godless but positively sinful—secular, selfish, sensual, given over entirely to their own desires. What if the Lord should come today? What would become of them? Can they face the thought that they would be left behind? Are they willing to be cast out with the unprofitable servant where there is wailing and gnashing of teeth? O, brethren, hearken, while it is yet today, and prepare to meet Him whose coming tarrieth not, by the purification of your lives and by your separation in method, spirit and aim from the accursed world!

But if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear? If this falls under the eye of such, will they not be entreated to accept God's mercy and flee from the wrath to come? We are moved by a strange yearning in this issue to plead with the unsaved to come to Christ, and while the door of hope is yet open to enter into everlasting life.

"God calling yet! and shall He knock,
And I my heart the closer lock?
He still is waiting to receive,
And shall I dare His Spirit grieve?"

This is the cry of Great Britain. The new Minister of Munitions has made it plain since he came into office that they have men enough, and that they are brave enough. Munition They have good generals also, but Wanted they have not the right kind of guns and shells to put in them.

This is Russia's trouble too, he says. She has been going backward while Great Britain had failed to go forward for the same reason. This is a warfare of the steel and powder mills and the men who are fighting it are the brawny fellows, stripped to the waist, who are standing before the hot furnaces in the great manufacturing centers of the combatant nations.

There is a parable in all this. The church, too, is in a mighty conflict, she was never in a hotter one, not against flesh and blood, "but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against the spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly places." She has plenty of brave men, and humanly speaking they are directed by expert leaders, but she is not making much progress either in the East or the West. What is the trouble? Munition! Munition! is what the army of the Lord needs, the right munition!

The trenches of the enemy can never be cleared, nor his strongholds demolished by the feeble weapons of a kindly humanitarianism, or the mild explosives of the destructive criticism. Nothing but the Word of God will do in this case, believed in and proclaimed as the revelation from His throne. Let evangelists, pastors and teachers give up their own thoughts, and those of other men, and substitute the thoughts of God in their place. Let them "diminish not a word," if they would "take forth the precious from the vile," for this is only done when we speak as His mouth.

The real purpose of a Bible Conference is to study the Bible. Not to talk about it but to let it talk, to open its pages and hear God's voice. It is this that broadens our minds, and cleanses our hearts, and strengthens our souls, and multiplies our usefulness for God. This is the aim at Mountain Lake Park Bible Conference this year. Come and help to realize it, by your sympathy, your earnest co-operation and your prayers. O, for a real revival!

A correspondent writes:

I listened to an oration on the occasion of the presentation of an American flag in one ✓ Listen of the local churches recently. The to orator of the occasion made a very This! ludicrous and at the same time serious misinterpretation of prophecy. May I transgress on your time to tell you of it?

He said that Isaiah, Jeremiah, Obadiah, and Zephaniah all foretold that the kingdom should come in a desert land that should later bring forth roses. The United States, formerly a vast wilderness, was now blossoming as the rose.

Not being satisfied with this, he said that the prophet Hezekiah predicted that the kingdom should come in a land that was bounded on the east by a sea and on the west by a sea. He further said that the book of Nehemiah, the story of the rebuilding of the kingdom, contained just thirteen chapters and he called the attention of the audience to the fact that there were just thirteen original colonies in the United States.

Not being satisfied with this, he waxed more eloquent and said that the most able of Biblical chronologists had figured that the seventieth week of Daniel expired on July 4, 1776.

God pity the people who are obliged to listen to such teaching in His name.

In his letter to the Colossians, Paul speaks of himself as having received a ministry "fully to preach the Word of God" as his language, chapter 1:25, might be rendered.

Paul's Sociology And it gives us occasion to say that if ministers of today could be brought to realize it, such is the sociology for the twentieth as it was for the first century, for New York, Chicago and San Francisco, are not essentially different from Colosse, Corinth and Rome. When we speak of sociology in this connection however, it is with reference to the church and not the world. What the sociological teachers have to say is doubtless for the betterment of the world from their point of view, but the church has an entirely different mission to the world, which is to separate individuals from it. This separation is from its spirit, its methods and its aim. To be sure the church makes good citizens, but she makes them only in one way, and that is by winning men to Jesus Christ. When men are regenerated they take an interest in everything that truly benefits their fellow-men; but if the church through neglect of her high calling fails at this point, she cannot make up for it by any interest in the wage question, or better tenements, or related things. We say this not to disparage efforts in those directions, but to contribute towards the maintenance of a just balance. When so much is being said continually on the natural plane of things, it is desirable that some voice be heard accentuating that which is spiritual.

A man in Kansas walking along the highway, picked up a torn sheet of a newspaper, and the first thing that struck his eye was a piece of "erudite piffle" as he called it, being the report of a lecture on "Erudite Piffle" the Bible by a Chicago professor who affirmed that it was not inspired. "I do regard it," said he, "as the supreme religious literature of the race," but "not a fixed and finished standard of morals and faith."

The footworn traveler had his ire raised, and wished that he could answer such swelling words in a way to finish them up once for all. However, as it seemed impossible to stop such learned (?) men from projecting their foolish wisdom upon the public, or the newspapers from giving currency to it, the conclusion he reached was to counteract it in another way. He would not use argument or display an irritated antagonism, but simply encourage an agency that was spreading truth. Therefore when he reached home, he drew a cheque to the order of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago and mailed it in a note, testifying that the Institute had always stood for the integrity and inspiration of the Bible.

An old Puritan divine once said, "God often gets up on the devil's shoulders," and this seems to have been one of the times.

Others than ourselves have called attention to the fact that the heresies of Millennial Dawnism are not confined to the denial of the deity of Christ and the eternal retri-

"Pastor" bution of the wicked, but include Russell's so the sacrifice of Christ for our sins. Heresies The testimony of Philip Sidersky on this subject found on another page is valuable because he is able to quote volume and page for his authority. It is against such teaching as this which gives a redemptive value to the life of the church, that the Holy Spirit himself is witnessing in such places as Colossians 1:21, 22; Hebrews 1:3; 1 Peter 2:24. They are so important that we give the space to quote them, putting in bold faced type the particular words contradicting Russellism: "And you * * * hath he reconciled in the body of his flesh through death." "He * * * by himself purged our sins." "Who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree."

A strong party is being organized by the Moody Bible Institute for the conducting of tabernacle evangelistic campaigns under the leadership of the Rev. William

The Moody Wallace Ketchum. The party Bible Institute will enter the field this autumn Gospel Party under the management of Mr.

E. B. Buckalew, secretary of the Extension Department, who, as this issue goes to press, is on a tour in the East, meeting committees who are negotiating for engagements. It is planned to hold union meetings of five or six weeks duration in each place and it will therefore be possible to accept only six or seven engagements during the coming season.

In forming this organization the Extension Department has had the opportunity of choosing from a large number of especially well trained workers. The leader of the party, Mr. Ketchum, a preacher of ability, combines the evangelistic and the teaching elements. He is a graduate of Auburn Theological Seminary, an ordained clergyman, and has had experience as pastor, ranging from a village church to a church in New York City, in all of which he demonstrated his distinct talent for evangelism.

For seven years he was the associate of Dr. W. W. White, and a member of the faculty of the Bible Teachers' Training School, New York City. For the past two years he has been a member of the faculty of the Mobdy Bible Institute and director of its Practical Work Course. This has given him direct oversight of the activities of the men and women students pursuing courses of training for Christian work of many types. His experience in the pastorate, in special evangelistic campaigns, and in the instruction of young men and women, has peculiarly fitted him for the leadership of union evangelistic campaigns. Pastors will find in him one who has a sympathetic appreciation of their problems, which he knows personally, and a most helpful leader because of his information on various forms of Christian activity, his understanding of human nature, and deep knowledge of God's Word.

Each of the other members of the party will be a specialist in his or her particular line. The names of these will be given in the September issue of this magazine. In the meantime, it is urgent that places desiring an evangelistic campaign, organized to reach every group in the community and to follow up the immediate results with a definite plan of conservation, should correspond at once with Mr. Buckalew. It is believed that the financial plan upon which this party is to be sent out, will make its services widely available.

In sending forth this party, the Extension Department wishes to acknowledge with gratitude to God, the efficient work of the evangelists who have been so greatly blessed of God during recent years and who have demonstrated so many successful methods of evangelism. We are indebted to these honored workers for many of the plans incorporated in this movement. We hope to demonstrate that, building on the foundations already laid, we have in certain modifications and additions, distinctly contributed to a sound and efficient evangelism which will honor God and bring multitudes into His Kingdom.

I AM THE WAY, THE TRUTH, AND THE LIFE

(John 14:6)

He is "the Way," when dark the storm-clouds gather,
And lengthening shadows would the road obscure;

It matters not how storm-rent is the weather,

For walking in "the Way" I am secure.

He is "the Truth," when loud the hirelings clamor

And lure the sheep o'er mountains waste and bare—

Piping strange tunes—mere puppets of a drama,

While truth lives on, for all who will to hear.

He is "the Life," while death stalks all around me,

In barren forms, and creeds that must decay;
But e'en in death there's naught that can confound me,

Since He is mine—"the Life, the Truth, the Way."

—Ella E. Pohle in "The Jewish Era."

The Life-Story of a Great Scholar

Told by Himself

Abstract of an Address by Sir William M. Ramsay, before the Students of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, Stenographically Reported

IT HAS been mentioned to me that I should catch your attention best, if I devoted a few minutes of this hour to giving some personal reminiscences of the way in which I was led, through no knowledge or choice of my own, into the particular line of work which enables me to speak here, something of what I have seen and know.

I began with a certain ideal in life. It was a humble ideal in a way, but at any rate it was not a selfish ideal. It was an ideal that lay outside of myself—that lay above me and beyond me. I started in my college days, in the middle of my college course, with simply the ideal of being a scholar, of trying to reach the truth, on the faith that there was some truth which could be reached. I began feeling after what Paul would have called the "unknown God." What it was exactly that I was aiming at I did not understand, but I had this belief, that there is truth to be found and the intense desire to find the truth for myself. I thought of science, and especially of history. Some department of history or literature was what lived in my mind from nearly the beginning of my college days. I got a certain spark of the fire, which, after all, in a humble, small way, is the divine fire. The belief that there is truth and the keen desire to reach it, and the one form which this idea took in my mind first of all was the intense wish to understand what was the borderland in history; what was the boundary in history, the country between the Greek world, which I was studying in classes, and the vast unknown Asiatic world which exercises a certain fascination to all. I wanted to understand the dividing country in scholarship between this land of Greece, which is European and western, more material, less spiritual, and this land of Asia with its oriental thought, and its immersion, or tendency to immersion, in the divine will and divine power and submission to it.

The Leading of Providence

I see now that in an imperfect way, I was seeking after the very country to which many years later my steps were led; the country which geographically is Asia Minor, and stretches like a great bridge across from the main continent of Asia almost to the very edge of Europe, which is divided from Europe finally only by a narrow strait, which at its narrowest point is only a mile and a quarter in breadth and which for a long distance is not more than three miles in breadth. Now this country of Asia Minor stretches from the vast, mobile, mountainous continent of Asia, to the very quick, intellectual, material continent of Europe, and across that bridge that occupied the thoughts, the armies of East and West have passed throughout history.

It has ceased now to be the center of historical movement, but for many centuries and for thousands of years it was really the center of the world's history, because there the contact was taking place between Asia and Europe.* Asia has much to learn from Europe and Europe has much to learn from Asia, and the truth lies in the contact between the two.

Now I wandered year after year in the path of scholarship, learning a little with very slight guidance, not able to see before me, having no definite plan, having tried one path after another; the scholarship of one path after another was placed before me. I spent some years studying Sanskrit. I thought that Sanskrit, the language of that wonderful people of Hindustan, was likely to be the bridge which should connect for me Greece with the East. It is a language Aryan in type, closely connected with Greek language and European language generally, and I pursued this language for some years until I found the path was closed; and then I thought of being an English scholar, but at that time there was no encouragement in England for the study of English and that path also was closed. And then I drifted in the path of Greek philosophy for eight or nine years, and at the end of that time I was engaged with a friend in what was intended by us both to be a great work in the study of Greek philosophy, and especially in the study of the Greek philosopher Aristotle. I may call the work a great one because it never was written, and therefore we may please ourselves with the idea that if it had been written it would have been a great work.

Sir William M. Ramsay

*This was said before the European war broke out.

And then there fell upon me what seemed the final blow to all my schemes and hopes for scholarship. A doctor told me that I must give up all study, all reading, not look at a book, for a year. Go away abroad into Europe and wander about as far as possible. Give up all the things to which I had been accustomed and go into a totally different atmosphere and a new life for the time. He had the idea, which I believe was a mistaken one, that I was overloaded and overstrained and that the best thing for it was what he called, "a year of idleness." In this year of wandering I found that I had gotten what was a more important year of education than all the nine years that I had already spent at college. But the difficulty was how to begin. I had no knowledge of the world; I was ignorant of everything outside of the walls of college and university and knew nothing about how to travel, what to do. I had no plan whatsoever, nothing was sketched out for me, and above all, there was the supreme difficulty that I did not possess any money.

Loaned a Hundred Pounds

I was relieved from that difficulty by a near relative, dead long ago, to whom I always look back as one of my greatest and best friends, who said to me, "I will give you one hundred pounds—five hundred dollars. Here are two hundred and fifty dollars—fifty pounds. When that is gone you can apply for the other fifty." I started off with this money in my pocket and no plans. I wandered from town to town, having no scheme; never knowing for a day whether I should stay there for another day or go on somewhere else. During that time I first learned to appreciate the American people, because I came in contact everywhere with a number of traveling Americans, and I met so much kindness and help in all sorts of ways. They would speak to me. I couldn't speak to people; I was tongue-tied. I was naturally so shy, so self-contained, that I was grateful in the last degree to anyone who would say a kindly, pleasant word to me. And I found among the Americans those who would draw me out, teaching me how to speak, how to talk, and I have always since had the most kindly feeling towards the Americans, and the help they gave me during that year of wandering. At the end of four months my relative wrote me saying that I had not yet applied for the other fifty pounds and saying that it was ready at any time that I needed it. As a matter of fact, I never came to apply for it. Ways and means turned up so that it was unnecessary even to ask for it. Which is an example of the way in which a person, just wandering on, having an unselfish desire to learn, to know, finds that the difficulties before him melt away. He must always, however, remember that according to the old Scotch proverb, you shouldn't cross a bridge until you come to it. You will be anxious how you are to cross that river until you come to it, and the bridge is there.

An American painter whom I met in Switzerland urged me to come to Rome for the next winter. He said, "Rome is the real center. It is the old, historical city, and there you will get an inspiration that you will get nowhere else." And so it came that I wandered to Rome in the beginning of the winter.

College Career Ended

Now in this time of wandering I was conscious all along that my career at college was ended, for in our English universities, if a man drops out for a year he drops out forever. There is a constant succession of new men coming up year by year by the hundred, who are apparently equally clever, equally well trained, having taken the highest position or a very high position in their respective universities. It tasks all the energies of their lecturers and teachers to attend to the crop of men they have that particular year to look after until they take their degree and look after places for them, and the next year they must attend to a new set of men, and if you drop out for a year you are forgotten and drop out forever.

And so I had said farewell to Oxford and went out, never expecting to enter the university again. I was one of the people who might have been, and people at college that knew me thought that if I had just had more chance, that if it had not been for the difficulties that I had proved unable to overcome for the lack of physical strength, which had made me drop out of the race, I was one of the people who might have been in this world.

Now in Rome during the winter I happened to meet a younger Oxford scholar, six months junior to myself, and I mentioned, in course of conversation that all my schemes for being a scholar seemed to have been wrecked, and I saw no way open except to get a place as an official in the British Museum. He said, "I can give you an introduction to the keeper of one of the departments—the department of Greek and Roman coins in the British Museum," and he wrote and got for me an introduction from a friend of his own who had never seen me, who did not even know my name, to this high official in the British Museum.

Some months later, when I was passing through London, I presented this letter and was received by Mr. Poole, who was the keeper of the coins, with the greatest kindness; he asked me to come to lunch with him; he introduced me to a number of persons. He said to me, "If I had just known a month or two sooner I could have given you a place in our department, but I have already advertised it for open competition and know the sort of person who will be in, but if there is any doubt and you wish to apply, you must go into competition with other men who will be much younger than yourself." I said I had made up my mind that I was not going to compete against men younger than myself, and we parted. Sixteen months later I got a letter from this same man telling me that there was a scholarship, a fellowship in Oxford, to be awarded for the first time, a new foundation, for travel in the Greek lands, and he said, "Among the candidates there is one of especially great reputation, who stands out quite apart from the rest. I don't think he is a good man. I don't like him, and I would be glad if you would come up and go in against him."

Competing for a Fellowship

During the interval of sixteen months I had married, and my wife and I received that letter one day and the next morning we started for London to study at the British Museum to receive this fellowship, and all our life hung on the fact that I had seen this man once sixteen months before, and that the moment he had perceived that there was a situation which he thought I might care to candidate for against an Oxford student, two years junior to myself who had passed through the university and had finished with an extraordinarily high reputation for intellectual ability, he had written me. This Oxford man was one who filled a great place in the eyes of men, both in England and the United States for years, but he fulfilled the anticipation which Mr. Poole expressed of him at the beginning. He turned out not to be a good man, and I think he was here in Chicago and created, as he did everywhere that he went, a great furor. He was a man of great intellectual gifts; a poet, a dramatist, a writer, and a person who sunk finally into the depths of infamy, and who is remembered with horror to this day. I do not name the name, for I think most of you in this room would be familiar with it.

After studying for three months in the British Museum, the principal elector, there were five persons who had been charged by the university of Oxford with the choice of the student who was to hold this fellowship, and the chairman of the Board, who was also head of one of the great departments—the department of Greek and Roman antiquities in the British Museum, said to me, "We shall have to hold a competitive examination to determine between you and this other candidate." All the rest had dropped out. I replied, "If there is a competitive examination, I am not a candidate." He said, "If there are two men nearly equal to each other, how are we to judge between them?" "In that case," I said, "you should give it to the younger man. I am perfectly satisfied where I am, and I have no wish to stand in the way of a man younger than myself, and if you have any doubt whatsoever, give it to the other man." Now, of the electors, four were Oxford men who had the most profound belief in this other candidate. He was familiar to them—he was two years junior to me—he was fresh from college and he had the most remarkable reputation because of his extraordinary intellectual capacity. Four of the five would have voted for him without doubt, but this was a subject in which they had no experience, and they deferred to the judgment of the one man in the British Museum who knew the subject, and at his recommendation I was elected without examination, and my sphere of work was to be the Greek world.

Realizing Dreams

You will observe I was gradually getting nearer the land which I had dreamed of eight years before. When I began this career of scholarship, Sir Charles Newton, the principal elector, said to me, "You shouldn't go to Greece proper. There are there any number of scholars of the German, French and others. You should go to Asia Minor, where there is a country wealthy in historical association and in historical monuments and there are very few people who work there."

So it came in the beginning of May, 1880, we landed at Smyrna, the great harbor on the west coast of Asia Minor, and then by one of those coincidences, which some might call chance, but which, if it were not presumptuous, I should venture to call the guiding hand of God, there happened to be present for one day the Consul General of the whole of Asia Minor, whose station was in the inner country but who had come down on business for one day only and we met him in the British consulate. He invited me to travel with him. He said he couldn't take two, but circumstances so arranged it that in every respect the way was clear. He said, "You shouldn't travel on the coast of Asia Minor; come up into the inner country where no one is travelling. Come up into the country where Paul's journeys were made." He was himself interested in Paul, though he was a soldier and a great traveller; he was also an excavator. He had been in charge for eleven years of the Palestine Exploration Fund in Jerusalem and the whole land of Palestine, and accordingly we started into the inner country of Asia Minor, at least I started. Afterwards, on my second journey, my wife was able to go with me and has been my constant companion year by year for thirty-four successive years.

The travelling fellowship which I held lasted for only three years, and apparently at the end of that there was nothing open except to go back to England and try to find some place in the teaching world, and although I was extremely desirous of being a scholar I had no wish to teach. I knew intuitively that I had perhaps may not wards the as you go knowledge is al

not the ability of a teacher, and though I have been a professor for twenty-seven years, I have always told every class that I could teach them nothing. I could simply tell them there was truth to be found and could guide them in some way to find it for themselves, but they must think for themselves and teach themselves.

The Momentous Cablegram

Now towards the latter part of the three years when this fellowship was coming to an end, I happened to be in the town of Iconium, the first time I had ever visited it. It chanced to be a post-office and to have a European telegraph station. There I got a letter from one of the colleges of Oxford offering me a research fellowship for five years longer on condition that I should spend three of them in travelling and exploring in Asia Minor. This just came in to carry on the career which we had begun, and I telegraphed a reply. The telegraphed reply was simply the word "Accept." With address, message and signature it was contained in five words and cost $1.25. There never was in the life of the ordinary poor scholar a message more momentous which was sent at a lower rate than that, and in such short compass over such a length of sea and land. And then, step by step, year by year, the way opened before me. After these three years were finished, which brought us down to the year 1886, there was no further fellowship and my explorations depended year after year on the open door which seemed to be set before me. I never knew any year whether I should be able to travel again, but it has gone on year after year and something has always opened which made the way clear for another year. At the present time, my explorations have for five years depended on the lifetime of a very old man, who is now ninety-three, and apparently come to an end with his life.

Such is the situation in which I have always been placed. To me, as I look back, the whole career seems the height of absurdity, and yet it was entered upon without any definite purpose except that essential power to believe that there was truth and one should gradually be able to reach it.

Now, that is the lesson that I should like to impress upon you, from the experience of a person without special ability, and no peculiar gift, but simply with the strong belief from childhood that there is truth to be found in the right way is to work for of the truth. You may not know what the truth is; you may way clear before you to but you will gradually see the world that the real in upon you. The power you; is forcing itself upon you. You will learn wisdom as the wisdom is taught you by the power of circumstances. You will come to see more year by year and learn more than you ever knew before, but you have to believe; you have to start from faith and go on towards a better, a purer, a more ennobled form of faith. Whenever I have tried to form some definite plan or scheme for the future, that has invariably resulted in failure. Time after time I have had some definite purpose. I have sought some object, some opening, in life and time after time that particular opening has been closed before me and another opening which I did not dream of has come.

The Lifting Power of a Great Belief

Now in this humble recital of the experiences of a single, isolated individual I want you to draw the lesson of a far greater and far wider and far loftier conception of what faith, of what belief, really is. One wants in this world the lifting power of some great belief, some enthusiasm, the drawing power which is given you by some noble, supreme idea, and this is required throughout life to aid the effort of the individual to raise him above himself and to give him strength to move onward in the path of this world.

This belief, this power of faith, this idea towards which one should look has been provided from the beginning of the world by God, as part of the plan of creation. The Creator implies a creation. It is meaningless to speak about God, about a Creator, unless you understand that the Creator is, and that the creation is the purpose of God from the beginning, and in the purpose of God there was the culmination of this purpose in the coming, in the life, and beyond all, in the death of Jesus Christ. This is the supreme idea. This gives the force, the life, the driving power which is necessary for man to turn him back from the way of wrongdoing and to turn him forward towards the right, the path which shall lead us gradually step by step towards God.

Considered in myself, I am a most unworthy and sinful creature; considered in Christ, I am without fault before the throne of God.—Toplady.

The want of fighting were a mark of no grace; but I shall not say the want of victory is much a mark. If my fire and the devil's water make crackling like thunder in the air, I am the less feared; for where there is fire, it is Christ's part to keep in the coal, and to pray the Father that my faith fail not, if I in the meantime be wrestling, and doing, and fighting, and mourning.—Rutherford.

I have no ambition to preach to ten thousand people, but to do the will of God.—Spurgeon.

The Footprints of God in the Temperance Movement

By Rev. A. C. Dixon, D. D.

A sermon delivered at the Metropolitan Tabernacle, London, and stenographically reported for "The Christian Workers Magazine."

TEXT: "The remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of many people as a dew from the Lord, as the showers upon the grass that tarrieth not for man, nor waiteth for the sons of men."—Micah 5:7, 8. (Quote 8th.)

The dew works silently, falling most frequently in the night. Like other forces of nature, no hammer is heard in the process of building. And it works through many particles. One drop of dew can do little or nothing towards beautifying your garden. Ten thousand or a million drops give the beauty or attraction. The dew works persistently and gently, and all the more powerfully. The lion, on the other hand, by its leap and bound, and sudden attack with tooth and claw, does its work of death. And these two methods are given us in the text. The remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of the people like the dew and the rain, and the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles, or enemies, in the midst of the people like a lion among the beasts of the forest, like a young lion in a flock of sheep. God works gently and furiously toward men and women in their sin. He is as gentle as a mother. His touch is as gentle as the dew. He works quietly and persistently. But toward sin He is like a lion, with the leap, and the bound, the tooth and the claw. Toward the sinner he is gentle, and loving, and kind, and patient, and merciful. Toward the sin there is no mercy. And Jesus Christ was manifested to destroy the works of the Devil. Not the workers for the Devil. He was manifested to save them, and no matter how wicked they are the invitation is tender, and sweet and strong, "Come unto me." But toward the works of the Devil, the sins that are individual or corporate, public or private, our God is like a lion. And that is the way we ought to be, you ought to be, toward your own sin. Not like dew nor rain, dealing gently, and quietly, and mildly and lovingly with your own sin. Put the tooth and claw in it. Tear it to pieces. That is the way to treat sin in yourself. And then be like the dew, gentle and quiet, as you talk with the drunkard. Be like a lion toward drunkenness; the sin that debases, and kills and wrecks. Be like the dew when you talk with the thief, the murderer, and the adulterer. Be gentle. Be kind. Be persistent. Be patient. But toward theft, and murder, and adultery, be like the lion. Must not I be gentle, and kind, and patient toward myself? Yes, indeed, don't lose patience with yourself. Do not be unjust even toward yourself. But toward your sin, whatever is the sin, be strong, and fierce, and destructive and try not only to overcome it, but destroy it by the power of God.

Now, I hope I have made clear the principle upon which my sermon tonight is based. As we trace the footprints of God in the temperance movement, and in all other movements in the world, we see those two things at work, the dew and the lion. Gentleness, and patience, and quietness, and persistence, and mercy in dealing with men, and wrath and destruction, and terror in dealing with sin in all of its forms. And men that will not get rid of their sin, but hold to their sins and nurse their sins, receive the stroke that God aims against sin.⁶ In the light of that interpret the text which is so familiar and sometimes so little understood, "He was made sin for us who knew no sin." He was not made a sinner. God dealt like the dew and the rain with the sinners that killed Him. He was made sin. He was made the thing that God has cursed. He was made what the lion tears. "He was made sin for us who knew no sin," neither was there any unrighteousness in Him.

Salvation for the Drunkard

The temperance movement may be divided into four or five efforts. The first, salvation for the drunkard. God has been at that ever since Noah got drunk. He has been saving the drunkard. It is interesting to trace the attitude, even of pagan nations, toward drunkenness. There were laws in China for two thousand years, punishing drunkards. There were laws in India dating back centuries, punishing drunkards. The fact is, there is hardly a nation, even heathen tribes, barbarian tribes, but have their standard of drunkenness which carries with it punishment. A drunkard sins against his body, and his mind, and his heart, his moral and spiritual nature, as well as against his friends and his neighbors, and especially his loved ones. 'We are still trying to save the drunkard, and will never cease. Praise God for the opportunity. He might even stand up in this audience tonight and say, as a man said in the prayer meeting last night: "I was once a drunkard and the Lord Jesus saved me and made me sober." We will pray for the drunkard, and we will not get out of patience with him. We will hold on to him. We will ask God to break the shackles and make him free. Glory be to His name for what He has done for drunkards.

Rev. A. C. Dixon, D. D.

Salvation for the Moderate Drinker

The second part of the movement which marks, I believe, the footprints of God, is salvation for the moderate drinker. I have never known a drunkard who was not a moderate drinker for a while. Moderate drinking is the mother of a drunkard, and if you can stop the moderate drinking you will never have another drunkard. Have you known anyone that became a drunkard from childhood? Oh, I have heard of children that were born drunk. Drunk in their infancy, drunk from the first year, though I have never seen them. A pitiful fact it may be. But, as a rule, men and women become drunkards by drinking at the bar, at the table. By and by the habit becomes stronger and stronger, until they become drunkards. The movement against moderate drinking has called science to its aid out in America. Almost every state teaches in its public schools the evil effects of alcohol taking, even in moderate quantities. That is one reason why prohibition has so sprung to the front during the past few years. The rising generation have been educated from the scientific point of view.

Moderate drinking is the introduction into the body of an enemy. There is not a function of the human body that appropriates alcohol. Not one. It is not appropriated by the nerves, or the muscle, or the lungs, or the heart. There is no part of the body that assimilates alcohol. It has to cut its way through, pierce its way through, fight its way through, and that is the reason there is such a disturbance. When a man takes a drink of whiskey it is just taking so much fire into the body. The heart gets mad, begins to beat faster, tries to drive it out. The nerves beat and rise up against it, and all the nerves of the body are in rebellion. And when the battle takes place in the capillaries, that is the very small arteries and veins just under the surface of the skin, there are their dead bodies left on the field. That is what makes the drunkard's nose so red. There has been a fight in this human battlefield, the narrow basis of the veins and arteries, and the alcohol has been the strongest, and the blood corpuscles have been killed and left there on the field in their gore. I believe that science has proven that there is no function of the human body that really needs alcohol for its sustenance. There is just as much sustenance in the crack of a whip as there is in a drink of whiskey. Your horse will jump and go faster when you crack him with a whip, and that is what takes place in the body when you take in alcohol. It is not sustenance. It is not building up. It is simply stimulation, that some people take for inspiration.

And then commerce has come to the side of science, in this. I think I am not mistaken when I say that not a great railroad corporation in America will employ a man who drinks moderately. He cannot get a position as an engineer, brakeman, conductor, driver or man in the office. If there is a single railroad company in all America that has not a rule forbidding the employment of any man that drinks moderately of alcoholic liquors, I am not aware of it. I know that most of the great companies insist upon that condition. And why? Because moderate drinking reduces a man's efficiency. It makes him irritable. It puts him off his best. He cannot do the finest work when he is under the influence of alcohol at all.

Salvation for the Saloon-keeper

The third period I would label, "Salvation for the man who sells it." A great movement along that line was started in the state of Ohio. The women were so stirred by the fact that their sons were being ruined by the saloon, the public-house, that they gathered together for prayer. They stayed hours in their homes and in their churches praying to God, and then they went out, from saloon to saloon, praying the saloon-keeper, the man behind the bar, to stop selling, to give up his business, to go into something more honorable and more lucrative. Everything, in the long run, is bound to be more lucrative, if it pays at all, than the liquor traffic. I have not time to stop and prove that now, but I believe it. These women by their prayers to God and their prayers to men who sold drink, closed saloons in whole towns. As many as fifteen or twenty saloons were closed in ten days. Local option and prohibition came about, as a result of prayer and entreaty. The Women's Christian Temperance movement was born in one of the missions that we had begun in New York. One of the finest women, the wife of the president of the tramcar company, raised a group that went down into the slums and knelt down on the sawdust floor of the saloons as they prayed to God, and to the saloon-keeper, not to sell drink to their neighbors' boys. For some reason or other the movement worked itself into a great organization. When it began to organize it grew more prudent, and more respectable, and less enthusiastic, and the spirit that began the organization almost effervesced. I wish we could save the public-house keeper from his business, and if the public-houses of our towns and cities could be closed we would have an era of prosperity—I was going to say—that would be appalling, but it certainly would be inspiring. In a town in the state of Maine—and I heard it from the sheriff of the town who was there and gathered the statistics—when the saloon was banished by the vote of the people in Portland, in one year the candy trade increased fifty-one per cent, the fathers took so much candy home to the children, and perhaps ate it themselves. And the boot and shoe trade increased over forty per cent. And the drugs trade increased about forty per cent. More men were needed to sell and to look after the business. Every business in that town increased in a large proportion within twelve months. And in that state of Maine, with its greater difficulties than any other state in all America, the common people have the largest per cent of savings in the savings bank of any state in the Union. They own more property and are more prosperous than in any other state. There are people in the state of Maine, aged twenty-five, who have never seen a drunkard staggering in the street in their lives. O, of course, people do get drunk, and people steal and people kill in spite of all kinds of laws. But a thing that really does mischief does harm all the time to a community. If it will work it ought to work in the dark. It ought not to have the label, and the signature and the approval of the community to the great work of evil that it does. Yes, I believe for the sake of the public-house keeper we ought to pray they may leave their business and may go into other lines of trade and be more prosperous.

Salvation for the Voter and the Lawmaker

The next stage in the progress of God's providence is the salvation of the voter and the lawmaker. Save the drunkard, save the moderate drinker, save the saloon-keeper, but, in a form of Government like ours on both sides of the Atlantic, the responsibility in the long run is upon the man that votes, the man who makes laws. He is to be saved in his conscience that he may vote as Jesus Christ would vote if He were here, that he would make laws as Jesus Christ would make them if He were here, trying to save the people from their sins. Thus God has moved on, making His footprints in this great temperance movement, saving the drunkard, saving the moderate drinker, saving the seller, saving the voter, saving the lawmaker. And it is wonderful what progress He has made during the past decade.

It was circulated on the other side that during the royal banquets in the latter part of his life, King Edward VII turned down his glass and did not drink intoxicating liquors, and I am glad to hear it reported that the present Queen of England is raising her children as total abstainers. It is not disreputable to be a total abstainer. It is not disreputable to stand in the face of the liquor traffic and say, "You are an evil, and ought to be removed from the face of the earth." You know, during the great civil war in the United States one million men went to their graves on both sides, about half a million on each. What a slaughter! What tears! What broken hearts! And yet over every one of those graves once a year, the people now meet, with song, and oratory, and flowers, and they sing their patriotic songs in praise; and now the men that wore the blue on the north side and the men that wore the grey on the southern side stand together in the same cemetery, and praise the valor and conscientiousness of the men that died for what they believed to be right. One million men, with flowers on every grave. But since that war closed in 1865, four million men have gone to drunkards' graves in America. Four millions! A hundred thousand a year! There are no flowers on their graves. They are not meeting with song and oratory, and tears to record that they were building the community. It was a riddance of bad rubbish. There went down in the Titanic something like sixteen hundred men, women and children. O, how the world has been shocked, and how it shuddered at the very thought of such a catastrophe. And yet the wife of one of these men came back from New York on the first steamer she could find, with a great armful of roses and other flowers, and the steamer slowed up as she approached the place where the Titanic went down, and, as the passengers gathered on deck, they took off their hats as this mother and wife threw the flowers into the sea. And yet, right here in Great Britain every week, more than sixteen hundred men, women and children go down to drunkards' graves and a drunkards' hell. There is nobody to cast the flowers, and take off the hat and be reverential before the death of a poor drunkard. The wife sometimes, while her heart breaks, feels relief, and the pressure is lifted from the children. We talk about the horrors of war, and the horrors of poverty. Back of the horrors of nine-tenths of the poverty in London is the drink traffic. As I walk the streets of this section of the city I am perfectly convinced of the fact, that if we could get rid of the drink traffic we would lift the people twenty per cent in twelve months to prosperity—financial, moral and spiritual. O, the horror of it! As I went home this morning I saw in a public-house a beautiful girl, certainly not over fifteen years of age, and I looked in at the motherly women, well-dressed, drinking themselves drunk before the bar. And now your recent law, which is a good one, keeping children out, has brought the spectacle to the sidewalk. We can now see how many mothers are drinking, by the baby carriages, sometimes eight, ten or fifteen, with babies in them, standing on the outside, while the mothers are drinking themselves drunk within. O, what can be done? Make a law? Yes, make it quick, to keep women out of the public-houses of this Island. For the sake of motherhood, and childhood and wifeness, and for the sake of the future, keep women out of the public-house. Then I go farther, keep men out of the public-house, by making a law to have no public-houses into which they can go. Now, you may regard me as heretical, and I am not excusing it. I just do not know how to modify it. Familiarity with the pernicious traffic has conduced to make us quiet. I doubt whether there is a pew in this house that has not somewhere a skeleton of drink in the closet. "Let it alone and it will let you alone," some philosophers say. That is a lie I have no patience with. Let it alone, but it does not leave them alone until it breaks their hearts. And I have known fathers who let it alone but it did not leave them alone till it broke their hearts as well. The great, withering, blasting, hell-sent curse of this earth is strong drink linked with lust, and if I had a voice loud enough to make the world hear it, I would say, as statesmen, voters, Christians, men and women, rise up against it in God's name, and while you seek to save the people like the dew, with gentleness, and persistence, and kindness and quiet, let the lion's tooth and claw be put into this hellish thing, is my prayer.

How are we as Christians to do it? We are to do it as the dew. Our mission is to save. Save the drunkard, save the moderate drinker, save the voter, save the lawmaker, and we are to do it. God help us to quicken our pace!

A man was kneeling in a Dutch Reformed church, drunk and asleep. Mr. Moody touched him on the shoulder, woke him up and preached to him Jesus, drunk as he was, and that man was for twenty years leader of the Mission to Seamen in the city of Baltimore. Jesus Christ did it like the dew. He did it quick, and the man became a voter like a lion against the sin that crushes people. On a street of Chicago was a drunken young fellow, a graduate of the University. He made a disturbance. A friend of mine preached to him Jesus, and that young fellow had a vision of Christ dying for him. He jumped up, and said, "I am the one that needs that salvation." He accepted Christ, and is now the greatest evangelist in America. People go by the ten thousand to hear him preach and thousands are being converted.

I went into my study in Chicago one evening, and there sat a little girl, side by side with a drunken father; so drunk he hardly knew where he was, and the dear little sad-faced child looked up at me and said, "My mother and I heard that drunkards could be saved down here, and she told me to bring papa and see if he could not be saved." I was prouder of that reputation than of any other reputation a church ever gained. Our business is to save. Save the people, save the children, save the women, save the public-house keeper—and he can be saved. The wife of one of them came to one meeting in Baltimore, accepted Christ and said to me, "Come round and talk to my husband." I went and talked with him in the back room of his saloon, and I thought I had made a ridiculous failure. But that man sold his business and became a missionary among the men that sold the drink. Drunkards can be saved, and so can drunkard-makers, so can all men. God be praised!

"THE BLESSED HOPE"

By Homer Black

I

Lord Jesus, Thou art coming!
Do not delay the day!
Thy saints are growing weary
And some have lost the way;
And Satan seems triumphant,
His followers grow apace;
O come, Lord Jesus, quickly,
And put him in his place.

II

The world is sad and dreary,
Death reigns on every hand;
We long to greet the loved ones
Who dwell in Glory Land;
Yea, Lord, our hearts are heavy,
We sadly long for them;
O hasten Thy appearing,
To unite us once again.

III

But more than all, Lord Jesus,
We long to see Thy face,
The face of Him who saved us,
And kept us by His grace.

Satan's Great Masterpiece

Or the Rise and Development of the Antichrist

By Rev. Gerrit Huyser, Detroit, Mich.

TEXT: 2 Thess. 2:3, 4, 8-10, R. V., "For it will not be, except the falling away come first, and the man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition, he that opposeth and exalteth himself against all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so that he sitteth in the temple of God, setting himself forth as God. * * * And then shall be revealed the lawless one, * * * even he, whose coming is according to the working of Satan, with all power and signs and lying wonders, and with all deceit of unrighteousness for them that perish; because they received not the love of truth, that they might be saved."

Satan's Great Masterpiece—who or what will it be? Before the final consummation dawns upon this sin-cursed earth, and the Lord Jesus Christ returns in His glory, and, as the Son of Man, the predestined King of kings and Lord of lords, inaugurates His benignant reign of perfect righteousness and everlasting peace over man in the flesh, and restores all things to a more than pristine beauty and loveliness. Before all this begins to come to pass, what are we to look for? What will the arch-enemy of God and man, "the great dragon * * * the old serpent, he that is called the Devil and Satan, the deceiver of the whole world" (Rev. 12:9); what will he yet undertake to do, as a last desperate attempt to thwart the merciful designs of the triune Jehovah for the redemption of a lost race?

From the very day that Satan, as the old serpent, succeeded in beguiling Eve in his craftiness (2 Cor. 11:3), he has been going to and fro in the earth, and * * * walking up and down in it (Job 1:7), seeking what he can do to hinder the work of God, and to ruin the souls of men.

When the Son of God was manifested in our mortal flesh, and had come to give His Life for our salvation, how Satan roused the principalities, the powers, the world-rulers of this darkness (Eph. 6:12), to frustrate the divine purposes of love and mercy, while he himself, as the prince of the world (John 14:30), was forever dogging the footsteps of the lowly Nazarene, until he at last succeeded, in that woful hour, when the Son of Man was given over to the power of darkness (Luke 22:53), in nailing Him to the accursed tree!

But brief was Satan's triumph, for our blessed Lord broke asunder the bars of death, because it was not possible that He should be holden of it (Acts 2:24). The enemy of all good, however, soon recovered from the chagrin of his dismal failure, and so he himself, and all the spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly places (Eph. 6:12), started in at once to persecute the Lord's followers. As the Saviour had foretold, the enemy soon began to sow tares among the wheat, so that ere long the church began to swarm with teachers of error and delusion, while, in the process of time, hypocritical and fraudulent pretence of every sort, almost wholly obscured the faith which was once for all delivered unto the saints (Jude 3).

False Christs and False Prophets

Having found nothing in the Christ (John 14:30) whereby he might hinder the full accomplishment of the divine purpose, Satan soon began to produce false Christs, and false prophets (Matt. 24:24), and even Antichrists. To the elders of Ephesus, whom the apostle Paul had summoned to meet him at Miletus, he declared, "I know that after my departure grievous wolves shall enter in among you, not sparing the flock; and from among your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away the disciples after them" (Acts 20:29, 30). And toward the close of the century the disciple whom Jesus loved (John 21:20), gave utterance to this pregnant prophecy, "Little children, it is the last hour: and as ye heard that antichrist cometh, even now have there arisen many antichrists; whereby we know that it is the last hour" (1 John 2:18).

In a little more than five centuries after the venerable apostle wrote these words the Papacy had become fully established, and the bishop of Rome, as the pretended and boastful successor of the apostle Peter, had begun to assume the most horrible and blasphemous titles, "not opposing, but asserting an equality with God, * * * being not offended to be styled by his parasites, "Our Lord God the Pope, Another God on earth, King of Kings and Lord of Lords, Our most holy Lord, the victorious God and man in his See of Rome, God the best and greatest, Vice-God, the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world, the Most Holy, who carrieth the Most Holy." Duffield on the Prophecies," p. 282. "The Prophetic Conference," Allegheny, Pa., Dec., 1895, p. 21.

In view of such awful assumptions, which papal Rome has never been slow to enforce by cruel imprisonment, by inhuman tortures and by its diabolical autos da fe, it is little wonder that able scholars, premillenarians as well as postmillenarians, have long held that here we assuredly have the little horn of Daniel's prophecy, who should speak words against the most High (Dan. 7:25), and likewise the scarlet woman, "THE MOTHER OF THE HARLOTS AND OF THE ABOMINATIONS OF THE EARTH," whom the aged revelator "saw * * * drunken with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus" (Rev. 17:5-6).

To quote Prof. W. G. Moorehead: "The marks of correspondence between the prediction and the Papacy are extraordinary, almost conclusive. In its marvelous origin and history; in its near relation to the old Roman Empire as its heir and successor—for, as Wylie says, "the Papacy is the ghost of Peter crowned with the shadowy diadem of the old Caesars;" in its wide departure from the truth; in its idolatry, persecuting spirit, daring assumptions and blasphemous pretensions, the Papacy, it must be confessed, strikingly resembles the Man of Sin. No one can compare the two without feeling the force of Richard Baxter's quaint remark, "If the Pope be not Antichrist, he has bad luck to be so like him."

Is the Papacy Antichrist?

Devout students of prophecy have, however, more and more come to the same conclusion as Dr. Moorehead, viz., that, "wonderful as the parallelism is, and traceable to almost any length, nevertheless the Papacy does not fill up nor complete the titanic portrait of the final adversary which the prophetic word furnishes us. Rather this system belongs to the apostasy which precedes and issues in the revelation of Antichrist, and is identified with Babylon of the Apocalypse. That a revival of its influence and power is now going on, Germany, Britain and the United States attest. And this is in exact accord with the predictions about its last days. The final view which the spirit of prophecy gives us of Babylon, the harlot, the apostate church, presents her as throned upon the seven hills, as seated on the beast, controlling and using the world-power for the accomplishment of her own purposes (Rev. chap. 17).

But she is not alone. Babylon is a mother, Babylon has daughters. Who would venture to deny that there are signs of a falling away from the truth of God in Protestantism itself?"

To all of which it is, alas! altogether safe to add that multitudes of so-called Protestants do not claim to know anything whatever about personal conversion or spiritual regeneration, or are ever earnestly concerned about doing the will of God. Indeed, "All his thoughts are, There is no God" (Ps. 10:4).

Well may we expect that something even far worse than popery, with all its frightful abominations, yet awaits a godless world and a dead church. And Rome and all her daughters, for that is what Protestant churches are, just insofar as they are like her in their dead formalism, and in their practical denial of the Lord who bought them; they are together to become the prey of the son of perdition, of the beast that is about to come up out of the abyss (Rev. 17:8). In other words, Satan is yet going to outdo himself!

And now let us prayerfully inquire whether indeed holy Scripture warrants and demands such a belief as to the Devil's last and supreme attempt to overthrow the work of God, and to defy high heaven. Is that enemy of all righteousness, the deceiver of the whole world, when, after he and his angels have been thrust out of heaven, and has come down to this earth having great wrath, knowing that he hath but a short time (Rev. 12:12); is he yet going to produce a great masterpiece, that will verily be his chef-d'oeuvre, by which at one swoop, he will bring, not simply the whole of merely nominal Christendom, but all the inhabited earth, to the feet of a pseudo-Christ, mocking high Heaven, and deluding an apostate race, by producing a blasphemous counterfeit of Him, who shall then speedily come to cast the archfiend into the abyss (Rev. 2:3), and to bring in everlasting righteousness (Dan. 9:24)? Momentous question! What scriptural ground is there for all that?

A Terrible One to Arise

A terrible one is yet to arise, the like of whom the world has never seen as yet. Let us briefly refer to the way in which Holy Writ speaks of him. "Thou shalt take up this parable against the king of Babylon, and say, How hath the oppressor ceased! the golden city ceased! * * * * How art thou fallen from heaven, O day-star, son of the morning! how art thou cut down to the ground, that didst lay low the nations! And thou saidst in thy heart, I will ascend into heaven, I will exalt my throne above the stars of God; and I will sit upon the mount of congregation, in the uttermost parts of the north; I will ascend above the heights of the clouds; I will make myself like the Most High. Yet thou shalt be brought down to Sheol, to the uttermost parts of the pit (Isa. 14:4, 12-15)."

This language cannot possibly be ascribed to Babylon's famous ancient king, for read Daniel 4:37, and bear in mind that this is his last recorded utterance, "Now I, Nebuchadnezzar, praise and extol and honor the King of heaven; for all his works are truth, and his ways justice; and those that walk in pride He is able to abase." Far less can we apply this language of Isaiah's prophecy to his grandson Belshazzar, with whose drunken feast the Chaldean monarchy was suddenly brought to an inglorious end. Daniel 7:7,8 speaks of "a fourth beast, terrible and powerful, and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth: it devoured and broke in pieces, and stamped the residue with its feet: and it was diverse from all the beasts that were before it; and it had ten horns. I considered the horns, and, behold, there came up among them another horn, a little one, before which three of the first horns were plucked up by the roots: and, behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth speaking great things." Daniel 8:9 speaks of "a little horn" which came forth out of one of "four notable horns" (v. 8), that had come up instead of "the he-goat," i. e., Alexander the Great of Macedonia, and this "little horn * * * waxed exceeding great, toward the south, and toward the east, and toward the glorious land." Verses 23-25 tell us of this same little horn. as "a king of fierce countenance, and understanding dark sentences," who "shall stand up. And his power shall be mighty, but not by his own power; and he shall destroy wonderfully, and shall prosper and do his pleasure; and he shall destroy the mighty ones and the holy people. And through his policy he shall cause craft to prosper in his hand; and he shall magnify himself in his heart, and in their security shall he destroy many; he shall also stand up against the prince of princes; but he shall be broken without hand." Daniel 9:26 mentions "The prince that shall come." In chapter 11:21 we read of "a contemptible person," who "shall obtain the kingdom by flatteries." And this is what is said of his bold career in verse 36, "And the king shall do according to his will; and he shall exalt himself, and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak marvelous things against the God of gods; and he shall prosper till the indignation be accomplished; for that which is determined shall be done." In our text he appears as the Man of Sin, the son of perdition, the lawless one; in 1 John 2:18 as the Antichrist; and in Revelation 23:1 as "a beast coming up out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads, and on his horns ten diadems, and upon his heads names of blasphemy."

One thing ought to be quite evident. This terrible one, represented to us in these different ways, surely does not stand for a long line of popes, or any other succession of oppressors; nor for any system of error, be it Roman Catholicism, Mohammedanism, or any other false system of doctrine. Some one individual is manifestly pointed out, who, when he appears, will indeed do wonderful exploits. But no such a frightful character appeared before, or at the time of our Lord's first advent, nor has he ever yet appeared.

Antiochus Epiphanes, 176 to 164 B. C., with his overweening pride and appalling blasphemy, did frightful things. That monster of history, the emperor Nero, gave the world no slight intimation of what the Antichrist will bring to pass one of these days. That scourge of Europe, Napoleon Bonaparte, went a long way toward realizing the woeful picture; but heaven's hour for letting loose the powers of evil has not yet struck, and so the haughty ruler of France had to meet his Waterloo, and finally ended his days on the lonely rock of St. Helena.

Who is the Man of Sin?

Who then is to be the Man of Sin, whose mighty deeds shall yet astound the world, so that the whole earth shall wonder after the beast (Rev. 13:3)?

Without in any wise presuming to settle that question, let us call your attention to one man's observations on the subject. We refer to Joseph Burkbeck Burroughs, M. D., of Oberlin, O., and his interesting volume, entitled, "Titan, Son of Saturn; The Coming World Emperor."

His conclusions may be summed up in few words. Revelation 17:9-11 reads: "Here is the mind that hath wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains, on which the woman sitteth: and they are seven kings; the five are fallen, the one is, the other is not yet come; and when he cometh, he must continue a little while. And the beast that was, and is not, is himself also an eighth, and is of the seven; and he goeth into perdition." Dr. Burroughs reminds us that "Before the Christian era there had been five great persecuting kings. These five heads and their kingdoms had all fallen: Pharaoh, the great head of Egypt; Sennacherib, the great head of Assyria; Nebuchadnezzar, the great head of Babylon; Ahasuerus, the great head of Medo-Persia; Antiochus, the great head of Greek-Syria."

The one who persecuted in John's day was Nero, emperor of Rome. This makes six. Our author does not inquire as to who was the seventh, who came after John's day. But "After the seventh there is to come an eighth, and this eighth crowned persecutor is still in our future." "This eighth Devil-inspired ruler is not to be a new man on the world's stage. John tells us that he is not to be an individual distinct and separate from the group of seven kings. He is to be one of the seven, honored above the others by being permitted to reign a second time over the nations."

"He is the eighth, and is of the seven, and goeth into perdition." (Rev. 17:—11, A. N.). "John not only has told that this eighth king will be one of the first seven re-crowned, but he also throws out the sixth and the seventh king as possible candidates for this future honor. He tells us that the eighth king will be one of the first five who are dead. The beast that thou sawest, was, and is not, and shall ascend out of the bottomless pit." "And the beast that was, and is not, even he is the eighth, and is of the seven."

"Thus this eighth world monarch, John points out, is one of the first five who will be restored to life. He who is coming a second time is either Pharoah, Sennacherib, Nebuchadnezzar, Ahasuerus or Antiochus.

"And Daniel," in chapter 8:9, 23, 25, already quoted, "saw that the great Antichrist would, in a restored life, be Basileus Antiochus Theos Epiphanes; which is, being interpreted, The illustrious king who holds out against God."

Will Babylon Be Rebuilt?

Where will the coming Antichrist, whoever he may prove to be, establish his royal throne? From what great city will he issue his fearful mandates, that will startle the nations? We verily believe that "Babylon, the glory of kingdoms, the beauty of the Chaldeans' pride," (Isa. 13:19), will be rebuilt by him, and that he will make her far more glorious than of old as the restored capital of the nations, until the end come, when it "shall be as when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah."

At an international prophetic conference, held Dec. 10-15, 1901, in the Clarendon Street Baptist Church, Boston, Mass., the Rev. Sholto D. C. Douglas, of Scotland, delivered an address on "The Antichrist; His Character and History," from which we beg leave to quote the whole of this remarkable paragraph: "It would appear," says Mr. Douglas, "that Babylon mystical, of Revelation 17, differs from Babylon literal (without the word 'mystical'). The characteristics of the destruction of this Babylon is its suddenness, as mentioned four times in Revelation 18:8, 9, 17, 19. I would ask you to read the whole of this chapter. A being so great will not live in a borrowed capital, such as Babylon mystical, or Rome, but in one which he will build for himself. Now, where great cities have been, they can be again, if the conditions which led to their existence be restored. Only then let the country be irrigated as before, and its marvelous fertility will be restored. The line for the much-talked-of railway of the Euphrates Valley has already been surveyed, and no one living in the present day of great and rapid changes would be bold enough to say that such a means of communication cannot and will not be constructed. Thus the great city will have even greater facilities * * * than its predecessor." Thus declared this Scotch brother in the year of grace 1901. And what now are the present day facts? The Bagdad railway has not only been surveyed, but the Porte has granted a concession for 99 years, and also a guaranty, and it is hastening to its completion. The first section, the Konieh-Eregli-Burgurlu line, extending eastward from Konieh, (the ancient Iconium, 310 miles east of Smyrna, on the Aegean Sea, Acts 14) was opened in 1904. The total length of the line will be 1550 miles, extending from the Mediterranean Sea to the Tigris river, and will run through Aintab and Berejik to Mosul, thence along the right bank of the Tigris to Bagdad, i. e., within 60 miles of Babylon!

Mr. William E. Ellis speaking of the route of this German Bagdad railway, says: "This newest international highway runs over the world's oldest and most beaten paths. It stretches from the Hellespont to the Persian Gulf. Its tracks already down, or projected on surveyors' charts, overlie the footprints of the apostle Paul, Cyrus, Darius, Alexander the Great, Constantine, Nebuchadnezzar, Sennacherib, Harun-al-Rashid, Saladin, Richard the Lion-Hearted, Mahmud the Conqueror, and—well, a ticket over the new Bagdad railway is equivalent to a course in ancient history."

And here fits in the marvelous story of the irrigation of ancient Mesopotamia. For ages the waters of the Euphrates and the Tigris have run to waste in the desert, or have accumulated in unwholesome marshes, and the devastation and decay of centuries have set their mark upon enormous areas that in ancient times, when well watered, were extraordinarily fertile. After lying dormant for ages, like Palestine itself, as the result of devastating wars, Tartar inroads, and Turkish apathy, fertility is about to be restored to these desolate regions as by the wave of a magician's wand. In 1909 an English engineer, Sir William Willcock's, was commissioned by the Turkish government to prepare an irrigation scheme. His plan entailed an expenditure of $75,000,000. A part of this gigantic scheme has already been completed. Last December the Hindiyeih barrage of the river Euphrates was inaugurated, and practical effect is thus being given to this vast scheme of irrigation in Mesopotamia, which, when completed, will entirely restore fertility to a sterile country, and instead of about one and a half million of people getting a precarious and inadequate livelihood, there will soon be, according to Sir William Willcock's comfortable subsistence for a population of eleven or twelve millions.

Propriety of Caution

Two or three cautionary remarks are in place right here. Let us beware, on the one hand, of being wise above what is written, and of making the serious mistake of treating our surmises, however plausible, as though they were already assured facts. On the other hand, let us not fail to give most serious consideration to what may prove to be one of the most startling developments in the unfoldings of Providence. Babylon may rise again before our very eyes, and may speedily attain to more than its pristine glory!

Thus everything seems to be getting ready for the appearance of the son of perdition. One of these days war will be proclaimed in heaven. Satan and his armies will be forever thrust out from those blessed regions, and will be "cast down to the earth" (Rev. 12:9). And the Devil is coming down "having great wrath, knowing that he hath but a short time" (Rev. 5:12).

All that will then be needed will be for God to withdraw Him who restraineth now (2 Thess. 2:7), and Satan's great masterpiece will soon appear, and then, alas! "Woe for the earth and for the sea," and for those who dwell in them! One word more and we must close. Two revelations and two personal appearances are clearly foretold in the book of God. The man of sin, the son of perdition, the lawless one, will first be revealed; will personally appear to vent the rage of Satan, the god of this age (2 Cor. 4:4 and margin), against the God of gods (Dan. 11:36), and against all who are His true worshipers; and then also "shall appear the sign of the Son of Man in heaven" (Matt. 24:30), who "shall slay" him "with the breath of his mouth, and bring" him "to nought by the manifestation of his coming," of His parousia, His personal presence (2 Thess. 2:8).

May the God of all grace help us all so to live, that ere these mighty events begin to come to pass, we may all be caught up to meet the Lord in the air, and so to ever be with the Lord!

The Word "We" in the Epistles

By Rev. W. J. Erdman, D. D.

IT MAY be said that as long as the church of God is not complete in its foreordained number, its existence on earth is timeless; it belongs to the dateless "present evil age" until the consummation of the age, the brief period of the time of the end. (Matt. 28:20).

The Present Evil Age Dateless

It is because of this timelessness the Scriptures of the New Testament, especially the Epistles, are always applicable to the church. It is to it as incomplete in number and unfinished in career, its body unformed, that the pronoun "we" belongs.

The apostle Paul so identifies himself at one time with those who are alive at the coming of the Lord, and at another time with those who shall be raised from the dead. To the Thessalonians he says, "We that are alive that are left unto the coming of the Lord," and to the Corinthians, "God both raised the Lord and will raise up us through his power;" "he that raised up the Lord Jesus shall raise up us also with Jesus and shall present us with you;" "we all shall not sleep, but we shall all be changed." 1 Thess. 4:13-18; 1 Cor. 6:14; 2 Cor. 4:14.

"We" and "I"

The "we" is corporate; the "I" is individual. Paul says of the "body": "We have peace with God;" "God commends his own love toward us;" "We died to sin;" "We were baptized into Christ Jesus;" but when the apostle speaks of himself as an individual he says: "I am already being offered, and the time of my departure is at hand." The church as a "body" keeps moving on, increasing, warring, persecuted, hoping, looking for the Lord and Saviour, while the individual member passes out and away through death. So generation after generation has come and gone and will go in all this untimed movement until the last generation of the church is caught up from earth into the air to meet the Lord descending from heaven.

And as with the church, so with the scattered people of Israel, while the Lord is taking out of the nations the church, timelessness is the characteristic of its existence among the nations. Its great foreordained career came as to time to a full stop with the captivity in Babylon; it will again begin when that captivity truly ends, for that captivity is in its essentials prolonged to this very day,

The "Times of the Gentiles"

Accordingly, "the times of the Gentiles," which began with the great Babylonian monarch, "the head of gold" are up to their duration, not exactly, but only symbolically indicated by the successive empires and kingdoms of the great image.

In brief, ever since the first advent of our Lord, the church and Israel and the nations are existing in an undated duration.

Centuries ago the apostle spoke of himself and his fellow believers as those "upon whom the ends of the ages are come" (1 Cor. 10:11); and the Saviour is said to have been manifested at "the end (consummation) of the ages" (Heb. 9: 26); and that "consummation of the ages," that "end" continues until now and will while the church is forming. The same words, "consummation" and "end," are applied also to the brief, definite, final period of time of the "harvest" and the "great tribulation." In the latter instance the view point is that of a prediction whose fulfilment has not yet begun; in the former the viewpoint is that of a purpose whose accomplishment, though begun, is progressing without any time set for its conclusion.

Paul's "We" Was in Corporate Sense

It is then a just inference that the apostle

Paul, when he said, "We that are alive," did not positively mean that he himself would live until the Lord came, but that by such saying he simply identified himself with others in a corporate sense. Another inference is valid; that corresponding to this character of the timelessness of the uncompleted church and of the dispersion of Israel the condition of the world and its civilization before the advent will be that of continual change without any attainments of the permanent prosperity and good which the return of Christ alone can bring in the age to come. The Lord Jesus is waiting while the nations and even many of the professed people of God are experimenting.

The Kingdom of Heaven--What It Means

By Rev. C. I. Scofield, D. D.

(Reprinted from the "Dallas News")

SO MUCH misconception exists concerning this subject that it may be necessary at the outset to state that the kingdom of heaven is neither heaven itself, nor the church, nor the kingdom of God. These are all distinct conceptions, though having very much in common. This will appear more clearly as our study proceeds.

The kingdom of heaven may be said to be the great theme of the Old Testament prophets, and the doctrine of the kingdom, both in the Old Testament and the New Testament, rests upon what is known as the Davidic covenant. (2 Sam. 7:12-16.)

"And when thy days be fulfilled, and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, I will set up thy seed after thee, which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish His kingdom. He shall build a house for my name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever. I will be his father and he shall be my son. If he commit iniquity, I will chasten him with the rod of men, and with the stripes of the children of men: But my mercy shall not depart away from him, as I took it from Saul, whom I put away before thee. And thine house and thy kingdom shall be established forever before thee; thy throne shall be established forever."

Explanation of Covenant

Surely this is perfectly plain. God promises to the seed of David a "house," that is, posterity or family; a "throne," that is, royal authority, and a "kingdom," that is, a sphere within which to exercise that royal authority, and this in perpetuity. There is but one condition, if the descendants of David commit iniquity, Jehovah will chasten them with the rod of men, but this with the distinct promise that their disobedience does not annul the covenant.

This covenant is confirmed by the oath of Jehovah in the eighty-ninth Psalm in the following words: "I have made a covenant with my chosen, I have sworn unto David my servant, thy seed will I establish forever, and build up thy throne to all generations." (Vv. 3, 4.) Also in verses 30 to 36.

"If his children forsake not my law and walk not in my judgment; if they break my statutes and keep not my commandments, then will I visit their transgressions with the rod and their iniquity with stripes. Nevertheless my loving kindness will I not utterly take from him, nor suffer my faithfulness to fail. My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips. Once I have sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure forever, and his throne as the sun before me."

Through the prophet Isaiah, however, we have a prediction concerning the king of this kingdom which adds a depth and breath of meaning not fully expressed in the original covenant. In the seventh chapter of Isaiah occurs the great promise of a "sign" to be given to the "house of David." It is the promise of the virgin birth of the coming King, and with it the statement is made that, while this King is to be born of a virgin of the house of David, he is to be also "Immanuel" or "God with us."

In the ninth chapter of Isaiah there is again a reference, in the verses 6 and 7, to this child of the virgin:

"For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, the mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace."

Turning now to the description of the kingdom given by the prophets, we read first from the eleventh chapter of Isaiah:

Rev. C. I. Scofield, D. D.

"And there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a branch shall grow out of his roots: And the Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord; and shall make him of quick understanding in the fear of the Lord: and he shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears: But with righteousness shall he judge the poor and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth; and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked."

The Kingdom of Heaven

Let us briefly summarize this passage, for it contains every element elsewhere given in detail of the future kingdom of heaven. First, it is Davidic—"a branch out of the stem of Jesse" (v. 1); second, it is spiritual (v. 2); third, the character of Messiah's reign is righteous and equitable (vv. 3-5); fourth, the characteristic of the kingdom is peace; even from the animal creation ferocity is removed (vv. 6-8); fifth, the kingdom is set up by the restoration to Palestine of the people of Israel from every part of the earth (vv. 10-12); and sixth, the kingdom is universal over the whole earth (v. 9).

Passing over very many prophecies of like purport, we may take from the prophecy of Jeremiah, chapter 23, verses 1-8:

"And I will gather the remnant of my flock out of all countries whither I have driven them, and will bring them again to their folds: and they shall be fruitful and increase. And I will set up shepherds over them, which shall feed them: and they shall fear no more, nor be dismayed, neither shall they be lacking, saith the Lord."

It will be observed that here we have the same characteristics described in the great prophecy in the eleventh chapter of Isaiah, the restoration of Israel, the raising unto David of a righteous branch, and the reign and prosperity of that King in the earth, and the universality of the kingdom.

To take one passage out of the many from the prophecy of Ezekiel, we turn to the thirty-seventh chapter, verses 21-28:

Prophecy of Ezekiel

"And say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the nations, whither they have gone, and will gather them on every side and bring them into their own land: And I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all; and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all: Neither shall they defile themselves any more with their idols, nor with their detestable things, nor with any of their transgressions: but I will save them out of all their dwelling places, wherein they have sinned, and will cleanse them: so shall they be my people and I will be their God."

Two Important Facts

This gives two very important facts concerning the coming kingdom. The first is that Gentile world power is destroyed by divine judgment before the kingdom is set up. We have only to look about us to see that the crushing blow was not delivered at the first advent of Jesus Christ. Instead of destroying Gentile world power and setting up the kingdom covenanted to David and described in the prophets, the last of the great empires, Rome, was then in the zenith of its power, and one of its officials sent King Immanuel to the Cross crowned with thorns.

Coming now to the New Testament, we find a remarkable confirmation of the Davidic covenant in the message of the angel Gabriel to the virgin mother of our Lord (Luke 1:26-33). The scripture part of this message has bearing upon our subject as found in verses 31-33. They read as follows:

"And, behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the son of the highest; and the Lord God shall give upon him the throne of his father David: And he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

The throne of David is a historical expression in the same sense that the phrase, the throne of the Caesar's is. There has been on this earth a man named David, who exercised kingly authority over the people of Israel, the house of Jacob, and the angelic promise is that that kingdom shall be restored to the Son of Mary, and not one word of the New Testament, concerning the kingdom, can be tortured into any other meaning.

New Testament Story

Taking up the threads of the kingdom story in the New Testament, we have the birth of the King in Bethlehem, the announcement of the King by John the Baptist preaching, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand." Then the King appears, is baptized of John in Jordan and anointed with the Holy Ghost, after which he also announces the kingdom of heaven is "at hand." This is a Biblical phrase which means that the thing spoken of is the next thing in the revealed order. It does not at all imply that there may not be something in the divine knowledge as yet unrevealed. It only means that, so far as revelation has gone, the next thing to come to pass is the thing said to be "at hand." The four Gospels, notably the Gospel according to Matthew, tells the result of this offer of the kingdom to Israel. In the twelfth chapter of Matthew there is a turning point. The King no longer announces the kingdom as at hand, but denounces judgment upon Israel and the land because the King has not been received. In other words, the King and his kingdom were rejected by that generation. Then came from the mouth of Christ the series of parables of the kingdom of heaven that are found in the thirteenth chapter of Matthew. This is an aspect of the kingdom of heaven not revealed to the prophets. What the prophets saw was the establishment of the kingdom in power. What was unrevealed to the prophets was the rejection of the King and an interval of time during which the kingdom in a form never seen by the prophets at all—the form, namely, described in the seven parables of the thirteenth chapter of Matthew.

Mixed Condition Continues

Briefly, that form is a mixed condition of good and bad, all professing to be children of the kingdom. It is the professing church as distinguished from the real church, and these parables state that this mixed condition is to continue until the end of this age. That excludes the possibility of a converted world during this age.

But the New Testament, equally with the Old, looks forward definitely to the establishment of the kingdom of heaven on earth. In the second chapter of Acts, the apostle Peter declares that it was revealed to King David himself that his great heir would not occupy his throne until after his death and resurrection. In the fifteenth chapter of the Acts, verses 14-17, in the quotation from the prophet

Amos, it is declared that the Lord will return to set up the Davidic kingdom, and in the twentieth chapter of Revelation that return and establishment of the Davidic kingdom of heaven in the earth is described. It remains to know a distinction between the expressions of frequent occurrence in the New Testament—"the kingdom of heaven" and "the kingdom of God." A study of all the passages will show first that these have much in common, since God is the King in both spheres, but there are great distinctions. The kingdom of God takes in the entire universe, angels and archangels, cherubims and seraphims, as well as redeemed human beings. The kingdom of heaven is that part of the kingdom of God which will be set up in the earth. At present the earth may be looked upon as a revolted province of the great kingdom of God, and the mission of King Jesus is to restore this province to obedience under the reign of God. This is distinctly stated in 1 Corinthians, 15:24, 25.

"Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have put down all rule, and all authority and power. For he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet." This is the hope of the earth.

Humanity still groans under sickness and death, under misrule and injustice, under war and bloodshed. When the King returns, regathers His ancient people and brings the Gentiles under his sway, the kingdom of heaven will be set up, and that will be the answer to that petition in the Lord's prayer. "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven."

"Pastor" Russell's Christ Not the Christ of the Bible

By Philip Sidersky, Baltimore, Md.

DURING the month of May, 1911, "Pastor" Russell conducted a very extensively advertised meeting for the Jews in Baltimore. Ten thousand copies of a Yiddish newspaper, published by "Pastor" Russell, and containing an advertisement for the meeting, were distributed among the Jews, while large posters with his face on them were conspicuous on all the theatrical bulletin boards, advertising the subject of "Zionism." In his address "Pastor" Russell declared that the great error of Christendom is the thought that the Messiah was an individual. The Messiah is not an individual, declared he, but a class, taken out from among the Jews and Gentiles. Continuing, "Pastor" Russell said, "I do not say but what Jesus will be identified with that class."

The following quotations are taken from various issues of "Pastor" Russell's official organ, "The Watch Tower":

"God has provided a new mediator, who has already given his life a redemption—price—Jesus, the head, and the church, the body, finish of the sacrifice is in sight."—"Watch Tower," 1909, page 46, col. 1. (Compare with 1 Tim. 2:5.)

"It is the merit of Jesus . . . which must be sacrificed, again by us his members, which is to constitute eventually the ransom price of the whole world of mankind."—"Watch Tower," 1909, page 379, col. 2. (Compare with the doctrine of the Mass, as shown in "Scripture Studies," Vol. 3, page 103, par. 2. See also Heb. 9:25-26 (Diaglott).)

"It was, therefore, primarily our Lord's blood or death which was necessary to the sealing of the New Covenant, but by divine arrangement the blood or death of his church is also made necessary."—"Watch Tower," 1909, page 13, col. 1. (Compare with Heb. 10:10.)

"The sacrifice of Christ, Head and Body, has progressed for over eighteen centuries. * * * When the High Priest * * * shall have finished the sacrificing He will apply, beyond the veil, the blood, His own blood—The blood of His members—on the Mercy-seat on behalf of "all the people."—"Watch Tower," 1909, page 52. (Compare with Acts 3:18; Heb. 9:12; 10:12.)

"Our expectation for Adam as a man of the world class, "all people," is that his sin will be atoned for in the end of this age."—"Watch Tower," 1909, page 316. (Compare with Rom. 4:10, and the comment on this verse in "Scripture Studies," vol. 5, pages 25 and 26, new edition, unrevised, or old edition, page 26, beginning "The same Apostle," etc.)

"Adamic sin"—"it was for that one sin, and that only, Christ, the head and body, pays the penalty."—"Watch Tower," 1908, page 321. (Compare with 1 John 2:2.)

"St. Paul declares there is one mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus, who gave Himself a ransom for all. Should we understand this one mediator to refer to the complete Christ; head and body? We admit that such interpretation as the question suggests has considerable force, and much could be said in its favor."—"Watch Tower," 1909, page 312. (Compare with Acts 4:12; 1 Tim. 2:4, 6.)

"Rather the sacrificing was allowed to continue on a larger scale—a sacrificing of the Church, the members of His body being counted as a continuation and a completion on our Lord's own personal sacrifice." (Compare with Heb. 10:10, 12, Diaglott; Acts 3:18; John 19:20.)

"Thereafter the great High Priest, head and body, in glory in the Most Holy, will offer his second sacrifice, namely, His ransom price passed sacrificially the Church, His body . . . thus at the end of this age Christ will offer to Justice (represented in the Mercy-seat) full satisfaction for the sin of the world—the Adamic sin."—"Watch Tower," 1909, page 310. (Compare with Heb. 7:27, Diaglott; Heb. 9:26. See also "Watch Tower," 1891, page 18.)

"So Jesus has continued the offering all through this gospel age. He will finally complete this as one sacrifice."—"Watch Tower," 1911, page 25. (Compare with Heb. 10:10.)

"Grasping this mystery, it shows that the first advent of Christ in the flesh * * * for the suffering of death * * * has been in progress for nearly nineteen centuries."—"Watch Tower," 1903, page 140. (Compare with 1 John 2:2, Diaglott. See comment on this verse in "Watch Tower" of 1906, page 138, proving that the tense in the Greek shows that advent "in the flesh" was completed in the past, nearly nineteen centuries ago. Why was this reference deleted from the "New Watch Tower Bible Helps" yet it is found in the old, or first edition?)

"Not only does no mediator stand between us and God, but no mediator brought us to God. The Father Himself called us and our Advocate."—"Watch Tower," 1910, page 189, col. 2. (Compare with 1 Tim. 2:5; John 14:6; 1 Pet. 3:19; Heb. 7:25.)

"When all the members of this mystical body shall have suffered "with Him"—and when He as the great antitypical High Priest shall have offered up not only Himself, but us, as his adopted members, then Justice will have all that it ever demanded and much more. It will have the one great valuable sacrifice of Jesus, and additionally the sacrifice of his members."—"Watch Tower," 1908, page 313, 2 par., 1 col. (Compare with the picture of Jesus blindfolded, holding the balanced scale, often referred to by the "Watch Tower.")

One of "Pastor" Russell's publications, "The Bible Students Monthly," contains the following statement: "God's plan for the salvation of the world is much greater, much larger, than any of us would have suspected—that it includes first of all the selection of the church of this gospel age as members of the body of the great Christ under Jesus the head."

From the above quotations from "Pastor" Russell's official organ, "The Watch Tower," it proves that the system of Russellism denies that Jesus is "the Christ," the "Only Redeemer." One of my leaflets, under the title "Recent Developments of 'Pastor' Russell," of which over ten thousand copies have already been circulated all over the United States, England and Canada, contains the following statements:

"Do you know that 'Pastor' C. T. Russell is raising up a false Christ that is offering up a sham sacrifice? Do you know that 'Pastor' C. T. Russell denies that Jesus Christ personally is the world's Redeemer, and that 'Pastor' C. T. Russell teaches that the world's Redeemer is a class, and that Jesus Christ is only a member of that class?"

"Pastor" Russell himself never made any attempt to contradict these charges, but in letters I have received from all over the world some of "Pastor" Russell's agents have endeavored to take me to task by claiming that "Pastor" Russell did not teach such serious heresies. Nevertheless, through the kindness of a former follower of "Pastor" Russell's who has furnished me with files of "Pastor" Russell's official organ, "The Watch Tower," for a number of years back, as well as other important documents that have emanated from "Pastor" Russell's headquarters, I am enabled to verify, as it will be seen from the above quotations, my charges against the blasphemous propaganda of Russellism.

China Inland Mission Jubilee Conference

By S. A. Woodruff

THE China Inland Mission Jubilee Conference was held at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ontario, June 15-20, and more than fulfilled the expectations of the brethren having the arrangements in charge. The general program was in charge of Rev. H. W. Frost, who announced at the opening of the meetings that a little more time than usual would be given to visitors for recreation and fellowship, also the program would be of a nature to promote general inspiration and fellowship, and possibly lead some of the younger people to a decision for missionary work. Doctrinal and exegetical addresses, which prevailed in the old Niagara Confer-

Right Hand of the Throne of God." He stated in his opening remarks that it was the custom in the old Niagara Conference to place first in importance the work of the Holy Spirit, and it is important to do so now, and he said he would limit his address to forty minutes, as that was the divine number for human limitations. He spoke in particular of the Lordship of Christ, His present rejection, and His coming in glory to take unto Himself the kingdom.

On Tuesday afternoon Rev. F. A. Steven, a member of the Mission, gave the opening address on Romans 1: 14. He referred to Paul being a debtor, and his obligation to free himself from that debt, which could only be done ence, were not contemplated, though the Conference was true to the fundamentals of the faith. Morning, afternoon and evening sessions were held.

Some of the Visitors to the Jubilee Conference of the China Inland Mission at Niagara-on-the-Lake

In his opening remarks, Mr. Frost requested that the time be given to praise to God. He gave the address of welcome and referred to his personal experience, when during the old Niagara Conference, he heard the stirring words of Mr. William E. Blackstone, Rev. Mr. Goforth, and later of his meeting with Rev. Hudson Taylor and Dr. Pierson, and the beginning of the Mission's work in North America in 1885, at which time Mr. Frost became associated with it. At this time Mr. D. L. Moody helped the mission at the Northfield Conference. He told of the Lord keeping the Mission all these years, and that no public appeal for funds had ever been made.

Dr. W. J. Erdman, of Philadelphia, followed with an address on "The Lord Jesus at the by his giving out the gospel entrusted to him. He illustrated by a train on a grade, with an engine at each end, the pulling power representing Paul's debtorship to Christ, and the power from behind, the need of the unsaved in the regions beyond; and Paul's own decision and consecration were like a promissory note he must pay, so he was willing to preach the gospel at Rome also. As debtors, we cannot, or should not, be satisfied when we have discharged our responsibilities at home. We are debtors to all. Mr. Steven said it was the same motive which moved Hudson Taylor in the conducting of his work for China, that Dr. Taylor was not the initiator of the Mission, but the agent, and God was leading him out, the impelling motive being Philippians 4: 5, "The Lord is at hand," and the method of procedure, Philippians 4: 6, "By prayer and supplication." He then related the progress of the work of the Mission and of the unity that prevails among the nearly 1,100 workers.

Mr. Steven was followed by Mrs. A. L. Shapleigh, who has spent some time in China. She spoke on the 93rd Psalm, and then referred to her desire to soon return to her sphere of labor.

On Wednesday morning, the first address was by Rev. A. Imrie of Toronto. He spoke on Isaiah 6, referring to Isaiah's vision of the "Exalted One," and how the crisis came in Isaiah's life when he was praying, and how the Lord prepared him for service, the particular points being that Isaiah was in a right attitude of mind toward the Lord, that the Lord called and cleansed him and revealed to him His will; and as to the duration of his testimony, which is shown later to be "till a people is taken out from among the Gentiles and the Lord's name glorified among the Gentiles."

Mr. Imrie was followed by Dr. F. W. Farr of Philadelphia, with an address on the "incarnation." He took for his Scripture reading, the first chapter of John. He referred to the age-long conflict between light and darkness, and stated that Scripture never argues nor explains. The Old Testament opens with the divine existence assumed and asserted, and the New Testament practically begins with the incarnation, "The Word became flesh," John 1: 14. This event was distinctly supernatural, and beyond the grasp of the finite mind. The incarnation is the foundation of Christianity. It is presupposed by every doctrine of the gospel. It is the first of the three great journeys traced by Paul in Philippians 2, from the throne of God to the womb of the virgin, from Bethlehem to Calvary, and lastly from Olivet to the bosom of the Father. As to the novelty of the incarnation, it was the most wonderful even that had happened since the morning of creation; it was something utterly foreign to the thought of the world. It was common enough for man to be deified, it was an unheard-of thing for God to be humanized. Dr. Farr referred then to the brevity of the Saviour's stay upon earth, the condescension and perpetuity of the incarnation. God must be discovered, investigated and appropriated. Knowledge of God and intimacy with him do not always go together; therefore, it is necessary for the believer to grow in grace, and this growth comes from knowledge. As to Christ, He was as truly God as He was truly man, and as truly man as if He were not God; in other words He had a true rational soul and a true flesh and blood body in the nature of things; therefore, He can no more lay aside His human nature than we can lay aside ours; our Lord still retains His proper humanity, and has a literal, localized, visible body, which was seen by Stephen, Paul and John. The divine revelation in creation, history and providence, is partial and incomplete, but in the Son of God it is in the highest degree perfect and glorious.

In the afternoon, Principal O'Meara of Wycliffe College, Toronto, gave an address on Matthew 14: 22-33, referring to the unlimited power of Christ to supply our every physical and spiritual need. It is a tendency of these days for us to say we are so busy we cannot talk to the King, but He, Himself, always took time to pray. It was while the Lord was praying that His disciples were passing through the testing time. Our adversity is all in God's plan. At the hardest time, the Lord comes in to help, as illustrated by His coming to the disciples on the water. When we come to the end of self, the Lord comes very near in our experience.

Professor Charles R. Erdman, of Princeton Theological Seminary, followed with a presentation of "The Wilderness Temptation," continuing some of the same lines of thought as expressed by Principal O'Meara, mentioning in particular the fact that Christians do not pass beyond the place of trial and temptation. As followers of Christ, we must fight, though we may have peace in our hearts. We imagine we have strong points, but they were all very little when put to the test. Our only hope of victory is by absolute confidence and submission to the Lord's will.

In the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox, who have spent some years in China, related their experience of how they went out to China to preach the Word, but because of the pressing need of workers at the headquarters in Shanghai, they had taken up work there. They have built up a good work in the local chapel, in the Mandarin dialect.

On Thursday morning, Dr. W. J. Erdman gave another address, his subject being, "The Purpose of God to Fill the Whole Earth with His Glory." He referred to the Lord's work before He became man, when He became man, and in the time of the regeneration, which will be the time of the Melchizedek priesthood. The manifested excellence of His glory is revealed in the creation, and the glory of His church will be manifested when He comes.

In the afternoon, Dr. McTavish, of Toronto, spoke on the ability of Christ to do the impossible, taking for his text Matthew 9: 28, "Believe ye that I am able to do this?" Our growth in grace is marked by our growth in confidence.

Dr. W. J. Erdman was then asked to give a resumé of the succession of the old Niagara Conference, tracing from the earliest meeting in 1868, which he compiled from the records of the meetings. This was very interesting, and Dr. Erdman promised to put it into some form for publication.

Mr. Imrie was the next speaker, his theme being, "The Three Appearings of our Lord."

First, to put away sin, Heb. 9: 26; second, His appearing in heaven as our High Priest; third, His appearing the second time without sin.

Principal McNicol, of the Toronto Bible College, gave an exposition of the 121st Psalm, emphasizing, "The Lord is thy keeper" not of all together, but of individuals.

In the evening, Dr. and Mrs. Judd told of their medical work in Jaochow, Kiangsi. Dr. Judd has a number of medical students under his care, and he stated that many of the false ideas with regard to the foreigners taking the eyes and hearts out of the people were still believed by the ignorant. Many peculiar experiences came to Dr. Judd in connection with his work, which has made it hard to preach the gospel, especially because out of five people in particular who went to hear the gospel, three died in two months. He also stated that the Chinese had great difficulty in going through the "slough of despond" experience. Special prayer in behalf of Dr. Judd's work is requested.

On Friday morning, special prayer was offered for the twelve hundred soldiers who departed from the camp at Niagara-on-the-Lake, for England. It was a very solemn spectacle to see the soldiers saying their last good-byes to their wives, mothers and sisters, and embarking.

After prayer, Dr. Farr gave an address on the "Ascension" and was followed by Principal O'Meara, with a discourse on John 15: 1-7, the relationship of branch to trunk, or vine, as indicating that "the secret of success in the Christian life and the measure of power in Christian service, depends upon our personal relationship to the Lord Jesus Christ."

Friday afternoon, the Council members met together in a United North American Council Meeting, the first ever held, and now made possible by this Conference.

After adjournment of the Council, a public meeting was addressed by Professor Charles R.

Erdman, on "Missionary Methods and Motives."

In the evening, Dr. F. A. Keller gave a stereopticon lecture on the work of the Mission, showing a large number of slides, many of which were specially prepared for the Jubilee Conference.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Frost asked for a vote of the Conference with regard to continuing the meetings next year, and the showing of hands approved such an arrangement at about the same date and same place. Principal McNicol then gave a comprehensive review of the "Signs of the Lord's Second Coming" from Matthew 24. He was followed by Dr. McTavish, with a message from Proverbs 4: 12—"As thou goest step by step, the way shall open up before thee, if thou runnest thou shalt not stumble."

In the afternoon, Dr. Torrey gave an address on "The First Missionary, and the Great Missionary Whom Jesus Christ Sent into the World—the Holy Spirit."

In the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Vale, missionaries from China, related their experiences, especially in the Province of Szechwan, in West China.

On Sunday, services were held in the local churches. Principal O'Meara preached in the Church of England; Dr. Torrey in the Methodist church, and Dr. W. J. Erdman in the Presbyterian church.

In the afternoon the Conference convened again at the pavilion, Dr. Keller speaking first and telling of the colportage work carried on by bands of evangelists under his direction in the province of Hunan. Dr. Torrey followed with an address on "Hindrances to Prayer."

Sunday evening, the meeting was given particularly to missionaries, after which the home director closed the Conference. The music was in charge of Mr. E. W. Merritt, formerly of Shanghai, while Mrs. Frost kindly officiated at the piano and organ throughout the Conference.

PSALM 37: 1-7

By Rev. Charles Frederic Sheldon, D. D.

Trust in the Lord: So shalt thou dwell
Within the land, and daily tell
How He thy soul doth ever feed,
And well supply thine every need.

Delight thyself in Him alway;
In shine or storm; by night, by day;
Thine heart's desires He will fulfill,
And give the strength to do His will.

Commit to Him thine every way,
And He will guide thee day by day;
Thy righteousness shine as the light,
Thy judgment be as noonday bright.

Rest in the Lord, and wait for Him;
E'en though thy path be often dim.
Fret not, O child of God, thine heart,
For Jesus Christ will peace impart.

A Rejoinder from a Christian Scientist

[The following communication was received from the representative in Illinois, whose duty it is to correct supposed misrepresentations of Christian Science and otherwise look to its interests. It speaks for itself, and while common courtesy leads us to publish it, we feel that justice to our readers calls for this editorial note. In the first place, we have read and heard the testimony of reputable physicians that Christian Science does not heal organic diseases, notwithstanding that this writer affirms the opposite. In the second place, although Christian Science may not teach that children can be born without fathers, we have heard of more than one Christian Scientist who made that claim. We have also had reputable testimony to the fact that Christian Science in some cases separates husbands and wives. But we would have it understood that our objection to Christian Science is deeper than any of these things. We believe the Bible is the revealed Word of God and that Christian Science antagonizes it fundamentally. We believe that Jesus Christ as revealed in the Bible, is the eternal Son of God and the needed and only Saviour of men's souls, and that Christian Science practically annuls Him and hence is one of the greatest enemies of humanity on the earth today. No healing of the body can compensate for the loss of the soul, and while we do not say that all so-called Christian Scientists are lost, yet we affirm without fear of successful contradiction, that Christian Science followed to its ultimate, will eternally damn every soul yielded up to it. We have not one harsh word for any Christian Scientist; on the natural plane of things Christian Scientists are good men and women and governed by what they regard as pure and lofty motives, but they are deceived beyond most people in this western part of the world by the philosophy and vain deceit which has ensnared them. We say these things with the deepest pity in our hearts, and the most earnest longing for some of our own friends who are thus ensnared, that before it is too late they may be delivered out of the net.—Editors.]

Christian Science
Committee on Publication
For the State of Illinois
405 Orchestra Building
Chicago

June 17, 1915.

Editor Christian Workers Magazine,
Dear Sir:

In an article in your June issue which was described as coming from one who was "for years a Christian Scientist" there are a number of statements which give an entirely wrong idea of Christian Science. In the interest of both accuracy and justice therefore, I request permission to correct some of them.

Our critic is right in concluding that Christian Scientists "really think they have found the way of life." It is this conviction, based upon what Christian Science has done for them and others and not the solicitation of friends, that has brought most of them to accept it and it is this conviction that binds them to their faith and impels them to grateful testimony as to its effects upon their health and lives. The healing of Christian Science far from being confined to hysteria covers all forms of functional and organic disease. Hundreds of such cases previously diagnosed by reputable physicians and in many instances, as your correspondent truly states, pronounced hopeless by them, have been thoroughly investigated and authenticated and are a matter of public record. In fact there is hardly a community where Christian Science has been practiced, be it ever so small, in which are not to be found people who have been healed through it of organic disease, and your correspondent's experience was unique indeed if in several years' acquaintance with Christian Scientists she saw no healing except of hysteria.

There is no secret about Christian Science. The church is governed by a manual which may be had in public libraries generally, and its teachings are to be found in the Bible, and its text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy.

How one who states that she has had class instruction can be so misinformed on matters of common knowledge among Christian Scientists is difficult to understand. For instance, the Wednesday evening meetings which she refers to as prayer meetings are never called prayer meetings, but are in fact testimony meetings, and this is the term used by Christian Scientists generally. The writer has been a Christian Scientist for fourteen years without ever having heard our Wednesday meetings called prayer meetings. No Wednesday meeting is held without the repetition of the Lord's Prayer as given in the Bible, yet our critic says, "there is no prayer offered" at them, and exclaims, "why they call them prayer meetings I cannot tell."

There is no such thing in Christian Science as a "death treatment" and the sending of "mental waves" is absolutely foreign to it both in theory and vocabulary. Christian Science does not teach mental action through waves of any kind nor can the power of God be used to injure man. Such expressions and the reference to the "New Thought" paper would indicate that our critic had confused Christian Science with some systems which are diametrically opposed to it.

Christian Science does not teach that children can be "born without fathers." In fact a member who claimed to have born a child without a material father was expelled from the church on that account. Nor is there any basis in fact for the statement "they (Christian Scientists) do not hesitate to separate husband and wife." In the Christian Science text-book an entire chapter is devoted to the subject of marriage, in which the following statement occurs: "The nuptial vow should never be annulled, so long as its moral obligations are kept intact; . . . Separation should never take place, and it never would, if both husband and wife were genuine Christian Scientists" (page 59).

There is nothing in the teaching of Christian Science to indicate that Mrs. Eddy was divine, and no true Christian Scientist so considers her, nor did she claim to be superior to Jesus Christ. On the contrary, in reply to a similar charge she said in the "New York Herald" of February 1, 1895: "A dispatch is given me, calling for an interview to answer for myself, 'Am I the second Christ?' Even the question shocks me. What I am is for God to declare in His infinite mercy. . . . But to think or speak of me in any manner as a Christ, is sacrilegious." ("Pulpit and Press," page 74).

Since I cannot ask sufficient space to take up all the statements that need correction, I will content myself with the above and thank you for your fairness in giving my communication space.

Very truly yours,
Avery Coonley.

The Revival of Revivalism

An Editorial from "The North American" of June 5

DURING the last dozen years or so many thoughtful and persuasive articles have been published upon the theme of the gradual disappearance and inevitable extinction of the "old-fashioned revival." Secular writers and experts on matters religious have agreed that the time was long past when the populace would respond to the vigorous methods of the campmeeting evangelism familiar to former generations or would accept the dogmas that satisfied a simpler age. These essays would make strange reading now, in the light of the remarkable accomplishments of revivalism in this State during the last year or two.

Yet the opinions we have mentioned were expressed by competent observers of the religious tendencies of the day, and were supported by some plausible arguments; so that it came to be a generally accepted theory, both within and without the circles of church activity, that the tumultuous, protracted-meeting, penitent-bench kind of religious awakening disappeared with horsehair furniture and the advent of the trolley car. Among the reasons cited were the visible tendencies of the people toward a more critical view of religion and a more indulgent attitude upon Sunday observance and worldly amusements; the growing habit among Americans of devoting their scant leisure to recreation rather than serious contemplation of the mysteries of existence, and the effect of increasing economic pressure in concentrating the attention of the masses of the people upon the urgent problems of the present life, to the exclusion of doctrines about a life to come.

The most substantial argument, however, was found in the spread of religious liberalism—not so much that type of radical thought which discards the whole theory of Christianity, but that modern philosophy which asserts that it has found a new and truer interpretation of the Bible; which rejects many of the dogmas of the churches, yet offers its own reverent ideal of the Founder of the faith as a teacher and as an exemplar for an ever-advancing humanity.

The force of these manifestations is not to be denied; yet what is to be said of the counter-currents that have swept across the commonwealth during recent times? Recrudescence of the old-fashioned revival anywhere in this intensely practical country might be considered remarkable; in this gang-ruled, booze-ridden State it is nothing less than phenomenal. Certainly it should puzzle those who explained painstakingly that the world would never see another Whitefield and who pictured the excitement of the Moody and Sankey days as the last outburst of a psychological fervor that had vanished from the experience of men.

It was a little more than a year ago that Billy Sunday compelled nation-wide attention by his astonishing achievements in Scranton—seemingly a most unpromising field for evangelism, with its surrounding territory of rugged mining country and its babel of alien tongues. That had followed his greater triumph in Pittsburgh, the first really large city in which he had campaigned, when a community saturated with self-centered materialism yielded to the spell of his whole-souled conviction and fiery eloquence and was shaken to the very foundations of its social and business and religious life. And after Scranton came the astounding awakening in Philadelphia, when the exponent of a theology believed to be without modern appeal spoke to 30,000 persons a day for eleven weeks on end. The Sunday tabernacle, of course, was many times bigger than the auditoriums used by the old evangelists; his organization was more efficient, his methods more spectacular and effective, his personal magnetism, perhaps, more powerful. But his message was the same; as simple, as primitive and as antagonistic to modernism as that of the revivalists of generations ago.

Such successes as he has won are not to be explained as results merely of his peculiar genius as an orator and organizer. If that alone were the explanation, men more eloquent and machinery more elaborate would be employed to promote an opposing philosophy. But the reality of the persistence of the old revivalism in this knowing and skeptical age does not depend for proof upon the singular triumphs of one man. During the last year, while Billy Sunday has been confounding prediction, another evangelist has been accomplishing great things.

Practicing the same methods and preaching identically the same message, Dr. Henry W. Stough has stirred to their depths communities in many parts of Pennsylvania—mining towns like DuBois and Mount Carmel; Altoona, the industrial center; Harrisburg, the capital; Lancaster, county seat of the country's richest agricultural district, and now unregenerate Reading. Like Sunday, Doctor Stough long ago passed the point where a tent or the largest public building in a community sufficed to hold his audiences. His appeal is so strong that it invariably he requires an immense tabernacle; and in every instance the results he has accomplished have justified the enterprise. Lancaster and Reading presented the most difficult problems he encountered. Those cities, of course, are not exceptionally wicked or unbelieving; on the contrary, his chief obstacles were religious elements—such as Dunkards, Mennonites and Lutherans—which are sincerely devout, but which are impervious to the methods of the organized, interchurch revival.

Despite these disadvantages and working with only a fractional part of the church population, Doctor Stough has achieved results which place him second only to Billy Sunday among the American evangelists. One of the strongest tributes to his effectiveness is that the forces of evil pursue him and have endeavored to destroy him. His work has been so notable, both in forcefulness and magnitude, that even if it stood alone it would defy explanation upon the mere ground of exceptional ability. Yet the case is stronger than if Sunday and Stough were alone to be considered. During the entire period of their activity revivals of like fashion and based upon the same message have been going on in a dozen other parts of the State.

We are by no means sure that we have a complete list, but we have been aware of the campaigns of Nicholson and Hemminger, of W. E. Biederwolf, of George Wood Anderson, of Robert E. Johnson, of Ernest Crabill, Charles Jordan, Thompson McKinney, Hillis, Miller, Paul Brown, John M. Linden and J. A. Henry, each of whom has enlisted a large following in every community visited. One can hardly contemplate such a widespread movement, developing at the same time in widely sundered regions and demanding in its heavy financial cost an unusual responsiveness on the part of the public, without realizing that it is not due to mere ability on the part of this or that crusader, but to some subtle and far-reaching force operating on the public mind.

What that force may be we do not attempt to say; we do no more than recount the facts. But the results show that there are currents of human thought which have their origin deeper than close students have been able to measure. Whatever the future may disclose, it is undeniable that the old-time revival, with its primitive message and its daring methods, has as much effectiveness today as fifty years ago. Billy Sunday has gone on, seemingly to demonstrate continuously his commanding sway in his chosen field. Doctor Stough is approaching the end of the season's activities, but it is certain that after the summer interval he will be called back to Pennsylvania and demonstrate still further that evangelism, far from being extinct, is a force of growing potency in American life.

ELOCUTION VS. THE HOLY GHOST

Bishop Simpson preached some years ago in the Memorial Hall, London. For half an hour he spoke quietly, without gesticulation or uplifting his voice; then, picturing the Son of God bearing our sins in his own body on the tree, he stopped as if laden with an immeasurable burden, and, rising to his full height, he seemed to throw it from him, crying: "How far? As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us." The whole assembly, as if moved by an irresistible impulse, rose, remained standing for a second or two, then sank back into their seats. A professor of elocution was there. A friend who observed him, and knew that he had come to criticise, asked him when the service was over, "Well, what do you think of the bishop's elocution?" "Elocution?" said he; "that man doesn't want elocution; he's got the Holy Ghost!"—"Presbyterian Banner."

We who learn to see God as He has revealed Himself in His Word are all satisfied with God, and in His dealings with us, we see how everything is for our good.—Muller.

The Christian Endeavor Convention at Chicago

By S. A. Woodruff

THE question has been asked, "Is not the Christian Endeavor movement on the wane?" Anyone who could have seen the great Twenty-seventh International and Fifth World's Convention, held in the Coliseum, July 7-12, would not think so. There were 10,185 enrolled delegates, besides many thousands of visitors.

From the opening service to the close of the sessions the last night, the attendance and interest were great. President Francis E. Clark was too ill to leave his bed and could not attend. Vice-President Howard B. Grose, D. D., presided. The praise service was opened by singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," followed by the large chorus singing the convention song, "Blessed Redeemer."

Loyalty was the keynote of the convention, as expressed by Dr. O. S. Davis. A telegram from Dr. Clark was read, asking that his love be sent to all the Endeavorers and telling them to stand by the Christian Endeavor pledge. Welcome messages were given by Chicago representatives and telegrams of greeting were read from China, Japan and Germany.

A feature of the evening was the reading of a message, from President Woodrow Wilson, which was responded to by the convention.

Individual conferences for discussing departmental work, and state and local gatherings were held at various points during the daytime, during which time many old acquaintanceships were renewed and new friendships formed and new determinations made to press onward with the great work which lies before the Endeavor societies.

Dr. Grose gave many interesting epigrams from C. E. which were appreciated by the audience. Consistent example is better than critical exegesis, said he, and this thought was deeply impressed by the many speakers.

This convention will be historic because of the appointment of Daniel A. Poling, of Ohio, as President's associate, and his accepting the office with the hearty approval of the more than 12,000 people in the convention. Mr. Poling is Dr. Clark's personal choice, and is admirably fitted for the place. After his appointment he read Dr. Clark's message to the convention. It was an inspiring call to mobilize, vitalize and evangelize. He said in part:

"I appeal to you Endeavorers, as millionaires, to mobilize, vitalize, evangelize the millions. You are not millionaires in money; but you are in numbers, in opportunities, and in the strength which Christ, your great leader, provides. Think in millions; work for millions; achieve millions. I would not take your breath away. I am speaking words of truth and solemnness. Here is what I ask you to achieve, in the name of the Master, and trusting in Him for strength, during the next two years:

"A Million New Converts.

"A Million New Endeavorers.

"A Million New Church-Members.

"A Million New Dollars for Missions.

"A Million New Members of the Peace Union.

"Ten Thousand New Societies of Christian Endeavor.

"Twenty Thousand New Comrades of the Quiet Hour.

"Ten Thousand New Legionaries.

"Ten Thousand New Christian Endeavor Experts.

"Five Thousand New Life-Work Recruits.

"This is not too large a task for the eager, earnest Endeavorers of the world. We once before added a million new members and ten thousand new societies in two years' time. With all the world enlisted in this world's convention, we can undertake this larger program in the two years to come, and with God's help accomplish it.

"As nations mobilize for war, why should not Christians mobilize for Christ?"

The delegates pledged themselves to fulfill Dr. Clark's appeal.

The many addresses were of a nature to inspire the delegates to greater zeal for the winning of souls, and building up the societies and churches, especially that of Rev. W. W. Bustard, D. D., pastor of Euclid Avenue Baptist Church, Cleveland, O. He emphasized the fact that the inspired Word of God is the only means of accomplishing the result. The Word of God abideth forever. Regardless of the assaults of the critics, the books of the Bible, like the prisoners with Paul in the Philippian jail, "are all here." He referred to the fact that of all religions Christianity is the only one that has a Saviour, and the name of Christ on the Cross will never go out. He suggested that the Endeavorers become the most active workers in the Sunday-school.

Missions received their full share of interest in the convention from the missionaries and representatives, and many delegates responded to an appeal to give themselves to definite fields of work for the Lord.

The presence of representatives from fifteen nations and the cordial greetings presented,

The Convention Chorus and the Territorial Staff Band of the Salvation Army at Twenty-seventh International Christian Endeavor Convention, Chicago, July 7-12 emphasized the world-fellowship of the C. E. movement. The arrangements of the Chicago convention committee were admirable, and, said Dr. Grose, "The Chicago convention of 1915 was one of the best and most hopeful of all." The Des Moines delegation of more than 200 wore red coats, blouses and hats, giving a brilliant dash of color to the floor, while the chorus of 1,500, the young women in white and the men in black, made a wonderful color effect on the platform. The Salvation Army orchestra and an antiphonal choir of 300 enabled the musical director, Prof. H. Augustine Smith, to render music of the highest class. The next convention will be held in 1917, in New York City.

Sunday Good---Should Be Better

Editorial in "The Continent"

REV. WILLIAM A. SUNDAY is today thoroughly established in the appreciation and confidence of the evangelical churches of America as a pre-eminently efficient evangelist. The general verdict of Protestant opinion is: "No man can do these signs except God be with him." In one especially commanding respect his preaching constrains sympathy from all who follow Jesus as a divine Saviour.

Mr. Sunday with a passionate and supreme conviction offers to his hearers continually a Christ who this day here in America, the same as in Palestine 2,000 years ago, "hath authority on earth to forgive sins"—and declares that "in none other is there salvation." Likewise, his terrific revulsion at the sinfulness of sin and his tremendous urgency on the sinner to come and be made clean in Christ, dominate both regenerate and unregenerate consciences. Moreover, the church owes Mr. Sunday gratitude for his militant unconventionality—his smashing war on the priggishness of custom. Just as in Christ's time, the church today is bound in tradition—manacled by shivering fear of doing anything peculiar. Mr. Sunday bursts these chains of timorous propriety. So he sets thousands of men free—Christians and sinners—to stand out for what they have known for years they ought to stand for.

But while the church thus confers on Mr. Sunday its indorsement, a critical world challenges it to say whether by this it approves certain much debated idiosyncrasies of his.

To this challenge the church can only make candid answer: It does believe Mr. Sunday to be a man with a divine commission, but that does not prevent it from deploring in him many shortcomings. This, however, yields nothing to trifling cavils from the unfriendly and supercilious. It is puerile to carp at Mr. Sunday's slang, his platform antics and such like eccentricities. At the worst, these things are but breaches of taste. The only things in which the church has need to allow discount from its favor for Mr. Sunday are such things as subtract from his imitation and interpretation of the Master he preaches.

Thus the church is bound to repudiate Mr. Sunday's irreverence. It is not his familiarity with his Lord which evokes criticism. A holy intimacy with Christ is every Christian's privilege. Mr. Sunday offends not by intimacy but by a happy-go-lucky air of equality with his Master—especially in what he represents to be public prayer.

Apparently, Mr. Sunday never yet has heard the mystic whisper, "Put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground." Instead of stealing hushed and awestruck to the garment hem of God, the evangelist bolts into the divine presence like a gossip neighbor "dropping around" for a chat. This is not reverence, and reverence is vital to religion. Mr. Sunday's chumminess with his Creator is no wholesome example.

It is pointless to complain of the frequency and freedom with which Mr. Sunday talks of hell. The gospel note which he emphasizes with this unmistakable word is a note that ought to have larger place in modern preaching. The present-day preacher follows Paul in reasoning gently of "righteousness and self-control" but evades "judgment to come." Mr. Sunday puts it all in.

But his fault is that in preaching hell he preaches it with gusto instead of anguish and yearning. Surely, it was not thus but in heart-break that Jesus uttered his dreadful "woes." Would Jesus gloat over Dives in torment? But to Mr. Sunday the tongue that pleads across the abyss for a drop of cooling water is a joke. Generations ago the church put behind it the grotesque idea of Jonathan Edwards that the redeemed in heaven would rejoice at the sight of sinners punished in hell. It certainly cannot today approve in Mr. Sunday the recrudescence of that point of view.

The great sums of money which the people bestow on Mr. Sunday in "free-will offerings" are nothing to be counted against him. It is only fair to recognize that he adopted this method for his own compensation when the returns from it were very problematical. No sordid motives can be traced in Mr. Sunday's original consecration to evangelistic work. And now the only question worth the anxiety of the church is the question whether the "deceitfulness of riches" which Jesus Christ dreaded so much may have corroded in some degree the mirror in which an evangelist's soul ought to reflect the image of the Lord. The zeal with which Mr. Sunday still maintains his financial plans against all modification now that he has discovered in them an El Dorado, and the subtle ways in which from the platform he encourages extravagant gifts, suggest painfully that he is not today as indifferent to the glitter of gold as when he started on his work.

But far the most serious defect about Mr. Sunday is the absence of sign that he has been in that school to which Jesus invited his disciples when he said: "Learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart." He knows so little of what Mary learned at the feet of Jesus that he has even ridiculed in one of his sermons the religion of the woman whom Jesus praised for having "chosen the good part"—a dissent from the inspired word of God which the most extreme of higher critics can hardly in any instance have equaled. And there is at least one text of Paul from which it would be impossible for the present Mr. Sunday to preach: "I myself entreat you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ." In a word, Mr. Sunday is unprepared to represent to men the tenderness, the compassion and the humility of Jesus—peculiarly not the humility. And that is a serious blank to leave in an evangelistic gospel or in an evangelistic personality.

It results not only in un-Christlike harshness toward sinners, but (even sadder) in lofty scorn toward fellow Christians. When Mr. Sunday declares the failure of his brother ministers, he speaks as one superior to the faults he denounces—even as the Pharisee who prided himself on being "not as the rest of men."

Mr. Sunday preaches enough gospel to bring

"Billy" Sunday at Home men into the kingdom. He does bring men into the kingdom. Therefore the church upholds him. But seeing he is at one and the same time a man of great power, great possibility and great peril, there ought to be "prayer made earnestly of the church unto God for him" that he may be lifted to higher and safer levels.

"To give in one's lifetime is true generosity; to bequeath after death is often merely convenience."—Oliver Cromwell.

He Holdeth Me Safe in His Arms.

George H. Lorah, D. D.

COPYRIGHT, 1915, BY ERNEST O. SELLERS.

E. O. Sellers.

1. He hold - eth me safe in His arms! He shield - eth my
 2. He hold - eth me safe in His arms! In wor - ry and
 3. He hold - eth me safe in His arms! So safe that no soul from a - larms! He keep-eth my soul From sin waves that roll—He tu - mult, He calms! No dan-gers come nigh Since Je-sus is by—He en - e - my harms! He sav - eth my life, In dan-ger and strife, He hold - eth me safe in His arms!..... He hold-eth me safe in His safe in His arms!

CHORUS.

arms!..... He hold-eth me safe in His arms!..... By sin oft opin His arms! in His arms!

pressed, In Je - sus I rest, He hold - eth me safe in His arms.

Practical and Perplexing Questions

Answered by the Editors

NOTE TO CORRESPONDENTS

We call the attention of our correspondents who patronize this department to the fact, that not infrequently their inquiries are answered under other titles than those suggested in their letters to us. Sometimes substantially the same inquiry comes from more than one person, and at about the same time, in which instances we reply to that statement of the question which is the most comprehensive, hoping thus to cover the others. If our friends will please note this, and scan the columns carefully, they may find less cause to complain that their questions are not answered as promptly as expected.—Editors.

BRIEF MENTION

J. S. R.: In our judgment, Paul's "thorn in the flesh" was not removed.

F. S.: We believe that in Matthew 10: 16-23, our Lord has in mind the end of the age.

M. L. K.: We believe the "brother" referred to in 1 John 5:16 means a Christian brother, a saved man.

M. E. M.: We know nothing of the author of the book on prophecy to which you refer, and from the contents of the advertisement you quote, we advise you to let it alone.

A. C. J.: Jeremiah 31:22 is regarded by many authorities as referring prophetically to the virgin birth of our Lord. There is a difference of opinion in regard to it, but that is our own view.

Mrs. F. T.: In reply to your question about the religion of the Elks and the Masons, we refer you to our last April issue, p. 494, to the article entitled, "The Bible and Secret Societies."

D. G. C.: We do not think a Christian should smoke, but nevertheless, a good many such do smoke, which in our judgment is a detriment to their Christian experience and testimony.

M. I. C.: Christ's death was a vicarious atonement for all sin, original sin as well as individual transgressions. A man who is really saved may sin wilfully, but he will not continue to do it.

Mrs. L. W. C.: The nominal, worldly Christians who will be left behind when the Lord comes for His church, will be called upon to pass through the refining fires of the tribulation period.

M. S. A.: The difference between the 1611 and 1911 Bibles is very slight, and as to which is the more commendable for pulpit use is a matter of individual choice, but in our opinion the 1911 Bible will not universally displace the other.

G. E. V.: The raising of "the dead in Christ" (1 Thess. 4:16) refers to their bodies and not their souls or spirits. These latter are with Christ in Paradise, and will come with Him when He comes. But this does not imply that they are there in an unconscious state.

M. C. H.: "The Holy Catholic Church" as named in the Apostles' Creed, does not mean the church of Rome, but the blessed company of all true believers in all the denominations everywhere. In other words, the church universal.

G. A. B.: We do not recall that Christ said anything about bringing offerings to God's house on the Sabbath more than any other day, but if you will read 1 Corinthians 16:2, you will see a special reason why we should bring our gifts to God's house on the Lord's day, which is now our Sabbath.

Miss H. G. D.: Deuteronomy 14: 21 is explained by Leviticus 3: 1. An animal dying of itself would retain its blood, but while it was unlawful for an Israelite to eat the blood, it was not unlawful for an alien. It was unlawful for Israel because it represented sacrifice, and every sacrifice pointed to Calvary.

C. T. G.: The true Church is not an amalgamation, but an organism, formed by the Holy Spirit in uniting believers to Jesus Christ as their spiritual Head. It is not good men who justify its continuance, but the life of Jesus Christ in them that makes it continue. Therefore, the comparison you make between it and secret orders is not valid.

E. J.: "That which restraineth," and "until He be taken out of the way," (2 Thess. 2: 6, 7) mean practically the same. While it is the church that restrains, it is the church as indwelt by the Holy Spirit, and hence for the latter to be taken out of the way is for the church to be taken out of the way. The ascent of the Spirit and the translation of the church are coincident.

A Subscriber: "The kingdom of heaven suffereth violence." Matthew 11:12, 13, is capable of two interpretations, an external and an internal one. In the first, the enemies of Jesus and John are the "violent" who are rejecting the kingdom by force; and in the second, the "violent" are those who in face of the opposition are pressing into the kingdom.—"Christian Workers Commentary."

Y. L. J.: We do not know what kind of bodies sinners will have after the resurrection. It certainly is not right for a Christian to serve as a bartender, no matter who tells him so, and if that young man will not give up his job on your advice, you can do nothing but pray for him. Neither is it right for a Christian woman to marry a man that has a wife living. Of course, if he has divorced her on the ground of her adultery, then she is not his wife.

Mrs. A. G. B.: The "daily sacrifice" and "the abomination that maketh desolate," spoken of by Daniel, refer to the pollution of the restored temple in Jerusalem by the Antichrist. The 11th chapter of Daniel also refers to that period, and the king of the north therein mentioned cannot be the present German Emperor for several reasons, but especially because the time is not yet quite ripe, though it may be very near. The "Christian Workers Commentary" would give you light on this, or any good volume on Daniel, like Tregelles or Gaebelein, or a smaller one by W. C. Stevens. Apply to the Bible Institute Colportage Association, 826 N. LaSalle St., Chicago.

RESISTING EVIL

Question: How do you reconcile Jesus forcibly driving the money changers out of the temple with the teaching about resisting evil, Matthew 5:39?

Answer: Quoting "Barnes' Commentary": "Christ did not intend to teach that we are to see our families murdered or be murdered ourselves rather than to make resistance."

* * * Our Saviour immediately explains what He means by resisting evil, confining himself to minor matters, saying that in these we had better take wrong than to enter into strife and lawsuits. The first case is where we are smitten on the cheek, which does not, however, prevent our remonstrating on the injustice of the act (John 18:23). The second evil mentioned is where a man is litigious and determined to take all the advantage the law can give him. Our Saviour directs that rather than imitate such a man, we should accept the trifling injury and yield to him. This is merely a question of our property and not of our conscience and life." If we were to resist all evil we could not resist the Devil as we are taught to do. (James 4:7). In driving the money changers out of the temple Christ was acting as God judging in His own house.

SEVENTH DAY ADVENTISM AND THE MARK OF THE BEAST

We group two or three questions under this title.

A Vermont correspondent asks:

Can you give me any light on the Sabbath or the Seventh Day? There are a number of Seventh Day people here and it is all anyone can hear. And what is the power spoken of in Revelation 13:15-17 (the mark of the beast)?

Another from Washington asks:

Who do you think is the "beast" mentioned in Revelation, and also the "beasts?" What is "the mark of the beast?" This country is full of Seventh Day Adventists who claim the mark of the beast is Sunday and that those who keep it will be destroyed with the beast, the Roman Catholic Church.

A third correspondent from Indiana says:

Please explain Revelation 13: 16-17 (the mark of the beast).

A fourth from Nevada asks practically the same question and because he is being troubled by the same class of religious teachers.

Answer: In reply to all these we quote from "Bible Problems Explained" (Gray): "Sunday is nowhere spoken of in the New Testament in so many words, but that it was kept as a day sacred to the Lord by the apostolic church from the very first, is evident from John 20:19-26; Acts 20:7; 1 Corinthians 16:2 and Revelation 1:10."

This change of the day of rest and worship from the seventh to the first day of the week is one in which the church seems to have had the guidance and blessing of the Spirit of God; and is intended to commemorate the resurrection of Jesus Christ. Thus the keeping of that day becomes in itself one of the most convincing evidences of the divine origin of Christianity as based upon the finished work of Christ.

The "beasts" spoken of in Daniel typify the four world empires into which Gentile dominion is divided between the time of Nebuchadnezzar and the end of the present age, namely, the Babylonian, Medo-Persian, Grecian and Roman. The "beast" of Revelation is sometimes used for the last of those empires, and sometimes for that wicked despot who will be at its head at the end of the present age, and who will be destroyed with the brightness of Christ's coming (2 Thess. 2). "Until the 'beast' himself appears, it is unlikely that his 'mark' shall be known. Just what it will be we cannot now say, but our correspondents may be assured that the keeping of the first day of the week in commemoration of Christ's resurrection cannot be that mark. The keeping of that day exalts Christ, while it is the business of the Antichrist to dethrone and dishonor Him. Therefore, the inconsistency of such an assumption is glaring."

For those who desire a more detailed answer to Seventh Day Adventism on the points named, we would recommend "Seventh Day Adventism Renounced," by Elder Canright, published by Revell, and also a small pamphlet entitled, "Ought Christians to Keep the Sabbath," by R. A. Torrey.

THE LAYMENS COMMENTARY ON THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS

Conducted By James M. Gray

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

Lesson 9

Paul's First Missionary Journey Chapters 13:4-14

Note who was the real inspirer and director of this missionary journey—"sent forth, by the Holy Ghost" (v. 4). This does not contradict the last phrase of the preceding verse which, properly rendered, is "they let them go." Study the localities of Seleucia and Cyprus on the map. What was the first port of Cyprus at which they preached (v. 5)? Note that they began their work in the synagogues because it was the divine order to preach to the Jew first (Rom. 1:16), and because this assured them a waiting audience. The kind of ministry John Mark rendered is not stated, and some think it may have been of a domestic or personal kind. The emphasis in this part of the journey is on the events in Paphos, which place the student should identify. Those versed in dispensational matters speak of Elymas as a type of apostate Judaism which has turned away from the truth and perverts the right ways of the Lord. As he tried to keep the Word of God from the Roman governor so the Jews tried to keep it from the Gentiles as a class; while on the other hand the judgment falling on him is also significant. Blindness has been put upon the Jews judicially, and they are groping in the darkness without a leader. Compare the story (13:6-11) with such a passage as Isa. 6:9, 10, for example.

Leaving the island for the continent of Asia Minor at verse 13, we find that verse contains two interesting things. Paul is now first called by that name and begins to take the first place in the narrative as compared with Barnabas or any other fellow-worker. Also John Mark is pointed out as a deserter for some cause, just what is not known. Compare here Acts 15:38 and 2 Timothy 4:11, the first of which shows that Mark was to be blamed, and the second that he was subsequently restored to Paul's fellowship. The word Paul means "little," but why it was now assumed by him is not known, except it be as expressing his estimate of himself spiritually.

"Antioch in Pisidia" (v. 14). As Pisidia was a part of Galatia and as one of Paul's most important epistles was sent there it gives special interest to this part of the story. Furthermore we have here a sample of Paul's preaching as in the case of Peter at Pentecost, and also an intimation of how he found access to the people in the synagogues. The order of exercises there is given in verse 15. From 16 to 41 is the sermon, which differs from Peter's in an important way. Peter addressed the Jews distinctively, and before the final offer of the kingdom was withdrawn from them for the time being, and hence he offered forgiveness on the ground of repentance and baptism. But Paul speaking to Gentiles as well as Jews, and proclaiming the gospel of grace as distinguished from that of the kingdom, "utters a truth for the first time which Peter did not declare" (v. 39).

The sermon breaks itself up into three parts—a historical retrospect (vv. 16-25), an unveiling of the gospel (vv. 26-39), and a warning (vv. 40, 41). "Ye that fear God" in contrast with "Men of Israel" (v. 16), means the devout Gentiles who sometimes worshiped in the synagogues. Observe that while Paul addresses himself chiefly to the Jews (v. 23), yet true to his commission these others are not forgotten—"whosoever among you feareth God" (v. 26). The gospel part of the sermon is a model for all time, a statement of facts (vv. 27-31), a glorious declaration based upon them and buttressed by holy writ (vv. 32-37), and the whole pressed home in a personal application (vv. 38, 39). The warning seems to have been drawn forth as was that of Stephen, by a spirit of opposition rising among his hearers.

The effects of the sermon are pointed out in verses 42-44, both Jews and Gentiles having been impressed, some of whom were saved. The next week shows a change in the situation, explained in verses 44-48. "Ordained" in the last-named verse is not to be interpreted as an arbitrary act on God's part, although it remains true that their acceptance of eternal life by faith shows that He had chosen them to that end. There was a wide work of evangelization in this place (v. 49), but at length the gospel messengers were forced out into other regions (v. 50). "Devout and honorable women," means doubtless Jewish worshipers who were wives of the rulers of the city.

We need not dwell on the story of Iconium (14:1-5) except that the missionaries abode there a long time before persecution drove them forth, and that a great multitude of both Jews and Gentiles believed.

The events at Lystra are full of dramatic movement (vv. 6-20). The supernatural deliverance of Paul suggests Job 2:6. But is it not amazing that they should have returned, without fear, through the cities in which they had so recently suffered persecution (v. 21)? Some have calculated that the whole of this journey covered about a year and a half.

Questions on the Lesson

1. Who originated this missionary journey?
2. What geographical relation does Cyprus bear to Syria and Asia Minor?
3. In what sense may Elymas be spoken of as a type?
4. What is the meaning of the word "Paul"?
5. Describe the simple service of the synagogue.
6. Analyze Paul's sermon at Antioch.
7. Give the story of Lystra in your own words.

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

Lesson 10

The First General Church Council

Chapter 15:1-35

This lesson is one of the most important in the whole historical part of the New Testament. It is the record of the first general council of the church, called to settle the fundamental question as to how a man may be just with God. We have become acquainted with "they of the circumcision" who, at chapter 11, objected to Peter's fellowship with the Gentiles in the case of Cornelius. The party was strong and growing stronger. As Jews of the stricter sort they could not understand how Gentiles could become Christians without in a sense first becoming Jews. Their theory is expressed in verse 1. Some of them who have come to be styled "Judaizing teachers" had followed Paul and Barnabas to Antioch and sought to undermine their work there. The immediate result is given in verses 3 and 4. The second of these two verses should be read in connection with Paul's account of this gathering in Galatians 2. The appearance of Peter (vv. 7-11) is the last in this book, and it is remarkable that as an apostle of the circumcision so-called (Gal. 2:8), he should have been used by the Holy Spirit to reprove the error of the Judaizing teachers. He does so by a plain relation of facts, an interrogative argument and a statement of belief. The preciousness of that statement is enhanced by a recurrence to the later dark ages of the church when its momentous truth was obscured by the sacramentalism of the papacy.

But the settlement of this great doctrine is not the only feature marking the value of this council, since we have in the inspired words of James following (vv. 13-18), the divine program for the whole of this age and the following. Here we have the great truth of the dispensations so necessary to the understanding of the Bible, and so little appreciated by many Christian teachers today. As another puts it, "How different would be the work of our large denominational gatherings if the facts here alluded to were taken into consideration?" Here is the order of events: First, God is now in this Christian age visiting the Gentiles "to take out of them a people for his name." This, in other words, is a time of outgathering of an elect number from the nations to form the church or the body of Christ (Compare Eph. 3:6 in the light of its context). Secondly, "After this" Christ "will return" (v. 16). The feature of the return of Christ here spoken of is not that for the translation of the church which is His body (1 Thess. 4:16-18), but His visible return in power and glory of which the Old Testament prophets speak. This is that second feature of His second coming to which reference has been made before in these pages, and which follows the rapture of the church, synchronizing with the threatened judgments on the living Gentile nations and the deliverance of Israel from her great tribulation. Thirdly, following this event will transpire the building again of "the tabernacle of David" (v. 16), in other words the restoration of the kingdom to Israel (compare Luke 1:32, 33). Finally, i. e., during the millennial age, "the residue of men" will "seek after the Lord." (Compare Isa. 2:2; 11:10; 60:5, etc.)

The divine program enunciated by James is followed by his "sentence" (v. 19), which is, in effect, the judgment of the whole assembly now reduced to writing, and to be transmitted to the churches by a committee of the brethren named in verse 22. All that the Gentiles are asked to abstain from are those things more or less associated with idolatry (v. 20), and which were not distinguished as Mosaic prohibitions, but based on the earlier covenant of Noah (Gen. 9:41), binding equally on Gentile and Jew. Nevertheless, verse 21 indicates that in the abstinence therefrom they were to show a suitable respect for their Jewish neighbors who were instructed in these things in the Old Testament Scriptures, of which the Gentiles until that time were ignorant.

The remainder of the lesson requires no comment.

Questions on the Lesson

1. With what event does this lesson deal?
2. What question of doctrine was now settled?
3. What was the contention of the Judaizing teachers?
4. In what epistle does Paul refer to their false teaching?
5. What is the nature of Peter's address on this occasion?
6. What other feature gives an outstanding character to this chapter?
7. What is the divine order of the ages as indicated here?

8. What was the final "sentence" of this council?

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

Lesson 11

The Second Journey

Chapters 15:36-18:22

Though the text of this lesson is long, it will be interesting to read it through at a single sitting, and get the whole journey at one view. The events are clear cut, easily remembered and apparent in their spiritual teaching.

It begins with the "contention" between Paul and Barnabas—men "of like passions" with ourselves, which was providentially overruled so that two missionary journeys grew out of it instead of one (15:36-41). Note that there were churches in "Syria and Cilicia" though no account is given of their origin beyond that of Antioch. It is a hint of the activity of the preachers of the Word, and the extent to which the gospel may have spread in that early time far beyond the record.

The story of the second visit to Lystra (16:1-3), gains interest from the subsequent prominence of Timothy, of whom further data are found in the epistles Paul afterward addressed to him. His circumcision is no evidence of inconsistency on Paul's part, since no question of principle was involved, but only expediency (v. 3). As Timothy's father was a Greek, it would be known that he was uncircumcised, which would prevent his ministry among the Jews (Compare here 1 Cor. 9:20).

The outstanding feature of this journey is in verses 6-10 of this chapter. "Asia" (v. 6) was a name given to a large part of Asia Minor especially on the southeast. Why the Holy Spirit forbade the missionaries to preach there at this time, or the manner in which the prohibition was communicated, is not stated, but we know that later a great work was wrought there especially in Ephesus. The story is repeated with reference to the north (Bithynia), and as the only point of the compass left in the west, they make for the seaport of Troas. The student is urged to identify these localities on the map. At Troas special direction is required, for the sea is to be crossed, and God meets the need in the vision vouchsafed to Paul. At this point interest is added by the pronoun "we" in verse 10, indicating that the author, Luke, has now joined the party.

Their stay at Philippi is full of movement (vv. 12-40). It was an important city founded by Philip of Macedon, inhabited chiefly by Roman citizens, but lacking in a Jewish population as is shown in the fact that it contained no synagogue (v. 13). It is unusual to read of a woman (Lydia) as engaged in commercial pursuits on her own account in that early time, but she seems to have been an exporter of Thyatira, noted for its purple dyes (vv. 14, 15).

The case following is that of demon possession, with phenomena not very different from modern clairvoyance or the spiritualistic seance (vv. 16-18). Of course the resultant proceedings were all illegal (vv. 19-24), but how greatly was God glorified thereby (vv. 25-34)! Verses 35-38 are an illustration that a Christian may with dignity insist upon his legal rights. Immunity from corporal punishment was one of the most valued privileges of Roman citizenship, and to impose it was a crime in the eye of the law. No wonder the magistrates were afraid. But learn the lesson of these verses concerning the way of Satan with the gospel. He first applauds and seems to help it along by flattery and with advertisement (v. 17), but when his testimony is rejected, he shows his true character (v. 19). Paul's preaching aimed at the idol worship of Rome which gave the excuse of verses 20, 21. Let us also be impressed with the simplicity of the gospel in verse 31. To believe on the Lord Jesus Christ is simply to commit one's self to Him to be saved. Nothing else is to be done, for God has put away our guilt in His atonement, and offers reconciliation for our acceptance. Note the reference to the jailer's "house." No one can be saved except by the exercise of a personal faith in the Saviour, but there is great encouragement here for the Christian parent to bring his offspring to the Lord in full assurance.

Thessalonica now claims our attention (17:1-9), a most influential city then and now, located on the Ægean Sea and having a direct route to Rome. Paul's method with the Jews is further presented here in verses 2 and 3. He employed the Old Testament Scriptures. He reasoned with them, doubtless in the form of questions and answers. They were expecting the Messiah, the Christ, and he showed them that when He came it was necessary according to their own Scriptures that He should suffer, die and rise again from the dead. Establishing these points he was then ready to show that "this Jesus whom I preach unto you is the Christ," because He has fulfilled these things. The customary results follow, faith in some, envy and opposition in others, persecution, and removal to another place. The experience is repeated in Berea (vv. 10-14), and then we find Paul at Athens (vv. 16-34), still at this time "the intellectual and artistic capital of the world." It was also a religious capital, the strongest in Greek mythology, as illustrated in the text. The "Areopagus" (v. 19) was a court somewhat like the Roman senate; and here Paul addressed the philosophers and leading citizens in terms familiar to them. Their "unknown God" he introduces to them as the creator of all things, and the "Lord of heaven and earth," and the future judge of men through His Son, Jesus Christ, whom He hath "raised from the dead" (vv. 23-31). The poets he quotes (v. 28) were Cleanthus and Aratus, whom he tactfully employs against their countrymen, whose boasted philosophy was "ignorance" (v. 30). The times of this ignorance God had "winked at" hitherto, overlooked, in other words. Not in the sense that they would not be held to account or judged for it, but that He had sent them no special revelation of Himself until now. There is no distinctive application of the gospel here, and possibly because Paul's hearers were not prepared for it, but still his testimony was not in vain (v. 34).

Corinth was the capital of Achaia, the lower peninsula of Greece; and in comparison with Athens, a great commercial centre, cosmopolitan in its population, and as immoral as could well be conceived. The record of Paul's experiences here is varied by several details, for example his association with Aquila and Priscilla; the reference to his trade—for all Jewish lads, no matter what their circumstances, were taught trades; the encouraging vision he received; the length of time he remained in the city; the turning of the tables on his enemies; the Jewish vow he assumed, etc. (18:1-18). To speak of the vision, judging by verse 5, and also by certain allusions in Paul's two epistles to his church, there was special need of it at this time. He seems to have been much depressed, and the Lord graciously desired him to be without anxiety. This explains why he remained there so long. The event before Gallio brings to mind one of the incidental evidences of the historical accuracy of this narrative. He is called the "deputy" of Achaia, and as a matter of fact that is what he was only, and not a proconsul, for at this time Achaia was united to Macedonia. Somewhat later it was constituted a province on its own account, and then came to have its own proconsul. The "vow" which Paul took may have been one of those concessions to the Jews he thought needful for expediency's sake.

Ephesus next reached (vv. 19-21), was just across the Ægean Sea from Corinth, and was the capital of the Roman province of Asia, noted for its commerce, but particularly for its temple of Diana (Artemis). There was a large Jewish population there, and they were accorded special privileges by the local government. We shall learn more of Paul's work there in our next lesson.

Questions on the Lesson

1. What hint does this lesson give of the development of Christianity at this time?
2. Have you read 1 Corinthians 9:20?
3. Have you traced this journey on the map?
4. Name the four missionaries in the journey.
5. How were the rights of Paul and Silas infringed upon in Philippi?
6. What is it to believe on the Lord Jesus Christ?
7. What encouragement for Christian parents is found here?
8. What is the meaning of 17:30?
9. Tell the story of Paul's stay in Corinth in your own words.
10. What was the geographical relation of Corinth and Ephesus?

FAITH

I jes' don' know ef de cohn'll grow,
But I plants hit jes' de same;
I jes' don't know ef de wind'll blow
But I watch an' pray, an' I reap an' sow,
An' de sun he rise, an' de ribber flow,
An' de good Lawd know my name.

I jes' can't tell ef de cotton sell,
But I toils on jes' de same;
De birds they build where de spring sap swell,
An' dey know enough for a rainy spell,
An' dat's lot's more dan dey gwine ter tell—
An' de good Lawd know my name.

So I watch an' pray as I goes my way,
An' I toils on jes' de same;
De rose is sweet, but de rose can't stay,
But I'm mighty glad when it blooms my way;
De night fall dark, but de Lawd send day,
An' de good Lawd know my name.
—Frank L. Stanton, in "New Orleans Picayune."

International Sunday-school Lessons

By E. O. Sellers

August 22

Asa's Good Reign

2 Chron. 15: 1-15

Golden text:—"Draw nigh to God and He will draw nigh to you." James 4:8.

Skeptics who formerly laughed at the record of 2 Chron. 14:9 or at the reputed size of Xerxes army are painfully silent in the face of the present European struggle where armies are reckoned by the millions. Abijah, Rehoboam's successor, easily defeated Jeroboam (chap. 13: 13-20) because he "relied upon the Lord," and "Asa his son reigned in his stead."

I. Righteousness Enjoined, vv. 1-7. Returning from his wonderful victory over Zerah the Ethiopian, Asa is met by the spirit-appointed prophet, Azariah (v. 1). This man was taken possession of by the Spirit of God (2 Pet. 1: 21; Num. 24: 2; Judges 3: 10; 2 Tim. 3: 16). Thus it was that he commands even the king, "Hear ye me" (v. 2). His first words were encouraging ones, "Jehovah is with you," and the proof of his word was the victory Asa had just won, (32: 8; Rom. 8: 31; Deut. 20: 1). That victory was a demonstration that if the king and his people would seek Jehovah they would find Him, but if they forsook Him He will forsake them. The words recorded in verse three were a fearful indictment, and are a suggestive picture of this age that is so sadly in need of a "teaching priest." But God was merciful (Ps. 103: 8; 117: 2), and in that time of testing was working His good will. Thus it came that "in their great trouble" (v. 4) they sought Jehovah and "He was found of them." Neglecting Him there was "no peace," and "great vexations" also (Isa. 48:22). Our Lord has prophesied even greater calamities in the last days of Israel's apostasy (Matt. 24: 6, 7), and the present upheaval in Europe, can be largely traced to apostasy and to the treatment of God's people Israel. God will remember His covenant (Deut. 4: 29-31; Judges 10: 10-16; Ps. 106: 44; Hos. 14: 1-3). All of this came from the hand of God (v. 6; Judges 2: 4; Isa. 10:6) and was an exhortation (v. 7) that Asa should remember and that he should work as well. We, too, are taught to despise not prophesying (1 Thess. 5: 20), and to work (John 6: 28; Phil. 2: 12; Matt. 21: 28; 2 Thess. 3:10). At the same time there is for us a sure reward (v. 7; Matt. 10: 41, 42; 1 Cor. 15: 58; Col. 3: 24; Heb. 6: 10; 10: 35).

II. Righteousness Executed, vv. 8-15.

(1) The King's part, vv. 8, 9. Asa had shown himself worthy of this special revelation from God: (a) His conduct (14: 2, 3, 5); (b) his words of command and exhortation (14: 4); (c) his care for, and service in behalf of, others (14: 60); (d) his reliance upon and zeal for God (14: 11). Verse eight is suggestive of the way he received this revelation; (a) He "took courage." (b) He "put away the abominations," most thoroughly, which his great-grandfather Solomon had brought into Israel. There are many strange altars in our land today, forms of religion that stand not the test of God's Word, and which not alone deceive the very elect, but are sweeping into their vortex the sons and daughters of the saints of God. Anything, no matter how esthetic or morally elevating or professedly religious, if it is not according to this Word, should be torn down. (c) Asa was constructive as well as destructive for he built again "the altar of Jehovah." 'Tis sad to think that so many homes and communities demand such a work in their midst today. (d) Lastly, "he gathered all Judah and Benjamin," and all those who had fallen out came back under his control for they saw and beheld that "the Lord his God was with him" (v. 9), even the northern kingdom was attracted, (see 16:1).

(2) The People's Part, vv. 10-15. (a) They obeyed and gathered together at Jerusalem, at the proper time and the place. (b) They "offered sacrifice unto the Lord." Heretofore their offerings had been to their selfishness or to strange gods. Their gift was a costly one and the Lord's treasury is always a standard whereby to measure the work of grace in the hearts of His people. (c) They made another covenant "to seek the Lord." (Ps. 105: 3, 4; Amos. 5: 4, 6). Those who seek Him find Him (Ps. 14: 2). To seek Him is pleasing to Him, but it must be as theirs, "with all their soul." (d) They gave public testimony of their determination (v. 14). Loud protestations are not always permanent, still there must be an open confession (Rom. 10:9, 10; Matt. 10:32). Their confession was accompanied by music. There is no joy like that which comes with a new faith, a new sense of God's love. (e) The people found "rest" or rather it was "given" to them! In verse five there was "no peace"; now, after having earnestly sought Him (v. 15), "a rest was given" which they had not been able to find. This is ready for all who truly seek Him (Judges 3:9; Matt. 11: 28, 29).

Conclusion. Though Asa had a parental handicap (1 Kings 15: 13) and lived in a corrupt court, still he yielded to the teaching of God's Word and therefore wrought a great reformation. Asa's reformation was in reality a religious revival, and such is the only kind that has any permanency. In the time of testing Asa (1) went to God for help; (2) pleaded the cause of God and the honor of His name; (3) went out to fight trusting in God.

Revival heights and experiences bless us evermore, the level of life is higher, and the ideals of men and of communities are more noble and exalted. No one can work his best without enthusiasm and revivals provide both inspiration and enthusiasm.

August 29

God's Care of Elijah

1 Kings 17: 1-16

Golden text:—"Casting all your anxiety upon Him, because He careth for you." I Peter 5: 7, R. V.

We now skip 30 or 40 years to consider the first of those great prophets whose lives are recorded at length. Samuel and David fought animals, armies and giants, but these men fought moral and spiritual enemies. Emphasize Elijah as a real live flesh-and-blood hero. His work was with the northern kingdom and he probably first met Ahab at Samaria, his capital in 912, B. C. (?) The Moabite stone (A. D. 1868) is a remarkable confirmation of the Bible story of this period.

I. The Challenge, v. 1. This lesson is a great illustration of faith. Sin had again made vast inroads upon the people (ch. 16: 30-33) and this man whose name means, "Jehovah my Strength" (1) saw the conditions; (2) responded to the need, and (3) had faith in his cause because it was of Jehovah. The source of his faith was the Word of the Lord God (Deut. 11: 18; 32: 20). Elijah was a man with a mission (Matt. 28:19) who trusted in God and considered it safe to obey. His power, "according to my word," was in ratio according to his life of faith (Rom. 10: 17). He was also a man of prayer (James 5:17) and showed his faith by his works (James 2: 17, 20, 26).

II. The Command, vv. 2-7. Elijah's faith was not audacious. He took each step as commanded by God (v. 2). There is a time for retreat as well as for the charge. Elijah's first place of testing was Cherith, "before Jordan." This command was contrary to human reason, would Cherith not soon be involved in the prophesied drought? Again, ravens frequently feed upon carrion, and he knew all the regulations regarding cleanness. Thus to be secluded would prevent his observing the effect of the drought upon both king and people. It was "there" (v. 4), and there only, that Jehovah was to save. "So he went," Having faced the peril, God hid him to preserve him, and at the proper time God also revealed him (chap. 18:

12). It was a daily testing for Elijah at Cherith, thus to be fed and to see the water evaporating, but it was a time of communion, and after the brook was dry there came a new command (vv. 8, 9). We do not believe the word "ravens" was "poetical language," meaning Arabians, but accept the writer's plain statement "ravens," a common but a most intelligent bird, especially when used and directed of God.

III. The Continued Deliverance, vv. 8-16. Zarephath was (Luke 4: 26) in the dominions of Jezebel's father, on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea between Tyre and Sidon, a dangerous journey for Elijah through Ahab's kingdom (chap. 18: 10). The word Zarephath means "smelting furnace," and it too was suffering from this same famine. Commanded to hide in Cherith, Elijah is told to "dwell" in Zarephath and that a widow was to be the agent to supply his need. Again Elijah's pride had to be overcome for there were abundant reasons for disliking such a journey, such an abiding place and such a dependence upon a poor widow. Elijah, however, "arose and went." He first asked for water, and added his request for food. It was a particular widow to whom he was sent (Luke 4: 25-27), and through her God was ready again to work a miracle of salvation on his behalf. She at once obeys the command of the man of God, as it was conditioned upon the Word of Jehovah (v. 14). God, through His prophets, has commanded us, given us assurance and promised to sustain (Phil. 4:19). "She went and did" the seeming impossible, and those of "her house did eat many days." There is sound philosophy in Prov. 11:24 which found its complete fulfillment in Jesus who "came not to be ministered unto but to minister." Read carefully Prov. 3: 7-10 and 2 Cor. 9: 6-11. As with the Israelites in the wilderness the supply was only from day to day (v. 16), nothing ahead, no accumulation, yet a perpetual supply because based on "the word of the Lord" (v. 16).

God worked this miracle: (1) to uphold and to preserve His chosen messenger for his great work in Israel; (2) to show His loving kindness and sustaining grace to the poor; (3) to strengthen the faith of His prophet against his spectacular conflict on Mt. Carmel; (4) to the end that He might show Israel and all others down through the ages a great object lesson of His sustaining grace and providence. This miracle is today being constantly performed, yet we do not thank Him. His Word is as sure today as it was 2800 years ago, and is the unfailing cruse from which we may obtain spiritual nurture each day. God's love and the Holy Spirit (typified by the "oil," v. 16) are His unfailing gifts for the spirits of men which He gives us for each day's need, as He also gives us our "daily bread." How simple a handful of meal and yet how simple are God's greatest blessing to mankind!

The widow's "two mites" are filling church treasuries today, and Mary's box of ointment has filled all Christendom with its aroma. Providence is progressive; Elijah's experience at Cherith prepared him for Zarephath. As the springs of earthly resource fail we learn that our source of help and hope is in God. One of God's mightiest servants had to learn that he was just as dependent upon God as the weakest and humblest one in Israel.

September 5

Elijah and the Prophets of Baal

1 Kings 18: 30-39

Golden text:—"Jehovah is far from the wicked; but he heareth the prayer of the righteous." Proverbs 15: 29, R. V.

Following the lesson of last week we have the interesting account of Ahab's search for Elijah and of the prophet's meeting with Obadiah (18: 1-16). Verses 5 and 6 suggest the severity of the drought in the land. Ahab's accusation, "Art thou he that troubleth Israel" is replied to by Elijah's challenge regarding a contest between himself, the representative of Jehovah, and the king's prophets representing Baal (chaps. 17-25). In accordance with the stipulations the prophets of Baal accepted the challenge. The place of this dramatic contest was Mt. Carmel (see map), and the time probably B. C. 906.

I. Elijah's Preparation, vv. 30-35

"On Carmel's crown now swarms a countless throng

With one brave soul to stand for God
'Gainst millions in the wrong.

—George L. Taylor.

Elijah gave the 450 prophets of Baal and the 400 priests of the groves (v. 19) every advantage possible, that he might the more clearly unmask their error and make more signal their defeat. Their frenzied cries and self-injury continued fruitlessly until 3 P. M. Then Elijah announces the details which were to remove all possible doubt as to whose champion he was or who is to answer his petition. (a) He calls the people together (v. 30), drawing them nigh to God and challenging their undivided attention after the confusion produced by the priests and their consternation over their defeat. (b) He constructs the altar (vv. 30, 31). Any true and lasting reformation must begin at the altars of God. Restore one in the heart, the home and the church and there will return to all unity and strength. Note Elijah's insistence upon an undivided nation as suggested by the twelve stones. "Israel shall be thy name." The "prince that prevails with God," who had wrought for their fathers, who answered Jacob's earnest prayer, is now about to answer Elijah. This altar was not constructed as a monument to a departed one, nor for the ornamentation of the house of God. It was in God's first cathedral and for His glory alone. Again Israel is to prevail over its enemies within (c) He covered the altar (vv. 33, 34), poured water upon it to remove all possible accusation of fraud or trickery. Two measures of seed (v. 32) is equivalent to six gallons. Three times water was taken from the spring, still flowing at this place, and poured upon the altar, twelve jars in all again symbolizing the twelve tribes.

II. Elijah's Prayer, vv. 36, 37. The great prophet even could only secure through prayer his desired blessing though its purpose was "that this people may know that thou Lord, art God." His prayer was: (a) Addressed to God; (b) grounded upon experience that of "Abraham, Isaac and Jacob"; (c) for one purpose, the honor of that name; (d) to sanction his act in calling forth the drought upon Israel as a punishment for the sins of princes, priests, and people; (e) founded upon the world of Jehovah, to corroborate and to affirm the works done "at thy word"; (f) for the conversion of the people, that their hearts might be turned back to Jehovah once more.

Elijah, the man of faith, staked his all upon the Word of God and relied explicitly upon the covenant keeping God. Those who pray prevailing prayers must be familiar with the promises of Jehovah, and be taught by the Spirit of God (1 John 5:14, 15; Rom. 8: 26, 27; Eph. 6: 18).

Elijah's prayer was offered before an altar on which rested the shed blood of the evening sacrifice. We must offer our petitions in the name of, and through the merits of the blood of Him who gave up His life on Calvary at this same hour. (Matt. 27: 45-51; Heb. 10: 19).

Elijah's prayer was an earnest one but not a noisy one (v. 26). It was brief but in earnest (v. 43).

III. God's Power, vv. 38-40. Elijah must have realized the awful catastrophe involved if it did not fall. Yet he fearlessly makes his plea, and the fire fell. God, the Creator, wrought confusion to His enemies. The abundance of proof was that not only the offering, but the water and the very stones of the altar were consumed. Risking all, all is won. What we need everywhere is men who will follow in Elijah's steps in order that the fire of God may come upon us. There remained no longer any doubt, God is God. So they "fell on their faces," yet in spite of the victories of God men today refuse to render unto Him like obedience and worship.

Compare in this connection the fire of God's Holy Spirit which came upon the apostles and believers at Pentecost and the resultant convicting power, convincing the people of Jerusalem that the crucified Christ was the Son of God. Those men of Elijah's day, and those in Jerusalem, showed more wisdom than many who today boast of their learning and scientific attainments.

September 12

Elijah's Flight and Return

1 Kings 19: 8-18 (Read entire chapter).

Golden text:—"Be still and know that I am God." Psalms 46: 10.

Elijah's great victory over the prophets of Baal which resulted in their extermination is followed by a most notable prayer service on the top of Mt. Carmel (18: 42-45). So confident was the prophet that at the arising of "a little cloud," he hastily summoned the feasting king and urges his departure to his home, "that the rain stop thee not." The God whom Elijah had honored so signally that day laid His hand upon the prophet (18: 46) so that he was able to outrun the king's horses to the entrance of Jezreel. There he is met by a messenger of the wicked queen (19: 2) who had been the protector of the slain prophets. Fearing Jezebel now Elijah ran for his life out of Ahab's domain, but also "went a day's journey into the wilderness" to the protecting shade of a juniper tree (v. 4).

I. The Discouraged Prophet, vv. 4-8. Old and young, great and small, we all have our periods of discouragement and frequently despair. At Carmel, Elijah controlled the king: in his palace at Jezreel, Jezebel soon shattered his good resolutions, if he had any. We must recall that it was her prophets Elijah had destroyed. There is a suggestion in the fact that Elijah did not enter her presence (18: 46). Yonder in the wilderness, his Gethsemane, Elijah prayed a vastly different prayer than upon Mt. Carmel.

No one who has ever heard the oratorio "Elijah" will ever forget the bitter agony of "It is enough." The prophet who alone had been exalted to the heights was alone capable of sounding such a depth of human despair. The human sources of his discouragement were his physical condition, his loneliness, inactivity, mental reaction, and a feeling that his cause was lost.

God's first remedy was to feed his fainting servant and then give him a task to perform, viz., a journey to Mt. Horeb for God loved him just as truly now as at Carmel. In this new strength Elijah went "forty days" (v. 8; 1 Pet. 2: 2).

II. The Encouraging God, vv. 9-13. God's second remedy was to give Elijah His word though this time it suggested reproof. "What doest thou here?" Elijah is out of place. In reply he begins to rehearse his loyalty to God, and how bad the others were and then in seeming petulance he adds, "and they seek my life." "I only," are the words of the selfish man and when Elijah used them he too was a backslidden servant. It is true that there was great apostasy in Israel but the prophet was far from being the only true servant remaining (18: 4; 20: 13; 22: 35, 41; 22: 8). This is a favorite way the evil one has for paralyzing our efforts. - There is no evidence but that the 7000 were as brave as Elijah. God then gave the prophet a vision of Himself and of His methods for advancing His kingdom. A series of symbols made the truth plainer and more impressive than words alone could possibly have done.

Leaving the protecting cave Elijah first met a wind which "rent the mountains" a type of Elijah's past activity. This was not God's chief power nor method. It is not always the cyclonic fire and earthquake-men who wield the greatest power. "After the earthquake a fire" (v. 12), and that had been God's symbol on Mt. Carmel. Men who crave such visible evidences of power frequently ignore those more silent but none the less effective forms of ministry as suggested by the "still small voice," or literary, "a sound of gentle stillness" (v. 12). Stirring revivals are necessary, even as Ahab needed rain upon his parched land, but the silent progress of a religious life manifests the power of an endless life. After these symbols God again asks his searching question: "What doest thou here Elijah?"

III. The Result, vv. 14-18. As a remedy God now sets before Elijah three tasks to perform. Elijah still speaks of his faithfulness as though the success of the cause depended upon him. The man who assumes that attitude in the work of God's kingdom will, like Elijah, soon be set aside. Elijah's first task was to avoid Israel and go to Damascus and "anoint"—set apart for special service—Hazael (v. 17) who was to be the instrument of punishing Israel. His next task was to find Jehu, the commander-in-chief of Ahab's army, and set him aside to be the king, not immediately, but to be in training for that office. To fully understand the words "shall Elisha slay," we must be familiar with that prophet's life and work, also with that accomplished by Jehu. (See 2 Kings 2: 23, 24; Hos. 6: 5, 6; Isa. 11: 6).

Elijah's third task was to appoint his successor. Elijah did not lose standing as God's son, but rather his position as a servant. He had yet to receive a most signal approval in the manner of his translation. (2 Kings chap. 2). God's reproof of Elijah (v. 18) is a most salutary one for us all.

For Sermon and Scrap Book

CHRIST'S TWOFOLD MISSION

"For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."—Luke 19:10.

1. His Presence Declared—"For the Son of man is come."

2. The Purpose of His Presence—"To seek and to save."

3. The Object of His Presence—"That which was lost."
—J. O. Richmond.

PERSONAL WORK

John 1:29-43

1. The Task—"First findeth his own brother."

2. The Testimony—"We have found the Messiah."

3. The Triumph—"He brought him to Jesus."

4. The Transformation—"Thou shalt be called." Name stands for character. Name changed because character transformed.—Henry F. W. Uffen.

HOLLOW EXCUSES

The excuse of unbelief (John 3:12).

The excuse of fear (Luke 19:11-27).

The excuse of procrastination (Acts 24:22-27).

The excuse of false modesty (Num. 13:26-33).

The excuse of other business (Luke 11:16-24).

Therefore, make no excuses (John 4:31-38).

Will our excuses stand? (Acts 26:19-28).

JESUS AS AN EXPOSITOR

"He expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning himself"—Luke 24:27.

The two disciples on the road had a most profitable journey.

1. The best of tutors was their companion and teacher. Till Jesus is made unto us wisdom, we shall never be wise unto salvation. Let us court His company.

2. The best of books He used as His class book. The surest road to wisdom is meditation upon the Word of God—not speculation, reasoning or reading human books.

3. They considered the best of subjects for Jesus expounded the things concernnng Himself. Oh, for grace to study the Bible with Jesus as both our teacher and our lesson!

—C. H. Spurgeon.

A DOCTRINAL TEXT

"Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners."—1 Tim. 1:15.

1. The Person of Christ, "Christ Jesus."

2. The Incarnation of Christ, "Came into the world."

3. The Atonement of Christ, "To save sinners."
—W. H. Griffith Thomas.

GOD'S VIEW OF, AND PROVISION FOR, HUMANITY

"All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned everyone to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all."
—Isa. 53:6.

1. All Humanity Lost—"All we like sheep have gone astray."

2. All Humanity Self-choosing—"We have turned everyone to his own way."

3. All-Sufficient Redemption for Humanity—"And the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all."
—Thomas Niven.

"GRACE IN THE WILDERNESS"

Jer. 31:2

1. Wilderness of Sin—"By grace are ye saved, through faith" (Eph. 2:8).

2. Wilderness of Doubt—"Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed" (John 20:29).

3. Wilderness of Trouble—"When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee" (Isa. 43:2).

4. Wilderness of Poverty—"As having nothing, yet possessing all things" (2 Cor. 6:10).

5. Wilderness of Disappointed Friendships—"He is altogether lovely. This is my beloved, and this is my friend" (Song of Sol. 5:16).

6. Wilderness of Disappointed Hopes—"Which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and steadfast, and which entereth into that within the veil" (Heb. 6:19).

7. Wilderness of Sickness—"My grace is sufficient for you, for my strength is made perfect in weakness" (2 Cor. 12:9).

8. Wilderness of Death—"Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me" (Ps. 23).

"Oh, to grace how great a debtor, Daily I'm constrained to be!"

—E. E. P.

THE EXAMPLE OF CHRIST IN PHILIPPIANS

Ch. I.—The Gospel mind and Christ, the life.

Ch. II.—The humble mind and Christ, the example.

Ch. III.—The earnest mind and Christ, the object.

Ch. IV.—The peaceful mind and Christ, the strength.

SERVING SONS

Matt. 21: 28

I. A Divine Relationship—"Son."

1. By birth (1 John 5:1).
2. By reception (John 1: 12).
3. By adoption (Rom. 8: 15).
4. By confession (Jer. 2: 19).
5. By separation (2 Cor. 6: 18).

II. A Divine Call—"Go work."

1. Our rule for service—"God's will."
2. Our motive for service—"Christ's love."
3. Our pattern for service—"Christ's life."
4. Our aim for service—"God's glory."

III. A Divine Sphere—"My vineyard."

1. The church, vineyard, or field.
2. In the family, in the workshop, or in the field.

IV. A Divine Opportunity—"Today."

"Son, go work today in my vineyard."

Only a little while and the night is coming.
Only a little while and the Master is coming.
Only a little while and the opportunity will be gone forever. —Chas. Edwards.

THE GARDEN PRAYER

"And he went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed."—Matt. 26:39.

There are several instructive features in our Saviour's prayer in His hour of trial.

1. It was a lonely prayer. Family prayer, social prayer, prayer in the church, very precious, but solitary prayer best.

2. It was an humble prayer. We must abase ourselves that God may exalt us in due time.

3. It was a filial prayer. Rights as a subject forfeited by your treason but nothing can forfeit a child's right to a father's protection. Plead your adoption!

4. It was a persevering prayer. Cease not until you prevail. Continue in prayer and watch in the same with thanksgiving.

5. It was the prayer of resignation. "Nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt." Let it be as God wills, and God will determine for the best when and how to give, what to give and what to withhold.—C. H. Spurgeon.

A WILL LOST AND FOUND

There is a quaint story told of a rich man who lost his only son, and, after his own death, his will could not be found. After searching vainly, the state's attorney took up the case and ordered his property sold and his estate settled. On the day of the auction a poor old woman who had once nursed his only child begged the auctioneer to let her buy the picture of the boy. She had only a shilling, but nobody seemed to care for it, so it was knocked down to her. And she went home happy in having the portrait of the child she had loved so dearly. One day when repairing the back of the picture she found a legal document hidden in the wooden back. She hurried to the lawyer and delivered it up with much concern. After he had glanced at it he called her to him and said: "You have certainly made a great find. This is the old man's will, and in it he has left all his property to anybody who loved his boy well enough to buy his picture at the auction sale when the estate is settled."

God, too, has left a will by which all His fortune becomes the inheritance of those who love the Lord Jesus Christ well enough to take Him for their own.—A. B. Simpson.

MIRACLES OF TODAY

Dr. Goodell, a miracle of power in winning souls, said to some reporters over in the corner who were sharpening their pencils and trying to get some copy for their papers, "I have got some news for you that will make a big headline for tomorrow's paper. The other night three blind men came in here and they went out seeing, and the other night five deaf men came in here and their ears were unstopped. Yes, and the other night six dead men walked in here, and they came to life!"

The reporters had not been used to this kind of news, they were a trifle embarrassed, and hardly knew what to write. Then Dr. Goodell said, "Will those blind men whose eyes were opened, stand up? Will those deaf men who have been hearing ever since, stand up? Will those dead men who came in and were made alive, please stand up? We will excuse you reporters while you run out and telephone it. The blind see, the deaf hear, the dead are raised to life."

That is what conversion to God really is—a miracle of grace. The power of God reaches the sinner in all his helplessness and need and transforms him into a new creature in Christ Jesus.—A. C. Dixon.

God holds us responsible not for what we have, but what we might have; not for what we are, but for what we might be.—Mark Guy Pearse.

A CHANGE OF PASTORS

You say that a change would be better;
I grant it—but here let me say
A few solemn words to each member,
In a sisterly, Christianly way.

Are you sure where the change is most needed,

In the pulpit? or in the pew?
Is the pastor the one who needs changing?
Or, my friend, let me ask, is it you?

Have you prayed for God's blessings upon him?

Have you been to him helpers indeed?
Worked with him, stood by him, upheld him,
And ministered oft to his need?

Has your place in the prayer-meeting always
Been filled, when you knew you could go?
And the Sunday-school been brightened and flourished

At your presence and work—is this so?

Have you given your means to your Master?
Not merely a dollar or two?
But the twenties or fifties or hundreds
In proportion as given to you?

If these questions cannot be replied to
In a truly affirmative way,
Then I beg you to change now, my brother,
My sister, and do not delay.

Ne'er hope that a pastor, though gifted,
As Gabriel fresh from God's throne,
Or mighty as Paul, could accomplish
His labors among you alone.

—“Baptist Flag.”

“WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH THE PREACHERS?”

In answer to the question, “What is the matter with the preachers?” please permit me to say one or two things about the preachers.

First, I fear that many of them have never been born again. Second, I fear that many of them have been taught everything in our colleges and theological seminaries that tends to weaken their faith, and especially their zeal in and for Jesus Christ and the saving of souls. Third, many of them think that they are living in a time, and have a work to perform like that service rendered by Henry Ward Beecher. It is a great pity that they should feel such to be their duty—to go after the political service of the country and try to form a large following in the ranks of one political party.

If our preachers had less of an ambition for the things that do not pertain to the saving of souls and great zeal of saving souls, individually, and not in masses, they would be successful.

They are not preaching with power, because they have not power themselves. They need the baptism of the Holy Spirit. They need the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit cannot dwell with them because they are too worldly in their ambitions. If they were men filled with a holy enthusiasm for souls they would carry that in their pulpit and pastoral services. That is contagious, and the church membership would get the inspiration, and that would result in a continual revival. “The Lord added unto the church daily such as were being saved.” The Lord is no less interested today than He was when Paul counted it a privilege to preach Jesus Christ and Him crucified.

We seldom hear sermons now preached on faith, repentance, prayer, obedience, the suffering of Jesus for our sins, the shedding of His blood for the remission of our sins, and perhaps, above all, the need of cultivating the abiding presence of the Holy Spirit to guide us, and use us in the service of saving souls. The service of the preacher is one of ministry.

A lawyer came into my office a few days ago and said he was starving to death for spiritual food. He said the preaching is too secular and not spiritual enough. He said he never goes into his office of a morning to start his daily work but what he locks the door (if alone) and gets down on his knees and prays for the Holy Spirit to guide him in his work. The preacher that makes much of personal work and prayer with families in his parish, and for the individual members of the families with whom he associates, becomes a power both in the pulpit and in the field.—J. A. Markham, in “The Advance.”

THE JUNIOR CONGREGATION

A unique feature, says “Christian Work,” has been introduced at the Fort Washington Presbyterian Church, New York City, called the Junior Congregation. It consists of all the boys and girls in the Sunday-school above the primary grade, who desire to engage in church worship. As the church auditorium is already filled with adult churchgoers, the chapel has been utilized for the young people's service. The boys and girls have elected their own board of ushers, their own boy elders and deacons, and their own choir. The pastor's assistant is the pastor and preacher of this junior flock. Their service is bright and brief, and ends at the time when the sermon in the church auditorium is about ready to begin, so that those who desire may hear the minister's usual discourse. The young people are very enthusiastic over their miniature church organization. Their preacher is taking the young people over a course of fundamental facts of faith, in plain and simple terms, and also the duties and obligations of church membership.

Book Notices

Food for the Soul, by Rev. Robert L. Selle, D. D.

A collection of brief, interesting and helpful devotional addresses.

224 pages, 5¼x7½ inches. Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky. $1.00.

L. W. G.

The First Book of Kings, and The Second Book of Kings, A complete Analysis of each, with Annotations, by A. C. Gaebelein.

We congratulate the author and the church that such rapid progress is being made in the Bible Study Course of which these pamphlets are the latest additions.

"Our Hope" Publication Office, 456 Fourth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Single copies, 20 cents, postpaid.

J. M. G.

The Parables of our Lord, by Marcus Dods, D. D.

Some years ago we used this work in preparing addresses on the parables, and it yielded many practical thoughts. Dr. Dods, however, with all his wealth of scholarship did not see the dispensational aspect of truth, and the lack of this is nowhere more apparent than in a discussion of the parables.

433 pages. 5x7½ inches. Fleming H. Revell Co., New York. 50 cents net.

L. W. G.

The Christian Faith, by W. C. Clark.

This book admirably meets a very distinct need by doing what it claims to do, viz—informing the orthodox layman "how to tell what he believes." The author takes up the fundamentals of Christianity in plain, simple words, and is to be commended for giving to the public a book which will assist many to think and speak intelligently about the truths they believe. It is not a dull book, and though it treats of subjects which are usually written about in a heavy style, it holds the attention and interest with its fresh, frank statement of truth. There are thirty chapters, and with the exception of the one on "Law" and the one on "The General Judgment" all are excellent.

347 pages, 5x8 inches. Sherman French and Co., Boston, Mass. $1.50. By mail, $1.65.

B. B. S.

Theopneustia; The Plenary Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures, by L. Gaussen, D. D., Professor of Systematic Theology, Geneva, Switzerland. (Revised edition with analysis and topical index. David Scott's translation).

This is a reprint of this notable book on the inspiration of the Holy Scriptures deduced from internal evidence and the testimonies of nature, history and science. The flyleaf contains a notable commendation from Charles H. Spurgeon who says, "Gaussen charms us as he proclaims the divine veracity of Scripture. His testimony is clear as a bell." The writer can add that Gaussen's work constituted one of the milestones of his own spiritual pathway, and he speaks from experience in saying that a Christian who reads and studies it need never again be troubled by attacks on the Word of God. For years it has been out of print in this country and hardly to be obtained even in a second-hand bookstore. Therefore the present generation of Christians are to be congratulated on the enterprise and faith of the Bible Institute Colportage Association in purchasing the plates and bringing out this new edition at so low a price.

363 pages. 5½x8 inches. The Bible Institute Colportage Association, 826 N. LaSalle Street, Chicago. Cloth, 55 cents.

J. M. G.

The Making of Men, by Rev. W. A. Harper, LL. D.

The book, a series of addresses, is to the students of Elon College, N. C., by President Harper. It consists of twelve chapters on the following subjects: "The Making of Men," "Crises of Life," "The Safety of Young People," "Coveting the Best Gifts," "The Soul's Most Serious Question," "The Striving for the Mastery," "The More Abundant Life," "The Ingredients of True Living," "Life's Basic Principles," "The Use of Talent," "The Contributions of College Life," "Achieving Manhood's Goal."

We find much in this little book to commend. The author speaks with a conviction that is refreshing. The motive underlying his utterances is evidently sincere, but we are unable to follow him in his theology. The following quotation from a footnote causes us to part company:—"There are no inherently 'bad' young people." We must confess that we are still in sympathy with the evangelical doctrine of human depravity, and must insist that children are born in sin, and from the very inception of life have the sinful nature.

173 pages. The Christian Publishing Association, Dayton, O.

P. B. F.

Romish Catholicism Analyzed, by J. A. Phillips.

Helpful books on Romanism are rare, but this volume is one of the useful few. The author is a missionary in Mexico and handles his theme in a competent and dispassionate way. Bishop Burt of the Methodist Episcopal church, whose long residence in Rome makes his endorsement valuable, highly commends the work. Especially interesting is the appendix, containing authentic Romish documents, such as the creed of Pope Pius IV, extracts from the syllabus of errors, quotations from the moral theology of Liguori, etc. Out of her own mouth is the monstrous system of Rome fatally condemned.

310 pages, 5½ x 8½ inches. Fleming H. Revell Co., New York. $1.50 net. L. W. G.

The Fascination of Old Testament Story, or How to Read It, by W. Graham Scroggie.

Mr. Scroggie is well known in England as a Bible teacher and as a speaker at Keswick. He writes in a vivacious way, and is gifted in appealing to the eye by helpful charts. In this book, he enables the student to grasp Old Testament history with comparatively little effort. The relation of the history to the prophetic books is made remarkably clear. Mr. Scroggie knows and believes the Bible, and finds no new theories needful to make it fascinating. We suggest that an introduction, especially impressing the need of reading the Scriptures referred to, would be an improvement, since we are so prone to neglect the study of Scripture itself.

150 pages. 7½ x 9½ inches. Published by the author, 8 Cedars Park, Sunderland, England. L. W. G.

The Book of Answered Prayer, by John T. Faris, D. D.

This is rather a big title for a small book. The book of answered prayer, if it were written—and no one could write it but God—would be so large that we feel like the apostle John did concerning the writing of the deeds of Jesus, "the world itself would not contain the books." A more modest title would substitute the article "a" for the definite adjective, and even then the book would hardly measure up to its title, for it is simply the collection of some answers to prayer.

Like all books that record answers to the prayers of God's people, it is stimulating and will strengthen faith in prayer as a real power in everyday life, though the believing child of God knows out of his own experience, as well as from the teaching of the Word, that God hears and answers prayer.

One helpful thing about the book is that the answers to prayer recorded therein are conveniently classified under such heads as the following: "For Daily Needs," "In the Home," "Travel Mercies," "Soul Winning," "Revival Incidents," "In Mission Lands," etc.

294 pages, 5½ x 7½ inches. George H. Doran Company, New York. W. W. K.

Fanny Crosby's Story of Ninety-four Years, retold by S. Trevena Jackson.

This is a most delightfully interesting and well written book. This famous blind hymn-writer wrote over eight thousand hymns of which an unusually large percentage will probably never die. In this book we discover those high ideals, arduous labors, and severe scholastic training, which were the secret of her success.

The author knew Fanny Crosby intimately for twenty years and has recorded his interviews and sketches in an orderly manner, so as to give us a biographical, as well as a character, sketch of her life.

192 pages, 5 x 7½ inches. Fleming H. Revell Company, New York and Chicago. Cloth, $1.00 net.

The Christian Ministry, by J. B. Rotherham.

This small volume by this distinguished Bible student, who preached his first sermon sixty years ago, is up-to-date in every respect. It is written from the Independent rather than the Episcopal or Presbyterian standpoint, as far as church government is concerned, but many of its suggestions the latter would most gladly endorse.

Emphasis is laid on the importance of private instruction as a supplement to public discourse, and the author urges the desirability of having in every large city or country, a number of men conversant with "Bible transmission and translation and competent to pass on the written Word in uttermost purity to other lands and coming generations." Because of the demand nowadays from certain quarters that only men who have taken long curricula in colleges or universities be authorized to be judges of such transmission and translation, the author says: "Many a man of robust good sense and competent knowledge of the Bible, if only strong in spiritual zeal and discernment may, with reasonable diligence render himself an ornament in a board of Christian overseers."

Young preachers would find great help in this volume, and many an older minister would get some angles of view that would greatly increase his efficiency.

109 pages. 5 x 7 inches. The Standard Publishing Co., Cincinnati, O. 75 cents, postpaid. J. H. R.

The Gospel in the World

Edward A. Marshall, Editor

In 1911 there were 250 Protestant Italian churches in the United States.

About 84,000 pilgrims visited Mecca, the sacred city of the Mohammedans, last year.

One out of every twenty-five hundred Protestant church members of North America is a missionary on the foreign field.

The Indians of the United States have one hundred Young Men's Christian Associations with twenty-five hundred members.

Christian missionaries in Urumia, Persia, say they have never had so much liberty in preaching to Mohammedans as they have had during the past few months.

Since the town of Van in Turkey has been captured by the Russians, one thousand Mohammedans have taken refuge in the American Board mission compound.

The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions reports that it is planning to send out sixty-one new missionaries this year to China, Japan, India, Turkey and Africa.

A Mohammedan monthly paper is being published in Solo, Java, for the purpose of spreading knowledge concerning Mohammedanism. It is printed in Javanese and Malay.

The American Bible Society is planning to hold a World's Bible Congress in San Francisco August 1-4, the request coming from the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

More than three hundred colporteurs and Bible women of the British and Foreign Bible Society on the foreign field are being supported by gifts from individual friends at home.

A new impetus to all forms of missionary work is expected to be the result of the national missionary campaign of 1915 and 1916, which is being organized by the interdenominational Laymen's Missionary Movement. The most important feature of the campaign will be a series of seventy-five great conventions to be held in cities in all parts of the United States, from October next to April, 1916, and the campaign will culminate in a National Missionary Congress in Washington, D. C., April 26-30, 1916.

The Wesleyan Methodist Missionary Society has two circuits in the Republic of Panama and one in Costa Rica, forming a part of the Jamaica District. These three circuits have sixteen churches, four ministers, sixteen hundred members and fourteen hundred Sunday-school scholars.

Chang Chien, president of Yuan Shi Kai's cabinet, is reported to be taking a great interest in the education of the people in the district of Nantungchow, Kiangsu Province. He has erected at his own expense several buildings for this purpose and has invited missionaries to assist with the teaching.

The first Protestant church ever erected in North America for a leper congregation was dedicated on June 14 at the colony of lepers in Louisiana, located seventeen miles south of Baton Rouge. One of the features of the dedicatory services was the presentation of a handsomely inscribed pulpit Bible with greetings from the American Bible Society.

Thirty years ago the spiritual life in Doshisha, the Christian college of Japan, founded by Neesima, was at a very low ebb. A missionary sent to a score of American colleges and theological seminaries an appeal for prayer. On the evening set for the purpose a revival started in the Doshisha without any direct human influence exerted over the students there, and many conversions resulted.—"The Expositor."

Rev. James M. Baker, a missionary to Ongole, India, now on furlough in this country, writes as follows concerning the progress of missions in Ongole: "There were 542 baptisms during the year, of which 66 were caste people . . . Ongole is the center of a population of 600,000 people who have never had a physician living and working among them or a hospital equipped for service. Our native Christians gave largely for a Clough Memorial Hospital, and the Board approved of a plant to cost $22,000, not including a bungalow for the resident physician and a hospital site. With the exception of $2,600, the whole amount has been raised in cash and good pledges to be paid before the end of the year. We are now striving to raise $2,000 more to send out an American doctor this year, and an additional $1,000 to send out a certified nurse. At this writing we lack only $5,600 to bring to pass this miracle of modern missions."

Mr. Joseph Clark, of the American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society in the Belgian Congo, gives the following report of the progress of Christianity at Ikoko on the Congo River: "We have 27 outposts, and 50 evangelist-teachers were employed in 1914. The year closed with a membership of 500. Of the 62 baptisms during the year, 47 were from these widely scattered outposts. Some of these people journeyed a distance of four days that they might be examined and baptized. The gifts of the church members for the year amounted to $501.11. This money is given to help send evangelist-teachers to the 'regions beyond.' Where the average wage of a man is $2.50 a month, we cannot expect large gifts."

The following announcement has been sent out by Livingstone College of Leyton, England: "The Principal of Livingstone College regrets to have to inform you that the committee of the College have decided that owing to urgent need for the services of medical men in the national crisis, Livingstone College should discontinue its sessions from July next until peace is declared, so as to free those remaining on the staff to help in this need. The College is accepted as an auxiliary hospital by the war office. There will therefore be no session either for men or women commencing on September 29, 1915, as previously advertised. The College will, God willing, reopen with its former staff as soon as possible after peace is declared."

The Japanese Government in Korea has decided that within five years the Christian schools in that country must stop using the Bible as a textbook, and that no kind of religious exercise will then be allowed in the school buildings. The Japanese Director of the Education Bureau recently visited Europe, where some countries have absolutely separated education from religion; this he desires to do in Korea. The managers of the missionary schools in Korea have told the Director that they would prefer to close their schools, rather than continue them with the Bible excluded. The great majority of missionaries in Korea belong to the Presbyterian and Methodist churches of North America.—"The Bible in the World."

The "Moslem World" prints a letter from a missionary in Aintab, Central Turkey, which reveals the effects of the war upon that region. It states that all the men up to thirty years of age, and some older, have gone to the war; the last to go, unable to obtain arms, carried sticks instead. All work has ceased, and the men who are left are begging for their starving families. The government has seized everything—coal, kerosene, wheat, flocks, horses, camels. After narrating all this misery, and their own efforts to economize, the writer says: "But with all this misery there is much spiritual interest. Churches are crowded, prayer meetings full (250 to 300 women in some) and very touching. Christian workers are finding a great opportunity, and it seems like the beginning of a revival."

Against their will, Christian missionaries who have been working together for the advancement of the cause of Christ, have been drawn into opposing forces by the European war. A German missionary in China, who was summoned to aid the defenders of Tsingtau, said to a British missionary: "Brother, pray for me! I go to die, perhaps, for my Kaiser, at the hands of one of the soldiers of your King. I am forced to go. If our nations were bound together in love, this terrible slaughter would not occur."

Already, some British, French, and German missionary workers who have been called to the armies have been killed; others are imprisoned or interned. Twenty-six Church Missionary Society workers are prisoners of war in Africa, Palestine, and Arabia; German missionaries are interned in British India, while those captured in Tsingtau have been sent to Japan.

Deaths of missionary noncombatants directly or indirectly due to the war are also reported from time to time. On the steamship Falaba, sunk by the German submarine on Palm Sunday, were several missionaries, one of whom, Rev. Alec Field, of the Church Missionary Society, lost his life. On board the Lusitania, also sunk without warning by the Germans May 7, were several missionaries. One of them, Rev. James Beattie, of the American Reformed Church Mission in India, was drowned, while his wife was saved.

Another of the victims of this murderous attack upon innocent women and children was Miss Alice Varley, the beloved and efficient associate editor of the "Record of Christian Work." She was the daughter of the late Henry Varley, the British evangelist, and was hastening to the sick bed of her invalid mother.

In Persia, Mrs. McDowell and Mrs. Shedd, American Presbyterian missionaries, have fallen victims to the ravages of disease, brought on in the crowded mission compound in Urumia, during the Moslem Jihad against Christians.

This is a period when the Devil is let loose for a season. Science, learning, commercial prosperity have failed. It is time for nations to give the religion of Christ a chance.—"Missionary Review of the World."

Notes and Suggestions

"THE OLD CHURCH STILL STANDS"

In recent weeks two distinct attempts have been made to burn the Moody Church of Chicago. One night an attempt was made to burn the church by setting fire to the curtains that ran around the gallery.

On the following night another attempt was made, the would-be destroyer having somehow gained access to the ushers' room, where he piled chairs, mottoes, collection baskets together (see picture), then tore the curtains off the windows and placed them on top of the pile, lighted a match to the curtains and quickly made his escape, doubtless expecting soon to see the church in flames.

But all that was consumed were the curtains. One or two chairs were charred somewhat, and the mottoes and baskets slightly scorched. And again God had wonderfully saved the building from destruction.

HOW THE DEVIL WAS FOILED
Read the story in "The Old Church Still Stands"

Rev. Joseph W. Kemp, D. D., of Edinburgh, Scotland, has accepted the call of the Calvary Baptist Church, New York City, and will begin work in October next.

Dr. J. H. Jowett, of New York, is reported by the "Daily News" of London, when speaking of the war, to have said:

"We are witnessing a resurgence of devilry which is truly appalling. The baser passions have been aggressively frightful and cruel. Animalism is at large and it is like a raging, boiling sea, which has burst its dykes."

But there was a growing seriousness in the world, he said. "During my four short years in New York I have never known the people to put on such seriousness as in the last few months."

The Y. M. C. A. student conference at Lake Geneva, Wis., which closed June 28, was attended by 544 delegates from 105 colleges of the middle West, 109 foreign students and 130 leaders and speakers. Of the foreign students 18 were from Japan, 38 from China, 46 from Latin America, two from India, two from the Philippines and one from Korea. They lived together and discussed the work just as the American students did. Dr. John R. Mott presided at the conference and among the speakers were Dr. John Timothy Stone, Bishop McDowell, Sherwood Eddy, Fred B. Smith and Raymond Robins.

Mr. S. J. Duncan-Clark, who writes the war analysis for the "Chicago Evening Post," made an address before the Chicago Press Club, June 9, in which he referred to the following as certain delusions that have been shattered by the great war:

1. That preparedness for war is an assurance of peace.
2. That world-wide enlightenment and culture had made war impossible.
3. That international commerce had bound the nations in ties that could resist war.
4. That the socialist movement would avert war.
5. That treaties can be relied upon in times of national peril.

He suggested certain possible effects of the war on race welfare and civilization as follows:

1. The effect of the slaughter of the virile element of the populations of the warring countries on future generations.
2. The effect upon the future position of women in Europe of the new responsibilities thrust upon them by the war.
3. The effect of the war upon our conception of patriotism and the movement toward greater democracy.

A camp for young women, children and day nursery mothers with children, is being established at Druce's Lake by the Association House, 2150 W. North Ave., Chicago. This camp is a memorial to Susan W. Poxon, who was a student in the Moody Bible Institute in 1891 and who for nearly forty years devoted herself to the welfare of poor children in the Milwaukee Avenue district and around Association House. Her bequest of over $6,000 has been used to buy a piece of wooded property near Druce's Lake, together with a small piece on the water's edge with a boat house. A cottage to accommodate forty is to be built at once, and others are planned for subsequent seasons.

It is said that some 15,000 Jews have enlisted under the British colors. A Jewish roll of honor is published weekly in the "Jewish Chronicle," and Jewish recruiting committees are bringing in from 50 to 75 fresh recruits each week.

HUGE WAR EQUIPMENT

It is estimated that the number of men now engaged in the European war is 21,770,000. The Allies have 1,433 ships of all classes, while Germany, Austria and Turkey have 766. The population involved in the war is 800,000,000, exclusive of Italy. The cost of the war up to April 1 was $10,000,000,000. The annual cost would be about $15,000,000,000, including Italy. The daily cost to the German Empire is $8,250,000, the cost to England being about the same, and to France a little more.

The young Mormons are asking questions and at the last Commencement of the Utah University, one student on the program spoke on the "Needed Reform in the Church." The faith of the students is shaken by the fact that "the Book of Abraham," greatly revered, is spurious. It is claimed by the older Mormons that the book was written by Abraham's own hand. Competent scholars demonstrated that the document is genuinely Egyptian, and that the translation by Joseph Smith is altogether imaginary. The original document is very short, while Joseph Smith's translation covers thirty pages.

Recently four Gentile professors of the university were dismissed because of suspected heresy. Then fourteen professors of the faculty resigned, some of them the oldest and best men they had. The sympathy of the students is altogether with the faculty. It is now feared by the leading Mormons that further scientific discovery will show that the book of Mormon itself was never inscribed on leaves of gold and that it was possibly an early history of the American Indians.

The Evangelistic Field

SUGGESTIONS TO OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Evangelists and other Christian workers reporting items or contributing any matter for this department will please arrange to have copy reach the magazine not later than the 10th of the month preceding date of issue.

"The Evangelistic Field" department is intended for news in concise reports of revival meetings, soul-winning campaigns, and a record of evangelistic work in general. We do not invite statements eulogizing the leaders or participants in this line of work, nor can we promise to print them.—Editors.

W. C. Moorman is now making Quincy, Ill., his headquarters.

E. M. Anderson held a meeting in June at Peltan Rapids, Mich.

Haudenschild and Pugh report a good union meeting at Collinsville, Okla.

Sam S. Holcomb and party have open dates for meetings and may be addressed at Ada, Okla.

Warren A. Maltbie will assist E. O. Excell in the music work at Winona Lake, Ind., this month.

W. A. Erwin and wife closed a successful revival meeting at Lamesa, Tex., in June—154 made a profession of faith.

L. C. Smith writes as follows: "I conducted meetings in June at Casey, Ia., which resulted in 87 conversions and 75 reconsecrations."

Mary E. Harland sends a good report of the convention at Gloucester, Eng. She says Dr. Dixon's addresses were especially helpful.

Charles R. Goff, writing from Montezuma, Ia., reported good meetings. There were 269 who had gone forward at the time of writing.

Joseph C. Ludgate reports he has closed the best year's work since he entered the evangelistic field. He is now resting at his home in Wheaton, Ill.

W. E. Stevens reports that the work at Brighton Beach, N. Y., is very encouraging this year. There had been nine conversions at the time of writing.

"Mrs. Reeves and I have recently closed a ten days campaign in Marshall, N. C., a small town of 800, resulting in 42 conversions."—George G. Reeves.

Aldrich and Hickman held meetings in the Oakwood Methodist Church at Overland, Mo. Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich are now spending the summer at their home in Home Heights, Mo.

The Mills-Huggins Party closed a meeting at Webster City, Ia., with 137 conversions. They next went to Ollie, Ia., and held meetings in a big tent, which was crowded to capacity.

H. D. Kennedy and party reported from Sioux City, Ia., that they closed their season's work, having been in Iowa for six months. They rest during July and will take up work again in August.

"Jim" Goodheart, superintendent of the Sunshine Mission, Denver, Colo., was a speaker at a recent chautauqua held at Valparaiso, Ind. He spoke at the report hour at the Moody Bible Institute, July 13.

"The Charles Mundell Evangelist Party closed a successful united campaign in Columbus, N. M. The churches of Columbus were greatly revived, and have been given a new vision."—Lloyd Basford.

E. L. Merritt, who conducted the singing at the jubilee conference of the China Inland Mission, is open for engagements as gospel singer, or pastor's helper. He can be addressed at Clifton Springs, N. Y.

Charles Barrett conducted a three weeks campaign, assisted by his daughter, Miss Mary Barrett, in the Presbyterian church at Rocky Ford, Colo. Their next meeting was to be held at Lewistown, Wyo.

James V. Reid says he has just participated in a large "warehouse" meeting in Boyd, Ky., under the auspices of the M. E. Church South. In the closing service, the pastor received a class of 48 into the church.

The Kirk Evangelistic Party held tent meetings in Logan, W. Va., for four weeks. There had been no previous arrangement for the campaign, but before the close there were nearly 70 professed conversions.

Hart and Magan closed what they considered their best meeting at Green Bay, Wis. The tabernacle was often crowded beyond its capacity. Hardly a night passed without from 50 to 75 professed conversions.

"We had a fine revival at Blanca, Colo., in June in the face of many obstacles. God answered prayer, and saved many souls. I was assisted by Mark E. Green and Miss Rena Owen, a deaconess."—A. John Fitt.

Albert Turkington and party held a tent meeting at Nu Mine, Pa., a mining town of about 1,000 people. The party also held a successful campaign at Mahaffey, Pa. The prayers of our readers are requested for Mrs. Turkington, who has been ill.

F. A. Geisenheimer conducted meetings at Champion City, Mo., for two weeks. Many who had backslidden rallied to the Cross. A good work was begun, and the Lord blessed the preaching of the Word. Mr. Geisenheimer assisted Max Opp, pastor of the M. E. church.

Robert O. Lewis and party closed a successful five weeks campaign at Broadway, N. J.; several of the churches received large additions to their membership. Mr. Lewis was assisted by the Aylesworth sisters, one as pianist and both, singers. About 300 took a stand for Christ.

The Wheeler Evangelistic Party is now conducting a campaign in De Soto, which they expect to close August 8. J. William Henderson is conducting the singing. The Wheeler Party closed its previous tri-city campaign at Granite City, Madison and Venice, with over 1,400 conversions.

Lydia E. Brown writes from Belvidere, Ill., that she has recovered from rheumatism and will take up evangelistic work again. She held several meetings in Belvidere, and at Epworth Camp Grounds. She has some open dates for meetings and may be addressed at 305 West Jackson Street, Belvidere, Ill.

Dr. Ray Palmer conducted a three weeks meeting in Baltimore recently with good results, after which he was invited by Rev. George W. Whiteside, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Brunswick, Md., to conduct meetings. About 100 confessed faith in Christ in less than two weeks.

J. W. Erskine closed his meetings at Wilson and West Wilson, Mich., the early part of July. He says it was the most successful meeting he has conducted during the past ten years. The majority of the converts were men and women. He is now at home for the summer, at Evart, Mich., and has open dates for fall work.

Melford H. Lyon and party closed a very good meeting at Terre Haute, Ind., with 2,500 decisions. Indifferent church members have been awakened to new life and every church which participated in the union campaign will receive a large accession to its membership. Dr. Lyon will spend the summer at his home in Winona Lake, Ind.

The Avery meetings at Omro, Wis., in the M. E. church resulted in 80 professed conversions. Evangelist Avery went to a meeting at Wesley, Ia., beginning July 4. At the time of writing the interest was high, with over 1,000 people in attendance on Sunday. Z. O. Avery has some open dates and may be addressed at Bloomington, Ill.

Over 800 delegates attended the laymen's conference at Northfield, Mass., last month. John R. Mott proved to be the presiding genius and the magnet which drew to the conference, teachers and speakers who know how to hold the attention of boys and young men. One favorite this year was Raymond Robins. Considerable interest is centered in the closing meetings which are to be held July 30-August 15, at Northfield.

Milton S. Rees conducted a campaign May 30-July 4, at St. Petersburg, Fla., the meetings being held in Williams Park in the center of the city, with seating accommodations for 2,000 people. Only three nights during the services were they compelled to resort to the churches because of bad weather. The whole atmosphere of the city has been changed.

J. C. Greene closed a good revival in the Fernwood Methodist Church, Chicago. At the beginning of the meetings, the church was cold and indifferent, but after eight weeks, with an average attendance of about 200 there had been over 200 professed conversions. The prayer meetings took on new life, and there were many testimonies. C. B. Clark had charge of the singing.

G. Vinaroff reports that he had a singing class at the close of the evangelistic campaign in Rockford, O. He was a visitor at "The Christian Workers Magazine" office while on his way to the camp meeting at Crystal Springs, Mich., where he was to conduct the music. He has open dates August 10-October 1, and may be addressed in care of the Moody Bible Institute.

Bob Jones while conducting a campaign at Pana, Ill., was taken sick and it became necessary for him to undergo an operation. He has now recovered, but gave up the meetings, securing M. B. Williams to take charge. At the close of the campaign, July 4, there were nearly 700 conversions. Mr. Williams has recovered his voice and is now actively engaged in evangelistic work.

Lorenzo D. Newland, evangelist, was appointed supply at Oak Hill Presbyterian Church, St. Louis Park, Minn., last January. The Lord has greatly blessed his work there, 25 having taken a stand for Christ. They organized a Y. P. S. C. E. There had been no services for a number of years until last fall at this place. He is open for a few dates during the summer or fall.

For four weeks in May and one week in June Dr. L. W. Munhall conducted evangelistic meetings in the new auditorium of the Los Angeles Bible Institute. While in that city he preached before the Methodist preachers' meeting, and liking it so well, by a hearty unanimous vote they instructed the business committee of the meeting to have him do it again. This was done. He also addressed the Baptist preachers' meeting while in Los Angeles, the president of which was converted under Dr. Munhall's preaching in Atlanta, Ga., thirty years ago. The "Committee of One Hundred," in San Francisco, invited Dr. Munhall to conduct meetings in their tabernacle June 27-July 3, and this he did. He is giving addresses at the Bible conference at Siloam Springs, Ark., July 31-August 8.

The annual report of the Lake Superior Mission, Superior, Wis., has been received. The manager's report shows the receipts of the last year to have been the smallest in the history of the mission, because of the general depression. The mission furnished lodgings for men out of work, as well as meals. Many citizens paid for tickets to help men to meals and lodging and the mission furnished 3,775 free lodgings and 1,998 free meals. Over 4,000 men slept on the floors in the winter.

Clifton L. Fowler, of the Denver Bible Institute, has just closed a series of helpful and instructive Bible conferences, held in the Cripple Creek district with the First Baptist Church of Cripple Creek, Colo., and the First Baptist Church of Victor. He gave a series of Bible lectures on each of the following subjects, "Living the Kingdom Life"; "The Doings of the Mysterious One"; "The Perplexities of Christian Experience." He will return to Victor in the near future to conduct an evangelistic campaign.

Herbert Tovey, who is with Burke and Hobbs, writes from Cushing, Okla., as follows: "We began a meeting here June 11, with all the Protestant churches. Cushing is located in the heart of the greatest oil field in the United States, which has brought a great boon to the town; also all classes of men and women, which makes the work very difficult; yet nearly 200 took a stand for Christ. We have been here just 18 days. We have the largest choir ever organized in this city."

We are pleased to announce the organization of a new gospel party, to be sent out by the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, under the leadership of Rev. William Wallace Ketchum. The party consists of a complete corps of workers to handle either large or small meetings; especially are they prepared to handle union tabernacle campaigns. Full particulars about arrangements may be had by addressing Mr. E. B. Buckalew, secretary of the Extension Department of the Moody Bible Institute.

Records established in former years were smashed to pieces in a report covering the six months operation of the Memphis Rescue Mission, from Oct. 1, 1914, to March 1, 1915, made at the annual board meeting by Fred G. Becker, superintendent of the institution. Mr. Becker reported that 1,446 persons were given clothing, 12,180 persons voluntarily attending chapel, 1,808 requested prayers, 2,288 gave testimonials, 882 were prayed with at the altar, and 642 attended Bible classes. It was by far the hardest winter the rescue mission ever faced, due largely to topsy-turvy industrial conditions brought about by the European war. During the coldest weather of the winter, hundreds thronged nightly to the mission and applied for work to pay for food and lodging.

We are pleased to show herewith a picture of Miss Helen Byrnes, often mentioned in our reports of evangelistic work in connection with Mrs. Bertha Harris. They spent the past winter working in Florida, Portsmouth, Va., and Baltimore, Md. While at the Y. W. C. A. in Richmond, Va., Miss Byrnes says she had the privilege of seeing the Bible room furnished in honor of Miss Angy Manning Taylor. The work was rather difficult in the South, as most of the people spent the winter there for pleasure only.

Miss Helen Byrnes

The staff of evangelists, twenty in number, of the Department of Evangelism of the Southern Baptist Convention, recently closed a three weeks campaign in Dallas, Tex., which proved to be the most successful concerted soul-winning effort they have ever conducted. There were fifteen white and eight negro churches engaged in the special series of meetings, each church having its own individual services at night and all combining in a union day-meeting in the First Baptist Church, of which Dr. George W. Truett is pastor. Evangelist Weston Bruner, of Atlanta, Ga., directed the corps of workers in the crusade against sin and vice and among his helpers were found several Moody Bible Institute men and women. The following singers assisted in the meeting: Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Blankenship, Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Reynolds, M. J. Babbitt, J. P. Scholfeld, and E. L. Wolslagel. As an immediate result of the revival campaign 2,130 new members were added to the co-operating churches, and more than 2,500 conversions were recorded.

FUTURE ENGAGEMENTS

Below are given the engagements, with dates as far as known, of the workers named. Our readers are earnestly invited to remember these laborers and their fields of appointment in their prayers.

George Wood Anderson—Sept. 12, Bellefontaine, O.; Oct. 31, Easton, Pa.

E. H. Baker and party—Oct. 17-Nov. 14, Washington, D. C.

Hay Bell and Joe Lauderdale—May, Foosland, Ill.; Aug., Menville, Ia.; Sept., Sturgis, Ky.; Oct., Galatia, Ill.

Byron J. Clark Party—July 11-Aug. 1, Mehan, Okla.; Aug. 1-23, Edmond, Kan.; Aug. 23-28, Winona Lake, Ind.

Edwin R. Dow and party—June, Orleans, Neb.; July, San Francisco, Cal.; Aug., Dallas Center, Ia.

John W. Erskine—June 6-28, Wilson and W. Wilson, Mich.; Sept. 4-27, Pewaukee, Wis., or Spring Green, Wis.; Oct. 2-28, Mt. Morris, Mich.

Edward D. Fellers—Open dates for the summer.

L. E. Finney and party—At Hearne, Alvarado, Waco, Pearsall, Normangee, Tex.; Harrison, Ark.; Sulphur, Okla.

A. John Fitt—July, tent meeting near Center, Colo.; Aug., tent meeting at Center, Colo.

E. J. Forsythe and party—Sept.-Oct., Kirksville, Mo.; Oct.-Nov., Denison, Ia.; Nov.-Dec., Tipton, Ia.

John S. Hamilton and party—Sept.-Oct., Marion, O.; Nov.-Dec., Hastings, Neb.

Haudenschild and Fugh—June 20-July 18, Central City, Ia.; Aug. 1-8, Siloam Springs, Ark.; Aug. 29-Sept. 19, San Diego, Cal.

C. E. Hillis and party—Sept. and Oct., Enola, Pa.

"Bob" Johnson and party—Until July 12, Punxsutawney, Pa.; Sept. 17-Nov. 8, Kalamazoo, Mich.; Nov. 12 to Dec. 20, Blairsville, Pa.

The Bob Jones Party—Aug. 1-15, Elkins, N. C.

The R. Sam Kirkland Party—July, Fulton, Ill.; open dates, last July-first Aug.

John M. Linden Party—Aug. 11-29, Ontario, Wis.; Sept. 1-12, Jenkins, Ky.; Sept. 18-22, McRoberts, Ky.; Sept. 23-Oct. 3, Burdine, Ky.; Oct. 6-31, Friendship, N. Y.

Lyon Evangelistic Campaign—Sept. 5, Lansing, Mich.; J. W. Mahood and party—Sept. 1, Manchester, Ia.; Oct. 7, Marion, Ia.

Mills-Huggins Party—Stratford, Ia., July 19-Aug. 8; Carlton, Neb., Aug. 15-Sept. 5; Belvidere, Neb., Sept. 12-26; North Union, Pa., Oct. 3-24.

W. J. Morris—Aug. 22-Sept. 20, Aurora, Mo.; Sept. 20-Oct. 20, Springfield, Mo.; Oct. 24-Nov. 14, St. Charles, Mo.; Nov. 14-Dec. 4, St. Joseph, Mo.; Dec. 4-Dec. 20, Hopkins, Mo.

O. A. Newlin—July 25-Aug. 22, Spencerville, O.; Aug. 29-Sept. 15, Hillsboro, Ind.; Sept. 19-Oct. 24, Audubon, Ia.; Nov. 7-Dec. 12, Eagle Grove, Ia.

Nicholson-Hemminger Party—Sept., Leighton, Pa.; Oct., Danville, Pa.; Dec., Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg, Pa.

Paul Henry Packard and party—July 11-Aug. 8, Arcadia, Kan.; Aug. 15-25, Pittsburg, Kan.; Aug. 28-30, Perry, Ia.; Aug. 31-Sept. 4, Hammond, Ind.; Sept. 5-25, Cleveland, O.; Sept. 26-Oct. 24, Topeka, Kan.; Oct. 25-Nov. 28, Olathe, Kan.; Nov. 29-Dec. 24, Belleville, Kan.

W. E. Parrish—Aug. 29, Salem, W. Va.; Oct. 3, Atlanta, Ia.; Nov. 14, Petoskey, Mich.

Rev. Jay J. Pease and party—Sept., Grand Junction, Mich.

Rayburn and Laraway—Sept. 12-Oct. 10, Menomonie, Wis.; Oct. 17-Nov. 21, Beloit, Wis.; Nov. 28-Dec. 26, River Falls, Wis.

Milton S. Rees—Boston, Mass., Dudley Street Baptist Church, Aug. 8-15; Port Jervis, N. Y., Sept. 12; Boston, Mass., Codman Square Group, Oct. 17; Malone, N. Y., Nov. 21; Danbury, Conn., Jan.

James V. Reid, Song Evangelist and Pianist—July 16-25, Mineral, La.; July 30-Aug. 8, Allenton, Ky.; Aug. 13-23, Hurlock, Md.; Aug. 27-Sept. 5, Oakland City, Ind., Camp.

Runyan-Rueckert—Oct., Oswego, Kan.; Nov. Columbus, Kan.; Dec., Vassar, Mich.

Harold F. Sayles—Until June 30, Flint, Mich.; Sept. 5-21, Flushing, Mich.

Chas. Cullen Smith and A. C. V. Gilmore—July 18-Aug. 8, Lexington, Ill.; Aug. 29-Sept. 19, Morris, Minn.

F. E. Smiley—July-Aug., Valverde, Colo.; Sept., Denver, Colo.; Oct., Guthrie, Okla.

Albert Turkington and party—Sept., Rossiter, Pa.; Oct., Burnside, Pa.; Nov., Punxsutawney, Pa.

E. B. Westhafer—Aug. 11-23, Gladwin, Mich.

Wheeler Evangelistic Party—Sept. 12-Oct. 20, Lincoln, Ill.

R. H. Willis and A. R. Lytle—July 30-Aug. 15, Glen Oak, Wis.; Aug. 17-Aug. 29, Dalton, Wis.; Aug. 31-Sept. 12, Detroit Harbor, Wis.

E. L. Woltslagel—July 1-11, Clayton, N. C.; July 12-13, Greenville, S. C.; July 20-27, Bristol, Va.; July 28-Aug. 7, Pelham Heights, Ala.

Wood and Brooks Party—July, Sauk Rapids, Minn.; Aug., Burr Oak, Ia.

Long Beach (Cal.) Assembly and Bible Conference, Aug. 2-29, 1915.

Lord's Day Congress, San Francisco, Cal., July 27-Aug. 1, 1915.

Martin Luther Quadrcentenary, October 31, 1917. Missionary Education Movement Summer Conferences for 1915, as follows:

Lake Geneva, Wis., Aug. 6-Aug. 15.

Montrose (Pa.) Bible Conference, July 30-Aug. 8, 1915.

Mountain Lake Park (Md.) Bible Conference, Aug. 1-8, 1915.

National Council of Congregational Churches of the U. S. Biennial Meeting. New Haven, Conn., Oct. 20-29, 1915.

Northfield (Mass.) dates for 1915:

General Conference, July 30-Aug. 15.

Oakdale Park (Ill.) Camp Meeting. Aug. 19-29, 1915.

Ocean Grove (N. J.) Camp Meeting, Aug. 27-Sept. 6, 1915.

Philadelphia School of the Bible:

Summer Bible Conference, Aug. 12-15.

Annual Bible Conference, Oct. 3-10.

Presbyterian Young People's Conventions for 1915:

Hastings, Neb., July 27-Aug. 3.

Hollister, Mo., Aug. 12-19.

Prison Sunday, Oct. 31, 1915.

Salvation Army Congress, San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 4-7, 1915.

Southwestern Missionary Conference, Cliffs, Ariz., Aug. 12-21, 1915.

Stony Brook (L. I.) Conferences for 1915:

Prophetic Conference, Aug. 8-15.

Sunday-school Conference, Aug. 16-20.

General Conference, Aug. 22-29.

Gospel Mission Conference, Aug. 29-Sept. 1.

Volunteers of America, San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 3-7, 1915.

Winona Lake (Ind.) dates for 1915:

Summer Bible School, July 6-Aug. 13.

Winona Assembly, July 6-Aug. 19.

Conference for Presbyterian Young People, July 13-16.

Church Efficiency Congress, Aug. 9-13.

Christian Citizenship Institute of National Reform Association, Aug. 9-19.

Conference on Pastoral Evangelism, Aug. 16-19.

Bible Conference, Aug. 20-29.

Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 28-Nov. 4, 1915.

World Bible Congress, Panama-Pacific Exposition, San Francisco, Aug. 1-4, 1915.

World's Sunday-school Convention, Tokyo, Japan, Oct. 18-26, 1916.

World's Temperance Sunday, Nov. 7, 1915.

"AIN'T IT FINE TODAY?"

Sure, this world is full of trouble—

I ain't said it ain't.

Lord! I've had enough, an' double,

Reason for complaint.

Rain an' storm have come to fret me,

Skies were often gray;

Thorns an' brambles have beset me

On the road, but say,

Ain't it fine today!

What's the use of always weepin',

Makin' trouble last?

What's the use of always keepin'

'Thinkin' of the past?

Each must have his tribulation,

Water with his wine.

Life it ain't no celebration.

Trouble? I've had mine—

But today is fine.

It's today that I am livin',

Not a month ago,

Havin' losin', takin', givin'

As time wills it so.

Yesterday a cloud of sorrow

Fell across the way;

It may rain again tomorrow,

It may rain—but, say,

Ain't it fine today!—

—Douglas Malloch, in "American Lumberman."

FORTHCOMING CONFERENCES OR IMPORTANT DATES

Christian and Missionary Alliance Summer Conferences for 1915 (probable dates):

Old Orchard Beach, Me., July 30-Aug. 8.

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 6-15.

Beulah Park, O., Aug. 13-22.

Green Lake (Wis.) Bible Institute, July 28-Aug. 10, 1915.

Grove City (Pa.) Bible Conference, Aug. 3-13, 1915.

Laymen's Missionary Movement, Boston, Mass., Nov. 18-20, 1915.

The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

DR. GRAY'S ENGAGEMENTS

During July Dr. Gray preached and conducted the Bible hour during a state convention of the Ohio Endeavorers at Toledo. He also supplied the pulpit of the Buena Park Presbyterian Church, Chicago, on one Sunday. He preached at the Chautauqua, Bloomington, Ill., and conducted the Bible hour at the Sunday-school Institute held in connection with it.

A Welcome Meeting

The Faculty, Business Staff and students of the Moody Bible Institute often have impromptu gatherings when the Spirit of God seems to fill up the whole assembly with unusual sweetness and power; but seldom do they experience a more gracious time than that of Saturday morning, July 10, when from 9 until after 11 o'clock they were gathered in the

EXTENSION DEPARTMENT STAFF

Top row (left to right): C. P. Meeker, E. B. Buckalew, G. E. Guiley, B. B. Sutcliffe.
Bottom row: Elinor Stafford Millar, J. C. Page, Frances C. Allison (Angy Manning Taylor, absent).

EXTENSION DEPARTMENT

We have to record that Miss Angy Manning Taylor, of our Extension Department, suffered the bereavement of her father who died July 8. We quote from a letter in which she says: "I am grateful for the prayers and tender thought of the faculty and student body of the Institute at this time of need. God has answered prayer and His sustaining presence has been constantly with me. The flowers you sent filled full their mission in our home."

Moody Church, as no auditorium of the Institute itself was sufficiently large to receive them.

The occasion was a kind of inaugural to Mr. E. B. Buckalew who has recently accepted the office of Secretary of the Extension Department. But it was made all the more memorable by the fact that most of the field workers of that department were present to participate in it, including Miss Eleanor Stafford Millar, who had just returned from Australia after her year's furlough for recuperation of her health. There was one absentee for whom deep sorrow was felt, Miss Angy Manning Taylor, whose father had recently died, and who that day was engaged in the sad task of laying away his body in the grave until the resurrection.

The Dean presided, all the members of the Faculty being with him on the platform, as well as the members of the Business Staff. Brief addresses, every one of them telling and impressive, were given by Miss Millar, Mr. Guille, Mr. Page, Mr. Meeker, and Mrs. Allison, in this order; and then before asking Mr. Buckalew to speak, Dr. Gray called on Mr. Norman H. Camp to refer to a special conservation work he had recently done in Millville, N. J., under the auspices of the Extension Department. Mr. Camp while not officially connected with that department has done extension work for the Institute for years and has been much blessed both as an evangelist and Bible teacher. Mr. Buckalew closed this part of the exercises with an address that pleased, both with its clean humor and its deep spirituality. He brought the feelings of the whole assembly to the point of renewed dedication of themselves to God, which was seized upon by Dr. Gray as a suggestion for the closing prayers of the holy and happy occasion.

These petitions and thanksgivings were offered by Mr. Hillis and Mr. Shipp, workers in the field, representing the Financial Department and by Mr. Gaylord, the head of that department. It was a happy providence that permitted these brethren to be present on the occasion, which contributed to their encouragement and spiritual uplift, as their presence and prayers contributed to the same blessing in the hearts of all who saw and heard them as they led in prayer. Before presenting them, Dr. Gray spoke of the arduous and delicate nature of their work, and emphasized the fact that the spirit in which they did it was the same as that animating the evangelists and Bible teachers in the Extension Department. It was regretted that Mr. Campbell and Mr. Steen were not present, but they were affectionately remembered in prayer.

The singing throughout the meeting was more or less spontaneous, and the morning closed by joining in the fellowship song composed by Dr. Gray and Dr. Towner for such occasions:

"God bless the school that D. L. Moody founded;
Firm may she stand, by foes of truth surrounded!
Riches of grace bestowed may she never squander,
Keeping true to God and man her record over yonder!"

Extension Department Workers

The regular workers of the department were engaged during the month as follows:

Mrs. Frances C. Allison has been resting. George E. Guille after close of campaign at Pittsburgh went to his home in Athens, Tenn., and since reaching the Institute has been lecturing. Charles P. Meeker is engaged for part of the months of June and July in Open Air Work under the direction of our Practical Work Department. Miss E. Stafford Millar reached Vancouver from Australia on July 1 and came directly to the Institute for the Field Workers' Conference. John C. Page closed his work at the Sunshine Mission, Denver, Colo., on July 4. Miss Angy Manning Taylor had been teaching at Winona Lake until the death of her father.

One of our present students has been located in evangelistic work during part of the month of June, and Mr. H. W. W. Allen has been called to fill a pastorate at Lexington, O.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR VISITORS

The Moody Bible Institute was greatly honored with visits from more than a thousand delegates in attendance at the International Christian Endeavor Convention, held in Chicago, July 7-12. These came from more than 30 states and two foreign countries—Germany and China. A very large proportion of them were officers, several being state presidents. Many expressed the deepest interest in Bible study and considered themselves fortunate in having the opportunity of visiting the great Bible Institute founded by D. L. Moody. Each visitor carried away with him or her a beautiful picture of Mr. Moody and a small package of information about the Institute.

The dormitories, lecture halls, the missionary museum, the correspondence and "Christian Workers Magazine" departments and the business offices were visited, besides a glance at various other provisions for the great work of the Institute. Probably the point of greatest interest to the visitors was Mr. Moody's room in the Men's Building. They were deeply interested in his table, his chair, his sofa, the large pictures of himself and Mrs. Moody and that of their burial place on Round Top, at Northfield, Mass., and the motto over the mantel. Many of them wanted to linger and enjoy the spiritual atmosphere that seemed to cling to the room occupied by the great man of God.

The opinion was freely made by many of the visitors that there were few Christians throughout the world who had any idea of the magnitude of the work of the Institute, which is now caring for more than 600 day students, nearly 200 in the evening classes and 2,300 in the correspondence courses.

REUNION AT ST. LOUIS.

A reunion of M. B. I. students of St. Louis, and near-by towns was held June 7, at 3:00 p. m., at the Jefferson Memorial Hall, Forest Park, where a delightful outing was enjoyed. Luncheon was served at the Young Women's Christian Association at St. Louis.

After luncheon the following topics were discussed: Is evangelistic work meeting with greater favor than formerly? Is the unparalleled success of the Institute and the fewness of students in many theological seminaries a protest of the people against the new or liberal theology? What relation, if any, exists between the great world war and the near approach of our Lord's return?

T. Bertrand Frary introduced the subjects, appointed the speakers and presided over the discussion. It was a refreshing and enjoyable evening. The following students were present: T. B. Frary, '99; James R. Smith, '90, and wife; S. D. Goodale, '97; R. L. Evans, '92, and wife; J. F. Rake, '03; Charles T. Wheeler, '92; H. Heinecke, '08; C. P. Meeker, '99; L. M. Aldridge, '12; F. K. Moss, '12; W. L. Swartz, '13; Misses Ora Hopkins, '04, Margaret E. Tarrant, '10, Clara B. Grunert, '14, and Cettie Rees, '96.

PERSONALIA

John W. Bostrom, '12, is pastor of the M. E. church, Springfield, Minn.

William Graf, '06, is pastor of a German Baptist church, Portland, Ore.

Edward L. Reiner, '07, is pastor of the Waveland Avenue Church, Chicago, Ill.

S. Cowes Noxon, '94, is pastor of the St. John's Church of England, Winona, Ont.

Wade Pinckney, '02, of Grand Marsh, Wis., has accepted a call to Embarrass, Wolfe, Me.

John Best, '11, is pastor of the Millard Avenue Congregational Church, of Chicago, Ill.

Martha S. Colburn, '02, is Bible-school visitor for the Ruggles Street Baptist Church, Boston.

E. C. Hise, '11, has charge (until Sept. 1) of the Hancock Circuit of Methodist churches, Hancock, Wis.

J. D. Taylor, '97, known as the sailor evangelist, is now pastor of the First Baptist Church, Astoria, Ore.

William A. Mennike, '04, of Bellaire, Mich., is engaged in evangelistic work and at present is holding tent meetings in Iowa.

R. B. Fisher, '02, is pastor of a Presbyterian church at Monticello, Ill., and also has charge of a rural church five miles from Monticello.

The Rev. William E. Briery, '07, who was with Dr. Torrey for some time as singer and player, visited the Institute for several days in July.

Albert Johnson and Samuel Martinez, present students, recently closed a two weeks revival meeting in the Baptist mission church, Western Springs, Ill.

Anna M. Campbell, '10, has been in Y. M. C. A. work in Cleveland, O., for the past twelve years, organizing and carrying on many departments of the work.

Percy C. Packer, '09, has a pastoral charge in Garner, Ia. A very encouraging report of his work has appeared in "The Advance," a progressive religious weekly.

Prof. A. L. Wolf, acting president of Parkville College, Mo., was a visitor at the Institute June 29. He courteously acted as critic for the Oratorical Club on the evening of that day.

S. D. Goodale, '97, evangelist, of Webster Groves, Mo., is being assisted in his meetings by his brother, B. W. Goodale. The latter, acting as musical director, has been doing splendid work the past year.

Ida B. Vibbard, '01, is general secretary of the League (women's department) of the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church, Cleveland, O.; superintendent of the Union Christian Endeavor for intermediates and president of the Parish Workers Council, which includes workers from the various churches and missions of the city.

Milo H. McMillen, '10, was called to Blooming Prairie, Minn., as pastor of the Presbyterian church, shortly after leaving the Institute. He and his wife, '11, have been blessed in their ministry, and the church built up and souls saved. He writes: "As I continue in the work, I am appreciating more and more the training I received at the Institute."

Olive Jensen, '07, Evanston, Ill., although not directly engaged in Christian work herself has assisted her brother in getting his training for the ministry at a theological seminary; helped her sister get a training at a Bible school in Rushford, Minn.; has given $100 for tent mission work, and has made other contributions out of her earnings as a dressmaker.

Grant Chambers, '02, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Okmulgee, Okla., has written a pamphlet entitled, "The Financing of the Kingdom," in which he sets forth the scriptural foundation for tithes and offerings. He is also encouraging the sale of the Moody colportage books, and says he greatly enjoys reading about the good work at the Institute in the "Christian Workers Magazine."

J. Calvin Leonard, '10, was ordained on Friday, July 2, 1915, by Bismarck Presbytery, the Rev. Charles Mutchnick of Belfield, moderator of this presbytery, presiding. On the following Sunday he was regularly installed as pastor of the Presbyterian church of New Salem, N. Dak.

The Rev. Henry W. Stough, D. D., evangelist, and head of the Stough evangelistic party, recently conducted such a successful campaign in Reading, Pa., that a special "Tabernacle Edition" of "The Reading Herald" was issued to describe the campaign. On its pages appeared the pictures of four former M. B. I. students who assisted Dr. Stough in his meetings: Prof. D. L. Spooner, '11, chorus director; Miss Hanna Mae King, '14, secretary; Miss Florence Saxman, '14, head of the women's department of the campaign; and Miss Dora Cain, '06, director of personal work.

BORN

To Mr. and Mrs. Jephtha Dale Stentz, '03, Knoxville, Ia., June 19, 1915, a son, Jephtha Dale, Jr.

To Mr. and Mrs. Otis D. Ironmonger, '13, Sansalito, Cal., June, 1915, a son, Donald Otis.

MARRIED

George Milton Tweedel, '09, to Miss Esther Caroline Harrison at Richards Landing, Ont., February 24, 1915.

Mr. Kimura Speaking to Japanese On the Pacific Coast in March

H. S. Kimura, '99, is an ordained minister of the Church of Japan. He knew Dwight L. Moody, and after his ordination sought to carry Moody's evangelistic spirit into all his work. In Japan he has been unusually successful in drawing his unevangelized countrymen into the Christian church. Coming to this country he heard Mr. Sunday preach in Denver last autumn, and was overpoweringly impressed by the force of the sermons. He then followed him to Des Moines and heard him in every sermon of his campaign there for three weeks. He then started back to Japan and in April began work on a new basis. In a great tent located in the immediate vicinity of the houses of parliament in Tokyo, he has since been engaging the constantly increasing attention of the people of Tokyo. Those who have heard both Sunday and Kimura say that the latter has accomplished a very striking reproduction of Mr. Sunday's manners and for this reason he is now being styled the Japanese "Billy" Sunday.

DIED

The Passing of Miss Content Patterson

Content Patterson, '02, passed away on the morning of June 21, 1915, leaving a gap in the Christian ranks that will be hard to fill. For the past five years she has been director of Bible teaching in the Moody Church Sunday-school of Chicago, was a member of the Adult Bible Class Committee of the International Sunday School Association and was in constant demand as a speaker at conferences and conventions. At the Moody Sunday-school, she was in charge of grading, and of teacher-training classes, and taught a young women's Bible class. She was also president of the Young Women's Home of the Moody Church. Her life has been teeming with activities in our Lord's name. Services held in the Moody Church in her memory were impressive, and all present felt that her life had been a great blessing.

The Bible Institute Colportage Association

LEAFLET EVANGELISM

By Rev. Howard W. Pope.

The indiscriminate use of tracts by those whose zeal exceeds their wisdom has led many good people to question their value. It is foolish, however, to allow our prejudice against poor tracts to blind us to the value of good ones, and good ones can be had. The choicest thoughts of some of the best writers can now be found in leaflet form, and many a soul has been awakened by one of these silent messengers which God has put into the hand at just the right moment.

A man stepped into a street-car in New York, and before taking his seat gave to each passenger a little card bearing the words, "Look to Jesus when tempted, when troubled, when dying." One of the passengers carefully read the card and put it in his pocket. As he left the car he said to the giver: "When you gave me this card I was on my way to the ferry, intending to jump from the boat and drown myself. The death of my wife and son had robbed me of all desire to live, but this card has persuaded me to begin life anew. Good day, and may God bless you."

There is no such thing as chance in this world, and those who seek to be led by the Spirit often find themselves messengers of mercy to some weary soul. A lady once travelled two hundred miles to tell the writer personally how a card which he had given her had led to her conversion. It lay in her bureau drawer, bearing its silent testimony from time to time as she read it, until finally it led her to Christ.

Some ministers make constant use of leaflets in their pastoral work. They open the way for conversation, and often they are better than words, for a soul under conviction is sometimes disposed to quarrel, but one cannot quarrel with a tract. It never loses its temper, never answers back, and it sticks to what it has said. Besides, you can send a leaflet into many places where you cannot go yourself.

People in sorrow or sickness love to be remembered, and boys think more of a minister who occasionally gives them a bright leaflet. A man wrote me that in a town where he had used, "Why a Boy Should Be a Christian," forty-five people on their examination for church membership testified that they attributed their conversion mainly to that leaflet.

Housekeepers can use tracts to good advantage. Lay them on the parlor table that callers may read them while waiting. Often there is time enough for one to be converted while a lady is finishing her toilet. Give them to the milkman, the grocer, the postman; enclose them in letters, library books and packages.

Business men have fine opportunities for this kind of work. A man once said, "I cannot speak in meeting, but if you will supply me with choice reading matter, I will pay for it and inclose it in the packages which go out of my store." Recently a customer uttered an oath in a New York business house. The proprietor quietly handed him a tract entitled, "Why Do You Swear?" The man read it, tears came to his eyes, and he said "I beg your pardon, sir." "Never mind me," said the other, "but don't you think you had better ask God's pardon? It was His name that you profaned." "I will do it," said the man, and he shook his hand warmly. It is not an easy matter to rebuke a swearer, but anyone can say, "Here is a leaflet which you may find helpful," or he can mail one to every profane person whom he knows.

Teachers can make good use of leaflets. Those who cannot talk with their pupils can put into their hands the wise words of others. Old-fashioned tracts will not do for boys. They want something which sparkles with life, which rivets the attention, and which stops when it gets there.

This is a busy age, we all know. People have not time, or think that they have not, to read books on religion, but if you put into their hands something which is attractive, interesting, and which can be read in a few minutes, it is sure of attention. I am convinced that anyone can easily multiply his influence twentyfold by a wise use of printer's ink.

Rev. J. Hudson Taylor, the founder of the great China Inland Mission, was converted by a leaflet when he was fifteen years old. Dr. R. A. Torrey, dean of the Los Angeles Bible Institute, said that there were two kinds of ammunition which he always carried with him, the Bible, and a package of leaflets.

A ticket agent who gave away a tract with every ticket sold, said that over twenty persons wrote him saying that the leaflets which he gave them had been blessed to their conversion.

One of the greatest secrets of success in Christian work is to have something to give away. Thus you can always secure attention, even among strangers, and open the way for conversation. You can hand one a leaflet with a kindly smile, saying, "Would you like something to read?" After it is read the most natural thing is to talk about it. By offering a tract I have often detained people at the close of a service, and thus obtained an opportunity for Christian conversation. In this way nine people recently remained to get a leaflet, and finally all of them knelt with me and accepted Christ.

Never give away a tract unless you know its contents. Use all the tact you have, and pray for more. An old man said to a train boy, "No, I don't want your pop corn, don't you see I haven't any teeth?" "Buy some gum drops then, nice fresh gum drops." That boy knew how to adapt himself to his customers, and so should we. Occasionally select a good tract, and printing on it the name of your church or Sunday-school with an invitation to attend the services, canvass the whole neighborhood, leaving a tract at every house.

A physician told me recently that three times in three different cities, and at intervals of about a year, someone put into his pocket without his knowledge a little blue card containing the words, "Have you a home in heaven, where the angels are, and where your mother is, etc?" The first two cards set him thinking, but the third came at a time when he had just lost his mother, and it led him to Christ. No one of the three people knew that they were supplementing each other's work, and yet they were. None of the three ever knew that any good came from the card which they dropped into the stranger's pocket, but he knew and God knew, and that was enough. We shall never know all the good that comes from this kind of silent preaching, but we know enough to make it almost criminal for us to neglect it.

THE INFLUENCE OF A TRACT

A young Frenchman who had been wounded at the siege of Saint Quentin was languishing on a pallet in the hospital when a tract that lay on the coverlet caught his eye. He read it and was converted by it. You may see the monument of that man before the Church of the Consistory in Paris, standing with a Bible in his hand. He is known in history as Admirable Coligny, the leader of the Reformation in France. But the tract had not yet finished its work. It was read by Coligny's nurse, a "sister of mercy," who penitently placed it in the hands of the Lady Abbess, and she, too, was converted by it. She fled from France to the Palatinate, where she met a young Hollander and became his wife. The influence which she had upon that man reached out into the Reformation on the entire continent of Europe, for he was William of Orange.

"How far yon little candle threw its beams!"
Who knows what the power of a tract may be?
—D. J. Burrell.

WHAT GOOD BOOKS WILL DO

They will go anywhere, sea or land,
Get into cabin or palace,
Reach those otherwise unreachable,
Wait their time to be heard,
Never tire of speaking,
Travel further and cheaper than any other,
Unaffected by climate, untouched by fever.
Once started off call for no salary,
Cost nothing to feed or clothe,
Never change their voice, and last Forever—until the fire comes!

MR. MOODY'S BOOK FUNDS

The following contributions have been received from June 15, 1915, to July 15, 1915, inclusive:

Prison Book Fund:
17 Contributions	$ 93.00
Army and Navy Book Fund:
1 Contribution	5.00
Lumber Camp Book Fund:
2 Contributions	8.55
Military Camp Book Fund:
74 Contributions	193.55
Mountain Book Fund:
18 Contributions	145.50
Needy Preachers Book Fund:
1 Contribution	5.00
Spanish "Way to God" Book Fund:
2 Contributions	10.00

FREE GRANTS OF BOOKS

The following donations of the Moody Colportage Library books, Emphasized Gospels of John, etc., have been sent out on account of the several book funds named, from June 14, 1915 to July 13, 1915, inclusive, many of which consignments already have been acknowledged with expressions of hearty appreciation:

Prison Book Fund:
Tennessee, 14 books.
Arizona, 15 books, 10 gospels and tracts.
Iowa, 213 books, 185 gospels.
Kentucky, 16 books, 15 gospels.
North Carolina, 17 books, 15 gospels.
Ohio, 125 books, 55 gospels.
Illinois, 10 books, 10 gospels.
Texas, 20 books, 35 gospels.
Oklahoma, 25 books, 25 gospels.
Colorado, 160 books, 160 gospels.
Missouri, 30 books, 30 gospels.
Maryland, 480 books, 450 gospels.
Georgia, 15 books, 15 gospels.

Mountain Book Fund:
Kentucky, 230 books, 25 gospels.
Tennessee, 400 books, 50 gospels.

Seamen's Book Fund:
Florida, 30 books, 25 gospels.

Spanish "Way to God" Book Fund:
--	--

Porto Rico, 25 books.
Mexico, 22 books.

India Book Fund:
Hissar, 6 books.

William Wallace Ketchum

THE MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE Gospel Party

Under the Leadership of
REV. WILLIAM WALLACE KETCHUM

The party is fully prepared to conduct evangelistic campaigns and includes trained and experienced workers, each a specialist in his or her line, qualified to conduct Bible classes, services for men, women, young people and children, shop and open air meetings, personal workers classes, etc. A special financial plan makes the services of the party widely available. Engagements for union tabernacle evangelistic campaigns may be arranged by correspondence with

THE SECRETARY, EXTENSION DEPARTMENT
The Moody Bible Institute
153 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

When Planning Evangelistic Meetings write to Lance E. Appleby Evangelistic Party

dates now being made for future meetings. Good chorister, Bible teacher, and leader for children's meetings. Single or union, tent or church meetings.

153 Institute Place, Chicago.

JUST OUT---No. 5---JUST OUT Object Lessons of Scripture

Companion to No. 1, No. 2, No. 3 and No. 4; available for all; 12 Object Lessons in each Pamphlet.

Price, 15c Each. Order by Number

REV. CHAS. EICKENBERG, 4029 N. Hermitage Avenue, Chicago, Illinois

Miss Sara C. Palmer EVANGELIST

formerly of Belfast, Ireland, but for the past three years connected with one of the large evangelistic groups of this country. Is now open for dates for the Fall of 1915, and the Spring of 1916.

Mr. Fred D. Cartwright
CHORISTER

Miss Florence Saxman
PIANIST

Choice Testimonials.

Address, care of Moody Bible Institute, 830 N. La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

EVANGELIST

John W. Erskine

Evart, Michigan. Member Michigan Congregational Conference, and Interdenominational Association of Evangelists. Will make engagements for Evangelistic Campaigns, single church or union meetings. Excellent testimonials furnished. Available from Sept., 1915.

Deeper Experiences of Famous Christians

By J. GILCHRIST LAWSON

Just published. Is the greatest book on the Spirit filled life. 382 pages. Twenty-one full page portraits. Cloth $1; paper 50c. Agents Wanted.

Glad Tidings Pub. Co., Lakeside Bldg., Chicago

RUNYAN RUECKERT Evangelists

have open date for Union or Single Church meeting in September. References furnished. Address

Rev. W. M. Runyan, Baldwin, Kan.

Rev. Jas. B. McClure and Evangelistic Party

are receiving calls from the smaller centres for—Union Meetings—Have open dates. Member of I. A. E. Formerly assistant to Nicholson-Hemming.

Address: Tamaqua, Pa.

Trained Christian Workers Available For Service

in connection with colportage, or "book missionary" work, from Aug. 13 to Sept. 8, 1915, for points (towns and villages especially) within 200 miles of Chicago. Some preach and teach with great acceptance, some sing the Gospel story, others have ability to reach the children especially, all are accustomed to evangelistic work, being students of the Moody Bible Institute. Either men or women workers are available. We will endeavor to supply the particular need of the field for the time stated above—or for any part of it. Correspondence with pastors especially solicited. WRITE EARLY!

• The Bible Institute Colportage Association
826 NORTH LA SALLE STREET, CHICAGO

Pastors or Evangelists

desiring services of a song and chorus leader, should get in touch with me at once. Will assist pastors or would join evangelistic party; 15 years' experience leading Gospel Singing. Composer of Gospel music. Use cornet for leading large tabernacle audiences. Can act as pianist if necessary, give Bible readings, address young people's or overflow meetings. If in need of an assistant in any evangelistic meetings write. Best of references.

ALBERT T. HARVEY, Manchester Sta., Richmond, Va.

WANT AN EVANGELIST?

The undersigned, a college and theological school graduate, who spent 14 years in the pastorate and the past 8 years (part of each year) as an evangelist and singer will be pleased to mail pastors an 8 page folder in which others tell of his work. Mr. Miller is author of "Personal Evangelism" and other volumes. Address

REV. RENNETS C. MILLER
Box B 255 Yonkers, N. Y.

To Pastors and Ministerial Associations

Dr. Arthur Crane, Pastor-Evangelist, is booking engagements for Union Meetings 1915-16, or Single Churches in Large Cities. Refers to Dr. Parley E. Zartmann, Sec. Int. Assn., of Evangelists and those he has assisted.

"No Evangelist we ever had came nearer giving perfect satisfaction. He has no objectionable methods, no sensationalism, but only the plain gospel of grace, which he preaches with earnestness and power. Rev. R. B. Garrett, D. D., Portsmouth, Va." Address

810 Flatbush Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Agents Wanted for
The Christian Workers Magazine.

PROF. HAROLD F. HOLBROOK

Chorus Director, Baritone, Soloist, Trombonist, is open for engagements after August. First class references. Tabernacle and union meetings especially desired. Worked with Lawrence E. Greenwood, Homer Rodeheaver, Dr. O'Brien, H. D. Kennedy, and Dr. Edwin R. Dow. A graduate of Moody Bible Institute, and has college education. Address Box 187, Plymouth, Ill.

Have You A Pocket Bible ?

Then WHY NOT

send postal card for our price list? We also have pocket helps for ministers, Bible school teachers and other Christian workers. The best in these lines from the leading publishers at their prices. All pocket editions.

POCKET EVANGEL SUPPLY COMPANY,
501 E. Pennsylvania Ave., South Bend, Ind.

Bulkley and Swartzbaugh Evangelistic Party

Now in the South and Central States, will have some open dates after October 17. All time occupied till then. Union tent and tabernacle meetings, also individual church meetings. Reference furnished, and no trap methods used. Personal work taught, Bible and prayer meetings held. Organization a specialty.

Address D. B. BULKLEY, care of Y. M. C. A. Little Rock, Ark.

Three Powerful Books

BY DR. W. E. BIEDERWOLF.
"Spiritualism," "Russellism Unveiled," "The Unvarnished Truth about Christian Science."

Latest, plainest, and most convincing books on these subjects.

15 cents each, postpaid; 3 for 40 cents

Glad Tidings Publishing Co., Lakeside Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

FREE FOR POSTAGE

Sample Copy of HALDEMAN'S S. S. LESSON QUARTERLY. Different from all others. Original and inspiring. Send 5c for mailage of a sample copy. CHARLES C. COOK, 150 Nassau St., NEW YORK

Fanny Crosby's Story

OF NINETY-FOUR YEARS

Illustrated Cloth
$1.00 net.

JUST READY

At All Booksellers

By S. TREVENA JACKSON

Here the blind singer tells her own story, drawing on an extraordinary memory for the vivid recollections of nearly ninety years. The author knew "Aunt Fanny" intimately for more than twenty years, and it was during her numerous visits to his home that she dictated the material here brought together.

HER SONGS HAVE BELTED THE GLOBE

A book filled with memories, impressions and reminiscences never before related, forming a fascinating record of one whose name is known wherever the English tongue is spoken, and whose ministry of sacred song has belted the globe. AGENTS WANTED

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY

New York: 158 Fifth Ave.
Chicago, 125 N. Wabash Ave.

Recollections OF NINETY YEARS

Hundreds of Ministers & Theological Students when in need of books, invariably write first to Schulte's Theological Book Emporium, the largest depository for theological books in America. Often he can supply good second-hand copies at a great saving in price.

Even the most recent books are frequently in stock as Editorial Review Copies and are offered at greatly reduced prices.

Send him your list of "Wants," and you will be satisfied with the result. Catalogues Free. Theological Libraries and good books purchased for cash.

SCHULTE'S BOOK STORE 132 East 23d St. NEW YORK

BARGAIN SALE

A few copies of Bound Volume of Christian Workers Magazine from September 1913 to August 1914. Half leather—fine for library or reading table. To any address prepaid only
Address: 163 Institute Place, Chicago $1.25

Get the Best Selling
Hymn Book

THE "NEW MAKE CHRIST KING"

EDITED BY
Prof. E. O. Excell, Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, Dr. H. W. Stough, Dr. M. H. Lyon and 60 other leading evangelists.

The Latest, Best and Most Popular Hymn Book.

Every Hymn in this Book is a Gem. All the Best Old Favorite Hymns. The Best New Copyright Hymns.

The old "Make Christ King" was the most popular song book on the market, and the new one is better. Send 10c for sample copy.

BIEDERWOLF

EXCELL

STOUGH

LYON

The Glad Tidings Pub. Co., Lakeside Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

We Are Watching

Our Pastor Use

Chemical Illustrations of Bible Truths

We like to see them

Prepared Talks

Ready to Use

6 for 50c, postpaid

C. A. Schmitt

632 South St. Roslindale, Mass.

The King's Business

Dr. R. A. Torrey, Editor

Published by the

Los Angeles Bible Institute

Los Angeles, California

Price, ONE DOLLAR Per Year

An Undenominational Monthly Magazine, founded upon the Whole Bible and devoted to the dissemination of

The Great Fundamentals of Scripture

As set forth by some of the World's Most Famous Preachers and Writers

A COMPLETE EXPOSITION OF

International Sunday School Lessons

for each month by Dr. R. A. TORREY and T. C. HORTON. Invaluable to every teacher and Bible student. Every Christian home should have it for Daily Devotional Studies in New Testament by Dr. Torrey. Subscribe today

SPECIAL INDUCEMENTS offered to prospective students of our Free Bible School whereby they can pay their living expenses by securing subscribers to The King's Business. Full particulars free by mail.

THE BIOLA BOOK ROOM sells a complete line of religious books, Bibles, Testaments and miscellaneous literature on the vital religious subjects, at moderate prices, and in combination with the King's Business.

The King's Business

536 and 558 So. Hope Street
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

REVIVE FAMILY WORSHIP

"The question of Family Prayer is at Bottom a question of children's rights. Whoever acknowledges that his father's prayers helped him is bound in a supreme obligation to leave his children some prayers to help them."

The Bible in the Home means more consistent living, more effective prayers, more children won for Christ, more enlistments in definite Christian service, more power in the Church to combat sin and relieve suffering. Help us create an atmosphere!

The World's Morning Watch is a union of Christians to bring this to pass. It is incorporated as a membership corporation. There are no vows or pledges. If you believe in it—join! One dollar or more a year makes you a member. Daily Bible goes free to members.

This is the PIONEER MOVEMENT to do this quiet, spiritual service. Make it effective by your immediate help. Send checks or money orders to World's Morning Watch, Inc.

Room 311, 30 East 42nd St.,

NEW YORK, N. Y.

J. WILBUR
CHAPMAN, D. D.,
President

Vice-Presidents

Rev. Bishop L. B. Wilson
D. D.,
New York

J. K. MacDonald, Esq.,
Toronto

Secretary-Treasurer
Wm. B. Oliver

We are the Morning Watch specialists urging constantly the daily, devotional reading of the Bible. The keeping of the Morning Watch is the key to Spiritual effectiveness, and should become your habit. "All great saints have been early risers." (Psa. 5:3.)

We are the Clearing House for the family worship propaganda. We aid pastors who wish to preach upon it, and supply literature at cost.

We have inspired others to promote a program of home religion. As long as the home is the unit of society, it should be nourished by Bible teaching.

Other Directors Include

Francis E. Clark, D. D.

George Warren Brown

James M. Gray, D. D.

Chas. L. Huston

Geo. T. Coxhead

A. H. Howland

Carl F. Price

JOIN US NOW

We need before Oct. 1

1,000 gifts at	. . .	$1.00 each
500 " "	. . .	$2.00 "
100 " "	. . .	$5.00 "
100 " "	. . .	$10.00 "
100 " "	. . .	$25.00 "

INDEX FOR VOLUME XV

September 1914, to August 1915, inclusive.

SUBJECTS

Agriculture and Foreign Missions. Rev. F. A. Steven	668	Holy Living: What It Is, and How to Maintain It. Rev. J. Stuart Holden, M. A.	610
Another View of Peace and War. Hans Dressel	160	How a Live City Solves the Problem of the Bible in the Public Schools. Rev. James M. Johnson	625
Athanasius, The Bridge Builder. Clara L. Webster	236	How Do We Know the Bible Is Authentic? Rev. James M. Gray, D. D.	291
Atonement, The. Rev. J. C. Page	16	How May We Know Jesus Better? Rev. George F. Truett, D. D.	605
Backsliding and Apostasy. Captain Arthur M. Miles	91	How Three Great Field Marshals Look at Missions. Roberts, F. M., Grenfell, F. M., Methuen, F. M.	675
"Battle of Armageddon, The." James M. Gray, D. D.	81	John Huss, the Reformer, Patriot and Martyr. Rev. J. H. Ralston	682
Battle Star, The. Poem. Florence A. Wilson	411	I Am the Way, the Truth, and the Life. Poem. Ella E. Pohle	742
"Behold, I Come." Poem. F. A. Edwards	374	If! (An Anti-War Poem.) Griffin	101
Bible Institute Colportage Association, The. 458, 523, 584, 649, 722, 798.	62	Importance of the Resurrection of Christ. Rev. H. M. Parsons, D. D.	478
Blessed Assurance. Poem. Mrs. S. F. Fisk	304	Inner Life, The. C. I. Scofield, D. D.	20
Blessed Hope, The. Poem. Homer Black	750	Interesting Stories from Nicaragua. Lorenzo Taylor	674
Book Notices 116, 257, 316, 386, 448, 511, 573, 638, 707, 784.	62	International Sunday School Lessons. E. O. Sellers 106, 169, 244, 305, 375, 437, 499, 561, 632, 698, 777.	40
Call to Prayer for a World-wide Revival, A.	543	Israel Among the Nations and the Present War. Philip Sidersky	232
Cards, Theatres and Dancing. Rev. T. W. Callaway	549	I Wonder What, and How, and Why, and If. Poem. John C. O'Hair	301
Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. Thos. W. Churchill	32	Jephthah and His Daughter. Elizabeth A. Reed	163
China Inland Mission Jubilee Conference. S. A. Woodruff	760	Jewish Christians Getting Together. Rev. S. B. Rohold, F. R. G. S.	623
Christian, Church, Conscience, The. Rev. T. W. Callaway	486	Joyous Life, The. C. I. Scofield, D. D.	234
Christian Endeavor Convention at Chicago. S. A. Woodruff	766	Khammurabi Code and the Critics. Ada R. Habershon	555
Christ Ascended. Poem. William Nye Smith	542	Kingdom of Heaven—What It Means, The. Rev. C. I. Scofield, D. D.	756
Christ's Portrait. Poem. Nahum Wesley Grover	613	Larger Christian Life, The. Rev. C. I. Scofield, D. D.	293
Church, The.—Past, Present and Future. Rev. C. I. Scofield, D. D.	547	Laymen's Commentary on the Old and New Testaments. Jas. M. Gray 103, 167, 241, 302, 372, 434, 495, 559, 629, 695, 773.	36
Coming of the King, The. Poem. Norman Davis	297	Lessons from a Visit to Bible Lands. Rev. William Evans, D. D.	149
Commemoration of the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Life of George Whitefield	148	Life Story of a Great Scholar. Sir William M. Ramsay	743
Course and End of This Age, The. Rev. C. I. Scofield, D. D.	482	Man Who Let His Light Shine, A. Poem. February	Cover
Deadly Gun, The. Poem. A. A. Johnson	622	Might Christ Come Today? Rev. L. W. Gosnell	223
Delivered Life, The. C. I. Scofield, D. D.	156	Minister's Conversion, A. His Own Testimony	22
Early Millerites. Mrs. Geo. C. Needham	88	Modern Alternatives for the Gospel. D. S. Adams, D. D.	412
Editorial Notes 79, 145, 217, 281, 347, 409, 475, 541, 603, 665, 739.	13	Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, The 121, 184, 264, 323, 391, 454, 518, 579, 645, 718, 794.	57
European War—1914. Poem. I. A. MacDonald	481	My Experience in Christian Science. By a Student in The Moody Bible Institute	616
Eangelism in Pennsylvania. Rev. L. W. Munhall, D. D.	349	Negro Education, a Missionary Effort. H. M. McIntosh	678
Evangelistic Field, The. 118, 180, 260, 318, 387, 449, 512, 575, 642, 714, 790.	53	Ninety and Nine, The. Poem. A. W. B.	491
Exhortation to Prayer, An. Rev. John Harper	289	Non-College Minister, The	425
Expository Preaching. H. J. Baldwin	423	None Killed in the European War	620
Faith. Poem. Frank L. Stanton	776	Notes and Suggestions 114, 179, 254, 315, 384, 446, 509, 571, 641, 711, 788.	50
Fanny Crosby and Grover Cleveland. Rev. James M. Gray, D. D.	421	Old School Books. Poem. Arthur Lewis Tubbs	27
"Farewell to the M. B. I." Stanley Armstrong	60	One Day at a Time. Poem	488
For Sermon and Scrap Book 112, 176, 251, 312, 381, 443, 505, 568, 636, 704, 781.	47	Original Plea for Missionary Workers, An. Charles I. Studd	304
Footprints of God in the Temperance Movement. Rev. A. C. Dixon, D. D.	747	"Pastor" Russell's Christ Not the Christ of the Bible. Philip Sidersky	758
Fundamental View of God's Laws. Fred L. Rosemond	97	"Prayer, A." W. Irvine Blair. Harry D. Loes. Class Song April, 1915	581
"Glorious End, A." Poem. Annie J. Flint	667	Prayer of A Shut-In. Poem. Mrs. W. S. Goodell	428
Going to Meeting 110, 174, 249, 310, 379, 441, 503, 566, 639, 709, 786.	28	Practical and Perplexing Questions Answered. Editors 101, 165, 239, 300, 369, 429, 492, 556, 626, 689, 771.	34
Good and the Bad in Modern Evangelism. Herbert C. Hart	92	Practical Phases of Prayer, The. Rev. Ira M. Grey	154
Gospel in the World, The. Edward A. Marshall	45	Psalm 37:1-7. Rev. Charles F. Sheldon, D. D.	762
Grave, The. Poem. Rev. F. W. Pitt	481	Re-Building of Babylon Willis W. Mead	29
Gwennap Pit, The.—Cornwall. Rev. James M. Gray, D. D.	544
Harper, John, The Mighty Man of Prayer. F. Spencer Johnson	288
He Holdeth Me Safe in His Arms. Song. E. O. Sellers	770
His Second Coming. Poem. Wm. D. Page	23
Hobson Amendment Criticised William A. Brubaker	490

Rejoinder From a Christian Scientist.....	763	Guille, Rev. George E.	483
Religious Errors and Their Starting Points. Rev. Martin Anstey.....	625	Hamill, Rev. H. M., D. D.	24
Reminiscences of Dwight L. Moody, Humorous and Grave.....	350	Harper, Rev. John.....	289
Restoration of the Biblical Hebrew Language. H. V. Reed.....	87	Hart, Herbert C.	92
Revival of Revivalism.....	764	Hay, Rev. William, F. R. G. S.	670
Romance of Bible Chronology. Rev. Martin Anstey, M. A. B. D.	416	Helston, John.....	87
Sacrament of Pain, The. Poem. Albert Simpson Reitz.....	673	Holden, Rev. J. Stuart, M. A.	610
Satan's Great Masterpiece. Rev. Gerrit Huyser.....	751	Huyser Rev. Gerrit.....	751
Spirit Filled Life, The. Rev. C. I. Scofield, D. D.	306	Johnson, A. A.	632
Spiritual Conscience or the Imperative of a Missionary Evangelism. Rev. William Hay, F. R. G. S.	670	Johnson, F. Spencer.....	288
Striking Incident in Personal Work, A. H. D. Kennedy.....	426	Johnson, Rev. James M.	625
Striking Missionary Address on South America, A. Rev. A. Stuart McNairn.....	361	Jowett, Rev. J. H., D. D.	283
Substitutions of Grace, The. Rev. Howard W. Pope.....	688	Kemp, Rev. Joseph W.	228
Suite 401-2 Moody Bible Institute.....	367	Kennedy, H. D.	426
Sunday-school Evangelism. Rev. H. M. Hamill, D. D.	24	Keyes, Harriet L.	86
Sunday-school Lessons (See International).....		MacDonald, I. A.	481
Sunday-school Teacher's Opportunities Outside the Sunday school. Alma F. Rader.....	489	McIntosh, H. M.	678
Sunday Good—Should Be Better.....	768	McNairn, Rev. A. Stuart.....	361
Tampering With Bible Chronology. Rev. Martin Anstey, B. D., M. A.	553	Marshall, Edward A.110, 174, 249, 310, 379, 441, 503, 566, 639, 709, 786.	45
Testimony of a Shut-In.....	428	Maxwell, Grace B.	233
Testimony of One Who Tried to Run from God and Who Found God. D. T. Starling.....	161	Mead, Willis W.	29
Thankfulness a Duty and a Grace. Rev. C. A. S. Dwight.....	162	Miles, Captain Arthur M.	91
Thanks of A Mother. Poem. H. Bedford-Jones.....	147	Munhall, Rev. I. W., D. D.	349
Theology of Luther and Calvin, The. Clara Louise Webster.....	686	Needham, Mrs. George C.	88
Three Coming Persons. Rev. C. I. Scofield, D. D.	614	Norton, Mrs. Ralph C.	621
Three Downward Steps. Adam L. Berninger, M. D.	299	O'Hair, John C.	301
Three "Untils" of Israel's Future Glory, The. Rev. Geo. E. Guille.....	483	Page, Rev. J. C.	16
Time to Favor Zion Has Come, The. Rev. S. B. Rohold, F. R. G. S.	84	Page, William D.	23
Title-Deed to Our Estates, The. Rev. J. H. Jowett, D. D.	283	Parsons, Rev. H. M., D. D.	478
Tragedy of the Inner Life. Rev. C. I. Scofield, D. D.	89	Pitt, Rev. F. W.	481
Universal Peace. Poem. Grace B. Maxwell.....	233	Pohle, Ella E.	742
Virgin Birth, The. J. J. Robinson.....	221	Pope, Rev. Howard W.	298
Wanted, More Shamgars. Rev. Howard W. Pope.....	298	Rader, Alma F.	489
War in Europe in Relation to Christianity and the Church, The. Rev. William Evans, D. D.	158	Ralston, Rev. J. H.	682
Warning of the Fig Tree, The. Poem. H. K. B. Wars and Rumors of Wars. Poem. Albert Simpson Reitz.....	147	Ramsay, Sir William M.	743
When Is It Dangerous to "Get Together?".....	95	Reed, Elizabeth A.	16
Whitefield, George, "The Seraphic Evangelist." Rev. Joseph W. Kemp.....	228	Reed, H. V.	87
Word "We" in the Epistles, The. Rev. W. J. Erdman, D. D.	755	Reitz, Albert Simpson.....	673
Why Send Missionaries to the Mormons? Rev. R. L. Warnock.....	676	Robinson, J. J.	221
Why He Became a Missionary. Norman Davis.....	296	Rohold, Rev. S. B., F. R. G. S.	84
Why We Should Pray for Missionaries. From the Memoirs of William C. Burns, M. A.	678	Rosemond, Fred L.	97
Working for Souls Among the English "Tommys." Mrs. Ralph C. Norton.....	621	Scofield, Rev. C. I., D. D.	20
AUTHORS.		69, 156, 234, 293, 366, 482, 547, 614, 766.
Adams, D. S., D. D.	412	Sellers, E. O.	40
Anstey, Rev. Martin, M. A. B. D.	416, 625,	Sheldon, Rev. Charles F., D. D.	762
Baldwin, H. J.	743	Sidersky, Philip.....	758
Bedford-Jones, H.	422	Smith, William Wye.....	542
Berninger, Adam L., M. D.	299	Stanton, Frank L.	776
Black, Homer.....	750	Starling, D. T.	161
Brubaker, William A.	490	Steven, Rev. F. A.	668
Callaway, Rev. T. W.	549,	Taylor, Lorenzo.....	674
Churchill, Thomas W.	32	Truett, Rev. George F., D. D.	905
Davis, Norman.....	296	Tubbs, Arthur Lewis.....	27
Day, Rev. Roby F.	297	Warnock, Rev. R. L.	676
Dixon, Rev. A. C., D. D.	747	Webster, Clara Louise.....	686
Dressel, Hans.....	160	Wilson, Florence A.	411
Erdman, Rev. W. J., D. D.	755	Woodruff, S. A.	238, 760, 766
Evans, Rev. William, D. D.	158	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Flint, Annie J.	667	Anderson, Miss; Campbell, Mrs.; Campbell, Dr.	187
Goodell, Mrs. W. S.	428	Bethany Lodge at Winona Lake, Ind.	93
Gosnell, Rev. L. W.	223	Birthplace of John Huss.....	682
Gray, Rev. James M.	36	Book Missionary Work in the Country.....	190
81, 103, 167, 241, 291, 302, 372, 421, 434, 495, 544 559, 629, 695, 739, 774.		Boys Make Cheerful and Successful Book Missionaries.....	723
Gray, Rev. Ira M.	154	Brooks, Rev. Jesse W., Ph. D.	572
Griffin.....	100	Brussels—The Exchange.....	81
Grover, Nahum Wesley.....	613	Buckalew, E. B.	645
		Burke-Hobbs Tabernacle Choir at Jackson, Mo.	576
		Byrnes, Miss Helen.....	792
		Chicago in Summertime..... Front Cover, August, 1915	1915
		Cairo—Rhoda Island.....	153
		Christian Endeavor Convention Chorus at Chicago Cleveland, Grover, at His Desk.....	767
		Closson, Ethel.....	422
		Closson, Mary.....	392
		Coffin, Warren C.	392
		Colporteur Selling Moody Colportage Library Books to an Indiana Blacksmith.....	353
		Condemnation of Huss.....	126
		Crosby, Fanny J.	684
		Dixon, Rev. A. C., D. D.	747
		Door-Step Ministry, A.....	269
		Douglas-Jones, D. F.	115
		Dunlap, Irving R.	122
		Evans, William, D. D.	325, 356
		Evening Department Association.....	61
		Extension Department Staff of Moody Bible Institute.....	794
		Few, Carrie Lent.....	328
		Former M. B. I. Students now at Northern Baptist Theological Seminary.....	646

Forsythe Evangelistic Party, The.....	451	Norton, Ralph and the "Tommys" Before a Shelled Building in France.....	621
Four-Nation Quartet, The.....	123	Norton, William.....	356
Friends Mission—Africa.....	365	"Old Church Still Stands".....	788
Gaylord, A. F.	352	Open-Air Service in Hammond, Ind.	123
Gordon, A. J.	353	Parsons, Rev. Henry M.....	478
Gospel Autos and Workers in Front of Moody Bible Institute.....	546	Platt, Dr., B. M.	721
Gowman, Mrs. Carl Grant (nee Anna C. Duke-sher, '09) and her Bible woman at the Door of the Chapel in Tali, Yunnan.....	520	Platt's Clarence N. Interpreter.....	521
Graduating Class of August, 1914.....	58	Pope, Rev. H. W.	351
Graduating Class of December, 1914.....	324	Preston, George.....	54
Graduating Class of April, 1915.....	580	Rader, Rev. Paul.....	571
"Grandpa, show me where is our land.".....	485	Ramsay, Sir William M.....	743
Great Spread for Hungry Hearts.....	649	Reunion at Winona Lake, Ind., August, 1914.....	121
Gwennap Pit, Cornwall.....	545	Rosie, Miss A.	354
Hamilton, John S.	261	Round Top, East Northfield, Mass.	356
Hill of Samaria—The Colonnade Ruins—(Dr. Evans Standing).....	149	"Round Top" Another View et.	359
Holley, Dr. and Faculty of the Albany Bible and Manual Training Institute.....	681	Sankey, Ira D.	186
Horse Guards, Whitehall, London.....	83	Schumacher, Miss Agnes.....	756
Huss, John, in the Pulpit of Bethlehem Chapel, Prague.....	683	Scofield, Rev. C. I., D. D.....	647
India Prayer Band.....	647	Shober, Vance S.	185
Jaffa Gate—Jerusalem.....	150	Some Former M. B. I. Students now at Maryville College.....	186
Kimura Speaking to Japanese on the Pacific Coast.....	797	Some Institute Students Who Earn Their Way Working in a Restaurant.....	760
Kratzig, Henry H.	716	Some of the Visitors to the Jubilee Conference of The China Inland Mission.....	55
Lane, Henry J. and Thomas, A. J. C.....	384	Street Meeting of New Covenant Mission, Pittsburgh.....	432
Memorial Stone (John Huss).....	686	Students and some members of Faculty and Business Staff in Lecture Hall, Founder's Day, (Feb. 5, 1915),.....	679
Miles, Arthur M.	350	Students in Carpentry (at Albany, Ga.).....	768
Moody, D. L. Preaching.....	354	Sunday, "Billy," at Home.....	584
Moody, Home at Northfield.....	360	Taking the Gospel in Print to the People.....	61
Moody, Mr. "Had a little black team of horses".....	351	Three Members of First Graduating Class, Evening Department.....	351
Moorhouse, Henry.....	648	Torrey, Rev. R. A., D. D.	358
Moses, Jestia A.	151	Towner, D. B.	311
Mt. of Olives and Gethsemane and Valley of Kedron.....	268	Unoccupied Field—Portuguese Territory.....	267
Muir, John R. and Family.....	349	Xenia, M. B. I. Students at.....	509
Munhall, L. W., D. D.	355	Warren, E. K.	228
Northfield Seminary, from West Side of Connecticut River.....		Whitefield, George.....	229
		Whitefield Washing.....

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

Continuing THE INSTITUTE TIE.
Published on the first of each month by
The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

JAMES M. GRAY, Editor.
J. H. RALSTON, Associate Editor.
S. A. WOODRUFF, Publishing Agent.

To Canada, $1.25. To other foreign countries, $1.86 (5s, 7d). Remittances should be sent by bank draft or postal or express money order, payable to The Christian Workers Magazine. Personal checks must be accompanied with 10 cents additional for exchange.

Change of Address—In sending notice of change of address, give both old and new addresses, and at least fifteen days before the first of the month.

The Wrapper—Indicates the time of expiration of your subscription. Please renew promptly.

Communications should be addressed to
THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE
153-163 Institute Place, Chicago.

Entered as Second-Class Matter, Oct. 7, 1910, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Where to Get What You Want

Advertising under this heading 10 cents
a line. Count seven words to a line

FLORIDA EVERGLADES—RICHEST LAND ON earth. Free booklet. Justin Bare & Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

WANTED: HOLINESS, PENTACOSTAL AND PURITY Magazines. Warren Story, 120 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.

FOR UNION EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS WRITE Floyd John Evans Party, 136 W. Lake St., Chicago, Illinois.

SONG—"GOD SAVES ETERNALLY," SHEET music, 15c per copy, postpaid. Address, Franklin Babb, Lee's Creek, Ohio.

EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS, UNION OR INDIVIDUAL Churches. Excellent testimonials. Rev. Joseph C. Ludgate, Wheaton, Ill.

A WARNING TO WORLDLY CHRISTIANS, BY LAIC (The Church Tramp). By mail Five Cents. Alliance News, Birmingham, Mich.

SEVENTH DAY ADVENTISM A FALSE SYSTEM—Ten cents per copy, postpaid; special rates for quantities. Wm. Sickels, Beaumont, Calif.

POSITIVE PROOF FROM OLDEST RECORDS THAT John baptized by Sprinkling. 68 pp. book, 16cts. Mahaffy Publishers, Batesburg, S. C.

TYPEWRITER BARGAIN—SLIGHTLY USED NO. 7 Blickensderfer for sale—fine condition. Only $14.00. G. Steidle, 3123 Rhodes Ave., Chicago, Ill.

HALF-TONE ENGRAVINGS AND ELECTROTYPES. Jos. H. Barnett & Co., 508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago. Phone Har. 1389. Mail orders promptly filled.

AN EXPERT PIANIST DESIRES WORK WITH AN Evangelist. Best references furnished and satisfaction guaranteed. Ethel L. McCurdy, McLean, Texas.

PRINTED PENCILS FOR CHURCH AND SCHOOL Work or Business. Great "pulling" medium! A Stamp brings samples. Grabill & Co., Lancaster, Pa.

"THE LORD'S RETURN," BY SILVER. ONLY $1.00. A great history, long awaited. Highly endorsed. (Revels.) Order of Bible Institute Colportage Ass'n.

FOR SALE—I HAVE A NO. 6 REMINGTON TYPE-writer in good condition. Will sacrifice for $14.50. Cost $100.00. Ben Samuelson, 219 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

WANTED—EVANGELISTIC MUSICAL DIRECTOR desires to associate with LIVE WIRE Evangelist. Address communications to (Director) care C. W. Magazine.

VOICE LESSONS—12 SYSTEMATIC STUDIES IN tone production, "Open Throat Method"; mailed on receipt of $1. A Francke, 61 Auditorium Bldg., Dept. C, Chicago.

BARGAINS IN BLACKBOARDS. COLLECTION Plates, Single and Duplex Envelopes, Individual Communion Trays. American Blackboard Co., Gay Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED—YOUNG LADY WITH GOOD VOICE AS singer and director of church choir. (Summer resort in Michigan.) Address: "Singer," care of the Christian Workers Magazine.

HARRY HOUTZ, BARITONE SOLOIST AND CHOR-ister, am now open for engagements, satisfactory references furnished. Will help pastors or join good evangelist. 1223 Market St., Berwick, Pa.

EVANGELISTS, STUDENTS, PREACHERS NEED the "BLICK" portable typewriter. Like new. Only $15.00. Factory guaranteed. Leon B. Mayer, Student Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

UNION EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS—A BOOKLET on how to arrange for them, by W. F. Shearer, evangelist. Mailed free upon request. Address W. F. Shearer, Angola, Indiana.

STRONG EVANGELIST, WHO IS ALSO A GOOD singer, now open for evangelistic engagements, union or single. For dates and information, address P. J. W., care of Christian Workers Magazine.

"THE WORLD'S SATURDAY NIGHT"—A LECTURE on the second coming of Christ—46 pp., 10 cents; Also "Down Grade," 57 pp., 10 cents; These are good. Address the author, D. R. Raiser, Tiffin, Ohio.

SHEARER AND FRASER EVANGELISTIC PARTY is open for engagements in Union Evangelistic meetings for season 1915-16. Will consider calls in towns of 500 to 2,000. Over 6,000 people led to Christ in Shearer meetings. For dates address W. F. Shearer, Angola, Ind.

DO YOU WISH A REAL REVIVAL IN YOUR church and in your community? Let me help you! Open dates in October and November. No financial burden. References gladly furnished. Write early. Prepare early. Address: Rev. S. R. Sheriff, 1231 6th Ave., Huntington, W. Va.

I WILL HELP PASTORS RAISE SPECIAL FUNDS for missions (foreign or home) giving lecture on India, where I spent two years in travel. Terms: Entertainment and small donation for traveling expenses. Will also help in evangelistic preaching. Address R. B., care Christian Workers Magazine.

WANTED—BY AN EXPERIENCED CHORUS DIRECTOR and baritone soloist, position in church where highest capability will count. Teacher of voice and piano. Address F. M. H., care Christian Workers Magazine.

FEATHER FLOWERS FROM GOOSE FEATHERS make fine bouquets for the home. Twenty kinds in all colors. Nothing like them except the natural ones. A rose postpaid for 25c. De Witt Sisters, Battle Creek, Mich.

EVANGELIST—MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE AND Seminary graduate—strong preacher—reliable and successful, has some open dates (Union or Denominational) for fall and winter. Address G. A. S., care of Christian Workers Magazine.

EVANGELISTIC PASTOR ABOUT TO GIVE FULL time to evangelistic work desires engagements—
with or without chorister—early correspondence invited for meetings. Address Pastor-Evangelist, care
Christian Workers Magazine.

THE FRAZIER EVANGELISTIC PARTY, CONSISTing of four members, is ready for engagements.
Jacob A. Frazier of Winchester, Ind., the evangelist.
Good references can be furnished. Terms reasonable.
Union campaigns preferred.

J. O. DONER—GOSPEL SINGER AND PERSONAL worker. Mrs. Doner, pianist. Now open for dates for the fall of 1915 and spring 1916. Have experience in church and tabernacle work. Write for references, 13016 Euclid Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

"GIPSY" SIMON SMITH, EVANGELIST, FORMERly of London City Mission, (cousin of the famous Gipsy), now preaching and singing to increasing crowds, will conduct ten day missions; Address: 680
Runnymede Rd., Toronto, Canada.

THE CHARLES MUNDELL EVANGELISTIC PARTY is open for correspondence in regard to revival campaigns anywhere in the United States. References, terms, and plans will be cheerfully sent upon request.
Address P. O. Box 223, Grand Saline, Texas.

UNION EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS AFFORD THE best means of reaching the whole community for Christ. Plans and dates readily furnished by Pease
Evangelistic Party, 153 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

G. E. VINAROFF—SINGER—WILL BE OPEN FOR engagements August 10 to October 1—assist pastors, or evangelist. Address 163 Institute Place, Chicago.

THE REVELATION—A STUDENTS' HANDBOOK.
Just off the press. A sane, clear exposition of this interesting book by Mrs. Iva D. Vannart. Especially adapted for devotional or class study. Cloth bound,
$0.75 per copy, postpaid. CO-OPERATIVE BOOK-STORE, 1754 Washington Blvd., CHICAGO.

MIDDY BLOUSES—$1.00—TAILOR—MADE-TO-ORder—U. S. style—red watch mark on shoulder—spotless white—launder beautifully. I make these myself. Send bust, hip and height measurements.
Postpaid anywhere for $1.00. J. A. Knabb, 321-323
Washington Ave., Citizen's Bank Bldg., Bremerton, Wash.

WANTED—DONATIONS OF $1 AND UP TO HELP build a new church in a frontier town where a revival has swept the community and no building large enough to hold services. A good opportunity to do home missionary work. It is an urgent call. Help us. Send donations to Rev. J. J. Fleming, Calhan, Colo.

WANTED—MEN AND WOMEN EVERYWHERE.
Government Jobs. $70 month. Short hours. Vacantions. Rapid advancement. Steady work. Many appointments during Summer and Fall. Common education sufficient. Full unnecessary. Write immediately for list of positions now obtainable. Franklin Institute, Dept. A. 122, Rochester, N. Y.

MEN AND WOMEN, BOYS AND GIRLS, WANTED
as representatives for the Christian Workers Magazine in every church and town. Liberal commission allowed on all orders. Whether you wish to take subscriptions to make money, or only to help us along, send us your name at once. Agents Dept., Christian Workers Magazine, Chicago, Ill.

CHURCH WORKERS—LADIES' AID AND OTHER societies—you can help your church by writing for our system to raise funds without canvassing. It has worked wonders with many churches. Take the initiative for your church and write at once to receive free premium and system. No charge made for same.
THE ELECTRO CLEANALL MFG. CO., CLEVEL-AND, OHIO.

WHO WILL CONTRIBUTE TO SEND THE CHRIStian Workers Magazine to the Y. M. C. A. reading rooms in the training camps for soldiers going to the war? Many of the young men are confessing Christ and will appreciate this magazine as a help to them. Send gifts, any amount, to The Christian Workers Magazine, 163 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

HEART AND LIFE SONGS—A NEW, HIGH-GRADE
Collection of over 160 sweet songs of salvation.
Contains ALL of Evangelist George Bennard's songs, such as "The Old Rugged Cross," "Jesus Is Dearer Than All," etc. Choruses, hymns, solos, duets. Just what you are looking for. Limp cloth, $0.20 per copy, postpaid. INSTITUTE PRESS, 1754 Washington Blvd.,
CHICAGO.

SEND FOR FREE CIRCULAR OF OUR ACCIDENT and health policy. $7.50 a year buys our Accident and Health Policy, which pays $3,500 for loss of life or serious dismemberment; increasing 10 per cent a year until 50 per cent has been added, but no increase in cost. Also provides weekly benefits for loss of time, $20 to $40 a week; hospital benefits, also emergency relief fund of $100, if sick or hurt away from home.
Company in business more than 20 years; assets more than $1,000,000. Details on request. Chas. A. Jamison, General Agent, 805 Fletcher Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

POSITION WANTED—WOMAN STENOGRAPHER, reliable, efficient, conscientious worker, eight years experience, desires a position, permanent or substitute, in or out of Chicago. Address F. A. E., care of Christian Workers Magazine.

SECOND HAND BOOKS

Select stock, fine condition; also new books of all publishers; special prices; catalog free.

Hays, Cushman Co., 201 Athenaeum Bldg., Chicago

Our Free Distribu- tion Fund

We acknowledge, with thanks, several gifts the past month, to send The Christian Workers Magazine to missionaries (foreign), and to workers in needy fields where their salaries are so small they must deny themselves reading matter. Also one gift to send magazines to the Y. M. C. A. camp headquarters for soldiers preparing for service in Europe. The boys take the magazines to their tents to read, and appreciate them very much, as many of them are new converts. We also have been enabled to send the magazine to some who could not afford it owing to straitened circumstances. Surely the Lord is watching over this little fund. May it grow to help us widen this ministry. Gifts of any amount will be applied as the sender desires. Address

The Christian Workers
Magazine

163 Institute Place, Chicago

Songs for Service

Another Great Rodeheaver Songbook

The foremost factor, the most dynamic force in the evangelistic movements of the present day is "Billy" Sunday and the "Billy" Sunday campaigns. High amongst the compelling forces that contribute to the great successes of these campaigns is the marvelous singing, in which tens of thousands of people led by mammoth choirs under the direction of Mr. Homer A. Rodeheaver peal forth the old Gospel Story in volume and grandeur never before heard by mortal ear.

As has always been the case in the history of great evangelistic movements, the "Billy" Sunday campaigns have brought to the fore a new and immensely popular class of gospel songs—in this case they are popularly known as "the Billy Sunday songs." These popular and very effective songs are the product of The Rodeheaver Company. Many of them were in our two previous great books—"Great Revival Hymns" and "Great Revival Hymns No. 2." Nearly two million copies of these two books have been sold and the demand for them is unabated. And now comes a new and, we fully believe, greater Rodeheaver songbook—which contains the best of these popular favorites and in addition contains a large number of new songs that have been thoroughly tested in the Sunday campaigns and elsewhere, but as yet have not appeared in any other book. There is not a bit of deadwood in the whole book. There are very few pieces (outside the old hymn section) on which the copyright is more than a few years old. There is a bunch of real, live, vigorous evangelistic music between its covers such as never before has been gathered within the limits of one book.

Songs for Service

This great new songbook is the joint work of CHAS. H. GABRIEL and HOMER A. RODEHEAVER. The former is the greatest living composer of gospel songs and the latter's connection with the Sunday campaigns enables him to learn unerringly just what songs are most useful to the masses. The result of their labors is the most useful, the most comprehensive, the most effective gospel songbook yet compiled.

But—don't take our word for it. Apply at once for a copy of SONGS FOR SERVICE for FREE EXAMINATION. Round note edition now ready. Shaped note edition ready August 1st. Just drop us a card saying that you want a copy for 15 days' examination; that you will return it in good condition at the end of that time if you do not wish to retain it; or, if you wish to retain it, you will promptly remit the price—35c for cloth-bound, 25c for limp cloth, 20c for manila. Be sure to state which binding you desire to examine.

Songs For Service Facts in a Nutshell

288 pages, printed from new plates, on better-than-usual paper, and very attractively bound, the cloth edition in special made-to-order cloth.

A department of Children's Songs.

A department of Men's Songs.

A department of Chorus Selections.

A department of Invitation Hymns.

A department of Devotional Hymns.

A fine selection of Devotional Readings.

All the old favorites of the "Billy" Sunday campaigns.

Dozens of new songs that have been tested in the "Billy" Sunday campaigns, that have been received with great enthusiasm and that have as yet never appeared in any book.

ORCHESTRATED FOR TWELVE INSTRUMENTS.

SHAPED NOTE EDITION
READY
AUGUST 1ST.

440 South
Dearborn St.
CHICAGO

THE RODEHEAVER ROC
GOSPEL MUSIC CO.

46 North
Twelfth St.
PHILADELPHIA

LEVEL
ONE

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

Vol. XVII

DECEMBER, 1916

No. 4

Sup

GOOD-BYE OLD YEAR!

GOOD-BYE FOR AYE!

'Tis in my heart to speak of thee as "Friend,"
To thank thee for the riches of thy days,
For all the golden light which thou didst send
That glistens still in shadow and in haze.
Not always did thy face wear smiles, 'tis true;
And fickle, sometimes cruel, wast thou not?
But God's transforming grace, the whole way through,
Has made thy worst but blessings in my lot.
The flower thou didst seem to pluck too soon,
The love thou didst so ruthless take away,
Are immortelles where glows an undimmed noon;
They still are mine, and I am safe, and they.

—William Hay

10 CENTS A COPY

$1.00 A YEAR

JAMES M. GRAY
EDITOR

J. H. RALSTON
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

"The West Point of Christian Service"

Founded in 1886

by D. L. Moody

The Moody Bible Institute

appeals for the financial support of the Christian people on the ground that it is:

1st Evangelical Dr. Francis L. Patton, former president of Princeton Seminary, has said:—"The Institute is doing a work of the deepest importance in the sphere of religious experience. Others may be raising questions as to how or where we got our Bible. Blessed be God, there is one place where they read the Bible as the word of God."

2nd Evangelistic The late Dr. D. S. Gregory, Editor of the Bible Student & Teacher, once said: "The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago most fully embodies the spirit and aims of the noted Evangelist. * * * * * The Institute has not lost the Evangelistic note that Mr. Moody gave it."

3rd Missionary Mr. Charles G. Trumbull, Editor of the Sunday School Times, has written: "There is a work in Chicago that is being used of God in a marvelous way to answer this cry for help by carrying the fullness of the Salvation that is in Christ to lives throughout the world. It was founded by God's man, D. L. Moody, and it bears his name as The Moody Bible Institute. Few if any institutions in the world today, stand more blessedly and faithfully for the practical training of workers for the carrying of Good News out into the needy life of a needy world, than does the Moody Bible Institute." (754 have gone to foreign Mission Fields.

4th Efficient Bishop H. B. Hartzler, Editor of "The Evangelical," also has said: "The Moody Men who come back to us for service in the ministry always bear a distinctive character of efficiency, and they know what to do with the old Book."

At this season of the year which commemorates the giving of God's greatest Gift to men, may we not expect and receive a gift from you which shall be used in making the Gift of Eternal Life known to all men? Whether large or small, it will be appreciated and faithfully used in the King's Business. Please send your remittance to

THE MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE

153 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

WE now come to the last month of the old year. Many things which we intended to do this year will need to be done this month, or the New Year will find us with promises and good intentions unfulfilled.

Among the good intentions, we believe, of many readers of The Christian Workers Magazine, has been that of making a contribution toward the work of the Moody Bible Institute, in providing free training to men and women for Christian Service in home and foreign fields. But thus far it has not been done. "Procrastination is the thief of time;" it is also a thief of good intentions. Why not carry out that good intention of yours just now and, before you lay the magazine down, decide that now is the time to send a check or money order to the Institute to enable the noble work begun by D. L. Moody thirty years ago, to be maintained or enlarged? The gifts of many, whether large or small, bring an added blessing, both to the Institute and those who give.

Please Keep in Mind that there are at present over 1000 students attending the Day and Evening Classes of the Institute who are receiving instruction without any charge for tuition but depending on the Lord's Stewards to supply the financial needs. Could you see them, we know you would respond to the extent of your ability. Will you not help to answer their prayers by responding to this appeal at this time?

Please Respond by Using This Form

THE MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE
153 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

Date.....

Gentlemen: Enclosed find..... Dollars to be used in the training of men and women for Christian Service in home and foreign fields.

Name.....

Address

Fourth Annual Christmas Sale

at less than half price of this superb, self-pronouncing, India Paper

Bible

This is only the fourth time in the 50 years' history of the S. S. Scranton Co., known everywhere as the leader in reduced prices and phenomenal bargains in standard religious books, that we are able to present such extraordinary Bible value.

These Bibles are made in America which absolutely insures immediate or Christmas delivery.

This India Paper Bagster Bible

Regular List Price $8.00Our Price $3.95

Delivered Postpaid

Size
of India
Paper
Bible $5\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{1}{2} \times \frac{7}{8}$ ins.

is about half the weight, thickness, and bulk of the ordinary paper edition. The India paper used in these genuine Bagster Bibles is the costliest, thinnest, the whitest, the toughest, the most opaque that the world's best mills can produce. It has nearly 1,200 pages, including a complete Concordance, References, colored maps so indispensable to Teachers, Pastors, Superintendents, Bible Students, Evangelists, and Christian Workers generally, but is only seven-eighths of an inch thick and weighs only 19 ounces. Its superb silk sewn, leather lined Genuine Morocco leather binding, and its luminous red under gold edges make it not only exquisitely beautiful, but it is protected by its

This shows the beautiful clear type in exact size.

19 1 K. 8. 15

20 De. 27. 15;

Ne. 8. 6;

1 Co. 14.

15

21 2 Ch. 1. 8.

13

d in the morning and in the evening

22 Ex. 29. 38;

Nu. 28. 3, 4

CHAPTER 17.

355

NOW¹ it came to pass, as Dā'vid sat in his house, that Dā'vid said to Nā'than the prophet, Lo, I dwell in an house of cedars, but the ark of the covenant of the LORD remaineth under curtains.

2 Then² Nā'than said unto Dā'vid, Do all that is in thine heart; for God is with thee.

3 And it came to pass the same night, that the word of God came because of which we can and do absolutely guarantee the binding not to break or crease, and to outwear any other.

PATENTED UNBREAKABLE BACK

A Royal Christmas Gift for Scholar, Teacher, Pastor, Superintendent, or Friend that will not only delight the recipient, but will be a lifelong credit to the giver

Of Supreme Importance

This Genuine Bagster Bible must not be confounded with the cheap imitations, claimed to be printed on "thin" paper or "Bible" paper, and bound in so-called "leather." "Thin" paper and "Bible" paper are not the expensive INDIA paper on which this genuine Bagster Bible is printed. The edition is limited and only when orders are sent in promptly can we guarantee delivery before Christmas. Money cheerfully refunded and delivery charges paid both ways if you do not agree that this is the most extraordinary Bible value you ever saw.

NOTE—For 50 cents additional we will furnish our Thumb Index Edition and stamp name in pure gold on cover

THE S. S. SCRANTON CO.

93 Trumbull St.

HARTFORD, CONN.

THE Christian Workers Magazine

Continuing THE INSTITUTE TIE

New Series, Vol. XVII

December, 1916

No. 4

Editorial Notes: Cut from the Loaf; The Gospel Vs. Religion; Making Better Boys; She Neglected to Sign It; Getting Ahead of Munsterberg; Bishop Cheney.....	261
"Who Is Jesus Christ?".....	A Christmas Editorial..... 263
Topics for the Week of Prayer	264
Some Thoughts on Predestination	Benjamin B. Warfield..... 265
How Much Are You Giving?	Fred L. Rosemond..... 268
To His Friends Upon His Birthday (Poem).....	J. A. Richards..... 270
Anti-Christian "Vagabonds"—A Christmas Meditation	A. C. Dixon..... 271
The Two Brothers, or the Carnal Vs. the Spiritual Mind.....	Mrs. George Soltau..... 272
God and One Man	Henry W. Adams..... 274
A Remarkable Christian—A Story of an English Farmer.....	275
Prophecy and the Lord's Return	L. W. Gosnell
The Laymens Commentary on the Old and New Testaments	James M. Gray..... 279
Sunday-school Department:
Exposition of the International Lessons	P. B. Fitzwater..... 282
Practical and Doctrinal Applications of the Lessons.....	R. M. Russell..... 286
Sunday-school Problems	E. O. Sellers..... 289
Growing Old (Poem)	290
For Sermon and Scrap Book	William Norton
The Gospel in the World	John R. Riebe..... 294
Notes and Suggestions	J. H. Ralston..... 296
The Evangelistic Field	S. A. Woodruff..... 298
Book Notices	303
The Moody Bible Institute	S. A. Woodruff
The Bible Institute Colportage Association	314

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE: $1.00 a year to any address in the United States or its possessions, or in Mexico. To Canada, $1.25. To other foreign countries, $1.36 (5s. 7d). 10 cents a copy. Remittances should be sent by bank draft, or postal or express money order.

Advertising Rates, 15 Cents a Line.

Do not make checks or money orders payable to individuals, but to

The Christian Workers Magazine

Publication Office: Mount Morris, Ill.

Chicago Office: 153-163 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

Copyright, 1916, by The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

MAKE THIS A HAPPIER CHRISTMAS

By giving BOOKS which have a practical value—books which outlive the mere gift and characterize the giver.

- When the Blind Saw New, 1916. By David de Forest Burrell. With illustrations by R. E. Todhunter. A blind beggalad on the Bethlehem road and his friend, one of the shepherds, set the scenes for the beautifully told and exquisitely arranged Christmas narrative. A jacket, appropriately worded, carries the gift sentiment and takes the place of a card. 16mo. Art boards. Price, net. .50
- Miss Phena New, 1916. By Flora Swetnam. With illustrations by Albert Matzke. Miss Phena is one of those whole-souled individuals who make you wish the whole world was made up of just such people. A book for boys and girls. 12mo. Cloth. Price, net. 1.00
- Letters from the Dominion New, 1916. By David de Forest Burrell. The tremendous questions which, unless a remedy is produced, will shake the foundations of the Churches in our land today. 12mo. Cloth. Frontispiece. Price, net. 1.25
- Paul the Preacher New, 1916. By John L. Rosser, A.B., Th.M. An entirely new presentation of Paul which deals with the actual preaching of the great Apostle, including his preparation and the results of his message. With proof citations. 12mo. Cloth. Price, net. .60
- The Master Preacher:
A Study of the Homiletics of Jesus. By Albert Richmond Bond, A. M., D. D. Introduction by Edward Charles Dargan, D. D., LL. D. Cloth. 320 pages. Net. .75
- Elijah the Tishbite
By F. W. Krummacker, D. D. Black leatherette binding. 458 pages. Price, Net. .35
- Bible Reader's Guide
By F. S. Schenck, D. D. Introductory chapter on How to Study the Bible by D. L. Moody. 340 pages. Clear type on thin Bible paper. Black leatherette binding. Net. .35
- Life of St. Paul
By Rev. James Stalker, D. D. 12mo. Student's Edition. 160 pages. Map frontispiece. Net. .60
- Harmony of the Gospels
In the words of the American Standard Edition, and Outline of the Life of Christ. By Rev. John H. Kerr, D. D. Cloth. 236 pages. Student's Edition. Uniform with Stalker's "Life of St. Paul." .60
- The Life of Christ
By Rev. James Stalker, D. D. Uniform with "Life of St. Paul." Cloth. 162 pages. Map frontispiece. Net. .60
- Bible Dictionary
(Revised Edition.) By Rev. W. W. Rand, D. D. Cloth. 720 pages. 348 illustrations. 11 maps in colors. (Postage extra averages 20 cents.) Net. 1.00
- The Life of Christ
By William Hanna, D. D., LL. D. New and Enlarged Edition, especially arranged for Bible Students in Twenty-five Outline Studies and Reading Courses, by Charles H. Morgan, Ph. D. Black flexible leatherette. 16 illustrations and 2 colored maps. 862 pages. Net. 1.00
- Cruden's Concordance
Art cloth. 3 columns to page. 561 pages. 1.00
- The Good News in Story and Song
(425,000 copies sold to date.) Containing the New Testament, 140 familiar Gospel Hymns with music, also Commandments, Creed, Responsive Readings, Order of Service, forms of prayer for various occasions and family record. 12mo., Cloth. 396 pages. .25
- The New Testament with Notes
Full explanations, helps and illustrations on every page like the Complete Self-Explaining Bible. Pocket edition. Only 11 ounces. French morocco. Price, Net. 1.08
- Bible Text Book
Combined with the Bible Student's Manual. Makes a new ideal collection of much sought for Bible information. 232 pages. Art Cloth. Price, Net. 1.00
- The Daily Pathway
By Margaret E. Sangster. Cloth. 270 pages. .30
- The Young Convert's Problems
And Their Solutions. By Rev. A. C. Dixon, D. D. Cloth. Price, Net. .25
- Look Alive!
By Amos R. Wells. Stories of some wide-awake young people. 168 pages. Cloth. Price, Net. .50
- Christianity's Challenge
By Herrick Johnson, D. D. 269 pages. .25
- Harmony of the Life of St. Paul
According to the Acts of the Apostles and the Pauline Epistles. By Rev. Frank J. Goodwin. Cloth. 240 pages. .60
- Soul-Winning Stories
By Rev. Louis Albert Banks, D. D. Cloth. 223 pages. Net. .50
- Sermons in Candles
By C. H. Spurgeon. Illustrated. 170 pages. .20
- Talks to Girls
By E. A. Hunter. Cloth, 12 mo. 157 pages. Price .50
- History of American Revivals
By Frank G. Beardsley, The beginning of present day methods. Cloth. 351 pages. Net. .50
- Religious Education and Public Schools
By George U. Wenner, D. D. 191 pages. Price, Net. .50
- John Ploughman's Talks
By Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Cloth. Illustrated. 246 pages. .30
- John Ploughman's Pictures
By Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Cloth. Illustrated. 232 pages. .30
- Where Heaven Touched the Earth
By Cortland Myers, D. D. Cloth. Colored Illustrations. 239 pages. Price, Net. 1.00
- The Seven Cardinal Virtues
By Rev. James Stalker, D. D. Cloth. 125 pages. .50
- Heart Life
By Rev. T. L. Cuyler, D. D. Frontispiece portrait of author. Cloth. 191 pages. .30
- Every Day
By Edgar Whitaker Work. An unusual arrangement of the Scriptures in their bearing upon daily life. 366 pages. Silk Cloth. A gift book. Price, net 1.25
- An Artisan Silksong on the Zambesi
By Rev. John MacConnachie, M. A. Illustrations. Cloth. 156 pages. The Life Story of William Thomson Waddell. Price, Net. .50
- Jerry McAuley:
An Apostle to the Lost. By Rev. R. M. Offord, LL. D. Seventh edition, revised and enlarged. 20 illustrations. Cloth. 304 pages. 1.00
- Story of John G. Paton;
Or, Thirty Years Among South Sea Cannibals. By Rev. James Paton, B. A. 304 pages. 1.00
- Life and Adventures of Jack Philip,
Rear-Admiral, U. S. N. By Edgar Stanton Maclay, A. M. Frontispiece. 288 pages. .75
- Journeying in the Land Where Jesus Lived
By Gerard B. F. Hallock, D. D. 35 illustrations. Cloth. 302 pages. 1.00
- Heathenism Under the Searchlight:
The Call of the Far East. By William Remfry Hunt, F. R. G. S. Illustrations from photographs. Cloth. 154 pages. Price, Net. .50

Five Christmas Envelope Booklets. All uniform in size but different designs.

How They Came to Bethlehem
A Christmas Vision
The Hermit's Christmas
By the Roadside
The Man Who Never Heard of Christmas

ALL FIVE
FOR 60c.
POSTPAID

Any of these books will be forwarded, postpaid, on receipt of price, and money will be refunded if for any reason you are not satisfied with the workmanship of a book and return it unread. Send today for 96-page Catalog

AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY,

107 Park Ave.,

NEW YORK

"THE DAINTIEST BOOK MADE." FITS THE UPPER VEST POCKET

The Holman Vest Pocket Pronouncing Testament

In leather binding and gold edges at a lower price than any cloth edition. Largest type in a book of this size.

The most popular Testament ever made.

Made in a great variety of bindings. With or without Psalms, on thin Bible and India papers. We recommend the Red Letter edition No. O13RL at 55 cents and Black Letter No. 2113 at 40 cents. Postage paid. Either book with Psalms, 10 cents extra. These books are bound in full leather, limp covers and pure gold edges.

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was 40c

50c

55c

65c

DO NOT FAIL TO OBTAIN A COPY OF THE

Holman Illustrated Vest Pocket Pronouncing New Testament

Containing a choice selection of Illustrations of Appropriate Subjects with Descriptive Explanations, printed on enameled paper, at a slight advance in price over the ordinary edition.

Ask for

No. 2814—French Morocco, limp, gold edges.....45c

No. 2815—French Morocco, divinity circuit, (Bible Binding), red under gold edges.....60c

These illustrations add very much to the value of the Testament in the minds of the young

45c

60c

THIRD EDITION IN TWO YEARS

The Holman India Paper Self-Pronouncing Family Bible

Printed on the finest India paper made. Size 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches, 13-16th of an inch thick, including covers. 950 pages. Weight, 39 ounces.

This Bible will appeal to the possessor of the large type India paper Encyclopedia Britannica, as it is approximately the size of one of the volumes.

Ask your Bookseller. If unable to supply, write to the publishers.

A. J. Holman Co., Philadelphia, Pa. Oldest American Bible Publishers

LIVING IS HIGHER!

Everything is going up. There seems to be no prospect of lower prices in the near future. We have not raised the price of The Christian Workers Magazine. The Executive Committee of The Moody Bible Institute has had under consideration the advisability of doing so, and the question must soon be decided.

In the meantime, kindly bear in mind that the money we receive for advertising in these pages, helps to a large extent to pay for the printing of the magazine. Your patronage of the advertisers is an indirect help to us, and we therefore suggest that when making purchases of books, etc., or donations at Christmas time, you give preference, as far as possible, to the advertisers in these pages.

Anyone wishing to contribute to missionary work, or special donations, and who may not know where to send such gifts, may send same to The Christian Workers Magazine, stating your desires for the use of such gifts, and we will forward them to such missions, institutions, or individuals, where we know money is needed, and designate it to be used for the furtherance of the Lord's work.

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

163 Institute Place

Chicago, Ill.

To All Readers of the Christian Workers Magazine

Have you a growing ambition to broaden your knowledge of the Sacred Word?

Will you confine your Bible study to the International Lessons in this wonderful Bible study year?

Or will you go deeper into the Fountain of Truth?

And better fit yourself for Christian service by sitting at the feet of the world's greatest teachers?

Will you spend ten or more minutes each day with the world's great scholars and recognized authorities?

Such a program, faithfully carried out, will transform you from a follower into a leader; will enable you to teach the great facts, truths and doctrines of the Word of God in a spirit and with an authority that will make your Christian service more telling, more inspiring, more helpful every day you live.

Spend a part of each day with the Bible study books announced on the opposite page; they are well described as "Matchless," "Indispensable," "Wonderful."

And December presents the last opportunity to secure them at present prices.

THIS is the Last Time these matchless books will ever be offered at Less than 1-3 of their former Prices

Your library is not complete without these splendid Bible study books.

The advancing cost of everything pertaining to bookmaking makes it absolutely necessary to discontinue the low prices. Christian Workers Magazine readers will therefore take advantage of this final opportunity before JANUARY 1, 1917.

Do you aspire to the utmost efficiency in the work of the Kingdom?

Would you fit yourself to be a leader, rather than a mere follower?

If so, let these wonderful books, than which there are none more authoritative, inspiring, and helpful in all sacred literature, reveal to you the Word of God and help you to attain power, influence, and usefulness among those entrusted to your teaching and your spiritual care.

Formerly $50.50
Now Only
$16

Cruden's Complete Concordance. The alphabet of Bible use. Even the riches of the Bible are half useless if you cannot tell where to find them. 756 pages. Former price, $1.50

Jameson, Fausset, and Brown's Commentary (2 vols.). Covers both Old and New Testaments, elucidating difficult passages, historical allusions, unfamiliar customs, and so on; a massive storehouse of authoritative but lucid notes, concise but pregnant. 380 pages. Former price, $9.

Smith's Dictionary of the Bible. A great standard classic, never superseded. All serious Bible users need this Smith only less than their Cruden. 1,024 pages, finely illustrated. Former price, $4.50.

Fausset's Critical and Expository Cyclopaedia. A masterpiece of compressed riches; 3,700 articles of enormous variety, condensed yet complete and thorough, handling both historical and expositional questions with the highest scholarship and grasp. 750 3-column pages, 600 illustrations. Former price, $5.

Kitto's Illustrated Bible History. A brilliant work of immense popularity, filling up the gaps in the Scripture narrative and completing it in a rounded historic unity to the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus. 735 2-column pages, 230 illustrations. Former price, $4.50.

Edersheim's Life and Times of Jesus the Messiah (2 vols.). A vivid portrait of the society, life, and intellectual and religious development of Christ's Palestine, to serve as a background for His own portrait; by a world-famous Christian Jewish scholar. 1,524 pages. Former price, $6.

Conybeare and Howson's Life and Epistles of Saint Paul. A splendid work of enduring popularity and authority; a lifelike picture of the great apostle and his work, an acute and illuminating commentary on his epistles, with a style at once full of fine scholarship and of literary charm. 917 pages; many fine illustrations, maps, charts, etc. Former price, $4.50.

Geikie's Hours with the Bible (4 vols.). Dr. Geikie has enriched these volumes with knowledge gathered through wide reading and study and through information obtained first hand—having traveled in Egypt, Syria, and throughout every nook and corner of the Holy Land. His graphic explanation enables every teacher, Bible student, and preacher to put the old truths in clear, fresh, and winning form. 2,110 pages, richly illustrated. Former price, $6.

Josephus' Complete Works. The priceless writings of the greatest Jewish leader and statesman in the generation after Christ: History and Antiquities of the Jews; the Roman-Jewish War, which stamped out the Jewish nationality in blood and fire, etc. 978 pages. Former price, $4.

Sanford's Concise Cyclopaedia of Religious Knowledge. A surprising treasury of information regarding Church and Bible History, Names, Places and Customs, Creeds and Sects, the early Church, Story of the Reformation, Young People's Societies, Cathedrals, Churches, etc. 985 pages, beautifully illustrated. Former price, $3.50.

Gilbert's 3,000 Selected Quotations. A gold mine to speakers and writers. Pithy and eloquent passages from the literature of all ages, with complete index of authors and subjects. Undenominational, but evangelical. 681 pages. Former price, $2.

Every book newly made and handsomely bound in cloth. Average size of volumes 9 3/8 x 6 3/8 x 1 3/4

MONTHLY PAYMENT PRICES

Complete Set, 16 Volumes,	$18.00
Choice of 12 "	15.00
Choice of 10 "	14.00
Choice of 8 "	12.00
Choice of 6 "	10.00
Choice of 4 "	8.00
Choice of 2 "	4.00

CASH PRICES

16 Volumes,	$16.00
12 "	13.00
10 "	12.00
8 "	10.00
6 "	8.00
4 "	6.00
2 "	3.50

Money cheerfully refunded if books are not entirely satisfactory.

HOW TO ORDER

On the Monthly Payment Plan we require $2.00 with order, and your promise to pay $1.00 monthly for sixteen months. Books forwarded on receipt of cash price or first instalment of $2.00. Purchaser pays freight or express charges. Those at remote points or in foreign countries desiring to prepay will send 30c. per volume to cover postage or express. Safe delivery guaranteed to any station in the country or to any mail point in the world. We will take back books that are not satisfactory in ten days after receipt and return money, deducting only the return transportation charges. As to our reliability, we refer you to the publisher of this paper, or to any commercial agency. Established 1866.

S. S. SCRANTON CO., Publishers, 93 Trumbull St., Hartford, Conn.

A Chance of a Lifetime

THE GREATEST COMMENTARY EVER PUBLISHED

Alexander Maclaren's Expositions of the Holy Scripture to be sold for a limited time only at the remarkably low price of $18^{.50}

The regular 25-volume, complete set with Index—that sells everywhere for $25.00. By a large purchase for cash from a dealer who was overstocked, I was fortunate in securing a few hundred sets of this wonderful work and now offer this stock until the last set is sold to cash customers for only $18.50 per set.

Think of it! You save $6.50 or 30% if you act quickly and take advantage of this extraordinary low offer on the most helpful and suggestive commentary on the market. Do not delay but order today, as this offer will not appear again in this magazine. Every set is guaranteed new and in perfect condition or money will be promptly refunded.

Every minister of the Gospel should own a set of Maclaren, the greatest Expository Preacher of his time. You will use this set constantly for in it you will find available material on nearly every text of the Bible.

It is illuminating, suggestive and helpful. Make no mistake. Send your order at once and be one of the fortunate to get this great bargain at $18.50. Thousands of sets have been sold for $25.00, the lowest price at which this work has ever been offered. Remember our guarantee. Each set is absolutely new and perfect in every respect and will be shipped promptly by freight upon receipt of my bargain price of $18.50.

Order from

FRANK E. BRAYTON

315 OLD COLONY BLDG.

CHICAGO, ILL.

THIS BEST OF ALL GIFTS

THE BIBLE-GIVING
CHRISTMAS PLAN

The movement which has been inaugurated among Christian people to make at least one of their gifts a Bible, in honor of Him for Whom the great festival has been named.

SENT FREE

ALL CHARGES PREPAID
FOR EXAMINATION

"INTERNATIONAL"

CLEAR NUTYPE TEACHERS' BIBLE SELF-PRONOUNCING

While the text of the Bible does not change, new methods of type-making have produced a type that is larger in size, more easily read and more restful to the eyes, for use in a book which is also more convenient in size and lighter in weight. The type used in this new Bible was moulded especially for the purpose. It is the largest, clearest type to be found in any Bible of like size.

THE ONE BIBLE THAT IS MOST LIKELY TO PLEASE EVERYBODY

In addition to the large clear type and convenient size, this Bible contains sixty thousand references in the center column; has the names of the books of the Bible printed on outer edge for quick reference; is Self-Pronouncing; has the most accurate, most usable aids to Bible study; and has seventeen colored maps.

NEW TYPE OF TEACHERS' AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY

All the aids (over 400 pages), including Complete Concordance, Subject Index, Dictionary, etc., etc., are under one Alphabetical Arrangement, instead of separate headings, as in the old type of Bible. These new helps are illustrated and are the only helps printed from black-face type, which makes them more readable and useful.

HANDSOMELY BOUND IN FLEXIBLE LEATHER

Printed on thin rag paper with jet black ink. Handsome flexible leather binding, with overlapping covers (like cut), red-under-gold edges, head-band, and purple ribbon marker, all combine to make it the finest, most practical of Bibles—the most pleasing of all gifts.

OUR SPECIAL LIMITED-TIME OFFER

This Bible will be delivered to you FREE, all charges prepaid. If it does not please you, return it at our expense. If it pleases you, remit SPECIAL PRICE, only $2.25. A Bible with more satisfactory contents could not be obtained if you paid $5.00 for it. Our special offer is made for a limited time only to get the Bible into the hands of those who will use it and recommend it to others. Fill in and mail coupon today. Prompt delivery assured.

YOUR PROTECTION

Sending money in advance in answer to Bible advertisements sometimes results in your getting Bibles in small type, inferior bindings, and out-of-date helps. Our offer to send this Bible subject to approval is your guarantee that it will prove all that we claim for it, that it offers exceptional value, and that we are sure it will please you.

Exact size 5½ by 8 inches. Each Bible packed in a HANDSOME DECORATED CHRISTMAS BOX

THE JOHN C. WINSTON CO.

Winston Building, PHILADELPHIA
Publishers and Manufacturers of "International"
Bibles—the Largest Line of Self-Pronouncing
Bibles in the World

SEND NO MONEY—MAIL THIS COUPON

THE JOHN C. WINSTON CO., Winston Bldg., PHILADELPHIA
Please send, all charges prepaid, the "International" Clear Nutype Teachers' Bible bound in flexible leather, with red-under-gold edges. If it pleases me, I will remit special price, $2.25.
If it does not please me, I will return it at your expense in 5 days.

Name _____ Address _____
Name on Bible in gold for 25c extra but lettered Bibles are not returnable.
XVIII

Appropriate Holiday Gifts for General Distribution

The "Keswick" Block Calendar for 1917

This beautiful Calendar contains an artistic board back with charming view lithographed in colors, and a block with bold dates and a choice portion of the Word of God for each day of the year on the left-hand side of the leaf; and a concise and deeply spiritual meditation thereon by such well-known writers as GEORGE MULLER, J. R. CALDWELL, C. H. SPURGEON, ANDREW MURRAY, DR. A. J. GORDON, DR. C. I. SCOFIELD, MRS. G. C. NEEDHAM and many other teachers of repute, on the right-hand side of the leaf. Blocks are supplied with patent metal fasteners to fasten to back. Below we give prices, securely wrapped.

One copy.....	$.40	$.45 postpaid
Two copies in one package.....	.80	.85 postpaid
Six copies in one package.....	2.25	2.35 postpaid
Twelve copies in one package.....	4.00	4.15 postpaid
Twenty-five copies in one package..	7.50	7.75 postpaid

We also have several other Calendars and Almanacs. Send for circular.

Sterling Pamphlets at Trifling Cost

We beg to call attention to the fact that we have a very fine line of choice Scriptural literature of which the following is but a very small portion. SEND FOR OUR FREE CATALOGUE listing full line including the works of Mauro, Neighbour, Pink, Haldeman and many other well-known writers. We especially desire to call your attention to the following pamphlets:

STRAIGHT PATHS. Alex. Marshall. Plain words concerning the New Birth, Assurance, the Two Natures, the Holy Spirit, Separation, the Church, etc., etc. New edition. 5c each; 25 copies for $1.00 postpaid.

SECRET SOCIETIES. Can a Christian belong to them and still honor Christ? Geo. L. Hunt. New edition, revised. 5c each, 50c per dozen, postpaid.

THE TRUE STORY OF THE CONVICT DANIEL MANN, or From the Gallows to the Glory. This is a remarkable Gospel booklet, and one which has been circulated by hundreds of thousands to the salvation of many. Very fascinating. Illustrated cover. 5c each. 25 copies for $1.00, postpaid.

THE MILLENNIUM. Arthur W. Pink. A very helpful treatise on the Kingdom. Written specially for young Bible students. 7 chapters taking up the Millennium in relation to Christ, the Church, Satan, Israel, etc. 5c each. By mail 6c.

THE GLORIES OF GRACE. R. E. Neighbour. Distinguishes between grace and works, magnifies the security of the saved, warns against Galatianism, and Antinomianism, and places the rewards of the righteous in their Scriptural position. Introduction by Dr. I. M. Haldeman. 10c each; $1 per doz., postpaid.

CHURCH AND STATE. C. F. Reitzel. Should a Christian take part in politics or does the Bible teach the doctrine of non-resistance? Illustrated cover. 5c each; 50c per dozen, postpaid.

Are you interested in beautiful SCRIPTURE-TEXT POST CARDS? If so we have just what you are looking for. Send for illustrated circulars giving full description with prices.

BIBLE TRUTH DEPOT, Publishers and Booksellers, SWENGEL, PA.

Others First at Christmas SEND A BOOK

Nibblings from a choice feast of spiritual, intellectual and interesting literature. Complete catalog gladly sent on request

THE COMING ONE

Rev. A. B. Simpson

Cloth $1.00

A book that foreshadows great events. Particularly timely and inspiring, it expresses the deepest longings of the heart for that which is the Christian's confidence and hope—our Lord's Return.

KNOWING THE SCRIPTURES

Dr. A. T. Pierson

Cloth $1.50

Comprising the epitome of half-a-century of Bible study and thought by this saintly and gifted mind. A volume that will help you in your daily readings.

THE OTHER SIDE OF EVOLUTION

Rev. Alexander Patterson

Cloth 60c

This work aids in sounding the death-knell of the already moribund evolution theory. Dr. Patterson demonstrates the impossibility of this fantasy in the purpose and design of God.

DAYS OF HEAVEN UPON EARTH

Rev. A. B. Simpson

Cloth $1.00

Three hundred and sixty-five daily readings—intimate, strengthening and uplifting communings with the heart of God. A book that is read and prized by thousands.

OUTLINE STUDIES IN CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE

Dr. Geo. P. Pardington

Cloth $1.50

A scholarly and exhaustive work on Christian Doctrine. Very highly commended by such teachers as Dr. W. H. Griffith Thomas, Dr. F. W. Farr, Dr. Robert M. Russell, Principal J. H. Allen, etc.

THE BIBLE: ITS STRUCTURE AND PURPOSE

John Urquhart

4 vols. } $4.00 the set
Cloth } $1.25 per vol.

A needful work in these last critical days. It stands solidly in defence of the "Impregnable rock of Holy Scripture." Skilful, comprehensive, convincing.

FOLLOW THOU ME

Eleanor B. Hatton

Cloth $1.00

A touching and beautiful narrative, in diary form, of the trials and difficulties experienced by the pastor of a wealthy and fashionable city church when he reaches out for the deeper Christian life. A book with a unique heart interest.

THE FIRST SOPRANO

Mary Hitchcock

Cloth 50c, postage 10c

Probably more widely known and read than any other recent work on the church of this Laodicean age. In the form of a most interesting and readable story, with a touch of romance, Miss Hitchcock distinguishes the wheat from the chaff in modern church life.

GREATER LIFE AND WORK OF CHRIST

Rev. Alexander Patterson

Cloth $1.25

A study that bridges the eternities, that sees the Eternal, Ever Present Christ—from before the foundation of the world to where He ever sitteth at the right hand of God. It is a timeless chronology of Christ.

UNTANGLING LIVE WIRES

Rev. W. W. Newberry

Cloth 50c, postage 10c

"The most sane work that I have ever read" is a recent opinion of this practical message on the many side-issues of the day which seek to entrap the unwary Christian. With tender hand Mr. Newberry straightens out the "wires" and leaves us with clear pathway to our God.

THE GOSPEL AND ITS MINISTRY

Sir Robert Anderson, K. C. B.

Cloth 50c, postage 10c

The author has succeeded in making clear the great Gospel truths—Faith, the Atonement, The Cross, etc.

CHUMS SAINNA'S PRAYER AROUND THE CAMPFIRE

Cloth 25c

Cloth 50c

Cloth 50c

Katharine Elise Chapman

Three stories that delight and interest the children—and even the older folk enjoy Miss Chapman's work. Based on incidents from real life and with Gospel truths simply and beautifully interwoven these messages reach the heart. Each story appeared with much success in our Sunday School papers.

THE LIFE OF PRAYER

Rev. A. B. Simpson

Cloth 50c, Postage 10c

This rich little book consists of a series of scriptural expositions on the different aspects of prayer. The book is very suggestive and abounds in illustrations from Scripture. One realizes that the author is a man of the secret.—Record of Christian Work.

CHRISTIAN ALLIANCE PUBLISHING CO.

692 Eighth Avenue

New York City

Writing That Is Different

WHEN ONE USES THE NEW

Multiplex Hammond Writing Machine

INSTANTLY INTERCHANGEABLE TYPE

In construction: The simplest of high grade machines.

It has a STANDARD for service and age not exceeded in the typewriter field.

It is light, and consequently portable.

There is an AUTOMATIC type-stroke which gives an even impression of the type irrespective of key-touch.

It has great range of work and therefore unusual adaptability. Paper of unlimited width can be accommodated.

IT IS THE ONLY TYPEWRITER WHICH WILL CARRY

TWO STYLES OF TYPE, or two to five different languages, carried on the machine AT ONCE.

"JUST TURN THE KNOB" and change instantly from Roman Type to Italics, or Miniature Roman, or our Beautiful Script Type, or from English to Greek, Russian, German, French, etc. Any other type or language can be substituted in a few seconds.

365 Styles, also Over 50 Languages to Select From.

A CATALOG for the asking—and gladly. Ask for Special Proposition.

The Hammond Typewriter Co.

568 East 69th Street, New York City, N. Y.

The Greatest Sermon Library in the World

JOIN THE SPECIAL CLUB

SAVE $7.00

Regular Price, $18.00
Club Price, 11.00

We are forming a Special Club of 500 Preachers and Bible students to whom we offer the great Sermon Bible (12 cloth volumes) for the special price of $11.00 (regular price $18.00). Just sign and mail the coupon below and we will forward the work, carriage prepaid. Examine it—use it—for five days. If satisfactory, send a first payment of only $1.00, balance ($10.00) to be paid $1.00 each month.

SEND NO MONEY NOW JUST MAIL THE COUPON
WE PAY CARRIAGE

If not satisfactory, return it at our expense. Over 152,000 volumes of this work already sold. The favorite among preachers and Bible students.

It contains 5,000 sermon outlines, more than 24,000 homiletical references, and includes quotations from the most eminent American and European pulpit leaders. It offers the preacher an inexhaustible supply of suggestion, illustration, and inspiration.

THE SERMON BIBLE

The aim of this vast work is to present the choicest, most helpful, and most comprehensive homiletic literature of the present generation, in readily accessible form, for the use of preachers, students, and all other religious workers.

FOUR VITAL FEATURES OF "THE SERMON BIBLE"

- I. Under each text a full outline is given of important sermons by eminent preachers. These sermons can be found elsewhere only in periodical manuscript form, and are hence practically inaccessible.
- II. Under each text are also given full outlines of sermons which have appeared in book form, but are not well known or easily obtained.
- III. Under each text will be also found references, or brief outlines of sermons which have appeared in well-known works, such as are likely to be in the preacher's library.
- IV. Under each text are also given full references, to theological treatises, commentaries, etc., where any help is given to the elucidation of the text.

NO MONEY REQUIRED Until You Have Inspected the Work and Decided to Keep It

Every member of the Special Club may test for himself each and every claim made in this announcement. If, for any reason, members are dissatisfied with the work after five days' critical examination, they are under no obligation to purchase it. If they are satisfied, they need send us only $1.00 within five days, and then $1.00 for ten months. Remember, we prepay carriage.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY, Pubs., New York

SERMON BIBLE CLUB ENROLMENT BLANK

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY, 354-360 Fourth Avenue, N.Y.

Gentlemen:—Please enroll me as a member of the SPECIAL 1915 CLUB for "The Sermon Bible," and send me, carriage prepaid, a set of the books. I agree to examine them within five (5) days of receipt, and to send you $1.00 if they prove satisfactory, paying the balance in ten (10) monthly instalments of $1.00 each. If unsatisfactory, I agree to notify you and hold the books subject to your order.

Ch. Wk. Mag. 12-16

Name.....

Date..... Address.....

BIBLE BARGAINS.

OUR BIG XMAS SPECIAL

Affords splendid opportunity for you to select an appropriate gift for any Christian relative or friend, young or old, or to replace your own worn-out, dirty Bible with a new, modern print, attractively bound Bible, at a very desirable saving. We bought more than 4,000 copies before the great advance in price; hence, we offer them at the following low prices.

This cut shows style of all the overlapping edge Bibles mentioned in this ad.

Most Complete Bible in the World

PAPER—Fine, white, thin Bible paper, durable.
BINDING—Genuine French Morocco with overlapping edges.
TYPE—Large, clear, self-pronouncing long primer.
ILLUSTRATIONS—32 of the world's greatest full page pictures in colors.
CHRIST'S WORDS are printed in red, very impressive.
HELPS—4,000 questions and answers, combination concordance, patent thumb index.
REFERENCES—40,000; seventeen maps; family record.
SIZE—Only $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{2} \times 1\frac{1}{2}$; weight less than three pounds.
PRICE—Sells by agents at $6.50. Our price, by express, $2.50
 (Or 25c extra for postage.)
 Name in gold, 25c extra. Patent thumb index free.

Our Ideal India Paper Bible

FOR TEACHER, PASTOR OR FRIEND

It is printed in long primer type.
 It is self-pronouncing.
 It is bound in Persian Morocco.
 It is silk sewed and guaranteed not to break in the back.
 It is leather lined to edge.
 It is printed on fine white, opaque India paper.
 It has references, concordance, maps.
 It has silk head-band and marker.
 It is $8\frac{1}{2} \times 5\frac{1}{2}$ inches.
 It weighs only 22 ounces.
 It is only 15-16 of an inch thick.
 It is sold regularly at $7.50.
 It's special price $5.00
 postpaid.....
 It will last a lifetime, ordinary use.
 Improved thumb index, 35c extra.
 Name lettered in gold, 25c extra.

Remember this is a
Genuine BAGSTER BIBLE
 Same style in Oxford make at the same price.

EXTRA SPECIAL

Same style contents and quality as above,
 Ideal Bible with the black face minion type, size $5\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{1}{2}$, weight 20 oz. Regular agents' price \$7 or \$8. Our special \$3.50
 price.....

Greatest value ever offered in a Bible.

Small Pocket Bible

Size $3\frac{1}{2} \times 5\frac{1}{2} \times \frac{1}{2}$ of an inch thick; weight 8 oz.
 Morocco binding, overlapping edges. Clean, readable pearl type, gold edges. Stamped in gold on side and back. Patent open flat binding that will never break in the back. Regular price $1.20

Our special price, postpaid..... 90c

Same style of Bible, Oxford India paper, weight only 6 ounces. Net price $1.25.
 Your name in gold, 25c extra.

Genuine Leather Binding FLEXIBLE

The Greatest Value
 Ever offered at the price.

ONLY $1.00

and 20c to pay packing, postage and mailing.

Size of Bible $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$ in.
 Chapter headings on outside corner of pages, making
 Bible self-indexed.

SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

Bound in Genuine Seal Grain
 Leather with overlapping covers; titles in gold, round corners, red under gold edges, silk headbands and purple silk marker.

The type is large, clear, sharp and black, and is printed on a good quality of paper. EASY TO READ. Containing Concordance,
 4,000 Questions and Answers, 16 Colored Plates,
 Maps of Bible Lands in Color,
 Etc. Each Bible in a neat box with elastic band.

Old Folks' Bible

Largest type used in convenient size Bible. Small pica type.
 It takes the place of a family
 Bible. Contains family record beautifully printed. Bound in splendid quality, flexible mor-occotal, stamped in gold. Guaranteed not to break in back.
 Regular agents' price, $3.50.
 Our price, $2.25
 postpaid.....

Your name in gold, 25c

Testaments

Beautiful extra quality leather bound, self-pronouncing, vest pocket, clear print, regular price, 70c; our price, 40c; $4.00 per dozen. Same as above with overlapping edges and illustrations. Special price 50c; $5.00 per dozen. Old folks' Testament and Psalms, extra large type, convenient size. Special net prices, cloth binding, postpaid, 75c; morocco binding, postpaid, $1.25. We have small, cloth bound Testaments, 15c, 25c.

India Paper Pocket Reference Bible

Beautiful quality white opaque paper, India. Size $4\frac{1}{2} \times 6\frac{1}{2} \times \frac{1}{2}$, of an inch thick; weight 12 ounces. Splendid Morocco binding, overlapping edges, silk headbands and marker, stamped in gold. Just the Bible for young people and ministers to carry in pocket. It contains references and maps only, minion type. \$2.50 post-
 Index 35c extra. Name in gold 25c extra. $2 paid.

Same as above, with Concordance, $2.50.

BIBLES, TESTAMENTS, RELIGIOUS BOOKS, MOTTOES

Write for description and prices

BIBLE DEPT.,

Pentecostal Publishing Co.

Louisville, Kentucky

Largest Wholesale and Retail Bible Dealers in the South

The Secret of Fast Typewriting

New method enables anyone to write 80 to 100 words a minute without mistakes. It's all in the FINGERS!

nimble enough. This new easy method overcomes this at once—develops finger strength and flexibility by simple, easy exercises away from the machine—trains the fingers beforehand for their work on the machine—and the results border on the miraculous.

Doubles and Trebles Salaries

Now, for the first time, has an idea been discovered which puts speed—great speed and accuracy—within the reach of every typewriter user. Almost overnight it has revolutionized the whole typewriting situation.

Stenographers who formerly never exceeded 30 to 40 words a minute are writing 80 to 100 words with less effort and with far greater accuracy than ever before. And their salaries have jumped from a meagre $8 to $15 per week to $30, $40 and even $50.

Amazingly Easy for Anyone—Only 10 Lessons

No matter how low your present speed, no matter how labored your efforts, no matter how weak or clumsy your fingers now seem to be, no matter how little or how much experience you have had, no matter what other courses you have taken, this new method will positively bring you the desired results, as thousands of stenographers—and ministers, lawyers, reporters, and writers as well—have already proven. There are only 10 lessons amazingly easy and fascinating. A few short weeks of spare time study is all that is required and the work is simply fascinating.

Trained Fingers—The New Way

European music teachers, when training their pupils for the piano, invariably give special finger exercises. This is because the untrained way is not the right way. The best results cannot be obtained—the fingers simply cannot be used correctly—unless the student develops and strengthens the proper muscles.

This training is even more essential to expert typewriting. The reason that so few people can write more than 30 to 40 words a minute is because their fingers are not flexible or

Valuable Book Free

We have prepared a book which tells all about the wonderful gymnastic finger exercises and explains the course in complete detail, which is free to those interested. It is a big 32-page book, brimful of eye-opening ideas and valuable information. It explains how this unique new method will quickly make your fingers strong and dexterous, bring them under perfect control, make them extremely rapid in their movements—how in ten lessons, in a few short weeks you can transform your typewriting and make it easy, accurate and amazingly speedy—all this and much more is told in detail. No instruction book ever written, no matter what its cost, ever told so plainly the real WHY and HOW of expert typewriting.

If you are ambitious to get ahead—if you want to make your work easier—if you want to get more money in your pay envelope—don't wait a single moment before sending for this book of information and proof.

This new method is bringing such marvelous results to others—is proving itself to be so sure a means of quickly increasing salaries—that you will be doing yourself a big injustice if you

Gentlemen: Please send me your free book about the New Way in Typewriting. This incurs no obligation on my part.

Why Aren't Stenographers Better Paid?

Why are most stenographers getting only $8 to $15 a week—while others get $25, $30, $40, and even $50? Eight words tell the story. It's nothing in the world but lack of speed and accuracy on the typewriter that is keeping salaries down—that is robbing most stenographers of the pay they ought to get.

Think a minute. What is a stenographer paid for? Isn't it for your finished product—for the quantity and quality of letters or other typewritten matter you can turn out in a day?

No matter how good you are at shorthand, you can never expect much increase in pay until you get speed—real speed—and accuracy on the typewriter.

Here are a few examples of how the New Way in Typewriting has already resulted in increased pay. Letters from these students and from scores of others will be found in the free book. What it has done for them it will do for you.

Raise First Year

J. H. Krull	-	$836
O. B. Hunter	-	780
S. Shainin	-	1,800
Marie Parker	-	240
A. H. Gardiner	-	900
E. Stoneman	-	780

Raise First Year

Richard Clarke	-	$900
R. L. Rankin	-	420
Carlos C. Guerre	-	2,000
C. C. Dorsey	-	300
J. P. Jones	-	900
H. K. Temme	-	540

fail to write for it at once. Tear off the coupon now, or write a postal or letter, before you turn the page.

The Tulloss School

5212 College Hill
Springfield
Ohio

Name
Address
City State
Mail to THE TULLOSS SCHOOL
5212 College Hill Springfield, Ohio

USE THIS FOR BIGGER PAY

I Hereby Promise

I Will Renew My Subscription to
THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS
MAGAZINE for 1917
 at once, and pin to this page

- ☐ a dollar bill.
☐ personal check.
☐ express money order.
☐ postal money order.
☐ draft.
☐ and a gift of $.....
 for missionary subscription fund.

NOTE: If you want Dr. Gray's Commentary on the Old and New Testaments, send $2.50; or the Smith-Peloubet Bible Dictionary, send $2.50; or the Scofield Reference Bible No. 79X, send $7.00; or the Scofield Reference Bible No. 71, send $3.50; or the Scofield Bible No. 70, fine grain cloth, round corners, red edges, send $2.50; or a good Oxford Bible No. 0934X, with cyclopaedic concordance, etc., and India paper, send $6.00. Each offer above includes the subscription to the magazine.

Date.....

To THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE,
 153-163 Institute Place, Chicago.

Herewith find $.....for (^{NEW}_{RENEWAL}) subscription

Name.....

Street.....

Town.....State.....

We Will Send You Lange's Commentary

If You Will Send Us $3.⁰⁰

You can have it on a 30 days trial—and if you don't like it return at our expense and we will return your $3.00 without question. If you like it, and over 90% do, you may at the end of 30 days either send us $29.50 cash or $2.00 as your monthly payment and agree to send $2.00 each month until you have paid $32.00 more, or $35.00 in all.

CAN ANY OFFER BE FAIRER THAN THIS?

Dr. James M. Gray Says of Lange:

"You have not said a word too much about the merits of Lange's Commentary, and what is still more to the point, it is pretty orthodox and evangelical for these times. It is a real benediction to young pastors and Christian workers to get such a commentary at that price and on such easy terms; and instead of 500 sets to sell, I wish you had 5,000, and that they might all be sold, and drive out some of the other kind of commentaries that are doing a good deal of harm."

—Dr. James M. Gray, of the Moody Bible Institute.

LANGE'S COMMENTARY is regarded as being, on the whole, the most useful Commentary, especially for ministers and theological students—in which they are more likely to find what they want than in any other. It is a complete treasury of Biblical knowledge. It gives the result of careful, scholarly research; yet in a form sufficiently popular for the use of intelligent laymen. The Homiletical department contains the best thoughts of the great divines and pulpit orators of all ages, on the texts explained, and supplies rich suggestions for sermons and Bible lectures.

"Probably the most thorough Commentary on the whole Bible ever attempted. Many of our Sunday-school teachers have intelligent Bible Classes who require careful instruction, and we doubt not the teachers of such classes, whenever they can afford it, will be glad of the opportunity to supply themselves with a work of such great and general value."

—Sunday School Times.

DO NOT DELAY. ORDER TODAY!

This set never has and probably never will be sold again at this low price—less than half the publisher's price.

Every set guaranteed new and perfect in every particular.

Fill out order blank below.

I enclose $3.00 for a set of Lange's Commentary, 25 vols., boxed—to be sent to me pre-paid for 30 days examination. I'll either pay balance of $29.50 cash or accept your monthly payment plan of $2.00 a month, agreeing to pay $32.00 more, or $35.00 in all.

Name.....

Address.....

C. W.

Order from THE WESTMINSTER PRESS

Chicago Depository.

CW 509 SO. WABASH AVE.

W. P. Blessing, Mgr.

CHICAGO, ILL.

Prof. A. T. Robertson's New Book

The Divinity of Christ in the Gospel of John

The famous New Testament scholar and commentator here addresses himself to a study and development of the thesis of the Fourth Gospel. Its aim is to enable the average mind the better to understand the Gospel in detail. As Dr. Robertson himself says: "John can help us to see Jesus, and thus to see God, and it is just this vision of God in Christ which makes life worth while and rich."

12mo, cloth, net $1.00

O. A. NEWLIN

Strangers to God

And Other Revival Sermons.

Bright, sparkling, epigrammatic addresses full of point and purpose. The Tabernacle audiences will welcome this collection of effective sermons now put into this permanent shape.

12mo, cloth, net $1.00.

EDGAR DEWITT JONES

Author of "The Inner Circle"

The Wisdom of God's Fools

And Other Sermons.

A volume of discourses, displaying the same facility for the right word and fitting phrase which marked the author's previous work.

Net $1.00.

HALFORD E. LUCCOCK

Five-Minute Shop Talks

In each of these thirty or more brief addresses, Mr. Luccock contrives to compress into a five-minute talk the wisdom and counsel of a fifty-minute sermon.

Net $1.00.

EDWARD A. GEORGE

The Twelve:

Apostolic Types of Christian Men

"Under his living touch the apostles seem very much like the men we know and their problems not dissimilar to our own."—The Congregationalist.

Net $1.00

W. H. LEATHEM

Introduction by Hugh Black, D. D.

The Comrade In White

With Frontispiece

"I think the stories emphasize great spiritual reality, and they are fitted to open windows upon the neglected and forgotten spiritual world."—J. H. Jowett, D. D.

Net 50 cents.

AUGUSTA ALBERTSON

Through Gates of Pearl

A Vision of the Heaven Life.

"It is given to the author to see with the eyes of the soul and to feel with the senses of the spirit, those things that belong to the great realm beyond. Miss Albertson's book is a spiritual classic."—Christian Herald.

Net $1.00.

W. H. GRIFFITH THOMAS

Grace and Power

Some Aspects of the Spiritual Life.

"The possibilities of the Christian life, of the provision made for their realization, and of the protective grace flung around the believer."—Christian Work.

Net $1.00.

J. STUART HOLDEN, M. A.

The Confidence of Faith

For believers everywhere, Mr. Holden's new book breathes a message of solace and enheartenment.

Net 75 cents.

J. M. CAMPBELL, D. D.

Prayer in Its Present-Day Aspects

A book written to meet a situation unparalleled in history, to restate certain aspects of an eternal truth in the light of the conditions and demands of these perilous times.

Net 75 cents.

WILLIAM EVANS, D. D.

Epochs in the Life of Christ

By the Associate Dean of the Bible Institute, Los Angeles.

A series of addresses, given on Sunday afternoons to large audiences, dealing with the Birth, Baptism, Temptation, Transfiguration, Death and Resurrection. Couched in popular language and presented in popular style.

Net $1.00.

Through the Bible, Book by Book
By DR. EVANS

The Book of Genesis

12mo, cloth, net 50 cents.

The Gospel and the Acts

12 mo, cloth, net $1.00.

The Books of the Pentateuch

12mo, cloth, net $1.25.

LEWIS SPERRY CHAFER

The Kingdom in History and Prophecy

Introduction by C. I. Scofield.

"A study of the historical and prophetic aspects of the kingdom of God in their relations to the present age and that which is shortly to come."—Christian Workers Magazine.

Net 75 cents.

REV. D. M. CANRIGHT

The Complete Testimony

The Testimony of the Early Fathers, Proving the Universal Observance of Sunday in the First Centuries. 12mo, paper, net 20 cts.

C. F. WIMBERLY, B. A.

Behold the Morning!

The Imminent and Premillennial Coming of Jesus Christ.

R. A. Torrey says: "The book is one of the three books that I would recommend to any one who wishes to take up a study of the subject."

12mo, cloth, net $1.00.

The Jews of America For Christ, and Christ For The Jews of America

(New Covenant Mission, 333-42nd St., Pittsburgh, Pa.)

Dear Christian Readers:

This is the glad Christmas season. We are reminded of Mary, Joseph, Wise Men, Shepherds, Angels, Bethlehem and Palestine. The scenery is Jewish. The human actors are nearly all Jews. The Saviour born is a Jew. From there the news has come to you, "For unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Saviour which is Christ the Lord."

The above Mission is prayerfully endeavoring to carry the glorious Christmas news to the 3,000,000 Jews in this country. You remember that Christ, "the gift of God," belongs also to Israel. Will you, dear Reader, cheer our hearts and remember our work for God among Israel this glad season?

We need funds to carry on the ten Departments of the Work. They are—"Preaching," "Bible Classes," "Children's Work," "Publication," "Tract Distribution," "Free Dispensary," "Benevolences," "Itinerant Missions," "Shelter," "Postal Mission," besides the office, etc.

The needs of the Mission are met entirely by the spontaneous and free will offerings of the Lord's people. All worldly means of raising funds are avoided, as being unworthy of the cause of our great Master, Jesus Christ.

Will you please fill out the blank and make an "X" above the amount you desire to give or pledge.

"I subscribe as a Christmas offering to the New Covenant Mission:"

Cash	Pledge $5	$10	$25	$50	$100
------	------------	------	------	------	-------

Name and address

Praying that Jesus, the King of the Jews, may incline your heart to lend a helping hand for the work among the Jews, we remain,

Yours with the "compliments of the season,"

REV. MAURICE RUBEN, General Superintendent.

IDEAL CHRISTMAS GIFTS for PUPILS and TEACHERS

Pocket Testament League Testaments

The King James Version No. 5N

Price, $1.00 each, postpaid. Size, 2½x4 in., ½ inch thick. Pigskin, limp, overlapping cover, round corners, gilt edges. Brown only. Containing fifteen colored illustrations, four hymns, pledge and decision card, Suggestions for Members, and the Way of Salvation.

No. 3B

The King James Version No. 2C

Price, 30 cents each, postpaid. Size, 2½x3¾ inches. ½ inch thick. Bound in green imitation leather, round corners, gilt edges, with colored illustrations. Containing four hymns, pledge and decision card. Suggestions for Members, and the Way of Salvation.

Gospels of St. John

Price, 5 cents each, postpaid. Size, 2¾x4¾ inches. Bound in red cloth. Containing verses in black-faced type showing the way of salvation; a page by Dr. Chapman telling how to use certain verses to lead people to Christ; and four of Charles M. Alexander's hymns with words and music.

Pledge Cards and Leaflet, THE WHY, WHAT AND HOW OF THE POCKET TESTAMENT LEAGUE, will be furnished free on application.

The King James Version No. 3B

Price, 60 cents each, postpaid. Size, 2½x4 in. ¾ in. thick. Black flexible leather binding only. Divinity circuit, round corners, red under gilt edges. Contains fifteen colored illustrations, four hymns, pledge and decision card. Suggestions for Members and the Way of Salvation.

THE POCKET TESTAMENT LEAGUE

HEADQUARTERS

133 Witherspoon Building,

Philadelphia

It doesn't take much space to inform you that unless you are using "The Tabernacle Hymns" in your Church and Evangelistic work you are not using the best book on the market.

OVER 70,000 PRINTED SINCE APRIL 15th

Send 20c for sample copy

THE TABERNACLE PUB. CO.
808 N. LA SALLE ST.
CHICAGO, ILL.

The Williamsburg Mission at Work

EXPOSITION NO. 2

Last month we gave you a summarized statement of the work of the Williamsburg Mission to the Jews. We now go into detail and in this advertisement consider the first activity of our work as mentioned last month, the Gospel Preaching Department.

Here, in a hall holding about 200 Jews, we conduct a popular Gospel service on Friday night and on Sunday night. It is the rule to find our hall filled, and many times filled to overflowing. Of course you know what such a statement means in Jewish mission work. We quote from a well known Jewish missionary in London who, after having visited one of our meetings unexpectedly, wrote, "The hall was full of Jews, mostly men, but a good sprinkling of women were also there. They all sat very still and orderly as though they had been brought up to do so. I confess that all I saw and heard that night rejoiced my heart. Here was a good work done indeed in a way that must command respect from every Jew even of the educated ones."

Situated as we are, in the world's greatest Jewish Ghetto, you will not be surprised, nor will we be accused of assumption when we say that in our Mission building there are gathered together week after week more Jews to hear the Gospel of Christ than there are thus gathered in any other place in America. The inspiration of such a meeting is great, the Lord Jesus Christ is being upheld as the only Saviour of Jew and Gentile alike; the audience itself joins in the singing, and order prevails throughout.

Next month we hope to tell you of another department of our work. In the meantime we again bespeak your help, your prayers and your friendship. Our monthly publication "The Chosen People" is sent to all contributors to our work. Write us for specimen copies and other literature today.

WILLIAMSBURG MISSION TO THE JEWS

STATION A

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

THE Christian Workers Magazine

December, 1916

Editorial Notes

"And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof." 1 John 2:17.

As a comment on this passage we quote a brief dialogue between Mark Twain at 71, and H. H. Rogers, the Standard Oil magnate who was perhaps a little younger.

Cut Mark Twain did not know the God of the Bible, but we can not speak Loaf as intelligently of Mr. Rogers.

Clemens (Mark Twain): "Well, Rogers, I don't know what you think of it, but I think I have had about enough of this world, and I wish I were out of it."

Rogers: "I don't say much about it, but that expresses my view."

Twain's biographer adds: "This, from the foremost man of letters and one of the foremost financiers of the time was impressive. Each at the mountain-top 'of his career, they agreed that the journey was not worth while—that what the world had still to give was not attractive enough to tempt them—to prevent a desire to experiment with the next stage."

"One could remember a thousand poor and obscure men who were perfectly willing to go on struggling and starving, postponing the day of settlement as long as possible; but perhaps, when one has had all the world has to give, when there are no new worlds in sight to conquer, one has a different feeling."

We pass this on to our readers as not unsuited to reflection as the end of another year draws near. Most of them are Christians, but some, it may be, have been thinking too much of the world of late. What does it amount to in comparison with that "which God hath prepared for them that love Him"? (1 Cor. 2:9).

Would these two "foremost" men "experiment with the next stage"? Thank God it is no experiment to the true believer, "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens" (2 Cor. 5:1).

Are some of our readers still unsaved? The time is short. "Today, if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts" (Heb. 3:7, 8).

Religion in itself has no saving power. Paul told the Athenians they were too religious. Religion has been made a cloak for many crimes, and the very word is sometimes a synonym for hypocrisy.

Religion
Vs.
The Gospel Frederick J. Haskins reminds us that, "while the Spanish conquerors, the French filibusters, and the English buccaneers, who took their turns in pillaging Panama, were cruel beyond imagination, they were always famous for their outward evidences of religion and piety. The Spanish were always chanting hymns and honoring the saints; the French would shoot down their own soldiers for irreverent behaviour during mass; the English pirate captains never failed to hold divine services on Sunday, and often prohibited profanity and gambling."

It is the gospel of Jesus Christ that saves, and that is not a religion but a gift of eternal life. Get this fact before the people. Preach it, testify to it. Take their minds away from church, and sacraments and works of every kind and fasten them upon the Babe of Bethlehem. Exalt Him, His incarnation, His death and sacrifice, His resurrection and exaltation, His coming again. "Where there is no vision the people perish," but the vision which saves them from perishing is Christ and Him crucified.

This is what makes foreign missions a duty. Hinduism, Mohammedanism and all the other "isms" are good enough in their place. That is, there is moral teaching enough in them to talk about, but what good is it either now or at the day of judgment? Humanity is lost, and must be shown the way home through the Cross. May God make us to be clear, and then faithful.

There is a large industrial concern in Chicago which employs over one hundred boys around fourteen or fifteen years of age. These have their own school-room in the building where they work, with teachers presided over by a former superintendent of schools. Arithmetic and English are their principal studies, but with these go personal hygiene and good manners.

They have also a comprehensive library of good fiction and reference books, and they are offered inducements to enroll themselves in the various available evening schools in the city. One of these inducements is a summer outing at the concern's expense in their own camp, where the boys can fish and row and sail, and get instruction in swimming free of cost.

Their inner man is thought of too, and they are provided with cards which entitle them daily to soup, chocolate and cocoa in the cafeteria at one cent a serving. This keeps them from filling up on injurious eatables at outside stands.

Who shall say that the world is not looking out for its own? This is social service indeed, and of a praiseworthy kind, but what is the motive behind it, and what are its limitations?

We would not say that Christianity has nothing to do with it, but it is not distinctively Christian, not even altruistic in fact. It is broad business statesmanship, there is civicism in it if you please, but pure selfishness may inspire it.

And how far does it go? Physical health, mental development, polite behavior, excellent are they all. But is there nothing more?

No, there can be nothing more in that environment. Society would not stand for it. Let that concern be never so anxious for the salvation and spiritual welfare of those boys, they dare not attempt a propaganda of the gospel.

This is the mission of the church, and that is the reason why the church should let the world care for the bodies and the minds of men, and devote itself to their souls.

We believe in social service of course. We would go much further than the example furnished by this business concern. It would be difficult to put a limit to the social service in which we believe. But the business of the church is to make Christians. True Christians mingling in the world will furnish all the stimulus and motive power for social service that the world needs. Indeed in this day of "efficiency," paganism would do that. Making better boys is good, but saving them is better.

She was a widow with a moderate competency, who resided with two female relatives. They had always been very kind and attentive to her although limited

She more than she in this world's Neglected goods. It was her intention To Sign It frankly expressed, to leave them her property as a token of appreciation of their many kindnesses.

However she was always postponing the making of her will until, under pressure, one day she secured a lawyer to draw it up. But even then with the pen in her hand she hesitated to sign it. Her excuse was that it would be time enough to do it when she was taken ill. Subsequently she went south to spend the winter and took the unsigned document in her trunk.

One day she unexpectedly became unconscious, recovering only long enough to hand an attendant the visiting card of a friend whom she wished to be notified of her condition. Then she relapsed into unconsciousness and never rallied.

The will still being unsigned, her property passed to a relative whom she had not seen for forty years, an inmate of an Old Men's Home. He was a person who had led a disreputable life, and for whom she had no respect. To him she would not willingly have left a penny.

How often this story is repeated, and deserving and needy friends and relatives disappointed and injured by such neglect. What grief it would cause those guilty of the neglect were they conscious of it in the life beyond!

In the same way how frequently has the work of the Lord suffered because Christians have not made and signed their wills in time! Many a Christian has sincerely purposed to further some precious cause by his means after he has left this world, and failed to do it by this neglect. How sad that the greater loser is not the cause for which the money was intended, but the person who failed to have it so applied.

Have you made your will, and signed it?

The most interesting piece of news to us during the past few weeks was the statement of Prof. Münsterberg, of Harvard, that he had been reliably informed that Russia and Germany would sign terms of a separate peace before Spring; and that after this there would be an alliance among Germany, Austria, Russia and Japan.

We cannot speak about the time, we know not whether it will come before Spring, but we do know that it will come sometime. Whose word Prof. Münsterberg is taking we do not know, but that which we are taking is the Word of God. Readers of the Bible are way ahead of Harvard's professor in this matter. They have made a scoop on him. And they can give him still another point; viz., that the whole of Austria will not be in that alliance. There is to be a division at the Danube one of these days.

Hundreds of hearts felt a deep pang of sorrow at the news of Bishop Cheney's death on November fifteen, but when they learn the manner of it they will say, "How Charles blessed!" and, "Was not that just Edward the way He would like to have been Cheney called home!" Octogenarian though he was, he made eleven pastoral calls on the day previous, and passed the evening at home reading aloud in his family circle. After awakening the next morning he fainted twice. Subsequently he remarked to a friend at his bedside, "Perhaps this is the last, and I am so happy!"

For fifty-six years he served as pastor of Christ Reformed Episcopal Church in this city, a record doubtless without a parallel, as the parish never knew any other pastor. For perhaps thirty-five years of that period he added to his duties those of a Bishop in his denomination. He was a good administrator, a faithful shepherd, a preacher of unusual eloquence and power, a charming personality, a lover of children, a patriotic citizen, a warm friend, a humble and sincere Christian.

This issue of our Magazine is already on the press and we can say no more, save that we expect to meet our beloved brother in that blessed day for which he longed, when "the Son of Man shall come in the glory of his Father," and "reward every man according to his works."

"Who Is Jesus Christ?"

A Christmas Editorial

A CHRISTIAN worker and a soul-winner, was dictating a brief story of her life to a typist, when the latter suddenly interrupted her with the question, "Who is Jesus Christ?"

His name frequently had been referred to in the narrative, and in such a deeply important way, and in such engaging terms, that the question could not be withheld.

When her employer explained who He was, the typist, twenty-six years old, replied: "I never knew before that He was the Son of God, or anything but a good man. Ministers and Sunday-school teachers take too much for granted and think we young people know these things, but I am not the only one who does not know them."

We are telling this for what it is worth, and it ought to be worth a good deal not only to pastors and Sunday-school teachers, but Christian parents, and Christian people of all classes who come in contact with the young.

"So they read in the book, in the law of God, distinctly, and gave the sense, and caused them to understand the reading."

This was what was done for the people of Israel in Nehemiah's and Ezra's time (Neh. 8:8). How many are following their example today? How much of the Bible is being read by Christians even in the church itself, to say nothing of other places? What attention is being paid to the way in which it is read? How much pains is being taken to explain it to the people and to cause them to understand it? O, what a day of reckoning awaits the church on this question!

The employer in this case herself knew nothing about Christ till she reached womanhood. None of God's people whom she met, ever spoke to her about being a Christian or invited her to church, but her worldly acquaintances used their influence to interest her in worldly pleasures.

One day, while at work in an office, she turned to a friend, saying, "What do you do with yourself Sundays?" The reply was that, as she usually went to the theater Saturday evening, she rested until noon, and in the afternoon either read, took a car-ride to Franklin Park, or received and returned calls, etc.

"Why, that is just the way I do, too," said the other; "and do you know I am tired of this way of living. Have you always lived in this manner?"

"Oh, no," was the reply, "I used to attend church and Sunday-school, but I have not done so now for some time."

Then followed a long, earnest conversation between the two young women, revealing their dissatisfaction with their manner of life and the desire for something better and more satisfying. As a result, both of them attended a "Social Song Service" at a certain church the next Sunday.

It was not long after this before the one we have called the employer found Christ, and subsequently devoted all her time to His service and to the saving of other souls.

The simple story is told in a little pamphlet, "An Easter Awakening," which can be had for ten cents by addressing Miss E. R. E., 101 Rock Street, Fall River, Mass.

When we began we had no thought of turning this editorial into a book advertisement, but our publishing agent will not object, but rejoice rather, if it shall be the means of quickening any of the Lord's servants in soul-winning, or add one more jewel to His crown.

But here is another thought, in which there is great encouragement. God is working even when man is not working. None of His people was speaking to Miss E. R. E. about her soul and its need of higher and better things, but He Himself was doing so. He was making her dissatisfied with her worldly life, and urging her to take the initiative which eventually led to her salvation.

How awe-inspiring the thought is! What profound mysteries it brings before the mind! We can not dwell upon them, but we may find comfort in the fact that God is interested in saving souls more than we. Therefore let us keep simply and faithfully sowing the seed, for we know not "whether shall prosper either this or that" (Eccles. 11:6).

And let us keep praying for those who are lost and indifferent, even though they are separate from the ordinary means of grace. God has ways of reaching them beyond our ken. How we should praise Him for this grace!

This is who Jesus Christ is, and this is why we worship Him at this Christmastide.

Topics for the Week of Prayer

DECEMBER 31, 1916, TO JANUARY 6, 1917

Suggested by the World's Evangelical Alliance

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 31

TEXTS FOR SERMONS AND ADDRESSES

"Another year's respite."—Luke xiii. 8, 9.

"Christ the Head of the Church."—Eph. i. 22, 23.

"The triumph of faithfulness in national life."—Hab. ii. 4.

"The only 'if.'"—John xii. 31, 32.

"The God of our fathers."—1 Chron. xxviii. 9.

"The constraint of Christ's love."—2 Cor. v. 14.

MONDAY, JANUARY 1

THANKSGIVING AND HUMILIATION

THANKSGIVING—For the witness of the living Church and of the Holy Scriptures. For the two eternal facts: "He hath made Him to be sin for us Who knew no sin." "He . . . liveth, and was dead." For the spirit of sacrifice that has been purging human life. For the deepening of spiritual thought and life within the Church.

HUMILIATION—For our failure to live in "the communion of the Holy Ghost." For worldliness and the spirit of compromise in the Church. For the desecration of the Lord's Day, the neglect of the sanctuary, the contempt of God's Word, and the decay of family piety.

SCRIPTURE READINGS: Psalm ciii. 1-5; Romans viii. 31-39; Psalm li.; Revelation iii. 14-32.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 2

THE CHURCH UNIVERSAL—THE "ONE BODY" OF WHICH CHRIST IS THE HEAD

PENITENCE—For the failure of the Church to bear such faithful and united witness as would make its influence more deeply felt among professedly Christian nations.

PRAYER—For such a realization of the presence and power of the Holy Spirit as may lead to revival. For the purification of the Church in every community throughout the world. For the growth of a spirit of unity amid diversity of operations. For the love that embraces all mankind.

SCRIPTURE READINGS: Isaiah liv. 2-5; John xx. 19-23; Acts ii. 1-4; 1 Cor. xii. 4-7.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 3

NATIONS AND THEIR RULERS

PRAYER—For the world-wide recognition of the supreme law of love. For the development of brotherhood among the nations. That the growing spirit of nationalism may be guided by Christian ideals. That righteousness, mutual consideration, and forbearance may prevail, and lasting peace be established. That men of integrity, full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, may rule the nations.

SCRIPTURE READINGS: Psalm xxiv.; Psalm ci.; 1 Timothy ii. 1-8; 1 Peter ii. 13-25.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 4

MISSIONS AMONG MOSLEMS AND THE HEATHEN

PRAYER—That the Church may give the gospel in its fulness to the human race. That evangelical doctrine may not be surrendered by missionaries in order to compromise with false teaching and systems. That a tactful, faithful, and fearless presentation of Christ may be made to Moslems. That wisdom may be given in dealing with mass movements in India, racial problems in Africa, and tendencies toward materialism in China and Japan.

SCRIPTURE READINGS: Psalm ii.; Luke iv. 40-44; Romans xvi. 25-27.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 5

FAMILIES, SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, AND THE YOUNG

PRAYER—That family altars may be multiplied, and parents be influenced to pray with their children as well as for them. That true religion may have first place in all education. That teachers may be able to instruct with knowledge, moral force, and spiritual power. That young people may be led to Christ and experience "the joy of salvation" through full consecration. That the movement in colleges and schools may be further widened and deepened.

SCRIPTURE READINGS: 1 Kings iii. 5-15; 2 Timothy iii. 14-17; Matthew xix. 13-15.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 6

MISSIONS AT THE HOME BASE AND AMONG THE JEWS

PRAYER—That Christians may no longer remain unconcerned while sin is working death among their neighbors. That an "atmosphere" may be created that will make men ashamed of intemperance and lust, of gambling and selfishness, of luxury and pride. That ministers and lay workers may be more intent on individual conversion. That Christians may remember their debt to the Jews, and for Christ's sake seek to help them into the light.

SCRIPTURE READINGS: Psalm ii.; Luke x. 25-37; Romans xi. 13-24.

Some Thoughts on Predestination

By Rev. Benjamin B. Warfield, D. D.

Professor of Didactic Theology in Princeton Theological Seminary

We had been asked to enlighten our readers on this deep subject, and we felt that no living theologian could do it better than Dr. Warfield. We think it not inappropriate to publish his article in the month which closes the old year. May its instruction strengthen our confidence in God, comfort our hearts, allay our fears, revive our spirits and deepen our submission. The God who controls things is the Babe of Bethlehem who came into the world "to seek and to save that which was lost."—Editors.

A GREAT man of the last generation began the preface of a splendid little book he was writing on this subject, with the words: "Happy would it be for the church of Christ and for the world, if Christian ministers and Christian people could be content to be disciples—learners." He meant to intimate that if only we were all willing to sit simply at the feet of the inspired writers and take them at their word, we should have no difficulties with Predestination. The difficulties we feel with regard to Predestination are not derived from the Word. The Word is full of it, because it is full of God, and when we say God and mean God—God in all that God is—we have said Predestination.

Our difficulties with Predestination arise from a, no doubt not unnatural, unwillingness to acknowledge ourselves to be wholly at the disposal of another. We wish to be at our own disposal. We wish "to belong to ourselves," and we resent belonging, especially belonging absolutely, to anybody else, even if that anybody else be God. We are in the mood of the singer of the hymn beginning, "I was a wandering sheep," when he declares of himself, "I would not be controlled." We will not be controlled. Or, rather, to speak more accurately, we will not admit that we are controlled.

God and Control Are One

I say that it is more accurate to say that we will not admit that we are controlled. For we are controlled, whether we admit it or not. To imagine that we are not controlled is to imagine that there is no God. For when we say God, we say control. If a single creature which God has made has escaped beyond His control, at the moment that he has done so he has abolished God. A God who could or would make a creature whom He could not or would not control, is no God. The moment He should make such a creature He would, of course, abdicate His throne. The universe He had created would have ceased to be His universe; or rather it would cease to exist—for the universe is held together only by the control of God.

Even worse would have happened, indeed, than the destruction of the universe. God would have ceased to be God in a deeper sense than that He would have ceased to be the Lord and Ruler of the world. He would have ceased to be a moral being. It is an immoral act to make a thing that we cannot or will not control. The only justification for making anything is that we both can and will control it. If a man should manufacture a quantity of an unstable high-explosive in the corridors of an orphan asylum, and when the stuff went off should seek to excuse himself by saying that he could not control it, no one would count his excuse valid. What right had he to manufacture it, we should say, unless he could control it? He relieves himself of none of the responsibility for the havoc wrought, by pleading inability to control his creation.

To suppose that God has made a universe—or even a single being—the control of which He renounces, is to accuse Him of similar immorality. What right has He to make it, if He cannot or will not control it? It is not a moral act to perpetrate chaos. We have not only dethroned God; we have demoralized Him.

Of course, there is no one that thinks at all who will imagine such a vanity. We take refuge in a vague antinomy. We fancy that God controls the universe just enough to control it, and that He does not control it just enough not to control it. Of course God controls the universe, we perhaps say—in the large; but of course He does not control every thing in the universe—in particular.

Did God Make a Universe to His Liking?

Probably nobody deceives himself with such palpable paltering in a double sense. If this is God's universe, if He made it and made it for Himself, He is responsible for everything that takes place in it. He must be supposed to have made it just as He wished it to be—or are we to say that He could not make the universe He wished to make, and had to put up with the best He could do?

And He must be supposed to have made it precisely as He wished it to be, not only statically but dynamically—considered, that is, in all its potentialities and in all its developments down to the end. That is to say, He must be supposed to have made it precisely to suit Himself, as extended not only in space but in time. If anything occurs in it as projected through time—just as truly as if anything is found in it as extended in space—which is not just as He intended it to be—why, then we must admit that He could not make such a universe as He would like to have, and had to put up with the best He could get. And, then, He is not God. A being who cannot make a universe to His own liking is not God. A being who can agree to make a universe which is not to His liking, most certainly is not God.

But though such a being obviously is not God, He does not escape responsibility for the universe which He actually makes—whether as extended in space or in time—and that in all its particulars. The moment this godling (not now God) consented to put up with the actual universe—whether as extended in space or as projected through time, including all its particulars without exception—because it was the best He could get, it became His universe. He adopted it as His own, and made it His own even in those particulars which in themselves He would have liked to have otherwise. These particulars, as well as all the rest, which in themselves please Him better, have been determined on by Him as not only allowable, but as actually to exist in the universe which, by His act, is actually realized.

That is to say they are predestinated by Him, and because predestinated by Him actually appear in the universe that is made. We have got rid of God, indeed; but we have not got rid of the Predestination, to get rid of which we have been willing to degrade our God into a godling.

We have passed insensibly from the idea of control to the idea of Predestination. That is because there is no real difference between the two ideas at bottom. If God controls anything at all, of course He has intended to control it before He controls it. Exactly the control which He exerts, of course He has intended to exert all along.

Providence and Predestination

No one can imagine so inadvertent a God, that He always acts "on the spur of the moment," so to speak, with no manner of intention determining His action. Providence and Predestination are ideas which run into one another. Providence is but Predestination in its execution; Predestination is but Providence in its intention. When we say the one, we say the other, and the common idea which gives its content to both is control.

It is purely this idea of control which people object to when they say they object to Predestination; not the idea of previousness, but purely the idea of control. They would object just as much if the control was supposed to be exercised without any previous intention at all.

They ought to object much more. For a control exercised without intention would be a blind control. It would have no end in view to justify it; it would have no meaning; it would be sheerly irrational, immoral, maddening. That is what we call Fate. Say intention, however, and we say person; and when we say person we say purpose. A meaning is now given to the control that is exercised; an end is held before it.

And if the person who exercises the control be an intelligent being, the end will be a wise end; if he be a moral being it will be a good end; if He be infinitely wise and holy, just and good, it will be an infinitely wise and holy, just and good end, and it will be wrought out by means as wise and holy, just and good as itself.

To say Predestination is to say all this. It is to introduce order into the universe. It is to assign an end and a worthy end to it. It enables us to speak of a far off divine event to which the whole creation is moving. It enables us to see that whatever occurs, great or small, has a place to fill in this universal teleology; and thus has significance given it, and a justification supplied to it. To say Predestination is thus not only to say God; it is also to say Theodicy.

No matter what we may say of Predestination in moments of puzzlement, as we stand in face of the problems of life—the problem of the petty, the problem of suffering, the problem of sin—it is safe to say that at the bottom of our minds we all believe in it. We cannot help believing in it—if we believe in God; and that, in its utmost extension, as applying to everything about us which comes to pass.

Take any occurrence that happens, great or small—the fall of an empire or the fall of a sparrow, which our Lord Himself tells us never once happens "without our Father." It surely cannot be imagined that God is ignorant of its happening—nay, even if it be so small a thing as the fall of a pin.

Not Taken by Surprise

God assuredly is aware of everything that happens in His universe. There are no dark corners in it into which His all-seeing eye cannot pierce; there is nothing that occurs in it which is hidden from His universal glance. But certainly neither can it be imagined that anything which occurs in His universe takes Him by surprise. Assuredly God has been expecting it to happen, and in happening it has merely justified His anticipations.

Nor yet can He be imagined to be indifferent to its happening, as if, though He sees it coming, He does not care whether it happens or not. That is not the kind of God our God is; He is a God who infinitely cares, cares even about the smallest things. Did not our Saviour speak of the sparrows and the very hairs of our heads to teach us this?

Well, then, can it be imagined that, though infinitely caring, God stands impotently over against the happenings in His universe, and cannot prevent them? Is He to be supposed to be watching from all eternity things which He does not wish to happen, coming, coming, ever coming, until at last they come—and He is unable to stop them?

Why, if He could not prevent their happening any other way He need not have made the universe; or He might have made it differently. There was nothing to require Him to make this universe—or any universe at all—except His own good pleasure; and there is nothing to compel Him to allow anything which He does not wish to happen, to occur in the universe which he has made for His own good pleasure.

Clearly things cannot occur in God's universe, the occurrence of which is displeasing to Him. He does not stand helplessly by, while they occur against His wish. Whatever occurs has been foreseen by Him from all eternity, and it succeeds in occurring only because its occurrence meets His wish.

It may not be apparent to us what wish of His it meets, what place it fills in the general scheme of things to which it is His pleasure to give actuality, what its function is in His all-inclusive plan. But we know that it could not occur unless it had such a function to perform, such a place to fill, a part to play in God's comprehensive plan.

And knowing that, we are satisfied. Unless, indeed, we cannot trust God with His own plan, and feel that we must insist that He submit it to us, down to the last detail, and obtain our approval of it, before He executes it.

Least of all will the religious man doubt the universal Predestination of God. Why, what makes him a religious man is, among other things, that he sees God in everything.

Two Ways of Looking at Things

A glass window stands before us. We raise our eyes and see the glass; we note its quality, and observe its defects; we speculate on its composition. Or we look straight through it on the great prospect of land and sea and sky beyond. So there are two ways of looking at the world. We may see the world and absorb ourselves in the wonders of nature. That is the scientific way. Or we may look right through the world and see God behind it. That is the religious way.

The scientific way of looking at the world is not wrong any more than the glass-manufacturer's way of looking at the window. This way of looking at things has its very important uses. Nevertheless the window was placed there not to be looked at but to be looked through; and the world has failed of its purpose unless it too is looked through and the eye rests not on it but on its God. Yes, its God; for it is of the essence of the religious view of things that God is seen in all that is and in all that occurs. The universe is His, and in all its movements speaks of Him, because it does only His will.

If you would understand the religious man's conception of the relation of God to His world, observe him on his knees. For prayer is the purest expression of religion and in prayer we see religion come to its rights.

Did ever a man pray thus: "O God, Thou knowest that I can do as I choose and Thou canst not prevent me, Thou knowest that my fellow men are, like me, beyond Thy control, Thou knowest that nature itself goes its own way and Thou canst but stand helplessly by and watch whither it tends?"

No, the attitude of the soul in prayer is that of entire dependence for itself, and of complete confidence in God's all-embracing government. We ask Him graciously to regulate our own spirit, to control the acts of our fellow-men, and to direct the course of the whole world in accordance with His holy and beneficent will. And we do right. Only, we should see to it that we preserve this conception of God in His relation to His world, when we rise from our knees; and make it the operative force of our whole life.

I know, it is true, an eminent theologian who will shake his head at this. God cannot control the acts of free-agents, he says, and it is folly to ask Him to do so. If we go gunning with an unskilful friend, he may awkwardly shoot us; and it is useless to ask God to protect us; He simply cannot do it. If we are at work at a dangerous machine by the side of a careless companion, he may destroy us at any moment, and it is useless to ask God to avert the mishap; God cannot do it.

If this were so, we certainly would be in a parlous case. Or rather the world would long ago have broken down into chaos.

All is Well

Every religious man knows full well that it is not so. Every religious man knows that God can and will and does control everything that He has made in all their actions, and that therefore—despite all adverse appearances—it is all well with the world.

All well with the world, which is moving steadily forward in its established orbit; and all well with us who put our trust in God. For has He not Himself told us that all things—all things, mind you—are working together for good to those that love Him? And how, pray, could that be, except that they all do His bidding in all their actions?

How Much Are You Giving?

By Fred L. Rosemond, Esq.

An abbreviated report of a talk at the Mountain Lake Park Bible Conference, prefaced by Proverbs 11:24; 13:7; Matthew 6:19-21; Luke 6:38, and 1 Timothy 6:9, 10, showing forth a considerable part of the scriptural philosophy of giving and withholding.—Editors.

HOW much are we giving? The fact is that we do not know and cannot tell. Most givers keep no accounts. Such statistics as are available are for particular channels only. Nothing but an estimate can be made of the aggregate gifts from all Christian givers, and there is scant reason to believe such an estimate reliable. At the same time, many of us think we give more than we do. Appeals come from all directions and accumulate about us, and we are apt to remember that we were besought to give even when we forget that we did not give in response to them. As Dr. Jowett has written, in substance, we sweat as much under our recollection of the burden of the many requests for money as if we had given money in answer to every one. However, that Christians as a whole are not giving either as much as they should or as much as they could, is nevertheless evident. A Christian nation that spends for chewing gum in one year three-fourths of what it gives to foreign missions must admit this.

Reasons for Not Giving

Why do we not give more? Only two considerations out of many are mentioned, but two which are sometimes forgotten. A pastor, or a representative of a worthy cause, solicits one of good standing as a Christian for a gift to such a cause, and is answered: "I do not have the money." The solicitor is not only disappointed, but is apt to go away with the feeling that he has not been told the truth; that the truth is that the money was in hand, but unwillingness to give dictated the answer. Yet the answer is often true; the individual did not have the money; it had been spent for something else. Get to them before the money which should be given to Christian activities has been spent otherwise. This points in the direction of previous education in giving, which will be mentioned more than once.

Another refuses to give because, he says, "I do not know where all this money goes." That is not only often the fact, but much of the time the criticism implied is well founded. Contributors to a church, to a mission, to any organized Christian activity, are absolutely and unqualifiedly entitled to know what is done with what they give. Periodical exhibits of outlays and income should be made, and these should be voluntary, should be forthcoming without being asked for. It is always important, as we are frequently told, to have religion in business, but the other side of it is that we should also have business in religion. Lay the financial condition before givers and consult them; show them that they are more than purses, that they are integral parts of the undertaking. Hence the importance of a budget, of systematic giving, of the "Every Member Canvass," rightly conducted. In this direction the pastor, as the leader, must move first and oftenest; it is "up to him" to start it and to keep it going.

Education in Giving

This need of education is found, in part, in a wrong education. In many Christian families the child is started off to Sunday-school regularly, and, if the parents are quite anxious to train the child to give unto the Lord, is throughout its early years sent with a penny in its hand. This is education, to be sure, but only part of it. This happens, when it does happen, only once a week, but how is it on the other six days with the same child? On week days, for a glass of soda water, father or mother gives him, not one cent, but five cents. So for a package of chewing gum. The child is trained to give to the Lord one penny, and to the confectioner five times as much. The Sunday-school only is on a penny basis.

And there is also a sad lack of education. Here are representatives of numerous denominations, so interested in the affairs of the kingdom of God that they have left their homes and have come here to attend this Bible Conference, and yet it is a fair question how much information even you have about the benevolent works of your own denominations. How many separate boards have you? What work does each board carry on? How much money do they handle per year altogether? How much does each one handle? What are the results? Does their record invite confidence or criticism? May we imagine that there is not a person here, in even this select company, who can answer these questions about his own denomination with certainty? Yet knowing just what is going on is what ties men up to undertakings in other walks of life. Business men are suspicious of generalities about income and outgo and returns in business life; they want to know. It is an oversight not to tell our church people more about such things from our pulpits, and in personal interviews as well as by publication.

What specific effort has been made to educate and inform the men, except by the "Laymen's Missionary Movement"? Yet the church realizes that to the men it must look if its needs are to be fairly met. Such things unmistakably point to general mission study, and to general study of your church's activities. Here let the pastors lead; it is their place to do so. One fact of recent origin and of unmistakable significance is that a few weeks ago, at a missionary conference in the Moody Church in Chicago, no less than two hundred persons publicly volunteered for service in mission work, abroad if necessary, and no money was in sight or forthcoming with which to send them; there is a supply of workers ahead of a supply of means. That is a sample of the many facts that education would bring before our people.

Channels for Giving

That much is given outside of the church naturally suggests the question whether Christians should give through their churches only. Some should and some should not. The individual who knows nothing of work or workers in the mass, who knows of no channel except this one, or who lacks the ability or the interest to investigate and discriminate among the many claimants upon one's bounty, will doubtless do best to give through the church only. So with one who conscientiously believes that course the best. Those who know of various opportunities through various agencies do not stand in the same case. The Lord's work can and does make progress in spite of our follies and mistakes, but can any one doubt that the Lord prefers us to be wise rather than foolish, and judicious rather than thoughtless? "If, therefore, ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, who will commit to your trust the true riches?" (Luke 17:11). What would you think of me if, as a lawyer, I would be more careful to make a good investment for a client than to make a good investment for the Lord with my gifts? As between a large but dead church somewhere and a live, growing rescue mission,—one scarcely, if at all, holding its own, and the other steadily saving souls,—as between two such propositions in the Lord's business, which is the better investment? In which place will money do the most good? There are many organized activities, doing Christian work, directly and indirectly helping even the church itself, outside of the church, and which it is a real privilege to help.

What Shall Christians Give?

"Give to him that asketh thee," our Master said (Matt. 5:42). What are we to give? Not necessarily what is asked. Such a question is made necessary by that love of money which leads us to consider this command as applying to money only, and some, if they lack money, feel excused. But the Master had no such narrow vision as that. What we can give would include things, sympathy, service, money, prayer, children, self. When we speak of giving most of us think of giving money only. One may give things. That is what the laborer did the other day, in London, on the day of the king's progress through the city, when he quietly emptied his dinner pail in the lap of the beggar who slept, thin and haggard and hungry, on a bench on the Thames embankment, and passed on without awaking him. These are oftentimes easier to give than money, and sometimes more acceptable. Keep your eyes open for opportunity to give things for the help of men and the glory of God. One may give sympathy. Have we not forgotten this? Where do people, good people, even such people as attend these Bible conferences, keep their sympathy nowadays? Is it kept in a safety-deposit box? Must a human being have a set of burglar tools, and use them, to get access to Christian sympathy? Even in such gatherings as these is not there sometimes not only a lack of sympathy, but of even ordinary good-will? Let us, my friends, be on our guard against omissions to give sympathy, sometimes invaluable. None is so poor as to despise honest sympathy. Give it to pastor, Sunday-school superintendent and officers, teachers, and to all the brethren and those without as well. And then we may give service. Listen, now, you laymen, if you please. Some things have been addressed to pastors, here is something for you. For instance, what service are you giving? What are you willing to give? You say you do not know what to do, or where to start. Very well; here is the opening: As soon as you get home hunt up your pastor and tell him that you are at his service to help him in any possible way you can, and make your word good. Service is needed, and the service of laymen is needed; but it is up to them to give it, and give it freely. And we may give our children. Have we forgotten this? Think, all of you, about this. How many homes do you know in which prayer is offered to God Almighty that He will make use of the children of that home in the work of His Kingdom? Not long ago there was occasion in a town of fifteen thousand population, with numerous churches, to look back over more than one hundred years of church history and inquire how many missionaries in the foreign field could be pointed out and claimed, whether dead or alive, as the product of any one of its many churches, and not one such could be identified. Do you believe that town and its churches stand alone in this sorry record? When, pastors, have you preached to your people, or prayed before your people, that missionaries should come out of your congregations? When, people, have your pastors laid this obligation upon your hearts and held it up in your presence before the Lord? In the ascending scale, we next come to the giving of self, the greatest gift of all. "Not what we give, but what we share, for the gift without the giver is bare." Bare, indeed, it is. "Who gives himself with his alms, feeds three—himself, his suffering neighbor and Me."

The giving of money, the gift of which we oftenest think, may be the easiest gift of all to make. We may give money impatiently, merely to be rid of the proposition. It is the most sordid gift of all. Yet beyond any doubt money is power. It "makes the mare go," not because it is a whip, but because it commands power. "Means" is a fine name for money. And here is more need for education, education of the people in how to give, and in what money will do. For Christians it is not only power, but their God multiplies its power. You can use it foolishly; of course you can. You can throw it away, if you like; it is yours. That is what the rich fool in the parable thought about it. You know how it ended with him. But it is one of the tests from God in a Christian's hands.

And finally, for the present, is what I fear is the most neglected and yet one of the worthiest of gifts, that of prayer, intercessory prayer, which really earnest Christian workers in really difficult places desire more than they desire any other one thing; the greatest power which our good God has placed at the command of His children. Yes, "give to him that asketh thee," for there is no excuse for sending him away without one or more of these Christian gifts.

These hints at what many regard as a great problem lead to what answers all questions.

The way to reach the individual's money for God is to first get the individual to give himself to God. There is great need for that full salvation today which saves not only men, but their pocketbooks. It was so with the givers in the early churches in Macedonia: "First they gave their own selves to the Lord" (2 Cor. 8:5). The Christian standard of giving is not the worldly one. "Not as the world giveth give I unto you" (John 14:27). Christians must learn to "make friends by means of the mammon of unrighteousness." They need, and accordingly have been promised, a guide into all truth. They must learn to trustee what they possess instead of treasuring, as somebody has pointedly said. The way to these positions is the way of regeneration and salvation for service.

Scripturally, giving is a grace (2 Cor. 8:7). Is our God one who gives or who receives? When our God gives does He give bountifully or scantily? Does He give to one only, or to a few, or to His own, and not to others? Yea, verily, "He giveth to all"—the just and the unjust, to His children and to His enemies also,—“life, and breath, and all things” (Acts 17:25). Use Romans 8:32, as a spot light, and turn it on this proposition: "He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not also with him freely give us all things?" And there is the root of this Christian standard. To give as the Scripture directs is to give, in our feeble fashion, as He does; "It is more blessed to give than to receive," because that is like Him; giving, ungrudgingly, cheerfully, bountifully, is a grace because this is to give as He gives.

TO HIS FRIENDS UPON HIS BIRTHDAY

By J. A. Richards

O friends of Him who lived to die,
Who lives to die no more,
Have we forgot how death pursued
His infant life, before
He knew His mother's face or smiled
Back at the joy it wore?

Have we forgot?

While heaven flooded earth with song
And night shone as the day,
Have we forgot how when He died
The song had passed away,
And midday, as of night begot,
Grew black with sin's display?

Have we forgot?

Nay! Ring ye bells within our hearts,
Ye bells of hope and praise,
We've not forgot the Christ who died
And lives beyond our gaze,
He's coming back and yet will bless
A thousand Christmas days.

And while the night of sin and war
Broods o'er the world today,
Have we forgot the angel's song
In "Merry Christmas" play,
And for the birth of peace on earth
Have we forborne to pray?

Have we forgot?

And while the news of grace to all
Is heralded away,
Have we forgot the absent Lord,
(The King is still away)
Shall naught be said of bringing back
The King on Christmas day?

Have we forgot?

We've not forgot.

Anti-Christian "Vagabonds"—A Christmas Meditation

By Rev. A. C. Dixon, D. D., London, England

THE Greek word translated "deceiver" in 2 John 7 means primarily a "wanderer," a "vagabond." And this wandering vagabondage is defined as going along two lines:

1. A Refusal to Confess that Jesus Christ Is Come in the Flesh. It says that the man Jesus was born and lived like other men. To maintain this it must of course deny the virgin birth, for that marks Him off as unique among men, "the only begotten of the Father." It is willing to give Him a high standing as teacher and exemplar, and even crown Him as a martyr to a noble mission, while it denies everything supernatural in His life, and therefore intimates that His body did not rise from the dead, though there was some sort of spiritual resurrection.

The movement which would lead the people to wander in this path of theological vagabondage is called "The Vagabond and the Anti-christ." John tells us in his first epistle that in it were many leaders (1 John 2:18). In holy jealousy for the honor of his Lord, John asks, "Who is a liar, but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ? He is an antichrist that denieth the Father and the Son. Whoso denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father" (1 John 2:22). These words plainly teach that the vagabondage of thought which leads to a denial of the claim that Jesus is the Christ, which certainly includes the fact of His incarnation and deity, leads also away from the true fatherhood of God and leaves the theological vagabond in the desert darkness of godlessness. Any god apart from the incarnate Son is a mere idol, the product of intellectual and spiritual wanderings.

2. A Claim That We May Progress Beyond the Teaching of Christ. "Whosoever goeth onward (R. V.) and abideth not in the teaching of Christ hath not God; he that abideth in the teaching, the same hath both the Father and the Son" (2 John 9).

Whether "the teaching of Christ" be interpreted as Christ's teaching or the teaching concerning Christ, the meaning is much the same. What He taught concerning Himself is the loyal Christian's standard of appeal, and this carries with it the supreme authority of His teaching concerning all other subjects. The spirit which in any age would make progress, that is, "goeth onward" beyond "the teaching of Christ" on any subject is intellectual vagabondage, which should be curbed and constrained into paths of more solid and useful thinking. It is the intellectual prodigal of the centuries, which sooner or later finds itself among the swine of unbelief seeking to feed itself with the husks that do not satisfy.

"Look to yourselves," says the loving, loyal John, "that ye lose not those things which we have wrought among you by the teaching of Christ, but that ye receive a full reward." Only loss eternal will come from the workings of the "vagabond" spirit which would set you wandering from the teaching of Christ, though you may think that you are making progress by keeping step with the forward march of the centuries. With all your progress, there is one thing you can never go beyond, and that is "the teaching of Christ" concerning Himself and every other subject.

This intellectual vagabondage is so poisonous and withal so contagious that it is best not to keep company with the "vagabonds," if they should come your way. "If any one cometh unto you and bringeth not this teaching (of Christ), receive him not into your house and give him no greeting; for he that giveth him greeting partaketh in his evil works" (2 John 10, 11). Do not abuse him. Do not wrangle with him. Simply let him alone. Have no fellowship with him.

The "vagabond" will denounce this as narrow, bigoted, intolerant, unworthy of a Christian. Bear it lovingly and patiently. The Master's "well done" is for faithfulness and not for popularity. Please Him by loyalty to His teaching, even though by your refusal to "go onward" along lines of progressive, intellectual and "scientific" vagabondage, you should be stigmatized as the old-fogiest mossback that ever lay asleep in the sunlight of modern civilization. Time or eternity will vindicate you; and you can afford to wait.

HUMILITY

"Let every day be a day of humility; condescend to all the weaknesses and infirmities of your fellow-creatures, cover their failures, love their excellencies, encourage their virtues, relieve their wants, rejoice in their prosperities, compassionate their distresses, receive their friendship, overlook their unkindness, forgive their malice, be a servant of servants, and condescend to do the lowest office to the lowest of mankind.

"Love humility in all its instances; practice it in all its parts, for it is the noblest state of the soul of man; it will set your heart and affections right toward God, and fill you with every temper that is tender and affectionate towards men."

—Paternus to his son.

The Two Brothers, or the Carnal Vs. the Spiritual Mind

By Mrs. George Soltau, Tacoma, Wash.

CAIN and Abel, the first two men born into this world, are typical in more ways than one of all mankind. In their persons they show the unavoidable conflict that must ensue between those who serve God and those who do not; while their offerings picture the only two religions the world has known—that of redemption by shed blood opposed to that of culture or “doing my best.” The apparent success of the great enemy of souls down to the close of this dispensation is also foreshadowed in the first martyrdom.

The brothers started out to work on the two lines which meet man's first needs—food, the fruit of the ground and the milk of the flock; and clothing, from the skins of animals offered in sacrifice and the wool which no doubt they early learned to spin and weave.

“In process of time” each brother brought his offering to Jehovah, no doubt to the place where with their father they may often have been before for the same purpose.

The First Righteous Man

At first sight it may seem as natural that Cain should offer his fruits and vegetables as Abel a lamb; and we recall that later God expressly ordained offerings of wheat ears and flour (Lev. 2). But these could never be offered without a preceding burnt offering, for the shedding of blood as a confession of sin was the only way of approach to God.

Abel's offering shows how carefully Adam had taught his sons, for he “brought of the firstlings of his flock and of the fat thereof.” So this record is that of the first truly righteous man, according to the definitions in Hebrews 11:4 and 1 John 3:12. He recognized his own sin, but had the full assurance of faith that he was forgiven, the acceptance of the lamb meaning justification. He would not have used this language, but we cannot doubt that, though later on men had little understanding of the meaning of sacrifice—in that early day when the revelation had just been given there was a clear understanding of the way of salvation.

Moreover, in the conversation that followed (v. 8), it would seem that Abel bore witness to his brother, reminding him of what they had been taught. The English word “witness” comes from the Saxon “witan,” to know—(a man, who tells what he knows), while the Greek “marturia” implies that he does it at the cost of martyrdom; so it is correct to call Abel the first martyr.

It appears very clear that Cain's action was not in ignorance, but in defiance of God; inspired by the same great adversary who had tempted his mother to her fall.

“The Lord had respect to Abel and to his offering” undoubtedly means that He sent fire to burn up the sacrifice, as we read in Judges 6:21; 13:19-23. Do not we also “have respect” to a gift by stretching out the hand to take it? But Cain's beautiful trophy lay just as he had placed it, probably on a little altar of rough stones near that of his brother. Abel's offering had been taken, but his was disregarded, and had he not a right to be angry if that which represented so much labor in the careful cultivation of the fields was refused?

The Lord condescended to reason, even plead, with him, asking why he was so angry and so depressed, for the way was still open. “If thou doest well, shall it not be lifted up?” (R. V. Marg.). The whole of verse 7 is recognized as difficult, and there are various ways of interposing this phrase; the simplest would seem the best. If Cain would but bring the right offering, his also should be accepted and lifted up, or burned by fire from heaven. “And if thou doest not well, sin lieth at the door,” or as translated in the R. V., “sin coucheth at the door,” which is often taken to be a figurative way of saying that, like a wild animal, sin was seeking to spring upon Cain. The word “sin” is, however, translated “sin offering” in nearly one hundred passages in Exodus, Leviticus and Numbers, and the meaning would seem very plain that Cain had but to go outside to find a lamb for a sacrifice that would be acceptable.

Whether the last part of the verse applies to the former part does not seem clear. The A. V. makes the division of a full stop, not so the R. V., which reads, “and unto thee shall be its desire, but rule thou over it.” Mr. Pratt, in his valuable “Notes on Genesis,” suggests that Cain was fearful of losing his primogeniture, but that God told him this was not necessary. We must be content to leave it without clear understanding now.

Trying to Get Away from God

In verse 8 the two versions are again different. “Cain told Abel,” according to R. V., but in the margin it is, “Let us go into the field.” If this is correct, it is surely just what every unrenewed heart wishes to do, to get away from the place where the presence of God is manifested, away from the altar and sacrifice, where perhaps the cherubim and flaming sword still spoke of holiness and justice. In that neighborhood not even Cain could slay his brother, as jealously impelled him to do.

But he did not get out of the sight of God, and the searching question came, "Where is Abel, thy brother?" His insolent reply, "Am I my brother's keeper?" has echoed down through the centuries if not in words, then in thought, as evidenced by neglect to care for the suffering and needy. How many today are content to enjoy every material blessing while shutting their hearts to the cries of the poor, which we are assured enter into the ears of God!

Now Cain's sentence must be pronounced. Compare it with that of his father. On account of Adam's sin the ground was cursed, so that he would have to toil to win from it subsistence for himself and his family, but Cain was cursed, "from the ground" which hath opened its mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand." He was doomed to be a wanderer, for the ground in whose cultivation he had so prided himself would no longer respond to his care. He had used the fruits of his skill to defy God, and must reap the consequences of his wicked folly.

"And Cain went out from the presence of God," a presence that must always have made him ill at ease, but how awfully dreary and hopeless it sounds.

In the far country of the prodigal he built a city, he founded a family and some of them had the name of God put upon them (Me-hu-jah-el and Me-thu-sha-el) a formal recognition of Elohim but naturally there was no knowledge of God as Jehovah.

Six generations only of his descendants are mentioned, but it is very apparent that they walked in the ways of their father. Lamech, the fifth in descent, is the first who is recorded to have broken the purity of marriage by taking two wives. The first fragment of verse that has come down to us is Lamech's "Song of the Sword," in which it may be that he was boasting of his successful use of a weapon forged for him by his son, Tubalcain; so early in that family was skill used to fashion instruments of warfare!

The Curse of a False Culture

Now to see how this story applies to our day and generation. We have seen that Abel is a picture of believers, not only of those who lived under the dispensations of the Old Testament, but also of those who have accepted salvation through the atoning sacrifice of Jesus Christ our Lord, and who are willing to witness for Him even at the cost of life.

But Cain! Has not culture been the cant phrase of the twentieth century? Has it not been taught in colleges and even in theological schools that man is born innocent, that he only needs the careful training and culture of this advanced age to be fitted for the Paradise above?

What about the land that has made the loudest boast about culture of this kind, the land whose halls of learning attracted men from all countries, there to be taught that the reign of the crucified One was over, and that Woden, god of war, should be followed? Is not this indeed a recrudescence of the Cain spirit and does it not speak to us of the near approach of the last Gentile world emperor so often foretold in Scripture? That superman whose skill and power shall dwarf the greatness of his predecessors from the time of Nebuchadnezzar onward?

Turn to Revelation for his picture. We see him first as the rider on the white horse (6:2), the emblem of peaceful rule, wearing a crown not inherited but "given to him." Speedily, however, as all men are not willing to submit to his pretensions, the white horse is changed to a red one, the color of blood, for he has really come "to conquer," and famine and pestilence follow as ever in the wake of war.

We see the magnificence of his imperial capital, which will combine the glories of ancient Babylon with the luxuries of modern great cities and will dazzle the world. Read Revelation 18, which describes its fall.

See the details of its marvelous riches which minister to the selfish indulgence of the wealthy. But note also what they will not heed, but that which God will take strict account of—the oppression of the bodies and the souls of men—the awful poverty, which is inseparable from the possession of enormous fortunes by a few.

The unequal conditions of humanity, which are so striking today, will undoubtedly increase, notwithstanding all efforts to the contrary, until He comes whose right it is to reign. He is the only one able to use absolute power for blessing to all who acknowledge Him.

"I cannot escape the influence that surrounded me in the days when I went to college. I cannot while I live cease to be grateful, not that I fell into the hands of someone specially designated to do it, not that I fell into the hands of an Association secretary who had in his hands the whole working of the Christian life of the institution, but that in those old days at Ohio Wesleyan I fell into the hands of a faculty, which faculty felt itself under a divine compulsion to do what it could do to induce young fellows like me, who had come to college without having given themselves to Jesus Christ, to give themselves to Jesus Christ."—Bishop McDowell.

God and One Man

The Story of America's Greatest Revival

By Henry W. Adams

DID you ever notice that when God has a great plan for the world, He generally speaks in the ear of some one man or woman? There was only one Moses, one Martin Luther, one Lincoln, one Frances Willard, one D. L. Moody.

And so in the time of which we are now speaking, God picked His man. He was tall, slim, with pleasant face and manner, about the style of Uncle Sam. Just a modest business man, and no one but God would pick him out, to turn the world upside down. It was in the fall of 1857, and a tremendous financial panic was sweeping over the land. In the large cities thousands were out of employment, and great distress prevailed.

Nowhere did these conditions rest more heavily than in the lower part of New York City, but the old North Dutch Church, (located corner of Fulton and William Streets) in place of moving up town had already thought of a better plan. They employed, some weeks before the panic came a lay missionary, Mr. Jeremiah C. Lanphier. My father-in-law was his special chum and bosom friend, so I often met him. His picture stands graphically before me today.

Putting into use his business methods, Mr. Lanphier divided his field into districts, prepared a neat leaflet describing the church services, and handed them personally, with kind words of welcome to everybody in that region. The hotels and boarding houses were not overlooked, and in addition, special card notices were displayed on their walls.

When a man commences a real work for God he is often driven to Him in prayer, for courage and strength. It was at such a time that Mr. Lanphier thought of establishing the Fulton Street Noon Prayer Meeting, destined to become famous throughout the world. In all his visits thereafter he announced the date of opening, "Twelve o'clock, Wednesday, September 23, 1857." Handbills were liberally distributed in hotels, factories, mercantile establishments and residences. Notwithstanding all this, at the appointed hour he was the only one present. Thirty minutes later the next man appeared, and the whole gathering finally numbered only six persons. At the second meeting, September 30, twenty were present, and on October 7, forty. At that meeting a proposition was carried to hold the services daily.

From that time on all classes began to attend. Capitalists and laborers, professional men, merchants, clerks, "butchers and bakers and candlestick makers," all were represented.

Beginning with men only, finally a fair proportion of the gentler sex attended.

How the Holy Fire Spread

By the middle of January, 1858, all three of the lecture rooms of the church were overflowing. Already a Daily Prayer Meeting had commenced in Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, and before long twenty different noon meetings had been established in New York City alone. Even the fire and police departments had opened their doors for services of prayer, and merchants had assigned rooms where their clerks could gather for communion with God.

Preaching services were also held at Burton's theater on Chambers street, and in other public places. Henry Ward Beecher, Theodore L. Cuyler, and other great preachers, spoke to thronging multitudes. Everywhere religion had become the leading topic of thought and conversation.

The newspapers were not slow to catch the great theme of the day, and with big headlines reported the "Great Awakening." Thus the revival spirit soon spread to the principal cities, specially throughout the north.

On November 23 a Daily Noon Prayer Meeting was started in the Union Methodist Church, Philadelphia. Later, one of the smaller rooms in James Hall proved more central. At first, slowly, then more rapidly, the interest and attendance increased, until the large hall was engaged, and filled to overflowing. Every day about three thousand gathered and similar meetings were held in other large halls. It was estimated that in Philadelphia alone, ten thousand were converted during the revival.

Among the foremost leaders in that city was Dudley A. Tyng, an Episcopal clergyman. God called him home, in the midst of the revival and on his dying bed, with the eyes of his soul filled with the scenes so dear to him, he gave to the world the war-cry,

"Stand up, Stand up for Jesus!"

Shortly after, this was sent to all lands through the famous hymn of another clergyman, Dr. George Duffield, beginning with those words. How wide-spread the revival became, is well shown by the remarks of a gentleman in one of evangelist Finney's great meetings in Boston. He said, "I am from Omaha, Nebraska. On my journey east I have found a continuous prayer meeting all the way. It was a prayer meeting two thousand miles long."

In Chicago two thousand people daily crowded into the Metropolitan Theater, and many churches were also thus used. One of the results of this revival in Chicago, was the organization of the Young Men's Christian Association. Dwight L. Moody's hearty co-operation in its work was largely the school which developed this mighty leader of men. Later on the revival's influence led him to throw up all worldly ambition and devote himself entirely as a winner of souls.

God alone knows what it meant thus to develop Mr. Moody. His evangelistic work for years here and beyond the sea; his labors in the United States Christian Commission, during the Civil War; his magnificent work in the Northfield seminaries and conferences; in the Chicago Y. M. C. A., Moody Bible Institute, and Moody Church; his galvanizing into new life and power thousands of dormant Christians until they became flaming torch-bearers for God; all this, and much more, which never will be known, until the day when we arrive at the home land, dates back to that kneeling layman, in the Old North Dutch Church.

Nor did the work cover America alone. In 1858 a delegation of Irish Presbyterians visited the Fulton Street Daily Prayer Meeting, and through newspaper articles, by letters and in various ways, tidings were carried to England, Scotland, and Ireland. During 1859 a great revival spread all over those countries, doubtless in large degree, the result of these influences.

Is it not a tremendous thought, that under the overruling power of God, this is

The Mighty River of Influence which has widened and widened. It began in the little spring, where one every-day man, Jeremiah C. Lanphier, knelt in the chapel of the "Old North Dutch Church," September 23, 1857. But he was not alone—Jesus Christ was by his side.

Here, my reader, is the moral of this simple story. God is whispering into your ears and mine. If we will listen to His voice, and stop to hold converse with Him, day by day, we shall become His partners and fellow-workers, in His plans for the redemption of the world. Perhaps He may suggest to some of us the very thing which Jeremiah Lanphier heard, the establishment of a Daily Noon Prayer Meeting. Who can tell?

Millions of men and women are wondering, "What is the lesson of this world catastrophe?" The greatest Bible students of America and Europe are asking, "Are we not nearing the end of this age?"

Jesus tells us, "I must work the works of Him that sent me, while it is day; the night cometh when no man can work."

It may be nearer than we think!

A Remarkable Christian—A Story of an English Farmer

The following letter from an English correspondent was recently received by the Business Manager of the Moody Bible Institute. He thought it so unusual and so worthy of further attention that he turned it over to us. Being equally impressed by it, we now turn it over to our readers, and ask them thoughtfully to peruse it and the comments we make upon it. We believe it will lead them to do some thinking, and prove an inspiration to them, and a blessing to the cause of Christ.—Editors.

DEAR Sir:

The time is coming again when I should send you my subscription. I am pleased to say that we are all fairly well and still contending for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints.

You will be glad to know that our missionary enterprise this year has been a great success although we have only a small village, with about six farmers and the workmen. Besides what we have done for the Red Cross, and Servian and Belgian Funds, which amounted to about £ 30, we raised £ 20 or a little over, for the missionary work.

Instead of having the missionary meeting on a cold and probably wet November night, we had it in the summer, in the shape of a garden party at one of the farmer's houses, and we considered there were about two hundred people there. We had a very good speaker, a returned missionary from India, and a lovely day. As we had such a good day we were able to hand the missionary £5 for his hospital work in India, and give £15 to the general missionary funds.

I am sending you my subscription now, as I have had notice to join the army soon, if I cannot give good reasons why I should not do so. But as I am a farmer and over age, I think I shall get off.

If, however, I have to go, I shall still need an interest in your prayers, also for my wife and little girl, who, I have always hoped since she was born, would go as a missionary to the poor heathen.

It is my wish if anything happens to me, that my wife will still continue to subscribe to the Moody Bible Institute, and that you will always send her "The Christian Workers Magazine."

If I should require any colportage books later, I hope you will send them on at once. I am sending for some now. I think I like "Heaven" better than any. I have given them all away and I think they are greatly appreciated.

I sent an extra subscription last year in case I did not send any more on account of the war. But as the relationship with us and the United States of America is at times, to my thinking, rather precarious, I am sending you another one.

Are you sending any literature to the German prisoners we have in England? If so, I should like to send a little towards it. I do not know whether we are doing much for their spiritual welfare or not. I enclose check value of £3.3.0 for items on the back of this sheet.

Your sincere friend,

* * *

This man is a remarkable Christian not merely because he is contending "for the faith which was once delivered to the saints," but because his contending is so thoughtful and intelligent, so unselfish, so hopeful, so confident, so expansive in its outlook, and so loving in its spirit.

There is a terrible war in progress in his country, the most terrible the world has ever known, every home in every little hamlet is feeling it; it has forced its way to his own hearthstone; and yet his mind is set "on things above, not on things on the earth." His country, and one would think his own loved ones, would need every shilling he could command, for evidently he is not a wealthy man, and yet he is giving to others.

And the breadth of his giving, notice it. The foreign field is named first, but the need at home has not been forgotten. The spiritual side is paramount, but the material is remembered also—the Red Cross, the Servian and Belgian funds.

And see the calculating and the planning that the "King's business" may get every advantage—the lovely summer day, not a wet November night; a garden party, not an overheated little hall. "A very good speaker" also. O, the Lord has a wise and faithful servant here!

The next thing that impresses us is his fidelity to his promises. Under such circumstances many a man would have felt justified in "forgetting" his annual pledge to a Christian institution four thousand miles away. And that too in a land of peace and plenty! "O, they have enough money in the United States, let them take care of their own affairs," would have been the common argument. "And they are making their money at our expense" would have been the added plea, "and their relations with us in Great Britain are 'to my thinking, rather precarious,' I guess I will cut out that little pledge."

No, he will do nothing of the kind. He will pay his subscription ahead of time, lest it should be difficult to attend to it at the front, or lest he should be killed. Killed! He will arrange that his wife continue the subscription. And, inasmuch as with a donation of that size, "The Christian Workers Magazine" is sent free, the woman he loves will have that monthly blessing coming to her after he is gone.

But there are still others to be thought about, even though life and drum are bidding him to hasten. Before he exchanges the sunlight of the farm for the damp and darkness of the trenches, let him remember his neighbor worse off in a spiritual sense. He has been giving away the Moody colportage books, let him have some more out of the balance of the money he is sending. Their gospel messages are appreciated in this day of trial as never before. That one on "Heaven," O, the people want that these days. Send an extra supply of "Heaven."

If we rest on our mercies instead of on the God of our mercies, we shall become unstable, perplexed, and insecure. God does not withdraw His loving care and cancel His promises because of failures, though He gives us to eat of the fruit of our doings. Prov. 1:31, 32. 1 Cor. 1:9.—Mrs. Anna Shipton.

God calls us alone when He would show us His counsel; He knows how to hedge up our way to Himself by the thorns of the wilderness. We are called alone with God in all His personal transactions with us, both in blessing and in trial—as Abraham in the blessing promised him (Genesis 15:12, etc.), and in the trial of offering up his only son to the God who gave him; as Jacob in his desert dream and his conflict at Penueil; as Joseph in prison and at the court of Pharaoh; as Elijah by the brook Cherith and under the juniper; as Daniel in the lion's den and before kings, the recipient and exponent of the mysteries of God; as the beloved John, prisoner at Patmos; Paul at Athens (1 Thess. 3:1) and before Caesar; yes, and as Bunvan in Bedford Jail, Mme. Guyon in the Bastille, Rutherford in Aberdeen, and many others less known, but whose works proclaim that to be alone with God and satisfied with Him is to bear witness through all the ages of God's power and love,—a great cloud of witnesses to the life of faith.—Mrs. Anna Shipton.

Prophecy and the Lord's Return

L. W. Gosnell

LIGHT ON THE PRESENT CRISIS

By Rev. Leonard Newby

It would be impossible to answer a tithe of the questions which men and women are asking concerning the European war. But I will try to answer five questions, out of the "word of truth" rightly divided.

I.

Our first question shall be this: Does not this war justify us in fearing that there may be no God? If there was a God would He not stretch forth His mighty hand and confound the politics and frustrate the tricks of those whose creed is that might is right, and that the weakest must be crushed? What is the answer?

This, that the children of God have been looking for a war like this for many a year, and if it had not come sooner or later God's Word would have been falsified. Those who have studied the prophetic Scriptures know that the "times of the Gentiles" are rapidly running out: then, we are told, shall nation rise against nation and kingdom against kingdom. Instead of this war proving that God does not exist, it is rather a testimony to His faithfulness, and an overwhelming reminder that not a word He has spoken shall fail to come to pass. The European war writes the fact in large letters, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away."

But if there were a God, would He not intervene at a crisis like this? My answer is, He Will. Read the second Psalm and a multitude of other passages of Scripture and you will discover that God will not always keep silence. The time is coming when He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh and the Lord shall have the nations in derision: He shall break them with a rod of iron, and dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel. "But why," you may ask, "does He not do it now?" For three reasons at least. First, because He has world-wide purposes to fulfil through this present disaster. Secondly, because He is long-suffering, and will restrain His wrath until the last moment. Thirdly, because He knows His postponed intervention will be more for our ultimate good and His glory. We may not think so, but our vision is very limited; but God sees the end from the beginning.

"Known unto him are all his works from the beginning of the age." Let us therefore rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for Him. He may tarry, but He will never come too late. "Blessed are all they who put their trust in him."

II.

Here is the second question: Is it not an awful thing for one Christian nation to be fighting against another Christian nation?

Yes, it would be indeed, but that is not the case. There is not, and never has been, such a company of people as a Christian nation, and never will be until the Lord comes. The nations, in God's sight, are regarded as great antagonistic world powers, who act at the instigation of Satan, and whose authority will be terminated by the sure and certain coming of His Christ. The people of God are one company, the Gentile nations of this evil age are quite another. The identification of the two is unscriptural, illogical and confusing. The people of God who form the mystical body of Jesus Christ are a small company of people scattered among the nations—among nations which, in God's sight, present the aspect, not of Christian communities but that of wild beasts ready to devour one another; at least that is what we learn from the vision that the Lord vouchsafed to Daniel in the seventh chapter of his prophecies.

In this great European war the strife is not between two companies of God's people, but between various world powers whose doom is sealed; those true Christians who are engaged in it are simply doing their duty in that state of life in which God has called them. Although engaged in war they hate bloodshed, and if all men were as they are (and this shall be the case some day, Isa. 2:4) there would be no war. A little clear thinking, accompanied by an intelligent knowledge of God's Word, will easily dispose of the fallacy that this war is being waged between Christian nations, for it is impossible for us to find in this dispensation a whole Christian town, village, or congregation, not to mention a Christian nation.

A third question is this: Will not this present devastating war hinder God's work?

The answer is, No, and for two reasons. First, by means of this war God is fulfilling His purposes, and secondly, by means of this war God is preparing for the second coming of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. How is God fulfilling His purposes? In two ways. He is punishing the nations for their iniquities just as he always does and as He did in olden times in the cases of Babylon, Assyria, Egypt and others. Think of the atrocities for which Belgium was, comparatively recently, responsible on the Congo. Think of the infidelity, the legalized prostitution, and blatant atheism of France! Think of the awful persecution of the ancient people by Russia, not to mention the opposition to the spread of God's Word by the Greek Church there! Think of the godlessness, the covetousness, the worldliness, the opium traffic, the neglected opportunities of the British Empire. Think of the estimate that seventy-five per cent of people never enter a place of worship. We could tell things about the city of London, the world's great capital, too terrible to mention, that would make every righteous soul cry out, "shall not my God avenge His soul on such a nation as this?" Germany's turn will come for its greed and cruelty and unlawful ambition. God could punish nations directly, but He is a great economist, and He uses the crimes of sinful men for fulfilling His purposes without endorsing the crimes, and makes the wrath of men to praise Him. For another thing the territory of the Old Roman Empire must correspond with the picture given of it by Daniel's image (see Daniel 2) before the times of the Gentiles are fulfilled, and Babylon, that greatest of all cities, must be built in the East according to the prophetic word. Time will show how this present war will contribute towards bringing about the necessary redistribution of territory. The way, too, is being cleared for the second advent. Before the Lord can return to Israel, the Jews must be in Palestine, assembled as a nation in unbelief with their temple rebuilt. The war is materially affecting the political situation of the Jews, and probably will set them free for their own land, which in some way must be theirs, for God has sworn to give it to them.

IV.

A fourth question is this: Does not this war shew the failure of Christianity? The Word of God replies, No. Christianity is one thing, civilization is quite another. The records of ancient Egypt prove that a high state of civilization existed centuries before Christianity was born. Past ages and this age prove the utter failure of civilization apart from regeneration. What men and women need is not civilization merely, although God knows how much in some quarters that is needed), but they need to be born again (John 3:3), not to be veneered, but to become the subjects of a mighty spiritual revolution from within.

Christianity is not a failure. In every dispensation God's purposes are carried through in spite of all the opposition man or devil may offer, and this present dispensation will be no exception. Had it been God's purpose to convert the world in this dispensation then we should have to acknowledge that God had been thwarted, but that is not His purpose. His purpose is to gather out from amongst all nations a number of persons who shall form the body of Christ. No power in earth or hell can thwart that purpose. That number is referred to in Scripture as "the fulness" (or complement, as Bishop Lightfoot interprets the word) of the Gentiles (Rom. 11:25). The order of events in God's programme is clearly stated in that very remarkable passage written in Acts 15:13-17, where the Apostle James affirms:—"Simeon hath declared how God at the first visited the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name. . . . After this (saith the Lord through the prophet) I will return and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof and I will set it up." In other words, God will resuscitate Israel as a nation. Why? That the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and "all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things." As a matter of fact, numbers of men and women are trying to fulfil a purpose which appears in God's programme for the next age. No wonder they are disappointed. They are preaching the gospel of the Kingdom instead of the gospel of the grace of God. Men pray today for the extension of a kingdom which is in abeyance, because rejected by Israel, and which cannot even commence until the Lord comes. The right thing to pray for is what is prayed for in that beautiful Church of England collect contained in our incomparable burial service. "That it may please Thee shortly to accomplish the number of Thine elect, and hasten Thy kingdom." The accomplishing of the number of God's elect is the first event. That is being carried forward. The present war is actually helping it, for the Word of God is now gathering out from the ranks of the conflicting armies a great number who are definitely accepting the Lord Jesus as their Saviour. When the elect are gathered out and removed from this benighted sphere of conflict, then (at least after a dark interval), the kingdom of Christ will be established, and no power shall be able to hinder it, and it shall extend north, south, east, and west, and all nations shall do Him service, "and the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea."

(To be continued.)

THE LAYMENS COMMENTARY ON THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS

Conducted By James M. Gray

SECOND EPISTLE TO TIMOTHY

PERSONAL TO TIMOTHY

Chapter 1

When Paul addressed his earlier letter to Timothy, the latter was in Ephesus, and there are reasons to believe he was still there.

Paul was now a prisoner in Rome for a second time, awaiting a hearing before the Emperor, and he was not being treated with the consideration shown him on the earlier occasion (Acts 28), but like a common prisoner. The immediate occasion for this letter grew out of this, for he is anxious to have Timothy and Mark as his companions (1:4, 4:9, etc.). He is conscious that his death by martyrdom could not be long delayed, for these were the days of wicked Nero, and not knowing whether he should see Timothy again, or not, he was desirous of adding still further to the instructions he had given him.

There is reason to believe that Timothy required these encouragements in a marked degree. His character was not of the stuff that went into Paul's. He suggests the diffidence of Jeremiah in the Old Testament, without some of the redeeming qualities he possessed. For references to the lack of courage of Timothy, see 1:5, 7; 3:10.

1. Salutation, 1:1, 2.

2. Thanksgiving, vv. 3-5.

In this thanksgiving on Timothy's behalf, there is a reference to his spiritual history, which seems to have come down in his mother's line.

3. Exhortation, vv. 6-14.

The exhortation which follows, and which has grown out of the remembrance of Timothy's past life and the piety of his ancestors, contains three or four natural divisions.

(1) An exhortation to firmness in the faith (vv. 6-8). This can be cultivated, stirred up. It is inherent in the spiritual gift he received from God at the time he was set apart to the ministry, and is not consonant with fearfulness, the moral cowardice to which he seems to have been addicted, but is evinced rather in the exercise of suitable discipline in the spirit of love (R. V.) and in boldness of testimony even to the point of suffering.

(2) This exhortation enforced by the character of the gospel and the mercy of God (vv. 9-11).

(3) Finally, the apostle cites his own example (vv. 12-14). He suffers for his testimony, and is not ashamed of it; he is willing to suffer, he counts it worth while, in the light of his faith. Let Timothy profit in word and deed by what he sees in him.

4. Description of False Brethren (vv. 15-18).

This exhortation to Timothy gathers force from the circumstance that some who professed fealty to Christ have been guilty of defection, if one may judge by their desertion of Christ's servant in his trial (v. 15). Their action, however, serves to bring out the stronger the love of another brother, for whom he prays (vv. 16-18).

Questions

1. Locate both Paul and Timothy at this time.
2. State the possible reason for this epistle.
3. Analyze Timothy's character and temperament.
4. Divide the chapter into four parts.
5. Analyze the exhortation in the chapter.

INSTRUCTING A TEACHER OF TEACHERS

Chapters 2-4: 8

The instruction may be divided into three parts.

1. He is instructed concerning his duty as a teacher of teachers (2:2), but in that connection is again exhorted to firmness, or rather to strength and "hardness," which are practically the same (vv. 1, 3). What figure of speech does Paul use to illuminate his theme? What particular lesson would be drawn from it (v. 4)? What second figure does he use at verse 5? Here is a reference to the Olympian games. How must a man have contended in order to win a crown? What third figure is used at verse 6? What reward does the faithful husbandman receive? It is easy to see from these illustrations the direction in which this young minister required encouragement and warning. He must separate himself from the world, strive faithfully and obediently, and work diligently to receive the blessing. In this connection, what fact was he to keep in mind (v. 8)? Note how Paul once more digresses to his own example. He was not laying upon Timothy any burden he did not himself bear. Indeed, on behalf of the gospel just spoken of, he suffered "hardships," (for so the word "trouble" should be translated in v. 9), and he also endured (v. 10). For whose sake was it done? And why? Speaking of the "eternal glory" the elect were going to obtain, was it an assured experience for them (vv. 11-13)?

2. Again, in this instruction to Timothy as a teacher of teachers, he is directed to caution them about idle and foolish words (v. 14). But no sooner is this dictum laid down than he is once more exhorted as in the other case, to be the kind of teacher he would have others be. To what is he exhorted in verse 15? What do you suppose that expression means, "Rightly dividing the word of truth?" In reply, note the three classes of peoples into which Paul divides mankind in 1 Corinthians 10:32. Do you not think that "rightly dividing the word of truth" must mean giving to each of these their "portion of meat in due season"? But how can this be done where one is ignorant of the dispensational teaching of the Bible, which we are trying to emphasize in this commentary? What is to be avoided in this teaching (v. 19)? To what physical disease is that kind of foolish teaching likened in the next verse? How careful we need to be not to allow our study of dispensational truth to become fanatical gangrene! How much we need the wisdom from above, the balance of mind and heart which the Holy Spirit alone can supply!

But we need not pursue our inquiries into this chapter further. The same mingled exhortation, instruction and warning continue throughout, and can be brought out by the student through questioning and patient waiting for the answer to suggest itself as above.

3. Proceeding to chapter three, Timothy receives instruction concerning the last times, i. e., the times at the end of the present age. What kind of times does the spirit of God say they will be (1)? The word "perilous" is in the Revised Version "grievous." What shall constitute their grievous character (vv. 2-5)? What class of persons are designated as influenced by these things, and why (vv. 6, 7)? How does the apostle seek to strengthen Timothy against these things by his own example (vv. 10-13)? And what exhortation does he now receive (vv. 14-16)? What tribute to the Holy Scriptures is in verse 15? And how is their authority and infallibility affirmed in the following verse? The Revised Version renders this verse a little differently, but this is one of the places where the King James translation is to be preferred not only as the stronger, but also the more scholarly of the two. To what "charge" to Timothy does this allusion to the Holy Scriptures lead (4:1, 2)? What consideration adds solemnity to that charge (v. 1)? What consideration makes that charge to be necessary (vv. 3, 4)? What office is Timothy to exercise in addition to that of an overseer and teacher in order to "make full proof" or fulfill his ministry (v. 5)? What consideration personal to Paul adds solemnity to this exhortation (vv. 6-8)?

Questions

1. How many of the questions in the text of the lesson have you answered?
2. How often does Paul allude to his own example?
3. Can you quote 1 Corinthians 10:32?
4. Can you quote 2 Timothy 3:16?
5. What was Timothy to be besides an evangelist?

PERSONAL TO PAUL

Chapter 4:9-22

We have now passed beyond the portion of the epistle devoted to instruction and reached that in which the writer deals with personal matters (4:9-22). An aged prisoner in Rome, awaiting trial, and almost certain execution, he is, alas! forsaken by many who should have stood by him. Demas has left him, Crescens, and even Titus. He wishes Timothy to hasten to his side, and to bring Mark with him. It has all been made up with Mark since the sad affair in Acts 13. He needs his cloak, too, and parchments. He can not at this moment forget that man Alexander. Is he the Alexander named in Acts 19? Doubtless. Timothy is warned against him, for he is still in Ephesus.

Paul has had one hearing before Cæsar and another is coming. At the hearing, however, he was sadly deserted by his friends. O! the grief of defection! Nevertheless, the Lord stood by him, and He will continue to do so. Friends are saluted at Ephesus. Hasten, Timothy, I want you.

No questions are called for as following this lesson.

EPISTLE TO TITUS

HIS COMMISSION

Chapter 1

The epistle to Titus was written prior to the second to Timothy. Alford, and others, suppose that after Paul's liberation from prison (see Acts 28), he journeyed eastward as anticipated in Philemon 22 and Philippians 1:26, 2:24, and visited Ephesus again. Other journeys to the West followed, occupying three or four years, during which time he visited Crete in company with Titus, leaving him there to complete the organization of the church in that neighborhood. This church had probably been founded prior to this time, and now the same heresy is beginning to show itself as in the church at Ephesus over which Timothy had been set.

The epistle to Titus was probably written from some point in Asia Minor where Paul was stopping on his way to winter at Nicopolis in Greece (3:12). Crete is a small island to the west of Cyprus, and where the waters of the Mediterranean and Aegean seas meet. No account is found in the Acts as to the circumstances under which the church originated there, but it is probable the gospel was borne to the island by the Jewish converts at Jerusalem on the Day of Pentecost.

Of Titus himself little is known. The earliest references to him are in Galatians, where we learn that he was a Gentile, probably one of Paul's converts, who accompanied him and Barnabas to Jerusalem at the first council (Acts 15). See Galatians 2:1-4. He is mentioned again in 2 Corinthians, where he seems to have been sent by Paul on a mission to Corinth from Ephesus (2 Cor. 8:6; 12:18). See other references to him in that epistle, in chapters 2 and 7. For a number of years he is lost sight of after this, until we now find him at Crete. His later career does not seem to have been all that it might have been so far as his loyalty to the apostle is concerned, if we may judge from 2 Timothy 4:10. During Paul's second imprisonment at Rome he seems not to have remained with him.

The epistle may be outlined thus:

1. The Salutation, 1:1-4.

2. The Commission to Titus, vv. 5-9.

In these verses it will be seen that the duties of Titus at Crete were substantially those of Timothy at Ephesus. Reference to that will throw light on this.

3. The Description of False Teachers, vv. 10-16.

The need of elders and overseers such as Paul had indicated, was seen in the heresies that were in the church, and which were of the same character as those mentioned in the epistle to Timothy. The errorists were chiefly Jews (v. 10). The language in verses 12 and 13 is striking, since Paul there quotes from one of their own poets against them (Epimenides), whose witness is borne out by Livy, Plutarch, Polybius and Strabo, who speak of the Cretan's love of gain, natural ferocity, fraud, falsehood, and general depravity. Titus did not have an easy place to fill, and his work ought to bring comfort to Christian workers under not very different surroundings today.

There is a statement in verse 15 that calls for particular attention. "To the pure all things are pure" is an aphorism greatly abused. To understand it, turn back to 1 Timothy 4:4. The reference here in Titus is the same as there, (and in Romans 14:20), to the eating of meats which the Jewish law forbade on ceremonial grounds. The Jewish professing Christians referred to previously as false teachers, were seeking to impose these customs upon the converts from Gentilism, and Paul was withstanding them by saying, as he had contended all along, and as God had taught Peter in Acts 10, that there was nothing of this kind unclean in itself. That is, it was not sinful for a Christian to eat such things. The "pure" means those who are sanctified by faith, true believers on the Lord Jesus Christ. Such are not bound by the Jewish commandments in eating and drinking, but are at liberty to eat all the creatures of God set apart for their use, without sin. How monstrous in the light of the true meaning of the words, for people to employ them as a permission to look at obscene pictures in art galleries, and listen to lewd stories, and read impure books, and witness impure plays. These actions on their part testify that they are not the "pure" Paul has in mind, but the defiled and the unbelieving, referred to later in the same verse. "They profess that they know God, but by their works they deny Him."

Questions

1. Locate Crete.
2. Give the history of Titus.
3. Describe the Cretans.
4. Explain the phrase, "To the pure all things are pure."
5. How are these words frequently misapplied?

CONCERNING CHURCH MEMBERS

Chapters, 2, 3

Paul now enters upon instructions to Titus, as in the case of Timothy, concerning different classes in the church. Aged men are first spoken of, verses 1, 2. It is sound doctrine that these be of the character described. Aged women are next referred to (v. 3), and under cover of that exhortation comes an allusion to the younger women (vv. 4, 5). Titus does not exhort the young women directly on the themes indicated, but indirectly through the older women. A hint for Christian workers in our own time, and especially in slum districts, where discretion is to be observed between the sexes. The young men come in for treatment next (v. 6), to whom Titus, himself a young man, was to set the right example (vv. 7, 8). Then follows an exhortation for servants, where bond-servants or slaves are meant (vv. 9, 10). "The duties of these last, and indeed of all classes, are grounded on the moral purpose of God in the gospel concerning us" (vv. 11, 14). These last-named verses are full of strong meat, and will bear close analysis. See what the Christian's hope is, in verse 13. Observe the two-fold object which Christ had in view in the work of the Cross, verse 14, and the obligation it lays upon believers, verse 12.

Pastors will find a fine outline here for an expository discourse on "Four Great Things": (a) A great revelation (v. 11); (b) a great obligation (v. 12); (c) a great inspiration (v. 13); (d) a great salvation (v. 14).

All these classes are now put in mind of
(Continued on page 290.)

Sunday-School Department

Exposition of the International Lessons

By P. B. Fitzwater

December 10

The Message of the Glorified Lord to the Church

Revelation 2:1-17

Golden Text.—“Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.”—Revelation 2:10.

These epistles were addressed to seven historical churches actually in existence at that time in Asia. Out of the many churches then in existence, the Spirit selected these and made them representative and symbolical. They give us pictures of the conditions of church life throughout the successive stages of her history. They have a fourfold application:

1. To the local and historical churches addressed.
2. To the churches in every age, as touchstones by means of which they can test their spiritual condition in the sight of God.
3. To individual saints enabling them to discern their condition.
4. Prophetically. To disclose phases of the spiritual history of the church from the apostolic age to the present.

I. The Glorified Lord's Message to the Church at Ephesus (2:1-7).

This message exhibits the general state of the church at the close of the apostolic period.

1. The Lord's Title (v. 1). The appropriateness of this title is seen in that Christ is the One who has actually beheld their condition and therefore speaks from actual knowledge. Holding the stars in His right hand indicates His authority.

2. The Lord's Commendation (vv. 2, 3, 6).

- a. For its work (v. 2). it was diligent to maintain good works—a very important feature of right church life.
- b. For its patience (v. 2). Its persevering endurance; notwithstanding opposition the church steadfastly endured, patiently toiled on.
- c. For its efforts to maintain a clean membership (v. 2). Church discipline was rigidly enforced. This is essential to right church life.
- d. For the rejection of a false ecclesiasticism (vv. 2, 6). Those among them claiming to be apostles were tested; those among them who assumed superior authority and power were tested. The Nicolaitanes were condemned. The Nicolaitanes were ecclesiastical rulers, lording authority over the people. This is borne out by the etymology of the term, meaning “People conquerors”, and the historical fact that at this period in the history of the church the Papacy began.

3. The Lord's Complaint (v. 4). Though outwardly all was right, orthodox and orderly, the enthusiasm of first love was wanting.

4. The Lord's Counsel (v. 5). This counsel was enforced by a solemn warning, “I will come quickly and remove thy candlestick.”

5. The Lord's Promise to Overcomers (v. 7).

II. The Glorified Lord's Message to the Church at Smyrna. (2:8-11).

This shows the persecution period of church history.

1. The Lord's Title (v. 8). This church was in the most bitter throes of persecution. The Lord presents Himself in this appropriate title, indicating His ability to comfort them. As He, because of fidelity, went down to death but still lives, so His followers should be faithful unto death assured that they shall also live.

2. The Lord's Commendation (v. 9). It is mainly a commendation by silence. It was a small and poor church, but rich in spiritual things.

3. The Lord's Counsel (v. 10). This is not a promise to those who remain faithful until they die, but to those who remain faithful in the face of death.

4. The Lord's Promise to Overcomers (v. 11). The second death is the burning in the lake of fire (See Rev. 21:8). All experience physical death, unless caught up to meet the Lord in the air; but only those who reject Christ experience the second death.

III. The Glorified Lord's Message to the Church at Pergamos. (2:12-17).

This shows the declension period of church history which began with the conversion of Constantine.

1. The Lord's Title (v. 12). This title is again most fitting, for this church was harboring evil. The word Pergamos signifies the thorough union of the church with the world.

2. The Lord's Commendation (v. 13). Satan has a particular throne from which he controls those who yield to him. How sadly true of the church today, having formed alliances with mammon and worldly powers. May this be a warning to her!

3. The Lord's Complaint (vv. 14, 15). According to Numbers, chapters 22, 25, 33, the doctrine of Balaam was the corruption of God's people by alliances with the heathen in marriage. Not being able to curse Israel, he taught Balak how to entice them in matrimonial alliances, thus accomplishing the same end.

4. The Lord's Counsel (v. 16). "Repent, or I will come quickly and fight against thee."

5. The Lord's Promise to Overcomers (v. 17). May this promise be an incentive to all to keep themselves unspotted from the world!

December 17 The Eternal State Revelation 21

Golden Text.—"Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people."—Revelation 21:3.

This lesson gives us a forward look into things as they shall be in the final state—when the redemptive work of Christ shall have been completed.

1. A New Heaven and a New Earth (v. 1).

This does not mean another heaven and another earth, but the original ones purified, rejuvenated. Sin has polluted both the heaven and the earth, but both shall go through a process of renovation (2 Pet. 3:10, 12). There is no foundation in Scripture or nature for the notion that the earth shall be annihilated. It is true that it shall go through a process of burning, but Peter guards against this false doctrine of annihilation in verse 13, "Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth." Besides, there is no evidence that an atom of matter has ever become extinct. In this renewal of the universe the sea disappears. "There was no more sea." In the catastrophe which befell the earth it was buried beneath the waters; in this renewal the waters depart forever. The sea shall give up her dead, and no more tragedies shall ever take place there.

II. The Holy City—The New Jerusalem (vv. 2-27).

1. What It Is (vv. 2, 9). The church must be meant; it is the fulfilment of Ephesians 1:7. God has now really come to dwell among men. 2. From Whence It Came (vv. 2, 10). It descends from God out of heaven. That which was taken up when Christ came for His church now descends from God to make known His glory. The "pearl of great price" (Matt. 13:46) now lies on the bosom of the eternal God, making manifest His glory to the universe.

3. Blessedness of Those Who Abide Therein (vv. 3, 4). (1). Shall be God's people (v. 3). Shall be blest and protected by Him. (2). God shall dwell with them (v. 3). Before sin entered the world men had fellowship with God; now this privilege is restored. He is their God; all His infinite power and love are theirs. (3). Every tear wiped away (v. 4). How many are the tears which flow from the eye, but then God shall dry them up and shall remove the grief and sorrow which caused them. (4). Death shall no longer exist (v. 4). Where has not death done his awful work? What joy there will be when death shall be no longer! (5). Sorrow and crying cease (v. 4). (6). Pain will be no more (v. 4). Who has not had pain? 4. The Guarantee of Its Realization (vv. 5-7). The sincere soul asks, "How can this be?", but this faithful Word of the Alpha and Omega gives us the absolute guaranty. That which God promises is as sure as though it had already come to pass. 5. Those Who are Excluded from This Blessed State (v. 8). After all that God has done, some will not share this blessedness. (1) The cowardly (v. 8). Those who will not, through shame or fear, confess Christ here. (2) The unbelieving (v. 8). Those who set at naught the testimony of God and reject the crucified Saviour. (3) The abominable (v. 8). Those who degrade themselves with pollutions. (4) The murderers (v. 8). Whether by outward act or inward hate. (5) The fornicators (v. 8). Whether committed by outward act or cherished in the soul. (6) The sorcerers (v. 8). Those who exercise powers which God has forbidden. (7) The idolaters (v. 8). This means the worship of anything not God, whether the worshipping of idols or covetous selfishness. (8) All liars (v. 8). Whether by word or act. These are cast into the eternal fire which is the second death. 6. The Temple of the Holy City (v. 22). The Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple. The space where the temple was is now occupied with the presence of God Himself. 7. The Illumination of the City (v. 23). The glory of the Lord and the Lamb is the light thereof. There will be no gas and electric light trusts there. 8. Relation of the Holy City to the World (vv. 24-27). (1). The nations shall walk in its light (v. 24). War will be impossible when nations walk in the Light of the New Jerusalem. (2). The kings shall bring their glory and honor to it (v. 26). (3). The gates wide open all the time (v. 25). Only those whose names are in the Lamb's book of life are permitted to enter.

December 24

The Coming Reign of Christ

Isaiah 9:2-7

Golden Text.—“For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.”—Isaiah 9:6.

In the last lesson we had a glimpse of the eternal state. It is fitting on this Christmas occasion that we note how it shall be consummated. It is to be through the Messianic Kingdom; Christ is to come and reign until all enemies are put under His feet (1 Cor. 15: 24, 25).

I. The Blessedness of That Reign (vv. 2-5).

1. A Reign of Light (v. 2). The darkness and gloom of the world will not continue forever. The historic background was the darkness and anguish which was upon the nation through the Assyrian oppression pictured in chapter 8. This darkness shall be dissipated by the rising of the “Son of Righteousness.” The “great light” which “shined” was Jesus of Nazareth, the Light of the world (John 8:12), who manifested the glory of God in His earthly life in Galilee (John 2:11). A double perspective of prophecy is to be noted here: the first and second comings of Christ are blended into one continuous event; one day the whole world will see the “great light,” when the “Son of righteousness shall arise with healing in his wings” (Mal. 4:2). 2. A Reign of Joyful Prosperity (v. 3). The coming of the Lord will arrest the dwindling process which is in operation among God’s people, and cause men to flock to Him. The glory of the Messianic Kingdom will draw the Gentile nations to it, and they will give allegiance to the King of kings (Zech. 8:20-23; Mal. 4:2). This revival will bring the joy of the increase of the harvest field, and also that of the division of the spoils after the victory is won, which indeed will be true of the conquering King (Rev. 19:13; Isa. 63:1-4). 3. A Reign of Freedom from Bondage (v. 4). Just as Gideon freed Israel from the bondage of the Midianites, so shall Christ free Israel from the yoke of the Gentile oppression. All in that kingdom shall be free from the bondage of sin (Mat. 11:28). 4. A Reign of Peace (v. 5). So complete will be the victory of Christ that He will utterly destroy the implements of warfare and bring in an everlasting peace (Mic. 4:3-5). This is the only hope for world peace.

II. The Person Through Whom This is to Be Accomplished (v. 6).

The conquering Messiah shall come and accomplish this work. The hope of the world is not in laws, principles and civilization, but in a person in whom all these are incarnate. There absolutely can be no deliverance until the Deliverer shall come.

1. The Nature of This Deliverer. He is to be a “child born,” a “son given.” He is to be “Emmanuel” (Matt. 1:23), God revealed in humanity. Any being less than God could not accomplish this mighty work. 2. His Names: (1) Wonderful (See Judges 13:18). Wonderful in His nature as God-man, really God and as really man. Wonderful in His character—sinless. Wonderful in His teaching, in His death, in His resurrection and ascension. (2) Counsellor. In Him are all the treasures of wisdom (Col. 2:3). He will give counsel to all who ask Him; no one will regret having followed His counsel. (3) The Mighty God. He is absolute deity. (4) Everlasting Father. Or, Father of eternity. Though His earth life had a beginning He is eternal (John 1:1, 2). (5) The Prince of Peace. He brings peace to the individual, and will eventually bring peace to this earth. May we on this Christmas pray that He will come speedily and bring peace to the earth!

III. The Perpetuity of This Kingdom.

It is to fill the whole earth. Righteousness and equity shall prevail forever. It will be on the Davidic line, the fulfilment of 2 Samuel 7:8-16.

IV. The Guarantee of Its Realization (v. 7).

It will be accomplished in the energy of the Lord of Hosts. The Lord has undertaken to bring harmony and peace into the world through the establishment of a Kingdom. For the accomplishment of this His own reputation is at stake. If He had no love for His people, still we would be sure of this, for the jealousy of His own honor assures of the performance of all He has promised. It is not a kingdom established through human energy, peace-treaties and international courts of arbitration, but through divine energy. The God of heaven will set up a Kingdom upon the ruins of the world empires (Dan. 2:44,45; Rev. 11:15). Hasten that day, O Lord!

December 31

Review

One good way to handle the review would be to take a bird’s-eye view of the book of Acts from which the year’s lessons are mainly taken, fixing in mind the essential parts of the outline of the book in their logical relation to each other, thus seeing the progressive unfolding of God’s plan in the formation of His church.

Another good way would be to confine attention to the lessons of the Quarter which have been taken from the book of Acts. In such case Paul should be made the center, noting his character, conduct and teaching in the several trying crises. The most profitable way would be to complete the study of Christ's messages to the seven churches of Asia, three of which were studied in lesson 11.

The Messages of the Glorified Lord to the Churches. Revelation 2:18-3:22.

I. Thyatira, 2:18-29.

Historically, Thyatira carries the declension period of church history to its full development—full-fledged Romanism.

1. Christ's Title (v. 18). 2. Christ's Commendation (v. 19). 3. Christ's Complaint (vv. 20-24). 4. Christ's Counsel (v. 25). 5. Christ's Promise to Overcomers (vv. 26-28).

II. Sardis 3:1-6.

Sardis gives us a moral picture of the Protestant Reformation in its arrested development. This movement made a glorious beginning, but the Reformers themselves became intolerant of others so that the persecuted became the persecutors. The elementary doctrines which had been gained from Rome became crystallized into hard creeds not allowing for further growth.

1. Christ's Title (v. 1). 2. Christ's Commendation (vv. 1, 4). 3. Christ's Complaint (v. 2). 4. Christ's Counsel (vv. 2, 3). 5. Christ's Promise to Overcomers (v. 5).

III. Philadelphia, 3:7-13.

This church represents a phase of church life and history in the Reformation period. Philadelphia means "brotherly love"; it stands as the badge for all that is real in Protestant churches.

1. Christ's Title (v. 7). 2. Christ's Commendation (vv. 8-10). 3. Christ's Complaint (v. 8). 4. Christ's Counsel (v. 11). 5. Christ's Promise to Overcomers (v. 12).

IV. Laodicea, 3:14-22.

Laodicea gives us the last phase of church life. This condition prevails to the end as it will be just before the church is caught up to be with Christ. It is the "perilous times" of which Paul spoke.

1. Christ's Title (v. 14). 2. Christ's Complaint (vv. 15-17). 3. Christ's Counsel (vv. 18-20). 4. Christ's Promise to Overcomers (v. 21).

months the teachers should get John's central purpose and make their lessons bend to it. His purpose is declared in chapter 20:30,31, namely, to prove that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, that eternal life might be obtained through faith in Him. With this purpose before him, he proceeds lawyer-like by laying down his propositions, then introducing his witnesses one by one to establish them. Between the prologue (1:1-18) and the epilogue (chap. 21) is found the main part of the book which is composed of three parts as follows:

1. The Manifestation of the Son of God to the People (1:19-12:50).

2. The Revelation of the Son of God to the Disciples (chaps. 13-17).

3. The Son of God Shown to be the Fulfiler of Prediction and Prophecy (chaps. 18-20.)

I. Jesus Christ the Word of God. (vv. 1-4).

He is called the Word of God because He is the expression of God to man; He utters to men the Father's will (v. 18, cf. Heb. 1:1, 2).

1. He is a Person, Separate and Distinct from the Father (v. 1). At the same time inseparably united with Him.

2. He is Eternal (v. 1). He was with God in the beginning; He did not begin to exist when the heavens and earth were created; neither did He become the Son at His baptism, but was before all things (Col. 1:17).

3. He is divine (v. 1), being equal with God.

4. He is the Omnipotent Creator (v. 3). All things were made by Him. The One who made us died to redeem us.

5. He is the Source of Life (v. 4). He is the eternal fountain from which all life has been derived, and all life is dependent upon Him for its maintenance.

6. He is the Light of Men (v. 4). This light includes man's reasoning power, his conscience and the illumination of the Holy Spirit. To Him we must go for the truth concerning our origin, nature and destiny.

II. The World's Attitude Toward the Word of God (vv. 5-13).

1. Men are insensible to the presence of the true light (vv. 5-10). The very Lord of glory Who created the world and is in the world governing it is unrecognized by it. In this awful state God in His grace sent John the Baptist as a witness that all men might believe (vv. 6, 7). 2. The desperate wickedness of men's hearts (v. 11). He was rejected by His own chosen nation; they would not receive the One whom God had anointed to be their King. With a self-revealing light,

January 7

Jesus the Life and Light of Men

John 1:1-18

Golden Text.—"In him was life; and the life was the light of men."—John 1:4.

In teaching the lessons for the next six the earnest testimony of John, and the glorious privilege of becoming the sons of God, the rejection of Christ reveals the perversity of the human heart. 3. Some received Christ and thus became the sons of God (vv. 12,13). Though the nation rejected Him, some among the nation embraced Him and were crowned heirs of immortal glory. In this verse we are shown how men become children of God. It is not by blood relation with the covenant people, not by the efforts of their natural hearts, nor by the acts and deeds of others, but of God. The new birth is God's work; no man has the power to change his own nature.

III. The Word of God Made Flesh (vv. 14-18).

Jesus the eternal Son of God became a man. He was born of woman, passed through childhood and youth into manhood; was tested, suffered and died in order that He might become identified with the race and lift it to God, and thus restore the broken fellowship. It is in this capacity that He revealed God. Only as God makes Himself known in Christ can men know Him.

Practical and Doctrinal Applications of the Lessons

By Robert M. Russell

December 10

A Call for Faithfulness

Revelation 2:1-17

"These things saith he that holdeth . . . who walketh." (v. 1). There is modern need of realizing that the exalted Christ holds His messengers in His right hand, and that He walks in the midst of His churches to tend their lights, and to discern with piercing gaze their works.

"I know thy works, and thy labor, and thy patience" (v. 2). Christian activity involves intensity of effort, involving work that reaches the severity of life taxing labor and calling for the persistency of patience. "Be not weary in well doing," should be a motto of Christian life.

"And didst try them that call themselves apostles" (v. 2). The Word of God furnishes the touchstone for the test of all religious claims. Any form of theology which does not recognize the deity, resurrection and future coming of Christ may be branded as false.

"Thou didst leave thy first love" (v. 4). The message to the church at Ephesus was for the most part that of commendation, but there was this chiding that it had lost the honeymoon gladness of its espousal to Christ. What too often takes place in the homes of men had taken place in the church life of Ephesus. Life had become commonplace and formal without the gladness of a great love.

"Remember . . . repent, and do the first works" (v. 5). The pathway of reform is that of remembrance, repentance and the rousing of the will to original duties. We find peace and power at the place where we lost it. To right the wrong and to take up the neglected duty is to find the light of God again in the soul.

"I come and will move thy candle stick out of its place" (v. 5). The only use of a candle is to burn and shine. The only use of a Christian is to give light for God in a dark world; to fail is to risk removal.

"Thou hatest the works of the Nicolaitanes" (v. 6). The Holy Spirit coined a new word to describe the early tendency in the church to have a ruling class. The word "Nicolaitanes" is from two Greek words "Nikao," to conquer, and "Laos," the people. The first heresy in the Christian church was that of making a division of an equal brotherhood into "priests" and "laity."

"To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life" (v. 7). Man lost access to the tree of life by sin. In the restored Paradise the tree of life is accessible to all. This is the promise of deathless existence.

"I will give to eat of the hidden manna" (v. 17). Here is promise of satisfying food for the soul. Manna was the food furnished Israel from heaven for the wilderness march. Israel became weary of the heavenly bread, even as men are ever weary with present joys. The earth life is characterized by unsatisfied longing. Sad hearts have sung

"To seek is better than to gain
The fond hope dies as we attain,
Life's fairest things are those that seem,
The best is that of which we dream."

It will be different in the glory life. The hidden manna will satisfy.

"Will give him a white stone" (v. 17). Commentators have differed as to the meaning of the symbol in this verse. Some have thought it the white stone of acquittal in trial before the judges, or the white stone that gave the athlete entrance to the celebrating banquet. Tradition holds that ancient kings were accustomed to give a departing guest one fragment of a white stone on which both the names of king and friend were written. The stone being broken, each retained a part, and could establish a test of acquaintance after any number of years. It is a symbol of a friendship understood only by Christ and His own.

December 17

The Holy City.

Revelation 21: 1-4, 9-14, 22-27, 22: 1-5

"I saw a new heaven and a new earth" (v. 1). The Bible plainly teaches what science suggests as possible that present earth conditions will come to an end in a great cataclysm of destruction. The completeness of this is described by Peter when he says, "The heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall be dissolved with fervent heat, and the earth and the works therein shall be burned up" (2 Pet. 3:10). How did John and Peter, men without scientific learning, come to record such a doom for the earth? There is but one answer, they spoke—"moved by the Holy Spirit."

"And I saw the Holy City, New Jerusalem coming down out of heaven from God" (v. 2). The ideal will yet be the real. This earth has never revealed the full plan of God as to the possibilities of world beauty and provision for human comfort. God's redeemed ones will doubtless return to this earth after its renovation, and here find the heaven that will in its glory and joy forever commemorate the redeeming love of God.

"And He shall wipe away every tear from their eyes" (v. 4). If this line were the only description of the heavenly life found in the Bible it would be enough to assure us of the glory of that life. Picture a world from which there is the removal of every tear-provoking circumstance, and you have a world that meets man's highest desire for excellence. We have now tears of physical pain, tears of ignorance, tears of disappointment, loneliness, and failure. Let all these tear-provoking circumstances be removed, and there would be the heaven desired by the soul.

"I will show thee the bride, the wife of the Lamb" (v. 9). The church of Christ in its unity and entirety is ever termed the bride of Christ. When the new earth and heaven have been organized, God's redeemed people will have the central place of glory.

"Having the glory of God" (v. 11). In the description of the heavenly Jerusalem, the writer makes use of the largest possible figures of speech to describe that glory. The things which are the highest in esteem on earth are made the most lowly in place in the Holy City. The things which constitute our personal adornments on earth are given place in the streets and walls of the new city. Perhaps indeed we should accept with literalness every word of the description given. Why may there not be a city with streets of gold, and walls of precious stones, and gates which gleam with the light of the pearl? Cannot God by one touch of creative power give to the atoms of matter such new arrangement as shall produce every feature described?

"On them twelve names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb" (v. 14). Earthly service for Christ will have heavenly commemoration. Not only will the apostles be rewarded, but every servant of Christ.

"The city lieth four square, and the length, etc." (v. 16). The heavenly city should not be viewed as a great cube, but as the terraced hill of God, whose "length and breadth and height are equal."

"The glory of God did lighten it" (v. 23). The life of God lies behind all the light of the world. God's glory will not seem hidden by sunbeams in the future life.

"Bearing twelve manner of fruits" (v. 2). It is possible in modern horticulture to have trees fruitful at various seasons of the year. In God's new Paradise there will be perpetual and abundant provision for every appetite of the soul.

"There shall be night no more" (v. 5). Night is a blessing on earth for we need the rest of slumber. Night will not be needed in our glorified condition. Night is also the symbol of evil and sorrow. The Bible closes with promise of a day which shall never fade into twilight or darkness, and a service unmarred by weariness.

December 24

Unto You is Born a Saviour

Isaiah 9:2-7

"The people that walk in darkness have seen a great light" (v. 2). The promises of a coming world Redeemer that began in Genesis find their fullest expression in the prophecies of Isaiah. In Genesis we have the foot-hills of prophecy. In Isaiah we have the mountain peaks of prediction, gleaming with the glory light of the coming Sun of Righteousness. It was to a world truly under the shadows of ignorance and death that Christ came.

"Thou has multiplied the nation and not increased the joy" (v. 3). While men boast of the marvels of modern civilization, through its discoveries, inventions, arts and manufacture, it cannot be claimed that people are becoming more happy or contented. The sense of hurry seems to increase with every new invention for speed in travel. Inventions that ought to lift the burden of toil from the shoulders of thousands, simply serve to make competition more intense. While with our labor-saving machinery and the attendant productiveness of earth, all might have leisure and abundance, the struggle to secure a living is not being reduced. What the world needs is the presence of her true King. There will yet be an ideal world life, but we shall have it "when He comes whose right it is" to reign.

"Every battle of the warrior is with confused sound" (v. 5). War has been one of the great scourges of humanity. World history is largely the story of war. The persistent tendency of humanity is to struggle for peace without effort for the righteousness which brings peace, and to dream of a world united in the bonds of peace without the presence of "The Prince of Peace." God has given the world no promise of peace until the second advent of His Son, our Saviour. World life scorns the divine promise, and even plans to make Palestine an international park at the end of the present war in commemoration of world peace begun. This is but the latest example of world optimism which will not recognize that world history is programmed in the Bible, and that Palestine shall witness the Armageddon of prophecy.

"Unto us a child is born" (v. 6). It has pleased God to reveal Himself to man through man. That God should reveal Himself by limitation does not contradict the laws of movement revealed in the physical world. The seemingly infinite force of electricity can only be recognized through limitation, as the currents leap from point to point on the arc light or shine forth in the electric bulb. God must have forever remained an unknown God had He not subjected Himself to limitation, and permitted the full currents of His life and power to be manifested in the human life of Jesus Christ, thus causing Him to be in deed and truth "The Light of the World."

"The government shall be upon His shoulder" (v. 6). Every form of earth government has so far failed to bring an orderly condition to human society. Both monarchies and democracies have been characterized by failure. The world needs a king but one of heavenly lineage. It needs a governor, but that governor must be of divine appointment.

"His name shall be called Wonderful, etc." (v. 6). The names given in prophecy to Jesus are far reaching in their significance. He is the Wonderful, the One commanding the worship and admiration of angels and men. He is the Counsellor, the intimate of the eternal God. Yea, He is the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father. He who comes to save is God Himself. "God manifested in the flesh" is the true title of Jesus. The crowning title of Jesus is "The Prince of Peace." God is termed "The God of Peace." Peace, with all its gladness and sense of satisfaction, is God's ideal for world life. His government shall yet be established. God's promises to the house of David will have fulfilment. "The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this."

December 31
Old Year Reflections
Revelation 22:6-21

"These sayings are faithful and true." (v. 6). All the words of God's book are faithful and true. "It is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners." It is also a faithful saying that he will come again to reward his saints and to receive them unto himself "That where he is we may be also." Happy is the man who accepts God's faithful work without controversy.

"Blessed is he that keepeth the sayings of the prophecy of this book" (v. 7). These words might be rendered, "Blessed is he who is mindful of the predictions of this book." God has programmed the ages to come in Bible prophecy. Prophecy is history written before the events occur. A blessed peace comes to the soul when we realize, among all life's confusions, that God's great plan will not fail.

"I John saw these things and heard them." (v. 8). The apostle John is ever emphasizing the reality of his gospel. That his message is not dream but true form is his assertion over and over again, "That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you" is his challenge to men's faith. Eternity will reveal that the gospel is factual, and that he who obeys it conforms life to the facts of life.

"Seal not the sayings of the prophecy of this book." (v. 10). Weymouth furnishes the translation, "Make no secret of the meaning of the prediction contained in this book; for the time of their fulfilment is now close at hand." Daniel was bidden to seal his prophecy because its meaning was to remain hidden until the time for fulfilment drew near. We are to strive for the understanding of prophecy. Of this last book of the Bible it is said, "Blessed is he who reads and blessed are those who listen to the word of this prophecy and lay to heart what is written in it."

"He that is unjust let him be unjust still." (v. 11). One of the plainest truths of God's Word is that character tends to move in definite lines either toward good or evil. The soft cement can be formed to any shape, but later it takes on adamant hardness. Character assumes permanent lines of growth through irrevocable choices. There are deeper depths of sin throughout eternal years for those who reject Christ, and loftier heights of holiness for those who accept Him. "Let the dishonest man act dishonestly still; let the filthy make himself filthy still; let the righteous practice righteousness still; and let the holy be made holy still."

"Behold I come quickly; and my reward is with me" (v. 12). The Lord's coming to reward believers seems to be long delayed but it is not so in the eternal mind with whom "one day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day." Christ's return is imminent in the divine mind. Before His thought is the record of every worker and the purpose of reward.

"Without are dogs and sorcerers and whore-mongers" (v. 15). Heaven will be a place of unmarred holiness. All forms of evil will be excluded. In cataloging forms of evil or classes of evil does a lie and a liar constitute the climax of abomination. A lie is the odor of decay and the stench of rottenness from a dead soul.

"The Spirit and the bride say come." (v. 17). The gospel is an invitation from God to come to God. Everything connected with it merges into an invitation of love. The Spirit who caused our Lord's incarnation, animates the church which is his bride and voices the age long cry of redeeming love, come.

"Whosoever will let him take." (v. 17.) Salvation is God's free offer to sinful man. Man's will must respond to the divine will in order to receive salvation. Nothing will rob man of eternal glory except his refusal of God's offer. No man will be kept from heaven and its glory by any other cause than the choice of his own free and wicked will.

"Surely I come quickly." "Even so come." (v. 20). The last promise of the Bible is the word of Jesus saying that He will come for His own. The last prayer recorded in the Bible is the glad response "Even so, come, Lord Jesus." We can test the validity of our Christian experience through our attitude toward the last great promise of God's Word and our response of interest to that promise of yearning love.

Sunday-school Problems

By E. O. Sellers

THE HOME AND THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL

One of the most remarkable Sunday-schools to be found in the land is in the Mennonite Church at Berne, Ind. Berne is a place of about fifteen hundred inhabitants, and has four Protestant churches. The school in question has an average attendance of between nine hundred and a thousand, the same being upwards of ninety per cent of its membership. The architecture of the room permits the entire school to take part in the opening exercises, and then curtains are drawn, separating the various departments of the school.

A case of tardiness is rare. Attending this school on a recent Sunday, we failed to observe one case of actual tardiness. The school session is exactly an hour long, and the preaching service of one hour immediately follows, the whole service beginning at nine and closing at eleven. Such order and decorum and such promptness, and at the same time hearty co-operation, we have never before witnessed in a Sunday-school. Part of the service was in German and part in English. Some of the classes are taught in German and some in English. The secret of it is that the school has the undivided, hearty support of the church and of the homes.

There should be a more vital contact between the Sunday-school and the home. Some one has said, "As is the home, so the church and community," and we might with justice add that as is the home so is the Sunday-school. We all recognize in the Sunday-school the right arm of the church, and that it is the training ground for the children, where they shall be reached and trained for kingdom purposes. When children come from homes where parents are members of the church we should naturally expect the Sunday-school teacher to have the cooperation of the parents. The Sunday-school scholar who comes from a home where the Bible is neglected, and prayers are never uttered, comes to the teacher as a distinct problem, and we are expecting her to perform a miracle if in the thirty minutes allowed her each Sunday she is to accomplish what the home is failing to accomplish. Add to this the irregularity of pupils' attendance, and we increase the difficulty of the problem. In some localities it is considered popular for young children to go to Sunday-school. It gives the parents more opportunity for visiting and for reading, and keeps the children occupied on that day of the week when it is hard to provide proper entertainment and interest for them.

On the other hand, where pupils come from homes where family altar fires are kept burning with the incense of devotion constantly ascending to God, we may expect them to be susceptible to divine truth. Such preparation of the soil, and the seed sown by the teacher find ready lodgment. How to secure this sort of cooperation between the parents and the school is indeed difficult, but it is a problem that is being faced, and in some localities is being solved. Home Department, parents' meetings and other methods of approach are producing results. When the homes of the land recognize that it is wrong to lay the whole task of religious education upon the Sunday-school, and assume that burden which rightfully belongs to them, we may expect results like that at Berne and other places, and will soon reach the ideal which ought to lie before every Sunday-school.

The Sunday-school is wasting time in trying to overcome the handicap of this lack of home cooperation before it can reach its real problem of decisions for Christ, and training for service. The fundamental problem is that of home religious training, for the home antedates the Sunday-school, and it is a mistake to conceive of the Sunday-school as supplanting the home in this important matter of the religious training of the child.

For a number of years religious leaders have faced this problem. The organization of the Adult Department in the Sunday-schools has in part helped to stem the tide, and the recently issued bulletin of information on the "Parent Department," issued by the International Sunday School Association, 5 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill., will help those who are looking for aid along this line. This is a regular department of Sunday-school work, with its own superintendent, but affecting this problem in particular. The most important work of such a department would be the organization and maintenance of parents' classes for the study of methods in the development of the moral and religious education of children. But there may be other activities also, such as providing for individual study for those parents who find it impossible to attend the class, to cooperate with the Home Department and Cradle Roll, to establish a Parents' Library with plans for distribution of books on these subjects, the observation of special days of honor to fathers and mothers, and the cooperation with the Intermediate and Senior Departments for the holding of "Father and Son" and "Mother and Daughter" banquets. The work of the Family Altar League is of highest value in this regard. We would advise any one who is looking for information and suggestive plans with which to face and attempt to solve this problem to secure a copy of this pamphlet. Beyond all, however, we must see to it that pastors, church officers and parents have a more adequate realization of their responsibility and privilege. We will then secure that cooperation with the schools which will enable the schools to produce their best results.

THE LAYMENS COMMENTARY

(Continued from Page 281.)

their obligations with reference to the civil powers, and to outsiders and unbelievers generally (3:1-3); an exhortation affording another opportunity of contrasting the present state and condition of believers with that in which they were prior to their salvation. Here we find a precious declaration of gospel truth which should be learned by heart (vv. 4, 7). The theme is salvation. How not was it effected? How was it effected? What period of time? What is the result? The eighth verse might be included as showing the obligation of the saved growing out of their salvation.

Another sermon is suggested here on "Salvation from Start to Finish." (a) Our condition by nature (v. 3); (b) Our change from nature to grace (vv. 4-6); (c) Our condition by grace (vv. 7, 8).

Titus was to constantly affirm these things, avoiding other things and subjects that might come up (v. 9).⁴ What a lesson for the ministers of our own time! Finally, he is directed how to deal with these false teachers and their followers (vv. 10, 11).

The remainder of this chapter is taken up with personal directions and commissions.

Questions

1. What hint for Christian workers is found in this lesson?
2. Analyze 2:11-14.
3. Analyze 3:3-8.

GROWING OLD

A little more tired at the close of day,
A little less anxious to have our way;
A little less anxious to scold and blame,
A little more care for a brother's name;
And so we are nearing the journey's end,
Where time and eternity meet and blend.

A little less care for bonds of gold,
A little more zest for the days of old,
A broader view and a saner mind,
And a little more love for all mankind;
And so we are faring down the way
That leads to the gates of a better day.

A little more love for the friends of youth,
A little more zeal for established truth;
A little more charity in our views,
A little less thirst for the daily news;
And so we are folding our tents away
And passing in silence at close of day.

A little more leisure to sit and dream,
A little more real the things unseen;
A little nearer to those ahead,
With visions of those long loved and dead;
And so we are going where all must go,
To the place the living may never know.

A little more laughter, a few more tears,
And we shall have told our increasing years.
The book is closed, and the prayers are said,
And we are part of the countless dead.
Thrice happy, then, if some soul can say,
"I live because he has passed my way."

—A. V. Barnes, in "Christian Advocate."

The American Sabbath is in danger of being crucified between two thieves—Irish whiskey and German beer.—Philip Schaff.

For Sermon and Scrap Book

FIVE POINTS FOR PREACHERS

1. Leaves Only, the Sign of our Ruin. (Matt. 21: 19).
2. Jesus Only, the Source of our Redemption. (Matt. 17: 8).
3. Faith Only, the Secret of our Restoration. (Luke 8: 50).
4. God Only, the Summit of our Rest. (Psalm 62: 5).
5. Faithfulness Only, the Sum of our Responsibility. (Phil. 1: 27). —Charles Edwards.

A CHRISTMAS SERMON OUTLINE

Gal. 4: 4, 5. "But when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons."

The first Christmas gift was God's only Son, who was made of a woman. This text gives us three points about this Christmas gift to ever remember.

1. The gift was on time, "when the fulness of time was come." God never antedates anything and he is never tardy in action. For the spiritual good of man; God had done everything that could be done, humanly speaking, and the next thing was to give His Son.
2. God's first Christmas gift was not attractive externally. It was in the form of sinful humanity, "made of a woman." It was not in bright colors, had not the appearance of being a blessing—Jesus was "made under the law." But wait until the Christmas package is opened.
3. Never was there in all the world since, whether by the hand of emperor or queen, a Christmas present made of such intrinsic value as that one. It contained redemption to all that were "under the law," already and justly condemned. It was something far better than the reception of a pardon from a governor or president to a life prisoner or one sentenced to death; but far more than redemption; a card of admission to the very family of God besides, "adoption as sons."

How foolish to try to estimate the value of that first Christmas gift! Are you telling others about it? Are you telling the poor lost sinner that all that is contained in that Christmas package absolutely can be his?—J. H. R.

WATCH-NIGHT THOUGHTS

"This year also."—Luke 13: 6, 10.

Another year has ended. Paul in Philippians 3: 13, 14, suggests a most valuable spiritual exercise for such a time.

1. Retrospection. The glance backward. The past year, our mistakes, our discontents, our successes, our failures, and our sins if not forgiven.

2. Introspection. There is right and and noble egotism, which is solemn and majestic, yet grave with its consciousness of responsibility, whose first thought is of duty and character, asking itself, How am I serving God and my generation? Note the seven "I's" of Paul in the three verses, "Not as though I had already attained," etc.

3. Prospection. Paul said, "I press towards the goal." Remember that "this year also" implies a limit. As to the past, it has gone; to the future, use it nobly, and consider that the new year ahead may be your last.

BEGINNING THE NEW YEAR RIGHT

"The beginning of months."—Exod. 12: 2.

1. Let us begin the year with solemn reflection. The season reminds us of the past—the irrevocable past. Another year of our "few years" is gone.

2. Let us begin the year with self-inspection. Looking within we see sins unrepented; resolutions made but, alas, broken; opportunities unimproved and talents left unemployed.

3. Let us begin the year with a new consecration. Shall our prayer be, "Lord, what wilt thou have me do?" And may our vows find expression in the lines of Frances Ridley Havergal "Take my life, and let it be consecrated, Lord, to Thee!"

FROM THE OLD YEAR INTO THE NEW

I can not know, and none can tell,

What coming days may bring to me;

But this—thank God!—I know full well,

That "as my day, my strength shall be."

This is enough! In this I rest;

It wraps me round and holds me close,

Like helpless babe on mother's breast,

In sweet content and calm repose.

For this I thank thee, O my God,

No matter what may come to me—

The soft caress, or chastening rod—

I know it shall be well with me.

—H. B. Hartzler, in "The Evangelical."

SEVEN REJECTORS OF CHRIST

1. His own world. John 1:10.
2. His own nation. John 1:11.
3. His own country. Mark 4:4.
4. His own city. Luke 4:29.
5. His own kin. Mark 6:4.
6. His own house. John 7:5.
7. His own familiar friend. Ps. 41:9.

THE LORD'S PEOPLE HIS POSSESSION

2 Corinthians 6:16, 17, 18

1. They are His People for Possession.....v. 16
 2. They are His Temple for Worship.....v. 16
 3. They are His Home for Habitation.....v. 16
 4. They are His Friends for Companion-shipv. 17
 5. They are His Family for Lovev. 18
- Charles Edwards.

TRUE BELIEVERS

Translated—Transformed—Transfigured

1. Translated to be Witness-Bearers. Sudden and complete (Col. 1:13).
2. Transformed to be Cross-Bearers. Thorough and continuous (Rom. 12:1; 8:29; Phil. 3:10; Col. 3:10).
3. Transfigured to be Fruit-Bearers. Refreshing and real (2 Cor. 3:18; Ps. 90:17; Acts 6:15; 4:13).—S.-D.

TWELVE GREAT TRUTHS FOR EVERY CHILD OF GOD

A Short Summary of the Teaching of the Epistle of James

1. Patience in all trials should mark him out.
2. He should be meek, humble, lowly, after the pattern of the Master.
3. Everything in his life should be founded on prayer.
4. His prayer should itself rest on faith.
5. His faith must ever be at work for God, neither grudging, nor ceasing.
6. His work should be one of obedience in all things.
7. In all, he should be unselfish, not only ready to give to others, but preferring them to self.
8. He should be separated from the world, in heart and aim.
9. Submission to God should be the constant keynote of his life.
10. Acceptance of trial in peace, and even praise.
11. No envy.
12. His tongue ever in restraint and curbed.

We may well ask: Who is sufficient for these things? The only answer is: Christ!

But may we not, nay must we not wonder at the picture drawn of a Christian by "James, the Lord's Brother"?—"The Christian."

CHRISTMAS JOY

"When they saw the star they rejoiced with exceeding great joy."—Matt. 2:10.

We who look for Jesus ought to be joyful; it is no credit to our Lord when we look as though we were seeking His grave. The dull looks of Christ's followers have injured Him in the sight of the world. Let us, then, smile as we go, for we have the star if we will look up and put ourselves in the right path.—Thomas Champness.

"Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people."—Luke 2:10.

It is true that these good tidings of great joy were to be "for all people," but not first. The message falls on our own ears, and is first for our own souls. Oh, ponder this well! Take all God's truths home first to thine own heart. Ask in earnest prayer that the Spirit may write them with the pen of heaven on thine own conscience. Then wilt thou be a vessel fitted for the Master's use, and carry His message with spiritual power to the souls of others.—F. Whitfield.

THE TWO "DUTCHMEN" ON TITHING

"Vel, Hinz, dis patch of 'taters grow to goot. I vas youst dinkings vat a goot times I vould haf fen I gif de Lord His part."

"Vel, Yacob, vat you dinks de Lord's part?"
"Vel, Hinz, I reat in His Book dat we shoult gif Him von 'tafer out of ten and den an offerings."

"Vel, Yacob, I dinks dat too much."

"Via goodness, Mister Hinz. I don't see how a man coult be mean enough to gib less—only von 'tater out of ten, den an offerings?"

"Vel, Yacob, vat you means by an offerings?"

"I means, Mister Hinz, dat ve are to gif de Lord one 'tater out of ten and as many of de rest as He vants."

"Vel, Yacob, vot if de Lord vants de rest?"

"I vould gif dem to Him, Mister Hinz."

"Vel, you vould haf no 'taters den, Yacob."

"Yes, I vould, Mister Hinz. I am de Lord's, and as long as de Lord has taters, I vil haf 'taters. If nobodys gif de Lord 'taters, de Lord voud haf no 'taters to gif de mans vot has no taters."

"Vel, Yacob, you talks like de Lord youst means vot He says in His Book."

"Means vot He says, Mister Hinz! Vot He says! Vot He says! He means vot He says! Von 'tater out of ten, den as many of de rest as He vants."

"Vel, Yacob, I youst guess you are right. I vil gif de Lord's von 'tater out of ten dis falls, and as many of de rest as he vants."

"Vel, Mister Hinz, Gott sigh dunk! (God be thanked). I feels so happy to know you are going to mind de Lord."—N. B. Herrell, in "Herald of Holiness."

THE MEASURE OF DEVOTION

Dr. John Timothy Stone relates how he saw Frank E. Higgins, the missionary to the lumberjacks, setting out for the hospital for his late desperate operation, and one of Higgins' converts—a former prize-fighter—with arms around the "sky pilot" sobbing: "Frank, maybe you're going to need a piece of bone or some skin or some blood. Just send me a wire, if you do. The minute you tell me to come, I'll fly to you. Anything I've got you can call on me for." Such, said Dr. Stone, should be every Christian's word to Christ.

THE BASIS FOR TRUE JUDGMENT

During the trial of a case against a shoe-manufacturing company in the United States District Court in Boston, it was necessary to explain to the judge the working of the machinery and the process of manufacture. Instead of much technical testimony, counsel for the defense introduced moving pictures, showing every detail. The court expressed great satisfaction with the innovation, the presiding judge stating that the pictures conveyed a much clearer impression than any amount of verbal testimony, and also saved valuable time.

After awhile, when we stand before the Judge of all the world, it will not be what we have to say of ourselves, but what the records reveal of our actions in life. Our deeds, rather than our words, will tell the story.—"Busy Bible Student."

FIRST CHRISTIAN PRAYER MEETING

Acts 1:13, 14

After the Lord had ascended, the disciples, 120 in number, waited "for the promise of the Father," the bestowal of the Holy Spirit. All the disciples were there, not one absent; all were present in good time. They were there in a spirit of expectancy. The characteristics of that first meeting for fellowship and prayer are still the necessary conditions of a successful prayer-meeting. These were (1) unity, (2) continuity, or patience, (3) steadfastness. They waited for ten days. What a lesson for us in these days of hurried prayers and short services! It is a glorious thing to be privileged to talk with God, but we should also give the Lord a chance of speaking to us. These disciples waited patiently for the Lord. They waited until they were endued with power from on high. An all-night of prayer would do none of us any harm. See what it did for Jacob (Gen. 32:24-32). The habit of prayer is the secret of the fulfilment of the promise in these days. The decadence of the habit is the root-cause of present degeneracy, both in the church and the world.—George Coates, in "The Christian."

WINNING FORCES IN CHRISTIAN WORK

1. Faith, of the kind that moves things in the right direction. Study Rom. 10:17; Heb. 11:32-34.
2. Prayer, that believes God will give as generously as He promises. Mark 11:24, R. V.
3. The Holy Ghost, who makes soldiers of Christ efficient. Acts 1:8; Isa. 11:2.
4. The Word of God, the sword the Spirit uses. 2 Tim. 3:16, 17; 4:1, 2.

—Don O. Shelton.

A TEST FOR BENEVOLENCE

A rich Boston woman was taken one day to see a poor widow who was sick. She did not care for the widow, but she did not like to see suffering. So she said. "I shall order the charity organization to come up and help you." But the widow spoke up: "Thank you, ma'am, but although I am poor, I cannot take charity." "But," said the rich woman, "you have just told me that your neighbors help you; you take things from them." "Yes, but that is not charity. They are friends. They care. They know that if they needed help, I would do the same for them." This woman, poor as she was, measured gifts by the heart of the giver.—"Onward."

GENESIS AND REVELATION CONTRASTED

The Rev. Archibald G. Brown points out the striking balance which exists between Genesis and Revelation, as follows:

In Genesis I see earth created; in Revelation I see it passing away.

In Genesis sun and moon appear; in Revelation I read they have no need of the sun or moon.

In Genesis there is a garden, which is the home for man; in Revelation there is a city, the home for the nations.

In Genesis there is the marriage of the first Adam; in Revelation there is the marriage of the second Adam.

In Genesis there is the first grim appearance of the great enemy Satan; in Revelation there is his final doom.

In Genesis there is the inauguration of sorrow and suffering; you hear the first sob, you see the first tear; in Revelation there is no more sorrow, and no more pain, and all tears are wiped away.

In Genesis we hear the mutter of the curse which falls because of sin; in Revelation we read "there shall be no more curse."

In Genesis we see man driven out from the garden with the tree of life; in Revelation we see him welcomed back, with the tree of life at his disposal.

The Gospel in the World

One Bible woman in China visited eighteen hundred places during the year's service.

Chinese daily newspapers have accepted and printed articles on prophecy and the Jews.

There are said to be two thousand eight hundred Brazilian students in American institutions at present.

Kimura, the "Billy" Sunday of Japan, has registered one thousand converts in his recent meetings in Tokyo.

Four-fifths of the graduates of Hangchow College, China, have gone into Christian work. All those since 1910 have done so.

At a communion table in India recently representatives of fifty castes met who had been separated for three centuries.

Of the 47,000 Protestants in Brazil, 22,000 are Presbyterians, 12,000 are Baptists, and 7,000 are Methodists. In 1915 all the churches added a total of more than 4,500.

Presbyterians have a church in Rio de Janeiro, which was organized more than fifty years ago, and from which twelve preachers have gone forth. It now has 1,400 members.

The Hon. James Bryce, in a recent book on South America, says: "The absence of any religious foundation for thought and conduct is a grave misfortune for Latin America."

Christianity has taken a firmer grip on Korea than any other Oriental land. Since the first missionary landed there has been an average of one convert for every hour of the day and night.

One of the secrets of the wonderful growth of Christianity in Korea is the insistence that no convert shall be received into full membership who has not brought another soul to Christ.

Bishop Stunts reports that in South America "Religion is laughed at and ignored, especially by the 'intellectuals.'" At least eighty-five per cent of the 40,000 college students of South America are avowed unbelievers.

The Scotch Presbyterian Mission in Nyasaland, Africa, has 9,200 communicants and nearly as many ready for baptism. Of the church members 1,500, or more than sixteen per cent, are teachers in the schools of the mission.

The Roman Catholic Church in Brazil has kept the Bible from the people. Robert E. Speer says that South America is the only continent in all the world that has no sacred book. No country is more in need of real Christianity.

Schlegel has said of Islam that it has "a prophet without miracles, a faith without mysteries, and a morality without love, which has encouraged a thirst for blood, and which begins and ends in the most unbounded sensuality."

In Korea the Japanese officials require all mission workers to be registered. "Where is your permit?" asked a policeman. "Here it is," said the colporteur, pointing to Mark 16:15—"Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." He was allowed to pass.

Cockfighting and the Sunday-school go on almost side by side in the Philippines, and at San Leonardo it happened that the owner and his rooster actually went to church during a Sunday-school and evangelical institute. The man was converted, forthwith gave his rooster away, and was found at Sunday-school the next morning.

Mrs. Livingstone Wilson, only surviving child of Dr. David Livingstone, the explorer, recently spent a month in journeying from Cape Town to Old Chitambo, where her father's heart was buried under a Mulwa tree. From there she went to New Chitambo, fifty-five miles further on, to stay with her son, who is a medical missionary, and her daughter, who is a nurse.

Since the great war began, the British and Foreign Bible Society has supplied more than a million and a half of Testaments and Gospels for sick and wounded soldiers and sailors; for prisoners of war, refugees, and aliens; as well as for the troops of all the nations engaged in hostilities. These books have gone out in more than a score of different languages, and in a dozen different countries.

The Secretary of Agriculture in the Chinese government has become a Christian, as has the son of a famous governor, the owner of one of the largest cotton mills in Shanghai.

A missionary has perfected a Braille system in Siamese for the use of the blind in that country, where at least one in every four hundred of the population is sightless. By learning the new Braille shorthand and the touch system of typewriting stenographers have fitted themselves for return to the position which they held before going to the trenches.

The China Inland Mission work has not been seriously affected by the recent revolts, in fact, in some centers increased opportunity has been given for preaching the gospel. One sad result of the unsettled condition of the country, however, is that in several districts which were considered free from opium the poppy is again being planted and its cultivation encouraged by the officials.

The Salvation Army has established a "Silk Camp" near Lahore, India. It is a mulberry forest—perhaps the only one in the world—which covers 10,000 acres. In view of the disturbed condition prevailing in lands from which the world's silk supply has hitherto come, Commissioner Booth-Tucker got permission to use the foliage of this vast forest for silkworm culture.

"At Tagbilaran, P. I.," said Robert E. Speer, "we asked a group of the Christians who had come in from the different congregations what it was in Christ and His gospel which gave them most joy. 'It is the Holy Spirit who gives us most joy,' said one, 'and the study of the Bible that explains to me this doctrine of the Holy Spirit.' 'My joy,' said another, 'is the liberty of each soul to find the truth.' 'Mine,' said another, 'is the happiness of sharing the wealth of the gospel with others.'"

The Urbandale Federated Church of Des Moines, Ia., is an example of union among believers in Christ. It was organized in a district where no church existed and has in its membership representatives of thirteen denominations: A new convert is received through denominational lines, if he has any preference, if not, he is baptized by some Protestant minister and then received into the Federated Church. Missionary offerings are sent to a field under the care of an interdenominational board.

A Turkish boatman, fleeing with his family from Trebizond before the advancing Russians, met with a storm. He lost his family, his boat, and property, and barely escaped alive to Samsoun. Here he ran up and down the streets, crying: "See the way the Lord takes revenge! Last year I drowned scores of Armenians in the sea at Trebizond. See the way the Lord takes revenge."

A great number of the Turks regard with horror the deeds they have been commanded to do to their Armenian neighbors, and believe that they sin in so doing and will receive punishment therefor.

Mr. F. S. H. Young, writing with regard to the Solomon Islands, says: "The Roman Catholics are increasing in activity and numbers. Their method is to land at a village and distribute medals with a figure of the Virgin Mary to all who will receive them. Every one of these natives are then claimed as Roman Catholics, although they have received no teaching whatever. At one large village the people had long been asking us to send them a teacher. We had at last secured a good man whom Mr. Deck took across the mountains from Wanoni to find they were just too late! The Roman Catholics had rushed around in a schooner, landed the day before, and adorned one hundred people with medals, and thus claimed the whole district. In some cases, however, the people reject the Roman Catholic claims, return the medals, and accept our teachers; and for this we pray."

Joseph Forrest, formerly a Salvation Army officer, but now a gunnery sergeant in the U. S. Marine Corps, writes from Port au Prince, Haiti, W. I., after a residence there of over a year:

"Before I came to Haiti I did not know what poverty was. When we arrived the country was in a terrible state; many were dying of starvation and disease. Some were literally covered with sores, and I have seen the dogs licking them in the same manner as they must have licked the sores of Lazarus.

"Because the people are very superstitious the Roman Catholic Church has prospered. Two-thirds of the population is of that faith.

"In the past the government has said, 'Let them eat stones,' and the Roman Catholic Church has said, 'We will give them prayers,' with the result that the poor people have died in the hedges like flies. Now, through the American Red Cross Society, food is given out to three hundred families every Wednesday.

"Dr. Turnbull, the Wesleyan Methodist missionary, has done a wonderful work during his seventeen years of service. Three times his mission has been entirely destroyed by bands of revolutionists, and each time he has buckled on the armor a little tighter and started in again. In addition to the church there is, on the same estate, a large college for boys, and another for girls."

Notes and Suggestions

CHICAGO Y. M. C. A. BRANCH NOW LARGEST IN WORLD

The Young Men's Christian Association of Chicago, at the close of a whirlwind campaign to add 5,000 members, has set a mark for all other cities. The total membership of the local organization is now 23,707, larger than that in any other city in the world.

The latest reports showed the membership of the New York Y. M. C. A. to be 22,500.

Y. M. C. A.'S WONDERFUL WORK

The Y. M. C. A. is one of the biggest and most efficient religious undertakings in the world. So practical is the nature of its work and so carefully are its finances administered by competent business men that it is easier to raise money for Y. M. C. A. than for any other religious work, remarks "Leslie's." Plans for its world-wide activities next year call for the expenditure of $4,500,000. The war has enlarged its European field, and $2,000,000 of the budget will be spent there. From Switzerland to central Russia the association is now maintaining 250 graded schools and colleges of which the instructors as well as students are prisoners of war. The total enrolment approximates 3,250,000 men. For the first time in its history the Y. M. C. A. has gained a foothold in Austria and Russia. There is no other religious organization that could have so promptly and so efficiently taken up the opportunities for service offered by the European war, ministering to Jews, Catholics and Protestants, all on equal footing. Along the Texas border where American troops have been stationed, the Y. M. C. A. has founded stations and nearly forty schools in which Spanish is the most popular course. Five hundred thousand dollars has been laid out for the work in Texas, and $1,000,000 for the industrial department in various railroad centers throughout the country.—"Daily News" of Chicago.

A PESTILENT FELLOW

Young minister wants pastorate (east of Chicago preferred) where scholarly, impressive, evangelistic ministry and latest successful, dignified methods are appreciated. Experienced, winning pastor; powerful, attractive, gifted preacher; stirring, successful, experienced evangelist; energetic worker; liberally educated; finest recommendations. Would supply pulpits.—"The Advance."

HONOR TO DR. C. I. SCOFIELD

A testimonial meeting in honor of the Rev. C. I. Scofield, D. D., was held in the Marble Collegiate Church, 5th Ave. and 29th St., New York, on Thursday evening, October 26. Representative Christian workers were there from all the New York boroughs and from many of the adjacent cities of New Jersey as well as more distant states. Mr. William Phillips Hall presided, and addresses were given by the Rev. David James Burrell, D. D., pastor of the church, Dr. Howard Kelly, the eminent surgeon, of Baltimore, the Rev. James M. Gray, D. D., dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, and Dr. Scofield himself.

BALKAN RELIEF FUND

Two hundred thousand women and children have died since the war began in Albania. In that country corn is $50 per bushel, flour $80 per sack and macaroni $5 a pound. Of these Albanians, 300,000 are Christians; they have not been in the war, but their country has been overrun by hostile armies. A ship to carry relief to this needy people is launched and ready, but before sailing there should be a relief cargo. The treasurer to receive contributions for that purpose is Rev. Frederick Lynch, D. D., editor of "The Christian Work," New York City. Any kind of contribution from a loaf of bread upwards can be sent to the Balkan Relief Fund, 70 Fifth Ave., New York City.

AWFUL CONDITIONS IN ARMENIA

Lord Bryce, former ambassador to Armenia, has sent the following telegram to the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, 70, 5th Ave., New York City:

All civilized nations able to assist Armenians today should know need still extremely urgent. Several hundred thousand exiles who survived horrors of deportation now perishing of exposure and starvation in Arabian desert. Latest reports neutral eye witnesses describe terrible conditions. Sick people throwing themselves into graves and begging grave diggers bury them; women going mad; eating grass, carrion; parents putting children out of misery, digging own graves and awaiting death. Future of Armenian nation depends on saving refugees in Russia, but this requires world wide assistance for feeding, clothing, housing, repatriation. Book telling whole story just appearing here with fuller statement by me. Feel sure American generosity will again respond to call of humanity.
BRYCE.

MISCELLANEOUS

In the bad industrial year of 1914-15, the United Charities of Chicago dealt with over 22,000 families, representing almost 100,000 persons in every sort of difficulty. Last year over 14,000 families came to it in their need.

On the one hundredth anniversary of the American Sunday-school Union, it reports having organized 120,000 Sunday-schools with 500,000 teachers and 5,000,000 scholars. Two hundred missionaries have been employed and the Sunday-school periodicals that have been issued have run into the millions.

During the recent massacres of Armenians by the Turks, which moved President Wilson to proclaim October 22 a day on which contributions for the victims should be received in churches here, a woman who had seen her child burnt alive, answered her would-be comforters: "Don't you see what has happened? God has gone mad."

Eben Eugene Rexford died at Green Bay, Wis., October 18, at the age of 68. He was the author of the famous ballad, "Silver Threads Among the Gold." He also was the author of a number of hymns that were popular many years ago, among which were, "Where are the Reapers," and "Crown Him, King of Kings," etc.

The year preceding October 25, 1917, is being observed by Lutherans throughout the country, quite generally, in connection with the 400th anniversary of the nailing of the 95 Theses on the church door at Wittenberg by Martin Luther.

The celebration is under the direction of a joint committee of the three chief bodies of Lutherans, the General Synod, the General Council and the United Synod South. The Lutherans in this country number about 2,000,000 of church members.

Not long ago a well-dressed but unassuming man, walked into the offices of the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian relief in New York City. He said he had $5,000 that he might give to the work, but would like a few facts. When these were given, he signed a check for $10,000. Shortly after this he was told of the sacrifices of an old woman, in order that she might give to this worthy cause, and he said he thought he ought to give $15,000. Before leaving the office, he wrote his check for $18,000. Not long after that, the same gentleman called at the office and left a check for $25,000, but would not permit his name to be associated with any of these donations.

The celebration of the go-to-church Sunday in Brooklyn, October 29, is declared by Rev. S. Edward Young, D. D., of that city, to have been a great success. The attendance was twenty-five per cent above normal. The Protestant churches in New York have 186,380 members and on that day, the attendance on divine services was 168,200 or about 90 per cent of the whole.

The late Field Marshal, Lord Roberts, familiarly known in the British army as "Bobs," wrote an essay before his death that has attracted wide attention because of his thoughts on the war. He believed that war is as inevitable as death; peace begets over-civilization, and that in turn begets degeneracy. In war, if a nation has any health left in it, it revives and gathers itself together and rises like a phoenix. He believed Germany was the greatest friend of France, Russia and England when she declared war; the allied nations were fast falling into decay, he implied. The moment a country becomes over-civilized, there is an outbreak of twisted thoughts. When a country's press becomes full of articles urging vivisection, peace at any price, the criminality of corporeal punishment, etc., it is time for wise men to take stock.

The voting on prohibition at the National election on November 7, gave the temperance people great joy, as four states, Michigan, South Dakota, Nebraska and Montana, approved constitution prohibition. In Arkansas an attempt to go back to license failed. In California and Missouri it appears that the prohibitionists were not successful, but in the latter state the majority against prohibition was cut down from 200,000 to 75,000.

Miss Anna Gordon, the president of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union is reported to have said on Wednesday morning, November 8: "I have never been so happy in all my life. Nebraska, South Dakota, Montana and Michigan voting for state-wide prohibition: Arkansas, Colorado, Oregon and Washington maintaining their dry ground against the wets and California adopting the amendment that will close all public drinking places—doesn't that look like a saloonless nation by 1920?"

"By Michigan voting dry, Detroit, the fifth largest city in the country, becomes a dry city. I have telegrams from our workers all over the country, and they are all enthusiastic. At Indianapolis from the 17th to the 23d of this month we expect to hold the largest national convention we have ever had. Then on December 10 we all expect to be in Washington to witness the introduction of the constitutional amendment in Congress."

The Evangelistic Field

SUGGESTIONS TO OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Evangelists and other Christian workers reporting items or contributing any matter for this department will please arrange to have copy reach the magazine not later than the 10th of the month preceding date of issue.

"The Evangelistic Field" department is intended for news in concise reports of revival meetings, soul-winning campaigns, and a record of evangelistic work in general. We do not invite statements eulogizing the leaders or participants in this line of work, nor can we promise to print them.—Editors.

The Birch-Harris Evangelistic campaign at Belpre, Kan., closed Nov. 12.

Ray Palmer held a campaign in the First Baptist Church at Weldon, N. C., during September.

James H. Bennett, of Prescott, Ark., writes he has given up the pastorate, and returned to evangelistic work.

Hay Bell and Joe Lauderdale closed a successful union meeting at La Harpe, Kan., and next went to Antioch, Mo.

I. N. Parvin and helper closed meetings at Eskridge, and Lebanon, Kan. From the latter place they go to Little River, Kan.

Benjamin F. Butts writes from Caro, Mich.: "We are just closing a two weeks' meeting here. 107 persons have decided for Christ."

Edward F. Wood, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Ludlow, Vt., was assisted in a two weeks' series of meetings by E. A. Corbett.

Tilman Hobson has been conducting a campaign in Sioux Falls, S. D. He has associated with him this season, as chorister, Mr. A. T. Whitteker.

"The Burke-Hobbs Party closed a five weeks' campaign at Benton, Ill., with a sweeping victory. They next went to Frankfort, Ill." —Harry Dixon Loes.

Dr. W. E. Biederwolf has been conducting a campaign in the far west, this fall. He is now at Salt Lake City, Utah, and requests the prayers of our readers.

The Mealing-Leonard Party closed a campaign Sept. 18, at Wattsburg, Pa. They next went to Carrolltown, Pa., in a union meeting which was begun under favorable conditions.

John M. Linden closed a tabernacle campaign at Red Oak, Ia., Oct. 22, with a large number of decisions. He next went to Honoe Falls, N. Y., twelve churches cooperating.

Hart and Magann closed a campaign at Cripple Creek, Colo., and next went to Everett, Wash. The opening night the tabernacle was crowded and many could not gain admittance.

The McLendon-Pledger Party closed a six weeks' campaign at Greenville, S. C., Oct. 29, with a large number of decisions. They next went to Clinton, S. C., for a four weeks' campaign.

G. A. DeFlon writes: "Just closed a very successful meeting at Trumbull, Neb. God greatly blessed our efforts, and we had a glorious victory. The next field will be Freeport, Kan."

Leland W. Brignall, for several years a pastor in the Methodist Church, is giving his whole time to evangelistic work. He has some open dates, and may be addressed at South Wales, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Laraway assisted J. Clarence Green in meetings at Porter, Ind., for four weeks. They next went to Humboldt, Ia., to assist the pastor in meetings at the Methodist church.

J. Milton Whisler writes: "I am doing evangelistic work for the winter under the direction of the Nebraska State Baptist Board." Mr. Whisler's address is 20th and H Street, University Place, Lincoln, Neb.

Rev. W. H. Sorrell, pastor of the Baptist church at Paso Robles, Cal., writes: "A great revival is in progress here. Hundreds are turning to the light; people are coming thirty miles to hear Dan Shannon preach the Word."

Edward D. Fellers, who was associated with Dr. H. W. Bromley, is now working independently. He reports having good meetings at West Liberty and Newton, W. Va., recently. Mr. Fellers' home address is Youngstown, O.

Mitchell and Preston write as follows: "The Lord is giving us a victory at Salem, Ill. After a hard battle, 135 have professed conversion so far, not including reclamations. We begin next at the Methodist church in Harrisburg."

Harold L. Stephens and party closed a six weeks' campaign in New Glasgow, N. S., Nov. 7, the first tabernacle ever constructed in the maritime provinces. The campaign was planned for five weeks, but extended to six weeks, with the result that a remarkable break came among the church members. The party next went to Halifax, N. S., where extensive preparations were made for another campaign.

Harold L. Stephens

Floyd John Evans and party closed two successful union efforts in Kansas. After finishing his prohibition campaign at Sidney, this town and county voted "dry." Mr. Evans begins his next union campaign at Standish, Mich.

S. D. and B. W. Goodale write: "We closed our second tabernacle meeting for this fall. We had a good meeting, considering the difficulties we labored under. A tornado blew down the building at the beginning of the second week, and we rebuilt it. The storm occurred just after we dismissed a children's service, and no one was hurt."

C. B. Brooks, chorus director and soloist, assisted in a successful union campaign in Alma, Kan., during the month of October. Mr. Brooks was engaged in a union campaign of eight churches at Farmland, Ind., during November.

The Bromley Evangelistic Campaign closed with victory at Bay City, Mich. A large number decided for Christ. Miss Dora L. Cain, '06, and Miss Gladys Ditzell, '12, are associated with Dr. Bromley in the work. They go next to Webster City, Ia.

The Kadey Evangelistic Party write: "We just finished a successful union meeting in Salem, Mich. It was a small beginning, but the interest and attendance grew steadily. We are now at Columbiaville, Mich., where we look for a great work of grace."

E. Clare Harding assisted Thomas E. Thomas at Unionville, Mo., in a three weeks' meeting, and then went to North Tonawanda, N. Y. Mr. Harding is a singer, and has some open dates for January. He may be addressed at 417 E. Adams St., Jacksonville, Fla.

W. A. Burch writes from Powersville, Mo.: "I am in a meeting at the Mt. Hope Church here, and the Holy Spirit is with us, and has been from the first night. Souls are being saved at almost every meeting. We have open dates, and may be addressed at Crocker, Mo."

The Morning Star Mission, Joliet, Ill., of which P. H. McCarthy is superintendent, celebrated its seventh anniversary, Nov. 14-17. Mr. McCarthy reports that God has wonderfully blessed the mission this year; they having had the opportunity of leading 516 souls to Christ.

The Thomson Evangelistic Party of South Bend, Ind., consists of Dr. and Mrs. Harry A. Thomson, and David J. Williams, chorister. They left South Bend early in November, by automobile, for Florida, where they will hold evangelistic campaigns during the next six months.

Byron J. Clark closed his meetings at Neosho, Mo., Oct. 29, with the best service of the campaign. The congregations were large for all three services; and the seating capacity of the tabernacle was taxed before each service opened. The party next went to Ionia, Kan.

The Charles F. Weigle Party closed a union tent meeting at Matamoras, Pa., and Port Jervis, N. Y. Although the conditions were hard, and it was a little late for a tent meeting, there were good results. The party next started a six weeks' campaign in a tabernacle at Lansdale, Pa., where they will close Dec. 10.

"We have closed a fine union meeting at Gresham, Neb., in a tabernacle seating 1,000; four churches united, and the spirit was splendid. A large number were converted. All the churches received a spiritual uplift, and a fine work was done in the high-school."—A. J. Fitt and party.

W. Taylor Joyce reports having conducted very encouraging meetings along the Soo Line in Wisconsin. At Gilman, Wis., he had a meeting with a union of five churches. Mr. Joyce has some open dates for meetings, and may be addressed at 2100 North Richmond St., Chicago, Ill.

"We held a union tabernacle meeting at Pleasanton, Kan., Sept. 17 to Oct. 18. Large delegations came from five to twenty-five miles, and the tabernacle was crowded. Almost the entire high-school was reached for Christ. We began at Iola, Kan., Nov. 8."—Haudenschield and Pugh.

R. C. Eddins

R. C. Eddins, who has been singing for the Phelps Party, has been helping J. Walter Morris, of Omaha, Neb., recently.

John T. Mason missionary of the Cuivre Baptist Association, Troy, Mo., writes: "I am very busy, constantly moving right out of one meeting into another. We just closed a fine meeting of great spiritual power at Ethlyn, and go next to begin a meeting at New Hope. The Lord is blessing us every day."

John W. Erskine writes: "Am now in a meeting in the First Congregational Church of Barneveld, Wis., with Rev. Homer Vreeland. The meetings are well attended, when the roads are passable. Some nights the church is full, extra chairs having to be brought in. God has given evidence of His presence and souls have been redeemed."

E. M. and H. C. Anderson closed a union campaign at Forest City, Ia., with the

E. M. Anderson

Methodist, Baptist, Norwegian Methodist, and Swedish Baptist churches.

"We just closed a meeting at Morley, Ia., and are now at Hudson, Ia. The Lord has been with us and blessed our work. At Morley we had the largest crowds the town ever had at church. Had a chorus choir of 60 voices. Outlook here at Hudson is fine."—Paige Evangelistic Party, D. E. Young, Chorister.

"John E. Brown and party closed a successful campaign in Sherman, Tex. Because of the fact that Sherman is a dry town and the pool halls abolished, it was called the 'Holy City,' but the evangelistic campaign revealed the great need of a revival. There were many that surrendered their lives for definite Christian service."—L. C. Smith.

A gospel tabernacle is to be erected in Pasadena, Cal., for the use of the colored evangelist, J. Gordon, McPherson. Mr. McPherson has won his way into the hearts of the people of Pasadena, and they contributed funds to assist in the erection of the gospel tabernacle. It was planned to give a big free Thanksgiving dinner in the new tabernacle for those not able to have a home dinner with their loved ones.

E. H. Edgar writes: "Mr. Stockton and I closed a two weeks' meeting in Wallula, Wash., with good results. We also spent one week at Attalia, where the pastor received thirty-two into the church. Our first meeting of the season was held at Doty, Wash., where we met with strong opposition, but we had victory, and forty-six made profession."

Mr. and Mrs. Myron J. Smith write: "We have just returned from an engagement at Luzerne, Pa. After only three weeks we were compelled to close on account of the illness of the pastor. We had only got started, but there were forty-six conversions, sixteen the last night." They are already planning a return engagement. They next went to Ludlowville, N. Y.

George Wood Anderson and party held a successful campaign at Ashland, O., for six weeks, ending Oct. 29. At the concluding service, Sunday night, the tabernacle was over-crowded at 6:40 o'clock. They had a choir of 500 voices. Owing to throat trouble, Mr. Homer Hammontree had to take a rest during part of the campaign. The party next went to Springfield, O., to begin services Nov. 12.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Daeschner, of Preston, Neb., write that their time is all taken up to March, 1917, helping pastors. Mr. Daeschner does some preaching and is a song evangelist; Mrs. Daeschner is pianist and worker with children. They hope to engage with some evangelist after April 1, 1917. They have just closed meetings with the Evangelical church, at Derby, Kan.

"L. W. Braw, of Chicago, is assisting me as chorus director in a union meeting at Bronson, Kan. The two Methodist and the Baptist churches are in the movement, and at this writing there have been 100 reconsecrations and 24 conversions. The community is being greatly stirred. Our next date is at Mound City, Kan., beginning Nov. 13. We have open dates after January 1." C. V. Bryan, De Soto, Mo.

The Wheeler meetings in St. Louis, commenced Nov. 5. The tabernacle was crowded at the opening services. Dr. Wheeler made an impassioned attack on the Business Men's League and the Clearing House Association because of their stand with the breweries and the saloon. Dr. Wheeler has in his party, this season, Miss Helen K. Strain, women's worker; Miss Clara B. Grunert accompanist; Rev. E. F. Dillon, men's worker; "Dick" Branston, shop meetings; W. W. Weaver, chorus director; and G. F. Wheeler, associate.

"The meetings here in a country church five miles from Parkville, Mo., have been fruitful, in that people are coming to Christ at almost every service. Eighteen have professed faith in Christ the past eight days. The church is filled at every service. It is our purpose to go to the needy rural districts and hold evangelistic meetings. It is possible we shall be in this part of the state the rest of this year."—F. A. Geisenheiner.

The National Evangelists and Singers Bureau, organized the past summer, has now taken in nearly 100 members, and has appointed several committees, among them a committee on the organization of a personal workers circle.

It is expected a general meeting will be called soon, by the superintendent, to elect officers and organize a permanent organization. Mr. Llewelyn Williams, Downers Grove, Ill., is in charge of the extension department.

Ely J. Forsythe and party conducted a tabernacle campaign on the south side of Milwaukee, Wis., with a union of fifteen churches, during November. Upon the arrival of the party in the city, a reception was given, at which the mayor and district attorney both gave addresses of welcome. At the close of the campaign on the south side, Dr. Forsythe will go to the west side of the city. They ask for the prayers of our readers, as the campaign continues.

The "Lemon Hill Messenger," Philadelphia, has published a statement explaining that the Fairmount Park Commission refused to grant a permit for the past two years, to hold meetings at Lemon Hill, particular exception being taken to Dr. Ely personally. The Association states that no one knows any good reason for such drastic action being taken by the Park Commission; and term the action as un-American and unchristian; for which there seems to be no redress.

Henry Ostrom conducted a successful campaign in Pocatello, Ida. Owing to a ruling by the city council, it was necessary to build the tabernacle several blocks from the business section of the town. The pastors took hold of the work and the arch deacon of the Episcopal Church attended, occupying a seat on the platform and leading in prayer. John P. Hillis, of Pasadena, Cal., and Albert Simpson Reitz were the only assistants Mr. Ostrom had from outside the city.

"MEL" TROTTER AT PACIFIC GARDEN MISSION.

Rev. Melvin E. Trotter, better known as "Mel" Trotter, a convert under superintendent Harry Monroe at the Pacific Garden Mission, Chicago, has been chosen to succeed Mr. Monroe, whose death was recently reported in "The Christian Workers Magazine." Mr. Trotter returned to Chicago, November 7 at the conclusion of the campaign in Michigan in behalf of prohibition. Mr. Trotter said: "I stayed in Michigan long enough to help the state go dry for 30,000." He returned to Chicago with a record of achievement in the mission field. Forty-six missions were organized by him in leading cities of the west and middle west, and he raises annually about $200,000 to finance them. He spent many years in Grand Rapids, Mich., where, as head of the City Rescue Mission, he has instrumentally saved hundreds from drunkards' graves. A reception was given to Mr. Trotter on November 10 by ministers, mission superintendents and workers.

FUTURE ENGAGEMENTS

Below are given the engagements, with dates as far as known, of the workers named. Our readers are earnestly invited to remember these laborers and their fields of appointment in their prayers.

L. M. Aldridge and party—Until Nov. 30, Wayne City, Ill.; Dec. 3-24, Falmouth, Ill.; Dec. 31-Jan. 21, Oakley, Ill.

L. E. Allison—Dec., La Crosse, Kan.

E. M. Anderson—Staten Island, N. Y.

Geo. Wood Anderson Party—Dec. 31-Feb. 12, New Brunswick, N. J.

J. F. Bailey—Nov.-Dec., Freeport, O.; Jan., Southport, Ind.

E. H. Baker & Barkman—Until Dec. 18, Hugo, Colo.; Dec. 31-Jan. 22, Nebraska City, Neb.

Hay Bell and Joe Lauderdale, Dec., Walnut Grove, Mo.; Jan., Wellsville, Mo.; Feb., McLeansboro, Ill.

W. E. Biederwolf Party—Jan.-Feb., Wilkinsburg, Pa.

W. A. Bodell Party—Nov., Oakland City, Ind.; Dec., Macomb, Ill.; Jan., Altoona, Pa.; Feb., Salem, Ohio.

H. W. Bromley Party—Nov.-Dec., Webster City, Ia.; Jan.-Feb., Washington Court House, O.; March, Dayton, Ohio.

Geo. W. Broome—Until Dec. 15, Calumet, Mich.; Dec. 15-Jan. 3, LaSalle, Ill.; Jan. 3-28, Coshocton, O.

John E. Brown Party—Tucson, Ariz.; Danville, Va.

E. J. Bulfinch Party—Jan., Tinton, Ind.

D. B. Bulkeley Party—Until Dec. 10, Overbrook, Kan.

Geo. E. Burgess Party—Until Dec. 18, Geneva, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Butts—Until Dec. 17, Midland, Mich.; Dec. 31-Jan. 21, Battle Creek, Mich.; Jan. 22-Feb. 4, Pontiac, Mich.; Feb. 5-18 Kalamazoo, Mich.; Feb. 20-Mar. 4, Menominee, Mich.; Mar. 6-25, Edwardsburg, Mich.

R. Sheeler Campbell Party—Dec., Beaver City, Neb. Chapman-Alexander Party—Nov.-Dec., Charleston, W. Va.; Jan., Charleston, S. C.; Feb.-March, Elizabeth, N. J.

W. S. Colegrove—Nov. 21-Dec. 24, Cedar Springs, Mich.

K. L. Cramer and son—Nov., Pittsburgh, Pa.

E. Davidson—Jan., Campbell, Mass.

Frank M. Dunk—Until Dec. 3, Morrison, Ill.; Dec. 6-24, Hoopole, Ill.; Dec. 29-Jan. 5, Elgin, Ill.

H. P. Dunlop Party—Until Dec. 4, Youngwood, Pa.; Feb., South Bend, Ind.

L. L. Dunn—Dec. 3-24, Perham, Me.; Jan., Gorham, N. H.

R. C. Eddings—Dec., Donora, Pa.

Edwin H. Edgar—Nov. 12, Kelso, Wash. Dec. 3, Wapato, Wash.

J. W. Erskine—Until Dec. 10, Coral, Mich.; Dec. 13-31, Ewart, Mich.; Jan. 7, Robinsdale, Minn.

Edward D. Fellers—Dec., Alexandria, W. Va.; Dec. 29-Jan. 15, Fairview, W. Va.; Jan. 17-Feb. 4, Cameron, W. Va.; Feb. 7-25, Weston, W. Va.

A. John Fitt Party—Dec., Overton, Neb.; Jan., Atwood, Kan.

E. J. Forsythe Party—Nov.-Feb., Milwaukee, Wis. Franklin-Leonard Party—Nov. 19, Monroe, Ia.; Jan., Deerfield, Mich.

Frazier Party—Until Dec. 10, Farmland, Ind.

S. D. and B. W. Goodale—Until Dec. 17, Hardin, Ill.

W. W. Hall Party—Nov. 26, Donora, Pa.

J. W. Hem Party—Dec., Broadway, N. C.

John S. Hamilton Party—Until Dec. 10, Frankfort, Ind.

O. E. Hamilton Party—Jan., Hobart, Okla.; Feb.-March, Lima, O.

Edward Clare Harding—Macon, Ga.; Jacksonville, Fla.

Chester F. Harris—Nov.-Dec., Hedrick, Ia.

Hart and Magann Party—Jan.-Feb., Phoenix, Ariz.

Haudenschild and Pugh—Nov., Iola, Kan.

Hendrick and Carter—Dec., King City, Mo.; Jan., Abilene and Orange, Tex.

J. Q. A. Henry—Jan. 11, Princeton, Ill.

C. E. Hillis Party—Until Dec. 10, North Baltimore, O.

Holderby-Gates Party—Nov.-Dec., Porterville, Cal.

Robt. E. Johnson Party—Until Dec. 18, Middletown, Ind.

Bob Jones Party—Until Dec. 17, Quincy, Ill.; Dec. 31, Bloomington, Ill.; Feb. 11, Zanesville, O.

C. G. Jordan Party—Dec. 31, Marshalltown, Ia.; Mar., Ft. Dodge, Ia.; Apr., Havana, O.

W. T. Joyce—Until Dec. 1, Homewood, Ill.; Dec. 3, Ashtabula, O.

P. H. Kadey and A. R. Shaw—Columbiaville, Mich.

H. D. Kennedy—Dec., Glidden, Ia.; Jan., Greenfield, Ia.

G. A. Klein Party—Until Dec. 10, Breckenridge, Mo.

A. E. Laraway—Nov. 12, Humboldt, Ia.; Dec. 24, Kings, Ill.

J. J. Lowe—Nov. 20, Schenectady, N. Y.

Oscar Lowry Party—Until Dec. 17, Pratt, Kan.

J. C. Ludgate—Until Dec. 17, Neponset, Ill.; Dec. 18-30, Wheaton, Ill.; Dec. 31-Jan. 21, Neoga, Ill.

Milford H. Lyon Party—Until Dec. 17, Camden, N. J.; Dec. 31, Portland, Me.

John H. McCombe Party—Nov.-Dec., Gouverneur, N. Y.; Dec. 31, Syracuse, N. Y.; Feb. 4, Paw Paw, Mich.

W. T. McCandless and the Bakers—Dec., Piper City, Ill.

W. E. McCoy—Until Dec. 3, Elwood, Neb.

J. B. McInn Party—Until Dec. 17, Brighton, Ia.; Dec. 31, Schuykill Haven, Pa.

W. C. Mealing—Nov.-Dec., E. Stroudsburg, Pa.; Jan., Harrisburg, Pa.; Feb., Enola, Pa.; Mar., Harrisburg, Pa.

E. C. Miller Party—Dec. 31, Cortland, N. Y.; Feb. 18, Ossining, N. Y.; April-May, Harrisonburg, Va.

L. J. Mitchell and G. Preston—Until Dec. 17, Harrisburg, Ill.; Dec. 31-Jan. 28, Bellville, Ill.; Feb., Alton, Ill.; Mar., Mt. Vernon, Ill.

W. C. Moorman—Dec. 10, Carleiro, Kan.; Jan. 1, Langley, Kan.

O. A. Newlin Party—Until Dec. 10, Ligonier, Ind.

Nicholson-Hemming Party—Nov. 12-Dec. 17, Bangor, Pa.; Dec. 31-Feb. 11, Tyrone, Pa.

Emma Paige Party—Dec., Lakota, Ia.

Dr. Frank N. Palmer—Nov. 26-Dec. 1, Circleville, O.; Dec. 3-8, Erie, Pa.; Dec. 10-15, Hopeville, Ind.

I. N. Parvin Party—Dec. 3-24, Little River, Kan.; Dec. 31-Jan. 21, Agency, Ia.; Jan. 25-Feb. 13, Minneola, Kan.; Feb. 18-Mar. 8, Sargent, Neb.

L. K. Peacock Party—Nov.-Dec., Fairfield, Ia.

Jay J. Pease—Dec., Minnesota.

W. A. Pugsley—Dec., Sharon Springs, N. Y.; Jan., Nyack, N. Y.; Feb., Ames, N. Y.

C. Fenwick Reed—Nov.-Dec., Huron, O.

Milton S. Reed—Nov.-Dec., Plattsburgh, N. H.; Jan., Worcester, Mass.

F. E. Rimanoczy—Jan., Elkland, Pa.; Feb., Jersey City, N. J.

Runyan-Rueckert—Nov. 26-Dec. 17, Herlington, Kan.; Dec. 31-Jan. 21, Beatrice, Neb.; Jan. 28-Feb. 18, North Platte, Neb.

Chas. Reign Scoville Party—Until Dec. 10, Ottumwa, Ia.

H. D. Sheldon Party—Nov.-Dec., Syracuse, N. Y.

Chas. Cullen Smith and A. C. V. Gilmore—Nov., Ainsworth, Neb.; Dec., Winnebago, Minn.; Jan., Mankato, Minn.

Myron J. Smith—Nov. 18, Ludlowville, N. Y.; Jan., Ashley, Pa.

Gypsy Smith, Jr.—Jan., State College, Pa.; Feb., Washington, D. C.; Mar., Pensacola, Fla.

Geo. T. Stephens Party—Until Dec. 10, Kankakee, Ill.; Dec. 20, Keyser, W. Va.

H. L. Stephen Party—Nov.-Dec., Halifax, N. S.

Geo. A. Stott—Dec., Martinsburg, N. Y.; Jan., New Amsterdam, N. Y.; Feb., Brookfield, N. Y.

Henry W. Stough Party—Until Dec. 19, Danville, Ind.

Wm. A. Sunday Party—Nov.-Jan., Boston, Mass.

W. A. Tetley—Until Dec. 17, Pilot Grove, Mo.

A. A. Walker—Tillatobia, Miss., McComb City, Miss., and Tula, Miss.

G. H. Wareham—Dec., Dollywood, Ia.

J. Roy Weakland Party—Nov., Erin, N. Y.; Dec., Breesport, N. Y.

C. F. Weigle Party—Until Dec. 10, Lansdale, Pa.; Dec. 31, Huntingdon, Pa.

Chas. T. Wheeler Party—Nov.-Dec. 17, West St. Louis and Wellston, Mo.

Owen O. Wliard—Dec. 10, Youngstown, O.; Dec. 17, Davenport, Ia.; Dec. 31, Indianapolis, Ind.

R. Hayes Willis—Nov. 28-Dec. 17, Sharpsburg, Ia.; Jan. 9-28, Grant Park, Ill.; Jan. 30-Feb. 13, Dalton, O.

E. L. Wolstlagel—Dec., Portsmouth, Va.

E. W. Wright—Dec., Oxford, N. J.

John Zoller and Sutherland—Nov.-Dec., East Side, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Book Notices

Any book favorably mentioned below may be secured at price named from the Bible Institute Colportage Association, 822 North La Salle Street, Chicago.

Helps to Happiness, by N. B. Cooksey.

This little book contains many good suggestions, but there are a number of good books on substantially the same subject, that have become standard, and should be preferred to this one by discriminating readers.

63 pages. $5\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{1}{4}$ inches. Cooksey Publishing Company, Olney, Ill. 25 cents.

J. H. R.

Doctrine and Duty Made Plain and Attractive, by N. B. Cooksey.

This is a collection of short addresses on many subjects, and for the most part, helpful. On the doctrine of the resurrection and the second coming of the Lord, the author is not satisfactory.

105 pages. $5\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Cooksey Publishing Company, Olney, Ill. 50 cents.

J. H. R.

Religious Rheumatism, by J. B. Baker.

This is a collection of sixteen sermons, the title of the first giving name to the volume. The treatment of the various texts is very original and abounds with illustrations and literary reference. If one may criticize the book, it is top-heavy with illustrations and figures, and the reader will be found enjoying the procession of fascinating pictures and will fail to do a bit of serious thinking. The teaching of the book is safe and certainly very stimulating.

220 pages. $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8$ inches. Sherman, French and Company, Boston. \$1.25.

J. H. R.

Bible Talk Outline, by N. B. Cooksey.

These 200 outlines should be used with care, not because they are unevangelical, but because they may be crutches with which men would try to walk, when they ought to be walking alone. We cannot approve the author's statement on page 66, that the Scripture says that the time of the Second Advent is fixed, for the Scripture says that the time is not known and has not been revealed to man.

77 pages. $5\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Cooksey Publishing Company, Olney, Ill. 35 cents.

J. H. R.

We have received a missionary calendar from Mr. A. W. Roffe, 274 Bathurst Street, Toronto, Canada, for 1917.

This calendar has thirteen sheets 12×17 inches, tinned at the top and suspended by a silk cord. The cover page is a work of art and serves as a suitable introduction to the one dozen pages which follow. On each of the inside pages, there is printed a calendar for the month in large figures with appropriate daily messages, while a suggestive missionary illustration occupies the center of each page. One of the latter is by Mr. W. A. Hillis of the Moody Bible Institute.

J. H. R.

Weapons for Workers, by J. Ellis.

The author of this book has been prolific in sending out books of the same type. As a rule, these books are excellent of their kind, and this one is no exception. There is a danger that ministers may lean on such books as the furnishing of the staple of what they teach rather than looking to the Word of God, personal experience and observation.

These weapons are divided into illustrations, incidents, children's talks, Bible readings, Bible talks, temperance talks, temperance points, brief topics, etc.

174 pages. $5\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Fleming H. Revell Company, New York. 75 cents.

J. H. R.

God's Family, by Mrs. Ralph H. Gaw.

With little children as her audience and missions anear and afar as her theme, the author correlates entertainment and instruction into a method after the manner of the complementing blades of a pair of shears. With sympathy and a fine understanding she pierces through mere entertainment to the germinal idea of sound, cumulative instruction in a meditated plan to develop in the child sufficient responsibility and imagination to touch the springs of action. It is her happy vision, through the intelligent wills of children, to open wider the door of missionary propaganda.

95 pages. 6×9 inches. Paper. Mrs. Ralph H. Gaw, Topeka, Kan., 50 cents.

J. R. R.

The Gist of the Lesson, by R. A. Torrey, D. D.

This is, as the title page indicates, a concise exposition of the International Sunday-school Lessons for the year 1917. It is now in its eighteenth year. It is needless to go into a review of its merits; all that is necessary is merely to bring to the attention of the Sunday-school world its continued publication. It is in a class by itself, since no competitor has ever approached it in merit.

The full text of the Sunday-school lesson appears, with the important words and phrases printed in black-face type to arrest attention.

Where an important change has been made in the Revised Version it is indicated in brackets. This is followed by from two to two and one-half pages of exposition.

155 pages. Vest-pocket size. Fleming H. Revell Company, New York. 25 cents net.

P. B. F.

Mary Slessor of Calabar, by W. P. Livingstone.

Peculiarly brutalized Africans of the hinterland of old Calabar furnished the dark background against which a frail woman, transfigured by a full consecration to her Lord, burned out her life with an ever increasing influence, radiant with the light of purity, and magnetic with the heat of power. Increasingly sin was shamed by that light and holy resolutions were driven on by that power, until, honored by government officials, loved by her fellow workers, and almost worshipped by the natives, she fell asleep.

The biography of Mary Slessor, the Dundee weaver, "rivals in many particulars the thrilling story of the heroism and devotion of David Livingstone." Like him she died as a seed in order that she might live as a crop.

347 pages. George H. Doran Company, New York, $1.50 net.

J. R. R.

Manhood, in Its American Type, by the Rev. Martyn Summerbell, D. D., LL. D., author of "Religion and College Life," "Faith for College Men," etc.

The author says that this book is given to the public because he believes firmly in America and in the men who, under God, helped make her what she is. He also believes in her future. He fears that some of his readers may regard it as over optimistic, but that, if true, is a good fault in a book of this character. Its contents are:

"The Development of America," "Molding the American Type," and "American Traits and Characteristics."

It is filled with good strong sense, mixed with an abundance of wit and humor, and as we wrote the author privately, it makes a fine treatise on preparedness without mentioning the subject, and would win votes in the coming national election for one of the parties, though we leave our readers to guess which one.

132 pages. 5x7½ inches. Richard G. Badger, Boston. Cloth, $1.00 net.

J. M. G.

Leavening the Levant, by Joseph K. Greene, D. D.

This is a fascinating account of the first one hundred years of missions in Turkey.

In accounting for the early success of the Ottoman Empire, he shows that out of the forty-eight leading men who were grand viz-ers, thirty-six were men of Christian antecedents and only twelve were Turks. The early Turkish rulers were shrewd enough to attract to their service talented young men from among their Christian subjects.

Education is the crying need of Turkey, and without education there is no hope for the Turkish race. The government recognizes this need, and being unable to find educated Turkish women to manage their schools for girls, it has sent at its own expense young Turkish women to the American College for Girls at Constantinople to be educated by the Americans.

The Armenian question is handled ably. He quotes the words of an intelligent Turk who says, "It is absurd to think that we can govern the Armenians—a people so much abler than we are," and another who said, "To dispose of the Armenian question, we must dispose of the Armenians."

350 pages. 5½ x 8½ inches. The Pilgrim Press, Boston. $1.50, net.

H. W. P.

Alleluia is the latest song book publication of the Westminster Press, and has been prepared by a committee of the Presbyterian Board of Publication and Sunday-school Work, of which William H. Scott is chairman, and Franklin L. Sheppard, editor.

It is a collection of "things new and old" in the way of hymns and sacred songs—primarily for the Sunday-school, but intended to meet the needs also, of secular schools and academies, young people's societies, social meetings of the church, and family worship.

The preface explains well the method of arrangement. "Beautiful and historical hymns of the church, a priceless heritage, which every child should be taught to know and to value at their true worth, mingle herein with songs of recent type and less formal character."

There is a topical index—an index of first lines—sixteen orders of service for the Sunday-school—thirty-one responsive readings from Scripture—and in every way the book bears the stamp of careful preparation and a discriminating taste that is characteristic of this board of publication.

346 pages, 6x8½ inches. Presbyterian Board of Publication and Sunday-school Work, Philadelphia, Penn. 40c postpaid. $30 per hundred.

J. B. T.

A Guide to Bible Study, by Harry E. Richards, A. M., M. D.

This work comes in seven parts and is intended for graded Sunday-school study. The first three parts are for the Junior Department. Part I covers the Old Testament from Genesis to the end of Ruth, excepting the book of Deuteronomy; Part II contains lessons in

1 and 2 Samuel, 1 and 2 Kings; Daniel, Esther, Nehemiah and Proverbs; Part III covers the Gospels and the Acts of the Apostles.

Parts IV to VII are for the Intermediate Department. Part IV contains lessons in all the books of the Pentateuch, Joshua, Judges, 1 and 2 Samuel; Part V contains lessons in 1 and 2 Kings, in many of the major and minor prophets, Ezra, Nehemiah, Esther and Ecclesiastes; Part VI contains lessons in all the Gospels; Part VII contains lessons in the Acts of the Apostles and in many of the Epistles of the New Testament, and Revelation.

The plan of each lesson is to give two illustrative Scriptures other than the passage under study; a reasonable number of questions on the passage; and a summary of the practical teaching of the passage and suggestions for home reading. The suggestive teacher's library at the end is by authors of recognized scholarship, the majority of them being of the most conservative, evangelical type.

For Sunday-school teaching, this guide is to be commended above the graded lessons offered to the Sunday-school through some of our church publishing houses.

Volume 1, 241 pages; Volume 2, 321 pages. 5½ x 8 inches. Index Publishing Company, Bloomfield, N. J. J. H. R.

Mastering the Books of the Bible, by Robert A. Armstrong.

Such a title as this book carries gives great promise, but in small measure is the promise kept. The reader would naturally expect some concrete treatment of all the books of the Bible, but he is disappointed in finding that less than a dozen books of the Bible, and all of them from the Old Testament, are treated.

It is true there are chapters on the culture value of the Bible, the origin and growth of the books, New Testament stories, Old Testament poetry, a chapter on the Apocrypha, which Protestants do not recognize as Scripture. This is an illustration of so much modern Bible study, much about the Bible, but very little of the Bible itself. The author gives credit to Dr. James M. Gray for his suggestion as to the method of reading the Bible, and commends his synthetic studies, but appears to decline to follow the method himself.

In suggestion as to books for the student's library at the end of the volume, the few recommended are, with one or two exceptions, written by authors recognized as belonging to the liberal school of Bible interpretation. The authoritative inspiration of the Scripture is not properly recognized. For instance, in speaking of the first eleven chapters of Genesis, the section is called "Story of Creation; A Great Poem; The Song of the God of the Universe; Not so much a Revelation of Fact as of Spiritual Truth." While there is no denial that there is the relation of facts, the student would naturally be thinking about spiritual truth rather than considering the miraculous facts so wondrously related. We believe the need of our day is the unequivocal teaching as to the inspiration and supreme authority of the Bible as we have it.

The author's position as a teacher of English literature in a University has certainly influenced him in his book, as he considers the Bible a part of our best literature, but another name should have been given to his book.

205 pages. 5½ x 7½ inches. Thomas Y. Crowell Company, New York. $1.25.

J. H. R.

What the War is Teaching, by Rev. Charles E. Jefferson, D. D.

As one reads this book, he cannot but feel that he is reading the words of one of the present day prophets, not a predictor, but one who is giving a message for the world of today. The author clearly declares that in this war God is speaking, calling to mind the words of Victor Hugo in "Les Misérables" in referring to the various crises in the battle of Waterloo and ended it all by saying, "It was God."

Dr. Jefferson believes that the war is teaching us to believe in man, that man's heart has been growing tenderer in the last hundred years, that war is an absurdity, it is foolery and is a species of insanity, but man does not hate war and is as ready to defend his country today as ever, and will let his instinct of love for country or patriotism develop into passion. War is accounted for because of the inexorableness of sin, which inevitably brings retribution and the one thing never to be forgotten is that war is due to sin.

He very strongly repudiates the wisdom of armed peace and says it always leads to war, and that unless mankind stops preparing, it is doomed. Preparedness forgets God and leads to slaughter and this is the crowning lesson of the war. Armed peace plays into the hands of five men—the military and naval expert, the war trader, the unscrupulous newspaper proprietor, the jingo politician and the commercial promoter. In pleading for the indispensableness of religion to prevent war, Dr. Jefferson calls attention to five modern gods—science, commerce, progress, law and education. After discussing each of these, he says with reference to the last, "What the world needs is not a better informed intellect, but a renewed heart."

Thus far, the author seems to have given a very fine diagnosis of the trouble and has said some very excellent things, but when pointing the way to the prevalence of universal peace, he says that it must be secured by our bringing in a kingdom of righteousness, peace and joy. The picture is beautiful, but it is not true to the real situation, for as long as sin is in the world and is the cause of war, as the author says, we will continue, whatever good resolutions we make and whatever Hague Conferences may be held, and whatever lofty human ideals may be set up, to have war. The only solution of the war question is the coming in of the King to bring in a kingdom of righteousness, when war shall cease and men shall dwell together in peace and amity. The book is a fine one and should be read by all thinking people.

218 pages. 5½ x 7½ inches. Fleming H. Revell Company, New York. $1.00. J. H. R.

Tarbell's Teacher's Guide to the International Sunday-school Lessons for 1917, by Martha Tarbell, Ph. D.

As the title indicates, this is a guide to the Sunday-school lessons of 1917. In the introduction of twenty-seven pages we find suggestions to teachers with reference to the essentials of teaching the course of lessons, the aims of the teacher, and use of lesson helps, with brief introductions of the books from which the lessons for the year were taken.

The plan followed in each lesson is, first, to give the text, then the lesson outline, followed with explanations and illustrations, the historical and geographical background suggestions for beginning the lesson for younger and for older pupils, topics with illustrations, subjects for Bible Class discussion, work to be assigned for the next lesson, etc.

The work is really cyclopedic in its nature; it shows a vast amount of work in preparation. However, one cannot fail to be impressed that perhaps it has been overdone; and by those who believe in the absolute integrity of the Bible it will be sincerely regretted that the author brings to the front the higher critical views, especially with reference to Isaiah and Daniel. She says: "It does not appear that Daniel was the author of the book, nor that the unknown prophet who wrote it intended it to be received as the work of Daniel;" "No satisfactory reason has been given for the fact that it was written in two languages." Surely the author ignores other parts of the Bible as it would be easy to corroborate its genuineness by reference to Ezra, Nehemiah and Zechariah in the Old Testament, and Christ quotes him by name in Matthew 24:15.

She also ignores the views of orthodox scholars who do give satisfactory reasons for the book having been written in two languages. When properly viewed, this objection is entirely on the surface, and becomes a positive factor in determining the correct view.

Then with reference to Isaiah, she says plainly the book is not a unity—it is not either the work of a single prophet or the work of a single age. She regards the second division of the book, chapters 40-66, as by one she chooses to call "The Great Unknown." The position that some one other than Isaiah wrote the second part of the book is an uncalled for assumption. There is but one Isaiah known either to the Jewish nation or the Christian Church. Christ and the apostles quote from both parts of the book, giving no intimation that they are dealing with more than one author. Words and phrases peculiar to Isaiah are found in both parts, practically equally divided.

The position taken by Miss Tarbell as to both Daniel and Isaiah is to eliminate the supernatural. Her desire to make the date of Daniel to synchronize with the Maccabean period is to rob the prophecy of the predictive element. If the author desires to hold the view of the destructive critics, that is her privilege; but it is to be sincerely regretted that this should be dragged into the Sunday-school lesson helps. Christians of the evangelical type should note this and deal with it accordingly.

480 pages. 5½ x 8½ inches. Fleming H. Revell Company, New York. $1.15 net.

P. B. F.

The practical advantages to the morals, health and prosperity of nations accruing from the Anglo-American custom is attested by the fact that the two nations that keep the Sabbath most strictly—Great Britain and the United States—are the wealthiest, freest, and the most actively religious on earth. Sabbath rest is the condition of successful labor during the six days of the week, and successful labor is the parent of wealth. The proper keeping of the Sabbath is also for the individual one of the best schools of moral discipline and self-government, the only ground on which freedom can permanently rest. It promotes every public and private virtue.—Philip Schaff.

Dr. Philip Schaff relates that while visiting Marburg he was curious to meet Wellhausen, then of the philosophical faculty, whose History of Israel had popularized the theories set forth by Vatke and Reuss. In his Syriac collegium Dr. Schaff found a single student. The professor told him he had two, but one was so far advanced that a second class had to be constituted for him.

The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

FACULTY ENGAGEMENTS

Dr. Gray addressed the annual meeting of the Christian Endeavor Union of Cook County on October 14; historical address at a testimonial meeting in honor of Dr. C. I. Scofield, Marble Collegiate Church, New York, Oct. 26; Bible Teachers' Training School, New York, Oct. 27. He spent several days in the East and South on Institute business, and preached in Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 5, at the First Presbyterian Church, and the First Baptist Church.

Dr. Fitzwater: Oct. 11, La Crosse, Wisc., addressed M. B. I. students at the Baptist State Convention. Oct. 13, represented the Institute at installation of Dr. M. G. Kyle as professor in the seminary at Xenia, O.

Dr. Russell: Oct. 13, Young People's Christian Union of United Presbyterian Church, Aurora, Ill.; Oct. 15, 22, 29, North Shore Congregational Church, Chicago; Oct. 16, 17, Synodical Sabbath School Convention, Fort Dodge, Ia.; Oct. 22, First Presbyterian Church, La Grange, Ill.; Nov. 5, Woodlawn United Presbyterian Church, and Third United Presbyterian Church, Chicago; Nov. 10, conference at Pittsburg, Kan.

Mr. Gosnell, every Friday night, Pittsburg, Pa., Union Bible Class.

Dr. Ralston, Oct. 22, Windsor Park Presbyterian Church, Chicago; Oct. 22, Nov. 5, Young Married People's Class, Moody Church.

Mr. Sellers, Oct. 15, 22, Rogers Park Baptist Church, Young People's Service, and October 22, Church Service; Oct. 16, Baptist State Convention, Battle Creek, Mich.; Oct. 23, Men's Meeting, North Englewood Congregational Church, Chicago; Nov. 5, Central Park Presbyterian Sunday-school, Chicago.

The Union Bible Class in the Moody Church, every Saturday; Dr. Fitzwater, Dr. Russell, Mr. Ketchum, Mr. Sellers, Miss Johnson, and Dr. Towner.

EXTENSION DEPARTMENT NOTES

Christian Workers' Bureau

Located in evangelistic work: Merrill T. McPherson, with Rev. H. H. Gilbart, Winnipeg, Can.; R. M. Hickman, with Rev. J. K. Wyant, Hamilton, Ind.; B. E. Zeiss with Rev. F. A. Gageby, Washington, Ia.; Harry D. Clarke, with Dr. George Wood Anderson, Springfield, O.; D. B. Bulkley, with Dr. H. W. Stough; C. O. Miller, with Rev. D. M. Conn, Fulton, Ill.; C. A. Jones, with Rev. Wilfred Lindsay, Greenfield, Ind.; Helen K. Strain, with Dr. C. T. Wheeler; F. L. Rose, with Rev. Thomas G. Eiler, Defiance, O.; T. B. Davis with Rev. E. P. Loose, Gaylord, Mich.

Other positions: J. J. Foster in Indian mission work, Emerson, Neb.; Anna S. F. Hennings, chief clerk of the filing room, Moody Bible Institute; Margaret T. Duncan, pastor's assistant, with Rev. Morton C. Long, Streator, Ill.; Rev. C. N. Platt, as pastor of the Presbyterian church, Janius, N. Y.; Mrs. A. M. King, matron Roe Indian Institute, Wichita, Kan., and Amelia J. Buchanan, as visiting nurse in Hillsdale, Mich.

Field Workers

Rev. George E. Guille, in Bible teaching, with Rev. W. H. Matthews, Huntsville, Tex. Miss Elinor Stafford Millar in inspirational addresses and Bible teaching with the Y. W. C. A., Erie, Pa. Mrs. Margaret T. Russell concluded her engagement as Bible teacher with the Dr. French E. Oliver Evangelistic Party, Bellingham, Wash. Homer A. Hammontrée, chorister, with the Dr. George Wood Anderson Evangelistic Party, Springfield, O. Rev. B. B. Sutcliffe with the Educational Department of the Institute. Rev. C. P. Mecker in evangelistic meetings in Stockton, Ill. R. J. Young in evangelistic meetings in Winnipeg, Can. W. L. Rugg in stimulating interest in new Union Bible Class Circuits in Ohio and West Virginia. Rev. John C. Page in Union Bible Classes in Eastern Pennsylvania.

THE MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Last year the Executive Committee of the Institute appointed an Alumni Board to effect the formation of alumni associations in the several states and foreign countries where M. B. I. students are found, and also local associations in such centers as may be deemed wise in affiliated relation to the central organization.

The object of this association is the promotion of fraternal fellowship among former students; the securing of new students for the Institute, etc. It was suggested that a meeting be held annually on Founder's Day; this meeting to take the form of a reunion of classes of certain years in rotation; the aim of this meeting to be the perpetuation of the name and spirit of the honored founder by creating and disseminating a healthful school spirit. All who have been students in the Institute, and whose record has continued clean, are eligible to membership.

After several conferences, a constitution and by-laws were adopted, and arrangements are now being made for the first annual meeting next Founder's Day, Feb. 5, 1917. Efforts also have been made the past year to organize affiliate associations.

New York Alumni Meeting

A meeting of the New York Alumni Association of the Moody Bible Institute was held at the close of the Scofield testimonial meeting on Thursday night, Oct. 26, in the Marble Collegiate Church, 5th Avenue and 29th Street. Owing to the lateness of the hour the program had to be limited to the election of officers for the year, and a brief address by Dr. Gray who had spoken at the Scofield meeting.

The following were elected: President, Miss E. L. Haines; Vice-President, Miss A. W. Pierson; Treasurer, Miss Rhoda James; Secretary, Miss O. E. Boyd.

The next meeting of the Alumni will be held at the Madison Square Church House, in the resident part of the building, top floor, on December 3, 1916, and this will in the future be the headquarters. It is planned to have a social gathering here the first Friday in each month, and all students who wish to be notified of special meetings are requested to send their correct addresses to the Secretary in care of the Madison Square Church House, 432, 3rd Ave.

Banquet of Baptist Association of Wisconsin

Dr. P. B. Fitzwater attended the banquet of the Institute alumni in the Baptist Association of Wisconsin, Oct. 11. About forty former students and friends were in attendance. An excellent spirit was manifest. The following officers were elected: President, M. F. Rasmussen; Vice-President, J. R. Humphries; Secretary-Treasurer, S. Max King.

He also attended the men's banquet of the Baptist Association of Wisconsin the same evening, speaking to them of the purposes and ideals of the Institute. A most cordial reception was given.

Meeting at Battle Creek

An informal and impromptu gathering of the M. B. I. students was held Oct. 16 at Battle Creek, Mich., at the time of the Ministers' Conference on Evangelism in connection with the Michigan Baptist State Convention, at which the following were present:

M. E. Hawkins, '11; H. C. Grimes, '08; H. E. Sayles, '92; H. J. Thibaut, '14; B. Atchison, '98; J. W. Jacobus, '11; C. E. Wood, '14; W. H. Pettit, '10; E. O. Colbeck, '09; A. N. Riley, '09; C. Hawkey, '15, and J. D. Shorney, '06, and George M. Vercoe, '03, of the Evening Classes.

It was voted to form an auxiliary alumni association of Michigan Baptist ministers, and plan for a reunion in connection with the next State Convention. Rev. M. E. Hawkins, of Hastings, was chosen chairman, and Rev. George M. Vercoe, of Flint, as Secretary, to plan for such a reunion.

Local Organized at St. Louis

(Special Telegram Nov. 13.)

"Twenty-one former Bible Institute students gathered in St. Louis this evening in reunion. Effected permanent organization. Addressed by Dr. H. H. Gregg, on Hebrews 2:9, first clause. We send greetings to faculty and students."—R. L. Evans, Chairman.

MOODY STUDENTS AT PRINCETON

A letter has been received from J. H. Patterson, '12, sending us a photo of four M. B. I.

Four M. B. I. Students at Princeton boys now in Princeton Seminary. They are L. C. Schaumburg, '13; G. B. Lewis, '09; R. W. Achor, '12; and Patterson. Mr. Patterson says they enjoy the work, even though it is hard and exacting.

THE EMPLOYMENT BUREAU

The Employment Bureau, under the direction of Mr. Viele Kirk, is steadily increasing in its value to the student body. The last monthly report to the superintendents showed that 230 men and 43 women students were holding regular positions on November 1, in addition to those who had been employed at odd jobs. The employers of our students speak of their work in very gratifying terms.

A LECTURE ON THE LIFE OF MOODY

The Institute offers a stereopticon lecture on "The Life and Work of D. L. Moody" with slides, free to pastors and evangelists, on the condition of paying express charges both ways, and the cost of replacing broken slides. A set of 45 or 60 slides, with suggestive notes, will be sent. Beginning at the age of seventeen on the farm at Northfield, Mr. Moody's life is traced to Boston, Chicago, and after his evangelistic tours, back to Northfield. If you are interested write to the Business Manager, Moody Bible Institute, 153 Institute Place, Chicago.

A WORD FROM PARTY ON WAY TO AFRICA

Jesse E. Raynor, '05, in a recent letter to Mr. Gaylord, says: "I am sure you will be glad to know of the safe arrival of our party at tor of the United Brethren church, Viola, Minn. He took up his work Nov. 1.

During the past month Dr. Gray and Mr. Haavind made their periodical inspection of the Institute buildings, including all the students' rooms, and reported them in excellent condition.

"The King's Business" announces that Professor J. B. Trowbridge, for fourteen years teacher of voice and class room work in the Moody Bible Institute, is now in charge of the music work of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles.

M. B. I. students who sailed from New York August 1, 1916, for Africa to work under the Africa Inland Mission

Top row—left to right: J. E. Raynor, F. G. Marsh, F. E. Holland, Geo. Woodley
Bottom row—left to right: Miss B. Lovell, Mrs. J. E. Raynor,—Paul and Ruth, Mrs. F. E. Holland, Mrs. Geo. Woodley, Miss F. E. Roberts

Durban. We had an exceptionally fine voyage, which must have been due largely to the prayers of the friends in the homeland, for there were storms before and behind us. I am enclosing a picture of a group of M. B. I. students." The names of the students in the party, are given under the picture on this page. They were just leaving Durban, South Africa, at the time of writing, for Kijabe, via Mombasa, British East Africa.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Miss Florence Hay, in addition to her work as a student, has been conducting a class in blackboard drawing during the present term. The work has been very interesting.

Myron W. Griswold, for some time in charge of the Mailing and Filing Room of the Institute, resigned his position, to become pas-

Dr. Henry C. Mabie, D. D., LL. D., former Foreign Secretary of the American Baptist Missionary Union, gave a series of lectures last month on "World Conditions and Christian Missions."

Mrs. Frances C. Allison, one of the efficient women workers on the staff of the Extension Department, has been honored with a call as superintendent of women at the Bible Institute of Los Angeles. This was the second time such a proposition had been offered her, and she accepted it. While we regret the loss of Mrs. Allison from our Extension Department Staff, we congratulate the Los Angeles Institute upon the addition of a most efficient woman to its staff of workers.

A converted, but unbaptized man in India, wants a course in Bible study by correspondence, but is unable to pay for it. If any one wishes to pay for the course for this man, the Correspondence Department would be pleased to be so informed.

PERSONALIA

Clarence S. Smith, '13, writes of his removal from Galien to Eau Claire, Mich.

S. I. Nash, '13, has accepted a call to the Congregational church at Campbell, Neb.

William L. Crist, '97, has taken charge of the People's Congregational Church, Brainerd, Minn.

Elizabeth Lawrence, '14, is pastor's assistant at the College Street Baptist Church, Toronto, Can.

Helena Waterman, '14, left Chicago, Oct. 28, to engage in missionary work among the boat people of Canton, China.

L. D. Williams, '06, was appointed pastor of the Belgrade Avenue Methodist Church, Mankato, Minn.

L. E. Shields, '09, was installed as pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Providence, R. I., on Oct. 12.

Garrett J. Bruggink, '13, writes he has charge of a little church among the hills at Wheeler, Wis.

Rose M. Fetterolf, '15, is now associated with the Billy Sunday Party, conducting work among high-school girls.

Harry Beckman, '13, is associated with Evangelist David F. Nygren as musical director and high-school worker.

Stanley G. Payne, '14, sends notice that he has changed his address from Merton, Wis., to Missionary Institute, Nyack, N. Y.

George Orloff, '13, reports having found a wide field for real service in connection with his work in the Y. M. C. A. of Spokane, Wash.

D. B. Bulkley, '13, accepted a position with the Stough Evangelistic Party, joining the party in their campaign at Evansville, Ind.

Robert H. Moon, '13, has been elected pastor's assistant of the Moody Church, Chicago, Ill. He was ordained November 12.

Levi P. Cassel, '10, has commenced on his second year of work in the Baptist church, Cassville, Wis., and says the work is prospering.

F. E. Stemme, '12, has finished his first year as pastor of the First Congregational Church, Little Rock, Ia. He says the work is going on quite well.

Laura A. Slayton, '94, is president of the Childrens' Heart Work Society of Maine, and is actively engaged in local church work in Portland, Me.

Katherine Friedenberg, '11, was appointed superintendent of the Florence Crittenton Home, Patterson, N. J. She took up her new work October 1.

John W. Mason, '11, has accepted a call to the office of assistant superintendent of the Toledo City Mission, Toledo, O. He entered upon his new duties October 7.

C. A. Nash, '13, Atwood, Kan., was ordained October 12, at Downs, Kan., during the meeting of the Northwestern Association of the Congregational Church of that state.

John W. Ham, '04, engaged in evangelistic meetings in Hillsboro and Chadbourn, N. C., writes with appreciation of the chorus directing and solo work of Hugh Rowe, '16.

Miss Nellie Van Zomeren, '11, was for three years employed in an Indian mission, but owing to the death of her father, she has taken up work at home in Kalamazoo, Mich.

E. L. Powlesland, '10, will continue indefinitely as field worker for the East Washington and North Idaho Baptist State Convention. Address, East 407 Rich Ave., Spokane, Wash.

Carl A. Montanus, '96, gave a series of addresses at the forty-sixth annual convention of the Lake County Sunday-school Association, held at the Methodist church, Libertyville, Ill.

William L. Cain, '13, is assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Des Moines, Ia. He has a very hard field. The work moves forward but it has been very trying.

Homer Stanley Morgan, '14, is happily settled over the Free Baptist Church, Contoocook, N. H. He writes that he never can praise God too much for his training here.

Mrs. J. H. Saville (nee Mary E. Sisler), '03, since her marriage, has been living on a farm seven and a half miles from Plankinton, S. D. She teaches a primary class and assists at the organ.

T. Bertrand Frary, '99, has closed his work as pastor of the First Baptist Church, Benton, Ill. Since leaving the Institute, he has taken a full A. B. course in the State Baptist College of Illinois.

Ray Stewart, '11, has accepted work in the Erie Conference of the United Brethren denomination, and is stationed at Diamond, Pa., where he is pastor of five country churches in the oil district.

Herbert S. Stoltz, '12, reports that the Lord is blessing him in his studies and personal work. He is taking Greek and Hebrew this year at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. William L. Hawkinson, Peoria, Ill., writes that Mr. Hawkinson has charge of a small church, with a few very good Christian members, but the field is a hard one. She is very thankful for the training received at the Institute.

J. A. Johnston, '14, and J. C. Williamson, '14, both members of the Army Medical Corps and in training at London, Ont., Canada, preached on a recent Sunday in the Christian church of that city.

William Jobusch, '07, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Eveleth, Minn., wrote an article on "Outdoor Summer Evangelism" for the "Range News," a Presbyterian paper published in his district.

Margaret A. Robinson, '03, has been doing visitation work on the East Side, New York City. She also conducts mothers' meetings, and reports an attendance of about 140 mothers every Friday, from 2 to 3 p. m.

E. L. Reiner, '07, pastor of the Waveland Avenue Congregational Church, Chicago, has been elected Illinois State President of the Christian Endeavor Society, which office also makes him a director of the United Society.

Charles F. Geiger, '98, received a unanimous call to the Presbyterian church of Washington, Minn., and was installed Oct. 24. Mr. and Mrs. Geiger (Christine Anderson, '01) celebrated their fifteenth anniversary Oct. 6.

Martha Nichol, '95, pastor of the Congregational churches of Madrid and Venango, Neb., reports an awakening in these towns through the ministry of Evangelist Frank A. Miller. Meetings were held from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15.

Miss Eliza Ryan, '05, is taking the Chapter Summary Course, under the direction of the Correspondence Department of The Moody Bible Institute. She is at home with her father, who is nearly 85 years old and lives at Cambridge Springs, Pa.

Howard K. Nelson, '14, writes from Fargo, N. Dak., that he is to be assigned to some home missionary church in the North Dakota Synod of the Presbyterian Church. He covets prayer that God may be pleased to use him in the salvation of many souls.

Mrs. Winnifred G. Rhoads, '11, is pastor of the Second Baptist Church, Oshkosh, Wis. She writes they have just closed a fifteen days evangelistic campaign, and were assisted by Rev. E. R. McKinney; W. D. Nichols, '16; Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Hise, '12.

Fred W. Christ, '07, was ordained at a meeting of the Minot Presbytery, Minot, N. D., and is located at White Earth, N. D. Robert Weibel, '11, was ordained at the same meeting and continues his work as Sunday-school missionary at Minot.

H. H. Planck, '14, is now located at Elk City, Kan. He accepted the pastorate of the Baptist church of Buxton, Kan., half time and the pastorate of the church at Elk City, half time. He is more grateful than ever for the training received at the Institute.

John W. Dawson, '14, who has been serving as pastor of the Baptist church, Menominee, Mich., will leave for India soon. The church clerk in a letter to the Institute commends his work and speaks of him as a thorough student and teacher of the Bible, as well as a true pastor.

Paul W. Land, '09, a Cherokee Indian, is now at the Winnebago Reservation in north-east Nebraska. He is secretary to the Indian agent, Mr. Babcock. He was not able to finish the course when at the Institute and regrets very much that he was not able to do so and is hoping to return later on.

Clinton F. Criswell, '11, was ordained by the Iowa City Presbytery at Davenport, October 10, and he has accepted the pastorate of the Presbyterian churches at Oxford and Union, Ia. He was married on August 20, 1914, to Miss Julia C. Sylte, of Washburn, Wis.

Mrs. A. W. Farnham, '11, writes commending the work of Henry George Murrell, '90, in revival meetings during the month of August, in Rousseau, Ky. A new monthly paper has been started entitled, "Beautiful Breathitt and Lovely Lee," dealing with the work carried on in the two counties.

Claud Hawkey, '13, was ordained by the Osceola Baptist Association at Manton, Mich. The examination of Mr. Hawkey before the Association continued two hours, and at the close Mr. Hawkey was given great credit with many words of praise for the soundness of his answers.

C. H. Jack Linn, '14, has resigned as pastor of the First Congregational Church, Monona, Ia., although unanimously recalled at a substantial increase in salary. Forty-nine members were added to the church in the past year. Mr. and Mrs. Linn will enter evangelistic work.

John W. Troy, '11, has been assisting in evangelistic meetings held by the Valiant Party in Cavalier, N. D. Rev. B. F. Stump, pastor of the First Baptist Church writes of the favorable and lasting impression on the community made by Mr. Troy's leadership in song and his prayers.

Charles F. Geiger, '98, pastor of the Washington Church, Chatfield, Minn., held a rural church rally, with an attendance of over 200. Among the speakers were Rev. Dr. Warren H. Wilson of New York City, Rev. L. C. McEwan, D. D., of Chatfield, and Mr. C. W. Hale, of Stewartville, a candidate for representative to Congress.

In a recent issue of a folder of the Y. W. C. A. of Wilmington, Del., under extension work, we find the following: Introductory Bible Class (the Correspondence Course with the Moody Bible Institute, 18 lessons, $2.50). This course is taught by Miss Ceridwin Samuel. The class is connected with the Business Girls' Bible Classes of the Association.

D. J. Gillanders, '02, a pastor at Collbran, Colo., writes that the Lord saw fit to take their baby, Marjorie, 16 months old, to Himself. In spite of the sorrow, he and his wife rejoice in the Saviour's love and comfort, and he writes that they would not call her back, for they know that she is eternally safe.

Elmer W. Blew, '03, pastor of the Ridgeway Presbyterian Church of Chicago, has put out an attractive card entitled, "Good Morning," which he is distributing in the vicinity of the church. A postcard attachment addressed to the pastor, bears lines for name and address and squares for checking whether information is desired concerning the church, or designating that one is a stranger in the community, or that there is sickness in the family.

Meda J. Walden, '09, is entering upon her fifth year in the home missionary work in New Mexico. She taught domestic science in the industrial school for three years, and last year took up the plaza (village) work, in which she is now engaged. She says they try by example to show the Mexican people salvation as it is taught in the Bible, instead of the way it is taught in the Catholic Church. She is located at Cubero, N. M.

Mrs. Rachel Lorinda Pollock of Tingley, Ia., died September 4, at the age of 81 years and six months. Mrs. Pollock was enrolled as a correspondence student in the Synthetic Bible Study Course and had completed 46 of the 54 lessons. This is the second correspondent student within two years who has died after having passed four score years, the other being Mrs. Angie B. Fisher, of Boston.

John S. Hall, '06, together with Mr. Beacham, of Cleveland, O., sailed on Thursday, Sept. 28, for N. Nigeria, to labor with the Sudan Interior Mission. The secretary of the mission, Rev. R. V. Bingham, of Toronto, writes that they hope to send Mr. Hall and Mr. Beacham to a new tribe which will take them two weeks' journey beyond their furthest previous station. It is a tribe of 90,000 people, and no one has yet touched them.

Clara A. Mason, '07, a missionary located at Narsapatnam, India, writes that the missionary conference has recently appointed a missionary to give all his time to evangelistic work. This evangelist held meetings in the town of Vizagapatnam, where there is an English church for the Anglo-Indians as well as a Telugu church. Miss Mason left her own work to assist the evangelist by doing personal work and visiting the natives, as she is acquainted with them. The meetings were prolonged because of the way in which the Lord moved hearts and blessed the efforts.

Wood B. Williston, '07, a C. I. M. missionary located at Pachow, Sze, China, writes in a recent letter of having done considerable building. A new school is nearing completion, and a building for summer Bible schools on one of the mountains, also a residence. He reports having the care of ten churches and six schools, including a night school for poor boys, together with his preaching in the prisons. When funds will permit he desires to build a new church.

Rev. R. V. Bingham, Secretary-Treasurer of the Sudan Interior Mission, writes that they have opened three new stations in N. Nigeria since the war began. John S. Hall, '06, will open the fourth, and Norman W. Davis, '07, expects this month to open a fifth. This mission is greatly in need of new workers. Any who feel that they should consider that field for their life work, are urged to write the Secretary at 860 College St., Toronto, Ont., Can.

Gertrude E. Snavelly, '13, has written a report of the evangelistic work and day schools on Haiju district, Korea. This report is dated March 6, 1916, and appears in printed form covering five pages. She mentions gratefully the help they have received from Dr. D. M. Stearns, Germantown, Pa. After much prayer plans were made for uniting three small institutes into one large one and God worked in sending native teachers from among the Bible women to take care of the work.

Rev. Forest J. Garman, '14, writes hopefully from Tonganoxie, Kan., where he is settled over the Congregational church. He is especially pleased with the recognition given to the Institute men in the Congregational association to which he belongs. He speaks of having done considerable synthetic Bible teaching in his church. On Sunday evenings he has been giving a synthetic course through the Bible and splendid audiences have shown a marked interest in the work.

John Porter, '93, is pastor of the Congregational church at Bowen, Ill. He received twenty new members into the church during the last ten months, an increase in the Sunday-school attendance of twenty per cent, sixty per cent of the total attendance being men and women. A men's Bible class taught by the pastor and numbering twenty-seven has been studying the doctrine of the Second Coming.

Edward F. Rice, '01, who is laboring in the great Gbari tribe of N. Nigeria, numbering from 150,000 to 200,000 people, writes of their need of four married couples for that field. The missionary society has withdrawn their work in N. Nigeria and the Sudan Interior

Mission is undertaking to carry it on. Mr. Rice writes "one of the stations offered us is probably the largest of the Gbari towns. The other, though much smaller, is extremely hopeful, the chief and people showing an open, friendly spirit to the gospel message. Unless new workers are soon sent to this needy field, it will probably mean the closing of one of these four stations, now open in this tribe. Are there not some who are willing to go at once?"

Wilbur C. Hooker, '90, in a recent letter, writes interestingly of work in Chungking, China, under the American Bible Society. Last year the appropriation for the China Agency was greatly reduced and the native staff had to be reduced one-third. All money received from the homeland is cut considerably because of the exchange, while the price of paper and metal is greatly increased. The political situation is graver than at any time since Mr. Hooker's arrival in China, in 1892. Robber bands are numerous and daring and recently held one of the colporteur's sons, a boy of ten, for ransom. The native workers have been making real sacrifices, receiving less than full wages which are equivalent to $3.30 per month in American money.

Mr. Hillis, of the Financial Department, recently visited George W. Smith, a Winnebago Indian at Winnebago, Neb., who was in the class of '09. He told Mr. Hillis that the first Monday report hour, Rev. Howard Pope, Superintendent of Men, asked him to make a report. He said, "I suppose I was scared. I don't know what else to call it but I could not say anything. The next Monday he called me again and I could not say anything. The third Monday he called me, I could say nothing, so he said in as stern a tone as he could get on, 'Now, young man, you walk out here on the platform and preach a sermon ten minutes long or sing a solo.' I had gone to government school at Chilocco, Okla., for Indian boys and girls. While there I heard them sing in the Choctaw language, 'Come to Jesus, Come to Jesus, Now,' and I got it so I could sing it in the Winnebago language, so I got up on the platform and I sang in Winnebago. The students all gave me a royal welcome cheer and I got the best of Mr. Pope. They came and asked me to sing at women's devotions. Then students tell their people and they come and ask me to sing in Christian Endeavors and Epworth League meetings." Speaking of his wife he said, "She cast eyes at me and I could not say no to her and so I married her. She was Catholic girl but now she is for Jesus."

BORN

To Mr. and Mrs. William Wickmann (Lillian D. Jones, '13) Baptist parsonage, Detroit

Harbor, Wis., a son, William Wilson, Oct. 13, 1916.

To Mr. and Mrs. William Iley, '11, Turtle Lake, Wis., a daughter, Marjorie Helen, Oct. 18, 1916.

To Mr. and Mrs. James A. Riggle (Winifred Baird, '13,) New Brighton, Pa., a son, James Baird, Sept. 10, 1916.

To Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lindsley Darling, '05 (Nellie J. Arnott, '99), 1358 La Brea Ave., Hollywood, Cal., a son, Paul Lindsley, Jr., Sept. 28, 1916.

To Mr. and Mrs. Herman W. Lambert, '08, Polo, Ill., a daughter.

To Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Powlesland, '10, E. 407 Rich Ave., Spokane, Wash., a son, Ernest Paul, Oct. 20, 1916.

MARRIED

Charles Leroy Thompson, '15, to Miss Minnie Lau Pickett, Nov. 15, 1916, at Uniontown, Ala.

C. A. Nash, '13, to Miss Anna Fay McClelland, Aug. 9, 1916. At home, Atwood, Kan.

DIED

Robert W. Borthistle, '03, Oct. 15, 1916. He had been an invalid for seven years and passed away after an operation which seemed to offer one chance of recovery.

Mrs. Rachel Lorinda Pollock, a correspondence student, Sept. 4, in Tingley, Ia., at the age of 81 years and 6 months.

Frederick W. Root, an eminent voice teacher, and for many years associated with the Music Department of the Moody Bible Institute, died November 5 at the age of 70 years. Mr. Root was the son of George F. Root, a famous composer of church music of a former generation.

Miss Mora Caborn, '13, recently wrote a very encouraging letter to the Institute, saying that she was happily settled in work with the Honolulu Bible Training School, Honolulu, T. H. She mentioned that the school is a seminary in embryo, just two years old, which had an enrolment of thirteen for its maiden year. This year, Miss Caborn was appointed Extension Secretary, but just after writing her letter, she went to the hospital for an operation, from which she did not recover. She was very happy in her work, and had just taken charge of all the New Testament work in the school. It is interesting to note that a recent letter gives the information that she had been interested in the conversion of her father, who decided for Christ in a meeting, but she did not learn of his conversion before her death.

The Bible Institute Colportage Association

FREE READING FOR "SHUT-INS"

Invalided people—whether in hospital or home—who are also "invalided" as to their pocketbooks, may be provided, under present conditions, with helpful religious reading (the Moody Colportage Library), upon application (with particulars of need) to the Bible Institute Colportage Association, 822 North La Salle Street, Chicago.

A GOD-BLESSED LEAFLET

God is continuing to honor the little tract by Evangelist N. H. Camp entitled "The Way of Life," and another 100,000 copies has just been printed. One of the Christian workers in the "Billy" Sunday campaign recently ordered 10,000 for distribution in his work, having previously gotten 2,500 copies. He stated that God was blessing the tract greatly. A sample copy of "The Way of Life" tract will be gladly sent to anyone who wishes to see it. Mr. Camp's address is 5416 Winthrop Ave., Chicago.

WHAT TRACTS CAN DO

Tracts can go Everywhere, at home and abroad. Tracts know no fear. Tracts never lie. Tracts can be multiplied without end by the press. Tracts can travel at little expense. They run up and down like faithful messengers—blessing all, giving to all, and asking no gift in return. They can talk to one as well as to a multitude, and to a multitude as well as to one.

Tracts Speak in All Languages. They carry the message of gospel truth to the home-born and to the foreigner, to the citizen of our own republic and to the emigrants from distant lands. They require no public room to tell their story in. They can tell it in the banking house or the shop, the parlor or the kitchen, the railway train or the ocean steamer, the car or the omnibus, on the broad highway or in the footpath through the fields.

Tracts Take No Note of Jeers and no one can betray them into hasty or random expressions. Though they will not always answer questions, they will tell their story over twice or thrice or four times, if you wish them, and they can be made to speak on every subject, and on every subject they may be made to speak wisely and well.

Tracts Can Be Made the Vehicles of Truth, the teachers of all classes, and the benefactors of all lands. Thousands upon thousands of people can rise up and testify that a tract was the means of their conversion. Countless others have been cheered, comforted and stimulated by them.

Wherever they go, they bring a benediction.
—From leaflet issued by the American Tract Society.

JOIN US IN PRAISING GOD

A Whole Family Reached for Christ Here

Paragould, Ark.

There have been a half-dozen conversions here, very largely through the Colportage Library books. One man in particular got interested and read and reread the books and was finally thoroughly converted from a drunkard's hell. He and his family (Catholics) have all united with the M. E. church. They said they had never heard or read about the gospel until those books reached them and we preached.

F. C. L.

How One of Andrew Murray's Books Was Used

Mount Vernon, Mo.

I must tell you about one young man, a patient in the sanitarium for tuberculosis, situated here. He was a Jew, born in Palestine. He picked up the book entitled "Absolute Surrender," and became intensely interested. He was convicted that his life was not what it ought to be. He came back to the nurse who gave it to him, and asked her about it. She sent him to my house, and after telling his life story, he most beautifully consecrated his life wholly to his Master. He is very happy and has purchased eight books since.

Mrs. T. E. S.

The Further He Read the More Copies He Wanted

Grand Rapids, Mich.

While making out my order I read some testimonies in your small catalogue about the book "Burton Street Folks," so decided to order two. Having just one copy left I decided to read it. After reading a few pages, I added five more; being so interested, I read seventy pages, adding eighteen more to the order. Wonderful, marvelous story of the transforming power of God, wrought in the lives of men and women who were defeated, ruined and blasted through a life of sin and debauchery! This book has been an inspiration to me. Thank the Lord for the writer! This book deserves an extensive and broad-cast circulation.

J. K.

WHY PEOPLE SHOULD OWN AND READ BOOKS

We all know the story of the illiterate man who, after assuring the pretty book-agent that her wares would be of no use to him, as he could not read, still further excused himself from purchasing, by answering: "Oh, yes, my darter—she can read; but she's got a book." We also know the story of the very new millionaire who ordered four yards and six inches of books bound in red leather like a sample of wall paper!

It is a far cry from the daughter's "a book" to the millionaire's "four yards and six inches," but it is safe to say that the daughter came nearer to possessing a library than did the millionaire; for her book was probably read, and lived with, and loved. And it is the book that we read and live with and love that really counts—for us.

After all, never to own a book is like trying to go through the world without friends—merely acquaintances. And always to depend on a circulating library for brain sustenance is very much like trying to satisfy one's stomach at a perpetual quick lunch.—"The Boston Herald."

WHAT BOOKS WILL DO

One cannot celebrate books sufficiently. After saying his best, still something better remains to be spoken in their praise. As with friends, one finds new beauties at every interview, and would stay long in the presence of those choice companions.—Thomas Carlyle.

MR. MOODY'S BOOK FUNDS

The following contributions have been received from October 3, 1916, to November 9, 1916, inclusive:

Prison Book Fund:
117 Contributions	$588.60
Africa Book Fund:
1 Contribution	5.00
Army and Navy Book Fund:
3 Contributions	10.50
Hospital Book Fund:
3 Contributions	11.00
Lumber Camp Book Fund:
2 Contributions	2.00
Military Camp Book Fund:
1 Contribution	10.00
Mountain Book Fund
6 Contributions	55.50
Seamen's Book Fund:
1 Contribution	1.00
Spanish "Way to God" Book Fund:
20 Contributions	111.47

FREE GRANTS OF BOOKS

The following donations of the Moody Colportage Library books, Emphasized Gospels of John, etc., have been sent out on account of the several book funds named from October 3, 1916, to November 8, 1916, inclusive:

Prison Book Fund:
Kansas, 28 books, 41 Gospels, and 12 pamphlets.
Tennessee, 30 books, and 30 Gospels.
New Jersey, 90 books, and 100 Gospels.
North Carolina, 80 books, and 80 Gospels.
Indiana, 118 books, and 105 Gospels.
New York, 300 books, and 300 Gospels.

Massachusetts, 50 books, 50 Gospels, and tracts.
Colorado, 435 books, 440 Gospels, 3 pamphlets, and tracts.

Iowa, 45 books, 45 Gospels, and 30 pamphlets.
Illinois, 127 books, 127 Gospels, and 25 pamphlets.
Texas, 135 books, 135 Gospels, and tracts.
Louisiana, 31 books, and 35 Gospels.
Alabama, 50 books, 100 Gospels, 10 Four Gospels, and 50 pamphlets.

Kentucky, 125 books, 125 Gospels, and 350 pamphlets.
Ohio, 95 books, 115 Gospels, and 110 pamphlets.
Wisconsin, 42 books, 45 Gospels, and 35 pamphlets.
California, 50 books, 50 Gospels, and 25 pamphlets.
Arkansas, 36 books, and 36 Gospels.
Nebraska, 49 books, and 78 Gospels.

Georgia, 75 books, and 75 Gospels.

Army and Navy Book Fund:

New York, 900 Gospels.

India Book Fund:

Ceylon, 10 books.

Hospital Book Fund:

California, 10 books, and 10 Gospels.

Mountain Book Fund:

Tennessee, 400 books.

Virginia, 25 books.

THE CHURCH BOOK-TABLE

The midweek church service—or other meeting of special interest, affords excellent and appropriate opportunity for the sale of sound religious reading such as the Moody Colportage Library. The choice of titles, so wide in variety and practical, makes fitness of book to subject easy. Many persons have blessed God for the opportunity to thus procure, and at minimum cost, sound reading.

Stop Eating Foods That Poison!

Why Wrong Eating is Responsible for More Sickness than Any Other Cause. How Right Eating Removes the Cause of Sickness.

By ARTHUR TRUE BUSWELL, M. D.

EUGENE CHRISTIAN

AT LAST we Americans are beginning to wake up to the full meaning of the recent remarkable discoveries made by the food scientists. And it is time we did, for I firmly believe that the meals we eat every day cause more sickness and destroy more of our mental efficiency than all the drugs, alcohol, and tobacco combined.

I say this advisedly, and my opinion is confirmed by many of my leading contemporaries, who agree that no less than 90 per cent of all disease is traceable to the digestive system.

Very few people have any knowledge of what takes place in their stomachs. Not only are we ignorant of the values of particular foods but we have absolutely no conception of the meaning of proper food combinations.

To eat good, simple, nourishing food is not necessarily to eat correctly. In the first place, many of the foods which we have come to regard as good are in reality about the worst things we can eat, while others that we regard as harmful have the most food value. And usually the inexpensive foods are the good ones and the high priced ones the most injurious.

But perhaps the greatest harm which comes from eating blindly is the fact that very often two perfectly good foods when eaten at the same meal form a chemical reaction in the stomach and literally explode, liberating dangerous toxics which are absorbed by the blood and form the root of nearly all sickness, the first indications of which are acidity, fermentation, gas, constipation, and many other sympathetic ills leading to most serious consequences.

These truths have been strongly brought out by Professor Metchnikoff in his treatise on the "Prolongation of Life," and by many other modern scientists. But most efforts in the past have been designed solely to cleanse out the system and remove the poisons after they had formed, wholly disregarding the cause.

Correct Eating involves first, the proper selection of foods; second, the right combinations, and third, proper proportioning so as to form at each meal a constructive health and energy building whole. All of which is much simpler than it sounds.

And, strange as it may seem, scientifically proportioned meals are more delicious and more satisfying than the meal, which are chosen without regard to health. Instead of being deprived of the good things of life, we come to take more pleasure in eating than ever before. It is not even necessary to upset your table to eat scientifically and no special foods are required. You can get anything you need out of your garden, at your local store or in any restaurant.

Eugene Christian, the well-known food scientist, has shown repeatedly that just as wrong eating causes sickness and loss of brain energy, good foods rightly combined and proportioned will remove the cause of almost any non-organic disease and increase the mental efficiency of users several hundred per cent.

And these results are easy to maintain because a system of eating that will restore health and energy will protect the system from further attacks. When you learn to eat correctly, you not only gain health but you insure your health for life. This, of course, is not true of most drugs and medicines which cure you for the time being. It is interesting to note that no member of Christian's family (he has a wife and two daughters) has had even a slight cold in twelve years, and you never saw such pictures of healthful energy.

At his private office, Eugene Christian has a constant stream of men and women in all sorts of circumstances and in all conditions of health who come to him for advice and help, and the results he secures for them are, to say the least, remarkable.

Business men who are "slowing down" and find they have lost their energy and enthusiasm go to Christian to renew their youth. People who suffer with stomach, liver and kidney trouble—most of whom had tried all other sources—come to him and go away brimming with perfect health and energy. Others who are too stout or too thin find that with foods alone and Christian's advice they can quickly acquire a normal figure.

In a number of instances his patients have been so thankful for what he has done that they have, after the treatment was over, in paying the bill, voluntarily added $500 or $1,000 to the amount, saying that never could they adequately repay him for the good he had done.

In order to help as many people as possible, not only those who are ailing but those who want to maintain their health, Eugene Christian founded The Corrective Eating Society to disseminate his teachings. This society has prepared a book based upon Christian's 20 years' experience. Corrective Eating, in 24 Lessons, is being offered for free examination to those who are interested. This work was written expressly for the layman. Technical terms have been avoided and every point is explained so that there can be no possible misunderstanding. Reasons are given for every recommendation, and every statement is based upon actual results secured in the author's many years of practice.

But the lessons do not merely tell you why you should eat correctly and what the results will be, they also give actual menus for breakfast, luncheon and dinner, curative as well as corrective, covering every condition of health and sickness for all ages from infancy to old age and covering all occupations, climates and seasons.

Each and every one of these menus has been employed for its purpose of increasing efficiency and restoring health not merely once but many times—so that every vestige of experiment has been removed. And an interesting feature is that it costs less to follow these menus than your food costs you now.

Christian says that every thinking man or woman—young or old—well or sick—should know the science of correct eating. That most people dig their graves with their teeth is as true as gospel, in his estimation. Food is the fuel of the human system. And just as certain fuels will produce definite results when consumed in a furnace, so will certain foods produce the desired results when put into the human furnace.

Yet not one person in a thousand has any knowledge of food as fuel. Some of the combinations we eat every day are as inefficient and dangerous as soggy wood, wet leaves, mud, sawdust and a little dynamite would be for a furnace. No wonder man is only 50% efficient—no wonder the average life is only 39 years—no wonder diseases of the stomach, liver and kidneys have increased 103% within the past 30 years!

Yet The Corrective Eating Society shows how easy and simple it is to eat your way back to perfect health and up to a new type of physical and mental power. The relationship of health to material success is so close that the result of the society's teaching is a form of personal efficiency which puts people head and shoulders above their less fortunate brothers. Everyone knows that the best ideas, plans and methods are worked out when you are brimful of vitality—when you feel full of "ginger." The better you feel—the better work you can do. I understand that The Corrective Eating Society's lessons have times without number been the means of bringing great material prosperity to its students by endowing them with health so perfect that work seems like play.

If you would like to have the Book of 24 Lessons in Corrective Eating written by Eugene Christian out of his vast experience simply write The Corrective Eating Society, Dept. 4412, 460 Fourth Ave., New York City, and they will mail you a set for examination.

I am authorized to say that it is not necessary to enclose any money with your request. Merely write and ask them to send the lessons for five days' free examination with the understanding that you will either return the lessons within that time or remit $3, the small fee asked.

There will of course be some who will doubt the efficacy of Corrective Eating, but I am certain your objections will be quickly removed once you examine Christian's course. Anyway, you are obligating yourself in no way by accepting the society's generous offer which enables you to investigate its wonderful work before you pay for the lessons. If the more than 300 pages contained in the course yield but one single suggestion that will bring greater health, you will get many times the cost of the course back in personal benefit—yet hundreds write the Society that they find vital helpfulness on every page.

I suggest that you clip out and mail the following form instead of writing a letter, as this is a copy of the official blank adopted by the Society and will be honored at once.

CORRECTIVE EATING SOCIETY,
Dept. 4412, 460 Fourth Ave., New York City

You may send me prepaid a copy of Corrective Eating in 24 Lessons. I will either remain these to you in five days or send you $3.

Name

Address

REVELATION

10cts FOUR LESSON SHEETS FOR 10c 10cts
A Lesson Sheet Each Week for 20 Weeks for $1.00

A RARE OCCASION

The Sunday School Lessons for December present a rare thing. Have you noticed it? Three of the lessons for that month are taken from the Book of Revelation. The vast majority of the denominational lesson helps are post-millennial, and will deal with these lessons in spiritualized fashion only, obscuring the real teaching.

Union Bible Seminary, of Westfield, Indiana, has prepared a Correspondence Course of study on the Book of Revelation, pre-millennial and undenominational in character. Read their special offer as given below.

FOUR SHEET OFFER

Four Sheets for 10 Cents

As a special aid to Sunday School teachers and scholars we will send sheets 1, 2, 3, and 19 of the twenty-sheet course at one time for Ten Cents in coin, and the names of five Sunday School teachers or officers.

These four sheets cover chapters 1, 2, 3, 21, and part of 22 of the Book of Revelation, thus covering all the text of the December Revelation lessons in the International series and considerably more.

Just take an ordinary sheet of paper, write on it plainly the names and addresses of five persons you know to be at present occupying the position of Sunday School teacher or officer, wrap a dime carefully in a piece of paper and send to the address below. By return mail you will receive the four lesson sheets mentioned above.

Add Fifteen Cents for "A Primer of Prophecy," by Wm. M. Smith. Address all correspondence to UNION BIBLE SEMINARY,

WESTFIELD, INDIANA

TWENTY SHEET OFFER

A Lesson Sheet Each Week for 20 Weeks for $1.00

For the best understanding of the three lessons included in the International Sunday School Lessons for December a study of the whole Book of Revelation is essential. We therefore urge that all who can do so subscribe for the twenty-sheet course in full.

The pastor of a thriving church in New Jersey writes of this course: "I want to tell you that it is the best work on Revelation that has come into my hands, and I have been studying prophecy for the past 12 years. The most striking feature to my mind is its simplicity."

This pastor sends with his letter the second dollar to begin the other twenty-sheet course in Bible Prophecy we issue, covering the Bible prophetically from Genesis to Revelation. Ask for a sample sheet of that course if you want to see what our work is like.

A CHRISTMAS SUGGESTION

THE BEST PRESENT OF THEM ALL.

The Christian Workers Magazine for a Whole Year for Only $1.00

It is as good as picking out twelve of the best books you could find for one friend. Try it. You can have the magazine mailed to reach your friend with the Christmas mail.

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE, 163 Institute Place, CHICAGO

1917 SCRIPTURE TEXT CALENDAR

Size 9¼ x 16½

Thirteen full pages, mounted with cord attached, ready to hang

Thoughts for Daily Meditation

The Cover, a beautiful Madonna from the celebrated painting by Will H. Low, entitled "Christmas Morn," owned by the United States and shown in the permanent collections of the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C.

This frontispiece is reproduced in all the beautiful colors of the original painting.

This Calendar is a daily inspiration, contains a full page for each month, a reproduction in sepia tones of a famous religious painting on each page, a cheering verse of Scripture for each day, and each International Sunday-School Lesson title, Golden Text, and lesson references for the year.

A welcome and useful gift for Christmas, New Year, or birthdays. Ideal for teachers' present to their class.

PRICE PREPAID 25 CENTS. 5 COPIES $1.00. SEND FOR TERMS TO AGENTS
Reliance Motto House, 120 West 14th Street, New York City

194 Enrollments in October in the Correspondence Department

Never so many inquiries, never so many examinations sent in, never such interest in Bible study.

ARE YOU INTERESTED?

Let us tell you about our eight fine correspondence courses:

Synthetic Bible Study

Practical Christian Work Bible Doctrine Evangelism

Bible Chapter Summary Christian Evidences

Introductory Bible Study

SCOFIELD BIBLE CORRESPONDENCE COURSE

Please see large advertisement in Christian Workers Magazine for November. Address,

THE MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE

153-163 Institute Place

Dept. 3

Chicago, Ill., U. S. A.

Now
Ready

Successful Teachers Use Peloubet's Select Notes

finding in them a wealth of explanation, suggestion, illustration—in fact, material of all kinds needed to instruct and hold the attention of their classes. This help is given in the most concise, practical form so that it is easily imparted to others, making the lesson hour one of pleasure as well as profit to the pupils.

SEND FOR FREE SAMPLE PAGES and note how clearly yet concisely the scripture text is explained and illustrated.

Cloth, 384 pages, $1.15 net, postpaid $1.25

W. A. WILDE COMPANY BOSTON, MASS.
CHICAGO, ILL.

Have You Seen

THE FOLLOWING list of BOOKLETS?
Specially Suited for These Last Days.
Scriptural, Helpful and Convincing.

The Near Approach of Antichrist: An Outline of the Various Movements in the Religious and Commercial World that show Antichrist is Near, 15c; Antichrist: Who is he? What will he do? Who are his agents, 15c; The Great Apostasy Set In, 15c; The Coming Golden Age: What will it be like? When will it begin? 15c; The Great Tribulation: What it is; When it occurs, 10c; The Days of Noah, 10c; The Coming Crash between Capital and Labor, 10c; Eternal Punishment, 10c; The Satan of Scripture as compared with the devil of common belief, 15c; Lessons of the Ages for this Age, 25c; The Parable of the Leaven, 10c; What Good Does It Do? or, 36 eminently practical and blessed results which the hope and preaching of Christ's return produces upon the heart and life, 10c; Spiritualism Exposed: Nine reasons why it should be avoided and condemned, 15c; The Parable of the Mustard Seed. By R. Govett—Showing that this parable teaches the very opposite of what is generally read into it, 15c; God's Wonderful Dealings With Man, an Outline of the Important Distinction Between the Church and the Kingdom, and the Different Judgments and Dispensations, 25c; Millennial Dawnism. The Blasphemous Religion which Teaches the Annihilation of Jesus Christ. By Rev. I. M. Haldeman. Powerful and convincing, 10c; God's Purpose in This Age. By Prof. E. F. Stroeter. Shows God's order, as it relates to this dispensation, and the age to come, 10c; The Folly of Federation Between the Church and the World, 10c; Talks on the Book of Judges, Full of Instruction and Inspiration, 15c; Can a Christian be a Socialist. By W. Robertson. An eye opener to any truly "Born Again" person who has leanings toward Socialism, 6c. The above may be had separately or the complete set, for $2.50. Remit by P. O. order to A. Sims, Dept. O, 805 Gerrard St., E. Toronto, Ont., Canada.

NOVELTY GIFT FOR CHRISTMAS STORY'S MAPLE CREAM

Pure maple sugar in a new form. Cream colored, soft, smooth grain, delicious flavor. Spreads like peanut butter. An excellent frosting for cakes and an appetizing spread for sandwiches. Guaranteed absolutely pure and free from all adulteration. Packed in sanitary fibre cups. Try a sample half pound sent prepaid for 25 cents, or send for circulars.

Address

L. L. STORY, Prop.
LAPLAND MAPLE GROVE
East Fairfield, Vermont

Rev. William A. Sunday says:

"Your Reference Bible is the first I ever endorsed. So many Bible helps are so complicated, the average man has hard work to understand them, but I regard yours as the best I have ever seen. I gladly say this because you have not asked for it."

Bible Mastery Brings Power. You can master the Bible at home under one of the world's most famous teachers, the Rev. C. I. Scofield, D. D., by using

The Scofield Reference Bible

All difficult passages explained on the page where they occur.

Study this Bible daily in spare moments for a short time, and you will know the Bible.

Clear black face type, easy to read

No. 70	Cloth, red edges	- - - - -	$1.50
No. 79	Persian Morocco, divinity circuit	- - - - -	5.00
No. 79x	Persian Morocco, divinity circuit (Oxford India Paper Edition)	- - - - -	7.00

Sent postpaid, on receipt of price.

10 other Styles. Send for circular

Oxford University Press American Branch
35 West 32nd Street - - - New York

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS Price Only $32.50 Cash

Latest Model, Back Spacer, Two Colored Ribbon Attachment and Tabulator. On Time $37.50

Save $87.50 on Your Typewriter Purchase. Why Pay the Manufacturers $100.00 for a Typewriter? Then Don't. This Newbuilt Underwood Shipped on 5 Days' Trial and Examination. We want to sell you an Underwood Typewriter No. 4, that prints 76 characters, has a back spacer, tabulator, two color ribbon attachment and automatic ribbon reverse. The Underwood No. 4 is one of the best known machines in the United States. It is being used by most of the largest Corporations. The Underwood No. 4 is a straight correspondence machine. It is a machine being used in the Big Business Colleges all over the world.

Ben Samuelson & Company, 219 S. Dearborn St. Chicago

THE STUDENTS' EXPANDED BIBLE

Showing Style "B" in a Loose Leaf
Binder

Loose Leaf or Pamphlet

The most convenient edition for note-making by teacher and student.

EUGENE AYRES, Publisher, BUFFALO, N. Y.

In Style
"A" this page is blank for note making

Text occupies a single column $2\frac{1}{4} \times 6$ inches. About 75% of the page is left blank for notes. The outer margin is wider than the type column, and the lines and paragraphs are spaced to permit underscoring and headings.

"This latest development of the 'Bible for marking' enables the teacher to have before him full notes in direct connection with the text he is working with. And references from other portions of Scripture may be clipped from an inexpensive Bible and pasted on the margin or on the blank page in connection with the text."—Sunday School Times.

Specimen Sheets and orders filled by

SWORD AND SHIELD TRACT SOCIETY
43 Palace Arcade Buffalo, N. Y.

EVER NEED DUPLICATES

Of Form Letters, Price Lists, Bills, Invoices, Drawings, Menus, Reports, Anything?

Then take advantage of our offer of TEN DAYS' TRIAL, WITHOUT DEPOSIT and become one of the thousands of satisfied customers who all agree that DAUS IMPROVED TIP TOP DUPLICATOR is the simplest, easiest and quickest method of duplicating on the market. Our negative rolls now have our new "Dausco" Oiled Parchment Back, giving additional strength and efficiency. 100 Copies from Pen-written and 50 Copies from Typewritten Original.

If you have tried other duplicators without success, you will be more than pleased with ours.

Complete Duplicator, Cap Size
(Prints $8\frac{3}{4} \times 13$ inches)

PRICE
$7.50

FELIX A. DAUS DUPLICATOR COMPANY, Daus Building, 111 John Street, NEW YORK

The Voice of Thanksgiving No. 2

Our stock of books and plates of "The Voice of Thanksgiving" having been destroyed by fire, we have taken the opportunity to add new matter and make practically a new book. Prices the same as before.

The Standard, Chicago, says:

The quality of "The Voice of Thanksgiving" is assured by the editorship of Doctor Towner, of the Moody Bible Institute. It contains a considerable number of hymn tunes by the editor, whose influence is steadily on the side of real dignity in connection with attractive melodies and harmonies. More than half of the book is devoted to the good "standard" hymns; and we are glad to see a goodly number of the real old-fashioned compositions, like "Lenox," the singing of which brings to memory the vigorous religious faith of our grandfathers and helps to keep unbroken the religious traditions embodied in worship. If Doctor Towner will create in his students a real appreciation of this splendid inheritance, he will find many to rise up and call him blessed. This book marks a step in the right direction. Selections of Scripture for responsive readings are found in the back of the book. Presswork and binding are unusually attractive. The book deserves a wide welcome.

Full Cloth, 50c, postpaid; $40.00 per 100, transportation extra
Economy Edition, 30c postpaid; $22.50 per 100, transportation extra

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY, Publishers

New York, 158 Fifth Avenue

Chicago, 17 N. Wabash Avenue

CHURCH PLANS

Catalogue Free to Ministers

PRICE'S WINDOW PAPER

Send for Circular and Samples

MAX CHARLES PRICE, Architect

Successor to Benj. D. & Max Chas. Price

Atlantic Highlands, New Jersey

Two missionaries in Africa, translating the Scriptures into the native language, are greatly in need of typewriters. If you have one to give, or will contribute to purchase one, send your donation to The Christian Workers Magazine, and it will be forwarded.

WHAT DO YOU BELIEVE ABOUT THE DEITY OF CHRIST?

Can you answer the questions that you will be asked about the Deity of Christ, as you teach the Sunday-school lessons in the Gospel of John in 1917?

If you want to have the ablest help that Bible scholarship can give on this great, central question of Christianity, you will find it in The Sunday School Times.

Your problems as a teacher, and the problems of your thoughtful, inquiring, doubting, indifferent or seeking pupils, will be frankly discussed, and will be brought under a flood of light from the strongest Bible teachers in America and Europe.

The Sunday School Times

brings you every week some ten different helps on the Sunday-school lesson, in addition to many striking special articles; and from time to time the freshest news on Archeology and the Bible; the biggest achievements in the foreign mission field; how to "do things" in the church and Sunday-school; how to live victoriously; and such helps to the spiritual life in the editorial and "Open Letter" departments that many take the paper for these alone.

SAVE ONE THIRD OF THE SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION RATE

One Copy
Every Week
$1.50
One Year

Ask for enough free specimen copies to supply all your teachers and officers, mentioning The Christian Workers Magazine when you write, and thus give all the workers in your school an opportunity to join you in securing The Sunday School Times at a saving of one-third from the single subscription rate. One free copy given with every ten paid for in a club. Ask for our offers of valuable books for those who organize new clubs.

Five or More to separate addresses
$1.00 each one year

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TIMES COMPANY
1031 WALNUT STREET - - - PHILADELPHIA, PA.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.

Chicago Avenue Bridge
CHICAGO

Invite The Moody Bible Institute, its students and its friends to make the fullest use of the service of our Missionary Bureau.

We are daily filling many orders from foreign Missionaries for household, personal and other supplies. If you are interested in Missionaries, their work, their equipment—if you wish to send articles to Missionary friends in any foreign field, call or write to Maynard D. Howell, Export Manager, Chicago.

On our packing floor, and in our foreign office, can be seen any day hundreds of orders from Missionaries all over the world.

If you are going out as a Missionary, by all means call and get acquainted with us and our service. You will find when you reach the foreign field that nearly all Missionaries supply their everyday needs from us.

You do not have to wait until you reach the foreign field to take advantage of our money-saving system of doing business. Wherever you live we shall be glad to send you a copy of our General Catalog, a book of nearly one thousand pages, free, post-paid, upon request. Everything to eat, wear and use.

Montgomery Ward Co.

Chicago, New York, Kansas City, Ft. Worth, Portland, Oregon

The Coming of the Lord Draweth Nigh

The Scriptures Examined on the Length of the Times of the Gentiles, When They Began Definitely Established. When they will close demonstrated, subject to uninspired History and Chronology.

The Year-Day Principle God-Given.

The Prophecy of the Seventy Weeks proved to be a Year-Day period.

Light on these questions promised at "the time of the end."

The Rapture and the Revelation demonstrated to occur at the Feast of Trumpets, which is the Jewish New Year's Day.

64 Pages, Fifth Edition, Enlarged, with Appendices and Extracts from Letters. 75th Thousand. Price: Postage Paid, 5c each; 30c doz.; $2 per hundred.

This Pamphlet is Unique in its teachings, showing the proximity of the Coming of the Lord.

We exhort all Christians to procure a copy and if you agree with its teachings, help us to get it before the World. Procure them by the DOZEN, HUNDRED or THOUSAND and scatter them among your Friends and Fellow Citizens. They are very cheap, we are selling them at less than cost.

We Believe there is No Truth More Important for the World at this time.

PLEASE READ THE LETTERS BELOW

From a Missionary.

Very interesting to me was the reading of the numerous comments on your pamphlet. (In the prospectus.) Some of them are truly excellent, and you have done well to publish it to silence the "unwise virgins." I agree with that brother who says, "Advertise!"

The "ad" in "Christian Workers Magazine" is well set. If you could afford it you should run it in every religious sheet in the country at least two times.

I AM CONVINCED THAT ONE MILLION OF YOUR BOOKLETS WOULD DO MORE GOOD TO GOD'S PEOPLE IN AMERICA AND IN ENGLAND THAN ALL THE SERMONS THEY HAVE HEARD THIS YEAR, AND ALL THE BOOKS THEY HAVE READ. YEA, IT IS A POWERFUL TRACT FOR THE UNCONVERTED THINKER ALSO.

Letter From a Baptist Pastor.

My dear Brother Baker: For some time I have been reading your advertisement in "The King's Business" of your pamphlet "The Coming of the Lord Draweth Nigh," and did not order it because I thought that about all had been said that could be said on that subject by such men as I. M. Haldeman, C. I. Scofield, A. C. Gaebelein, R. A. Torrey, and many others too numerous to mention, but about ten days ago I concluded to send you an order and see what you had to say.

About one week ago I received your pamphlet; I sat down and read it through, the next morning I read it through again with my Bible and Greek and Hebrew Concordance in hand and examined every passage of Scripture that you use and every passage that I had thought was a refutation of your doctrine. I was once a Post-Itte, but for a long time I have been a Pre. I am a strong believer in the Imminent coming of our Lord. I have often said that I did not believe that the year 1920 would find the church on the earth, but I did not think that the time was so clearly pointed out in the Scriptures. But now, I desire to say that I swallow your teaching whole, not because you teach it, but because it is the teaching of Scripture and cannot be refuted. If we had an inspired chronology that we could take our stand by, I am sure that we could point out the year, day and hour of the rapture and the revelation. I thank God for you as an instrument in His hands to point out in the face of an unbelieving, scoffing, rebellious world and in a great degree an unbelieving and Christ rejecting visible church, the teaching of the Scriptures on this all important question and you have done it in such a sweet spirit, with loyalty to the Word and proving yourself "a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth," bringing forth things out of the treasure both new and old.

May it please the Lord that this pamphlet may get into the hands of all His servants whose eyes are open to the truth and will sound aloud the midnight cry "behold the bridegroom cometh," that all may be watching with their lamps all trimmed and bright.

I am enclosing check for which please send me 200 of "The Coming of the Lord Draweth Nigh."

Letter From an M. E. Pastor.

Dear Sir and Brother: I have hesitated writing to you until I had time to read and re-read your booklets sent me. I have read your booklet, "The coming of the Lord Draweth Nigh," with a heart bursting with happiness which to me is an internal witness of its truth; I read it in the street car one day and had often to turn my face to the window because of the emotion which overcame me. I am so glad, so glad that you have given the Lord's revelation to the world, surely God would take your portion out of the "Book of Life" if you had kept back such great truth. And is not our God wonderful! If He had given Him revelation to some great D. D. I would have been skeptical about it, for it seems very little spiritual food comes from that source for "He has hidden it from the wise and prudent and revealed it unto babes," but not "babes in Christ," for you have been tasting of strong food ere this or you could not have discovered this hidden treasure.

Praying God's blessing upon you and your great work, I remain,

Yours under the Blood.

Letter From a Congregational Pastor.

Dear Brother: I enclose 30c in stamps for one dozen copies of "The Coming of the Lord Draweth Nigh."

A copy of the above fell into my hands a while ago and I threw it to one side because too busy to examine them and not knowing the author I did not see the importance of it. Later I took time to study it side by side with my Bible. Let me say I have read it over and over again many times, and each time enjoy it more. It has been a great help to me, a real inspiration to Bible study. My spiritual life has been quickened. I heartily endorse your little pamphlet as a clear, concise, soul awakening, and seemingly irrefutable presentation of this important subject. What you say re the feast is unique.

God bless you and your work. I am a pre for years and am looking for Him soon, any time.

Address C. J. BAKER, 621 Wyandotte Street, Kansas City, Missouri

PIPE-TONE FOLDING ORGANS $10.00 and up.

The WHITE PIPE-TONE FOLDING ORGANS are

SWEETEST in quality of TONE,
STRONGEST in volume of TONE,
LIGHTEST in WEIGHT,
MOST DURABLE in CONSTRUCTION,
EASIEST to OPERATE,
PRICES the most REASONABLE,
GUARANTEE the BEST.

Free catalogue. Write today.

A. L. WHITE MFG. CO., Dept. C. W.
215 Englewood Ave., Chicago

XTRA FINE XMAS POST CARDS

25c: 15c per dozen, postpaid. 150,000 sold last Xmas to satisfied customers. Special prices to dealers in large quantities.

PENTECOSTAL PUBLISHING COMPANY, LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

We made a buy before the advance in stock and offer you 2 for 5c cards, 100 beautiful designs, at $1.00 per 100: 24 for

Can You do what 4200 Others Have Done?

Can you succeed where 4200 men from every walk in life—from every state in the Union—are making big money in a new business?

These are only three AVERAGE CASES—not the most remarkable examples by any means—taken from our new TESTIMONY BOOK. This book contains letters from over a hundred, and there are thirty-five times that many more men who have gained independence for themselves through our course of instructions.

The Collection Business is a money maker for any ambitious man. You do business with the largest and most successful business houses—they are glad to get the kind of service we fit you to give, and all have plenty of business for the man who can deliver the goods.

We teach you the secrets of getting the money. We do more—we offer you the aid of our established, trained graduates who form the Co-Operative Bureau for exchange of business. They will help you—you will help them.

Will You Investigate?

Will you let us lay before you the full, comprehensive and convincing evidence—the facts and figures showing what hundreds have done—are doing—what YOU too, can do? Will you use this coupon today—NOW? The results of your investigation will please—will astonish—will certainly Convince you.

W. A. Shryer, Pres.,
AMERICAN COLLECTION SERVICE
729 State St., Detroit, Mich.

$10,943.35 Last Year's Commissions

"Total collections last year were $29,267.26, an increase of $3,324.07 over the previous year. Commissions amounted to $10,943.35, one month running $937.50."

FREDERICK W. FOWLER,
New Haven, Conn.

One Year's Profits $6,000.00

"Total volume of collections last year $24,000; gained 250 new out-of-town clients this year. Started in business in September 1908, one of your first students."

R. J. WILLIAMSON,
Port Arthur, Ont.

$499.08 Collected One Day by Beginner

"I am doing splendid for a new beginner. Last month's showing was $586.70. This is my banner day; total collections for the day $499.08, total commissions $136.52. My business is growing fast; your system surely gets the money."

S. O. NORTON,
Montgomery, W. Va.

INVESTIGATION COUPON

(Cut or tear off and mail)

W. A. SHRYER, Pres., American Collection Service,
729 State Street, Detroit, Michigan

I want to investigate your proposition. Please send me without charge or obligation your POINTERS ON THE COLLECTION BUSINESS telling me how to get a real start.

Name.....

Street.....

City..... State.....

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

BOOKS

By Dr. James M. Gray

Synthetic Bible Studies.....	$1.50
Primers of the Faith.....	1.00
The Antidote to Christian Science.....	.75
Satan and the Saint.....	.50
Great Epochs of Sacred History.....	.50
Progress in the Life to Come.....	.35
Salvation from Start to Finish.....	.50
Bible Problems Explained.....	.50

All these in cloth. Send for descriptive folder and order blank to

The Bible Institute Colportage Association
822 North LaSalle Street, Chicago

Alvin W. Roper

PIANO SOLOIST and Accompanist

Interpreter of Gospel Hymns

Fifteen years' experience as Pianist in various evangelistic meetings and great state and national conventions in America and abroad

Open for Engagements

Winona Lake, Ind.

W. T. McCANDLESS

and THE BAKERS

EVANGELISTIC PARTY

SILOAM SPRINGS, ARK.

FRANK T. ADAMS

Baritone Soloist

and

Musical Director

for

Evangelistic Meetings

Union or Single Church
Campaigns

Best of References

Mr. Adams has had Five Years' Experience in the Evangelistic Field. Also two Years in Slum and Mission Work.

GIVE HIM A TRIAL

Address all Communications to

Room 6005

Jenkins Arcade Bldg.
Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I Wish There Had Been Something for Our Souls"

WILL YOU HELP TO SEND SUCH A CHRISTMAS GIFT

To Two Millions of Russian,
Servian, Polish, Jewish and Italian
WAR PRISONERS IN EUROPE?

Not Material, but Spiritual

THE LONGING OF MULTITUDES

After a recent concert given for the entertainment of a number of soldiers, one of them was asked to propose the vote of thanks. He arose and said: "We are very grateful for the amusement afforded us tonight; and we appreciate all the musical talent brought for our enjoyment. But we are off to the front to-morrow, and I do not know how to die—I am not prepared to meet God: I ONLY WISH THERE HAD BEEN SOMETHING FOR OUR SOULS."

WE DESIRE TO SEND THEM

100,000 Bibles
500,000 New Testaments
100,000 Pilgrim's Progress
100,000 Traveler's Guide
(A wonderful guide to Heaven)
2,000,000 copies of salvation literature by Moody, Spurgeon and others.

The Russian Bibles and New Testaments, (the Holy Synod edition) we are ordering through the British and Foreign Bible Society; the other literature is being prepared by our Field Committee in Europe.

We are praying for

5 friends to give $5,000 each
25 friends to give $1,000 each
50 friends to give $ 500 each
150 friends to give $ 100 each
200 friends to give $ 50 each
300 friends to give $ 25 each
400 friends to give $ 20 each
600 friends to give $ 10 each
700 friends to give $ 5 each

Special collections taken up in Services, Sunday Schools, Bible Classes, Young Peoples' and C. E. Meetings and Brotherhoods would help this cause greatly.

THE PLAN COMMENDED.

The Right Rev. David H. Greer, Bishop Diocese of New York:

"I should be glad to do what I can to forward the particular form of relief which you suggest."

The Rev. C. I. Scofield, Editor of the Scofield Reference Bible:

"I beg to assure you that I sympathize deeply with the mighty work you are doing."

The Rev. J. H. Jowett, Pastor Fifth Ave. Presbyterian Church, New York:

"I do not know of any opportunity among the many opportunities in Europe to do good which is more fraught with promise."

THE LORD JESUS, who is the Saviour also of these War Prisoners, says:

"I was in prison and ye came unto Me..... Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me." (Matt. 25:36-40).

All gifts should be sent to MR. EDWIN M. BULKLEY, Treasurer, SPENCER TRASK & CO., 25 BROAD ST., NEW YORK

For descriptive illustrated pamphlet and reports about the work address

The Gospel Committee for Work Among War Prisoners, 138 Bible House, Astor Place, New York

A. R. CARTER & CO.Christmas Church Decorators

Make your church look like springtime with Cactus and Evergreens

Write for our Christmas catalogue.

A. R. CARTER & CO., Evergreen, Ala.

ENTERTAINMENTS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

"The House that Helps" carries a splendid line of Church Entertainments, Drills, Songs, Christmas, Thanksgiving, Children's Day and Easter material. Our Help-U Catalog sent Free.

Eldridge Entertainment House, Franklin, O.

MEMBER I. A. E.

WILLIAM S. DIXON
Musical Director and Soloist
153 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

Write for testimonials that speak for themselves. You'll want a date.

The Revival Review

EDITED BY BRUCE EVANS, EVANGELIST

A spicy little monthly magazine filled with revival reports and epigrams. 50 cents a year. Sample free.

Address Revival Review, Long Beach, California

Pastors

I have some open dates for single or union meetings. Write to me about it. Satisfactory testimonials.

WILLIAM MOODY DRIVER
EVANGELIST

1814 CURTIS ST. DENVER, COLO.

POCKET S. S. COMMENTARY
For 1917, SELF-PRONOUNCING Edition on Lessons and Text for the whole year. Right-to-the-point practical HELPS and Spiritual Explanations. Small in Size, Large in Suggestion and Fact. Daily Bible Readings for 1917, also Topics of Young People's Society, Motto, etc. Red Clo. 25c, Mor. 35c, Interl. for Notes 50c, nonpald. Stamps Taken. Agents wanted. GEO. W. NOBLE, MONON BUILDING, CHICAGO, ILL.

Practical Questions On Human Suffering

Can a finite world be other than imperfect? Is suffering an inevitable element of an imperfect world?

Can we rationally ignore or minimize the fact of suffering?

Does suffering indicate Divine displeasure? Is finite man ever able or competent to judge "providences"?

If giving up your berth in a sleeper to a man who is killed therein, is "special providence" to you, what is it to him?

Is suffering and affliction punishment for wrongdoing?

Does God take away a child because He sees that it is loved too much, or to bring about the conversion of an ungodly parent?

Does God ever punish men with physical or material calamity in the present life?

Is there any assurance in revelation of immunity from suffering and the ills of life in the present existence?

Is suffering moral, immoral, or un-moral?

What is it that determines whether suffering is a good or an evil?

Would it have been better if health and not disease were "catching"?

These and many other timely and similar questions are discussed and answered fairly in

IN THE REFINER'S FIRE

or, The Problem of Human Suffering

By PERRY WAYLAND SINKS, S. T. D.

16mo, cloth covers, gilt stamped, 50 cents net.

THE BIBLE INSTITUTE COLPORTAGE ASS'N
822 North La Salle St., Chicago.

LOOK!

EVANGELISTS!
PASTORS!

Prof. R. C. Eddins can lead your singing as good as any. Ranks among the best on the evangelistic platform. He can conduct after meetings, give addresses to "Men only," etc.

Write, wire or phone.

Raynor C. Eddins, 1203 E. Broadway, Sedalia, Mo.

How to Build Tabernacles

COMPLETE BLUE PRINTS AND SPECIFICATIONS

H. H. PITZER,

108 W. Franklin Ave. Lansing, Mich.

EXTENSION DEPARTMENT STAFF

Front Row—John C. Page, C. P. Meeker, E. B. Buckalew, Elinor Stafford Millar, John R. Riebe.
 Back Row—Mrs. A. W. Bowman, George E. Guille, R. J. Young, B. B. Sutcliffe, Mrs. M. T. Russell, Homer A. Hammontree, Norman H. Camp.

Pastors, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. Secretaries

THE picture above is of interest to you! It presents the Bible Teachers, Evangelists, Singers and Organizers who compose the Extension Department staff of the Moody Bible Institute.

THEY ARE EQUIPPED

- ❑ To Conduct Bible Study Campaigns that start people actually studying the Bible, deepen spiritual life and generate the spirit of service. Such campaigns may be in a single church or association, or in a union effort.
- ❑ To Conduct Evangelistic Campaigns, either for a single church or association, or as a union meeting in church or tabernacle.
- ❑ To Organize Advance or Conservation Work, to prepare the way for or to follow up evangelistic campaigns.

These experienced workers are available upon terms that will not be found burdensome

IN ADDITION

THE Extension Department is able to recommend reliable evangelists, in affiliation with the Institute, for the various types of campaigns in any sized community or church. Such engagements are arranged without fee or commission from either party.

Start something - by writing to the

SECRETARY OF THE EXTENSION DEPARTMENT
MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE OF CHICAGO

LATE ADDITIONS TO THE MOODY COLPORTAGE LIBRARY SERIES

No. 131. From Death Unto Life

By REV. JAMES H. BROOKES, D. D.

Deals with the fundamentals of Bible truth as to man's lost estate, the atonement, regeneration, a new life in Christ Jesus. An excellent manual for "grounding" young believers—also equipping them for dealing with the excuses of the unsaved, to the consideration of which the latter pages are devoted.

No. 132. Ruth, the Moabitess

A devotional exposition of the Book of Ruth, to which are added several miscellaneous but important Bible readings

By HENRY ("HARRY") MOORHOUSE

The author, most highly esteemed by D. L. Moody, and for a while a co-laborer, with remarkable spiritual insight into the Word of God—as well as a discerning knowledge of the human heart—writes in a simple, winsome style.

15 cents each; eight copies for $1.00

The Bible Institute Colportage Ass'n
822 North La Salle Street, Chicago

A SUITABLE CHRISTMAS GIFT

DR. R. A. TORREY

"The King's Business"

DR. R. A. TORREY, Editor
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Readers Have Said:

- "It inspires to noble and better work for our King."
- "I can truly say my life has been enriched by it."
- "It is straight and solid for Bible Truths."
- "It steadies our faith. It inspires to nobler and better work."
- "I appreciate its stand for the whole Gospel."
- "The Sunday-school Lesson expositions are alone worth the price."

Price, $1 a year. Foreign $1.24.
100 pages, Monthly.

ADDRESS

BIBLE INSTITUTE

Sixth and Hope Sts. Los Angeles, Cal., U. S. A.

FREE BOOK

This Interesting Book

shows the keen delight and personal satisfaction which a musical training will bring you; and how you can obtain this training easily and thoroughly in your own home at one-quarter the usual cost.

It tells how this most prized of social accomplishments greatly increases your own enjoyment of life and the enjoyment of others. It tells of the concert career which may be open to you, and how you can increase your earning power by giving musical instruction in your spare time. Send for your copy of this valuable book today; it is free.

Dr. Quinn's Famous WRITTEN METHOD has revolutionized the study of music. By the use of Dr. Quinn's remarkable device, the COLOROTONE (patented), you save three-quarters of the time and effort usually required for learning piano or organ. You play chords immediately and a complete piece within a few lessons. The method is scientific and systematic, yet practical and simple. It is endorsed by leading musicians and heads of state universities. Equally effective for children or adults, beginners or experienced players. Practice in spare time, whenever convenient. Successful graduates everywhere. Diploma granted. Special reduced terms this month. Investigate without cost or obligation by writing today for free book, "How to Learn Piano and Organ."

Marcus Lucius Quinn Conservatory, Box 650CY Chicago

"HIDE NOT YOUR LIGHT UNDER A BUSHEL"

We Make a Specialty of

PRINTING RELIGIOUS LITERATURE Of All Kinds

Let us tell you how much it will cost to print that sermon which you delivered to your congregation but which should have gone out to the whole world. We have printed and are still printing thousands upon thousands of booklets for the

Billy Sunday Party

Our "MODERN" equipment assures dependable service and generous values.

Ministers all over the country are increasing their income from the sale of their writings. Why don't you? Get our quotations.

THE MODERN PRESS

633 Plymouth Court, Chicago

GET THE BEST SELLING HYMN BOOK

THE NEW
"Make Christ King"

Edited by Prof. E. O. Excell, Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, Dr. Bob Jones, Dr. M. H. Lyon, and 50 other leading evangelists.

The Latest, Best and Most Popular Hymn Book

Every hymn in this book is a gem. All the best old favorite hymns. The best new copyright hymns. The old "Make Christ King" was the most popular song book on the market, and the new one is better.

Send 15c for Sample Copy

Excell

Excell

Lyon

Deeper Experiences of Famous Christians

By J. Gilchrist Lawson.

Recently published. Is the greatest book on the Spirit-filled life. 382 pages. Twenty-one full-page portraits. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c. Agents Wanted.

Three Powerful Books

By DR. W. E. BIEDERWOLF.

"Spiritualism," "Russellism Unveiled," "The Unvarnished Truth about Christian Science."

Latest, plainest, and most convincing books on these subjects.

15 cents each, postpaid; 3 for 40 cents

Glad Tidings Publishing Co., Lakeside Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Evangelists !!!!! Pastors

Young people everywhere are perplexed over the Amusement Question

Namely—Cards—Theatre and the Dance. These subjects are discussed in a clean-cut, logical and convincing manner in a booklet entitled "Selling Christ." This booklet should be on your bookstand or in your library. Price, 10 cents. Special prices in quantities.

HARRY W. VOM BRUCH

534-R North LeClair Avenue

CHICAGO, ILL.

RUST STAINS

on white cotton, linen, etc., safely removed with ALFA RUST REMOVER. Pkg. with directions, 20 cents postpaid.

C. A. SCHMITT, 631 South Street, Rosindale, Mass.

A NEGLECTED POWER AND OTHER SERMONS

by the late

BISHOP CHARLES EDWARD CHENEY

of the Reformed Episcopal Church

A Volume of Pulpit Discourses of Unusual Interest and Helpfulness.

Dr. James M. Gray strongly recommends these sermons for their freshness of style, unique illustrations, evangelical soundness and evangelistic fervor. They are models for young preachers, and excellent for the family circle and the shut-ins.

Price: One Dollar, at the Bible Institute Colportage Assn. and All Book Stores.

Special Offer to Clergymen—I will mail you a copy for examination, on request. If you like it, send me One Dollar within 10 days. If you don't, return the book.

SAMUEL M. GIBSON,

2401 Michigan Ave., CHICAGO

"Preparedness" In S. S. Work

May mean to provide each of your scholars with a copy of "The Emphasized Gospel of John," for the lessons (Uniform Series), Jan. to June, 1917, are to be in the fourth Gospel.

Vest-pocket size, 80 pages, round corners. Bristol board covers, 2 cents; Limp cloth covers, 3 cents.

Postage or express not prepaid. Allow ½ cent each for carriage, or 20 copies to each pound.

Sample pages free.

The Bible Institute Colportage Ass'n

822 North La Salle St., CHICAGO

625 NEW Bible STORIES

Illustrations & Scripture Anecdotes

Interesting Stories for Bible Talks, Christian Workers and Home Instruction. Arranged under Topical Heads for use of Speakers, Teachers & General Reading. Complete Manual of New Word Pictures on Bible Subjects. Vest Pocket size, 128 pgs. Cloth, 25c. Mor. 35c. postpd. Agts. wanted. GEO. W. NOBLE, Monon Bldg. Chicago, Ill.

Sword and Shield Tract Society

MARKET ARCADE

BUFFALO, N. Y.

Everything for the Christian Home. Bible Games, Scriptural Bookmarks and Post Cards. Send 10c (stamps) for sample Post Cards and list of 1000 books, etc.

PASTORS — TEACHERS — EVANGELISTS — CHRISTIAN WORKERS

Have you seen our beautiful Gospel Post Cards, each card a striking word picture with appropriate scripture texts? Over forty designs to choose from. One dozen assorted forwarded prepaid for 15 cents, or the complete set of forty designs for 45 cents. Quantity prices furnished on application.

GOSPEL PUBLICITY LEAGUE

1034 Byron Street, Chicago, Ill.

GUARANTEE ENGRAVING CO

ILLUSTRATORS—DESIGNERS
ENGRAVERS & ELECTROTYPERS
MURON & FRANKLIN STS., CHICAGO

FABER FOLDING ORGANS

They are the most compact, have the largest volume and sweetest tone of any Folding Organ on the market. Send for illustrated catalogue, price-list and free trial offer.

Folds like a suitcase

HOMO FABER, Dept. 292
53 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago

HEAR
THE MUSIC
BEAUTIFUL

AGENTS WANTED

Who can give all or part time. Wonderful improvement reproduces real-ton music without scratch or twanginess from "TALKING MACHINES." Write for circular and proposition. Address

PATENTEE: Lock-Box 549

WAUWATOSA, : WIS., U. S. A.

OBJECT LESSONS OF SCRIPTURE

Nos. 1-2-3-4-5-6

Each Contains 12 Object Lessons. NONE LIKE THEM
GET ONE Only 15c each. Order by Number. GET ALL
Address REV. CHAS. EICKENBERG, 4029 N. Hermitage Ave.
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

CHURCH FURNITURE

Chairs, Pulpits, Pews, Altars, Desks,
Book Racks, etc. The finest furniture made.
Direct from our factory to your church at wholesale prices. Catalog free.
DeMoulin Bros. & Co. Dept. 89. Greenville, Ill.

READY ^N^ RELIABLE

Chemical Illustrations of Bible Truths For Pastors and Sunday School Teachers

Each illustration has a duplicate set, so one can be used for study and the other for class or church service.
Prepared powders ready to use. Full directions and helps.
6 talks 50 cents, postpaid.

C. A. SCHMITT, 631 South Street, Roslindale, Mass.

"The Sanitary" Individual Communion Cups

Convenient, Noiseless and Sanitary

The individual communion service permits an impressive ceremony.

We introduced individual cups (many state laws now demand them).

We make the finest quality of beautiful polished trays and supply thousands of satisfied congregations. Send for list of these churches and FREE CATALOG with quotations.

SANITARY COMMUNION OUTFIT CO., 41st St., Rochester, N. Y.

SENT FOR TRIAL

"The World's Saturday Night"
A LECTURE ON
The Second Coming of Christ
46 Pages, 10 Cents
"The Coming Storm"
57 Pages, 10 Cents
"Down Grade"
57 Pages, 10 Cents
Address the Author, D. R. Raiser, Tiffin, Ohio

DON'T BE FOOLISH And Pay Fancy Prices
For Large Hymn Books
"Best Hymns" has plenty 165. Million sold. Manila cover $5.00 per 100; Limp cover $8.00 per 100; Cloth cover $15.00 per 100.
Evangelical Publishing Co. Lakeside Bldg. Chicago, Ill.

COUGHING, Tickling in Throat, and Hoarseness Relieved by

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES

NEW 10c BOX FITS THE POCKET

Regular Sizes 25c. 50c. $1. At Druggists.
JOHN I. BROWN & SON, Boston, Mass.

Clergymen's INDEX AND FILE

EFFICIENCY is gained by indexing the best you read in books and filing clippings by our almost automatic Topical and Textual system, 80% cheaper and handier than any other thorough method. Sent on approval. Send for circulars. WILSON INDEX
COMPANY, Box K, East Haddam, Conn.

+ WE BUY AND SELL +
+ THEOLOGICAL LIBRARIES and +
+ collections of good books. Largest stock in +
+ America. Catalogs frequently issued. Corres- +
+ pondence for both old and new books invited. +
+ Over 20 years in business. +
+ SCHULTE'S BOOK STORE +
+ 132 East 23rd Street, NEW YORK +

Only 12c.
(Including Postage and Packing)

FOR THIS

Filet Crochet Book

— ON —

Yokes and Towels

I have just published this book of new creations—over one hundred of the newest, most beautiful and practical designs for working Cross Stitch or Filet Crochet.

My Book Contains Complete Instructions With Handsome Illustrations.

Send me 12c. in postage stamps or 10c. in silver and one 2c. stamp and I will send a copy prepaid.

Pearl LeMond, 709 Publicity Bldg. St. Louis, Mo.

Xmas Cards

Direct from the Manufacturer

— At a Saving of 50. to 100% —

20 Beautiful Christmas Cards, designed by artists celebrated for their exquisite, taste, engraved and embossed in colors; and enclosed in individual envelopes for $1.00. These cards if bought in a retail store would cost up to 15c each. Enclose $1.00 bill in envelope and mail today. Cards will be sent prepaid, securely packed. Money returned if not satisfied.

Wm. G. Johnston Co., Mfrs.
1160 Ridge Ave., N. S. Pittsburgh, Pa.

Journeys of Jesus A Book for Sunday-school Teachers and Bible Students.
Publisher's price, $2.25. Agents wanted. Large commission. Mennonite Publishing Co., Elkhart, Indiana.

Rescue the Perishing

The Great Personal Workers' Book by Fred R. Seibert

Nearly a Million have been sold. Evangelist "Billy" Sunday says the book has been forged on the anvil of experience. Every pastor, evangelist, teacher, student and religious society should have this book. Contains 192 pages of Bible Helps arranged and indexed to enable one to turn readily to verses on any important subject. Vest pocket size, 3x5 3-4. Manila cover, 10c; dos., $1.00; hundred, $6.00. Morocco, 25c; dos., $2.40; hundred, $18.00.

FRED R. SEIBERT,
c-o Rodeheaver Co., 440 S. Dearborn St.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Gospel Songs 4 SQUARE on THE BIBLE New Songs of Pentecost No. 1

New songs emphasizing the Gospel Truth. The Best and most popular of songs used in great evangelistic campaigns are in this book at Less than Half the Cost of Other books. Price $10.00 the hundred; 15 cents each by mail. Send 10 cents in stamps for introductory copy NOW.

HALL-MACK CO., 1018-20 Arch St., Phila., Pa.
F.E. HATHAWAY, 339 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

RANSACKING THE SCRIPTURES

By KEITH L. BROOKS

A vest-pocket edition for the Bible lover, packed full of the most vital Scripture helps. Chapter titles; key-notes; structural, ethnic, dispensational divisions; Christ in every book; inspiration of Bible; remarkable discoveries; Bible marking, daily calendar; Bible rules for Bible study, etc.

ONLY 15c POSTPAID

ECHOES PUBLISHING CO., Bible School Park, N. Y.

A New "Christmas Book" for a Christmas Gift

20 GOOD CHRISTMAS STORIES AND LEGENDS FOR STORY TELLERS
STORY LOVERS—EVERYBODY
AND YOU—$1.00 POSTPAID

MEIGS PUBLISHING CO.
Indianapolis, Indiana

FOR THE "SAINTS" ONLY May Christians Fight?

BY HUNTINGTON STONE
Price 5c per copy. 45c per doz. Post free
Bible House of Los Angeles,
702 Knickerbocker Bldg., Los Angeles, California

The Christian Herald	$2.00
The Christian Workers Magazine	1.00
BOTH FOR $2.50	$3.00

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE
163 Institute Place Chicago, Ill.

FOLDING ORGANS FOR ONLY 1c

You can send a postal requesting us to mail you our Descriptive FREE Catalogue

Giving valuable information regarding Folding Organs which have been

PERFECT FROM THE BEGINNING
ORGANS SHIPPED ON APPROVAL
GUARANTEED AS REPRESENTED OR MONEY REFUNDED

Pioneer Builders of Folding Organs

Constructed for all climates. Our organs with polished oak case are in the lead. Write us before you buy.

We can
SAVE MONEY FOR YOU

Organs from $10.00

Weight 17 lbs. and up

Write today. Mention this advertisement.

BILHORN BROS. 136 West Lake St.
CHICAGO, ILL., U. S. A.

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

Continuing THE INSTITUTE TIE.
Published on the first of each month by
The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

JAMES M. GRAY, Editor.
J. H. RALSTON, Associate Editor.
S. A. WOODRUFF, Publishing Agent.

Subscription price in United States, $1.00.

To Canada, $1.25. To other foreign countries, $1.36 (5s. 7d). Remittances should be sent by bank draft or postal or express money order, payable to The Christian Workers Magazine. Personal checks must be accompanied with 10 cents additional for exchange.

Change of Address—In sending notice of change of address, give both old and new addresses, and at least twenty days before the first of the month.

The Wrapper—Indicates the time of expiration of your subscription. Please renew promptly.

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

Publication Office: Mount Morris, Ill.

Chicago Office: 153-163 Institute Place, Chicago.

Entered as Second-Class Matter, August 19, 1916, at the Post Office at Mount Morris, Illinois, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Where to Get What You Want

Advertising under this heading 2 cents a word.

EVANGELISTS AND SINGERS

ROSS S. DAVIS, GREENFIELD, IND. SINGING Evangelist.

WRITE EVANGELISTS JAY J. PEASE AND WIFE for campaign details, 163 Institute Place, Chicago.

H. P. DUNLOP PARTY, EVANGELISM. ALL KINDS. Now at Youngwood, Pa. Union Tabernacle Meeting.

UNION EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS AFTER APRIL 1st. Write H. H. Newell's Party—McKeesport, Pa.

CITY MISSION WORK WANTED, PLEASE WRITE D. W. Louth, 337 17th Ave. West, Vancouver, B. C.

FOR UNION EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS, WRITE Floyd John Evans Party, 136 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

FRANK M. DUNK, EVANGELIST AND GOSPEL singer. For full information as to dates, terms etc., address Princeton, Ill.

EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS, UNION OR INDIVIDUAL churches. Excellent testimonials. Rev. Joseph C. Ludgate, Wheaton, Ill.

FOR UNION ON SINGLE EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS, write to Rev. Geo. W. Broome, Laurium, Mich. With or without a singer.

MARGERY THOMPSON, HARPIST WITH P. C. NELSON, Adel, Iowa, November available for dates. 721 W. 5th St., Waterloo, Iowa.

DR. FRANCIS WM. HARTLEY-HELLYER is willing to conduct interdenominational campaigns for Christ. Address Baltimore, Md.

ALVIN W. O. ROPER, WINONA LAKE, INDIANA. Pianist, fifteen years' experience in Evangelistic and great Sunday-school convention work all over America, and abroad.

CAN YOU USE AN A. NO. 1 PIANIST? I HAVE had years of experience as Evangelistic Pianist and I will warrant you satisfaction. F. A. Clark, 414 Jackson St., Chillicothe, Mo.

EVANGELISTIC SINGER—BOOK YOUR DATES FOR Winter Meetings with Conrad A. Jones—Pastor or Evangelist. Address c-o Evangelists Ass'n Bureau, 136 W. Lake St., Chicago.

FOR UNION OR SINGLE CHURCH—EVANGELISTIC Meetings. Sane, thorough, scriptural, successful. Recommended by leading men and churches. Permanent address, 439 Chestnut St., Marion, O., J. C. Rinehart.

DIFFICULTY OVERCOME—THE FRAZIER PARTY have a portable steel tabernacle, with corrugated steel sides and roof, thus reducing the expense of union campaigns. Write for booklet. Jacob A. Frazier, Winchester, Ind.

I WISH TO EMPLOY A GOOD CHORISTER WHOSE wife will accompany the party as pianist. Both must be efficient personal workers. Work to begin January first. References exchanged. Emma Paige, Evangelist, Marshalltown, Iowa.

EXPERIENCED GOSPEL SINGER. PERSONAL worker, also successful children's worker, wishes to join evangelist or help pastors who hold their own meetings. Best of references. Herbert Reynolds, Care Christian Workers Magazine.

BOOKS AND PAMPHLETS

TAKE DR. SCOFIELD'S COMMENDATION AND ORDER Layfield's Songs and Poems now. Address Robert Layfield, Evangelist, Kansas City, Kansas. Price 25 cts.

SECOND HAND BOOKS—SELECT STOCK, FINE condition; also new books of all publishers; special prices; catalog free. Hays, Cushman Co., 1306 W. Madison St., Chicago.

BOOK BINDING—YOUR VOLUME CHRISTIAN Workers Magazine bound for $1.25. Leather back, gold lettering, postage paid. William Groth, 4612 N. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

BROTHER PASTOR—SEND FOR MY LIST OF VITAL heresy booklets. Carefully selected to meet the "isms." Practice preparedness against counterfeits. James Troke, Elmcreek, Nebr.

SERMONS: PRACTICAL, DEVOTIONAL, BY REV. J. L. Dickens, D. D. Deeply spiritual, intensely biblical, helpful to all. Cloth, 75c. Paper, 35c. Order from author. 2120 Ave. G, Galveston, Tex.

POCKET BIBLES, NEW TESTAMENTS AND OTHER Christian Workers' Helps. Various styles and prices. All pocket editions. Send for price list. Pocket Evangel Supply Co., 501 E. Penn. Ave., South Bend, Ind.

GOOD TRACTS—ATTRACTIVELY PRINTED. BY Pierson, Spurgeon, Torrey, Gordon, Muller, and others. Large assortment, twenty-five cents, postpaid. Bible House of Los Angeles, 643 S. Olive St., Los Angeles, Cal.

POULTRY PAPER, 44-124 PAGE PERIODICAL, UP-to-date, tells all you want to know about care and management of poultry, for pleasure or profit; four months for 10 cents. Poultry Advocate, Dept. 99, Syracuse, N. Y.

TEACHERS OF BIBLE CLASSES, PASTORS ATTENTION! Studies in Romans, (1st Eight Chapters) by Wm. R. Newell, excellent for distribution among Bible Students and Christian Workers. Just republished, 25c. In quantities 20c. Langston Press, 544 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

CHOICE TRACTS—"BELIEVING GOD." "HOPE IN God." by George Muller; "Power of Stillness," by A. B. Simpson; "Humility," by Andrew Murray; "Not a Word," "Faith for Desperate Days," "Communion," "Victory," etc. Sample package, assorted, 10 cents; 100 for 25 cents, postpaid. Hebron Tract Society, 560 N. 20th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

FULL SALVATION MONTHLY. CLEAR, STRONG, radical. Full of Pentecostal and revival fire. Condensed for the busy reader. 3 months trial, 10c. The Crusader, Titusville, Pa.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS TRACTS ON SECRET SOCIETIES—"Why I Left the Masons," "Two Nights in a Lodge Room," "Ethics of Marriage and Home Life," "Church and Lodge," etc. 25, each different, for 25 cents. National Christian Association, 850½ West Madison, Chicago.

A CHALK TALK SERIES—TRUTH MADE CLEAR to eye and ear—ten minute talks with colored chalks. Simple drawings and outlines which teach deep spiritual truth. Draw and your audience draws with you, talk and you talk alone. Series complete—enough for one year—postpaid, $1.00. (Rev.) James Troke, Elmcreek, Nebr.

THE LORD IS NEAR. CLEARANCE PRICES. REMAINDERS. "The Greatest Want of the World," Copyrighted, 20c for 10c. "Love Songs of The Church," 10c for 6c. Pure Silk Bookmark, "My Prayer," 1 Thessalonians 5:23. Interwoven Blue and Gold on White. 20c for 15c. All loved by the Lord's own. Postpaid. John Mason, 55 Park Avenue, East Orange, New Jersey.

MISCELLANEOUS

100 BRISTOL CALLING CARDS 25c. POSTPAID.—Moody's Printery, Finleyville, Pa.

HAWAIIAN UKULELE AND SELF-INSTRUCTOR. $5.00. Write Wm. Buslap, 3731 Concord Place, Chicago.

FLORIDA EVERGLADES—RICHEST LAND ON earth. Free booklet, Justin Bare & Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

SEND ME 25 CENTS AND I'LL SEND YOU NEEDLEcraft for twelve months. Send to James Senior, Lamar, Mo.

100 EACH HAMMERMILL BOND LETTER HEADS and Envelopes, neatly printed, 90c.—Moody's Printery, Finleyville, Pa.

WE HELP PREPARE SERMONS, LECTURES, DEBATES, Essays, Expert service. Research Bureau, 500 Fifth Ave., New York.

CHURCH DECORATORS. WRITE FOR OUR CATALOGUE: Decorate your church with Evergreens. A. R. Carter & Co., Evergreen, Alabama.

12 POST CARDS, BEAD NECKLACE AND OUR wholesale price list; send 10c for postage and package. Unaka Supply Co., Unaka, N. C.

EVER TRY "SCRIPTURE PENCILS" FOR PERSONAL work, Sunday-school or church work? Stamp brings Samples. Grabbill & Co., Lancaster, Pa.

WILL PAY BIG MONEY TO CHRISTIAN MEN AND women to distribute our beautiful Christian Calendar. Particulars, Messenger, 22 Quincy St., Chicago.

HALF-TONE ENGRAVINGS AND ELECTROTYPES. Jos. H. Barnett & Co., 508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago. Phone Har. 1389. Mail orders promptly filled.

SAVE YOUR MONEY ON BLACKBOARDS, COLLECTION Plates, Envelopes, Communion Services, etc. American Blackboard Co., 411 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.

ORIGINAL, HOMILETICAL, PRACTICAL, TYPE-written Sermon & Temperance Outlines 10c each or 12 for $1. Address Homiletic Bureau, Box 115, Depauville, N. Y.

FINEST STEREOTYPON SLIDES ON BIBLE. Arranged with lectures. Popular lectures for church use. Special offers on stereopticon. Write M. G. Cole, Poultney, Vt.

WOMEN MAKE $2 A DAY EASILY IN SPARE TIME selling Engravingprint visiting cards. Experience unnecessary. Samples and terms for a stamp. Raymond Benson, Elgin, Ill.

ITALIAN LANGUAGE HOME STUDY OUTFIT. Contains 25 cylinder records and pamphlet texts. Set 14) Spanish books. Perfect condition. Price right. Eugene Lewis, Kittery-Depot, Maine.

WANTED—A FEW RELIABLE MEN OR WOMEN to handle "Kindergarten Bible Study." $120 for 60 days or commission. Full or spare time. Outfit free. Nichols Co., Naperville, Ill., Dept. C. W.

FIVE STRONGLY EVANGELISTIC, STEREOTYPON Sermons which always pull crowds and help people. Fourteen splendid stereotypons for sale at bargain prices. Frank H. Gamel, Vinton, Iowa.

"COME NOW"—BEAUTIFUL SACRED SOLO, Excellent for church, school, home—15 cents. "Father Foots the Bill"—humorous; 15 cents. Orchestration. 30 cents. Fine music. L. Cradit, Quenemo, Kan.

WANTED—AGENTS TO SELL RELIGIOUS WALL Mottoes, Calendars, Postcards, Books, Bibles, all Winners for Xmas. Write today. Make money for yourself or Church. Webb Book & Bible Co., Lima, Ohio.

FEATHER FLOWERS SUITABLE FOR ALL occasions. Appreciated by all. Made for your home. One dollar brings fine bouquet prepaid. Sample fifteen cents. A beautiful Christmas Present. DeWitt Sisters Feather Flower Art, Battle Creek, Michigan.

WANTED—IN EVERY COMMUNITY AN ENERGETIC representative for "The Analytical Reference Bible," the great self-help to Bible study and interpretation. Liberal commissions. Exclusive Territory. Henry F. Glere, Publisher, 373 Fourth Ave., New York.

BUILD A $5,000 BUSINESS IN TWO YEARS. LET us start you in the collection business. No capital needed; big field. We teach secrets of collecting money; refer business to you. Write today for Free Pointers and new plan. American Collection Service, 685 State St., Detroit, Mich.

"KNOW YOUR BIBLE BETTER BY OUR SYSTEMATIC study courses. Preach better sermons by making them Homiletical." The Scripture Correspondence Seminary offers courses in Biblical Analysis, Chapter Summary, Individual Books, Practical Homiletics, etc. Join now. Address Box 115, Depauville, N. Y. Terms, $2 Registration, and $0.50 monthly.

MEN AND WOMEN, 18 OR OVER, WANTED FOR U. S. Government Life Jobs. $75.00 month. Steady Work. Short hours. Rapid advancement. "Pull" unnecessary. Common education sufficient. Write immediately for free list of positions now easily obtainable. Franklin Institute, Dept' R. 122, Rochester, N. Y.

SEND FOR FREE INFORMATION ABOUT OUR ACCIDENT and Health Policy, which pays $3,500—$5,250 for loss of life or serious dismemberment; $20-$40 a week for loss of time by accident; Covers 50 diseases; Hospital benefits; $100 Emergency Fund if sick or hurt away from home. Cost only $7.50 a year. YOU NEED IT. C. A. Jamison, General Agent, 805 Fletcher Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

ASHER TRACTS

DOCTRINAL—EVANGELISTIC—ORTHODOX

Prices Include Postage Pre-paid by Us to Any Part of the World. Please Send Remittance with Order. Assorted Packages: One of Each Tract.

Asst. No.	Pages	Price
1	100	$0.08	For Unbelievers.
2	200	.15	For Unbelievers.
3	400	.28	For Unbelievers.
4	100	.08	For Believers.
5	200	.15	For Believers.
6	400	.28	For Believers.
7	100	.08	For the Young.
8	100	.06	On the Scriptures.
9	70	.06	Pre-millennial.
10	100	.08	On Missions and Giving.
11	48	.04	Card Playing, Dancing, Theatre-going.
12	58	.05	30 pages on Temperance, 28 pages on Rescue Work.
13	100	.08	For Jews.
14	200	.15	For Jews.
15	100	.08	Foreign.
16	200	.15	Foreign.
17	1,300	.90	All our English Tracts.

ASHER BOOKLETS

Keys to the Word.—By Arthur T. Pierson. 15 cents each. 62 pages. Giving Key word. Key verse, and an analytical outline of each book, with comments. Rightly Dividing the Word of Truth.—By C. I. Scofield. 5 cts. each. 64 pages. Ten outline studies with comments on important divisions of Scripture. The Practice of the Presence of God. The Best Rule of a Holy Life: "Brother Lawrence." 5 cents each. 40 pages. The Still Hour.—By Austin Phelps. 6 cents each. 47 pages. 14 Chapters on Prayer.

A complete price-list of all our booklets, cards, stickers, and tracts sent on application.

ASHER PUBLISHING CO.

361 MINNESOTA STREET, ST. PAUL, MINN.

THE SERMONIZER

Udenominational, Homiletical Monthly Magazine, Founded in 1889

Orthodox, Suggestive, Stimulating, Practical. Each issue represents 35 years' experience as editor, publisher, printer

Subscription price $1.50; Canada and Foreign $1.75

THE SERMONIZER is conducted along the lines pointed out by the experience and wisdom of its wide-awake patrons. We never tire in our efforts to furnish a magazine that exactly supplies the wants of the preacher. The character of The Sermonizer in the past, its select Sermons and Outlines, articles of Current Religious Thought, the unusually fresh Illustrations, progressive Prayer Meeting Service, Golden Text Outlines, and the other advantages it offers, make a subscription to The Sermonizer one of the best investments the enterprising minister can make. We ask you to make it. If in doubt enclose 15 cents for a sample copy.

Special Offer—For a limited time we will send you Absolutely Free, prepaid, a volume of Dr. Dorchester's great book, "Concessions of Liberalists to Orthodoxy," 344pp, regular price $1.50, with your subscription to The Sermonizer one year at $1.50 in the U. S., or $1.75 in Canada and Foreign Countries. This gives you $3.00 value for $1.50

Never had a more compact help for sermonizing; just what a busy pastor needs.—Rev. C. C. Childress.

FRANK J. BOYER, Publisher

Reading, Pa.

Over 30,000 Churches Use THOMAS INDIVIDUAL COMMUNION SERVICE -- Is Your Church One of Them?

By common consent the Individual Communion Service should be used in every church. Declaring the common drinking cup unsanitary and a menace to public health, you pass laws prohibiting its use in schools and public places. For the same reasons a proper regard for the health of your communicants should require that the common communion cup should give way to the cleanly and sanitary Individual Communion Service.

The Thomas Individual Communion Service is now used and endorsed by over 30,000 churches and is universally acknowledged the superior of all other systems for this most holy sacrament of the church. Remember "Cleanliness is next to godliness"—the common communion cup is not clean—why not investigate the Thomas Individual Communion Service?

"THOMAS SPECIAL" Self-Collecting Cushioned Tray

The most convenient and satisfactory tray that can be desired. Noiseless, interlocking, dust-proof and self-collecting; uses shallow glass (no tipping of head) and saves one-fourth cost of other styles of services. Made in Special Finished Aluminum and Quadruple silver-plate, and holds 36 glasses.

"IDEAL"

Non-Collecting Tray

Made in Special Finished Aluminum and Quadruple silver-plate, 36 and 44-cup sizes.

Noiseless, dust-proof, interlocking. A compact and beautiful tray.

APPRECIATION

Brief extracts from a few of thousands of testimonials, giving reasons for using Thomas Individual Communion Service.

- "Beauty of appearance."
- "Cleanliness of administration."
- "Economy of time."
- "Reasonableness in price."
- "Satisfactory in every respect."
- "Our people were delighted with it."
- "So clean and beautiful."
- "A comfort to use them."
- "Light and convenient."
- "It is the finest yet."
- "Sickly persons need not feel backward to come and take part."

Complete Outfit will be sent any Church For Trial

Write to-day giving number of communicants and ask about our Special Introductory Offer.

We are specialists in individual communion services and supplies, baptismal bowls, bread plates, collection plates, cabinets, etc. Our prices are surprisingly low—easily within the reach of any church—and every minister or church board will find our 24-page catalog a real "saving" help to properly outfit a church.

Thomas Polished Wood Tray

We furnish very handsome and attractive wood trays to churches preferring them. Made in quartered oak, walnut or cherry, in 36-cup size.

Highly polished and very beautiful.

THOMAS COMMUNION SERVICE CO. Box W, LIMA, OHIO

Will You Make a Belgian Soldier in the Trenches Happy at Christmas?

When Ralph C. Norton and his wife, Edith Fox Norton, arrived in London the latter part of June, 1915, to begin the "British and French Soldiers Evangelistic Campaign," they faced a great crisis. Mr. Norton found himself plunged into the greatest spiritual struggle of his life. The young Americans were not new in the work of soul-winning among the soldiers. During the months of October, November, and December of 1914, Mr. and Mrs. Norton gave themselves to evangelistic work among the soldiers in Great Britain and France, principally in the training camps for recruits in England. In these meetings more than a thousand men took a straight-out stand for Christ. It was then that God laid upon the Nortons the burden for the soldiers, and after a number of months with Chapman and Alexander in America, they boldly stepped out by faith into this new work.

When they returned to England the natural hope was that these great gatherings of men in the training camps would be open to them for preaching the Gospel. This was the news that greeted them upon their arrival: Because of German spy activities, and especially because several German-Americans who had been convicted and shot as spies were found to have American passports, the British War Office had instructed the Y. M. C. A. to employ no one but British subjects. Then other doors closed to them, and the eager and zealous soul-winners were all but cast into discouragement.

On the first of March, 1916, the two young American evangelists were crossing the English channel in the company of hundreds of officers, taking a route open only to the Military, they two the only civilians on board, and armed with an authorization from the Belgian Minister of State to proceed to the front. On their wonderful journey one impossible thing after another was accomplished by the One who had planned the trip; one impassable door after another was opened, until they found themselves in the royal villa, graciously received by the Queen of the Belgians. She accepted one of the little Testaments and thanked them for their care of the Belgian soldiers. Still more remarkable was that walk of two miles from Ramskapelle to Nieuport in the front line of the Belgian trenches, where the soldiers gazed in wonder at the strange sight of a woman in that part of the war zone where only the Belgian Queen herself had been permitted to go.

What have this young American couple done? Who are they? Every military regulation seemed to have been put aside for them—and that too by the high officials in a Catholic country. These young Americans walking those dangerous miles with the shells whizzing over their heads, giving out Gospels and chocolates to the men in the trenches, are Father and Mother to the Belgian soldiers. Hundreds of the Belgian soldiers so address them, and these in turn have told thousands of their fellows of these wonderful friends.

Now the Nortons have a plan to provide Christmas boxes, costing $1 each, for the Belgian soldiers in the trenches, for the thirty thousand interned in Holland, and for the still more unfortunate Belgian prisoners in Germany. These soldiers more than almost any other soldiers in the world war are friendless and homeless, and the good things to eat that are contained in one of these boxes would indeed warm the heart of the lonely soldier. And in each of the boxes will be a little Flemish and French Gospel. It has been through the loving, kindly attention to the physical needs of these soldiers that the Nortons have found the way into their hearts and have planted Christ there.

Hitherto all the contributions that have come from readers of The Christian Workers Magazine have gone into the purchase of the Gospels and Testaments that have accomplished these miracles of salvation. Now quick advantage must be taken of this new extension work, made possible by the co-operation of the highest Belgian authorities, and the Nortons have asked the friends of the work to provide at least $50,000 for the coming year, first to supply the Christmas boxes, and later to care for the increasing work, making it necessary for them to employ assistants.

Donations, large or small may be addressed to, and will be promptly forwarded by

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE
163 INSTITUTE PLACE, CHICAGO

SONGS
FOR SERVICE

RODEHEAVER

SONGS
FOR SERVICE

Music for Christmas

For the Sunday School

OUR KING—16 page service of song. 5c per Copy
55c per doz., $4.35 per 100, postpaid.

The above service orchestrated for 11 instruments, including bells. Price for complete orchestration, $1.50.

CHRISTMAS VOICES—16-page service. 5c per copy, 55c per doz., $4.35 per 100, postpaid. Not orchestrated.

RODEHEAVER RECITATIONS FOR CHRISTMAS—32-page book of poems, exercises, etc. by the best writers. Edited by Chas. H. Gabriel. 15c, postpaid.

FOR THE CHOIR

THE GOSPEL CHOIR will contain some splendid Christmas anthems and songs. 15c per copy; 10c per copy in lots of 10 or more. Sample pages free.

SONGS FOR SERVICE

Compiled and Edited by HOMER A. RODEHEAVER and CHARLES H. GABRIEL. The songbook that is used exclusively in the great "BILLY" Sunday campaigns.

Get a copy of "Songs for Service" at once for examination; get acquainted with its great songs; get it into your church and get your singing going as you would like to have it go.

PRICES

Cloth, $25.00; limp, $18.00; manila, $15.00 per hundred, not prepaid. Single copies, cloth, 35c; limp, 25c; manila, 20c postpaid. Any quantity at the 100 rate. Orchestration: $1.50 per volume; six or more, $1.25 per volume; entire set of 12 volumes for 15 instruments, $14.00.

WAKEN UP YOUR CHOIR

In the September Number of The Gospel Choir was started a great series of articles and exercises on voice training—just the thing to stimulate more interest in your choir work than anything that has been produced in years. The entire series has been worked out so that the exercises may be rehearsed at the regular weekly rehearsal under the direction of the choir leader and will be of immense benefit to all choirs that are not made up of trained singers.

If you are not acquainted with THE GOSPEL CHOIR send for sample copy containing introduction to this great series. State how many you have in your choir and we will send you a supply for FREE TRIAL.

GOSPEL SOLOS AND DUETS

We have just issued a new Thematic Catalogue of our popular 10c OCTAVO SOLOS AND DUETS. These are immensely popular with evangelistic singers and are very useful in every kind of religious service. Many new titles have been added since issuing our last list and you will be very much interested in this new 48-page brochure which is yours for the asking.

THE RECHARGED LIVE WIRE

15c per copy, postpaid; $10 per 100, not prepaid

Do you want a real, live songbook for your temperance rallies, a book that contains more real, effective hits than any other similar collection, a compilation of Prohibition songs that will waken up audiences to the highest pitch of enthusiasm? Well, here it is.

Contains all of the great pieces that are being used so effectively in the "Billy" Sunday campaigns and many new hits that will clinch the arguments of your temperance speakers. An exceedingly useful department contains many old, familiar tunes to which have been set Prohibition words by the best writers.

MALE CHOIRS—HERE YOU ARE

The best little book of sacred and secular selections for male voices that has as yet appeared. Just off the press.

RODEHEAVER COLLECTION FOR MALE VOICES

Four departments—sacred selections, secular selections, plantation songs and special selections. 160 pages, cloth-bound. 50c the copy, 4 for $1.75. Send for copy for free 15-day examination. You'll find this book to be the greatest value that you have ever looked at.

You Get the Best in Gospel Music When you Get It from Rodeheaver

THE RODEHEAVER COMPANY

1075 Monon Building, CHICAGO

675 Commercial Bldg., PHILADELPHIA

NOTICE TO READER

When you finish reading this magazine place a 1-cent stamp on this notice, hand same to any postal employee and it will be placed in the hands of our soldiers or sailors at the front.

No Wrapping—No Address.

A. S. BURLESON, Postmaster General.

LEVEL
ONE

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

Vol. XVIII

OCTOBER 1917

SERIALS DIVISION

No. 2

FLENNING LIBRARY
SOUTHWESTERN BAPTIST SEMINARY

DUPLICATE

Luther's Entry Into Worms

15 CENTS A COPY

JAMES M. GRAY
Editor

$1.50 A YEAR

J. H. RALSTON
Associate Editor

A GOOD INVESTMENT

IS ONE THAT PAYS AN INCOME FOR THIS LIFE AND

FOR ETERNITY

“THERE IS NOTHING SAVED IN THIS WORLD
BUT THAT WHICH IS GIVEN TO GOOD CAUSES”

Invest in the training of young men and women for Christian service.

THE LORD'S WORK CALLS FOR YOUR SUPPORT

Invest in a Life Annuity Contract and secure a good rate of interest while you live.

IT IS SAFE AND SOUND, AND WE OFFER BEST SECURITY

Write for the new Annuity Bulletin, giving full information, to

The Moody Bible Institute
153 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

Believing on the Son of God

WHAT IT MEANS

By PHILIP MAURO

Author of "The Number of Man," "Man's Day," "Life in the Word," "The World and Its God," etc., etc.

"This pamphlet is an attempt to find in the Word of God an answer to the question which has arisen in many minds, namely, 'What is it to believe in Jesus Christ in such wise as to possess remission of sins and eternal life?' Probably those who advance so far in 'the knowledge of the Son of God' as to be exercised about this question already have the answer in themselves, though they may find it not easy to express in words. To all such the inquiry will be a matter of deep interest, and the following pages may afford them some help towards framing an answer."—Extract from Author's "Foreword."

New edition. Attractive cover. 15 cents per copy; four copies for 50 cents, postpaid.

Your Attention is also Called to the Following Selection of Excellent Pamphlets from Our Line of Choicé Scriptural Literature.
Send for Free Catalog Listing Our FULL Line

By PHILIP MAURO

The Progress of the Apostasy. As to the Word of God, the person of Christ and in general. 5 cents.

The Claims of Christ: or the Vested Rights of the Lord Jesus. His demand; our response. 5 cents.

Concerning the Sabbath. "A logical and scriptural consideration of this subject."—Evangelical Christian. 10 cents each; $1.00 per dozen.

Present State of the Crops. An examination of the characteristics and events in the light of the Word of God. 5 cents; 50 cents per dozen.

The Truth About Evolution. Showing the follies and fancies of the theory. 5 cents; 50 cents per dozen.

The Life Boat and Death Boat. A talk to young and old on the Titanic catastrophe. 4 cents each; $2.75 per 100, postpaid.

Why We Separated from the World. 5 cents each; 50 cents per dozen, postpaid.

Philosophy in the 20th Century. A menace to the English speaking nations. 5 cents each; 50 cents per dozen, postpaid.

By GEO. L. HUNT

Secret Societies: Can a Christian Belong to Them and Still Honor Christ? New edition. 5 cents.

By CHAS. F. REITZEL

Church and State. Should a Christian take part in politics? 31st thousand. 5 cents.

By ALEX. MARSHALL

Straight Paths. Plain words concerning the New Birth, Assurance, Two Natures, Separation, the Church, etc. New edition. 5 cents.

By ROBERT McMURDO

The Mystery and Ministry of Suffering amongst the Redeemed in the Present Dispensation. A message of comfort and encouragement to the Lord's tried and afflicted ones. 5 cents each; 25 copies for $1.00.

By ARTHUR W. PINK

Satan and His Gospel. A forceful but simple setting forth of the teaching of the Word of God regarding the greatest enemy of mankind—Satan. Especially helpful to young Christians, though it should be read by all. Seven chapters on Satan's Personality, Origin, Fall, Work, Doom, etc. Attractive cover in two colors. 68 pages. 15 cents.

The Millennium. "For the beginner in prophecy, and for others, it will form an admirable guide for searching the Scriptures about the Golden Age to be ushered in by the coming of our Lord."—"Sunday School Times." 5 cents; by mail, 6 cents.

Philosophy of Spiritualism. Shows the evil nature and awful tendencies of this fearful delusion. If you wish to open the eyes of others, get this booklet. 5 cents; 40 cents per dozen.

Sins of the Saints. An important and timely message to the Lord's people. Should be read by all. New and enlarged edition with attractive cover. 5 cents.

The Doctrine of Election. Deals with the Mystery of Election, the Truth of Election, the Certainty of Election, etc., etc. 1 cent each; single copies by mail, 2 cents each.

The God of Jacob. A very sweet and comforting message. It magnifies the grace of God and the God of grace. 1 cent each; single copies by mail, 2 cents each.

One each of ALL the above pamphlets sent postpaid for $1.00

BIBLE TRUTH DEPOT

We make a specialty of Gospel Tracts—ask for our list, and mention The Christian Workers Magazine when writing.

200 MAIN STREET

SWENGEL, PENNA.

"It Gave Me New Respect for Wheat"

One Woman's Story

One Puffed Wheat user says:

"Every year at harvest time I am on a wheat farm. But this year wheat had new attractions for me.

"It was partly the price, perhaps. And partly the world-wide cry for wheat. But more than all it was Puffed Wheat, which I first found out last winter.

"Those bubble grains, those delightful food confections, gave me new respect for wheat."

But That Isn't All

But those airy globules, those flimsy, flavory tidbits, should have other great attractions.

They are whole grains in which every atom feeds. Every food cell has been steam exploded. No element is missing, none is lost. In whole wheat bread, for instance, at least half the granules still remain unbroken. Here all are blasted so they easily digest.

These grains get an hour of fearful heat. That gives the nut-like taste. They are shot from guns, and explosion puffs the grains to bubbles, eight times normal size. Thus comes the flaky texture. They are enticing morsels. But Prof. Anderson's object was hygienic food. The more you serve your wheat in this way the better you are fed.

Puffed Wheat

Puffed Rice

and Corn Puffs

Each 15c Except in Far West

Serve like other cereals, but also mix with fruit. For luncheons or suppers float in bowls of milk. Douse with melted butter for children's after-school delights. Use as wafers in your soups. These Puffed Grains—all of them—are the ideal form of grain food.

The Quaker Oats Company

Sole Makers

(1703)

THE Christian Workers Magazine

Continuing the INSTITUTE TIE

Vol. XVIII

October, 1917

No. 2

Editorial Notes: Cut From the Loaf; The Lutheran Anniversary; The Evolution of Prussianism; "Ignoring the Earthquake;" College Athletics.....	97
The Menace of Mormonism (Editorial).....	99
Meditation (Poem).....	Albert Simpson Reitz..... 100
"The Story of My Life and Work".....	Editorial Book Review..... 101
Martin Luther and the Reformation.....	William Wallace Ketchum..... 106
Out of Darkness Into Light.....	Robert M. Russell..... 109
God Is Near (Poem).....	Oswald J. Smith..... 112
The Two Goats and the Day of Atonement.....	C. H. Leggett..... 113
Waiting for the Lord (Poem).....	Elsie E. McCarter..... 114
Disraeli as "Defender of the Faith".....	115
The Rev. G. Campbell Morgan on the War.....	116
The Faith of Bishop Bashford, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, as to the Lord's Coming.....	120
The Study of Prophecy.....	L. W. Gosnell..... 120
Young People's Society Topics.....	John C. Page..... 122
Sunday-school Department:
Exposition of the International Lessons.....	P. B. Fitzwater..... 124
Practical and Doctrinal Applications of the Lessons.....	Robert M. Russell..... 127
To Promote Daily Bible Reading.....	Howard W. Pope..... 130
For Sermon and Scrap Book.....	William Norton..... 132
Foreign Mission Department.....	Edmund F. Cook..... 135
The Evangelistic Field.....	S. A. Woodruff..... 137
Forthcoming Conferences.....	139
Book Notices.....	140
The Moody Bible Institute.....	S. A. Woodruff..... 143
The Gospel in Print.....	151

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE: $1.50 a year to any address in the world. Remittances should be sent by bank draft, or postal or express money order.

Do not make checks or money-orders payable to individuals, but to

The Christian Workers Magazine

153-163 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

Copyright, 1917, by The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Entered as second class matter June 11, 1917, at the post office at Chicago, Illinois, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

New Books FOR THE Christian Life

AT ALL BOOKSELLERS

R. A. TORREY, D.D.

The Voice of God in the Present Hour

A new collection of sermons by the famous pastor-evangelist. In addition to their being stirring gospel appeals, these sermons contain special messages of enheartenment for those who find themselves perplexed and bewildered by the war conditions existing in this and other lands. Cloth, net, $1.25

J. WILBUR CHAPMAN, D.D.

When Home Is Heaven

About this central theme, the famous evangelist groups a series of stirring addresses dealing with various aspects of domestic life, the right training of children and the value to the community of a home in which God's name is honored and His precepts extolled. Cloth, net, $1.25

P. WHITWELL WILSON

The Christ We Forget

A Life of Our Lord for Men of Today

A book with scarcely a peer in contemporary publishing. The author, an English University man, brilliant journalist, and some time member of Parliament, writes the story of Jesus of Nazareth in a wonderfully arresting fashion. Cloth, net, $1.50

JAMES M. GRAY, D.D.

Prophecy and the Lord's Return

What is the purpose of God in connection with the present international cataclysm? Does prophecy deal with the world today? The author, dean of the Moody Bible Institute, of Chicago, is well known as a Bible student and expositor. Dr. Gray's chapters have unusual interest at this time. Net 75c.

J. B. GAMBRELL, D.D.

Edited by E. C. Rauth of "The Baptist Standard"

Parable and Precept

A Baptist Message

"Dr. Gambrell is so well known and sincerely loved that he needs no commendation from us. We have among us no more effective writer, wiser counsellor or more efficient leader than he, and his great personality is fully manifest on each page. Should be a household treasure, especially with Baptists. We alone should circulate this book by the tens of thousands."—Word and Way. Cloth, net, $1.00

EDGAR YOUNG MULLINS, D.D.

The Life in Christ

"Dr. Mullins has recognition throughout the country as a great teacher. This volume shows him a preacher of intellectual and spiritual power. Excellent models for the growing minister, forcible, intellectual, spiritual."—Christian Advocate. Cloth, net, $1.25

A. T. ROBERTSON, M.A., D.D., LL.D.

Paul's Joy in Christ

A study of Paul's unflinching optimism and spirit of rejoicing. Nowhere in the writings of the great Apostle do these qualities receive larger emphasis than in the Epistle to the Philippians. Prof. Robertson brings all his expository skill to the presentation of this fact. Cloth, net, $1.25

HENRY T. SELL, D.D.

Studies in the Four Gospels

The Master Books of the World

A new volume in Sell's "Bible Studies" in which an effort is made to set forth the circumstances under which the Gospels came to be written, their respective viewpoints, differences, agreements and arguments, together with an appraisal of their messages to the ancient and modern world. Cloth, net, 60c.; paper, 35c.

FRANCIS E. CLARK, D.D.

Christ and the Young People

"The editor has seldom during his life been so helped by the printed page. It is indeed a remarkable presentation of the life of Jesus, sincere and impartial." Zion's Herald. Cloth, net, 50c.

JAMES I. VANCE, D.D.

Pastor of First Presbyterian Church,
Nashville, Tenn.

Life's Terminals

"Earnest, every-day talks to the every-day man, not one of whom can read it without having the conscience aroused, and the life made correspondingly better."—Presbyterian Standard. Boards, net, 35c.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

The First Commandment

"Mr. Bryan has closely packed much of that wisdom and earnest pleading for high living which have given him a unique place as a Christian public man in other places as well as his own."—Canadian Baptist. Boards, net, 35c.

JAMES M. GRAY, D.D.

Dean of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

A Picture of the Resurrection

"A brief popular exposition of the main points in the great Resurrection chapter. It is clear, strong, convincing and marked at every point by personal and pressing applications of the truth."—Evangelical Christian. Boards, net, 35c.

The Grandest Library of Bible Knowledge and Teaching in Existence at the most sweeping reduction ever made on a work of similar value. Originally published and sold in a bulky and unwieldy set of 25 small volumes at $49.00. We now offer The Christian Workers Magazine readers the identical complete work compactly bound in seven volumes at a fraction of the original cost FOR A LIMITED TIME.

Was $49

Now $10

An Exposition of the Bible

This great work consists of seven large volumes solidly packed with thousands of the most practical and valuable helps for the preacher, teacher, and Bible student. Unlike the ordinary commentary with its details and technicality, this vast library of Bible helps actually expounds the Word of God. The contents are made up of scholarly, suggestive, and intensely interesting expository lectures on all the books of the Bible, contributed by the foremost preachers and theologians of the age—men whose very names are the highest assurance of the far-reaching value of their contributions. The work has won universal praise from the entire religious press and pulpit.

For the Preacher

"...affords endless material to enrich his sermons, both in history, criticism, and exposition."

For the Teacher

It provides overwhelming resources of attaining or communicating Scriptural knowledge or answering questions.

For the Layman

It spreads a matchless feast of instruction and comfort.

"Full of spiritual truth and instruction."—Christian Work.

"Young ministers will find it a mine of treasure."—New York Evangelist.

"Unusually fresh and bright."—Presbyterian and Reformed Review.

"Delightful and instructive reading."—Interior.

SEVEN MASSIVE VOLUMES

10 3/4 x 7 1/4 inches, strong, handsome buckram binding INCLUDING THE INDISPENSABLE NEW INDEX VOLUME, THE ENTIRE SET CONTAINING nearly 1,400 chapters, 5,261 pages, exhaustively illuminating every topic and every phase of each chapter and book of the Old and New Testaments.

Features of Indispensable Value to Every Preacher, Teacher, Student

"All of the volumes are replete with instruction, and embody the best and latest results of Biblical criticism and study. As a whole, indeed they are the best practical exposition of the Scriptures in the English language."—Reformed Church Review.

Thousands of preachers, teachers, and Bible students will realize the importance and far-reaching practical value of this library.

The Bible's Richest Treasures

The richest, most suggestive, and most inspiring portion of the Bible are selected, illustrated, and analyzed in the most helpful and interesting way.

"The series is planned so as to give the reader all the good of a scientific commentary without the padding, technicality and detail. . . . In every book of the Bible the rich, fertile, and perpetually significant portions are selected, and continuously analyzed, illustrated, and explained by interpreters who are scholarly yet interesting."—British Weekly.

A Library of Right-Hand Helps

Preachers, students, and teachers cannot afford to be without this massive library of helps to the more thorough, scholarly, and satisfying interpretation of the Scriptures.

New Beauties of Scripture

New beauties of Scripture are disclosed to the preacher and student, and a treasure seed thought is provided which is almost inexhaustible.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED

On the Monthly Payment Plan we require $2 with order, and your promise to pay $1 monthly for ten months. Books forwarded on receipt of cash price or first installment of $2. Customers pay freight or express charges. Those at very remote points or in foreign countries desiring us to prepay will send 30 cents per volume to cover the cost of postage or express. Safe delivery guaranteed to any station in the country or to any mail point in the world. We will take back books that are not satisfactory in ten days after examination and return money, deducting only the return transportation charges.

As to our reliability, we refer you to the publishers of this magazine or to any commercial agency.

Established 1866.

S. S. SCRANTON CO., Publishers, Hartford, Conn.

LITERATURE ON THE WAR AND PERTINENT PROPHECY

The Christian and War, C. C. C.....	$0.03
The War and the Prophetic Word, C. C. C....	.05
The End of the European War in the Light of Scripture, F. C. Jennings.....	.10
The World's Approaching Crisis, Scofield..	.10
Russia's Destiny, Burton.....	.15
Future of Europe, Burton.....	.15
The European War from a Bible Standpoint, Jordan	.20
The Falling Stone, or the Overthrow of the Last Kaiser, Haldeman.....	.25
Addresses on Prophecy, Scofield,paper .25; cloth .50
End of the Age Themes, C. C. C.paper .25; cloth .50

Send for free copy (back number) of Precious Truth Senior Quarterly, one of the ablest S. S. Lesson Helps published. 25c per quarter, $1.00 per annum.

NEW PAMPHLETS.

Deity of Christ, proven entirely by Scripture..	$0.05
The Seven Dispensations, Rev. W. H. Vroom ..	.05
Life for a Look, Rev. A. H. Holloway.....	.10
Feminism or Woman's Suffrage in the Light of Scripture, Rev. F. Z. Browne.....	.10
John Wesley a Pre-Millennarian, Nathaniel West	.10
The Mission of the Church to the World, Haldeman	.25

CHAS. C. COOK, - 150 Nassau Street, New York

A New Church Hymnal Special Services

PRACTICAL—ECONOMICAL
Churches having

The Voice of Thanksgiving No. 2

Can use the abridged edition in connection for special services as the hymns are identical in page number. No other book offers this advantage.

FULL CLOTH EDITION—50 cents per copy postpaid; 40 cents per copy in quantities, transportation extra.

ECONOMY EDITION, THIN BOARDS—40 cents per copy postpaid; 30 cents per copy in quantities, transportation extra.

ABRIDGED EDITION, MANILA—15 cents per copy postpaid; 10 cents per copy in quantities, transportation extra.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY

158 Fifth Avenue, New York

17 N. Wabash Avenue, Chicago

White Pipe-Tone Folding Organs

—ARE THE—

Choice of the United States Government
Used in Camps, Barracks, Army Posts, etc.

The WHITE PIPE-TONE FOLDING ORGANS are,

SWEETEST in quality of TONE,
STRONGEST in volume of TONE,
LIGHTEST IN WEIGHT,
MOST DURABLE in CONSTRUCTION,
EASIEST TO OPERATE,
PRICES the most REASONABLE,
GUARANTEE the BEST.

16 different styles. Free Catalog. Write today.

A. L. WHITE MFG. CO., Dept. C. W., 215 Englewood Av., Chicago

Correspondence Bible Study

"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

2 Timothy, 2:15

The Training Camps

are for soldiers, Bible Institutes are for Bible Students, but you cannot be a soldier nor attend a Bible Institute.

But You Can

study the Bible by correspondence. Last year the Moody Bible Institute enrolled 1,885 new correspondence students and through that department taught more than 5,000 people.

The War Is On. Enlist

Correspondence Study Has Been Demonstrated as a Most Efficient Educational Method

The Moody Bible Institute has a fully equipped department exclusively devoted to teaching by correspondence.

Our aim is for careful business administration, most efficient teaching, and courteous attention to all inquirers and students.

Our courses are thoroughly tested and increasingly popular. Notwithstanding the world war, which has affected our work in many parts of the world, the absorption of the people in the prosperous business conditions in our country, and the opposition of destructive criticism, large gains were made last year over any previous year. Our courses will satisfy your needs.

Write for Full Particulars to

The Moody Bible Institute

153-163 Institute Place

Dept. 3

Chicago, Illinois

WE OFFER THESE EIGHT COURSES

Synthetic Bible Study

—a fascinating study of the contents of the whole Bible,
"really in a class by itself."

Practical Christian Work

—for soul winners and workers in exceptional forms of Christian service.

Bible Doctrine

—a biblical course in the great doctrines of the Christian faith.

Bible Chapter Summary

—a unique method of becoming acquainted with every chapter of the Bible.

Introductory Bible Course

—true to its name.

Evangelism

—nothing in modern evangelism overlooked.

Christian Evidences

—an old subject brought up to date.

THE SCOFIELD BIBLE

CORRESPONDENCE COURSE

—a scholarly, comprehensive, tested for a quarter of a century, and taken already by ten thousand students, is still presented as the most comprehensive course in Bible study ever offered by correspondence.

1917 ATLAS With New War Maps Given FREE

To the readers of Christian Workers Magazine who take advantage of this offer now made in connection with

Webster's New International

 THE ONLY GRAND PRIZE (Highest Award) given to dictionaries at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition was granted to Webster's New International and the Merriam Series for superiority of educational merit.

This New Creation The MERRIAM WEBSTER

A Complete Reference Library in Dictionary Form—with nearly 3,000 pages, and type matter equivalent to a 15-Volume Encyclopedia, all in a single volume, in Rich, Full Red Leather Binding, can now be secured by readers of THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE on the following remarkably easy terms:

The entire work in full leather (with 1917 Atlas)

DELIVERED for $1.00

and easy payments thereafter of only a few cents a week
(In United States and Canada)

ON SUPERIOR INDIA PAPER

REDUCED ONE HALF

(In Thickness and Weight)

INDIA-PAPER EDITION

Printed on thin, opaque, strong, superior India paper. It has an excellent printing surface, resulting in remarkably clear impressions of type and illustrations. What a satisfaction to own the New Merriam Webster in a form so light and so convenient to use! This edition is one-half the thickness and less than one-half the weight of the regular edition. Size 12 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. x 9 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. x 2 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. Weight, 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ lbs.

Regular-Paper Edition

Printed on strong book paper of the highest quality. Size 12 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. x 9 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. x 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. Weight, 16 lbs.

Both Editions are printed from the same plates and indexed.

Over 400,000 Vocabulary Terms, and, in addition, 12,000 Biographical Names, nearly 30,000 Geographical Subjects, besides thousands of other References. Nearly 3,000 Pages, Over 6,000 Illustrations.

"To have this work in the home is like sending the whole family to college"

The only dictionary with the New Divided Page, characterized as "A Stroke of Genius."

THE ATLAS

Is the 1917 "New Reference Atlas of the World," containing nearly 200 pages, with 128 pages of maps, beautifully printed in colors, with marginal reference indexes, late Census Figures, Parcel-Post Guide, New War Maps, etc., all handsomely bound in red cloth, size 10 $\frac{1}{4}$ x 13 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.

 To those who respond at once we will send a copy of "Dictionary Wrinkles," containing an amusing "Test in Pronunciation," (with key) entitled "The Americanization of Carver," and also a "Red Facsimile Booklet" of interesting questions with references to their answers.

Mail this coupon at once to
G. & C. MERRIAM CO.
Springfield, Mass.

Publishers of Genuine-Webster Dictionaries for over 70 years.

Home Office

(Coupon)

G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Springfield, Mass.

Please send me, free of all obligation or expense, a copy of "Test in Pronunciation," also "Red Facsimile Booklet," with specimen pages of India and regular paper and terms of your Christian Workers Magazine free Atlas offer on the "Webster's NEW International Dictionary."

Name.....

Address.....

PUBLICATIONS OF BIBLIOTHECA SACRA COMPANY

Recent Books of Dr. G. Frederick Wright

Story of My Life and Work

476 pages, 12mo, cloth, $2.00 postpaid

See editorial book review by Dr. Gray on page 101.

In addition to an extremely interesting autobiography, this work contains an effective summary of Professor Wright's accomplishments in defense of the Bible.

"The author is probably the best known exponent among American theologians of the movement to reconcile science with dogma. For his science Dr. Wright has not had to go to other men."—New York Evening Post.

Scientific Confirmations of Old Testament History

3d ed., 450 pages, 40 illustrations, 12mo, $2.00

"For a long time to come every one who has to write upon the Deluge, or touch that wider subject of the attitude of the Old Testament to the phenomena of nature, will require to know what is written in this book."—The Expository Times.

Origin and Antiquity of Man

500 pages, 42 illustrations, 12mo, $2.00

"The book is popular in style, and will hold the attention of the reader on any page to which he opens, while an orderly perusal of the volume is sure to earn for it the appellation of the romance of science."—Springfield Republican.

The Ice Age in North America and Its Bearings Upon the Antiquity of Man

New, thoroughly revised, and greatly enlarged (Fifth) edition. 783 pages, 200 illustrations, 8vo, $5.00

"Its lucid presentation of the subject has made it popular among students, and it is the most convenient compendium in existence of the features of the glacial period."—Professor CHARLES H. HITCHCOCK.

Works of Harold M. Wiener, Esq.

ESSAYS IN PENTATEUCHAL CRITICISM. 255 pages. 8vo, cloth, $1.50 postpaid. The Coup de Grâce to the Wellhausen Critics.

THE ORIGIN OF THE PENTATEUCH. 150 pages. 8vo, paper. 40 cents, postpaid. A Comprehensive Answer to the Wellhausen Critics.

PENTATEUCHAL STUDIES. 350 pages. 8vo, cloth, $2.00 postpaid. The Wellhausen Critics in extremis.

20% off till Dec. 15, 1917, on direct book orders.

Full catalogue sent on application to

BIBLIOTHECA SACRA COMPANY
Oberlin, Ohio

OUR BOOK PRICES NOT INCREASING

To be Convinced—Read this Advertisement

Notwithstanding the fact that the Publishers owing to increased cost of material used in making books, have raised their prices from 15% to 25%, we are able to offer our customers some extraordinary values in books bought by us in large quantities at prices far below the actual cost to produce.

A glance at this list of unusual titles by well known authors will prove this statement beyond contradiction.

All prices include delivery charges to you. It will pay you to buy now and to buy liberally while prices are so greatly reduced.

Send for our CATALOGUE of Book Bargains. It will mean a big saving to you on your book purchases.

NOTE OUR BIG REDUCTIONS.

Every book new and guaranteed perfect. For reference—this magazine.

Author	Title	Regular Price	Our Postpaid Price
Donny, Jas.—The Atonement.....		$1.00	$0.50
Wood—Adult Bible Class Study.....		.75	.35
Gibson, J. M.—Ages Before Moses.....		1.00	.40
Mitchell—Critical Handbook Greek New Test.....		2.50	.75
Garvie—Christian Certainty Amid Modern Perplexity.....		1.00	.60
Dods, Marcus—Christ and Man.....		1.50	.65
Haering—The Christian Faith, 2 vols.....		6.00	3.25
Gladden, W. M.—Church and Parish Problems.....		2.00	.50
Jones, J. D.—The Gospel of Sovereignty.....		1.50	.60
Smith, David—The Historic Jesus.....		1.00	.45
Hodges—The Heresy of Cain.....		1.00	.50
Hodges—Human Nature of the Saints.....		1.00	.50
Farrar, Dean—History of Interpretation.....		2.00	.85
Barton—Heart of the Christian Message.....		1.25	.35
Hutton—If God Be for Us.....		.75	.35
Hutton—Weapons of our Warfare.....		1.00	.35
Banks, J. A.—Immortal Songs.....		3.00	.90
Ramsay, W. M.—Luke the Physician.....		2.00	1.15
Ramsay, W. M.—Letters Seven Churches of Asia.....		2.00	1.15
Ramsay, W. M.—Cities of Paul.....		2.00	1.15
Ramsay, W. M.—Pauline Studies.....		2.00	1.15
Bruce, A. B.—Miraculous Element of Gospels.....		1.50	1.00
Bruce, A. B.—Parabolic Teachings.....		1.50	1.00
Thomas—Mysteries of Grace.....		1.50	.60
Peters—Modern Christianity.....		1.50	.45
Greig, David—Makers of American Republic.....		2.00	.55
(A Splendid Book of Patriotic Suggestions)
Ellinwood—Oriental Religions.....		1.50	.55
MacArthur—Old Book and the Old Faith.....		1.50	.50
Campbell—Paul the Mystic.....		1.50	.45
Thompson—Peace, Perfect Peace.....		1.00	.40
Stock—Plain Talks on Pastoral Epistles.....		1.50	.50
Kelman—The Road of Life—2 vols.....		2.50	1.50
Smith—Religion in the Making.....		1.25	.40
Roman Catholicism Capitulating.....		1.50	.50
Gordon, Geo. A.—Revelation and the Ideal.....		1.50	.55
Deissmann—St. Paul.....		3.50	1.50
Hill, A. C.—Sword of the Lord.....		1.35	.55
Hill, A. C.—Shall We Do Without Jesus.....		1.35	.55
Fairbairn, A. M.—Studies in Religion and Theology.....		3.50	.95
Speer, Robt.—Some Great Leaders.....		1.50	.60
Edwards—Things to Grip.....		1.00	.40
Bayne, Peter—Testimony of Christ to Christianity.....		.75	.35
Smith, David—Unwritten Sayings of Our Lord.....		1.00	.40
Forsyth—The Work of Christ.....		1.50	.55
Thomas, Griffith—The Work of the Ministry.....		1.50	.65
Kuyper—Great Work on Holy Spirit.....		3.00	1.90
Stalker, Jas.—The Atonement.....		1.00	.55

Author	Title	Regular Price	Our Postpaid Price
Forsyth—Cruciality of the Cross.....		$1.35	$0.55
Macmillan—The Divine Artist.....		1.00	.50
Selby—The Divine Craftsman.....		1.00	.55
Stewart—Eden and Gethsemane.....		1.25	.55
Brown—God's Garden.....		1.25	.50
Nicoll—The Incarnate Saviour.....		1.00	.50
Nicoll—The Lamp of Sacrifice.....		1.00	.50
Welsh—Man to Man.....		1.25	.50
Southouse—Men of the Beatitudes.....		1.00	.50
Selby—The Miracles of Jesus.....		1.50	.65
Matheson—Representative Women of the Bible.....		1.00	.60
Morrison—The Return of the Angels.....		1.35	.75
Clow—The Secret of the Lord.....		1.50	.60
Jackson—The Teaching of Jesus.....		1.25	.60
Watkinson—The Supreme Conquest.....		1.00	.50
Nicoll—The Expository Treasury of Children's Sermons; a large octavo volume.....		5.00	3.25
Jones, J. D.—The Hope of the Gospel.....		1.50	.65
Forsyth—Principle of Authority.....		3.00	.90
Munhall—Convert and His Relations.....		1.00	.45
Stalker—Ethics of Jesus.....		2.00	.85
Lathrop—How a Man Grows.....		1.00	.35
Patton—How to Live the Christian Life.....		.75	.35
McGee—Jesus, the World Teacher.....		1.25	.45
Smith—The Magnetism of Christ.....		1.50	.50
Southouse—Making of Simon Peter.....		1.00	.50
Matheson—Message of Hope.....		1.00	.60
Watson—Perfect Manhood.....		1.00	.45
Donehue—Apooraphal and Legendary Life of Christ.....		2.50	.75
Bruce—Humiliation of Christ.....		1.50	.70
Forsyth—Missions in Church and State.....		1.50	.65
Brace—Gesta Christi.....		1.50	.75
Wright—Moral Condition of the Child.....		1.00	.35
Beet—Last Things.....		1.25	.50
Carre—Paul's Doctrine of Redemption.....		1.25	.55
Warfield—The Saviour of the World.....		1.25	.45
LaFontaine—The Four Evangelists in Classic Art—Illustrated.....		2.00	.75
Lawrence, Stone, etc.—Men and Religion.....		.50	.25
Jones, Sam—Sermons—Lightning Flashes.....		1.00	.50
Stoddard—New Test. in Literature and Life.....		2.25	1.25
Stoddard—Old Test. in Literature and Life.....		2.25	1.35
Horton—Great Issues.....		1.50	.40
Knowing—Testimony of St. Paul to Christ.....		2.50	.75
Murray—Bible Prophecies and Plain Man.....		1.25	.55
Thomas, Griffith—The Work of the Ministry.....		1.50	.75
MacLeod—Afflictions of the Righteous.....		1.50	.65
Speer—Some Great Leaders in World Movement.....		1.25	.65
Menzies—History of Religions.....		1.50	.85
Royce—Problems of Christianity—2 vols.....		3.50	2.25

VERY SPECIAL—

To any reader of this magazine who will order any five books from the above list, we will send free a new copy of Fear God and Take Your Own Part, by Theodore Roosevelt—a book formerly published at $1.50 and one of the best books published in years.

The Westminster Press

509 So. Wabash Avenue
Chicago, Ill.

Chicago Depository—W. P. Blessing, Manager

The Christian Workers Commentary

on the Old and New Testaments

By James M. Gray, D. D., Dean of the Moody Bible Institute

A Valuable Help in Bible Study

Regular Price $2.25

Dr. James M. Gray

Dr. Gray has taken particular care in the preparation of this commentary, so that the reader or student will find that it does not usually refer a second time to subjects which it has already touched upon, and the comments do not repeat themselves to any appreciable extent. This volume is to assist the student in his study of the Bible, and it is recommended that the reading of the Bible be done in an orderly and scientific way, not in small detachments, but in large and generous portions. Beginners in the study of the Bible are carried along in such a way as not to spend much time on isolated texts or be too curious about the difficulties and perplexities it presents, but rather seek a general and comprehensive knowledge of its contents as a whole. Prayer has accompanied the study and explanation here given of every book of the inspired record, and with confidence it may be added that the Holy Spirit, who has helped in the compilation, will help in the study of it in the case of all who call upon Him for His aid.

The Commentary contains 447 pages, in a handy volume size, and is arranged in sections, with questions for use at Family Altars, and in Adult Bible Classes. It contains homiletics and expository suggestions for young preachers, also an index of texts and themes receiving special attention.

Dr. C. I. Scofield, Editor of the Scofield Reference Bible, says: "Dr. Gray brought to the task of producing such a book the powers of their maturity that have made him one of the foremost Bible teachers of the English-speaking world. Clearness of thought; the mastery of condensed expression without the sacrifice of lucidity; immense industry; adequate scholarship; thoroughness; a joyous trust in the truth of the Scriptures; a spiritual mind, and that sense of relative values of proportion, of what is supremely important where all is precious—these qualities, schooled and disciplined in above thirty years of Bible teaching, have made this book possible. I cannot forbear expressing my earnest wish that every possessor of the Scofield Reference Bible, in the preparation of which Dr. Gray was my valued counselor, might also have this great Commentary."

We offer this Commentary with a year's subscription to The Christian Workers Magazine, new or renewal, for only $3.25, or to anyone who will send us four new yearly subscriptions, we will send a copy of this Commentary, postpaid.

$3.25

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

163 Institute Place, CHICAGO, ILL.

A Good Bible Dictionary

We now offer the Smith-Peloubet Bible Dictionary in genuine flexible French morocco, with patent thumb index (regular price $2.25), with one year's subscription to The Christian Workers Magazine, for $3.00. Almost every reader or user of the Bible knows Smith's Bible Dictionary. For many years it has been the standard dictionary of the Bible, and with the well-known revision by Dr. Peloubet, this edition has been in larger demand than any other. If you do not possess a Bible Dictionary, you can hardly afford to miss an opportunity like this.

Or we will send to you a copy of this dictionary postpaid, if you will send us three new yearly subscriptions to

$3.00 The Christian Workers Magazine
163 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

WORLD FAMOUS FOLDING ORGANS BEST ON SALE

For Missionaries, Evangelists, Local Preachers, Christian Workers, and Music Teachers, in Foreign Lands, Churches, Sunday Schools, Public Schools, Hospitals, Jails, Factories, Open Air, Tent Work, and wherever Portable Organs are required.

ORGANS SHIPPED ON APPROVAL
GUARANTEED as represented or money REFUNDED
Pioneer Builders of Folding Organs

Constructed for all climates.

Supplied in Oak Case or Leatherette covered case.

Write us before you buy. We can SAVE YOU MONEY

Organs From $15 UP

Weight 17 lbs. and up

Write today for FREE CATALOGUE. Mention this adv.
BILHORN BROS., 136 W. Lake St., Chicago Ill. U. S.

Form the Practice of Daily Devotion by using "Worship at Home and Songs of the Christian Centuries."

Edited by Rev. Wm. E. Barton.

25 cents per copy, 5 copies for $1.00.

PURITAN PRESS

SUBLETTE, ILL.

A BOOK for SINGERS

Systematic studies in tone production, "Open Throat Method," with full instructions how to practice. The book will be mailed on receipt of $1.

A. FRANCKE, Voice Builder

819 Lyon & Healy Bldg., Dept. C, Chicago, Ill.

Bible Readers and Christian Workers Self-Help Hand Book

Short and plain articles by nearly 100 experienced Christian writers. Just the Help over hard places you have been looking for. How to lead, teach, testify, pray and grow. Young Christians helper, experienced workers' guide. Pkt. size, 128 pgs., Red Cloth, 25c, Mor. 35c, postpd. Agts. wntd.
GEO. W. NOBLE, Monon Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

TYPEWRITERS

Special Prices to Ministers and Bible Students
All makes, Underwoods, Remingtons, Smiths, Monarch, Royal, Hammond, Corona, Blickensderfer, etc. Have sold over 300 Typewriters to students of The Moody Bible Inst., McCormick Theological Seminary, Bethany Bible School and others.

Edward La Zelle, 515 N. Clark Street
CHICAGO, ILL.
Phone Superior 4806.

Illustrations will add, not only to the entertainment but to the educational value of lectures and sermons

Illustrate your talks with the

Bausch and Lomb BALOPTICON THE PERFECT STEREOPTICON

The Balopticon's new gas-filled Mazda lamp is greatly superior to the old style A. C. arc in that it furnishes more evenly distributed light to the very edges of the screen at less current cost and is entirely automatic. Anyone can operate it.

Models of the Balopticon for the projection of slides only may be purchased as low as $26.50. Models for opaque objects, such as charts, photos, colored prints, etc., are priced at $35.00 up. Combined Models which may be used for both forms of projection are listed from $45.00 up.

Let us send you our illustrated price list of Balopticons—it will help you to select the right model.

Bausch and Lomb Optical Co.
599 St. Paul St. Rochester, N. Y.

New York Washington
Chicago San Francisco

Leading American Makers of Photographic and Ophthalmic
Lenses, Microscopes, Projection
Lanterns, Stereo-Prism
Binoculars and other High-
Grade Optical Products

REVELATION

REVELATION, the last book in the Bible, is swinging into view as current history approaches the imminent day when Prophecy will become History.

1,000 and more persons have experienced great satisfaction in the study of our two courses in Bible Prophecy.

Series I—20 Lessons in Bible Prophecy...$1.00

Series II—20 Lessons in Revelation..... 1.00

Our system is simple and flexible to suit the time and opportunity of individuals differently situated. We do all the correspondence after you write the first letter enclosing order. The usual plan is to send

A Lesson Sheet Each Week For 20 Weeks but you can have two a week, one each two weeks, or all at one time, or any way you like.

INTERPRETATION is sane and practical; no foolish theories, no setting dates. Devout, pre-millennial, evangelical. Recommended by ministers of many denominations who have been enrolled as our students, and who have repeated the lessons to their congregations and organized classes for study.

INTELLIGENT understanding of the events of our days requires a comprehensive grasp of the prophecies. These courses are intended for that purpose. We suggest Series I be ordered first, and that Series II follow immediately.

UNION BIBLE SEMINARY
WESTFIELD, INDIANA

Scripture Texts and Wall Mottoes

Latest and Best Designs in Both Imported and Made-in-America Mottoes

These Mottoes are artistic, stimulating and helpful decorations for the home, church, office and institution. There is a place in every room for a Scripture Wall Text. OUR AGENT'S PLAN offers opportunity for profitable SPARE TIME WORK. Send for NEW 1917-18 CATALOG and terms to Agents.

Reliance Motto House

120 W. 14th Street

New York City

WHAT MAKES A HOME?

There is a lot of difference between simply a house and a home.

Just because you have built a house and furnished it with convenient arrangements for eating and sleeping, and the other requirements of every-day life, it does not necessarily follow that you have founded a home. OUR BOOKLET

HOME and the FIREPLACE

Explains the difference. Let us send you this Booklet Gratis—A mine of information pertaining to FIREPLACES and HEARTH FURNITURE as well.

Colonial Fireplace Company, 4621 W. 12th St., Chicago

Listening for the Shout!

A Booklet on the Second Coming of Christ. Just off the press.. 10c

The World's Saturday Night.....10c

Down Grade10c

The Coming Storm10c

Postage 1 cent each.

D. R. Raiser, Tiffin, Ohio

Dr. Robt. M. Russell, Director Dept. of Bible Doctrine and Homiletics, Moody Bible Institute, says: "I have gone through your book with considerable care, and am glad to commend it without reservation to the reading public."

Outline Studies in the Book of Revelation and Key to the Chart of the Ages

Second Edition, Revised and Enlarged
By Rev. C. W. M. Turner

Hundreds of copies of first edition sold before book came off the press to those who had heard the author lecture on the subject.

Book is 6x9 ins. Contains 198 pages, 4 maps and 3 half-tone engravings. Neatly printed on antique laid paper, and substantially bound in blue cloth, silk finish, with cover design in gilt; also bound in paper, cover design in blue.

$1.00 in cloth and 57c in paper postpaid.

THE BIBLE INSTITUTE COLPORTAGE ASS'N, 822 N. LA SALLE ST.
CHICAGO, ILL.

Letter No. 11

Short Cut to the World's Peace

The Salvation of the Jews means the Salvation of the world.—Rom. 11:15.

Dear Friends:

The Christian people are nobly responding to the call of Jewish evangelization. The Jew is the palsied man of Mark 2:3. Be sure to read about that helpless Jew. When the Lord Jesus saw the "faith" of those who brought the sufferer to Him, the palsied Jew was saved and healed. Verse 5.

The New Covenant Mission to the Jews, Reed and Crawford Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa., is, under God, bringing the Jew to Christ.

But let Him see your faith also.

Our activities touch many Jewish centers abroad the land.

Our magazine, the "Glory of Israel" is a 32 page bi-monthly, of recognized merit. It will make you acquainted with the scope of our work and that of others. Choice articles and the latest news from the Jewish world. Sent free to our contributors. Subscription price otherwise $1.00 a year. Make a beginning now. Take hold of the corners of opportunity for Israel's salvation. By prayer, sacrifice and a contribution, small or large, strengthen our financial corner. Your favors will receive personal attention from

Yours in the Lord's service in behalf of Israel,

(REV.) MAURICE RUBEN, General Supt.

For your convenience we append the scale below:

I subscribe to the work of the New Covenant Mission the amount marked with an X.

Cash	Pledge	$500	$250	$100	$50	$25	$10	$5	$2.50	$2	$1
------	--------	-------	-------	-------	------	------	------	-----	--------	-----	-----

Name..... Address.....

MUSIC

"God is its author, and not man; He laid the key-note of all harmonies; He planned all perfect combinations, and He made us so that we could hear and understand."

Whether a "talking machine" costs $15 or $3,000 it becomes a useless cabinet when minus the reproducer. Any musical VALUE depends upon how well the music from the records is reanimated.

THE ELLIS MELODIOUS REPRODUCER

"is wonderful in making a machine more LIFE LIKE than before it was applied—every voice is individualized even to the subtle tones of the instrumental accompaniments."

Owners of talking machines should write for A LITTLE "needle angle card," as it contains some valuable suggestions for the better care of talking machines and records. With it you will receive a leaflet describing the ELLIS melodious REPRODUCER.

Address mail, please,

J. H. ELLIS, P. O. Box 882, Office, 410 Jefferson St. Milwaukee, Wis.

Your friends who love good music will thank you for this advertisement.

60

To Eternity.

PAUL RADER.

ARTHUR W. MCKEE.

1. The riv-er of Thy grace is flow-ing free, We launch up-on its
 2. The breezes of Thy love are flow-ing free, They tell Thy love to
 3. Thy spir-it calls to all come home to-day, Come back and find the depths to sail to Thee; In the o-ccean of Thy love we soon shall all im-man-i-ty; They are sing-ing of the blood of Cal-va-Sav-our while you may; Find that Je-sus is the life, the truth, the be, We are sing-ing to e-ter-ni-ty.
 ry, Mak-ing white thro' all o-ter-ni-ty. Earth-ly joys can-not com-way, Lead-ing, guid-ing, to e-ter-ni-ty.
 Chorus.
 pare with all the glo-ry, When our long-ing eyes shall see Thy face, We shall have Thy fel-low-ship for-er-er, In the splen-dor of the throne of grace.

Copyright, 1916, by Arthur W. McKee, owner.

Mr. McKee's Favorite Song

"ETERNITY"

A FAVORITE SONG

FROM

TABERNACLE HYMNS

Edited and Compiled by D. B. Towner, Mus. Doc., and Arthur W. McKee, Soloist and Chorister with Paul Rader.

Try this on your piano and you will be pleased with it. It is so easy to sing the songs in Tabernacle Hymns the young people who learn them can sing the words over and over again without the books, and it brightens up the meetings, so there is no dullness where these books are used. The best way to find out, is to order a sample copy or two and try the songs for yourself. Single copy postpaid, cloth 35 cents; manila, 25 cents. Per 100 not prepaid, cloth $28.00; manila $18.00.

You take no risk in buying Tabernacle Hymns because the songs have been tested out in the great Moody Tabernacle by Paul Rader, and he highly commends the book. Your money back if you are not satisfied with the book, if you return it in ten days.

Special rates to evangelists.

We also have variations to Six Old Familiar Tunes for the piano, written by Professor Foss Fellers, for 50 cents.

TABERNACLE PUBLISHING CO.

Room 312, 14 West Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

Israel Approaches Armageddon

The darkest hour in Jewish history is near. The day of Jacob's trouble will plunge the nation into an abyss of anguish beside which the present war will be but a shadow. In that day it will be too late for any Jew to be saved through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ—the door will be shut.

Don't you think that fairness to the nation requires us to give the Jews the Gospel message now, while it is yet time? Ought we not to show a heart of pity for this poor benighted people, by showering upon them now an overwhelming Gospel testimony? And will not such an act on our part hasten the coming of Him whom our hearts long to see soon?

We ought to have greatly enlarged resources. Won't you co-work with us? You can't preach to the Jews; but you can pray for them; and you can give of your means to help forward the work. We need so much your prayers, your sympathy, your help. May we have them?

Your gift, be it a thousand dollars, or one dollar, will be indeed welcome, and will of course bring you our literature. Or we will gladly send you literature free, at your request.

Williamsburg Mission to the Jews

Station A

Brooklyn, N. Y.

THE Christian Workers Magazine

October, 1917

Editorial Notes

"Therefore being justified by faith, let us have peace with God."—Romans 5:1 (Revised Version).

The battle of New Orleans which is regarded as one of the most remarkable victories in our military history, was fought two weeks after peace had been signed at Ghent. It was before the days of fast mails and cablegrams, and the combatants were unaware of the new relations in which they stood to one another and the awful loss which they might have saved.

The circumstance finds a sad parallel in the spiritual realm. God and man have become reconciled through the blood of the everlasting covenant. Peace has been made by the Cross of Jesus Christ, but man continues in his opposition to God as if it were not.

Nor is it always because he has not heard the good news. He has heard it but he does not believe it. O, if men knew that a full and free forgiveness and justification were offered them in Christ, would they not cease their strife, that strife which expresses itself in sin, and be at peace?

Dear reader, we urge you to believe it, and to enter into the enjoyment and the power of the new life which may be yours today. Follow in the footsteps of Martin Luther, whose personal deliverance from the chains of spiritual darkness is being celebrated this month. The doctrine that "the just shall live by faith" brought this deliverance to him, because he received it as God's message to his soul. Think of the millions who have followed in his train in these four centuries! Will you not join the glad company today?

✻ ✻ ✻

Perhaps it were better to call it, The Protestant Reformation Anniversary, for it marks on the thirty-first day of this month the 400th anniversary of its rise. On that day the young German monk, Martin Luther, posted on the door of the Church of All Saints, in Wittenberg his ninety-five theses denouncing the errors of the Church of Rome, which initiated a movement changing the course of history. It did more than this, it broke the shackles that fettered multitudes of souls and set them free in the truth of the gospel of salvation.

We are glad at the revival of Lutheranism which has taken place in this anniversary year, and we trust it will prove to be also a revival of the life of God in the hearts of multitudes of men and women in and out of that great historic church.

In an informing article on the subject the "Congregationalist" (Boston) offers a timely word as to the value of Lutheranism in helping the church at large to maintain a proper appreciation of the place and value of the Christian sacraments and other institutions of the church. During the past few years the wave of evangelism in this country has carried us away from a suitable recognition of the place of forms and ceremonies in the public worship of God, who desires all things to be done "decently and in order." If Lutheranism could quicken our feeling of reverence in public worship; if it could help us to give a more prominent place to the reading and exposition of the Word of God; if it could elevate the character of our sacred music, it would be doing a good deal just now for the strengthening of the Christian church.

How deeply we all regret that Germany, the home of Martin Luther and of Protestantism is not where she can suitably recognize and advance this anniversary occasion. But we believe with our contemporary named above, that "there must be still in that land a great number of men and women who have not forfeited their right to be considered the spiritual descendants of the great reformer." We therefore echo the desire of our brother editor that the occasion be made an "opportunity of laying, through prayer and exhortation of the great spiritual truths we still hold in common, the foundations of the reconciliation which, please God, shall be permanent."

For the Lutheran church itself, we say

"Amen" to the Litany suggested by the World's Evangelical Alliance:

"In this 400th year of the Reformation, we beseech thee to bring back to the simplicity that is in Christ those who hold the heritage that the just shall live by faith, delivering them from vain philosophy and all assaults of the devil. Grant thy grace, Lord."

✽ ✽ ✽

The subject of this editorial note is suggested by reading "The World War," by Alfred E. Knight, who points out more clearly than most writers: the moral causes leading up to the of Prussianism present unparalleled conflict. These are three:

Prussian militarism under the influence of the Kaiser; back of that the aggressive atheism and nature philosophy of Nietzsche; and back of that again German pedagogy, by which is meant the teaching emanating from German universities, and what in this country would be called theological seminaries.

Our own land is starting just where Germany did in the breaking down of faith in the Bible as the revelation of God. Our universities and some of our theological seminaries are the offenders in this case, and how long it may be before their infidel absurdities shall issue in aggressive atheism, no one can tell. But when that day comes, there will be nothing to hinder just such a militarism here as that which now horrifies us in central Europe.

Faithful teachers and preachers of the Word of God, Christian colleges and orthodox seminaries are doing more than our legislators to hold back the tide of war. Just now we are not thinking of the present war into which circumstances beyond our control have forced us to enter, but a more awful war likely to follow it, unless men heed the warning of God and repent and obey his laws.

To invest money in liberty bonds and give for the Red Cross are patriotic and philanthropic duties, but there is a duty in the use of our means which takes precedence of both of them, and that is the support of Christian education, Bible teaching and evangelism. Our appeal is to Christian givers to remember the "home base" in this particular, and to "strengthen the things which remain" against the unprecedented strain soon to be experienced.

✽ ✽ ✽

It is said that this is what the Pacific Coast, and especially San Francisco, is trying to do.

"It is almost incredible," one of the scientific men of California is quoted as saying, that business interests of that state "should willingly and weakly, year after year, allow a permanent threat to hang over their very existence, without making any intelligent effort to study the subject or to meet the problem."

The people there have unwittingly drifted into a false attitude. They are afraid to frighten away capital and people. The real estate agents never heard of earthquakes. The newspapers have joined in a conspiracy of silence about them. When the geologists tried to gather data on the subject they were told to "forget it," and "cut it out," etc.

And so it came about that "when the earthquake of 1906 broke the water-mains and at the same time set fire to the city, the people were entangled in a snare of their own weaving."

So are there men and women who are trying to ignore sin and its consequences. But the judgment can not be ignored, hell is a fact that can not be "cut out." The wiser thing to do is to meet the problem and settle it. Only, unlike the earthquake, we do not have to study it out for ourselves. God has done that in the person and work of His Son, Jesus Christ. He is the solution of our eternal difficulty, for "whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

We urge our unsaved readers to learn a lesson from the folly of ignoring the earthquake. Rational beings should not bury their heads in the sand, and imagine, like the ostrich, that danger has been escaped. Submit to Jesus Christ today, and be ready when the crisis comes. Nay, there is no crisis for the man of faith. His crisis was forever past when he came to Jesus.

✽ ✽ ✽

We heartily believe in athletics for young people, and older people also who are able to engage in them. We believe in them because they make for a sound body, and a sound body for a sound mind, and a sound mind for a sound appreciation and expression of the Christian faith. We are to glorify God in our body which is His, and other things being allowed for, we can glorify Him better when we are well, and strong and hearty than when the opposite is the case.

Nevertheless we have never believed in intercollegiate athletics. The advertisement thus given to college life has not been wholesome in our judgment; and without intention on the part of its promoters, it has been deceptive concerning both the physical and intellectual advantages to undergraduates.

We are interested to see that some of our college presidents are now boldly taking this view. Dr. Garfield, of Williams, some time since expressed the opinion that while the colleges were annually graduating a few men of extraordinary athletic ability, they were graduating many men of undeveloped intellectual power. In athletics also, while a few were highly trained, the majority were not trained at all.

To the same purport, the "New York Evening Post" quotes President Foster at the National Educational Association, as saying that there were not enough available intercollegiate athletics to meet the need of the government for its training camps for officers. Thousands of seniors and recent graduates were unable to pass the physical examinations, because a majority of them had been without incentives and equipment for athletic training. In other words, certain colleges which made much of intercollegiate games spend about sixty times as much money for each member of a team, as they spend for the games of each of the other students.

The conclusion of Dr. Foster is that the only policy through which a college can meet its obligations in this regard is to have no intercollegiate games, but inexpensive athletics in moderation for all students, especially for those that need them most.

We believe such a policy generally carried out would make for the widest benefit, intellectually, morally, and spiritually, to the coming generation, and hence to the government and the Christian church.

The Menace of Mormonism

Editorial

IT IS doubtful if many of our readers realize the seriousness of the Mormon menace. We are not thinking of its political, but its religious side as it stands related to the salvation of souls.

The thought has been brought before us recently by a pamphlet on the second coming of Christ which the propagandists of that cult have been circulating extensively after their habit. There is much Scripture in it by which the unwary easily may be entrapped, but now and then we come upon an interpretation of Scripture which exhibits the cloven foot.

For example, Revelation 14:6, 7, which speaks of the angel flying in the midst of heaven "having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth," is applied to Joseph Smith. Early in the 19th century this lad, not over eighteen years of age, is said to have received a vision of a book written upon gold plates giving an account of the former inhabitants of the American continent and containing also the fulness of the everlasting gospel as delivered to them by the Saviour. This book was deposited in a certain place and with it two stones fastened to a breastplate constituting the Urim and Thummin. By means of these latter the prophets were enabled to translate the book which in Joseph Smith's hands became the book of Mormon.

While this book was in course of construction a very important event took place—no less indeed than the coming of the messenger to prepare the way of the Lord. This messenger descended from heaven in a cloud and laid his hand upon Joseph Smith and his associate, Oliver Cowdery, and conferred upon them the priesthood of Aaron with "the keys of the ministering of angels and of the gospel of repentance and of baptism by immersion." This messenger was none other than John the Baptist who acted under the direction of Peter, James and John, the apostles of Christ. Subsequently these three themselves came to Smith and Cowdery conferring upon them the higher order of priesthood, namely Melchizedec, which "gave them the keys of all the spiritual blessings of the church of Christ, and the power and authority to organize the church and the kingdom of God upon the earth."

But this is not all. A few years later Elijah the prophet came to them in fulfilment of Malachi 4:5, 6, making known to them the doctrine of salvation for the dead. This doctrine was to the effect that the millions who have died without Christ are not eternally lost. The gospel is preached to them in the spirit world and on condition of accepting it they may be saved, provided that the outward ordinances of the gospel are administered vicariously for them upon the earth by their relatives. This in their judgment is what the Spirit of God means in Malachi by the "turning of the hearts of the fathers to the children and the hearts of the children to the fathers."

The book of Mormon teaches further that the two American continents are the land promised by Jacob and Moses unto Joseph and his seed in Genesis 49:22-26 and Deuteronomy 33:13-16. When this became known, and that among other things America is the place where the Zion of God should be built in the last days, "the children naturally became anxious to know where the city of Zion would be located." Therefore at the April conference of the church preceding his martyrdom, Joseph Smith professed that the whole of America is Zion, and that "wherever the elders should build up churches and tabernacles unto the Lord throughout the states, there should be a stake of Zion."

But we have forgotten something. The same day that Elijah came in fulfilment of Malachi's prophecy, which was April 3, 1836, the place being the Kirtland Temple, Ohio, Moses came also and committed the keys of the gathering of Israel from the four quarters of the earth. And it is because of this that "thousands have left their homes in the land of their birth and have cast in their lot with Latter-day Saints in America." They are thus testifying to the world that the hour of God's judgment is at hand and that they are seeking to be prepared for the coming of the Messiah.

The pamphlet from which the foregoing is quoted closes with a solemn warning that Satan is likely to oppose this teaching, and that the reader should be on his guard not to be deceived by falsehoods in circulation about the Latter-Day Saints.

It may be easy for some to smile at incredulity like this, and wonder who possibly could be led astray by such absurdities. But the same may be said of Roman Catholicism, of Spiritualism, of Christian Science, and for that matter of the whole foundation of Paganism. Very strong and intelligent people, as the world estimates things, are found among the supporters and propagandists of all these religions which can be explained only in the light of such passages of Holy Writ as Romans 1:21, 22, 28 and 2 Thessalonians 2:11, 12. In other words, when men fail to glorify God as God, they, as a judgment upon them, become vain in their imaginations and reasonings, and their senseless hearts become darkened. Professing themselves to be wise they become fools. They refuse to retain God in their knowledge and He then gives them up to a reprobate mind to do those things which are not fitting; or to put it in another way, he sends them a working of error or "a strong delusion that they should believe a lie."

While this editorial was in process of writing there came into our hands a similar one from "The Christian Statesman," entitled, "Further Mormon Aggression," showing to our great astonishment that the Oxford University Press is now publishing Mormon literature! And to make it still more serious is inserting it in the King James Version of the Bible between the Old and New Testaments. The American agent of the Oxford University Press is reported by that periodical as saying, that the publication had been continued for about two years because there had been no protest against it! We trust this may not much longer be the case, and that our reference to it as well as that of our contemporary may bring forth such a shower of protests as to impress that great publishing house with the error of its ways. Its New York office is 35 West 32nd Street.

Meditation

By Albert Simpson Reitz

Beneath the silent trees, through low-hung leaves,

I watched the West transform her evening gold

Into a robe of lavender and rose,
With which to drape the stately queen of night.

Above me in the branches thrushes sang
In notes supremely pure an evening psalm,
While all about me flowers lifted up
Their fragrance.

Such a sense of heav'nly peace
Surrounded me that I forgot the world
And all the turmoil of the rushing throng;
I saw the things invisible, the things
Eternal in the heavens. Eyes of faith
Beheld the day-dawn of His coming in
The cloud-heights full of glory. With a rush
Of longing I beheld the beauty of His presence as He reigned, the Prince of Peace.

But suddenly there smote the stillness sharp
Commands of "Column left! Attention! Halt!"
As practice squads drilled in the city streets,
And in a flash I saw this stricken world
Half-ruined by the ravages of war,
With millions hunger-crazed and desolate,
Where sorrows seemingly too great to be Assuaged this side the grave were taunting hearts
And ravished homes.

About me all was dark,
And quick confusion thronged my thoughts until There came the Word, "When these things come to pass,
Look up, for your redemption draweth nigh."

Once more His peace is in my heart and on My lips the prayer "Come quickly, Lord, yea, come
And reign, Thou great, eternal Prince of Peace."

"The Story of My Life and Work"

Editorial Book Review

WE HAVE just finished reading "The Story of My Life and Work," by G. Frederick Wright, D.D., LL.D., F. G. S. A. (Bibliotheca Sacra Company, Oberlin, O.), and a more interesting autobiography we have seldom read, though we have read many. It is as newsy and chatty as though its distinguished author sat opposite to you telling the story. The chief reason for its preparation was to keep in the foreground of the public consciousness the new arguments and recently discovered facts supporting conservative views as to the relation of science to the Bible. It does this, and does it so pleasurably and graphically that you forget the purpose while benefiting by the result.

I

The author was born in 1838 in northern New York on the border of Vermont, and hence was practically a New Englander. As his grandmother lived to be very old and he was her intimate companion, he had opportunities for learning at first hand of New England life prior to the Revolutionary War, whose descriptions enrich the opening pages of the volume. Incidentally, the circumstance illustrates the length of time through which evidence of the first order may be transmitted by tradition, and has a bearing not only upon the authenticity of the Gospels, but also upon the Pentateuch.

II

Reasons, partly religious and partly political, led to his going to Oberlin College rather than Middlebury or Dartmouth, and his story of the founding of that unique school of learning, his descriptions of its professors, including the great Finney, his recital of the thrilling events of the anti-slavery excitement just prior to the Civil War, and of the Civil War itself, in which he was a volunteer soldier, make a chapter of intense interest.

He tells several good stories of President Finney's eccentric remarks and actions, but adds that so great was his personality that nothing seemed out of place in what he said or did. One Sunday Professor Morgan was to preach for him in the college church, whose sermons, while always full of thought, rather lacked the clearness which characterized those of Finney. This brought out one of the latter's prayers before the sermon, when he asked the Lord to "help Brother Morgan to speak so simply that we can all understand him, and not have to stand on tiptoe to see what he means."

III

We wonder how many young ministers today on graduating from the theological seminary, select their field of labor in the way Dr. Wright did. Several churches were ready to call him, but for some reason or other, he scarcely knew what, he chose that which offered the smallest salary and about which he knew the least.

It was in a small town in northwestern Vermont near his birthplace. The salary was $400 per year, without a parsonage, and the parish was so scattered that he had to keep a horse. He had married, and he and his wife kept house in three small rooms upstairs in a building which was occupied "by one of my most active, officious and ill-balanced parishioners." Distinguished men often have modest beginnings.

There was an advantage in his small salary however, because, making a virtue of necessity, instead of taking expensive vacations, he got his recreation in studying the topography and geology of the interesting region in which he lived. Thus he became a local authority on the glacial deposits of that neighborhood, and began unconsciously to lay the foundation of the great work he afterward accomplished and the great reputation which has come to him.

At this point in the volume he draws an impressive mental picture of the "slow but majestic advance of that mighty engine of erosion, the glacial float, as it filled the St. Lawrence valley, projected itself southward between the Green Mountains and the Adirondacks, and finally overwhelmed their summits (leaving boulders on the top of Mount Washington) until it reached Staten Island, piling up immense moraines there and on Long Island, out of the debris it had gathered in its course."

G. Frederick Wright, D. D., LL. D.

IV

An unusual providence seemed to attend Dr. Wright during the whole course of his life, an illustration of which is presented in the next decade of his experience when he removed to Andover, Mass. Some of the older ministers there, aware of his interest in geological matters, commiserated him in having come to a locality which had nothing of interest in it of that nature. But it soon developed that he had been put down where one of the most important problems presented itself at the very back door of his parsonage, namely, a congeries of gravel ridges locally known as Indian Ridge. He carried on his observations on "blue Mondays" for about the space of three years, by which time he was able to establish a theory, since universally accepted, which connects those ridges with the closing stages of the great Ice Age.

The publication of his paper on this subject brought him favorably to the notice of scientific authorities of fame, including Clarence King, Asa Gray, Leslie, Dana and others, and finally led to a series of articles from his pen in the "Bibliotheca Sacra" contravening Darwinism. These elicited a letter from that savant himself, in which he said that the statement of his theory "was powerfully written and most clear."

Dr. Wright maintained what has become more and more evident as time has advanced, namely, that the variations in both plants and animals are much greater than Darwin had supposed; and that indeed, so many of them had to take place at once to make any one variation an advantage, that nothing less than design could account for them, hence a personal God.

It was while at Andover that he engaged, with others, in investigating paleolithic discoveries at Trenton, N. J., in which it was clearly proven that man existed on this continent before the close of the glacial epoch.

While there also he was encouraged by Professor Asa Gray and others, to utilize his familiarity with both science and the Bible to write a book on the evidences of Christianity which would meet a deeply felt want. The result was "The Logic of Christian Evidences," which has passed into six editions, and which we are pleased to notice in this way because we consider the advertisement of such literature a Christian duty. We might also name at this time, though they saw the light some years later, his "Scientific Aspects of Christian Evidences," and "Scientific Confirmations of Old Testament History," which should be at least in every pastor's library.

Another turning point in Dr. Wright's life, and another special providence occurred when after ten years at Andover, he was invited to take the chair of New Testament Language and Literature at Oberlin Theological Seminary. Professor Dana advised against his leaving the East and its centers of scientific investigation, but it soon transpired that the only place in the world where he could have carried on his glacial investigations was the very place to which he had now gone. The opportunity occurred under the auspices of the Western Reserve Historical Society, of Cleveland, which provided the funds for extending his explorations of the glacial boundary across Ohio and the states farther west. Later he went to Alaska on the same general errand, the results of which are embodied in a volume which we also recommend, and which is called, "The Ice Age in North America and Its Bearings on the Antiquity of Man." This work indicates a very recent date both for the glacial conditions and the volcanic activity in our Rocky Mountain region. Companion volumes to this by Dr. Wright are "Man and the Glacial Period," and "The Origin and Antiquity of Man."

V

One of the most interesting chapters in "The Story of My Life and Work," is that describing the author's shipwreck in Greenland (1894), when he was one of a party gotten up by Dr. Frederick A. Cook, later of North Pole notoriety. And, by the way, the versatility and courage of Dr. Cook as shown in rescuing the party, has ever left Dr. Wright very skeptical of the charge that this distinguished traveler never climbed Mt. McKinley.

Shepherd Playing on His Pipe, in Syria

Photo by Dr. G. F. Wright.

Dr. Wright's exploration of this region was thought sufficiently important to lead the Danish map-makers to name one of its mountain peaks after him as had been done previously in Alaska.

We wish space permitted to quote his testimony to the work of the Moravian and Lutheran missionaries among the Eskimos, or to describe a Sunday service at Ikamiut which he had the privilege to attend. Verily, the Siberia, and then went into Turkey and finally the Holy Land and Egypt, and so returning home.

We are obliged to cut out from our review illustrations of the rich humor with which the book abounds, and the amusing stories it records of foreign customs and the side-splitting situations to which they gave rise. But we can not omit Dr. Wright's testimony to the Japanese assimilation of western civilization, especially when he says that the professors in the universities of Japan know the literature of European and American science as fully as our own professors. A similar observation that impressed us was his reference to the Chinese inherent love for the beautiful which seemed to contradict a prev-

Banks of the Jordan Near the Bathing Place
Photo by Dr. G. F. Wright.

gospel "is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," of every condition and every clime, and its fruit everywhere is seen to be the same. What a demonstration of its divinity!

VI

Perhaps the one greatest event in our author's life was his trip across Asia, begun in 1899, when, accompanied by his son, and financed by a man of means interested in such work, he set out to determine the extent of glaciation in the central and northern parts of that continent. A large number of pages in the volume are taken up with this trip, and crowded with information, description, and the light and shade of travel as he passed through Japan, China, Mongolia, Manchuria, Russia, alent idea that the aesthetic is absent in the nature of that people. The poverty of the great mass of the Chinese people was forced upon his attention. Carpenters get the equivalent of eight cents a day, while ordinary workmen and sewing women get five cents. Of course, this is offset by the low cost of living, oatmeal selling for less than a cent a pound. The railroad through Manchuria was being laid by laborers who were receiving ten cents a day, and "it was no unusual thing to see a hundred of them at work without a stitch of clothes upon them."

We have heard a good deal about Siberian exile, but Dr. Wright gives us a side of it not commonly known when he speaks in one place of the unusual opportunities the exiles had "to select eligible places for residence and to build up a civilization that must have gone far to discount the evils connected with the exile system." "The garden of western Siberia lies in the valley of the Obi for a distance of 300 miles. Here there are 100,000 square miles of well-watered fertile prairie land, with a climate permitting the ripening of the most important cereals, and in every way as well adapted to cultivation as the plains of Minnesota." To quote him further, "One finds that in coming to this part of Siberia, he is not out of the world. The mass of the people look and appear much as they do in any European city. The teachers in the schools are highly educated men. More than once when my Russian and French were insufficient, I was asked to converse in Latin." Siberia can easily support a population of 100,000,000.

At present nothing will interest us more than Dr. Wright's testimony to the high character of the Russian people and government. He found an unusual proportion of the people to be total abstainers from alcoholic beverages. There was also a general dissemination of knowledge among them. In every city of 10,000 or 12,000 there was a museum open to the public, and even the common soldiers were able by the use of maps to make the travelers understand what they believed to be the destiny of their empire.

The religious situation impressed him very much. Priests are required to be married, and a large portion of the church service consists in reading of the Bible which, by the way, is everywhere freely circulated. In ninety-three post houses at which Dr. Wright and his party stopped in Turkestan, there was found on every table a portion of Scripture translated into the language of the region, and bearing the imprint of the Petrograd Bible Society. The agents of this society had free passes from the government over the entire railroad system.

There are no seats in the Russian churches, so that rich and poor, high and low all crowd together in the most democratic fashion. It was a very impressive scene to encounter far out in the Siberian wilderness a church car provided with a priest and choir, and to see the people gathered from their lonely fields of labor taking part in a service "as noble and beautiful as any that is rendered in the largest cities of the Empire." It is Dr. Wright's testimony that in no country in the world are the common people more completely imbued with the principles of the gospel than in Russia.

VII

Dr. Wright was permitted to enjoy a third and a fourth trip to Europe after that across Asia, but interesting and instructive as their annals are, they must be passed over very briefly. On the first occasion he again visited the Holy Land, and on returning delivered the course of lectures at Princeton now found in his "Scientific Confirmations of the Old Testament." In this volume the general authenticity of the Old Testament is supported by strong circumstantial evidence; and this in turn by the author's examination of the physical conditions involved in a number of occurrences reported in the Old Testament which seemed at first sight very improbable.

Little was known about these conditions in ancient times, but modern science sheds a flood of light upon them. It is now clear that the stories could not have been invented, and that they could not have been materially enlarged by legendary accretions as the latter would have introduced incongruous elements at once disproving them. In reviewing this important volume, the "Expository Times" said: "For a long time to come every one that has to write upon the Deluge, or touch that wider subject of the attitude of the Old Testament to the phenomena of nature, will require to know what is written in this book."

Prominent among the miracles specially treated were the crossing of the Red Sea, the parting of the Jordan, the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah and the Noachian Deluge, which is thought to be connected with the changes of land level accompanying the glacial epoch. It is deeply interesting to note Dr. Wright's confirmation of earlier researches showing that the story of the deluge as told in Genesis, is supported by the evidences of a post-glacial flood causing widespread destruction both of man and animals throughout western Europe. "Evidences which it is well-nigh criminal for anyone now to neglect, is adduced concerning the recency of the glacial epoch and the abnormal conditions connected with it, which render of no value the arguments for the extreme antiquity of man." Glacial ice did not disappear from Sweden till about 7000 years ago, which agrees with the generally accepted chronology of the Bible.

VIII

We would not close this review without referring to Dr. Wright's contribution to conservative theology through his editorship of the "Bibliotheca Sacra" for the past thirty-four years. But nothing appearing in its pages has been of greater value than the recent work of Harold M. Wiener, of London, in contravention of higher criticism. He is an orthodox Jew, graduated from Cambridge University, and an active barrister of Lincoln's Inn.

He has shown that the higher critics, not being lawyers, have introduced inextricable confusion into the Old Testament Scriptures by not distinguishing between legal terms, and not discerning the processes by which laws come into operation. He has shown too, that they have neglected textual criticism, and that if the text is restored to its probable condition before the Septuagint translation almost all the contentions of the higher critics fall to the ground.

But with Mr. Wiener should be named the Rev. E. S. Buchanan also introduced to the Christian public of this country through the "Bibliotheca Sacra." He is an Oxford scholar who has devoted his life to investigations of His disciples." The binding on earth and the loosing in heaven also are given as the prerogative of the Holy Spirit and not the prerogative of the church or any of the apostles.

That these two distinguished scholars should have chosen this periodical as the best channel through which to reach the scholarly Christian public is a further testimony to the influence of Dr. Wright.

IX

After reading this "Story of My Life and Work," one is able to set a high value upon its closing chapter entitled, "My Creed." The religious and theological belief of a man with the knowledge, experience, and character of Dr. Wright is worth inquiring about, for which

First Congregational Church, Oberlin, Ohio, Where Charles G. Finney Preached for Forty Years

the old Latin versions of the New Testament. These are two or three hundred years nearer the original than the revised Greek text from which our English version was made. They were discovered in Spain which Paul expected to visit, as we see from Romans 15:24. In numerous places the original readings of these versions had been erased and those of the Vulgate translation written over them. The Vulgate, it is unnecessary to say, is practically identical with the Roman Catholic version of the New Testament. Mr. Buchanan with remarkable skill discovered the original readings, and also has shown that the Vulgate very uniformly magnified the ecclesiastical pretensions of the papacy. For example, Matthew 16:18, 19, which in our version reads, "Thou art Peter and upon this rock will I build my church," etc., appears in the Spanish text without any reference to Peter, or the church or the keys. It reads simply: "On this rock shall be built up by the Holy Spirit reason we quote from a few paragraphs here and there:

He believes in a personal God, and in his view the doctrine of monism and of the immanence of God as set forth by some of its advocates overlooks the plainest facts of experience.

He is not an evolutionist, for he believes that in due time the principle of life came into the world as a new creation. Whatever may be true about some organic connection between man and an unknown species of anthropoid ape, he believes that man with his present physical and spiritual characteristics appeared suddenly on the earth and at no very distant period, as geologists count time.

He believes that man with all his splendid capacity for inductive reasoning, still needs for his guidance and satisfaction a supplementary revelation from God and that this revelation is the Bible.

(Continued on page 108.)

Martin Luther and the Reformation

By Rev. William Wallace Ketchum

IT IS no small matter that after four hundred years, thousands of people all over the world are turning back in thought to that central figure of the German Reformation, Martin Luther. He wrought so mightily that after the lapse of these centuries, the attention of people who are in the midst of a gigantic world struggle is arrested by the fact that this is the four-hundredth anniversary of the Reformation.

The Autocracy of the Papacy Dominant

Is it not singular that on this anniversary there is in another form in that land across the sea, where the battle for religious liberty was fought and won, the same autocratic spirit against which the German people under Martin Luther arrayed themselves? Then, it was the centralized power of the papacy; while today, it is the autocracy of Prussianism. Who knows, but what this four-hundredth anniversary of the birth of religious liberty may witness in the country where it was cradled, a new reformation; the people of Germany arising under the leadership of a political Martin Luther and overthrowing the autocracy of political and militaristic tyranny? It is the fervent prayer of all who love the people of Germany that this may be so and that out of this awful struggle, which men call war, there may come to them the blessings of a democratic government.

The Man Martin Luther

And who was Martin Luther? The Pope said, "only a drunken monk," but little did he know the man by whom forces under God were to be set on foot that would shake the very foundations of the papal throne and give to the world the great truth of justification by faith, which had been covered over by the rubbish of penance and good works. To be sure, he was a monk, but not a drunken one. The son of humble parents, he espoused theology when his father wanted him to be a lawyer. How futile, after all, it is for a parent to try to direct a child into another work, when God has the task assigned!

As an Augustinian friar, he was called to a professorship in the new university at Wittenberg. There was laid upon him by the university, the necessity of reducing to writing his beliefs. This did more than give to the university a doctrinal statement of their new professor; it gave to Luther, himself, what he had never before fully formulated, his own creed. They subtly tell us, those who decry creeds, that it makes no difference what a man believes, so long as his intentions are good. This is a sophistry as is shown in the case of Luther, whose life and work were completely transformed by his faith. A man is what he is, because of what he believes and the manner in which he believes it. Luther became the great reformer because he was undergirded by a vital creed which he firmly believed. Not at first did he always grasp the truth but as he did, it gripped him, and the truth wrought in him that sturdiness of Christian character and resoluteness of purpose for which he is famed.

It was no more Luther's intention to break with Rome, than it was later John Wesley's to break with the Church of England. When he inveighed against her abuses and abusers, he thought he was doing the church a service. To him it was the duty of every loyal churchman to purify the church and to protect her against her enemies. This he supposed he was doing, when he nailed upon the church door at Wittenberg his ninety-five theses. But the church, that is, the papacy and priesthood, did not want to be purified. Their Sodom-life was pleasurable, and without spiritual life they reveled in licentious debauchery; and the hierarchy profited financially by keeping the people in superstitious ignorance.

The Break of Day

The light, however, of a new day was dawning. There had been foregleams of it in England, when John Wycliffe, the morning star of the Reformation, shone forth; and in Bohemia, a century before Luther's time, when John Huss died for the truth. But to the watchers of the night, it must have seemed as if the day would never dawn. They had seen the mountain tops redden with the morning glow, but the world was still shrouded in darkness. God, however, appoints the times and the seasons, and, as in the fulness of time His Son came forth, so when the hour struck for the liberation of the people from the autocracy of a diabolical religious hierarchy, Martin Luther, the ruling spirit of the Reformation, stood forth, chosen not by man, but by God. Had men the choosing, another than he would probably have been their choice, for there were greater lights than the obscure professor of Wittenberg. To this man, poor in all his surroundings, lowly in birth and station, without fortune or influential friends was given the task of liberating the church from papal despotism and of leading the people back to the Bible. For this work, Luther was not without equipment. He was fitted by the discipline he received in the schools at Mansfield, Magdeburg, Eisenach, and Erfurt, and by his professional work at Wittenberg. Many other things entered into his fitness, not the least of which was his direct contact with the Bible, especially the epistles to the Romans and Galatians upon which he lectured at Wittenberg after his visit to Rome, where his spiritual sensibilities had been shocked by what he witnessed with his own eyes of the unto the simple." And so Luther came to see that a man is not saved by the worship of images and saints, by pilgrimages and processions, by keeping holy days and by fasting; but by a simple faith in a crucified, risen Saviour. There stood over against the foolish traditions and legends of men, the clear teaching of the Word of God, that the just shall live by faith. In the light of this cardinal truth, Luther moved forward to his unrecognized but God-assigned task.

Martin Luther immorality of the clergy, from the lowest even up to the papacy itself.

The Just Shall Live by Faith

Entering upon a fresh study of these portions of the Word of God that he might lecture upon them, there came to him more and more clearly the real content of the gospel, which is so clearly set forth by Paul in these epistles. No portion of the Scriptures could better meet the need of a man called of God to liberate a church buried under the rubbish of false doctrines of salvation. "The entrance of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding

It has been rightly said, that "the Reformation of the sixteenth century really began when, in the pious monk, the soul demanding assurance of salvation, found it in the gratuitous justification of the sinner before God." This truth wrought the crucial change in the life and work of Luther; grasping the significance of it he began to tell the world that salvation is not a commodity to be purchased of the Pope, or achieved by human effort; but a gift of God, freely bestowed upon those who will by faith receive it. Thus the Reformation under Luther was not simply a moral movement to purge the church of papal corruption, or a warfare against Rome. It was that but more; it was a movement of God through an appointed man to re-establish the truth of salvation by grace through faith, even as before, God had proclaimed this truth through the Apostle Paul. To be sure, Rome felt the refining fire of truth, and experienced a revolt against her erroneous teachings; but these were by-products of the gospel, as is always the case when it is preached. Luther's attacks upon Rome were against those abuses which obscured the Scriptures; otherwise, he was concerned in giving to the world, the truth of justification by faith without the deeds of the law, and in the re-establishment of the Bible as the infallible rule of faith and practice.

The Bible Given to the Common People

In his own life the Scriptures held supreme sway. He bowed sweetly and implicitly to their authority. With them he swept aside papal bulls and the decisions of councils and attacked the vicious outgrowths of the Romish hierarchy. When they challenged him, he answered by basing his arguments upon the Scriptures, and when they in turn heaped upon him their execrations, he, resting confidently in the Word of God, was unmoved and unafraid. Having experienced in his own life the regenerating power of the Word, he purposed to reach the masses of the people with it, by translating the Bible into their language. This work he began in the solitude of the Wartburg, where after the Diet of Worms, he was confined for his own safety by his friends. The leisure of those months was employed to give to his countrymen the German Bible, a monument, which if there were none other, would immortalize Luther's name. So hard did he work at the Wartburg upon this stupendous task that he completed in a few months the New Testament, and later, at Wittenberg, the Old Testament.

With Luther's Bible in their hands, the people had for the first time the Scriptures translated from the original text and not, as in other translations, from the Latin version used in the churches. The earlier translations were in a clumsy idiom which seemed foreign to the people, while Luther's was the speech of the home and the market place, which they could readily understand. Luther's purpose was to flood Germany with the Scriptures in the vernacular of the people. In doing this, he did his most constructive piece of work and laid the cornerstone of Protestantism. As fast as the hard worked presses could supply copies, the Bible, unfettered, was sent forth on its mission and did the work. Falling into the hearts of the people, it brought forth life, and the Reformation was an assured fact. Vivified by the Spirit of God and the Word, the people could no longer be held by Romish superstition and in papal corruption. Adapting the words of another, the church which Christ had formed, and which man had deformed, was now by the Spirit and Word of God to be reformed.

In emphasizing the work of the Word of God in bringing the Reformation to its consummation, we are not losing sight of other instruments used by God in this great movement of the Sixteenth century, any more than we lose sight of other men who, as well as Martin Luther, had their work to do, and did it well. We are simply giving to the Bible the place it held in the Reformation, as the powerful instrument of the Holy Spirit for spreading Evangelical truth and regenerating character.

The Lurking Danger of Today

The work of the Reformation is not ended. A foe, more deadly and insidious than Rome, is found within the ranks of Protestantism: it denies the integrity and authority of the Scriptures and substitutes in their place human reason and Christian consciousness. To meet this foe, brave and able champions of the Bible have risen and with vigorous and vital enthusiasm they defend it. But to overcome the evil, more is needed than a defense of the Bible; we must, as did Luther, saturate the minds and hearts of the people with the Word of God. In this way we shall continue the constructive work of the Reformation.

THE STORY OF MY LIFE AND WORK

(Continued from page 105.)

He believes that we can most effectively preserve the truths of the Bible revelation, and promote the unity of the church, by adhering in the main to the formulas of doctrine wrought out through the experiences of the early church and incorporated in the Nicene creed.

Finally, he hopes and expects that God will make use of the judgments now falling so heavily upon the nations of the earth to exhibit "the exceeding sinfulness of sin," and to magnify His grace in the atoning work of His Son so that the whole world shall fear and tremble; and that by mighty outpourings of the Holy Spirit the world shall be convicted of the manifold ways in which they have crucified their Lord afresh, and shall return in humble penitence to the Lord that bought them.

Note: Dr. Wright's Autobiography, $2.00 may be ordered from the Bibliotheca Sacra Company, whose advertisement appears on page 90, or as an inducement to readers of "The Christian Workers Magazine," we will send a copy with a year's subscription, new or renewal, for only $3.00.

Out of Darkness Into Light

By Rev. Robert M. Russell

Instructor in Bible Doctrine and Homiletics

THE spiritual reformation introduced by Martin Luther four hundred years ago meant the return of gospel light to the world. Men stumbling in the darkness of Roman superstition were trying to save themselves instead of recognizing that God would save them. They were striving to do the things that would insure pardon and peace instead of realizing that all had been done through Christ Jesus, and that quired from the human side is the act of faith and acceptance."

Salvation Under Different Aspects

Salvation is described in God's Word under different aspects. Sometimes the terms are biological. Man is viewed as dead in trespasses and sins. Salvation means receiving of life. Service is fruit bearing through a vitality furnished by the true vine with which the redeemed man has vital connection.

Martin Luther as a Schoolboy in Magdeburg, Was Accustomed to Singing in the Streets to Earn His Bread. The Above Painting Depicts Him Being Invited Into the Home of the Cotta's, With Which Family He Spent Many Happy Hours all required of man was the acceptance by faith of the divine provision. The meaning of Paul's challenge to doubt and despair began to be understood. Romans 10:6-8 was given its true interpretation: "Say not in thy heart, who shall ascend into heaven to secure the pity of God, and to bring Christ down on mission of redemption. This is not needed. God has pitied, and Christ has come to earth. Say not, who shall descend into the grave so as to bring the dead Christ back to life, and furnish the world with a living sinner. He has been raised from the dead. All that concerns salvation from the divine side has been done, and all that is re-

Sometimes salvation is viewed in a forensic or judicial aspect. "Sin is lawlessness" (1 John 3:4), therefore man is a criminal before the bar of divine judgment, needing justification or acquittal. It was this aspect of salvation, as set forth by Paul in his epistles to the Galatians and the Romans that gripped the heart of Luther.

The Present Necessity

It would be interesting to dwell upon Luther's particular conceptions of salvation, and to trace the course of his thought as he came to a clear conception of justification by faith; but it is more important that this great doctrine should be viewed in reference to present day thought and its meaning set forth in phrases of modern terminology. The weary pages written by theologians on the plan of salvation generally produce the impression that God's way must be simpler than man views it or else there will be "few that be saved."

Theological Implications

The use of the term "justify" in gospel phraseology is suggestive of a judicial proceeding where there are guilty parties amenable to the law. The picture is true to man's condition and relation to God. All men are sinners. God brings a universal indictment against the race: "There is none righteous, no not one." "They are all gone out of the way, they are together become unprofitable." "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God." "This is the condemnation that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil." To this impeachment of humanity no thoughtful person can make denial. Conscience says, "We have done that which we ought not to have done, and left undone that which it was our duty to do." All have not sinned to the same degree but we have been wilful and lawless. "We have turned every one to his own way."

It is implied also that human offenses have been detected. In God's perfect government, every wrong thought and act of man must be known. It is equally true that in God's perfect government the detected criminal must be brought to justice. It is a moral necessity for the stability of the universe that God should take account of sin. There would be mocking laughter among the demons of the pit should God compromise His own holiness by failing to deal with sin and sinners.

The Meaning of Justification

Justification is the judicial act of God whereby He pardons all our sins, and accepts of us as righteous in His sight. In the courts of earth justification is a process of law by which a person under arrest is acquitted and set at liberty. Justification from sin is God's act of mercy whereby men are set free from the charges of sin, and permitted to stand in favor with God as though they had never sinned.

God, the Pardoning Judge

We are judicially justified by God. Sin can only be forgiven as there is some emphatic act of grace on the part of our judge. No law-breaker can forgive himself though he may forget his crime. Justification as a phase of our redemption means that God, our judge, is favorably disposed toward us, and anxious to find a way for our deliverance that will accord with the principles of justice and righteousness in His moral universe. God is so disposed. He is not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to a knowledge of the truth. He has so loved a lost world as to send His only Begotten Son. He has provided a way whereby He might Himself be just, and the justifier of Him that hath faith in Jesus.

Christ, the Redeeming Saviour

We are justified meritoriously by the work of Christ. Modern world thought would advance the creed, "There is therefore now no condemnation for anybody," but the gospel presents limitations, saying, "There is therefore now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus." The full meaning of Christ's ministry for us transcends human thought. As some one puts it, "to comprehend the mystery of the Cross would involve full knowledge of the greatest thing in the universe which is love; the strongest thing, which is law; and the darkest thing, which is sin." Each one in itself is a mystery. Moreover, since Christ Himself uttered the "why" of mental limitation upon the Cross, we should be suspicious of the theological treatise which aims to set forth with absoluteness the meaning of His suffering and death. It is a part of the great over-shadowing mystery of evil which shall not be understood until God's light falls in another world.

The Meaning of the Cross

Much of the endeavor to explain the meaning of the Cross has centered in the humanity of Christ, and doubtless there is a large area of profitable thought in this direction. Jesus Christ as man is the second Adam, the new head of the race. Because of our union with the first Adam by heredity and transmission of life, we are sharers in the issues of sin that began in Him as head of the race. Because of our union by faith with Christ, the second Adam, we become sharers in His triumphant standing before God through His life, death and resurrection.

The Larger Vision of the Cross

But while we gain some meaning of the Cross by considering the humanity of Christ, we get the larger meaning when we view the Cross in the aspect of His divinity. Christ in His incarnation was God "manifest in the flesh," or God expressed in terms of humanity. His sacrifice on the Cross was therefore a manifestation of the Father heart of God, and a revealing, locally at Jerusalem and in point of time nineteen centuries ago, what has ever been God's sacrificial and vicarious method of forgiving sin by bearing it.

Vicarious Atonement

Illustrations from the ordinary proceedings of human law courts throw small light upon the method of God in dealing with human sin. It is in the extraordinary, where self sacrifice is involved, that we find light. When a judge held court over his own son for a grave crime, found him guilty, imposed fine to the limit of the law, and then drew the check of payment that left him a pauper, and walked out of court with his arm of love about his boy, that was a picture of divine sacrifice. When an ancient king made law that the penalty for the sin of unchastity should be the loss of vision, and finding his own son guilty, pronounced full sentence but let the cruel iron drink power of vision from one of his own eyes, that his son might be spared to half vision, this was illustration of father-love that would be a sin-bearer to save a child. King David's cast a missile of contempt. Word was sent to King David of the victory, but his yearning heart voiced but one inquiry, "Is the young man, Absalom, safe?" Apprised of his death, he became an old man in a minute and staggering under weight of sorrow he went up the stairway to the chamber of the tower, sobbing, "O Absalom, would God that I had died for you." David's grief was impotent. He could not die for his son. But suppose he had died for Absalom. Suppose he had learned early of Absalom's swinging a captive in the bows of the oak. Suppose he had slipped into the forest, released the boy and taken his place, and received into his own heart the attitude of impotent sorrow over the sinning Absalom stands in wondrous contrast with the exultant joy of the risen Christ over sinning men. David loved the fair Absalom even though he had plotted against his throne, and driven him weeping across the brook Kedron, over which a redeeming Saviour would likewise pass, pursued by a rejecting race. When the time came for righteousness to be tested and justice administered, David called the leaders of his army, and charged them, saying, "Deal gently with the young man, even Absalom, for my sake." The battle was joined. Absalom caught in the branches of a tree, died with the darts from Joab's bow in his quivering heart. His body was cast into a pit and covered with stones as each soldier arrows of vengeance. Suppose that his body had been thrown into the pit of death, and that after three days he had come forth with the resurrection light of love on his face, might he not have offered forgiveness to Absalom on condition of repentance, and would there have been a law-giver or philosopher of Israel to deny the righteousness of his claim? In some wondrous way, Christ has taken the place of rebellious humanity. With a Father-love He has taken upon Him our sins. In contrast with David's hopeless, sobbing ascent to the room of silence in the city tower, we see Jesus risen triumphant and joyous, ascending from Olivet to the glory of the Father's throne, and saying, "There is salvation, I have died for you my children."

FIGURE 111. Martin Luther, His Family and His Friend, Philip Melancthon.

The Reasonableness of the Gospel

Salvation by sacrifice or the transference of the penalty of sin is in accord with all the laws that bear on our present life. The wasp-stung finger is relieved by the crushed leaf. Nature transfers the penalty. The disobedient boy eats the unripe apples of the orchard, and is by all the laws of nature due for a night of restlessness and pain. The mother hears his first groan. The father hears the sixth. The physician is called. The druggist is aroused, and the prescription compounded. The restlessness and anxiety of the mother, father, physician and druggist becomes a vicarious atonement for the sin of the boy. A girl of good family is lured from home to a life of sin and shame. Family pride would bid that she be forgotten, and her name taken from the family record. Justice might claim that she had had her chance, and that she violated every code of family honor. Love says, "Seek and find." Pity and compassion prompt a successful search. A few months later the wandering, diseased one is in her old room, sits at the family table, yea, goes down the aisle of the old church, and sits between father and mother, and is asked by the church girls to attend the young peoples' social of a Tuesday evening. This is forgiveness. Why does not God forgive that way is the question of the thoughtless. He does. There is no such thing as forgiveness without a cross. Enter the parental bedroom, when the first Sabbath of return to church and social life has ended. Put forth your hand, and touch the pillow beneath the mother's cheek. It is wet with tears. Why? There was a cross erected in her heart and upon it she had borne her daughter's shame. Put your ear to the bosom of the father, and behold his breathing has the heaviness of a sigh. What is the reason? Ah, there has been a cross in his heart, and he has borne his daughter's sin. Jesus was the interpreter of the divine fatherhood. He claimed nothing less when He said to Philip "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." The study of the atonement which will carry us furthest into the mystery of redemption will not disregard the doctrine of the trinity nor find in Christ an emotion toward men which did not interpret the Father heart.

Appropriating Faith

We are justified judicially by faith. Faith accepts what has been done through the love of God and the redeeming work of Christ. That salvation is so easy may be one reason why men fail to understand it and to receive it. Naaman almost missed cleansing because he wanted to do some great thing instead of simply dipping himself seven times in Jordan. Men in their self conceit want to share in their own salvation, and would fain do something to be saved. It cannot be. Salvation is all of grace. All that concerns it has been done. The sinner's pardon is arranged for, and made out, and is awaiting His approach to the throne of grace and the outstretched hand of divine mercy. The word of faith is near thee because "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth Jesus as Lord, and shalt believe in thine heart that God raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." The faith that secures justification involves the harmonious movement of the intellect, emotion and will in receiving Christ. Salvation is not something apart from Christ but is ours by receiving Him. "As many as received him to them gave he the right to become children of God, even to them that believe on His name."

God Is Near

By Oswald J. Smith

'Mid the darkest scenes of life

God is near!

In the turmoil and the strife

God is near!

When the angry waves roll high,

When the clouds obscure the sky,

Through the storm there comes a cry—

God is near!

Though the dearest friend depart—

God is near!

He can heal the broken heart—

God is near!

When the hand of Death so cold

Snatches loved ones from the fold,

And you suffer grief untold —

God is near!

In the midst of darkest doubt

God is near!

Foes within and foes without—

God is near!

Are you disappointed sore

In the one whom you adore?

Still the Saviour loves you more—

God is near!

Go and tell it far and wide—

God is near!

Dry the tears on every side—

God is near!

Take it to the darkest soul,

Let the tidings onward roll,

It will comfort and console—

God is near!

The Two Goats and the Day of Atonement

By Rev. C. H. Leggett

An Exposition of Leviticus Sixteen

THE tenth day of the seventh month (Tisri, our October) was a great day in Israel. In virtue of this day God could dwell among His people; His tabernacle could still be pitched in the midst of a camp of sinners; His shekinah glory could still be manifest upon the mercy seat over the Ark of the Covenant in the Holy of Holies. The Day of Atonement was the one day of the whole year upon which the high priest alone, representing all the people, was permitted to turn the corner of the inner veil which separated between the Holy Place and the Holy of Holies, and stand in the very presence of Him who dwelt between the cherubim.

On this special day the high priest entered the Holy Place and having doffed his ordinary garments, bathed himself, dressed himself from head to foot in snow-white linen, and proceeded to offer the bullock of the sin-offering for himself and for the people.

It is significant that in this sixteenth chapter of Leviticus which may appropriately be called the atonement chapter of the Bible, only the two offerings are mentioned, namely, the sin-offering and the burnt-offering, i. e., the two offerings which typify man's need and God's glory. The other three, namely, the meat-offering, the peace-offering and the trespass-offering are not mentioned in connection with the observances on the great Day of Atonement. The paramount object of the day would thus seem to be set forth in type God's dignity and glory in contrast with man's sinfulness, and also the necessary steps to create a basis upon which they could meet. Atonement has thus been at times not inappropriately styled at-one-ment.

The Typical Character of the Tabernacle Worship

Practically everything and everybody connected with the Tabernacle and its worship represented Christ in type or symbol. Thus Aaron in the atonement chapter attired in white sets forth the pure spotless character of our great High Priest; the shed blood points to Calvary's sacrifice; the two goats to the two great aspects of the atonement of Christ, namely, God's claims and man's need.

These two sacrificial goats like all other animals offered to the Lord, must be without blemish, in fact perfect specimens of their kind. Thus the perfection of the animals themselves, as well as the completeness of their fulfilment of the functions allotted to them on the day of atonement set forth the perfection of Christ's atonement. He perfectly satisfies God and perfectly meets man's need.

Verse 8 tells of the manner of designating the "Lord's lot" and the "scapegoat." The Lord's lot was God's portion of the double offering and good though no sinner ever were saved.

This latter fact must never be lost sight of. God has been dishonored in the world which He made; His name has been blasphemed; His majesty scouted; His truth trailed in the dust. The Lord's lot vindicated His honor, exalted His name, made illustrious His majesty, satisfied the claims of His justice.

But not only did the Lord's lot fully vindicate and satisfy God; it made an atonement for sin (not now sins), and thus made it possible for God to offer free grace to all and thus "grace reigned through righteousness" (Romans 5:21).

Had it not been for the Lord's lot, God could never have been free to offer grace to sinners. In simple justice He must otherwise have condemned them all. Here then in the atonement for sin is laid the basis of free grace. Now God can with perfect consistency say "whosoever will."

The Shed Blood the Basis of God's Dealings in Grace

The Day of Atonement emphasizes the fact that the shed blood is the basis of all God's dealings with man. The way into the holiest was by the brazen altar of sacrifice. It was a blood-sprinkled way. There is blood on the altar, blood on the laver, blood on the golden altar, blood on the veil, and the blood is sprinkled seven times (the perfect number) within the veil, indicating its perfect efficiency and acceptableness.

Viewed from one angle of divine revelation our God is an exclusive God. He dwelt between the cherubim, within the veil, in the innermost room of the tabernacle, the holiest of all. Mystery ever enshrouded His presence and manifestation. The masses were ever shut out from that presence and all approach to God must perforce be deputized. One man only, the high priest, once a year could come near. He must come by the minutely prescribed way.

Having observed all the proper functions in the way of preparation, the high priest takes a golden censer, puts fire thereon from the golden altar in the Holy Place, and with hands full of sweet incense, he enters the Holy of Holies by the north end of the veil. Immediately upon entering, he throws incense upon the live coals in the censer, waving it in front of him toward the mercy seat, that the cloud thus formed may protect him from instant death by the otherwise too glorious manifestation of the shekinah. The high priest then dips his finger in the blood of the sacrifice and sprinkles it upon and before the mercy seat seven times.

During all the performance of these rites no one is permitted in the Tabernacle save the high priest until the blood atonement is completed. The tinkle of the golden bells on the border of the latter's garment is the only assurance to the waiting multitude that the offering was accepted, until the high priest emerges and completes the blood atonement by sprinkling the brazen altar.

Thus the first and more important part of the great day's program is ended. When Christ uttered the seventh voice from the cross and gave up the ghost, the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom signifying that divine power had cleaved the way into the holiest. Thus a wide open door into the very presence of God was made through the rent veil of the Saviour's flesh. The blood of Jesus is the only way into the Holy of Holies. The sinner cannot work his way in, nor buy his way in, nor pray his way in, nor live his way in. He can, however, freely come in by the way of the blood. "Having therefore brethren boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus, by a new and living way which he hath consecrated for us through the veil, that is to say, his flesh * * * let us draw near * * * in full assurance" (Hebrews 10:19-22).

The Function of the Scapegoat

The function of the "scapegoat" and its typical teaching properly take second place although we are disposed to regard them as of greatest importance. God's glory came first in the Lord's lot, man's salvation next in the scapegoat.

We are very apt to magnify man's portion of the double offering and forget the Lord's lot. Not so God—He puts first things first. The live goat is now brought forward and in sight of all the people, Aaron places his hands upon the head of the live goat confessing all the transgressions in all the sins of the people upon the head of the scapegoat, who is then by a man of opportunity, led so far into the wilderness that he never finds his way back again to the camp.

The laying on of hands is expressive of identification, and as Aaron identified himself with the sins of Israel so our High Priest voluntarily assumes the burden of the sins of His people. The three "alls" of the twenty-first verse very emphatically set forth the completeness of our separation from our sins as does the twenty-second verse the perpetualness of that separation. Our sins are blotted out entirely and forever. It is as if our sins one and all had been written down on a blackboard and some one had completely erased them. So thoroughly and so permanently is the work done that not one shall ever appear again. "Behold the Lamb of God that beareth away the sin of the world." The work of the divine scapegoat is perfectly accomplished.

And how may a seeking soul enter into the full benefit of this work? "To him give all the prophets witness that through his name whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins" (Acts 10:43).

Waiting for the Lord

By Elsie E. McCarter

O Master, I am listening
For the coming of Thy feet;
I watch to see the parted cloud
And Thy smile of welcome sweet.

It is only by this vision
Of Thy radiant return
In glory with our loved ones
We can wait, tho' hearts may burn.

For there's darkness all around us,
Bitter strife, and pain, and sin;
And lonely hearts, and sadness,
Signs of war without, within.

But Savior, we are waiting,
And we hush our hearts to hear
The first glad songs of victory
That shall greet each listening ear.

Redeemer come, come quickly;
Cast the gathered clouds aside,
Fling the Resurrection glory
O'er Thy people far and wide.

The Prince of Peace is coming;
He will set His people free.
And peace shall reign forever
When He rules from sea to sea.

Disraeli as "Defender of the Faith"

Under the above title, "The Literary Digest" contained some time ago an interesting review of Volume IV of "The Life of Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield." We quote from it in this article while venturing to recast it just a little to meet our purpose. It will be remembered that this great statesman and litterateur was a Jew who served as Premier of England. He was a contemporary of Gladstone, and a favorite of Queen Victoria.—Editors.

INTERESTING with present suggestiveness as are the chapters descriptive of Disraeli's brilliant political and intellectual personality, these are yet eclipsed by the pages devoted to the religious and oriental side of the great Jew's character. Of all Disraeli's sensational exploits, none is so dramatic as his appearance in the religious arena of Oxford in November, 1864.

The ideas about religion current in Oxford at this time were no longer those of the rising Broad Church school and those of the men of science permeated with the spirit of Darwin's "Origin of Species," published five years before. Both schools gravitated toward the liberal party, both impugned the tradition of the Old Testament Scriptures.

Whether in a political or in an intellectual and religious aspect, both were repugnant to Disraeli; and "he gladly seized the opportunity to expose their weaknesses and hold up these new-fangled lights to scorn and derision." His biographer cites a striking passage from Disraeli's Oxford speech which throws much light upon the intellectual milieu and has lost none of its interest today:

"Our empire is now unrivaled for its extent, but the base of that empire is by no means equal to the colossal superstructure.

"It is not our iron ships; it is not our celebrated regiments; it is not these things which have created, or indeed really maintain, our empire. It is the character of the people.

"Now, I want to know where that famous character of the English people will be if they are to be influenced and guided by a church of immense talent, opulence, and power, without any distinctive creed.

"You have in this country accumulated wealth that never has been equaled, and probably it will still increase. You have a luxury that will some day peradventure rival even your wealth. And the union of such circumstances with a church without a distinctive creed will lead, I believe, to a dissoluteness of manners and morals rarely equaled in the history of man, but which prepares the tomb of empires. . . .

"Will these opinions (those of scientific Biblical criticism) succeed? Is there a possibility of their success? My conviction is that they will fail . . . for two reasons. In the first place, having examined all their writings, whether they consist of fascinating eloquence, diversified learning, and picturesque sensibility as exercised by one honored in this university, and whom to know is to admire and regard (Dean Stanley); or whether you find them in the cruder conclusions of prelates (Bishop Colenso) who appear to have commenced their theological studies after they have grasped the crozier, and who introduce to society their obsolete discoveries with the startling wonder and frank ingenuousness of their own ravages; or whether I read the lucubrations of nebulous professors, who seem in their style to have revived chaos, and who, if they could only succeed in obtaining a perpetual study of their writings, would go far to realize that eternal punishment to which they object; or lastly, whether it be the provincial arrogance and the precipitate self-complacency which flash or flare in an essay or review, I find that the common characteristic of their writings is this, that their learning is always second-hand."

The unexpected appearance of Disraeli in a new role, that of Defender of the Faith, startled liberal and radical England.

In his famous novels, which had taken by storm the literary world, he had already, it is true, taken a firm stand upon the side of the traditional interpretation of the Scriptures. But in those days his influence was merely academic. Now, he was a power in the land. And his accession to the ranks of the church, then assaulted by science, undermined from within, and struggling for her intellectual position in the world, was counted as a tower of strength.

The new picturesque champion of the church in an impassioned speech denunciatory of the novel doctrines of the evolutionists as to the origin of man had used the expression, "My lords, I am on the side of the angels."

He was accused of insincerity, and his suddenly assumed sacrosanct attitude was contrasted with the earlier fantastic pose. But his biographer nevertheless asserts that he was perfectly sincere, and that he was only "concentrating in an unforgettable phrase his most vital convictions."

At a time when a certain infidelity had become fashionable and was considered the cachet of learning in the intellectual world, and among the elite, Disraeli had the courage to uphold the old traditions.

With all the power of his eloquence he upheld the thesis that whatever man may be biologically and physiologically he is something more; and this something more, which transcends biological and physiological science, is the most distinctive and essential thing about him. And even the scientific world is now coming round to this opinion.

The course of events has largely justified.

Disraeli's hope, expressed in 1864, that "the Teutonic rebellion against the divine truths entrusted to the Semites" would ultimately meet with the fate of "the Celtic insurrection of Voltaire and the Encyclopedists." Moreover, the incapacity of science to take the place of religion is now much more widely recognized than it was in the days when Huxley and Tyndall flourished.

The Rev. G. Campbell Morgan on the War

This distinguished preacher and Bible teacher, known and admired in America as well as in Great Britain, has been misunderstood in some quarters as to his views concerning the war.

Certain things he has been made to say would not only contradict his past as an intelligent Bible expositor and a man of judgment, but give no little comfort and support to the wrong kind of pacifists on both sides of the ocean.

An expression in his treatment of the sixth commandment in one of his books is taken as a starting point, where he says:

"In the light of a Christian era war finds no justification."

We wrote him for an interpretation of these words in the light of present events and he was frank and manly enough to reply as follows:

"I still believe that war finds no justification in the light of a Christian era, but that does not affect my conviction that war may be forced upon an unwilling people and be of such a nature that they are compelled to enter thereupon. I do not believe that a Christian should at all times support his government, but I do believe he is bound to do so when the government is acting in the interest of righteousness. That has been my attitude toward my own country's entrance upon the present war."

Recently he has published a series of Lecture-Sermons under the title, "God's Humanity and War," several utterances in which are well worth quoting for the instruction and stimulus they afford us at this time. The quotations follow in the order in which they appear in the book, but not in their immediate context in each case. However, we believe the particular sense of the passages is given as the author intended.—Editors.

THE cleanest place in the war of 1914 will be the field of blood, where men, heroic and daring, fall and die!

The most corrupt place is the spiritual darkness in which these shambles were made possible. There is the true region of horror; and into that realm the church is called, in order to grapple with the forces of evil that have made the actuality possible and even necessary, and in order that the thing that all men are saying in one way or another may be true: 'Never again can this thing happen!'

"The trouble is that even we, who name the name of Christ, too often shudder in the wrong place. To take this vast and ghastly business and illustrate it in the microcosm of individual experience—we shudder when the murderer is arrested with the blood of his victim upon his hand. God shudders at the first movement in his soul that makes the murder possible. Jesus said, 'It was said to them of old time, Thou shalt not kill; but I say unto you that there is to be in the heart neither contempt nor anger, and then murder will be impossible!'

"To return from that microcosm of individual experience to this microcosm of shame and agony, let us remember that the place where we ought to shudder and blanch with fear is in the presence of the spiritual and mental derangement that has made this thing possible! There our fight must be fought.

Our wrestling is not against flesh and blood, but against principalities and powers; against the world-rulers of this darkness, the spiritualities of malignant intention in the heavenly places."

II

"It is well that we remind ourselves, and all with whom we come in contact, that this war is the outcome of a delusion and of a philosophy.

"What that delusion is I think I best may show by quotation from a letter which appeared in 'The Times' from the sainted and scholarly Bishop of Durham. In it he tells how about seven years ago he was a fellow-guest at Trinity Lodge, Cambridge, with a distinguished soldier, who showed him a book to which his attention had been drawn by King Edward.

"It was a book written by the late Doctor Emil Reich, and its purpose was 'to set out before English readers what the author affirmed to be the possessing belief of numberless Germans—namely, that Germany was predestined head and mistress of the human race, a belief at once so settled and so fervent as to form a mighty sustaining force behind political and military ambitions.'

"The Bishop goes on to tell how in that book it was proved that this was an obsession of certain of those in authority in that great and most wonderful country of Germany. He declares that 'their learned patriots had been teaching the nation that few, if any, great persons of history can be named into whose making something Teutonic had not entered.—This is the great delusion under which the German Empire—not the German people, but the Empire, using the word with regard to the ruling authorities have precipitated war.

"The war is also the outcome of philosophy—the philosophy of Schopenhauer and Nietzsche. Professor Kettle has described them recently as the immoralists, that is, the men who have declared that there is no such thing as morality.

"Dr. Clifford, in preaching recently, has said that this philosophy is incarnate in Prussia, and not in the whole of Germany. We readily admit it; but we must remember that the dominant and compelling influence in Germany at the hour is Prussian. This war is the outcome of this delusion and this philosophy. General Bernhardt and his kind have applied this philosophy to war in the interest of domination, have declared that might is right, that nothing must stand in the way when the Teutonic people move out to secure the rule of the world!"

"Do not let us forget in all the hours of our depression and darkness, that the fact ought to gladden the heart today that the moral sense of the world is against that philosophy; and the physical might of the world is marching to dissipate that pernicious illusion. Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision: the day of the Lord is at hand in the valley of decision."

III

"Another matter of decision will be that of the sources of civilization. What is civilization? Civilization is a civilized condition; it is a developed or advanced state of human society.

"Now, I am not defining, I am quoting. I am after the dictionary, and I am after the last. I quote from Murray. Listen again! What is it to civilize? 'To bring out of a state of barbarism; to instruct in the arts of life, and thus elevate in the scale of humanity; to enlighten, refine, polish.' What is this I read? 'To bring out of a state of barbarism?'

"What, then, is barbarism? I go again to my authority. I know the word. There is a certain ring in it I am acquainted with as a New Testament reader. There lies at the back of it the thought of a foreign and uncouth tongue. And so I find that barbarism is defined as a state of being rude, rough, wild, savage!

"Now, in the name of God and of humanity, where are the barbarians in this hour? All of which means this, that civilization is a misnomer for the conditions in which we have been living in Europe for the last generation.

It is not civilization. It is a tragic and awful return to a veneered savagery, which is not civilization.

"What is civilization? I ask again. It is the realization of human society. This can only be realized under the rule of God. Do you want to know the whole truth germinal concerning civilization? I will give it to you in a word of Jesus spoken to His own few disciples: 'Fear not, little flock. It is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom.' Realize that in human society, and you will have realized civilization! When we have one flock and one Shepherd, one family and one Father, one kingdom and one King, that will be civilization.

"Whatever there may be of mental culture, or of scientific advancement, in this country, or in any other country, which masks the savage heart that lusts for war, and makes a shambles of the world, is barbarism, and not civilization! By the awful and tragic experience of these dark days, we are to know it better than we have done, and to come to final decisions in the matter!"

IV

"Let us remember in the next place, that the delegation of the divine authority is not its destruction. We call to mind Paul's word to the Romans, a word often quoted to prove things it never said! 'There is no power but of God; and the powers that be are ordained of God.' The correct word in this passage is the word 'authority.' Let me recite the words, again, more literally translated: 'There is no authority except from God; and those that are, by God have been appointed.' That does not mean that an evil despot has authority, but that he has not; it means that man has no authority except it be from God; and the only true authorities in the world are those which are God-appointed.

"Involved in that statement is the truth that the solemn duty of every individual soul is to resist every law and every command that does not harmonize with the sanctions of the divine authority. All who are set over men must abide in God; and this creates an obligation on the part of the ruled. If I submit to any authority which is not submitted to the divine authority; if I yield myself to claims laid upon me which are not homed in a divine sanction; then I am sinning against the divine sanction.

"In that conception lies the secrets of all holy, righteous, godly revolutions in the past. Every man has a right to claim that the authority to which he submits himself is authority already submitted to God and mastered by the sanctions of divine authority. Emperors, kings, presidents, are to be held in honour in proportion as the authority they exercise is derived from an authority sanctioned by the reasons of the divine government.

"What then are the sanctions of delegated authority? Love of those who rule; sacrificial service in order to the healing of wounds, and the uplifting of humanity.

"Now rapidly; and yet with all solemnity, let us attempt an application of our meditation; an application to the hour in which we live; an application to those hours that lie beyond this darkness.

"This is an hour of disciplined submission, which in its vastness is overwhelming. Germany's millions and, leaving out all others, our own sons in ever-increasing numbers are marching under orders, obedient, yes, obedient unto death. There is no man who has gone forth from mother, or wife, or sweetheart, and home, but that has gone forth obedient unto death. It is a tremendous, and in some senses a glorious spectacle of disciplined submission!

"But let us wait. Under what impulse are these men marching, fighting, suffering, dying?

"I solemnly declare that this is the question upon which the issue of this war depends. They have received their impulse from those set over them. What is it? Are these men marching—oh! the pity of it, the sadness of it! under the command of selfish pride of place and power? Or are these men marching—oh! the grandeur of it!—under the compulsion of sacrificial devotion to principle? I prefer to put these things in the form of questions, for all I desire to do is to bring the things of the hour into the light of the biblical revelation.

"Leaving out all others, I want to say, with all solemnity, that I at least thank God that all our sailors and our soldiers are volunteers submitted willingly to a cause. I unhesitatingly affirm that the cause is true, and that there is real self-emptying in their service.

"In an aside, let me beseech Christian men and women not to take part in this utterly foolish panic which is declaring that men are not forthcoming. I declare to you that Charles Kingsley knew England better than some who are thus complaining when he said: 'Men will dare as dared their fathers, give them cause as good.' Our sons are coming, under the terrific impulse of the conviction that this is an hour when that which is at stake, is not territory but principle. If we believe these things, it is ours to wait amid the furnace blast, knowing what the end must be.

"The decision concerning the sanctions of authority which must be the outcome of this war not in the homeland alone, but in all lands, is clear. There will be a condemnation of those very sanctions which precipitated this crisis; and a vindication of the sense which compelled response in arms in defence of right and truth."

V

"This being granted, there is a consequent responsibility resting upon the Christian church. That responsibility is first that she recognize her definite national accountability. The church as such must deal with policies.

"Her duty is a new and determined investigation of all authority, as to whether it be of God. She must cease preaching subjection to the powers that be, unless they be of God; and she must declare resolutely that men in the divine image and likeness have no right to bow the knee to any other save God, and only to obey delegated authority as it is the expression of His authority.

"I believe personally, moreover, that out of this awful hour another responsibility rests upon the church; and it is that she must solemnly demand that the people shall be informed ahead of things that are being done in the councils of the nations in order that conscience may become in fuller sense a factor in the decisions that are arrived at. All these things must be related to that unveiling of the sanction of the divine authority, which came by the way of the Cross.

"In that memorable and wonderful speech in the Guildhall, the Prime Minister uttered this sentence: 'This is not merely a material, it is also a spiritual conflict.' I commend that sentence of the Prime Minister to the thoughtful attention of all Christian men and women especially; for no truer or profounder word ever passed his lips."

VI

"Now, with all solemnity, and with the charity which is not weak, let us look with intrepid eyes at that movement against which we, contrary to every desire, find ourselves at war today. What are its characteristics?

"Let me name them. First, the negation of righteousness; secondly, contempt for the ideals of peace; thirdly, the destruction of all joy; and finally, a blasphemy against the Holy Ghost, which expresses itself in the declaration of its philosophers and teachers that the Corsican Napoleon has overcome the Galilean Jesus. It is against these things that we make our protest today, not in words alone, but in this awful sacrifice of life.

"That Germany's attitude is based upon the negation of righteousness needs no argument. It is important, however, that we should remember that this was the clear teaching of Von Bernhardi. Professor Cramb has clearly shown that Bernhardi was the disciple of Treitschke, whose philosophy was a modification of that of Nietzsche, and may be described as the apotheosis of might and utter contempt for morality. It is equally true that the militarism of Germany is the direct outcome of a philosophy characterized by a contempt for peace.

"The desire for peace is treated as a sign of weakness. Says Cramb: 'War to him—Von Bernhardt—is a duty. Nothing is more terrible than the government of the strong by the weak, and war is the power by which the strong assert their dominion over the weak.'

"The destruction of joy is the inevitable sequence. When I read Professor Cramb's book I came to a statement of a most arresting nature, and if I am to trust his context, when he wrote it he hardly saw the significance of the thing he wrote. He was contrasting Treitschke with Carlyle, and he said; 'There is not in all the seventeen volumes of Treitschke any hint of that broad human laughter which you find in very nearly every page of the thirty volumes of Carlyle.' Then Professor Cramb wrote these words: 'In all Treitschke, I doubt whether there is a single laugh.'

"Having said this the Professor continues: 'You may say if you like that this is because Germany has obtained free political institutions so recently, and therefore has not yet acquired the power to take them humorously.' To which comment I am inclined to reply that we should say nothing so foolish. The reason for the absence of laughter is deeper. There is no room for joy in such a philosophy, and the present situation shows that when it is wrought out into actuality, laughter ceases, and joy is destroyed.

"Finally, this philosophy against which we are flinging ourselves with strong protest today, the protest of blood and death, is a philosophy which is blasphemy against the Holy Ghost. The most tragic fact in the situation is that the theologians of that great country are blinded by the philosophy, and imagine that we are renegade to civilization and are helping barbarism! Is this civilization? If so, I prefer barbarism. But this is not civilization! That into which Europe is plunged today is barbarism, because it is a denial of everything that Christ taught.

"Listen to these words, actually quoted by Professor Cramb, from German philosophy; 'Ye have heard how in old times it was said, Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth; but I say unto you, Blessed are the valiant, for they shall make the earth their throne. And ye have heard men say, Blessed are the poor in spirit; but I say unto you, Blessed are the great in soul and the free in spirit, for they shall enter into Valhalla. And ye have heard men say, Blessed are the peacemakers; but I say unto you, Blessed are the war-makers, for they shall be called, if not the children of Jahveh, the children of Odin, who is greater than Jahveh.'

"When we bear in mind that this philosophy has permeated the seats of learning in that great and wonderful country we are not surprised at the things that are shocking the moral conscience of the world in this hour."

A CAUTION TO PROPHETIC STUDENTS

(Continued from page 121.)

book which the church has been, age after age, trying to comprehend, but which I believe, it has hitherto failed in a great measure to unravel. I feel also uncertain as to the details of events and the relations of events, especially regarding Israel's latter day history. It is not that I do not believe every word that is written concerning Israel in the latter day, but I feel at a loss how to arrange the various things which at first sight seem to conflict the one with the other. And I feel, I confess, very uncertain as to the personalities, or to the personages, and positions and relations of the following names or nationalities which figure in the prophetic word—Babylon, Assyria, Edom, Elam, Egypt, Moab, Ammon, Gog and Magog. God has something in the future of all these, but I confess I stop there, I am not able to say more or to arrange the future of these, but there I leave them, and I am quite sure that ere long we shall get light upon them, and that the event will prove that in regard to every one of these the Holy Spirit had a special meaning in what He has written concerning them in the prophetic word.

"Let these things suffice, brethren—perhaps they are too brief—to let you know something of my own experience in reference to the greater certainties and the greater uncertainties that have passed through my own mind during these many years since I began to study the prophetic word.

"There is just one thing in connection with this matter that I should like to add, and it is with regard to the certainties, for it applies to the whole, and I should like to avow it solemnly in these days. I feel a vastly greater certainty in reference to the divine authority and verbal inspiration of the Word of God. If ever a doubt passed through my mind during the last fifty years in reference to these, that doubt has disappeared. And then, in connection with this, I feel a greater certainty as to the literal interpretation of that whole Word of God—historical, doctrinal, prophetic. 'Literal, if possible,' is, I believe, the only maxim that will carry you right through the Word of God from Genesis to Revelation."

The Faith of Bishop Bashford, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, as to the Lord's Coming

The editor of this department heard it stated recently that Bishop Bashford is a premillennialist. To avoid the possibility of misrepresentation, a letter of inquiry was addressed to the Bishop, his reply to which is given below. We are in hearty agreement with Bishop Bashford's submission to the authority of Holy Scripture; with his protest against the setting of dates; with his belief in the imminency of Christ's coming, in the sense that it may occur at any moment; and with his insistence that we should so work as to win the Master's approval if He should come suddenly, and, at the same time, so as to contribute to the progress of the Kingdom if He should tarry.

"September 4, 1917.

"Dear Brother Gosnell:

"I thank you for your letter. I believe most earnestly in the second coming of Christ, because I think Paul, John, Peter and above all, Jesus taught it. But Jesus also told the disciples: 'It is not for you to know times or seasons which the Father hath set within his own authority.' Again He went so far as to say that even He himself while in the flesh did not know the day and hour. Hence it seems to me unwise and dangerous for us to speculate as to the time, etc., of His return. We are always to be ready, for in an hour that ye think not the Son of Man cometh. We ought to be engaged in such work and doing it in such a spirit that we shall not be disconcerted if He comes at any moment. On the other hand our work should be so related to the work which has preceded us and to that which shall follow that it will become an integral part of the work of the Kingdom if the Master delays His appearing. This was the practical teaching of John Wesley and it is thoroughly biblical.

"You are welcome to use this letter at any time and in any manner you choose, provided you use the whole of it. Praying God's blessing on you and your work, I remain

"Sincerely yours,

(Signed)

"J. W. Bashford,

"Bishop, Methodist Episcopal Church.

"Address: Peking, China."

The Study of Prophecy

By Rev. L. W. Gosnell

An Address Delivered Before the Pittsburgh Union Bible Class.

Prophecy is a neglected study. Look at the edges of your Bible and see whether the gilt is not worn off the Psalms, and most of the New Testament, but still bright on the books of the prophets.

PREJUDICE AGAINST PROPHETIC STUDY

There are some reasons for such neglect.

1. We are afraid of becoming hobbyists.

A man once visited an insane asylum and saw one of the inmates prancing about astride a cane. Thinking to humor him, he said, "That is a fine horse you have." The insane man replied, "This is no horse, it is a hobby." "Well," inquired the visitor, "what is the difference between a horse and a hobby?" and the other answered, wisely, "You can get off a horse, but you cannot get off a hobby." We do not wonder at the fear some have of becoming hobbyists. But this should not prevent us from giving proper attention to prophetic study.

2. Students of prophecy are thought to be impractical. It is true, as Spurgeon put it, that some are great on the seals and trumpets and vials of Revelation, but never pray with their children. This, however, is not necessarily the case. Many of the great soul winners have been earnest students of prophecy: Moody, Spurgeon, Whittle, Munhall, Torrey, Chapman, Sunday and others may be named in this connection. The seventh Earl of Shaftsbury was a great reformer, and the chimney sweeps, the factory hands, the miners and costermongers of England rise up to call him blessed: yet he declared he had no hope for the permanent reform of society save by the coming of the Lord. These are only a few examples of the many who have kept working while watching, and indeed have worked better because they watched.

3. Once more, some students of prophecy are speculative. They forget the caution of Dr. Pusey: "Prophecy is not given to enable us to prophesy, but as a witness to God when the time comes." During the Millerite excitement in 1844, people went to the woods wearing ascension robes and taking a supply of fodder for their cattle: they spent the time "gazing into heaven" (which the angels long ago forbade), instead of soberly "watching" for the coming of the Lord. The Scriptures say plainly, "It is not for you to know the times or the seasons which the Father hath kept in his own power." Spurgeon imagines a man in a room filled with packages of good things, all of which he may freely enjoy, but he is unhappy because one small package bears the inscription, "It is not for you." How he longs to examine its contents! What a good picture of those who would pry into the secret things of the Lord.

REASONS FOR PROPHETIC STUDY

The reasons for studying prophecy far outweigh the excuses given for not studying it.

1. Note the place it occupies in the Bible. Seventeen books of the thirty-nine in the Old Testament are directly and wholly prophetic. The Psalms speak of the Christ to come, for David was a prophet. In the New Testament the words of Christ are full of predictions and so are the Epistles, while the Apocalypse is a book of prophecy. One doctrine of the future, the Lord's return, is referred to in one verse out of every twenty-five in the New Testament. Indeed, all our hopes are built on prophecy—the hope of resurrection and of the glories of the hereafter.

2. The Scriptures command prophetic study. Indeed, if we had no such command, the obligation would be the same, for "all scripture is given by inspiration of God and is profitable." However, we have specific directions on this point. For example, 2 Pet. 1:19 says, "We have the word of prophecy made more sure; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed." True, there are some things "hard to be understood"; but this is the case also with some of Paul's Epistles, yet he desired that they be read unto "all the holy brethren." The book of Revelation is difficult, yet Chapter 1:3 says, "Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein."

3. Prophetic study gives us insight into God's purposes. "Shall I hide from Abraham the thing that I do?" asked the Lord. Prophecy makes us understand why God is silent in this age while wickedness is rampant. It is the age of His grace, and, in His long-suffering, He waits for men. But He has not forgotten, and the day of judgment will dawn in which wickedness will be put down and righteousness exalted in the earth. How this helps us, practically, to do our duty faithfully and cheerfully! Many who neglect the prophetic Scriptures for "devotional" study, would find the increase of devotion they seek by turning to prophecy, for they would be filled with wonder and love at the contemplation of God's gracious purposes.

4. Finally, Christ is revealed in the prophetic Scriptures. "The testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy" (Rev. 19:10). As we are thus occupied with Him, we are transformed by beholding His glory (2 Cor. 3:18).

(To be continued.)

A CAUTION TO PROPHETIC STUDENTS

The following weighty utterance appeared in the "Missing Link Magazine" in May, 1879. It is from the pen of a veteran student of prophecy, Dr. Horatius Bonar, and deserves careful consideration. Dr. Bonar says:

"I speak my own experience in this matter, and I compromise no one in saying what I do except myself—I say I am getting, after fifty years' study, greatly more certain, and I am getting greatly more uncertain, about many things in the prophetic word; allow me as briefly as possible to tell you both my certainties and my uncertainties, and you will see how strictly they bear upon what I have to say concerning the Master's testimony.

"I feel greatly more certain as to the second coming of the Lord being the church's hope. That is the first thing. I feel greatly more certain, as the years roll on, regarding the pre-millennial advent. I feel greatly more certain concerning the first resurrection and the millennial reign. I feel greatly more certain concerning the times of the restitution of all things spoken of by all the holy prophets since the world began. I feel greatly more certain concerning the new heaven and the new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness. I feel greatly more certain in reference to Israel's prospects of glory in the latter day, after their scattering of 1800 years. I feel greatly more certain in reference to the doom of Antichrist, whatever that name may include, and doubtless it includes many things. So regarding these things that I have thus briefly enumerated, and on which I should have liked to dwell, I would say I feel the power of a demonstration now. They form part of what appears to me a demonstrative creed.

"But then, on the other hand, there are things regarding which I am more uncertain than I used to be, for I thought some forty or fifty years ago that I had settled a great many of the prophetic questions which have now come to be unsettled. I feel uncertain, very uncertain, as to the prophetic dates—I confess that, and I confess also that I have given up many of those dates that I once thought I could have reckoned on. I feel more uncertain in reference to the Apocalypse—I confess that. I do not adhere, I may say, to any of the different schools. I profess to be a learner still in regard to the Apocalypse, and I am waiting for light; and I believe the Holy Spirit will give it, and that we shall ere long, it may be, understand that marvelous

(Continued on page 119.)

Young People's Society Topics

John C. Page

Christ's Yoke—What It Is and How to Wear It October 7

Matthew 11:25-30

In studying a topic based on the Bible narrative, strive to get the true Bible picture. Look at the text in the light of the context. The six verses of our Scripture lesson show how one verse interprets another.

Preceding any mention of the yoke, there is an invitation, "Come unto me and I will give you rest." The nature of this rest is seen in verse 27 where we learn that "no man knoweth the Father, save the Son and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him." Some knowledge of God may be gathered from nature. The heavens declare his glory and the firmament soweth his handiwork. The wisdom and power of God are clearly seen in and through the things that are made. But "The Father" as such is not known through the processes of nature. All the empty talk about the universal Fatherhood of God fails to make Him known as Father to the individual soul. The process of human reason is as powerless as the process of nature to make God known to the soul as Father. It requires revelation for this, as clear and distinct as in the case of Peter. (Matthew 16:17.) Who is able for this, who is sufficient for this revelation, who is it that can make God personal and present to the human soul so that his Fatherliness is no longer vague but vital? Let this 27th verse give the answer. Nature may reveal God to those who have eyes to see. Christ reveals God as a Father to those who have hearts to receive, those weary and heavy laden with the quest for God in other directions. To them, a gracious invitation is extended, and a gracious promise made. "Come unto me and I will give you rest,"—the rest of knowing the Father. This is exactly what Christ does for those who come to Him. He reveals the Father. With this revelation there comes the knowledge of pardon, protection, provision, and preservation, all of which a Father delights to give. Now we are ready for the yoke, not before. This revelation to the soul is accompanied by an operation in the soul. Having come to Him there is disposition and desire to pull with Him. Not only desire but determination and delight. The heart is at rest, at leisure from itself to think of others and to work for others. "The yoke" is indeed easy and the burden is light. His presence and power enable for every task.

Christ's yoke is to enter into partnership with Him and to pull with Him in the fulfillment of His purpose. It is to fill one's own place or occupation, as His representative.

What Is Committed to You? (Committee Work Meeting)

October 14

2 Timothy 1:1-14

There are two things to be observed in this Scripture. First, we have deposited our all in God's keeping (v. 12) and secondly, He has deposited in us some gift (v. 6). There is, therefore, no ground for anxiety or uncertainty on our part. He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him, always and everywhere. Believe it, venture on it and trust Him. You have trusted Him for the forgiveness of sins through His atoning work on Calvary, likewise trust Him for daily keeping though His present work in Heaven. See Hebrews 8:1; 7:25; 4:14-16; then say with all your heart, "I am persuaded that he is able to keep."

The second matter for consideration is that God has deposited in us some gift. As with Timothy, so with us. God is no respecter of persons. Whom he calls, he qualifies. Paul's labors were "according to His working which worketh in me mightily." All effective service has its beginning here. "He that wrought effectually in Peter was mighty also in me." "It is God who worketh in you." Like a fire His inworking warms and energizes our powers. But, and here is the point of contact, the fire may be burning low, very low on the altar of the inner shrine. No joy, no holy enthusiasm, no courageous undertaking, no hilarious giving, and no sacrificial going. What is needed? This is a "rally day" call, a call to preparedness. Your response will determine the measure and quality of all your work, committee and otherwise. Carry out from the inner shrine, all the rubbish of worldly entanglements. Be ye clean that bear the responsibilities of office. There are trying times ahead. The church will need you, and the world will need you. Light and warmth are the great essentials and they come from fire. Stir up into a flame, the gift of God. Let the stranger who drops into your meeting catch something of the glow in your heart. Let the indifferent member feel the warmth of your interest. Make the heart of your pastor rejoice by your fervency as well as your faithfulness.

Plans are easy when there is power seeking an avenue of expression. Get right at the center and you will be right at the circumference.

Putting Religion Into Politics

(Good Citizenship Day)

October 21

Isaiah, Chapter 1

In the consideration of every question, the Christian believer should seek to get the divine viewpoint.

The Christian Endeavor Society cannot consider the topic of "Good Citizenship" just as a purely civic society would discuss it. More factors enter into the sum of things. There are not only natural facts and their unvarying laws but supernatural facts and their unvarying laws too. Behind and beneath the visible, there are invisible facts and forces.

No better chapter could have been chosen for this topic than the first chapter of Isaiah. The world has changed since the days of the prophet, but human nature remains unchanged. As it was then, so it is now. In verses 2-4, conditions existing in the prophet's own time are described. Ingratitude, rebellion, corruption, moral darkness and estrangement from God are easily seen. Notwithstanding this, the people continued their religious observances. The regular services with their forms and ceremonies held sway, but the people had no heart for God. Many movements, much activity, multiplied meetings, but no desire for holy living. The form of godliness existed but the power thereof was denied.

Every such condition must have a cause. The cause for this condition is seen in verses 5, 6. "The whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint." This describes the old nature. It is unsound. It waxes corrupt according to the deceitful lusts. Educate it, medicate it, and cultivate it as you will, it ever remains the same in essence. "That which is born of the flesh is flesh." "Marvel not that I said unto you, Ye must be born again." Discernment and discrimination are greatly needed at this point. While we believe in reform movements and effort for uplift and betterment, we must put the emphasis on something more permanent and insist on this emphasis at all costs. The only cure for the cause and the condition it produces is seen in verses 16-18. It is the application of the cleansing power of God as bestowed on all who turn to Him from sin and evil. Briefly, it is conversion and cleansing, not reformation but regeneration, not painting the pump but cleansing the spring.

The climax is found in verses 19, 20. It takes the form of the warning. If ye be willing and obedient to the divine word. If ye have faith in the divine remedy, then ye shall be enriched. This is the crux of the whole matter, "If ye be willing and obedient." This is the test of a standing or falling church, or Christian Endeavor Society, or individual Christian. There are many voices calling to us, we hear that to which we listen.

In beginning the work of the Fall and Winter, it is of vital consequence that leaders of our societies should listen to the voice of God in His Word. He tells us as in this chapter what is the true condition, the real cause of it and the only cure for it. Abraham believed God and acted accordingly. Will You?

Ministry to Christ

October 28

Matthew 25:41-46

The principle contained in Matthew 10:40 is always in operation. "He that receiveth you receiveth me." Christ identifies Himself with His people. Ministry to them is ministry to Him.

Preceding His coming to set up His Kingdom the messengers of the King will go forth to the nations, proclaiming that Kingdom. By some they will be received, and ministered to, by others they will be rejected and ignored. When the Son of man shall come in His glory, before Him shall be gathered these nations for judgment. The basis of this judgment will be the treatment accorded to His messengers. Why? Because this treatment of the King's messengers indicates the attitude of heart towards the King Himself, and this is always the determining factor in the divine appraisal of things.

Condemnation comes not only for evil deeds committed but for good deeds left undone. This is the point for serious consideration. What can I do, what can our Endeavor Society do, to avoid this condemnation for neglect. What about work for demnation for neglect. What about work for or a prayer service in the home of the aged or a shut-in, or kindly attention to the weak member? This is a good time for earnest review and preview of the Society's work.

It is said that there are 400,000 men behind prison bars. Have you ever thought of this great army? There are many ways of helping them. In this connection it would be well for the leader of the meeting to get copies of the tract by John Steffan, "the man plucked out of Hell." These can be secured by writing to the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, Ill. The reading of this tract will awaken an interest in this great body of prisoners, the class of unfortunates most likely to be overlooked.

Sunday-School Department

Exposition of the International Lessons

By P. B. Fitzwater

October 14
Returning from Captivity
Ezra I

Golden Text:—"The Lord hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad." Psalms 126:3.

Israel went into captivity because of her sins. The time of her disciplinary process was about to end as its purpose was now accomplished; namely, the cure of Israel's idolatry. Ever since the Babylonian captivity the Hebrew people had been worshipers of the one God. Monotheism had stood forth as a vital characteristic. The main reason for the Jews' maintenance of racial identity in spite of their national dislocation and the breaking up of their social ties, is the unity of their faith around the one God.

I. The Proclamation of Cyrus (vv. 1-4).

1. The Time (v. 1).

The first year of Cyrus; that is the first year after his conquest of Babylon.

2. How It Was Brought About (v. 1).

The Lord stirred up his spirit. Likely Daniel was the agent used to bring the matter to the king's attention. Daniel was still the influential prime minister of Babylon. From his study of the prophecies of Jeremiah (Jer. 25:12; Isa. 45:1; cf Dan. 9:2) he knew that the time was near for the return of the people to their own land, so he most likely brought the matter to the attention of the king and persuaded him to thus favor his people.

3. Its Contents (vv. 2-4).

(1) A confession of the true God (vv. 2, 3).

He acknowledges Him to be the God of Heaven the Most High, the Supreme God, a God of goodness. He declared, "He has given me all the kingdoms of the earth," and that God had with authority laid upon him the charge of building Him a house at Jerusalem.

(2) A generous permission to Israel (v. 3).

All who desired to go up to Jerusalem and build the Lord's house. He even commanded the blessing of the Lord to be upon them.

3. A positive co-operation (v. 4).

None were obliged to go up, but a positive obligation was laid upon those who did not go up to render assistance to those who did. They were to aid in the building of the house of God by giving money, beasts and goods. It was more than a free-will offering, an obligation in addition thereto. The obligation was even wider than the people of Israel. The heathen were asked to render aid.

II. Response to the Proclamation of Cyrus (vv. 5, 6).

1. By Israel (v. 5).

Strange to say the decree of Cyrus was not met with great enthusiasm. Only a small number, chiefly from Judah and Benjamin, returned (v. 5). For most of them it meant giving up business interests, for they had settled down to the regular callings of life. Besides the sacrifice of business interests it involved great risks as to the future. The entire company, including servants, was about fifty thousand (2:64). Of this company we note the following divisions: first, chiefs of the fathers of Judah and Benjamin, that is magistrates; secondly, priests and Levites, leaders in religion; thirdly, skillful artificers, head workmen.

2. By Their Neighbors (v. 6).

This response was apparently more hearty than that of the Jews themselves. Their neighbors gave freely of gold, silver, beasts and goods. God had not only graciously disposed the heart of Cyrus toward His people, but they found peculiar favor from their neighbors, so that their wants were abundantly supplied.

III. Restoration of the Sacred Vessels (vv. 7-11).

These vessels had been carried away to Babylon many years before. They were carefully numbered and turned over to the proper officers, who brought them up to Jerusalem from Babylon.

October 21

The Temple Rebuilt and Dedicated Ezra 3:8-13; 6:14-18.

Golden Text:—"Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise." Psalms 100:4.

The remnant which returned had now become settled in their new homes. As it would be a considerable time before the Temple could be rebuilt, arrangement was made for the religious life as early as possible, as religion was the very heart of the nation's life. They first set up the altar of the God of Israel (3:1-3) and offered burnt offerings thereon. They next revived the annual festivals (3:4-7) which had a powerful, unifying influence upon them.

I. The Appointment of Officers to Set Forward the Work of the Lord's House (vv. 8, 9).

Overseers were needed to direct this great work. Rubbish needed to be cleared away so the building operations could begin. Timber needed to be cut in the Lebanon forests and floated down to Joppa. Stones needed to be cut from the quarries. Intelligent and consecrated men were needed to direct this work, as it was needful that it be done with the utmost expedition.

II. The Foundation of the Temple Laid (3: 10-13).

This was done amid great rejoicing. The consciousness that the Lord's house was taking shape, even though the foundations only could be seen, provoked great enthusiasm on the part of the people. Musicians were appointed to furnish music while the work was being done. While there was great joy, there was also sorrow. This was on the part of the elders who had seen the former Temple. The meanness of the present Temple in comparison with Solomon's Temple caused their praise to be drowned with their sorrow. So completely were these voices commingled that the people could not discern the one from the other.

III. The Building of the Temple Delayed by Opposition (Chaps. 4, 5).

For a time matters went smoothly with them, but as soon as the work had taken such shape as to show that there was some prospect of success, the half-heathen Samaritans began to oppose them. No vital work of God will be allowed to go on without opposition. Satan resents and bitterly opposes all inroads upon His kingdom. These Samaritans sought to frustrate this work of God by

1. An Alliance With the Jews (4:2, 3).

They wanted to bring the work in harmony with their own religious practises, as God's pure worship would be a constant rebuke to them. There is but one answer to be given to such an offer of compromise. "Ye have nothing to do with us in building a House unto our God."

2. Weakening the Hands of the People (4:4).

Doubtless this included the withdrawal of supplies, the spreading of dissension among the workmen, and the employment of counselors against them.

3. Letters of Accusation to the Persian King (4:6, 7).

So severe was this opposition that the building was delayed for a term of years. These counselors succeeded in creating doubt as to whether Cyrus had ever issued a decree for their return. This wicked opposition resulted in the undoing of the opposers, for search was made and a copy found. Darius confirmed this by his own decree, and directed that aid be given from the royal taxes so that the house of God might be built.

IV. The Temple Completed and Dedicated (6:14-18).

The prophets Haggai and Zechariah now appear, and by warnings, exhortations and entreaties stir up the people so that the work goes forward to a successful completion. Without their aid probably the work would never have been completed. When the building was finished it was dedicated to God with great joy. This was possible because they had builded and finished their task according to the commandment of the God of Israel. The service of dedication was much after the order of that of Solomon's Temple, only on a less magnificent scale.

October 28

Ezra Returning from Babylon

Ezra 8:15-36

Golden Text:—"The hand of our God is upon all them for good that seek him." Ezra 8:22.

An interval of some fifty years intervened between the dedication of the temple and the journey of Ezra to Palestine. Some stirring events in the world occurred in this time, which greatly helped the Jews. It was during this time that the episode of Esther's being made queen and the elevation of Mordecai occurred, which favorably disposed the Persian government toward the Jews. The time was auspicious for Ezra to make his request to Artaxerxes. The supreme aim of Ezra was the restoration of the true worship of Jehovah, for it is evident that the work done by Zerubbabel had largely failed of its aim. In order that Ezra might be an efficient instrument in the hands of God for the accomplishment of this purpose, he "prepared his heart to seek the law of the Lord, and to do it, and to teach in Israel statutes and judgments" (7:10).

The royal commission granted to Ezra embraced:

1. The return of all whose free will prompted them to do so (7:13).

2. Ezra's being given magisterial authority over the district "beyond the river" (7:25, 26).

3. Exemption of the Levites from taxation (7:24).

4. Conveyance of offerings from the kings and his officers (7:15, 19).

I. Register of Ezra's Companions (1-14).

Doubtless, this is a representative list of those who joined Ezra. There is clear implication that the twelve tribes are represented among those who returned. (See 2:70; 6:16, 17).

II. Ezra Sends to Iddo for Ministers for the Temple Service (vv. 15-20).

Before the journey to Palestine was actually begun, Ezra gathered about him his companions who were about to accompany him, to see whether they were representatives. In this review, he discovered that none of the sons of Levi were in the company. So he sent chief men to Iddo, who was doubtless the president of the school of the Levites, for ministers for God's house. In response to this appeal, thirty-eight Levites and two hundred and twenty Nethinims joined him.

III. Ezra Seeking the Guidance of the Lord (vv. 21-23).

The journey was full of deadly perils. It lay through a region infested with Bedouin marauders. Ezra fully conscious of these, and ashamed to ask help of the king, proclaimed a fast, in which in deep humiliation they sought the guidance and protection of God. He had so confidently and repeatedly spoken to the king of the divine sufficiency that now to have asked for a guard of soldiers would cause him to blush with shame. In this critical hour, they committed themselves to the care of Him who keepeth Israel. They sought this for themselves, for their children, and all their substance.

IV. The Treasure Committed to Twelve Priests (vv. 24-30).

Combined with their faith in God, we find practical business sense. Honest, trustworthy, good men were selected (v. 28). The money was carefully counted and weighed, and the amount set down. The men were held accountable at the end of the journey for everything entrusted to them. They were charged with the obligation to deliver these gifts before the chief priests and Levites at Jerusalem.

V. The Safe Arrival at Jerusalem (vv. 31-36).

The journey lasted four months. They carried with them millions of dollars worth of treasure, through a region infested with marauding Bedouins, yet God saved them from any loss. At the end of the journey, they testified to the faithfulness of God in bringing them safely on (v. 31). After resting three days, the treasure was brought into the temple and burnt offerings were made to the Lord. After this, the decree of the Persian king was delivered to the governors who gave aid in furthering the people and the house of God.

November 4

Defeat Through Drunkenness

(World Temperance Sunday)

1 Kings 20:1-21

Golden Text:—"Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off." 1 Kings 20:11.

I. Samaria Besieged (vv. 1-12).

1. By Whom (v. 1).

Benhadad, the Syrian king, accompanied by thirty-two kings, came against Samaria. These thirty-two kings were not allies, but rulers over the neighboring cities—vassal princes.

2. Benhadad's Message to Ahab (vv. 2-6).

He offered peace on the most abject and insulting terms. His demands meant more than the exaction of tribute, the surrender of that which was most vital to Ahab's manhood and self-respect—his wives and children. He thus made a thrust at the tenderest spot.

3. Ahab's Reply (vv. 4, 7-9).

His reply was tame and humiliatingly submissive. Perhaps, he first thought it only meant the paying of tribute, which he was willing to do in face of Benhadad's overwhelming army. Conciliatory measures were regarded as most prudent. But the peremptory demands of the enemy repeated, awoke Ahab to his senses, and caused him to call together the elders of the land, who counselled against submission. Thus stiffened for the opposition, Ahab refused to make full compliance with his demands.

4. Benhadad's Bluster and Boasting (v. 10).

The design of this was to strike terror into the hearts of the king and people. He vows that he will make Samaria a heap of dust, and that this dust will not be sufficient to fill the hands of his army, so overwhelmingly is the number of his host.

5. Ahab's Answer by a Proverb (v. 11).

"Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off." This is a proverb full of points for all boasters. God's purposes shall overrule man's proud presumptions. "Man proposes, but God disposes." "Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall" (Prov. 16:18).

6. Readiness for the Attack (v. 12).

In the full confidence of victory, the Syrian king was giving a banquet to his princes. In the midst of this feasting, the command was given to invade Samaria. Incited by strong drink, he gave no attention to the striking proverb of Ahab.

II. A Prophet Sent to Ahab (vv. 13, 14).

Who the prophet was, we are not told, but why he was sent, is made clear. He brought from God a promise of victory which was to cause Ahab to know Jehovah. It is a marvelous display of God's goodness and grace. Israel deserved the most severe chastisement, but God promised victory for His own sake, in order to make His glory known. The agency by which the victory was to be achieved, was the young men, an agency purposely feeble, that the victory might be seen to be of God.

III. Ahab's Victory Over the Syrians (vv. 15-21).

The Army of Ahab was but a handful compared with that of the Syrian king (v. 15; cf. v. 10). Benhadad, with confidence in his superior numbers, ordered the young men of Israel to be taken, whether they came for peace or war. He, with his princes, continued their drunken debauch. The young men struck right and left, creating great consternation. When the seven thousand reserves joined the young men, a general panic was produced among the Syrians. From the human side, the victory is accounted for by the drunkenness of the Syrians, but from the divine side, we see that God wrought for His own glory. Ahab pursued the Syrians with great slaughter, but Benhadad escaped.

Practical and Doctrinal Applications of the Lessons

By Robert M. Russell

October 14

Returning from Captivity

Ezra 1:1-11

"Now in the first year of Cyrus King of Persia" (v. 1). Bible History deals with names and dates in such detail as to permit verification by comparison with world documents. This method prevails in both the Old and New Testaments. In describing the opening ministry of John Baptist, Luke says, "Now in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberias Caesar." Bible history thus challenges scholarly criticism.

"That the word of Jehovah by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished" (v. 1). The Bible is the Word of God. The writers of Holy Scriptures "spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit" (2 Peter 1:21). "This does not imply automatic dictation, but such control by the Holy Spirit of the vocabulary of the different writers as to exclude from their writings everything not intended by the Spirit to go into them, and also such a use of the vocabulary of the writers as would give the full and complete thought in the Spirit's mind" (Scofield).

"Jehovah stirred up the spirit of Cyrus" (v. 1). The same Spirit of God which caused the prophecy concerning Cyrus before his birth, as recorded in Isaiah 44:25-45:1, moved upon Cyrus to produce a proclamation for a restored Israel. God's control is complete in His program of grace. Through His prophets it was announced that Jesus should be born in Bethlehem of Judea. That Joseph and Mary should be in that place at the time of our Lord's birth required a world-wide political movement. Therefore by the same power which produced prophecy there was movement upon the mind of the Roman Emperor so that "there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be enrolled" (Luke 2:1). It steadies the heart in these days of political confusion to remember that God will carry out His program of grace.

"All the kingdoms of the earth hath Jehovah the God of heaven given me" (v. 2). Cyrus was a king of well developed religious instincts. Whether or not he had learned from Daniel about Isaiah's prophecy, we do not know, but this much is certain, he recognized that God was the source of his power, and that his position of power imposed responsibility for carrying out a divine program. God's program for Cyrus included the restoration of the temple in Jerusalem, so Cyrus proceeded to that work.

Every man in position of political, commercial or social power should recognize that position and power impose responsibility, and should gird himself to meet divine ends.

"Whosoever there is among you * * * let him go" (v. 3). The temple worship at Jerusalem was to be restored by volunteers. "His God be with him and let him go up to Jerusalem" was the exhortation of Cyrus. Behind all work for God there must be God-consciousness in the soul as an inspiration for willing service. Conscription for service is a justified plan in our imperfect world governments, but all soldiers of God's army are volunteers. Heaven issues no force of compulsion. "Whosoever will let him come," is God's call.

"Let the men of his place help him with silver and with gold and with goods" (v. 4). Things material can be sanctified to high and holy uses. The silver, gold and goods that belong to common life could be set apart for a sacred journey or temple decoration. The souls of men are elevated by such dedication. In Exodus 38:8 we read that the laver of brass for priestly use in the tabernacle service was made from the mirrors of women worshipers, thus the material which had served to reflect the beauty of their own countenances became the laver which reflected the beauty of the sky, and furnished conditions of cleansing for priestly ministers.

"Then rose up the heads of fathers' houses of Judah and Benjamin" (v. 5). Leaders should lead. The heads of Judah and Benjamin heard the call of God, and responded. Too many modern political leaders keep their ears to the ground to hear the tramp of the people, rather than toward the sky to hear the voice of God.

"Cyrus the king brought forth the vessels of the house of Jehovah" (vv. 7-11). The vessels "which Nebuchadnezzar had brought forth, out of Jerusalem and had put in the house of his gods" these did Cyrus send back to Jerusalem. In this we have emblem that in the great restoration of the kingdom days the sacred things of life which have been carried captive by worldliness will be restored to their true place in God's great system of universal righteousness. Great was the number and variety of the vessels consecrated to God, illustrating that all features of human life should be sacred.

October 21

The Temple Rebuilt and Dedicated

Ezra 3:8-13; 6:14-18

"Now in the second year of their coming" (v. 8). All great works require time and patience. Temple building could not begin the morning after reaching Jerusalem. Weary months must pass and patient preparation continue. "Work of faith, labor of love and patience of hope" are the characteristics of true service.

"Then stood up Jeshua * * * to have the oversight" (v. 9). Purpose and plan must precede activity, and activity be governed by rule. No great building can be erected without blue prints, and no large body of men can be assembled in efficient work without definite oversight. The man who plans and watches has a most important place in life's work.

"And when the builders laid the foundation * * * they set the priests in their apparel with trumpets" (vv. 10, 11). We have here a precedent for joyous worship when the foundation of a house of worship is laid. A great responsive chorus sang praise when the foundation of the new temple was laid. Psalm 136 seems to have furnished the words of song. God was the object of thought in their praise. Modern hymn books would be enriched by including a larger number of the songs of the Bible Psalter in which God is magnified, and His praises set forth. Too much of modern hymnology deals merely with the human.

"But many * * * wept with a loud voice; and many shouted for joy" (vv. 12, 13). There were differences of emotion at the dedication of the temple because of differences in mental vision. The young people saw nothing but the present and the future. Past the foundation stones of the new temple they looked and beheld the completed building for a new era of worship. The old men and women had a background of memory. They saw the first temple in all its magnificence, and shed bitter tears as they recognized the contrast between its glory and the meager possibilities of the restoration. Life is ever a mingling of weeping and laughter, of joy and sorrow. Ofttimes at the wedding feast, while bride and bridegroom see only the foundations of a new home, and the prospective temple of love, parents have a background of memory and with glistening eyes dream of a family fellowship that can be realized no more.

"And the elders of the Jews builded and prospered through the prophesying of Haggai" (v. 14). From the prophecy of Haggai it is evident that the work of temple rebuilding lagged because the people became over interested in their own house building. The people were saying, "The time is not come, the time that the Lord's house should be built." Like some modern people, they thought that contributions to the Lord's work could be postponed until all worldly debts were paid, and their own houses rendered comfortable and luxurious. To these came the word of the Lord: "Is it a time for you yourselves to dwell in your sealed houses while this house lieth waste?" Haggai and Zechariah both pressed the warning that material blessings were being lost because God did not have the first place in their thought (Hag. 1:9-11). The message bears on modern life. It is when we seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness that "the all things" of temporal comfort are added.

"And the children of Israel kept the dedication of the house of God with joy" (vv. 16-18). The completion of the temple was celebrated by a feast of dedication. Its main characteristic was joyous worship and a friendship among the worshippers, sealed by the presence and thought of God. All true worship is joyous. When men see God, and realize His plans, they "give hilariously" for missions and purposes of worship. The world shames the church in its bestowal of wealth for worldly pleasure. The believer's delight is supposed to be in God. Whence then a groan instead of a shout of gladness when God lays claim upon our substance? Why the searching for pennies and nickels when our fingers should be gladly grasping dollars and eagles for the progress of gospel work? To look on the world through the eyes of Christ will lead to His spirit of sacrifice.

October 28

Ezra Returning from Babylon

Ezra 8:21-32

"Then I proclaimed a fast" (v. 21). Having gathered a large company of Jews for return to Jerusalem, Ezra prepared to have them conscious of divine leadership, and to this end arranged for fasting and prayer. The ancient custom of fasting and prayer has gone out of life. Our fathers used to have days set apart for special waiting upon God, in which spiritual devotion demanded a turning away from both food and labor. In some denominations a generation ago, every communion period was preceded by a day of fasting and prayer and self examination. Abraham Lincoln issued a call for a day of national waiting before God, when our great Civil War was raging. There is need for return to this custom of our fathers. Our heart time-pieces need resetting with the standard time of heaven, and nothing save a definite pause and a crucial examination of our moral condition will bring about a true adjustment of life with God. Surely in our day the call for fasting and prayer might be issued in the very language of Ezra: "That we might humble ourselves before our God, to seek of Him a straight way for us, and for our little ones, and for all our substance."

"For I was ashamed to ask of the king a band of soldiers and horsemen" (v. 22). Worldly men naturally follow worldly methods, but the children of God should take account of divine provision for their safety. Care is needed not to presumptuously decline to use the natural provision which God furnishes for human safety, but the Christian should stand by the word of Ezra to the king: "The hand of our God is upon all them that seek Him, for good."

"So we fasted and besought our God for this: and He was intreated of us" (v. 23). When we draw nigh to God He draws nigh unto us. When men take the attitude of attention and appeal, God takes that of interest and response. "Ask and it shall be given you; seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you;" are words of Jesus that have never been withdrawn. Some blessings come because we ask. Others are secured by our seeking under divine guidance and meeting the natural conditions that produce desired end. Doors of opportunity and revelation open to our knocking as in reverence we recognize that these doors must open from the inside, and that they yield not to our push but to the welcoming hand of God.

"Then I set apart * * * and weighed" (vv. 24-26). How careful business methods should characterize religious activity is strikingly set forth in the conduct of Ezra. The right men were chosen to administer affairs. The offerings furnished by the people were carefully counted, tabulated and weighed and given into the care of trusted men. The people were given a sense of confidence that their liberality would not be in vain. Church boards and congregational officials cannot be too careful in their administration of funds and provisions, nor too minute in their information on these matters.

"Fine bright brass, precious as gold" (v. 27). The alloy constituting brass, by the perfection of its blending, became precious as gold. God's treasures are not all the same in quality, but may have an equality of value.

"Ye are holy unto Jehovah, and the vessels are holy" (v. 28). All that concerns God's worship and service should be holy or fully set apart to Him. Holy vessels must not be in the keeping of unholy men, neither must holy men have in charge unholy vessels. God's Word is pure, and should be proclaimed and taught by a pure ministry.

"Watch ye and keep them until ye weigh them before the chiefs" (vv. 29, 30). True Christian living demands watchfulness. Treasures of truth may be lost through carelessness. Talents that should be developed may lie idle. The weighing and the testing day when we shall give an account is before us. Opportunities and responsibilities should be accepted by us with the same sobriety with which the priests and Levites "received the weight of the silver and the gold, and the vessels, to bring them to Jerusalem unto the house of our God."

"The hand of our God was upon us" (v. 31). After prayer and waiting comes true activity. Those who take a journey in dependence on God are led by the hand of God. He delivers "from the hand of the enemy and the liers-in-wait by the way."

"And we came to Jerusalem" (v. 32). The ending of difficult journeys means joy. What a joy will be ours when we reach the heavenly Jerusalem. What a gladness when we enter the doors of the eternal home, bearing the treasures of service, and finding there those who have gone before.

November 4

Defeat Through Drunkenness

1 Kings 20:1-21

"Benhadad, the King of Syria, gathered all his hosts together" (v. 1). The forces of evil are easily federated. Thirty and two kings joined Benhadad that they might share in the spoils of war: Samaria had rich treasure. Evil has ever a mission of robbery.

"And he sent messengers to Ahab, King of Israel" (v. 2). The insolence of evil is unmeasured. Benhadad said, "Thy silver and thy gold is mine; thy wives also and thy children, even the goodliest, are mine." This was a colossal lie. Nothing in Samaria belonged by right to Benhadad. But because he thought it could be his by might, he claimed it. That "might is right" is a dogma of the devil, a heresy of Satan that is still popular in business and political life.

"It is according to thy saying" (v. 4). Ahab made a foolish concession. Obsequiously he yielded to the first demand of the Syrian king. The yielding was a weakness. The lie should ever be given to wrong assumptions.

"The messengers came again" (v. 5). Evil is never satisfied with its aggression on truth. Benhadad said, "Thou shalt deliver me thy silver and thy gold and thy wives and thy children; but I will send my servants unto thee tomorrow about this time, and they shall search thy house and the houses of thy servants, and it shall be that whatever is pleasant in thine eyes they shall put it in their hand and take it away." Evil is never modest; it wants all. To begin to yield is the road to absolute spiritual poverty.

"Then the King of Israel called all the elders" (vv. 7-9). There is a time when the insolence of evil should rouse every energy of the heart, and produce a resounding "No" to the claims of Satan and sin. God is pleased at the "I will not" of His people in the presence of sin, and begins to plan their deliverance.

"The gods do so unto me and more" (v. 10). Wrong is ever boastful as well as insolent.

"Let not him that girdeth on his armor boast" (v. 11). Ahab's answer was wise, but would have been wiser had he included some reference to Jehovah's care. Shouting should not be indulged until the battle is over unless we are on the side of God. But when God is

(Continued on page 157.)

To Promote Daily Bible Reading

By Howard W. Pope

"O Earth, Earth, Earth, Hear The Word of Jehovah." Jer. 22:29.

"Study the Bible; make it your first daily business to understand some portion of it, and make it your business the rest of the day to obey what you understand." John Ruskin.

READ THE BIBLE WHILE YOU CAN By Rev. Howard W. Pope

It was a wise man who said, "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them" (Eccles. 12:1). A striking illustration of the value of this advice came to our notice not long ago. We were calling on a lady who had passed her eightieth birthday. She was converted in early life and joined the church. She married a Christian man, and was a regular church attendant for probably forty years. Indeed she sang in the choir for many years and heard only good gospel preaching.

She always enjoyed a good sermon and could give an excellent description of it to those who were not present. She was fond of attending Bible conferences and revival meetings, and entered heartily into the aim and spirit of such services. But she never formed any definite habit of Bible reading; indeed she was not a great reader of anything, except the daily papers. She liked to hear other people expound the Bible, but she would not, or at least did not read it much for herself.

As old age came upon her, the friends and relatives of early life naturally scattered and died. Her family was all gone, except a devoted daughter with whom she lived. However, all her needs were supplied, as well as the comforts of life.

As her daughter was obliged to be away during the day, and she was living in a large city, she was naturally somewhat lonely, but loneliness was not her chief trouble. I found that she had no definite assurance of salvation. She was full of doubt and uncertainty as to the future. She knew the gospel, but could not seem to grasp it. She prayed, but she had no assurance that God heard or answered her. The Bible afforded her no comfort, for she hardly knew where to find the passages which she needed, and if another found them for her, they did not sound real and true to her ears, so dull of hearing. She had lost her capacity to enjoy spiritual truth.

She had neglected to store her mind with Bible truth while she was young, and now, when it should have been her daily comfort and chief joy, she had lost her capacity to enjoy it. Had she formed habits of Bible reading in youth as David did, she would now have been familiar with it, and David's experience would have been hers, "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me. Thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." Hers was an old age without a staff, and almost without a God.

How sad is old age without a Saviour, earthly props failing, and no everlasting arm to lean on; forced to leave this world with no hope of heaven!

How beautiful is old age when cheered by the presence of the blessed Comforter! Grateful for the mercies of the past, it refuses to believe that anything is not a mercy which God permits. The future is full of hope, for we realize that more and more the earthly shall disappear out of our lives, and more and more the heavenly shall come in, until at last we shall "awake in his likeness" and be satisfied.

"Rich in experience angels might covet,

Rich in a faith that has grown with thy years;

Rich in a love that grew from and above it,
Soothing thy sorrows and hushing thy fears.

Growing old richly,
Loving and dear.

"Eyes that grow dim to the earth and its glory

See but the brighter the heavenly glow;
Ears that are dull to the world and its story
Drink in the songs that from Paradise flow.

All the sweet recompense
Youth cannot know."

A LAYMAN'S TESTIMONY

The Christian Workers Magazine.

Gentlemen:

I am not a subscriber to your magazine but sometimes read it, nevertheless. Your March issue contained an article on "To Promote Daily Bible Reading," by Howard W. Pope which interested me very much.

I could not refrain from writing you after reading your appeal to laymen, asking for suggestions in regard to promoting daily Bible reading.

I am a member of the Christian Reformed Church, which is composed mostly of Hollanders who came here from the Netherlands. It is their custom (and, I think, a very good one) to read a short portion of the Bible at every meal, just before, closing with prayer. This is done at breakfast time, noonday meal and evening. To neglect it, is considered by many of the older people almost an unpardonable sin. The custom is not to omit any part of the Bible but to read it from beginning to end. Oftentimes, when the time is not lacking, a short discussion by the members of the family, led by the father, follows this reading. Sometimes, when time is lacking to read a chapter or such a portion of a chapter necessary to complete the story, a short Psalm is read, but never is the reading omitted entirely. The father of the family usually does the reading but sometimes the mother or the older children do it. It seems to me this is a very good custom because the entire family is present at meal time and the Bible is read aloud. Even the small children learn to respect the book from which father or mother reads. Discussions naturally take place and, of course, it is up to father to explain, when necessary.

Our younger people are becoming more and more Americanized, however, not only in speaking American and following American customs (which is very good) but also in following the custom of the religious Americans in omitting from their "bill of fare" the reading of the Bible. If the religious people among the Americans would observe this custom, it would be much easier for them to retain it also. But, thus far, I have found this custom in very few of the Christian American homes. Do you not think that this custom if practiced in all the homes of Christian people would have very beneficial results? I know American people do things in a hurry, also eat in a hurry and possibly have no time then to read the Bible. But do you think they will have time for it at any other part of the day? I have noticed that those who use as an excuse that they have no time at their meals to read even a short portion of the Bible, do not find time to read it at all.

I and my family follow this custom and we find it very helpful. We follow no particular outline of reading but begin at the beginning of the Bible, skipping only such portions as the genealogies, etc., and continuing until we have finished Revelation. At breakfast time when we are quite often in a hurry (I think all people are) we usually read a Psalm, or part of a chapter of Proverbs. They are fine to begin the day with.

I trust that this suggestion may be helpful to others, also.

Yours in the Lord,

J. Buiten, Jr.

Many of our young men have enlisted and are doing splendid work for the Master in soul winning. I met a young fellow today who has been in Camp in Chicago for about a month. He told me that he had already led a hundred and fifty of his comrades to join the Pocket Testament League, which involves a promise to carry it constantly, and read a chapter every day. Many of these are Jews, he said, who know nothing at all about the New Testament. He is enthusiastic about his work. He expects to start for Houston, Tex., any day, and he is planning to do personal work wherever he goes.

Mel. Trotter takes a quartet of our boys, who graduated last term, and goes West to speak in all the training camps, and Prof. Hammontree joins Charles Alexander, who takes a quartet of men and they visit the training camps of the East. If it works well I suppose they will continue in this work until the end of the war. Prof. Sellers has spent four months in the British camps and has just returned home. Thus, you see, we are touching the soldier boys at many points.

A leaflet which our students have found exceedingly helpful in work among soldiers is entitled, "How the Lieutenant Risks His Life for an Enemy." It begins with an attractive story which is sure to hold attention, and brings out clearly the essential facts of the gospel, and the strongest reasons for accepting it. We will send a sample copy to anyone sending an addressed envelope.

The editorial in the August number of this department on "How To Enjoy the Bible," will soon be issued in leaflet form in a size convenient for insertion in letters. Why not make every letter contain a gospel message!

"I know of lands that are sunk in shame,
And hearts that fall and tire;
But I know a name, a name, a name,
That will set those hearts on fire.
Oh, give them that name!
Oh, kindle that flame!
That will set the word on fire.

For Sermon and Scrap Book

INCORRUPTIBLE THINGS IN FIRST PETER

1. Incorruptible inheritance (1:4),
2. Incorruptible ransom (1:18),
3. Incorruptible seed (1:23),
4. Incorruptible character (3:4).

—W. H. Griffith Thomas.

FOUR OF THE GREATEST THINGS IN JOHN 1:11, 12

1. The Greatest Tragedy:
He came unto His own and His own received Him not.
2. The Greatest Transaction:
But to as many as received Him.
3. The Greatest Transmission:
To them gave He power.
4. The Greatest Transformation:
To become the sons of God.

—Peter Van Wynen.

RECEPTIVE LIFE AND ITS OUTCOME

The Christian life has its inception and its increase by reception.

1. The Son received makes us sons. "As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God" (John 1:12).
2. Grace received makes us correspond to it. "Of his fulness have all we received, and grace for grace" (John 1:16).
3. Christ received and the destination reached. "They willingly received him into the ship, and immediately the ship was at the land" (John 6:21).
4. The servant received and the sender acknowledged. "He that receiveth whosoever I send receiveth me; and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me" (John 13:20).
5. The Spirit received and power bestowed. "Receive ye the Holy Ghost" (John 20:22). "Whom the world cannot receive" (John 14:17).
6. Harvest reaped and reward following. "He that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto eternal life" (John 4:36).
7. God's words received and the contents enjoyed. "They have received them" (John 17:8).

—F. E. Marsh.

All arguments against the Word of God are fallacies; all conceits against the Word are delusions; all derision against the Word is folly; and all opposition against the Word is madness.—Beveridge.

JESUS THE GOOD SHEPHERD

John 10:7-18

I. The Good Shepherd and the Flock.

1. His sheep are Saved.—"By Me—he shall be saved."
2. His sheep are Secure.—"Shall never perish."
3. His sheep are Led.—"He goeth before them."
4. His sheep are Fed.—"Shall find pasture."
5. His sheep are Known.—"I know my sheep." (Among Jew and Gentile.)
6. His sheep are Knowing.—"Am known of mine."
7. His sheep are Free.—"Shall go in and out." "I am the door."
8. His sheep are "One".—"One fold, and one Shepherd."

II. The True Shepherd and the False.

1. The sheep have dangerous foes: "Thief, wolf."
2. Are easily scattered under a hireling shepherd. "Wolf catcheth them and scattereth the sheep."
3. The hireling does not care for the sheep. Cares only for the wool.
4. Does not even Risk his life for them, much less Give it. In danger, "looks out for No. 1."
5. His voice is strange to the sheep. "Know not the voice of strangers."
6. The true Shepherd is the owner of the sheep. By Creation; by Redemption.
7. The true Shepherd will be the final and Chief Shepherd. "One fold, and one Shepherd."

III. The Sure Shepherd and the Father.

1. The Shepherd's Sacrifice was ordered of the Father. He did not die a martyr's death.
2. The Shepherd's Sacrifice was pleasing to the Father. "Therefore doth my Father love me because—"
3. The Shepherd's flock was given him by the Father. "My Father, which gave them me."
4. The Shepherd was in all things in harmony with the Father. "I and my Father are one."

Because of this four-fold fact His sheep can "never perish."

Christian assurance is "the believer's firm conviction that he is in the present possession of a salvation in which he will be eternally kept."

—Adam Murrman.

CONSECRATION AND PRESERVATION

"And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly; and I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ: Faithful is he that calleth you, who also will do it."—1 Thess. 5:23, 24.

I. The Petition.

1. He prays for their sanctification—"Sanctify you wholly." The root idea of "sanctification," "holiness," "holy" and the like, is separation.

2. The extent of this consecration is noteworthy—"Sanctify you wholly."

3. He prays for their preservation—"Preserved blameless." The consecration is to be continually maintained, in and for God.

4. The extent of this preservation—"Your whole spirit and soul and body." The spirit is that inmost part of your life which is related to God.

II. The Prerequisite.

1. "The God of Peace Himself." The apostle stresses the fact that it is God "Himself" who consecrates and keeps us.

2. Further, God is described as "the God of Peace." Only through peace can holiness come, and only as we have blessed personal experience of God as the God of peace can a prayer like this be answered.

III. The Prospect.

1. "Unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ." Once again the apostle prays with special reference to that glorious day to which he was always looking and pointing his readers.

IV. The Promise.

1. "Faithful is he that calleth you, who also will do it." Lest we should think that so wonderful a prayer could not be fulfilled in daily experience, the apostle adds this blessed assurance that God, who puts this ideal before us, will enable us to realize it.—The Methodist Recorder.

THE BUOYANCY OF FAITH

A Sermonette

"He walketh upon the waters to come to Jesus."—Matt. 14:29, R. V.

Faith is always the secret of buoyancy. We can plant out footsteps in the sea when our faith is resting in the Lord. The waves can never overwhelm us. We ride upon the storm. When Mrs. Booth, the mother of the Salvation Army, was dying, she witnessed in great triumph, "The waters are rising, but I am not sinking!" And so it is in all the rivers and floods through which the believer has to pass; he cannot be holden of them, he rises above them, he is their superior in the Lord.

And thus the believer in Christ Jesus is to be distinguished by his buoyancy. This is to be his song as he confronts the most tremendous seas, "Therefore will we not fear though the waters roar and be troubled!" His fame is to be that of the man whom nothing can sink. He is to be always on the top of circumstances, their master and not their slave. Like the Apostle Paul, he is to be "always confident," knowing whom he has believed. When the spirits of others are sinking he is to be the one to hearten them, to lift them up by his own unquenchable cheer. He is to sing songs in the night.

And what times are these for the display of spiritual buoyancy! What great reasons for walking the troubled seas! What opportunities for witnessing to the power of the resurrection in lifting the soul above the floods of death and hell! For the Lord Himself is on the deep. He walks the waters which He calls us to tread. He does not send us on a daring but lonely errand; He invites us into His fellowship. The walk on the deep is a journey with the Lord. And, therefore, by faith we share His conquests. And when those who do not know the Lord look upon our power to rise above the troubled circumstance, their souls will begin to move toward the secret of our life, and by faith they also shall find the same uplifting strength in the fellowship of Christ.—J. H. Jowett.

"I"

In all I think, or do, or say,
 "I" must come, must have its way;
 "I" is first, and "I" is last;
 "I" is present; "I" is past.
 Yes, and oft this little "I"
 Mars my generosity;
 When I think 'tis all for "you,"
 "I" has motives not a few.
 Oh, you little egotist,
 Of my life the greatest pest!
 If I could be rid of you,
 I would act from motives new;
 But to me you fondly cling—
 With you ever sorrow bring;
 Others vanished from thy sight,
 Self seems only thy delight.
 But 'twill not be always so—
 "I" shall learn its place to know;
 Yes, this little tyrant "I,"
 Shall leave its place before I die;
 "I" no more shall rule my heart,
 Nor selfish thoughts to me impart,
 For Christ shall cast the tyrant down
 That "I" no more shall rule the town.
 —Selected.

Attachment to Christ is the only secret of detachment from the world.—A. J. Gordon.

IF YOU LOVE HIM, TELL HIM NOW

If with pleasure you are viewing any work a man is doing,

If you like him or you love him, tell him now;

Don't withhold your approbation till the parson makes oration

As he lies with snowy lilies o'er his brow;
For, no matter how you shout it, he won't really care about it;

He won't know how many teardrops you have shed;

If you think some praise is due him, now's the time to pass it to him,

For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead!

More than fame and more than money is the comment kind and sunny,

And the hearty, warm approval of a friend,
For it gives to life a savor and it makes you stronger, braver,

And it gives you heart and spirit to the end;
If he earns your praise—bestow it; if you like him, let him know it;

Let the words of true encouragement be said;

Do not wait till life is over and he's underneath the clover,

For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead!

—Selected.

DIVERS SORTS OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

(From "Luther on Galatians")

1. Political or civil righteousness.

Dealt by emperors, princes of the world, philosophers, and lawyers.

2. Ceremonial righteousness.

Taught by traditions of men and safe for parents and schoolmasters only as given for correction of manners, and certain observations concerning this life, never attributing power to it, to satisfy for sin, please God, or deserve grace.

3. Righteousness of the Law, or the Ten Commandments.

Taught by Moses.

4. Righteousness of faith, or Christian righteousness.

Above all. Neither political nor ceremonial, nor of God's law, nor consisting of works—a passive righteousness. In it we work nothing, render nothing to God. We rather receive and suffer. Another to work in us, that is to say, God. This righteousness hidden in mystery and unknown to the world.

"We shall have all eternity to celebrate the victories, but we have only the few hours before sunset to win them."

PUBLICITY FOR THE WORD OF GOD

The cut shown in connection illustrates a rather uncommon method for getting mighty texts of Scripture before the people.

The men (volunteers) are called "Scripture text carriers" and what they carry a "text pole outfit." This unusual evangelistic agency was begun in Sunderland, England, in 1908, with two carriers. The record to date shows that hundreds of outfits have been issued for use in various parts of the earth. Texts have been printed in Spanish and French, as well as English. As a result, many souls have been brought to saving knowledge of Jesus Christ and believers strengthened. The "mission" is called "Scripture Text Carriers," and the American representative is Kenneth Tate, Box 153, Redondo Beach, Cal. Mr. Tate says: "We freely offer a text placard outfit to any brother who will suffer reproach by carrying the Word of God amongst the masses in the name of the Lord."

MARTIN LUTHER ON WAR

War is one of the greatest plagues that can afflict humanity: it destroys religion, it destroys states, it destroys families. Any scourge, in fact, is preferable to it. Famine and pestilence become as nothing in comparison with it.

MARTIN LUTHER ALSO SAID THIS

For where God built a church, there the Devil would also build a chapel.

Tell your master that if there were as many devils at Worms as tiles on its roofs, I would enter.

Wealth is the smallest thing on earth, the least gift that God has bestowed on mankind.

Seek thyself only in Christ, and not in thyself; so wilt thou find thyself in Him for eternity.

The human heart is like a millstone in a mill: When you put wheat under it, it turns and grinds and bruises the wheat to flour; if you put no wheat, it still grinds on, but then 'tis itself it grinds and wears away.

Foreign Mission Department

PAN-AMERICANISM A NEW BROTHERHOOD

By Rev. Edmund F. Cook, D.D.

THE deep interest of the American people in the great world war and the centering of thought and interest in the sending forth of our young men as soldiers to fight the battles of our country must not lead us to overlook any of the opportunities which providentially open to the churches of God in America to deliver her peculiar missionary message. The very fact of the great war in Europe places a new emphasis upon the responsibility of the Christian forces of North America to deliver the message of Jesus Christ to South America and the other Latin countries. New conditions have arisen, new needs and opportunities made known which together constitute a new and mighty call from God to action. The Americas are naturally being drawn closer and closer together.

Pan-Americanism has come to be more than a phrase; it is now, a stirring reality. The new pan-Americanism is a declaration of American interdependence. Three outstanding events have tremendously affected the relation of the Americas and the interpretation of Americanism: the opening of the Panama Canal, the great war in Europe, and continued revolutions in Mexico. These events have affected tremendously the political, commercial; social and religious life of the nations. They have brought to light as nothing else in history the unity of American interests, the uniqueness of American problems, the interdependence of American governments and the brotherhood of the American peoples. As these relationships became more clearly defined and as a result of a growing American spirit, pan-American congresses have been held on commerce, finance, science, education and religion. The methods of these congresses have been scientific, and the results have been a better understanding of the common problems and a closer fellowship in the effort to solve them.

A brief study of the three events just referred to enables us to see clearly the bases of this new American brotherhood.

The Panama Canal

Consider for example the opening of the Panama Canal, which has revised the trades interests and relations of all the Americas. New York and the west coast of South America have been brought closer together by thousands of miles, so also with San Francisco and the east coast of South America, thus reducing distance and lowering shipping rates in the growing trade between the United States and South America as we exchange our manufactured goods for the rich, natural products of South America. The significance of these facts is felt when one interprets such figures as the following: Saved in distance on trade routes from New York to Guayaquil, 7,405 miles; to Callao, 6,250 miles; to Iquique, one of the great nitrate ports of the world, 5,139 miles; to Valparaiso, 3,747 miles. Saved in distance from Galveston, New Orleans, Mobile, Pensacola, Tampa, Savannah, Charleston and Norfolk, to the ports on the west coast of South America, from 4,108 to 8,400 miles.

The saving in distance here exhibited alone is enough to indicate that the trades relation of the United States and South America will inevitably be more intimate than was possible before the canal was built. Thus we are suddenly made into a new neighborhood with business interests in common.

The War in Europe

The great war in Europe has tended to increase the intimacy and interdependence of North and South America. For four hundred years South America looked to Europe for her manufactured goods, for her social influences, for her educational opportunities, and for her religious ideals. For more than three years, however, the intercourse between South America and Europe has been cut off, and today South America is looking to the United States for her manufactured articles, a new era of social intercourse has sprung up, the sons and daughters of Latin America are pouring into the United States in search of educational opportunities, and South America is in position as never before to receive religious impressions from the United States and to recognize a religious leadership from the churches of North America. It is an interesting fact that there are today thousands of Latin American students in the United States, whereas they were numbered by scores before the war. There is an openness of mind and a receptivity on the part of the leaders and masses of Latin America that was not known in former years. Thus the war in Europe has suddenly brought about a new sense of commercial, social, educational and religious interrelation of the Americas, as well as having accentuated the consciousness of commercial opportunities which arise from the geographical relation of North and South America.

Revolutions in Mexico

Continued revolutions in Mexico have been no less influential in emphasizing the new Americanism. Tumult and strife in Mexico have made serious political troubles for the United States. In honest effort to avoid war and the crushing of a weaker power, the United States accepted the proffered mediation of Argentine, Brazil and Chili. The result of this new diplomacy was a better understanding on the part of South America, of our political aims, and a clearer understanding of the policies of the United States in the maintenance of the Monroe Doctrine. Formerly Latin America misunderstood and mistrusted the United States. Latin America has always been suspicious of the Monroe Doctrine, but the A. B. C. mediation has tended to commonize our interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine and to modernize the same, bringing all the Americas into a sense of responsibility for its proper interpretation and application.

Thus the American nations have been bound together in bonds of a new brotherhood. This therefore is the day of our greatest opportunity to bless these bonds and to cement them forever. In this new brotherhood springing from many and widely different sources, America is the big brother. There is therefore a service which the United States can render with greater efficiency and fruitfulness today than in any former period of American history. The greatest service is unquestionably the promotion in Latin America of the knowledge of the living Christ and the up-building of a Christian influence in the social, educational and religious life of the people. There is also in this new brotherhood a new opportunity to promote in the churches in the United States a new and deeper sense of responsibility for the evangelization of Latin America.

If we have rightly interpreted the new Americanism and if in it there really dwells the spirit of a new brotherhood, there unquestionably rests upon the Christian forces of the United States a new and well defined responsibility to redeem Latin America from the semi-darkness of a paganized Romanism. This responsibility involves: (1) the circulation and interpretation of the Holy Scriptures as revealing the Word and will of God and as constituting the foundation of a Christian civilization; (2) an interpretation of Jesus Christ as the revelation of the perfect and holy love of the Father Who by His death on Calvary made full atonement for our sins; (3) an illustration of the spiritual life as a fruit of personal and intimate and loving communion with the Father and with Jesus Christ His Son.

This threefold ministry we must render because the Roman Catholic Church through four hundred years of dominance in Latin lands has denied the people the Word of God, has obscured the living Christ and has divorced morals and religion in the life of the church.

Now that a new brotherhood has suddenly emerged from new world conditions, the United States is placed in a new position of responsibility as the biggest and strongest of the American republics. If as a nation we ever stood in the door of Christian opportunity it is today as we look upon Latin America. If ever upon God's people in this land there rested a responsibility for the evangelization of a people it is today as we enter into new relations with Latin America. Upon our consciousness of God and upon our sense of obligation under the bonds of a Christian brotherhood will depend the moral and spiritual advance of Latin America.

INDIA'S LONG WAITING-LIST

In a recent bulletin Mr. R. B. Eleazer, editor of "The Missionary Voice," gives the following stirring facts:

But the most staggering success has been in India. Not only are India's mission schools and churches full, but there stands outside these institutions a waiting-list of more than 150,000 registered applicants for baptism who cannot be received because there are not churches and schools and ministers enough to give them Christian leadership and training. Whole villages and counties are turning en masse to Christianity. The mayors of two hundred villages recently agreed to use their influence to make the entire population of their villages Christian. The Christian community in India is increasing at the rate of five thousand new members every month, or sixty thousand per year. The fact that the bitterest persecution prevails seems only to add impetus to the movement.

JAPANESE BILLY SUNDAY

A three-year evangelistic campaign is sweeping Japan, and all the Protestant forces have united in pushing it. In Kyoto more than 20,000 people attended these special services; in Kobe several meetings had to be carried on simultaneously to accommodate the crowds. Thousands are being enrolled as seekers.

"Hallelujah Kim" (H. S. Kimura), the Japanese "Billy Sunday," is a conspicuous figure in the campaign. In his great tent he preached for two weeks in Tokyo to audiences of 5,000 and had 1,300 conversions.

The results of the campaign can be imagined from the fact that the Protestant missionaries in Japan have united in a call for 474 new missionaries to follow up and train the inquirers and candidates and to take advantage of the new interest in Christianity.

The Evangelistic Field

SUGGESTIONS TO OUR CORRESPONDENTS

Evangelists and other Christian workers reporting items or contributing any matter for this department will please arrange to have copy reach the magazine not later than the 10th of the month preceding date of issue.

"The Evangelistic Field" department is intended for news in concise reports of revival meetings, soul-winning campaigns, and a record of evangelistic work in general. We do not invite statements eulogizing the leaders or participants in this line of work, nor can we promise to print them.—Editors.

Bodell and Lytle began a meeting at Ensley, Ala., on September 9.

Robert E. Johnson and party report a successful opening of their meeting, September 9, at Hale, Mo.

John Imrie has been in the South during the summer, assisting Rev. Mr. Neill. They were working in Louisiana and Mississippi.

Herbert Reynolds in writing to "The Christian Workers Magazine" states that he just closed fine meetings at Cuero and Rockdale, Tex.

G. A. Klein and C. B. Clark report a meeting at Wills Point, Tex., where 500 decided for Christ. They also held a meeting at Newark, Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. George Preston will this year be associated with Myron E. Taylor in the West Wisconsin M. E. Conference, starting September 16, at Viola.

A. J. Fitt and party closed a successful campaign September 3 near Elm Creek, Neb. Unusual crowds of young men attended and many were converted.

Hart and Magann opened their fall campaign at Elk City, Okla., September 2. They have some open dates for the fall in the central and western states. Address, Madison, Wis.

James A. Armstrong writes as follows: "We closed a tent meeting at Elmo, Mo., with 117 conversions—15 the last night. People came a distance of ten miles to attend the meetings."

S. E. Lewis writes: "We are having a splendid work at Millport, N. Y. Backsliders are being brought to the Lord, and many reconciliations. Fifty took a stand for Christ at the first public invitation."

John M. Linden closed, Sept. 9, his last summer tent campaign in Wisconsin, at Par-deeville, where the three churches united in the effort. His fall work opened with a union tabernacle campaign at Rolla, Mo., Sept. 12.

R. C. Eddins, after a month's vacation at his home, began work near Fulton, Mo., August 26 in the Presbyterian church. During the past season Mr. Eddins was working with the W. W. Hall Party.

E. DeWitt Johnston and party opened their season's work at Dresden, Ont., September 2, with a union of twelve churches. It was a tabernacle campaign. The attendance at the opening service was large.

The Flowers Evangelistic Party recently closed two revivals on the plains of Texas. This party consists of the evangelist, Rev. R. L. Flowers, Mrs. Flowers, and A. J. Flowers. Their next meeting was to be at Medicine Lodge, Kan.

W. D. Wakefield writes: "After seven years of work in the pastorate, I am returning to my 'first love,' viz., evangelism. God has wonderfully blessed me in the pastorate, having given me 900 additions to my churches in six and a half years."

John C. O'Hair is making his headquarters for this season at 3553 N. Paulina Street, Chicago. He held meetings in Oak Park, Ill., during September in a tent. His recent meeting at Palestine, Tex., lasted eleven weeks. Encouraging reports come about his work.

Gardner W. Cory, Superintendent of the Union Mission of Wheeling, W. Va., was a recent visitor in the office of "The Christian Workers Magazine." A semi-annual report issued in August shows an encouraging condition of the mission, with a total of 363 reported conversions.

E. B. Westhafer closed on August 19 his summer's work which has been the best for years. He was at Buxton, Ia., where nearly 50 souls came in touch with Christ at Avery, Ia., Larwill, Ind., and in association with his brother, Rev. F. M. Westhafer, at the Deputy (Ind.) Camp Meeting.

L. E. Speegle writes from Boomer, W. Va., as follows: "Our meeting closed tonight after one of the hardest fights I have ever experienced. It is one of the toughest spots in West Virginia.

Theodore M. Hofmeister and party began a union tabernacle meeting at Norfolk, Va., September 2. Extensive preparations were made, prayer meetings having been held for over a month. At the time of writing, our correspondent stated it was believed the campaign would be one of the largest ever held in Norfolk.

A. E. Laraway, who for the past six years has been engaged as evangelistic singer, having been out with other evangelists, and the past season assisted pastors, is planning this year to do evangelistic preaching, and is open for engagements. His address is 153 Institute Place, Chicago.

Rev. C. W. Campbell and F. A. Geisenheiner closed a fifteen days' series of meetings in the M. E. church at Temple Hill, Ill., with a good number of conversions, reclamations and re-consecrations. Mr. Geisenheiner previously closed a meeting with Rev. F. R. Hastings at West Liberty, Ill.

The E. Dewitt Johnston Party opened their season's work at Dresden, Ont., Canada, September 2, with a union of twelve churches. The attendance was large and a beautiful spirit of harmony prevailed. The party consists of Mr. and Mrs. Johnston, Prof. Ray G. Swartzbaugh and Mrs. and Miss Huntly.

Rev. Harold L. Stephens and party begin their season's work in Stratford, Ont., September 30, in a union tabernacle campaign with ten churches. The prospects are bright for a splendid work. Mr. Stephens has associated with him this season: Mrs. H. L. Stephens, pianist and Bible woman; Miss Carolyn A. Hosford, secretary and young women's worker; Professor William Dixon, chorister; Mrs. Dixon, children's and personal worker; Vance S. Shober, advance and shop man.

Norman H. Camp will conduct a number of Bible conferences along prophetic lines this season. On September 2 he began a series of studies in Revelation in the Congregational church at Owen, Wis. In connection with his addresses, Mr. Camp also gave two addresses on missions, using the stereopticon views of Arica in the evening, is a member of the Chicago Council of the Africa Inland Mission. On September 16 he began a campaign at Wright, Ia., and on October 14 will conduct special meetings at Hamilton, Ont., Canada.

The Wheaton Bible Conference will meet in the buildings of Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill., the Lord willing, October 13-21. Rev. E. J. Richards and Rev. J. E. Jaderquist will take the evangelistic addresses and Bible studies. Rev. R. R. Brown of Pennsylvania will conduct the gospel music. Many local workers are expected—President Charles A. Blanchard, Rev. R. R. Kennan, Rev. W. H. Chandler, Rev. J. G. Brooks, Rev. William Colby and wife, evangelists, and others. There also will be a number of missionaries. Friends from abroad will be entertained at an expense of $1 per day, provided notice is given by October 7. Those desiring information may address Miss Rose Meebold, Wheaton, Ill.

Miss Victoria Booth-Clibborn, who is well known as an evangelist, reports that last winter the Lord opened doors for her to do some unusual work in the drawing rooms of influential homes in St. Louis and New York. She had the privilege of meeting and addressing those who are almost unreached by the average evangelist or preacher, and was surprised at the greatness of their need, their heart hunger, their dissatisfaction with the world, and their ignorance of spiritual things, so much greater than that of the poor who have had much more done for them on those lines. In some meetings the attendance averaged from 100 to 200 persons for a period of two hours at a time. Many of these broke down under the preaching and surrendered themselves to Christ. Miss Booth Clibborn is a daughter of the Marechale of France, and grand-daughter of General Booth of the Salvation Army. Her home address is 4356 Lowell Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Dr. French E. Oliver closed a campaign, which began May 20, in Vancouver, B. C., and which our correspondent states has been a religious revival of great power along strictly biblical lines. More than 2500 names were recorded of those who professed to accept Christ. Dr. Oliver was assisted by Rev. George E. Hunter of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, Rev. Frank A. Miller, Mrs. Neth, Miss Marie Carter, and others; with J. Raymond Hemminger as leader of the singing, and A. Fath as pianist. For some time there had been several groups of earnest Christians holding weekly meetings for definite blessing, praying that a revival might come to the city. This preparation proved to be a most substantial ground work for the work of Dr. Oliver. No plate offerings were taken for the running expenses of the work, but boxes were placed at points of vantage where the people could deposit their gifts for the work.

The third annual missionary and Bible conference of the Moody Church was held at Cedar Lake, Ind., August 26 to September 3. In the absence of Paul Rader, pastor, Rev. E. Y. Woolley, assistant pastor, was in charge of the conference. Among the speakers were Evangelist J. C. O'Hair; Charles G. Trumbull, who gave several addresses on the "Victorious Life"; Miss Victoria Booth-Clibborn; Evangelist Charles Inglis, for many years an associate of D. L. Moody; Leon Tucker, Editor of "The Wonderful Word"; Rev. A. B. Simpson, President of the Christian and Missionary Alliance; Rev. H. H. Gregg; and Rev. Mark A. Matthews. Great blessing attended the conference as a whole, and the responses to the invitations were very encouraging. Twenty-seven young people offered themselves for the foreign mission field. On the last Sunday a special baptismal service was held in the lake, when a number of young people were baptized. The attendance was doubled over that of a year ago, and indications point to a very large gathering in coming summers, if the Lord tarry. Arthur McKee had charge of the singing.

FUTURE ENGAGEMENTS

Below are given the engagements, with dates as far as known, of the workers named. Our readers are earnestly invited to remember these laborers and their fields of appointment in their prayers.

James A. Armstrong Party—Until Oct. 9, Croton, Ia.; Nov., Rome, Ia.
Daisy D. Barr Party—Until Oct. 14, Advance, Ind.; Oct. 21, South Bend, Ind.; Nov.-Dec., Shalfordville, Bangor and Clinton Corners, New York.
Ira S. Bassett Party—Until Oct. 7, Woodlawn, Pa.
Hay Bell—Oct., Mitchell, Neb.; Nov., Ashley, Mo.; Dec., Belleflower, Mo.
L. C. Bennett Party—Oct. 14, Canton, Pa.
W. E. Biederwolf Party—Nov. 7, Long Beach, Cal.
H. W. Bromley Party—Until Oct. 21, Brainerd, Minn.
W. A. Bodell Party—Until Oct. 7, Ensley, Ala.
Norman H. Camp—Oct. 14, Hamilton, Ont., Can.
D. L. Coale Party—Sept. 24, Terrell, Tex.; Oct. 15, Franklin, Tex.
Cotterell-Wegner Party—Until Oct. 14, Piedmont, W. Va.
Daily Party—Fall of 1917, Hermon, Madrid, Brainerdville, and Lisbon Center, N. Y.
Edw. R. Dow—Nov., Watseka, Ill.
F. M. Dunk—Until Oct. 14, Deer Park, Ill.; Oct. 19, Orion, Ill.
H. P. Dunlop Party—Until Oct. 20, South Bend, Ind.; Nov. 11, St. Marys, O.
Prof. R. C. Eddins—Until Oct. 28, Kingsville, Mo.
Erskine-Whitaker—Oct. 28, Vernon, Mich.
W. A. Erwin Party—Oct.-May, North Dakota.
Clyde Lee Fife Party—Oct. 14, Centralia, Ill.; Nov. 18, Mt. Vernon, Ill.; Jan.-Feb., Peru, Ind.
Flowers Party—Oct. 16, Nickerson, Kan.; Nov. 16, Meade, Kan.; Jan. 1, 1918, Kiowa, Kan.
S. B. Goff, Jr.—Oct., Downingtown, Pa.
S. D. Goodale—Oct. 14, Pawnee Rock, Kan.
George W. Griffin—Until Oct. 14, Fairfax, Mo.
R. A. Hadden—Oct.-Nov., Toronto, Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago.
O. E. Hamilton Party—Until Oct. 14, Billings, Okla.
W. D. Hamilton Party—Oct., Manson, Ia.
Bertha J. Harris—Until Oct. 14, Sutton's Bay, Mich.; Oct. 21, Manton, Mich.
Haudenschild and Fugh—Until Oct. 11, Iola, Kan.; Oct. 14, Beaver City, Neb.; Nov. 18, Lawrenceville, Ill.
J. O. A. Henry Party—Oct.-Nov., Marion, Ill.
C. E. Hillis Party—Oct., Detroit, Mich.
Tillman Hobson Party—Oct., McPherson, Kan.; Nov., Muskogee, Okla.
I. E. Honeywell Party—Oct., Wellsville, N. Y.; Nov.-Dec., Little Rock, Ark.

Andrew Johnson—Oct., Au Sable Forks, N. Y.
R. E. Johnson Party—Until Oct. 8, Hale, Mo.
E. DeWitt Johnston Party—Oct., Blenheim, Ont.; Nov., Wingham, Ont.
Bob Jones Party—Until Oct. 14, Columbus, Tenn.; Oct. 21, Atchison, Kan.
Klein-Clark Party—Oct., New Albany, Miss.
Ethel A. Knapp Party—Oct. 28-Nov. 18, Bordentown, N. J.; Nov. 25-Dec. 23, Baltimore, Md.
Lovie P. Law Party—Oct., Baltimore, Md.; Nov., Waynesboro, Va.
John M. Linden Party—Until Oct. 14, Rollo, Mo.; Oct. 17, Plainfield, N. J.; Nov. 14-Dec. 9, Long Branch, N. J.
Oscar Lowry Party—Sept. 23-Nov. 4, Norman, Okla.; Nov. 5-Dec. 9, Vinita, Okla.
J. C. Ludgate—Oct., Racine, Wis.
J. H. McCombe Party—Oct. 9, Massena, N. Y.
W. E. McCoy Party—Until Oct. 7, Plevna, Kan.; Oct. 14-Nov. 4, Leon, Kan.
J. B. McMinn Party—Sept. 30, Lisbon, O.; Nov. 11, Columbus Grove, O.
F. R. Margetts Party—Oct., Bozeman, Mont.
Mathis-Vessey Party—Oct., Wessington Springs, S. D.
W. C. Moorman—Oct. 14-Nov. 4, Brookville, Kan.; South Old Forge, Pa.; Jan., Chester, Pa.; Feb., Pottstown, Pa.; March, New Milford, Pa.; April-May 1, Chester, Pa.
E. C. Miller Party—Oct., Port Chester, N. Y.; Nov. 4, Ansonia, Conn.
Molyneux-Hakes Party—Oct., Tuckahoe, N. J.
A. J. Moore Party—Oct., Tampa, Fla.; Nov., Cuthbert, Ga.
W. C. Moorman—Oct. 14-Nov. 4, Brookville, Kan. Nov. 5-Nov. 26, Carneiro, Kan.; Nov. 27-Dec. 16, Galatia, Kan.
P. C. Nelson Party—Oct. 7, Guthrie Center, Ia.; Nov. 11, Akron, Ia.
O. A. Newlin Party—Oct. 7, Millersburg, O.
W. P. Nicholson—Oct. 6, New York City; Oct. 21, East Stroudsburg, Pa.; Nov. 18, Darby, Pa.; Dec. 30, Shamokin, Pa.
John C. O'Hair—Oct., Dallas, Tex.
E. W. Petticoard Party—Sept. 30, Three Rivers, Mich.; Oct. 28, Toledo, O.; Nov. 25, Louisville, Ky.
W. A. Fuglesley Party—Oct., North Brookfield, N. Y.; Nov., Wellsburg, N. Y.
Milton S. Rees—Sept. 16, Paris, Ill.; Oct. 21, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.
Herbert Reynolds—Oct., Ozona, Tex.; Nov., Carrizo Springs, Tex.
F. E. Rimanoczy—Oct., Flushing, Mich.; Nov., Evans Mills, N. Y.; Dec., Newfane, N. Y.
W. M. Runyan Party—Oct., Lancaster, Wis.; Nov., Wamega, Kan.; Dec., Fowler, Kan.
Jas. Rayburn Party—Oct., Appleton, Wis.; Nov.-Dec., Baraboo, Wis.
Russell-Weaver Party—Until Oct. 14, Mount Union, Pa.
Harold F. Sayles—Oct. 2, McBrides, Mich.; Oct. 21, DeWitt, Mich.
Sloum-Smith Party—Oct., Middletown, N. Y.; Nov., Dalton, Pa.
Speegle-Bilyeu Party—Oct., Montgomery, W. Va.; Nov., Almond, Wis.
Chas. Cullen Smith Party—Oct., Woodward, Okla.; Dec., Clear Lake, S. D.
George T. Stephens Party—Until Oct. 14, Pine Bluff, Ark.
Harold L. Stephens Party—Oct., Stratford, Ont.; Nov. 18-Dec. 23, Brookings, S. D.
Henry W. Stough Party—Oct., Peoria, Ill.
Charles Stewart and Wife—Oct., Mineola, Kan.; Nov.-Dec., Windfall, Ind.; Jan., Newcastle, Ind.
William A. Sunday Party—Sept.-Oct., Los Angeles, Cal.; Nov.-Dec., Atlanta, Ga.; Jan.-Feb., Washington, D. C.; March-May 19, Chicago, Ill.; May 26-July 7, Duluth, Minn.
A. T. Swanson Party—Until Oct. 14, Turin, Ia.; Oct. 21-Nov. 18, Asbury Park, N. J.
Franklin W. Swift—Oct., Columbus, O.
Taylor and Preston—Until Oct. 7, Viola, Wis.; Oct. 14-Nov. 11, Darlington, Wis.
Wm. D. Wakefield—Oct. 1-14, Louisville, Ky.; Oct. 15-28, Chattanooga, Tenn.
Chas. F. Weigle Party—Sept. 23, Ridgefield Park, N. J.; Nov.-Dec., Wilkes-Barre, Pa.
Charles T. Wheeler Party—Oct., Greenville, Ill.; Nov. 4, Lawrenceville, Ill.
Oliver E. Williams Party—Nov., Carlisle, Pa.; Dec., Hopeland, Pa.
E. L. Wolsagel—Oct. 7, Ft. Smith, Ark.; Oct. 28, Greenville, S. C.; Nov. 18, Water Valley, Miss.
J. E. Zoller Party—Until Oct. 14, Owendale, Mich.

Book Notices

Any book favorably mentioned below may be secured at price named from the Bible Institute Colportage Association,
822 North La Salle Street, Chicago.

Anchored Till Daybreak and Other Sermons, by Rev. W. Leon Tucker.

40 pages, $7\frac{1}{2} \times 5\frac{1}{4}$ inches. The Book Stall, 113 Fulton St., New York. Paper. 15 cents.

A new edition of 100,000 copies of "The Way of Life" has just been printed. This makes the number of this tract published in English, Italian, and Spanish nearly two million. Any one desiring a few copies of this striking and attractive tract can secure them by sending a two cent stamp to Norman H. Camp, 5416 Winthrop Avenue, Chicago.

Studies in the Book of Revelation, by Rev. W. Leon Tucker.

This is a collection of five teachings, together with a divisional display of the Book of Revelation in the fresh and interesting style of the author.

29 pages. $7\frac{1}{2} \times 5\frac{1}{4}$ inches. The Book Stall, 113 Fulton St., New York. Paper. 10 cents.
J. H. R.

The Heifer on Its Haunches and Other Sermons, by Rev. W. Leon Tucker.

38 pages, $7\frac{1}{2} \times 5\frac{1}{4}$ inches. The Book Stall, 113 Fulton St., New York. Paper. 15 cents.

The ten sermons in these booklets have blessed thousands in their delivery and are now in form to bless other thousands.

J. H. R.

The Kingdom of God, The Kingdom of Heaven and the Church, by Rev. Wm. H. Bates, D. D.

The title of this pamphlet suggests distinctions and the author most clearly makes them. Many a perplexed person will find his perplexity disappear on the reading of this address.

28 pages. 5×7 inches. Paper. Charles C. Cook, 150 Nassau St., New York. 10 cents.
J. H. R.

The New Testament of Our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, Emphasizing His Second Coming.

This volume is put forth by the Testament Publishing Corporation, of 461 Eighth Avenue, New York City. It is the Authorized Version, emphasized in italics as to inferential statements and in black-faced type as to positive allusions to our Lord's return. There is no change in the text. Any profit from the publication is utilized for world-wide missions.

The idea is a precious one, and we wonder that it was not thought of before. The reading of the edition will certainly quicken the blessed hope in the hearts of all believers. We commend it for gift purposes. J. M. G.

The Social Teachings of the Jewish Prophets, by William Bennett Bizzell.

Such value as this book may have as a sociological study is largely spoiled for us by its attitude to the Scriptures. The author seems to regard the statements of the prophets as the product of their own thoughts rather than as the commandments of God.

237 pages. $5\frac{1}{4} \times 8$ inches. Sherman, French & Company, Boston. \$1.25 net.

L. W. G.

The Pocket Treasury.

This is one of the very best of the small books for the pockets of the soldiers and sailors. It is a collection of choice selections of Scripture, some instruction as to beginning and living the Christian life, and a few popular hymns. There is an identification card, as well as a notification card to be used in case of emergency.

In some ways this "treasury" may be more useful to the soldier or sailor than a New Testament.

80 pages. $2\frac{3}{4} \times 4\frac{1}{2}$ inches. The Bible Institute Colportage Association, 822 N. La Salle St., Chicago. Cloth cover, 5 cents; 100 for \$4.50.

J. H. R.

The Fundamentals, by various authors.

These four volumes, embracing almost all the publications that were known as "The Fundamentals" were published serially some eight years ago in Chicago. The original publication was made possible by the generosity of two Christian men, who set aside a large sum of money for the purpose. Of the volumes printed, some 300,000 were sent to ministers, missionaries and other Christian workers throughout the world gratuitously. When the fund was exhausted, the demand for the work was continued and it is now published in the form given below. The range of the subject is wide, but everything was shortly censored by editors carefully chosen, so that only that which was theologically sound was printed.

1470 pages, $8 \times 5\frac{3}{4}$ inches. The Biola Book Room, Los Angeles, Cal. Cloth, \$3.50 per set, postpaid.

J. H. R.

Christian Science, by Rev. Percy W. Stephens.

Of the many excellent brochures and lectures showing the great errors of Christian Science, this one must be given a first place. The pedigree, the principles, and the posterity of Christian Science, present a logical method of treatment on this great delusion.

Of this pamphlet, Dr. W. H. Griffith Thomas says: "This pamphlet thoroughly deserves the commendation of the writer of the preface who says, 'This is one of the clearest, sanest and most Christian discussions that I have ever heard on the subject. It is marked by thorough knowledge of the subject and careful statements. It is in every way admirable.'"

30 pages. 5½x8 inches. Paper. The Bible Institute Colportage Association, 826 N. La Salle St., Chicago. 15 cents. J. H. R.

"Believing Is Seeing," "Faith," "Prayer," "The God Planned Life," "The Spirit Filled Life," "The Dedicated Life," "Chastening," "The Sure Shepherd," "The Highway of Guidance," "Give God a Chance," are leaflets by James H. McConkey, a Christian layman whose writings for many years have been looked upon as among the very choicest spiritual literature and may be had for the asking of the Silver Publishing Company, 113 Bessemer Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Samples may be secured by addressing the above firm. The same publishers will also send free "The Three Fold Secret of the Holy Spirit," "The Surrendered Life," and "The Volume of the Book." The first of these publications has been before the Christian public for some twenty years and has by many been esteemed as one of the most helpful small volumes on the subject of the Holy Spirit, and has been a blessing to many thousands of regenerated persons. J. H. R.

The Silence of God, by Sir Robert Anderson.

The tenth edition of this remarkable little book is before the public. It was written in view of the fearful massacre of the Armenians a good many years ago, but is peculiarly interesting in these days of world war and conditions which go far beyond those when the book was written. The same situations confront us all, only in an exaggerated form and we may ask, "Does God know and is there knowledge in the Most High?" The author explains the silence of God in this way: "God is silent because Heaven has come down to earth. The climax of divine revelation has been reached. There is no reserve of mercy yet to be unfolded. God has spoken His last word of love and grace, and when next He breaks the silence it will be to let loose the judgment, which will engulf the world that has rejected Christ." Does it not look as if those judgments were now being enacted before our eyes?

212 pages. 5x7½ inches. Gospel Publishing House, Binghamton, N. Y. 2s. 6d. net. J. H. R.

The Mexican Problem, by Clarence W. Barron, with introduction by Talcott Williams, LL. D.

Mr. Barron takes the view that the solution of the Mexican problem is a business one, and as he is the manager of the "Wall Street Journal" and the "Boston News Bureau," we should imagine as much. With him the Standard Oil Company, the Guggenheims, Lord Cowdray, Edward L. Doheny, the late President Diaz, et al., if not exactly saints, "cum near it," as Mike said of Dennis who had just died.

And yet he makes out a strong case. The attorney for the other side, if there is such a side, will have hard work to combat his facts and his philanthropic pleadings and almost tears.

He writes as a reporter not an essayist, and notwithstanding current opinion on that score, such writing is often hard to read particularly because it seems to be throwing dust in your eyes all the time.

Nevertheless the book should have a wide reading among the thoughtful people of this country, because when our new army is once ready for action against Germany, the Mexican problem is coming to the fore again in Washington, and all of us will need to be intelligent as to what it is. Our present judgment is that the United States will have to do for Mexico what it has done for Cuba, but it will take a longer time to do it and cost more. Our self-preservation requires it, but so also does our duty to Mexico and the rest of the world.

136 pages, 5x6½ inches. Houghton, Mifflin Company, Boston, Mass. Cloth, $1.00 net

J. M. G.

The Story of St. Paul's Life and Letters, by J. Paterson Smyth, B. D., LL. D., Litt. D., D. C. L.

Dr. Smyth says: "During several years past, for some months each year, I have treated my Sunday morning congregation as a great Bible class, taking them straight through the Bible in broad outline. This book is the substance of one of these lecture series." Dr. Smyth is the master of a fascinating style and has given us an interesting book, more helpful than the usual volume of sermons because so full of the Word of God. It will do for the general reader what Conybeare and Howson, in their "Life of Paul," do for the student, giving the epistles in their setting. We do not agree with some of Dr. Smyth's other books, but we commend the general plan of this one.

223 pages. 5x7½ inches. James Pott & Company, New York. $1.00 net. L. W. G.

The Gospels and The Acts of the Apostles, by Rev. William Evans, Ph. D., D. D., Associate Dean, Bible Institute of Los Angeles, Cal.

This is the second volume of Dr. Evans' series, "Through the Bible—Book by Book." The aim of the series is to give "a popular, practical and synthetic" presentation of the contents of the Bible. Dr. Evans tells us these expositions have been taught with success in the class room and in large popular Bible classes, some of them having two thousand in attendance. We heartily agree with him that "the great spiritual need of today is the presentation of the contents of the Bible in such a manner as will interest not only the ministry, but also Christian laymen." Dr. Evans' expositions, with their full analyses, summaries of doctrine and popular form of presentation, will help much to meet this need.

269 pages. 5½x8½ inches. Fleming H. Revell Company, New York. $1.25 net. L. W. G.

From Romance to Reality, An Autobiography, by Rev. Henry Clay Mabie, D. D., LL. D., author of "In Brightest Asia," "The Meaning and Message of the Cross," "The Divine Right of Missions," etc.

We do not see how any Baptist, clerical or lay, who is really interested in his denominational history and work can get along without this book, which is a Hall of Fame of the worthies of the 50's, 60's and 70's, not to speak of later leaders. Dr. Mabie knew most of them, and has the gift of characterizing them in a brief phrase or two of living interest.

Young men of college age, or earlier, who are considering a career, will find the book useful in determining providential leadings, and young pastors will be pleased with the details it gives of inside parish history. One chapter alone, "My Jabbok and Peniel," is worth many times the cost of the book to any minister. We covet for no brother in Christ the mental and spiritual suffering therein depicted, but the blessing following rarely comes to a Christian in any other way.

No greater service can be rendered by the book than that of stirring up the church to a sense of responsibility for evangelizing the heathen lands. The author would say this was his greatest work, and he contributes to it in a very practical way by the story of his travels in mission lands, and a chapter on "Home Movements and Methods," to say nothing of a later one on "The Co-ordination Movement." As Home Secretary for the Baptist Missionary Union for many years he had unusual qualifications for this task. In this connection we commend especially what he says about conferences for the deepening of the spiritual life, the voluntary principle in missions, and his reflections on deficits in missionary boards. The latter sometimes reveal imprudence of management but as often they are evidences of real faith.

The chapter firing us the most was the history of the author's literary products. Dr. Mabie combines with a practical knowledge of the Bible a capacity for philosophic thinking not possessed by many, and his analysis of his works, "The Meaning and Message of the Cross," "How Does the Death of Christ Save Us?" "The Divine Reason of the Cross," "Under the Redeeming Aegis," and "The Rational Grounds of Theism," furnishes a rich treatise on the atonement even if those volumes themselves were never read. But we strongly recommend every one of them to our ministerial brethren.

After his official retirement from the Missionary Union our author entered upon a world-wide missionary lectureship, financed in part by interested friends, and in which he is actively engaged at present. No chapter descriptive of these later travels has more interest for the reader today than "A Winter in Germany," where he made a point of coming into touch with typical forms of its university life, and where he came to see that its boasted "academic freedom" is rather "academic bondage to the monarchial absolutist militaristic state." An interview held here with Prof. Haeckel and reported in an appendix, is illuminative on the subject of the theistic faith.

We wish there were space to say more about the book, which concludes with a most interesting and quickening personal confession of faith concerning the fundamentals of revealed and organized Christianity. We pause to mention the author's view of the atonement as "at bottom a form of self-reconciliation (far deeper than its historical denouement and manifestation on Calvary). It was eternal in the being of God Himself. The conflict between the divine holiness and love occasioned by man's sin was harmonized through God's own self-imposed vicarious suffering, immanent in the "Lamb slain from the foundation of the world."

396 pages. 6x8¾ inches. To be had from all leading book-sellers, or of the author at Roslindale, Mass. Cloth, $2.00 net. J. M. G.

The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

SPECIAL SPEAKERS

The student body were favored on September 11 by an address from Dr. Agide Perazzini, who has been doing work among the Italians under the direction of The Bible Teachers Training School of New York.

OPENING OF THE FALL TERM

The fall term opened under favorable circumstances, September 6. The enrollment of women was the largest in the history of the Institute, though the enrollment of men fell off on account of the draft for the war. The total enrollment will be large enough to tax the capacities of the buildings and it is hoped that the new Administration Building will be under way at as early a date as possible.

A new dormitory has been opened for the women at the Northeast corner of LaSalle and Chestnut Streets, a large double apartment building having been remodeled for this purpose. It is to be known as Osborne Hall, and was formally dedicated on September 20.

On September 13 the reception of new students was held in the parlors of the Women's Building and it also was made the occasion for greeting to Mr. E. O. Sellers, who has just returned from the camps in England and France where he spent some months in Y. M. C. A. work among the soldiers. Professor and Mrs. Latchaw gave a couple of vocal selections which were highly appreciated.

INSTITUTE BUYS MOODY CHURCH

A formal announcement was made to the public on September 13 of the purchase of the Moody Church by The Moody Bible Institute. Since the erection of the Tabernacle at North Avenue and Clark Street the center of activities for the church has been in the Tabernacle, the church not being large enough to accommodate the crowds on Sundays and many other occasions. The trustees and the committee took up negotiations with a view to buying the new property which has a frontage of 400 feet on Clark Street, 300 feet on North Avenue and runs through to LaSalle Street. It is opposite Lincoln Park and is a very favorable location. The property was bought from the Crozer estate for $261,000. Definite plans have not been completed with regard to the new church building.

No announcement has been made as to how the Institute will use the church. It has been used for a long time for the larger classes and possibly ultimately will be remodeled to adapt it more to Institute uses. Much satisfaction is felt in the property coming into the hands of the Institute rather than being sold for business purposes. The building will never lose its interest to those who have read of the work of Moody and Sankey and how the money derived from the sale of their hymn books was devoted to building the church after the Chicago Fire. The sale price was $124,500.

REUNION AT WINONA LAKE, IND.

As the picture shows, our students had their annual reunion at the Winona Lake Bible Conference. The school was well represented and a very blessed time was spent, the first part of the hour being given to a social time when the students again got acquainted with one another over dishes of ice cream and cake. Then after the singing of a hymn the meeting was turned into an old fashioned fellowship meeting where many testimonies were given to God's faithfulness during the years of service. Prayers of intercession and praise were offered to God on behalf of the dear old M. B. I. The meeting was closed by singing "God Bless the School" and we came away feeling that our hearts had been warmed by the presence of our Lord Himself.

M. B. I. Reunion at Winona Lake, Ind., August, 1917

REUNION AT ELMIRA, N. Y.

While on vacation at his home in Elmira, N. Y., Dr. J. H. Ralston sent invitations to former and present M. B. I. students and subscribers to "The Christian Workers Magazine" to meet him for fellowship and inspiration. The meeting was held August 23, at the Colonial Inn. Regrets were read from several persons invited but not able to be present. There were present:

Evangelist Myron J. Smith and Mrs. Smith, Evangelist J. Roy Weakland and Mrs. Weakland, Misses Beulah and Theresa Wood, Miss Evelyn Kane, Miss Mabel C. Wade, and Miss Sue W. Ralston of Elmira; Mr. Ernest C. Potter, Old Forge, Pa.; Mr. Frank Reed, Mt. Keever, N. Y.; Miss Ada V. Kremer, Waverly, N. Y.; Mr. G. C. Prince, Athens, Pa., and Miss Gertrude A. Shelp, Washington, D. C.

After luncheon Dr. Ralston outlined the work of the Institute. He emphasized the loyalty of the Institute to the Word of God and the great practical work it is now doing. Testimonials were given by all present to the present influences of the Institute and Miss Evelyn Kane and Miss Beulah Wood spoke particularly of the uplift they had received in various ways. Mr. Frank Reed, a correspondence student, spoke of his work among the lumbermen of the Adirondacks. It is hoped that Elmira will soon furnish a center for an alumni association.

A reunion was held at the home of D. L. Lloyd, Sharon, Pa., September 4. Among the number present were H. W. Moore, '12; L. N. Say, '12; D. L. Lloyd, '13; G. C. Crockatt, '13; J. C. Bombeck, '14. An old-time fellowship and prayer meeting was held.

MISCELLANEOUS

A letter from Prof. J. B. Trowbridge, who is now associated with the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, says he is enjoying his work very much. During the summer he was with a quartet doing extension work along the coast as far north as Sacramento.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Fitt, recently announced the engagement of their daughter, Emma Moody Fitt, to Edward M. Powell, of New York. The announcement was made from their summer home at Manasquan, N. J. Mr. Powell's father was one of the early supporters of Mel Trotter's Mission in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Rev. Carl A. Montanus, '96, has planted a peck of potatoes for the Moody Bible Institute praying the Lord of the harvest to give increase. He has planted a dozen cabbage plants for the culinary region of the Institute. He suggests that it might be a good thing for the friends of the Institute to plant different things for it, send them to Chicago, sell them, and give it the proceeds.

Mrs. John R. Riebe, wife of Mr. Riebe, who is assistant to Mr. Buckalew in the Extension Department, has been permanently engaged to succeed Miss Lucy Irby, under Rev. W. W. Ketchum, in the Practical Work Course. Mrs. Riebe has had a wide experience in Christian work, having also labored for several years as a missionary in Africa with her husband, until he was compelled to return home on account of his health. She will have the assigning of the women students to their regular work in the city. She took up her duties May 29, but we failed to make the announcement at the time in these columns.

DONATIONS FOR MISSIONARY OUTFITS

The Christian Workers Magazine acknowledges with thanks the following contributions to help purchase new outfits for the missionaries who lost their baggage by the sinking of the "City of Athens," August 10:

Aug. 23—From a Student.....	$ 5.00
24—Mrs. T. J. S., Fennville, Mich.....	2.00
25—Rev. F. G. N., Sarnia, Ont., Can.....	1.00
28—I. D. S., Perrysburg, Ohio.....	3.50
29—F. G. C., New London, Conn.....	1.00
29—B. W. W., Newton, Iowa.....	1.00
29—E. J. N., Vandalia, Ill.....	2.00
29—M. R., Kansas City, Kan.....	2.00
30—H. C. C., Selkirk, N. Y.....	.50
31—F. S., New York, N. Y.....	1.00
Sept. 1—E. S., Berne, Ind.....	2.75
4—A. M. G., Hershey, Pa.....	.50
4—J. G. M., Toledo, Ohio.....	8.50
4—A. E. Orient, L. I., Chattanooga, Tenn.....	2.00
4—Mr. & Mrs. M. L. L., Chattanooga, Tenn.....	25.00
5—R. MacD., Westville, N. S.....	1.00
5—M. R., Hendersonville, N. C.....	25.00
7—Mrs. M. L. M., Hope, Ind.....	1.00
7—I. G. E., Lansing, Ill.....	1.50
8—Rev. H. A. C. A. Hutchinson, Minn.....	2.00
8—Mrs. J. H., Vandalia, Ill.....	2.50
10—Mrs. G. J., Rockford, Ill.....	1.00
11—J. A. J., Edmonton, Alta, Can.....	1.00
12—Mrs. C. G. F., Lock Haven, Pa.....	1.00
13—A. W., Moodus, Conn.....	4.00
14—Mrs. F. L. H., Neenah, Wis.....	2.00

CORRESPONDENCE DEPARTMENT

The Correspondence Department has again surpassed previous records as indicated by its report for the year closing August 31. During the year 1,885 new students were enrolled. Four thousand eight hundred thirty-one persons were instructed as regular correspondence students for the whole or part of the year. Several hundred persons have been enrolled in correspondence courses, so that the total taught by the department during the year was considerably more than 5,000. Three hundred and forty-six persons completed courses during the year.

The work has become so thoroughly established as a practical and profitable method of education, that greater confidence is dealt in urging its claims. Many religious periodicals are already indicating a desire to commend this kind of work. In this connection, it is interesting to note that the National Educational Association at its recent meeting in Portland, Ore., considered the problem of carrying public school instruction to the homes by correspondence. Persons are living today who will see the time when practically every home in this country, where there are children, will be receiving some school education by correspondence. The method of correspondence has justified itself.

Edward Beattie, Gunner, Royal Marine Artillery, H. M. S. Agamemnon, Mediterranean Sea, was enrolled as a correspondence student May 26, 1916. He was subsequently transferred to the Redbreast Auxiliary Fleet. While engaged in this service he had sent in five examinations, the last being received March 16, 1917. Two communications sent to him since have been returned marked "Reported Dead."

Sister Caroline Thompson, a correspondence student, lost her life in the sinking of the City of Athens on the coast of Africa, August 10, according to newspaper account and statements of intimate friends.

Sister Thompson was a missionary of the Lutheran church whose field of labor was at Fort Dauphin, Madagascar, and was on furlough in this country, at the time of her enrollment as a student. She had completed fifty-two lessons of the Scofield Course, and a certificate for completing this course will be sent to her father at Ansgar, Ia

Caroline Thompson

EXTENSION DEPARTMENT

Field Workers

Mrs. Russell will begin her fall work in Bible institutes at Lipscomb, Austin, San Antonio, Houston and Nacagdoches, Tex.: Miss Millar in evangelistic work in connection with the three M. E. churches of Winona, Minn.

Mr. W. L. Rugg had the assistance of his wife in promotive work prior to and during the Eagles Mere and Mountain Lake Bible Conferences conducted by the Institute.

Rev. Geo. E. Guille addressed the Indiana County Sunday School Convention at Saltsburg, Pa., the Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant church at Ravenwood, Mo., and the East Indiana Christian Conference at Moreland, Ind.

Mr. Hammontree is spending the month of September singing with our soldier boys in the Army Camps.

Christian Workers Bureau

Located: Pastors—Rev. Joseph C. Hart, Presbyterian churches of Avalon and Tiny, Mo., and S. A. Meissner, Congregational church, Brewster, Neb.

Evangelists—Rev. W. T. McCandless, Antioch, Neb., and W. F. McFarlan, Hindsboro, Ill., and D. B. Bulkley, assistant to Rev. Oscar Lowry.

Singer—Louis F. Burnett, Baptist convention, Benton Harbor, Mich., and Hale, Mo., with Evangelist Robert Johnson.

Y. W. C. A. Secretary—Martha C. Benedict, Coatesville, Pa.

Social Workers—Esther Spigal, Italian Presbyterian Mission, Chicago Heights, Ill., and Miss Anna Opdahl, Chicago Foundlings Home.

OUR BIBLE CONFERENCE AT MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK

A strong program and fine weather contributed a great deal to the large attendance at the sessions of the Third Bible Conference at Mountain Lake Park, Md., August 12-19. God was pleased to manifest His presence in a marked spirit of unity, both in the way the speakers coordinated their studies and addresses and in the atmosphere which pervaded the audiences. A progressive development of spiritual interest, leading up to a definite spiritual climax in the lives of many of those in attendance was a notable characteristic of the conference.

"The Unchanging Christ" was the subject of the masterful sermon with which the Rev. John Marvin Dean, D. D., of Chicago, opened the Conference on Sunday morning, and the impression made was deepened by his evening address.

The Rev. Joseph Kemp, pastor of the Metropolitan Tabernacle of New York City, delivered four evening addresses, the first three of which were in a series, in which the speaker drew a most impressive parallel comparing the predictions of the prophetic writers with the current events chronicled in the daily press. His first subject was "Preparing for Christ;" the second, "Preparing for Antievangelism. At 10:30 each morning, Miss Elinor Stafford Millar led the Conference in the study of "The Holy Spirit in the Life of the Believer."

The hour beginning at 11:30 was devoted throughout the Conference to Bible exposition by Mr. Page. The conference under his

M. B. I. Reunion, Mt. Lake Park Bible Conference, August, 1917

Christ;" the third, "Preparing for Armageddon."

The prayer service was conducted each morning before breakfast by the Rev. John C. Page. The period at 9:30 A. M. was, for two mornings, devoted to the study of gospel music, led by Mr. H. A. Hammontree. On three leadership studied the book of Galatians. In the afternoon, at four o'clock special addresses were heard, three of them by Mr. Joseph Cohn, field secretary of the Williamsburg Mission to the Jews, Brooklyn, N. Y., who gave a most illuminating exposition of the eleventh chapter of the Epistle to the other mornings at this period, the Conference had the privilege of listening to Mr. R. V. Bingham in interesting studies along missionary lines, and later in the conference, Rev. Howard W. Pope of the Institute occupied this period in the study of personal Romans, and afterward told the story of the conversion of his father, formerly a rabbi, to the acceptance of Christ. His third address was on "The Wandering Jew."

Vespers in the Grove at Mt. Lake Park Bible Conference, August, 1917

Two of the most stirring addresses of the conference were delivered by Dr. Edmund

F. Cook, the newly installed director of the Missionary Course of the Moody Bible Institute. Dr. Cook was formerly Secretary of the Foreign Missionary Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and is a recognized authority upon missionary subjects. His evening address was upon "The Challenge of the Present Crisis."

Personal evangelism was made prominent toward the close of the conference, both by the studies led by Mr. Pope, and by two very practical addresses by Mr. W. G. A. Millar, the purchasing agent of the United States Steel Corporation.

The spiritual interest of the conference was cumulative, and it was led up to a logical climax by the addresses of the Rev. George E. Guille whose ministry was greatly blessed of God in the closing sessions of the conference.

An interesting by-product of the conference was the reunion of former students of the Institute, to which were added correspondence students, subscribers to the Magazine, Institute visitors and those who were contemplating a course at the Institute. A delightful hour and a half was spent under the trees, recounting many interesting experiences and considering some of the outstanding needs of the Institute in the future. Probably a dozen persons expressed their purpose to go to the Institute to pursue a course of study. Refreshments were served and the occasion was a most enjoyable one.

EAGLES MERE BIBLE CONFERENCE

Most grateful appreciation was expressed by all who had any contact with the Bible Conference conducted by the Extension Depart-

Male Quartette at Crystal Spring, Mt. Lake Park Bible Conference, August, 1917

The Rev. E. B. Turner pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Clarksburg, W. Va., contributed a very helpful address at one of the afternoon sessions, when one of the speakers was delayed in reaching the conference.

Over fifty ministers were in attendance upon the conference. They represented the following communions: Methodist Episcopal, Protestant Episcopal, Methodist Episcopal (South), Presbyterian, Baptist, Methodist Protestant, United Brethren, Congregational, Brethren, Christian, Lutheran, Christian Alliance, Church of God, and the Salvation Army.

It was unanimously voted to request the Moody Bible Institute to conduct a similar conference next year and to make such a conference a permanent annual event at Mountain Lake Park. The Mountain Lake Park Association joined in this request.

ment at Eagles Mere, Pa., July 22-29. Everyone seemed impressed that Eagles Mere is a splendid place to hold such a conference. Added to many natural advantages and the rare beauty of the place is the fine accommodation provided by the well-kept, high-grade hotels, whose comforts, food and service, gave unqualified satisfaction to those attending the conference.

In addition to Moody Institute representatives the Rev. Charles E. Hurlburt, General Director of the Africa Inland Mission, Mr. Joseph Cohn, Field Secretary of the Williamsburg Mission to the Jews, of Brooklyn, and Miss Emily S. Strong of West Pittston, who was formerly superintendent of women at the Institute, made important contributions to the program.

On the opening Sunday, Mr. Page preached in the morning, Mr. Hurlburt in the afternoon, and Mr. Ketchum in the evening. Each morning there was a Quiet Hour service before breakfast, and for four mornings Mr. Hurlburt presented in a most winsome way the truth of the victorious life. After Mr. Hurlburt's departure Mr. Page conducted a prayer service at this hour.

At the 9.00 o'clock hour Mr. Ketchum gave a series of studies on personal evangelism, or personal work, as it is often called. The ten o'clock period was occupied usually with special addresses and themes; Dr. Russell, Mr. Cohn and Mr. Guille each making addresses at this hour at different periods of the conference. The eleven o'clock hour was occupied throughout the conference by Mr. Page in a study of the "Apostle Paul and his Messages."

In the afternoon several song and testimony services were led by Mr. Hammontree, which were attended by quite a number of the people employed at the hotels who could not attend some of the other services.

In the evening, a vesper service conducted by Miss Millar preceded the regular evening sessions, which were addressed at various times by Mr. Ketchum, Dr. Russell, Mr. Cohn and Mr. Guille.

Among the outstanding impressions made by the conference were the following:

1. The necessity of the surrendered will in order to live a victorious Christian life. This truth was sounded by nearly every speaker, and there is evidence that this united testimony bore fruit in a very definite way.

2. A new vision of what the gospel really is—a new estimate of what we have in Christ.

3. A new sense of obligation to the Jew.

4. A clearer understanding of present conditions in the world, gained from the study of the prophetic Scriptures.

The music of the conference was a notable feature. Mr. Hammontree was the chorister and Mr. W. L. Rugg, pianist. A male quartet, composed of Mr. Hammontree, Mr. Rugg, Mr. Buckalew and Mr. W. M. Clark of East Orange, N. J., added greatly to the blessing of the conference by the selections which they sang.

On the last Sunday, Mr. George W. Riley of Harrisburg, offered a resolution, which met unanimous approval, inviting the Moody Bible Institute to hold another conference at Eagles Mere next year. So far as is now known, this will be done. The time probably will be one week earlier than this year, namely: July 14-21, 1918. Friends will please take note of these dates and tell their acquaintances who may be interested. With this timely notice those who desire to work up parties from their church or community will have ample opportunity.

PERSONALIA

Arthur O. Ramsey, '17, has been located as pastor of the United Brethren church, at Charleston, Ill.

Sidney E. Harris, '16, enters the Omaha Presbyterian Theological Seminary September 19.

A. Roukema, '15, has accepted a call to Blue Springs, Neb., where he will have charge of the Zion United Evangelical Church.

A. E. Laraway, '09, conducted a tent meeting in Anderson, Ind., closing August 26, under the auspices of the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

T. B. Davis, a present student, during the vacation period, assisted Evangelist J. C. Green at Oconto, Wis. There were about 125 professed conversions.

Miss Helen Byrnes, graduate August, '12, began work September 2 at Pine Bluff, Ark., with Rev. George T. Stephens. She is doing work among women.

Rev. E. C. Shute, '14, after nearly two years service has resigned from Richland Center, Wis., and accepted a call to the First Baptist Church of Chatsworth, Ill.

F. E. Stemme, '12, pastor of First Congregational Church at Berwick, Ia., held union meetings in August with the M. E. Church and reports much blessing on the work.

James Ostema, '03, after a pastorate of nineteen months in the Lawndale Tabernacle, accepted a call to the pastorate of the Community Congregational Church, Chicago, beginning September 2.

Harry Dixon Loes, '15, has been with the Burke-Hobbs Party for one year as soloist and musical director, and now is associated with George E. Moody party for the remainder of this year.

W. Teeuwissen, '16, has accepted a call to a position as Religious Work Director with the Y. M. C. A. in the cantonment at Rockford, Ill. He began his new duties September 14.

Vincent Mulligan, '15, is with the Army Medical Corps in France. He has enjoyed working occasionally with the Soldiers' Christian Association, and says it is doing a splendid work for the Lord.

Clarence S. Smith, '15, who for the past year and a half has been laboring in the Michigan United Brethren Conference, has been appointed by the Miami Conference of Ohio to serve the West Elkton (O.) United Brethren Church.

Rev. Wm. T. Russell, '08, has been installed as pastor of the Presbyterian church at Holyoke, Colo. Mr. Russell had the honor of being appointed as a representative of the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church to attend the summer school at Estes Park, Colo.

A. D. Weir, '95, writes as follows: "I have finished the course of training for the Y. M. C. A. war work at Estes Park and have an appointment as a war work secretary; and have been assigned to Camp Clark, American Lake, Wash., where I take up my new work September 15."

Clara Mabel Nelson, '00, writes: "I am closing fifteen years of service in the New First Congregational Church, Chicago, having come directly here after my two years' course at the Institute. I am to take a year's work at the Congregational Training School for Women, beginning October 1."

Miss N. Grace Coolidge, a recent student, is now making a canvass of the Polish work in the vicinity of her home, Greenfield, Mass. The hope is that the Baptist State Missionary Society may be able to assume a work among them of which she will have charge. She asks our prayers to this end.

Frank R. Dudley, '13, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Azusa, Cal., has been given a six months' leave of absence from his church to become a member of the Religious Work Corps stationed at Camp Kearney, Linda Vista, Cal. There will be seven members of the corps and they will have entire charge of all religious work for many thousand men.

Mrs. R. S. Coulter, '14, while attending her invalid mother at Girard, Ill., the past year, was asked to teach a women's Bible class. One of the members writes of her: "We invited her to our meetings and finally gave the class over to her. She did us much good, teaching us to study systematically, by book and by chapters. She won the hearts of all by her sweet Christian character."

Rev. Hodge Yessayan, '13, of Cesarea, Armenia, has been doing missionary work among the Armenians and Greeks of Chicago, under the auspices of the Chicago Tract Society. Mr. Yessayan is also a graduate of the Chicago Theological Seminary, and has now accepted the pastorate of the Congregational church at Mott, N. D. He had the misfortune of losing all the members of his family in the last massacres of Armenia.

J. Wesley Smiley, '12, since graduation has been in home missionary work in Alberta Province, Canada. He is now taking the regular course for the Methodist ministry, spending five months in the field and seven months at college. When he returns to college October 1 he says his field, covering two missions and eight preaching places, will be left without a pastor. He is the only Protestant preacher in that territory.

A letter from William E. Pietsch, '12, was recently received, from which we quote the following: "Since the first of the year the Lord has changed our plans and instead of going to China as we expected to do last February we have become interested in the work right here in Honolulu that we expected to do in China. We have opened a home for poor untrained women and children. We have seventy-five at the Home at present and are just moving to a fifteen acre farm. There are nine different nationalities at the Home and you can understand what varied problems we have. We ask for your prayers,—both the faculty and the student body. We look back with pleasure to the happy season spent with you all."

Rev. Wm. Iley, '11, of Bruce, Wis., writes appreciatingly of his stay at the Institute. He says it is bearing fruit to the glory of God and to the extension of His kingdom. Mr. Iley is pastor of a circuit, having three churches and one schoolhouse. His territory covers nearly fifty miles, over which he travels with a horse and buggy, one church being eighteen miles away. He preaches three times every Sunday. He is rejoicing over a revival meeting recently held with Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Pease, '12, there being fifty conversions, resulting in all but two American families uniting with the church, with an attendance at prayer meeting of forty. This was at Comstock, Wis. At another charge at McKinley there were 26 decisions for Christ.

Mr. Homer A. Hammontree, of the Extension Department, has been serving as chorister at the First Presbyterian Church, of Greensboro, North Carolina, for several months. Upon the closing of his engagement, the Session and Deaconate of the church unanimously adopted the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That this joint body of officers of the First Presbyterian Church of Greensboro, North Carolina, express to Mr. Homer Hammontree its deep satisfaction with and appreciation of the splendid services he has rendered to this church for the last three or four months. Mr. Hammontree came to us a stranger and in a few days, by his pleasing personality and by the force of his character, has established himself firmly in the affections of the officers and of the congregation. He has in this short time built up a splendid choir and has done much to improve the singing of the Sunday-school and of the congregation. But this has been only part of his work. He has held a very large number of evangelistic meetings with the pastor, and has been of the greatest service in all lines of Christian work. He has taken an active part in the Sunday-school and in the Men's Bible Class, and in all of these capacities his work has been most gratifying and useful.

"Resolved, Further, that we see him leave with the most sincere regret, and were it not for the fact that he feels that he can do greater service in the evangelistic field we would use our best endeavors to make permanent his relationship with this church."

Hugh Ash, '13, and his work in building up the New York Settlement Presbyterian Church at Hamilton, Mo., received quite a lengthy write-up in one of the secular daily papers of that city. Less than two years ago Mr. Ash was called as pastor to serve half time. Within a year from that date the membership was strong enough to call Mr. and Mrs. Ash (Gladys Pipe, '13) to devote their entire time to the work.

FROM PRIVATE H. WOOLNOUGH (529054)

"Somewhere in France.

"August 9, 1917.

"My dear Dr. Gray:

"I am just dropping a few lines to you, thinking you would appreciate such from one of the old members of the great Institute family. I know how interested you are to learn of their whereabouts and well-being after leaving home.

"You will observe that I am in the war zone. I have been here about two months, and experienced already what modern warfare means. I have lodged in the much-talked about dug-out, trudded along in the trenches, witnessed the result of shot and shell, etc. I assure you the environment is not at all desirable, but what does one think of that, when he knows that the cause he is engaged in is a righteous one?

"I am connected with the Eighth Canadian Field Ambulance, B. E. F. France, which address will find me.

"We fare well, comparatively. Just now our unit is out for a rest, some distance behind the line, where we have charge of a small hospital. The surroundings are congenial, right out in the country, amid flowing fields of grain and other growing crops.

"Spiritually, we have church parades, Y. M. C. A. and Church Army meetings, conducted by the chaplains. I never appreciated so much the sweetness of God's Word as now. Since coming over here I have very profitably re-read the epistles of Paul, and am now in his second one to Timothy. I was much struck with 2 Timothy 2:4 this morning.

"My two brothers are embroiled, one in the Cheshires, and the other in the Coldstream Guards. The former has spent ten months at the front, when he received injury to his left hand coming in contact with barbed wire, while crawling on his hands and knees on patrol duty. He has recovered, and expects to return soon.

"I presume the whole of the States are very active in view of entering the fray. Already a (cut by censor) * * * I hope I shall run up against some of them.

"May I now ask a favor of you. I am reluctant to doing so, but a little such reading as "The Christian Workers Magazine" contains is scarce, therefore if you could kindly forward me one, just one occasionally, as more than one will be an encumbrance, I would appreciate it very much indeed. Perhaps some one would delight in being responsible in forwarding me their old one. An old one will be as acceptable as a new one.

"Post graduates J. A. Johnson and L. Kelly came over with me, but are not with me now. We were all divided when we reached France.

"I trust the Institute is progressing favorably.

"This month, I recall, will conclude the summer term. I trust a good number of new students will be forthcoming for the new term, that the war fever will not hurt the usual attendance very much, but I presume it will affect it somewhat.

"Kindly convey my regards to Drs. Fitzwater and Ralston, Messrs. Fellers, Haavind, Pope, Sutcliffe, Meeker, Mrs. Russell, and Miss Thomas. I remain,

"Yours truly in Him,

"Henry Woolnough, '13."

BORN

To Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Keifer, '11 (Flora Daniel), a son, Thomas Henry, August 26, at Paoli, Ind.

To Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard A. Jacobson, '16, a daughter, Doris Louise, July 2, 1917, at Chicago.

To Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Linderman, '04, a son, August 29, 1917.

To Rev. and Mrs. F. E. Logee (Evelyn Shearer, '14), a son, Floyd Emerson, Jr., August 24, 1917, at Monon, Ind.

To Mr. and Mrs. Amos Oyer, a daughter, Ethelyn Sarah, September 5, 1917, at Chicago.

To Rev. Arthur Grunewald, '10, and Mrs. Grunewald (Alice Oosterhuis), a daughter, Alice Miriam, August 26, 1917, at Wild Rose, Wis.

MARRIED

Murray Ness, '17, and Mary M. Ruler, at Washington, D. C., July 23.

Clarence R. Ferguson, '14, and Ethel Closson, '13, and H. Framer Smith, '13, and Mary Closson, '13. A double wedding at Independence, Ia., September 12, 1917.

William Douglas McCallum and Jessie Libby Hagerty, '98, August 24, 1917, at Spokane, Wash. At home at Nighthawk, Wash.

Carl Edwin Andrews, '16, and Bertha May Bell, '05, July 16, 1917, at New York City. At home at Torrington, Conn.

DIED

Eldo H. Johnson, '09, died Sept. 12, at Ottawa, Ill., after an illness of several months.

The Gospel in Print

TASTE IS CHANGING

How War Modifies the Call for Books

Since the war began, publishers and librarians are agreed, there has been a great revival of interest in serious literature. People are turning more and more from light, frivolous fiction to books dealing with vital aspects of life—history, philosophy, science and the like.

This is a most desirable development. But to produce fully beneficent results it needs to be followed by a secondary development—the revival of home libraries.

Good books should be owned as well as read. They should be owned in order that they may be read often.

A good book—a really good book—contains so much that it cannot be adequately taken in by a single reading. Besides, if read only once, much of its inspiration and information is likely soon to fade from the reader's consciousness.

Therefore it ought to be owned so that in leisure moments it may be picked up again and again. Thus its message will be fully and lastingly conveyed, to the enrichment of the lives of those who read and reread it.

Of course, this does not mean that people should read only books which they can afford to own.

Many good books are too expensive to be widely bought. And most people cannot afford to build up a large home library.

Accordingly the public library should be used, and used often. But, in addition, whenever a book seems to be specially significant, the effort should be made to acquire it as a personal possession.

This may involve some sacrifice. But sacrifices made in order that good books may be bought are in reality most profitable investments.

There are many ways in which people thoughtlessly waste money. A little reflection will disclose some means of saving for book buying. And good books frequently read and thoughtfully considered always return most handsome dividends.

If, therefore, your home is now without books, begin at once to start a library of your own.

But don't go at this with a rush. Buy your mental food as you would buy food for your body, making an intelligent effort to get only what is really wholesome and nourishing.

And put your books in the pleasantest room in your house. Don't stow them in out-of-the-way corners.

(Concluded on page 157.)

FREE GRANTS OF BOOKS

The following donations of the Moody Colportage Library books, "Emphasized Gospel of John," "Pocket Treasury," etc., have been sent out on account of the several book funds named from August 10 to September 10, 1917, inclusive:

Prison Book Fund:

Pennsylvania, 916 books, and 300 Gospels.
Kansas, 240 books, and 240 Gospels.
California, 75 books, and 75 Gospels.
Arizona, 100 books, and 175 Gospels.
Maryland, 950 books.
Georgia, 30 books, and 30 Gospels.
New Mexico, 100 books, and 125 Gospels.
Alabama, 20 books, and 20 Gospels.

Army and Navy Book Fund:

New York, 1,350 books, 1,350 Gospels, and 100 Pocket Treasury.
Oregon, 7 Gospels.
Georgia, 450 books, and 750 Pocket Treasury.
Illinois, 1,257 books, 500 Gospels, 1,000 Pocket Treasury, and tracts.
Virginia, 210 Gospels.
Florida, 100 Gospels.
Missouri, 180 books.
Ohio, 50 Gospels, and 30 Pocket Treasury.
Tennessee, 200 Gospels, and 550 Pocket Treasury.
Michigan, 100 books, and 25 Gospels.
Maryland, 23 books, and 100 Gospels.
Kansas, 150 Pocket Treasury.
Pennsylvania, 250 books, 300 Gospels, and 160 Pocket Treasury.
Rhode Island, 500 books, and 1,000 Gospels.
New Jersey, 250 books, and 75 Gospels.
Iowa, 24 Gospels.
Arkansas-Texas, 210 Gospels, and tracts.
Massachusetts, 44 books, 315 Gospels, and 300 Pocket Treasury.
New Hampshire, 300 Gospels.
Washington, 62 books, and 25 Gospels.
Rizal, F. I., 100 Gospels.
Indiana, 200 Gospels.
Texas, 1 book, and 500 Pocket Treasury.
North Dakota, 250 Gospels, and 250 Pocket Treasury.

Spanish "Way to God" Book Fund:

Argentine, S. A., 100 books.
Guam, Guam, 20 books.
Donna, Tex., 20 books, and 20 Gospels.
Colombia, S. A., 20 books.
Mayaguez, P. R., 100 books.
Juana Diaz, P. R., 100 books.
Ponce, P. R., 8 books.

Hospital Book Fund:

Illinois, 300 Gospels.

MR. MOODY'S BOOK FUNDS

The following contributions have been received from August 10, 1917, to September 8, 1917, inclusive:

Army and Navy Book Fund:

79 Contributions.....	$367.65
Prison Book Fund:
32 Contributions.....	96.65
Africa Book Fund:
1 Contribution.....	5.00
Alaska Book Fund:
1 Contribution.....	5.00
Fire Station Book Fund:
1 Contribution.....	3.00
Hospital Book Fund:
3 Contributions.....	7.25
India Book Fund:
1 Contribution.....	5.00
Lumber Camp Book Fund:
4 Contributions.....	6.25
Miners' Book Fund:
1 Contribution.....	3.00
Mountain Book Fund:
2 Contributions.....	5.25
Spanish "Way to God" Book Fund:
1 Contribution.....	10.00

GET YOUR FALL SUIT At Ward's and Save Money

Only $16.50 for this Striped Dark Gray Worsted Fall Suit

Quiet elegance is a good description of this fine suit. It is a dark pattern, yet has enough life to please the most particular man. Made of firm worsted fabric in a dark gray, with very fine stripes of self color and indistinct threads of blue. Nearly three-quarters wool.

Soft pressed lapel, three button style coat. Lined with a strong serge. Sateen sleeve lining. Usual pockets, with flaps on the side pockets. Vest is a five button, no-collar model. Trousers have belt loops and side tunnels. Regular pockets. Left hip pocket has button and buttonhole. Plain hemmed bottoms. Average shipping weight, 5 pounds. Sizes: chest, 35 to 44 inches.

Order from this adv. Ask for suit No. 39E299.

Remember: Satisfaction guaranteed or your money back $16.50

Our Men's and Boys' Clothing Catalog will show you how to save on clothing. Send for it today. It is FREE.

Our Missionary Bureau

gives particular attention to orders for shipments to Foreign Mission Fields. Missionaries all over the world buy from us because we furnish practically everything they need—Food, Underwear, Shoes, Books, Household Articles, Furniture, Tools, Office Appliances, Hospital Supplies, Pianos and Organs, all of guaranteed quality and at money saving prices. We know how to pack for sea transit. We ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEE SAFE DELIVERY. We attend to all details and give them the benefit of low carload freight rates.

On shipments to the Orient we enjoy a low carload export rate which is entirely on a weight basis. This low rate covers both rail and ocean haul from Chicago to Yokohama, Kobe, Moji, Nagasaki Shanghai, Hong Kong and Manila, the distributing points of the Far East. By way of these transshipping points, we here in Chicago can take out through bills of lading to practically all the ports of the Far East.

Buy your outfit of us and get the benefit of this rate. We charge only fifty cents per hundred extra on outside goods. If you wish to send anything to missionaries, write for a copy of our Missionary Circular on packing and shipping; it will save you time, worry and money. Address

MAYNARD D. HOWELL, Export Manager.

Montgomery Ward & Co.

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Your Money Back

CHICAGO, U. S. A.

JUST READYImproved Edition—New Size

The Scofield Reference Bible

Edited by Rev. C. I. Scofield, D.D.

With all the helpful features of the previous edition, to which are added The Panoramic View of the Bible and Bible Chronologies.

FITS THE POCKET

Printed on Oxford India Paper from entirely new plates and facsimile page for page with the larger edition.

Minion Black-faced Type
Size 7x4½x1 inches.

No. 55x French Morocco, leather lined . $6.00
No. 59x Persian Morocco, leather lined . 7.00

Also on White Paper—1½ in. thick
No. 50 Cloth $1.50
No. 53 French Morocco 4.00

Made in twelve other styles.

Also, Larger Size

Brevier Black-face Type. Size 8½x5½x1½ inches.
White paper from $2.00.

Oxford India Paper

Size 8½x5½x1 inches. From $7.50.
Larger edition in 16 styles.

At all Booksellers.

Send for circular.

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS AMERICAN BRANCH
35 West 32d Street, - - - - New York

How I Doubled My Salary as Stenographer

Stenographers and other typewriter users will be interested in the remarkable experience of Miss Anna S. Cubbison of Harrisburg, Penn., who is today filling one of the best positions in that city. Some time ago she realized that slow typewriting was keeping her from earning a large salary. She wasn't turning out enough finished work! So she took up the New Way in Typewriting and, she says, "I progressed rapidly in my chosen work and am today filling the position of Chief Clerk to the Dept. of Parks and Public Property, my salary being exactly double what it was when I took up the study of the New Way in Typewriting. I can only say that if you desire to increase your ability and salary, you will make no mistake in taking the Tulloss Course."

The New Way In Typewriting

A revolutionary new method, as different from the old touch system as day is from night. Already, hundreds of stenographers formerly earning from $8 to $15 a week, are drawing $25, $30 and even $40 weekly, and their work is easier than ever before.

80 to 100 Words a Minute Guaranteed

Increases speed from first day's use. Entire system quickly learned at home in spare time. Only 10 Easy Lessons. No interference with regular work. Send for big illustrated catalog explaining system, telling all about the wonderful Gymnastic Finger Training and containing letters from hundreds of graduates whose salaries have already been increased $300, $500 and up to $2,000 yearly. Write for free book today. Address THE TULLOSS SCHOOL, 5230 College Hill, Springfield, Ohio.

Evangelistic Meetings

Single or Union

If your Church or Community is planning to hold Special Evangelistic Meetings, and you have not yet secured your Evangelist and other Christian Workers, I invite correspondence with that end in view. Our Evangelistic efforts are Scriptural, Sane, Sound.

Irvine S. Hampton

Evangelist

12 N. Boulevard

Dayton, Ohio

References: Dr. J. C. Massee, Dayton, Ohio, Pastor First Baptist Church; Dr. M. E. Wilson, Dayton, Ohio, Pastor First Presbyterian Church. Others Given on Request.

FREE BOOK

This Interesting Book

shows the keen delight and personal satisfaction which a musical training will bring you; and how you can obtain this training easily and thoroughly in your own home at one-quarter the usual cost.

It tells how this most prized of social accomplishments greatly increases your own enjoyment of life and the enjoyment of others. It tells of the concert career which may be open to you, and how you can increase your earning power by giving musical instruction in your spare time. Send for your copy of this valuable book today; it is free.

Dr. Quinn's Famous WRITTEN METHOD has revolutionized the study of music. By the use of Dr. Quinn's remarkable device, the COLOROTONE (patented), you save three-quarters of the time and effort usually required for learning piano or organ. You play chords immediately and a complete piece within a few lessons. The method is scientific and systematic, yet practical and simple. It is endorsed by leading musicians and heads of state universities. Equally effective for children or adults, beginners or experienced players. Practice in spare time, whenever convenient. Successful graduates everywhere. Diploma granted. Special reduced terms this month. Investigate without cost or obligation by writing today for free book. "How to Learn Piano and Organ."

Marcus Lucius Quinn Conservatory
Studio C W, Social Union Bldg., - - Boston, Mass.

CHURCH FURNITURE

Chairs, Pulpits, Pews, Altars, Desks, Book Racks, etc. The finest furniture made. Direct from our factory to your church at wholesale prices. Catalog free.

DeMoulin Bros. & Co. Dept. 89, Greenville, Ill.

COMPLETE CORRESPONDENCE COURSES

Leading to B. A., M. A., B. D., and Ph. D. Degrees

Get Our Catalog

A. B. Miller, Ph. D.

Dean

Oskaloosa College
Oskaloosa, Iowa

JUST OFF THE PRESS HERALD OF PRAISE

"The King of Song Books"

Edited by about 200 leading Evangelists and Ministers. Regardless of Expense they tried to make it the Best Song Book for Churches, Sunday Schools, Evangelistic Services and Young Peoples' Meetings.

$13 per 100 for manila binding.

$18 per 100 for limp cloth.

$25 per 100 for cloth board.

Send for free returnable sample copy.

GLAD TIDINGS PUBLISHING CO.
202 S. Clark St., CHICAGO, ILL.

JUST Published HELPFUL PRAYERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

Selected from many sources by the Editors of the Family Altar Magazine and others. This vest-pocket book contains the most helpful prayers selected from all the best available sources, the most famous historic and poetic prayers, public prayers, sentence prayers, personal prayers, children's prayers, table graces, etc. These prayers will deepen the spiritual life of anyone who reads them. 192 pages. Leather 35c, Cloth 25c, Paper 15c.

GLAD TIDINGS PUBLISHING CO., 202 S. Clark St., CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

JUST PUBLISHED The Bible Student's Guide

The most complete and helpful vest-pocket guide to the study of the Scriptures and to personal work. Verses from the Bible alphabetically arranged under all the most important subjects; special importance being given to the themes of Salvation, the Holy Spirit, Temporal Blessings and Prophecy. 192 pages. Leather 35c, Cloth 25c, Paper 15c.

GLAD TIDINGS PUBLISHING CO., 202 So. Clark St., CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Evangelist

G. A. KLEIN
NASHVILLE, TENN.

Single or Union

Member of
I.A.E. and I.F.C.W.

Write at once for dates and printed matter

Owing to Dr. George Wood Anderson sailing for Y. M. C. A. work in FRANCE

His Pianist

Lawson C. Reid

Is now Available for Engagements

Address 838 Harrison Ave., Scranton, Pa.

Just Off The Press

STANDARD HYMN AND SPIRITUAL SONGS

A New Song Book For
All Departments of Church Work

Contains new inspiring songs never before published and the best only of the old Standard
Church Hymns.

136
AUTHORS

Choicest Collection ever compiled. Every song usable.
A book that will live.

298 Hymns

12 Pages of Responsive Readings

Board $35.00 per hundred { Carriage
Cloth 45.00 " " } not Prepaid

Examine This Splendid Collection

It's just the book you will want.

Sample copy, board 25c, cloth 35c

THE BIGLOW AND MAIN CO.
New York Chicago

Just the thing to follow
Evangelistic Meetings

SALVATION

From Start to Finish

By DR. JAMES M. GRAY

"The earnest, positive evangelical tone is decidedly refreshing. This is a splendid book to be placed in the hands of young converts." —Advance.

The subjects treated are faith, atonement, redemption, justification, growth, service, resurrection and reward, from the Biblical point of view.

Paper covers, 15 cts. (2c. postage)
Also in Full Cloth, 60 cts. net

The Bible Institute Colportage Ass'n
822 North La Salle St., Chicago

REVOLUTION

Just in the nick of time to save the situation, the new VISIBLE, noiseless
No. 9 Blick has come to you, Mr.
Author, Evangelist, and Clergyman.
Don't expect immediate delivery, we are oversold. A card from you will bring detailed information of the reason for this great demand on the new VISIBLE Blick. It's a wonder and a revelation. Special price and terms to the Clergy.

BLICK TYPEWRITER CO.
109 N. Dearborn St. 240 Broadway
CHICAGO NEW YORK CITY

"The Second Coming of Christ

AND SOME REASONS

Why I Think It Is Near"

By James M. Taylor, Evangelist of the North Dakota M. E. Conference.

"The Greatest Thing I Ever Saw in Print" writes a district superintendent. "There is nothing like it in the literature of the world, on this subject"—is the common comment.

"You can say for me, that on the subject of the Jews, their genealogy, tribal history and present status, you are absolutely correct."—Hon. Chas. A. Cowen, National Organizer of Jewish Zion Societies, New York City.

"This is a remarkable address. It holds the hearers still as death from one and a half to two hours. Fanaticism is wholesomenly absent."—"The Methodist." (Editorial.)

"One of the most wonderful presentations of scriptural truth ever heard in Mandan."—
"Mandan Daily Pioneer Press."

Paper, 25cts.; Cloth, 50cts., prepaid
Order of

JAMES M. TAYLOR
BISMARCK, N. DAK.

Write Evangelist A. T. Swanson

Chariton, Iowa

for fall and winter campaigns. Excellent helpers, Union or single, terms easy.

Testimonial: Rev. E. W. Curtis, D. D., says, "He is a strong sermonizer and a great leader in revivals: I have never heard any preacher quote so much Scripture as Evangelist Swanson, giving chapter and verse."

"The Sanitary" Individual Communion Cups

Convenient, Noiseless and Sanitary

The individual communion service permits an impressive ceremony.

We introduced individual cups (many state laws now demand them).

We make the finest quality of beautiful polished trays and supply thousands of satisfied congregations. Send for list of these churches and FREE CATALOG with quotations.

SANITARY COMMUNION OUTFIT CO., 41st St., Rochester, N. Y.

SENT FOR TRIAL

Journeys of Jesus A Book for Sunday-school Teachers and Bible Students. Publisher's price, $2.25. Agents wanted. Large commission. Mennonite Publishing Co., Elkhart, Indiana

Preach the Gospel in Army Camps by giving the Soldier

66

THE GAME OF GAMES

Tells About Every Book in the Bible. It is also the "Silent Evangelist." Entertaining, Fascinating, Instructive. Price 50 cents, postpaid. Great Xmas Gift.

ERNEST B. ORR

817 E. Tioga St., Philadelphia, Pa.

COMFORT-HEALTH

Do away with the dangerous, unsightly, unsanitary outhouse. Let the children, ladies, elderly folks and visitors enjoy the comfort and convenience of a clean, sanitary, absolutely odorless indoor toilet.

WOLVERINE

CHEMICAL TOILET

protects your health, saves your money. A permanent, scientific substitute for the fly-breeding, disease-spreading, water-polluting, foul outdoor closet. No water, sewer or cesspool.

ENDORSED BY HEALTH OFFICIALS

Easy to install. Costs less than a cent a day upkeep. Pays for itself many times in a year. Price remarkably low. Thousands now in use. FREE BOOK tells all. Write today sure.

Dall Steel Products Co.
410 Main St. Lansing, Mich.

Object Lessons of Scripture

7 Pamphlets. Illustrated. No. 1 to 7
12 Object Lessons in Each Pamphlet

'The Seven Little Handmaids of the Bible'

The set of Seven for $1.00. Get the Seven Price, 15 cents each, postage prepaid. Order by Number. They contain 29 Chalk Talks and 55 Object Lessons

ADDRESS

Rev. Chas. Eickenberg, 4029 N. Hermitage Ave
CHICAGO, ILL.
Tel. Lake View 2218

A Unique Publication

An ideal pocket companion for our "boys" of the Army and Navy, lumbermen and other classes with whom economy of space is a vital factor.

"THE POCKET TREASURY"

consisting of choice chapters (22) and selections (3) from God's Word, important verses for memorizing (found in the Scripture printed), identification blank, articles on "How to Become a Christian" and "How to Live the Christian Life," the Apostles Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and twenty-two favorite hymns for devotional gatherings.

A compact vest-pocket-sized booklet of 80 pages, printed from new, readable type, strongly bound in flexible cloth covers, with round corners.

Highly commended by Active Christian Workers

Price: Cloth covers only, 5c a copy: 100 copies for $4.50: special rates for 1,000 lots

The Bible Institute Colportage Ass'n

822 North La Salle St., Chicago

Vom Bruch SAYS THE

DANCE

corrupts communities, wrecks lives and damns souls. Send 10c for amusement booklet entitled,

"SELLING CHRIST"

Harry W. Vom Bruch, 534 N. Le Claire Av., Chicago

FABER FOLDING ORGANS

They are the most compact, have the largest volume and sweetest tone of any Folding Organ on the market. Send for illustrated catalogue, price-list and free trial offer.

Folds like a suitcase

HOMO FABER, Dept. 292
53 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago

DON'T BE FOOLISH And Pay Fancy Prices

For Large Hymn Books
"Best Hymns" has plenty 163. Millions sold. Masses cover $5.00 per 100; Limp cover $5.00 per 100; Cloth cover $15.00 per 100.
Evangelical Publishing Co. Lakeside Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

$2.50 A Month Buys a Visible Writing
L. C. SMITH

Perfect machines only of standard size with keyboard of standard universal arrangement—has Backspace—Tabulator—two-color ribbon—Ball Bearing construction—every operating convenience. Five Days' Free Trial. Fully guaranteed. Catalog and special price sent free.
H. A. SMITH, 328-231 N. 5th Ave., Chicago, Ill.

SONGS

For all religious work, Church, Sunday School, Prayer Meeting, Evangelistic, etc. Send 15c for Sample Copy of Complete Book

50 NEW SONGS for Solo Singers
Send for free circular sample.

BILHORN BROS. 136 W. Lake St. Chicago

The MAN and His BOOK
VOICES OF VICTORY
200 Authors 333 Inspiring Songs

Books Bought and Sold

¶ We carry a stock of over 100,000 volumes, carefully selected and classified by subject. ¶ Write us your line of interest and send your list of "Wants." Catalogues free. ¶ Good books in any quantity bought for cash.

SCHULTE'S BOOK STORE
80-82 Fourth Avenue, New York City

Pastors, Evangelists, Sunday School Teachers Chemical Illustrations Of Bible Truths

Interesting, instructive and impressive. Now being used throughout the world. Each illustration has a duplicate set so one can be used for study, and the other for class or church service. Prepared powders ready to use. Full directions and helps. Six Talks 50 cents, postpaid.

C. A. SCHMITT, 631 South Street, ROSLINDALE, MASS

THE BUSY MAN'S BIBLE

"In this day when EFFICIENCY seems to be the big word, anything that can help us to do better work at an expenditure of less energy and time is worthy of our serious consideration. I now have for sale a Concordance, a full set of Biblical Encyclopaedia, a shelf full of Religious Histories and about a dozen miscellaneous volumes. Their place is taken by the ANALYTICAL REFERENCE BIBLE. I am sure that it is the best book for the busy man who wants to know God's Word." (Signed by a Congregational Minister. Name given on request.) Send for descriptive circular.
HENRY F. GIERE, Publisher, 375 Fourth Avenue, New York

750 BIBLE & GOSPEL STUDIES
Brief Complete Outlines of Sermons, Talks, Studies; for Christians, Students, Teachers, Preachers. Covering Old and New Testaments. Ready Help for Leading Meetings. Many Important Questions Answered. Apt References and Short Spiritual Explanations. All Subjects Fully Covered. Vest Pocket Size, 128 pages. Cloth, 25c. Monoco 35c, postpaid. Stamps Taken. AGENTS Wanted.
GEO. W. NOBLE, Monon Building, Chicago, Ill.

Private Ambulance

Tel. Superior 615

R. A. ALLEN

Funeral Director

859 North Clark Street

CHICAGO, ILL.

30,000 CHURCHES
now use the

THOMAS INDIVIDUAL COMMUNION SERVICE

Does YOUR church use this cleanly method? Our noiseless, dust-proof, self-collecting trays save 1/2 cost other services. Shallow glass; no tipping of head. Get our catalog and SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER. State number of communicants.

THOMAS COMMUNION SERVICE CO., Box W LIMA, OHIO

TOPICAL SERMON NOTES

(Handy Pocket Size)

"A 'unique book'—Dr. James M. Gray.
"A splendid guide to sermon-building"—Prof. Ezra Flory.
"Most helpful in character"—Bishop D. L. Miller.
"Very satisfactory and helpful"—Rev. F. L. Tomenendal.
"Practical as well as suggestive"—Rev. J. R. Lawrence.
Price, postpaid, 50 cents. Address
MARVIN M. SHERRICK, A. M., Mount Morris, Ill.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSONS

(Continued from page 129.)

our leader, we may shout in anticipation of victory.

"He was drinking, he and his kings" (v. 12). Intemperance among national leaders has always been a curse in the world. Minds inflamed by drink mistake the motions of inebriety for patriotism. Wise students of history believe that our national problems resulting in the great Civil War could have been solved without blood-shed had Senators and Congressmen been free from the inflaming results of drink.

"Hast thou seen all this great multitude" (v. 13). Numbers have nothing to do with power when God is concerned. When God rises in power, human multitudes are as nothing.

"By the young men of the princes of the provinces" (v. 14). Victory was promised to Ahab through the marshalling and leadership of young men. Modern life demands the mustering of the young for the battle against intemperance, impurity and all forms of world evil.

"But Benhadad was drinking himself drunk in the pavilion" (vv. 18-21). The battle was lost to Benhadad not simply because he was incapable of leadership but because he was on the wrong side. His drunkenness was but one symptom of his depravity and rebellion against the ways and truth and God.

TASTE IS CHANGING

(Continued from page 151.)

Keep them together, on book shelves, in the room where, because of its brightness and comfort, you most prefer to spend your leisure time. Then you will be the more likely to make frequent use of them and to gain greater profit from them.

Buy books. Buy as many good books as you can reasonably afford. You will find your book-buying, I repeat, among the best of all investments.—H. Addington Bruce, in "Chicago Daily News."

Scofield Reference Bible No. 70

(Cloth Binding)

For reference and table use, this edition is the most popular because of its low price. Printed on regular Bible paper, well bound. Regular price $2.00. We offer it with a year's subscription, new or renewal, to The Christian Workers Magazine for $3.00.

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

Continuing THE INSTITUTE TIE

Published on the first of each month by
The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

JAMES M. GRAY, Editor.

J. H. RALSTON, Associate Editor.

S. A. WOODRUFF, Publishing Agent.

Subscription price, either in the United States or to any foreign country, $1.50 a year. Single copy, 15 cents. Remittances should be sent by bank draft or postal or express money order, payable to The Christian Workers Magazine. Personal checks must be accompanied with 10 cents additional for exchange.

Clubs of five or more, in the United States, but outside of Chicago, at $1.00 a year each. Chicago or Canada $1.24 each.

Change of Address—In sending notice of change of address, give both old and new addresses, and at least fifteen days before the first of the month.

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

153-163 Institute Place, Chicago

Entered as second-class matter, June 11, 1917, at the post office at Chicago, Ill., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Where to Get What You Want

Advertising under this heading, 2 cents a word,
Minimum 30 cents.

EVANGELISTS AND SINGERS

J. F. BAILEY EVANGELISTIC TEAM, 1202 NICHOL, Anderson, Ind.

F. H. BROWN, EVANGELIST. OPEN DATES, FREE-will offering. Godfrey, Ill.

FOR UNION EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS, WRITE Floyd John Evans Party, 136 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

HARRY C. GRIMES—PASTOR-EVANGELIST—Single or union meetings. Write for terms. Address, Colon, Mich.

CLAIRE V. BRYAN, EVANGELIST, UNION OR single church meetings. Splendid references. Address, De Soto, Missouri.

C. A. JONES, CHORUS SPECIALIST AND EVANGELISTIC SINGER. Address 136 W. Lake St., c-o Evangelistic Assn. Bureau.

JOHN B. WHELAN, HANNIBAL, MO., MUSICAL director, soloist and children's worker. Experienced. Open for engagements.

FOR UNION OR SINGLE EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS write Rev. George W. Broome, Ludington, Mich. With or without a singer.

EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS, UNION OR INDIVIDUAL churches. Excellent testimonials. Rev. Joseph C. Ludgate, Wheaton, Ill.

EVANGELISTIC SINGER WISHES ENGAGEMENTS. Best references. Address L. W. Breaw, 911 Fletcher Street, Chicago, Ill.

CAN YOU USE AN A. NO. 1 PIANIST? I HAVE had years of experience as Evangelistic Pianist and I will warrant you satisfaction. F. A. Clark, 414 Jackson St., Chillicothe, Mo.

MELVYN M. LAWTON, GOSPEL SINGER (CHOR-ister, Soloist) would like to help you in that union or single campaign. Address 2638 North Lawrence Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

EXPERIENCED MUSICAL DIRECTOR AND HIGH grade soloist, with very best of references, wishes to join good evangelist. B. Edward Zeiss, 124 North 33rd Street, Omaha, Neb.

WANTED—AT ONCE, A MAN TO ASSIST ME IN the Rescue Mission work. One that can lead gospel singing and conduct meetings. Pat. B. Withrow, Supt., Box 482, Charleston, W. Va.

ARCHIE E. AND MRS. LARAWAY, SINGING Evangelists, are open for engagements to conduct single church or union campaigns. Dates, terms and references gladly furnished. Address 153 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

CHARLES M. KING, 1118 PENN AVE., WILKINSBURG, Pa., evangelistic preacher and singer, is booking dates for coming season, assisted by C. M. Cox. Unceasing efforts, valor, tenacity, earnestness and enthusiasm for God.

POSITION WANTED AS ADVANCE MAN, TABERNACLE builder, shop man, personal worker, or business man and assistant evangelist, with strong party. Years of experience. Best of references. Jacob A. Frazier, Winchester, Ind.

C. B. BROOKS, CHORUS DIRECTOR AND SOLOIST, desires to assist pastors or evangelists in campaigns. Several years of experience. Member of I. A. E. Best of references furnished. Address, 153 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

EXPERIENCED GOSPEL SINGER, PERSONAL worker, also successful children's worker, wishes to join evangelist or help pastors who hold their own meetings. Best of references. Herbert Reynolds, care Christian Workers Magazine.

AN EXPERIENCED EVANGELISTIC PIANIST, A graduate of a leading college, conservatory student, and seven years as teacher, desires to join an evangelist. Splendid references and credentials. Miss Lilly May Perry, Stamford, Texas.

"THE IRISH EVANGELIST," R. H. CANTWELL, Manitou, Colo. Open dates for meetings. Union or single. Always reasonable terms. Highest commendations. Safe, Sane, Scriptural. Helps to build up churches. Successful soul winner. Write Chas. L. Dealey, Secretary, 105 N. Tejon Street, Colorado Springs, Colo.

KIRK-COBB, EVANGELISTIC PARTY NOW BOOKING dates for fall and winter campaigns. The Lord is wonderfully using and leading in all meetings. Give us a trial, write Evangelist L. P. Kirk, Leno, Ky. Our terms are reasonable. Party Motto: "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." 1 Tim. 1:15.

TRACTS, BOOKS AND PAMPHLETS

MUSIC MANUSCRIPTS CORRECTED, WORDS SET to music. Charges moderate. Years of experience. Wm. B. Godfrey, Narberth, Pa.

NEEDLECRAFT—
12 months for 35 cents, stamps.
Address James Senior, Lamar, Missouri.

TEN PERCENT DISCOUNT ON BIBLES. THE finest ever published for the money. Catalogs free. Helmer E. Hagberg, D1, Gothenburg, Nebr.

A LABOR-SAVING TOOL FOR EVANGELISTS. Preachers and Teachers. Superlative commendations. Circulars. Wilson's Index, East Haddam, Conn.

SCOFIELD BIBLES—RED LETTER AND TEACHERS' Bibles, on easy monthly payments. Write S. J. McCarrell & Son, 431 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

SECOND-HAND BOOKS — SELECT STOCK, FINE condition; also new books of all publishers; special prices; catalog free. Hays, Cushman Co., 59 E. Van Buren St., Chicago.

WANTED—A MINISTER, TEACHER, OR OTHER reliable person in your community to distribute religious literature. Good pay for full or spare time. Nichols Co., Dept. 1B, Naperville, Ill.

FULL SALVATION MONTHLY. Clear, strong, radical. Condensed for busy readers. Pointed anecdotes and illustrations. Full of revival kindlings. Remainder of 1917, 10c. "Crusader," Titusville, Pa.

GOOD TRACTS — ATTRACTIVELY PRINTED — BY Pierson, Spurgeon, Torrey, Gordon, Muller, and others. Large assortment, twenty-five cents, postpaid. Bible House of Los Angeles, 643 S. Olive St., Los Angeles, Cal.

WANTED—MILLION READERS FOR "PILGRIM," semi-monthly, product of times; fearless Evangelist on paper; fighting sin, promoting holiness; Second Coming, no new ism; orthodox. Year, 75c; four months, 25c. "Pilgrim," Piedmont, S. C.

BIBLE STUDIES BY DR. MAX WERTHEIMER, EX-Rabbi: "Satan," 10c; "Why and Wherefore of European War," "God's Gospel," "Astounding Modern Miracle," 5c each; coin or stamps. E. B. Unger, 1924 N. Judson St., Philadelphia, Pa.

DIAMOND MOTTOES. SAMPLES FREE. ANY desired text made to order, finished in beautiful colors with Diamond Frosting. Lowest prices. Excellent opportunity for agents and Christian Workers. Service Printing Company, 533 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

PRIMARY TEACHERS—CHRISTIAN MOTHERS— Ministers—write today for full particulars on new plan teaching Bible to children. You do work better and easier with this great help. Write quickly. National Educational Society, Manhattan Building, Chicago, Ill.

BLISSFUL REMAINDERS: "GREATEST WANT of the World," 20c; "Love Songs of the Church," 10c. (Together, 100 pages, strong, colored covers); Assortment favorite original "Morning Star Messengers;" list rare bargains. All these for 20c, postpaid. John Mason, 55 Park Avenue, East Orange, N. J.

MISCELLANEOUS

HAWAIIAN UKELELE AND SELF-INSTRUCTOR, $5.00. Write Wm. Buslap, 3731 Concord Place, Chicago.

SPECIAL PRICES ON CHURCH COLLECTION OUT-fits. American Blackboard Co., 411 Olive St., St. Louis, Missouri.

AGENTS WANTED TO SELL FAST SELLING religious books; liberal terms. Apply Box 115, Depauville, N. Y.

FURNACES ON TRIAL, $10 MONTHLY, TO READ- ers of religious papers. Free. Century Furnace Co., Youngstown, Ohio.

ORIGINAL STEREOSCOPIC VIEWS OF HOLY Land, for rental or sale. Best obtainable, easy terms. Apply Box 115, Depauville, N. Y.

SLIDES, RENTAL FREE, PREPAID—125 SETS— Unvarnished truth, Evangelistic, Compelling. Soul-winners. Hollingsworth, Overton, Nebr.

YOU—COME NOW (SACRED); FATHER FOOTS the Bill. Try these songs. Single copy, 25c. Two or more, 20c each. L. Credit, Quenemo, Kans.

HALF-TONE ENGRAVINGS AND ELECTROTYPES. Jos. H. Barnett & Co., 508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago, Phone Har. 1389. Mail orders promptly filled.

YOUR OLD CLOTHES, IF YOU HAVE NO ONE to give them to, will be gladly received and distributed by The Bible Rescue Mission, 626 W. Madison St., Chicago. Kindly prepay charges.

"SCRIPTURE PENCILS" SIMPLIFY CHURCH, Sunday School, Attendance and Money problems. Soldiers value highly. Stamp brings samples. Grabill & Co., Lancaster, Pa.

FIVE COMPELLING EVANGELISTIC STEREOPTI- con sermons that invariably pull crowds and help people. Fine stereopticons for sale at astonishing prices. New Idea Service System, Vinton, Iowa.

HOSIERY AND UNDERWEAR MANUFACTURER OF- fers permanent position supplying regular customers at mill prices. $50.00 to $100.00 monthly. All or spare time. Credit. G. Parker Co., 2733 N. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

CHRISTIAN MEN AND WOMEN! MAKE BIG money selling new plan teaching Bible. Also ask about Bibles on easy monthly payments. Work all or spare time. Write or call today. John McCarrell, Desk 1, Room 1128-29, 431 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

MSS. TYPEWRITTEN.—SERMON OUTLINES, LEC- ture notes, book manuscripts my specialty. Work done quickly, neatly, accurately. Income from this source devoted to Christian missions. Charges reasonable. Correspondence solicited. J. M. Nicholson, Uniontown, Ala.

YOUNG PEOPLE, OLD PEOPLE OR MIDDLE AGED people wanted to act as agents for The Christian Workers Magazine, anywhere, everywhere. Liberal Commission. For further particulars address, Agents Dept., The Christian Workers Magazine, 153 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

BUILD A $5,000 BUSINESS IN TWO YEARS. LET us start you in the collection business. No capital needed; big field. We teach secrets of collecting money; refer business to you. Write today for Free Pointers and new plan. American Collection Service, 685 State St., Detroit, Mich.

WAR MEANS THOUSANDS MEN, WOMEN, 18 OR over, wanted by Government for excellent clerical positions. $100 month. Steady work. Short hours. Life appointment. Common education sufficient. Write immediately for free list of positions now obtainable. Franklin Institute. Dept. G121, Rochester, N. Y.

TWO PRINTERS WANTED — CHRISTIAN YOUNG men able to set type or to do presswork in Printing Department. This opportunity will permit of the study of the Bible through the Evening Classes. State experience, references, age and salary expected. Address The Moody Bible Institute, 153 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

BEST ACCIDENT AND HEALTH INSURANCE. Pays weekly $15 to $40 for sickness or accident; $3,500-$5,250 loss of life or serious dismemberment; $100 available if sick or hurt away from home. Costs $7.50 a year. Company 24 years old; strong. Address, C. A. Jamison, Gen. Agt., 805 Fletcher Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

A CHRISTIAN WORKER WANTED IN EVERY COM- munity. Either lady or gentleman for part or full time work. An opportunity to make considerable money and at the same time do some good. Experience not necessary. If you are ambitious and energetic write for particulars today—right now before you forget it. B. B. Kirbridge Bible Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

ASHER TRACTS

DOCTRINAL - EVANGELISTIC - ORTHODOX
Assorted Packages (Pages.....100 200 400 1380
One of Each Tract (Price.....) .08 .15 .28 .90

ASHER BOOKLETS

HELPFUL - INSTRUCTIVE - SCRIPTURAL
20 to 208 pages.....6 to 30 cents each.
A complete price list sent on application

ASHER PUBLISHING CO.,

261 MINNESOTA STREET, ST. PAUL, MINN., U.S.A.

Big Saving on Scofield Bibles

Do you know the Scofield Bible? The publishers of this most popular edition of the Bible, edited by Dr. C. I. Scofield, have just closed out a special edition No. 74X, on India Paper, with French morocco binding, leather lined, divinity circuit. We bought these so low we can give you one with a year's subscription, new or renewal, to The Christian Workers Magazine for $5.50. When these are sold out we cannot duplicate the orders. Bible alone, $4.75.

The Christian Workers Magazine,

163 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

Writing That Is Different

when one uses the

Multiplex Hammond

The APPEARANCE of its work is distinctive and highly personal.

Change your Type in an Instant from one style or language to another

TWO STYLES OF TYPE, or two to five different languages, carried on the machine AT ONCE. "JUST TURN THE KNOB" and change instantly from Roman Type to Italics, or Miniature Roman, or our Beautiful Script Type, or from English to Greek, Russian, German, French, etc. Any other type or language can be substituted in a few seconds.

Stop and Think that the ordinary typewriter does just straight way writing; no change, no versatility. It's contracted, routine.

LET US LOOK AT WHAT ONE MULTIPLEX CAN DO:

Write a Sermon or Lecture in large type; High-Class Correspondence in a beautiful miniature type (full of individuality), both on the machine at one time. "Just Turn The Knob."

Write Manuscript in any standard body-type; emphasize in Italic; or make insertions in any language; all on the same machine. "Just Turn The Knob."

Carry any two combinations of Languages, or English type sets,—on the machine at the same time; for one or the other—

"Just Turn The Knob."

Large Type if reading from Rostrum; miniature type for church record work and membership card index.

IT'S PORTABLE

(A New Model)

11
Pounds

Full Capacity—Unlimited Width of Paper

THE MULTIPLEX

- Will add to your convenience.
- Will make you enjoy your writing.
- Will give zest to your copy.
- Will bring relief to fatigue.
- It is the writing machine of the preferred class.
- It will do all any other typewriter will do and many things no other typewriter can do.

Please send full information and catalog without obligation to

Name

Address

Occupation

568

SPECIAL TERMS TO CLERGY
ASK FOR THEM

The Hammond Typewriter Co.

568 E. 69th Street, at East River
NEW YORK CITY -:- N. Y., U. S. A.

Shall Our Soldier "Boys" Face Death Without the Gospel?

You Can Do Something

Dear Reader of "The Christian Workers Magazine":

Shall the million or more young men of our vast Army and Navy have the opportunity to find Christ as a personal Saviour before encountering the rain of death-dealing shells in France, or engage the deadly submarine?

You have been sure to provide your own son or close friends who have been called to the colors, with all the spiritual help possible. But what about the hundreds of thousands of "boys" who have gone from homes where Christ is not known? Who is going to point them to the Saviour they so much need?

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE for the comparatively few Christian workers to interview all of the men regarding their spiritual condition, but IT IS POSSIBLE to supply each one with Gospel literature which will make plain the way of salvation.

Chaplains and Army Y. M. C. A. Secretaries are asking for Scripture portions and the Moody Colportage library books in great quantities in order to provide the thousands of young men who are HUNGRY FOR SPIRITUAL FOOD and, in many instances, unsupplied with any sort of Christian Literature.

NEVER has there been a more favorable opportunity in our country for the presentation of soul-saving truth. BUT IT IS IMPERATIVE THAT WE ACT NOW!

Right at this time of greatest need our Army and Navy Book Fund is exhausted, and in DESPERATION we turn to you, dear reader, being confident of your interest in work of this kind. Where can $5 or $10 be placed with greater assurance of results in souls saved?

If this war goes on, thousands of our "boys" will give up their lives. Would you not like the privilege of helping to prepare them to go into the trenches, knowing Christ as a personal Saviour? Ten dollars will pay for and deliver ONE HUNDRED Colportage library books; $4.50 will supply ONE HUNDRED copies of "The Pocket Treasury," a collection of choice Bible chapters, instruction on how to begin and live the Christian life, and an ample variety of familiar hymns; $3.50 will provide for an equal number of Emphasized Gospels of John, in flexible cloth covers.

Your prayers as well as your financial help are urgently needed
RIGHT NOW!

Yours very truly,
A. F. GAYLORD,
Treasurer.

THE BIBLE INSTITUTE COLPORTAGE ASSN.
822 N. La Salle St. CHICAGO

Responding to your appeal in "The Christian Workers Magazine" I enclose $..... for the Army and Navy Book Fund.

Name

Address

$100.00 IN GOLD

To Some Minister, Evangelist or Sunday School Superintendent

Some of our competitors are making very strenuous objection to the title of our new song book, "Gospel Hymns and Songs," claiming that it is an infringement on a book of somewhat similar title that they brought out about 42 years ago. They are threatening prosecution and suggest a very heavy penalty for each "pirate" book that we sell, besides the fine we are subject to for the supposed infringement.

We have been advised by the highest authorities of Washington, D. C., that we have not violated any right of theirs, and these publishers have not shown us where we have infringed on their rights. However, we want to show the right spirit in this matter and owing to the objections, we are going to change the title just as soon as we can possibly select a suitable one.

Here Is Your Great Opportunity— Grasp It At Once

So we are hereby offering $100.00 in gold to the minister, evangelist or Sunday School Superintendent who will first suggest an appropriate title that we may adopt. We ask that it be short and expressive—not more than two or three words—something on the order of our "Songs for Service." We must have these suggestions very soon, so get busy. It is not absolutely necessary that you see a copy of the book, but simply suggest a title that would be appropriate for the very best modern gospel song book that it is possible to produce. However, we will gladly send you a copy for examination with the privilege of returning within fifteen days, if you do not wish to keep it and remit the price we ask for it. Remember the present name is "Gospel Hymns and Songs."

If you are not a Minister, Evangelist or Sunday School Superintendent, please bring this to the attention of someone who is.

THE RODEHEAVER COMPANY

1075 MONON BUILDING
CHICAGO

675 COMMERCIAL BUILDING
PHILADELPHIA

$1.00—MONTHLY PAYMENTS—$1.00

The Scofield Reference Bible DELIVERED FOR $1.00

And Easy Payments of $1.00 per Month

"AN INVALUABLE AID TO BIBLE STUDENTS"

EQUALS A COURSE IN BIBLE STUDY

With a New System of Connected Topical References to all the Greater Themes of Scripture, with Annotations, Revised Marginal Renderings, Summaries, Definitions, and Index

To which are added:

Explanations of Seeming Discrepancies, and a New System of Paragraphs, a Panoramic View of the Bible and Bible Chronology, with Twelve Colored Maps and Index to Maps.

HELPS ON THE PAGE WHERE NEEDED

Now made in Two Sizes identically the same page for page except for size of type Smaller Size, Minion type, 7x4½ inches. Larger Size, Brevier type, 8¼x5½ inches.

OUR OFFER

We are the only Society offering this Scofield Reference Bible on monthly payment plan.

No Extra Charge for this privilege.

No reference needed by Christian people.

Bible Sent Anywhere

Order by number. Scofield Bibles have standard numbers.

Jesus is coming.
Study about it.

The Scofield Bible makes the Bible a new book to you.

Send for Free Catalogue.

AGENTS WANTED

The National Educational Society

431 S. Dearborn St., Dept. 2, Chicago, Ill.

	Smaller Size	No. 70	Larger Size
	Price $1.50		Price $2.00
Cloth.....	No. 60
French Morocco, limp.....	51	71	4.50
Half Morocco, library style.....	52	72	4.50
French Morocco, divinity circuit.....	53	73	5.25
Persian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed.....	59	79	6.50
OXFORD INDIA PAPER EDITION
French Morocco, div. cir., leather lined to edge, silk sewed.....	55x	6.00	75x 7.50
Alaska Seal, limp, leather lined.....	58x	7.00	78x 8.50
Persian Morocco, div. cir., leather lined to edge, silk sewed.....	59x	7.50	79x 9.00
Real Morocco, div. cir., calf lined to edge, silk sewed.....	65x	9.00	85x 10.50
Sealskin, div. cir., calf lined to edge, silk sewed.....	68x	11.50	88x 13.00
Interleaved with a Blank Ruled Leaf between Every Two Leaves
Real Morocco, div. cir., calf lined to edge, silk sewed.....	265x	12.00	285x 14.00
With Dictionary of Scripture Proper Names, Oxford Index, Concordance and Maps.
French Morocco, div. cir. (White Paper).....	153	4.50	173 6.00
French Morocco, div. cir., leather lined to edge, silk sewed.....	155x	7.50	175x 9.50
Persian Morocco, leather lined to edge, silk sewed.....	159x	9.00	179x 11.00
Real Morocco, div. cir., calf lined to edge, silk sewed.....	165x	10.50	185x 12.50

SPECIAL EDITIONS

With help compiled by Rev. R. A. Torrey, D. D.

How to study the Bible. Including the Best Texts to use in dealing with different classes of people, and how to use them. Oxford Fine White Paper Edition.

Cloth.....	50T	2.00	70T	2.50
Oxford India Paper Edition
Real Morocco, div. cir., calf lined to edge, silk sewed.....	65xT	9.50	85xT	11.00

Thumb index on any style 35c extra.

Order by Number (Detach Here) Mail this Coupon

NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL SOCIETY,
431 S. Dearborn St., Dept. 2, Chicago, Ill.

C. W. Mag.

Please send Scofield Reference Bible No.
I am enclosing $1.00 with this order and promise to pay $1.00 each month until paid in full.

Name.....

Address.....

City..... State.....

THE Christian Workers Magazine

Continuing the INSTITUTE TIE

Published on the first of each month

Vol. XIX

May, 1919

No. 9

Editorial Notes: Cut From the Loaf; Reconstruction; Middle Class Union; Perils of Civilization; Hebrew Conference; A Purer Ballot.....	623
The President and the Pope.....	625
Democracy at the Cross Roads.....	626
America's Answer (Poem).....	626
Dr. Snowden's Book on the Second Coming of Christ.....	627
The Proposed Church Union, Is It of God or Man? James M. Gray.....	632
The Present Rise and Ultimate End of Democracy D. M. Pantou.....	637
The Call for a Conference on Behalf of Israel.....	639
The Queerest Book in the Bible.....	640
Lydia the Responsive.....	644
Giving Up.....	647
The Songs Behind the Victory.....	649
Bolshevism and Education.....	652
The Plea of a French Chaplain.....	654
More Truth Than Poetry (Poem).....	656
Call for Conferences.....	657
Young People's Society Topics.....	659
Sunday-School Department:
Exposition of the International Lessons.....	661
Practical and Doctrinal Applications of the Lessons.....	663
Missionary Department.....	668
Practical and Perplexing Questions.....	669
For Sermon and Scrap Book.....	670
The Evangelistic Field.....	673
Book Notices.....	677
The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.....	678
The Gospel in Print.....	683

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE: $1.50 a year to any address in the world. Remittances should be sent by bank draft, or postal or express money order.

Make checks or money orders payable to

The Christian Workers Magazine

Publication Office: Mount Morris, Ill.

Editorial and Executive Offices: 153-163 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

Copyright, 1919, by The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Entered as second-class matter January 9, 1919, at the post office at Mount Morris, Illinois, under the Act of March 3, 1879. Acceptance for mailing at a special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized June 18, 1918.

"The Boy That Night Ate the Last Puffed Grain"

At a house where I visited the hostess said to the writer, "We love Puffed Grains in our home, but somehow we don't use a large amount."

"Let us see why," I suggested.

Next morning she served Puffed Rice for breakfast, and the last grain was consumed. At noon she served Puffed Wheat in milk, and not a kernel left the table.

In the afternoon the daughter used two cups of Puffed Rice in candy. And the boy that night at bedtime ate the last Puffed Grain in the house.

That's All The Trouble

You will find that children eat all the Puffed Grains they get. The only limit when you serve them is the bottom of the dish.

These are airy, toasted bubbles, thin and flaky, puffed to eight times normal size. In form and flavor Puffed Grains are exquisite.

They are whole-grain foods—Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice. And children need whole grains.

They are steam exploded, shot from guns. By this unique process of Prof. Anderson every food cell is blasted. Thus digestion is easy and complete. No other process ever known so fits grain foods to digest.

Don't you think it a vast mistake when such foods are served sparingly, and lesser foods take their place?

Puffed Wheat Puffed Rice and Corn Puffs
All Bubble Grains—Each 15c Except in Far West

The Quaker Oats Company

Sole Makers

"By the Blessing of God

PRESIDENT WILSON

I ASCRIBE TO BIBLE STUDY THE HELP AND STRENGTH WHICH I HAVE HAD FROM GOD TO PASS IN PEACE THROUGH DEEPER TRIALS IN VARIOUS WAYS THAN I HAD EVER HAD BEFORE; AND AFTER HAVING NOW ABOVE FOURTEEN YEARS TRIED THIS WAY, I CAN MOST FULLY, IN THE FEAR OF GOD, COMMEND IT.—A MAN HAS DEPRIVED HIMSELF OF THE BEST THERE IS IN THE WORLD WHO HAS DEPRIVED HIMSELF OF INTIMATE KNOWLEDGE OF THE BIBLE."—WOODROW WILSON.

Systematic, Prayerful Bible Study gives that knowledge of God and man without which real success in life is never attainable. It gives uplift, inspiration, refreshment, strength, courage, wisdom, breadth of vision, spiritual enthusiasm—and just as surely in spring and summer as in fall and winter.

Don't allow any season to cheat you of your wonderful privilege of systematically studying the one Book which outweighs in value all other books in all the world. Dig in it as for gold and you will secure treasure of value and extent beyond any calculation. Start at once by enrolling for a MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE CORRESPONDENCE COURSE.

Many thousands the world over have studied one or more of our courses. They include people of all ages, from a boy of 14 to a woman past 80; ministers, missionaries, evangelists, busy teachers, physicians, students; shut-in people; mothers ambitious to train their children in the Word; farmers, mechanics, soldiers in the camps and in service, etc.

More than 5,000 persons were enrolled during the past year, and the number of new students enrolled for the month of March, 1919, exceeded by 51 per cent the figures for March, 1918.

Perhaps never in all history was there so great a need and demand for trained Christian workers, able to "rightly divide the Word of Truth."

If you are not already enrolled as a Correspondence student there is no better time to start than now. Fill in and mail the accompanying coupon and full particulars concerning all our courses will be sent to you. The prices are very low—much below cost, and the instruction tion is unsurpassed. You will be a personal pupil—time, place and amount of study under your own control.

"I often mention in my sermons," says a letter recently received from a Methodist minister, "that a Correspondence Course from the Moody Bible Institute has been of far greater value to me than all my Bible and theological work in college."

Another correspondent writes: "A lady last evening told me that she and her husband were both saved from Christian Science by the Christian Evidences Course and that a friend of hers had also been saved from Christian Science by the same course."

We Offer These Eight Courses

Synthetic Bible Study

—a fascinating study of the contents of the whole Bible, "really in a class by itself."

Practical Christian Work

—for soul winners and workers in exceptional forms of Christian service.

Bible Doctrine

—a biblical course in the great doctrines of the Christian faith.

Bible Chapter Summary

—a unique method of becoming acquainted with every chapter in the Bible.

Introductory Bible Course

—true to its name.

Evangelism

—nothing in modern evangelism overlooked.

Christian Evidences

—an old subject brought up to date.

THE SCOFIELD BIBLE CORRESPONDENCE COURSE

—scholarly, comprehensive, tested for a quarter of a century, and taken already by ten thousand students.

MAIL THE COUPON WITHOUT DELAY

The Moody Bible Institute

Dept. 3G, 153 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

Send me your prospectus giving complete information regarding your eight courses in Correspondence Bible Study.

Name.....

Address.....

THE RAYMOND

Eagles Mere Park, Pa.

On the western shore of the Lake of the Eagles, affording view of the entire lake and mountain views of variety and beauty. Near fine golf Links and famous Bathing Beach. Good bathing and boating. Rooms with and without bath. Tennis. Garage.

Headquarters 1919 Conference, July 13-20—
Moody Bible Institute.

For booklet and rates address,

MURRAY S. KIESS,

Manager

The New Rodeheaver Song Book Used in the "Billy" Sunday Revival Campaigns SOME EXTRA USEFUL PUBLICATIONS

THE GOSPEL CHOIR—A monthly journal devoted to the interests of choirs, chorus conductors, singing evangelists and others. Twenty pages of music each month. Send for sample copy.

JOASH, A Scripture Cantata for Choirs.—The story of Joash is admirably told. Contains 20 musical numbers: Solos, duets, recitatives, choruses, etc. 50c per copy, $4.80 per dozen.

RODEHEAVER'S ORGAN VOLUNTARIES—A 16-page collection of easy selections. 25c postpaid.

RODEHEAVER'S LADIES' VOICE COLLECTION—If your choir lacks male talent you need this. 32 pages, 35c.

Building of the Flag, or Liberty Triumphant—A new and novel patriotic exercise for junior entertainments—any number of boys and girls may participate. 15 cents each, $1.50 per dozen, postpaid.

Send for our suggested program for which includes a varied list of musical numbers, etc., to select from for such an exercise.

VICTORY RALLIES AND HOME COMING CELEBRATIONS

1075 Monon Bldg.,
CHICAGO.

THE RODEHEAVER CO.

675 Commercial Bldg.,
PHILADELPHIA

The Musical Observer

The music magazine which is causing more comment in music circles than any other publication. The last word in music magazine perfection—fresh, new, interesting, instructive and MODERN. Not for the musical "has-been," but for the live, up-to-the-minute music lover, the one who wants to know the why, where and whatfor of music.

Current Issue 15 Cents. Yearly $1.50

MUSICAL OBSERVER CO.

COOPER SQUARE, NEW YORK

Evangelistic Singers in Great Demand

The one school in all the South offering special courses in this line of work is our school. Pupils from fifteen states and the work done equal to any school in the land. Not only do you get Vocal training, but Harmony, Composition, a splendid Bible Course as well as any Instrument desired along with Literary work. Rates, $30 per month for board, room, light, heat, laundry and all tuitions.

Ask for Bulletin

Shenandoah Collegiate Institute and School of Music, Dayton, Virginia

High Water
Mark is Reached in

"OTHERS" a Service for Children's Day

in which is offered a program setting a new standard of excellence or this great festal occasion. "Flower Time" is just as good for those who desire a "Nature" service. "Chalice of Perfume" is our popular "Story and Song" service for Children's Day. Send 25c (stamps or coin) for our "Children's Day Package" containing all the above.

TULLAR-MEREDITH CO., 226 West 36th St., New York City

STRENGTHEN YOUR MUSICIANSHIP

KNOW the Psycho-Physiological effect of music on HUMANITY.

TEACH with Scientific Pedagogy.

DEVELOP the three Educational Senses.

USE Musical Memory and Force Feeling.

CREATE 95,220 Modulations as easily as nine.

USE 48 kinds of chords in creative harmony.

RECOGNIZE and use 65 kinds of scales.

Enroll any time.

Summer Sessions:

New York City, June 2 to 20.

Chicago, July 7 to 26.

Asheville, N. C., August 4 to 23.

Address:

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD

New York City, St. James Hotel, 109 W. 45th St.

Chicago, 218 So. Wabash Ave. Boston,

Steinert Hall Bldg.

VOCAL COURSE

12 VOCAL LESSONS FOR $1.00

Published in Book Form

You should learn how to use your voice correctly in singing or speaking.

Keeping the throat relaxed is essential. These lessons will teach you how.

The book contains systematic studies in tone production with full instructions how to practice. Send $1.00 and get the book at once.

A. FRANCKE, Voice Teacher

3210 N. Clark St.

Dept. C.

Chicago, Ill.

Three Beautiful Sacred Songs with music for the piano: "The Mountain Flower," "The Wonderful River," and "His Loving Voice." Standard Sheet Music size, ordinary voice. All three for 50 cents, postpaid. Order from:

OTTO LUNDELL, 725 Unity Building, Chicago, Ill.

TRACTS AT COST

Give us your order for an assortment.
E. S. JUDD, Tract Distributer
Olivet, Illinois

CHILDREN'S DAY MUSIC for the Sunday School and the Choir.

FREE Sample copies of our patriotic Children's Day pageant and other services, also catalog describing Children's Day cantatas for the Sunday School. ROSCHE'S RECITATIONS, DIALOGS AND DRILLS FOR C. D. Nos. 1, 2 and 3. Price, postpaid, 15 cents each.

GEO. F. ROSCHE & CO., 337 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

Journeys of Jesus A Book for Sunday-school Teachers and Bible Students. Publisher's price, $2.25. Agents wanted. Large commission. Mennonite Publishing Co., Elkhart, Indiana

ALL LATEST IMPROVEMENTS

TYPEWRITER SENSATION

Free TRIAL—Use As You Pay

Send me only $4.00 a month until the low total price of $53.15 is paid, and the machine is yours

This is absolutely the most generous typewriter offer ever made. Do not rent a machine when you can pay $4.00 a month and own one. Think of it—Buying a $100.00 machine for $53.15. Cash price, $50.35. Never before has anything like this been attempted.

STANDARD VISIBLE No. 10 SMITH PREMIER

Perfect machines, standard size, one motion keyboard of standard universal arrangement. The entire line of writing completely visible at all times, has the inbuilt tabulator with billing devices, the two-color ribbon—with automatic reverse and key controlled shift, automatic flexible paper feed—automatic paper fingers, the back spacer—ball-bearing carriage action—ball-bearing shift action—ball bearing type bars—in fact, every late style feature and modern operating convenience. Comes to you with everything complete, tools, cover, operating book and instructions, ribbon, practice paper—nothing extra to buy. You cannot imagine the perfection of this beautiful reconstructed typewriter until you have seen it. I have sold several thousand of these perfect latest style Smith Premier machines at this bargain price, and every one of these thousands of satisfied customers had this beautiful, strictly up-to-date machine on five days' free trial before deciding to buy it. I will send it to you F. O. B. Chicago for five days' free trial. It will sell itself, but if you are not satisfied that this is the greatest typewriter you ever saw, you can return it at my expense. You won't want to return it after you try it—you cannot equal this wonderful value anywhere.

You Take No Risk—Put In Your Order Now

when the typewriter arrives deposit with the express agent $9.15 and take the machine for five days' trial. If you are convinced that it is the best typewriter you ever saw keep it and send me $4.00 a month until my bargain price of $53.15 is paid. If you don't want it, return it to the express agent, receive your $9.15 and return the machine to me. I will pay the return express charges. This machine is guaranteed just as if you paid $100.00 for it. It is standard. Over one hundred thousand people own and use these typewriters and think them the best ever manufactured. The supply at this price is very limited, the price will probably be raised when my next advertisement appears, so don't delay. Fill in the coupon today—mail to me—the typewriter will be shipped promptly. There is no red tape. I employ no solicitors—no collectors—no chattel mortgage. It is simply understood that I retain title to the machine until the full $53.15 is paid. You cannot lose. It is the greatest typewriter opportunity you will ever have. Do not send one cent. Get the coupon in the mails today—sure.

HARRY A. SMITH, 329-218 N. Wells St., Chicago

I want, through this advertisement, to establish as friendly business relations with you as I possibly can. I want you to realize also, that it is my earnest effort and intention to give you full honest value for every dollar that you spend with me. This is the only way I can succeed. My advertisement has appeared in the leading magazines continuously for more than four years.

I am building up my business on the foundation of good value and square dealings. I am saving thousands of satisfied customers thousands of dollars, by supplying perfect—late style—visible writing—typewriters, at remarkably low prices.

All my transactions are handled throughout by personal correspondence. I assure you every courtesy and consideration, in your dealings with me. Your order will have my prompt, careful, personal attention. I will be glad to do business with you.

Harry A. Smith

H. A. Smith

Room 329-218 N. Wells St
CHICAGO, ILL.

Ship me the No. 10 Smith Premier, F. O. B. Chicago, as described in this advertisement. I will pay you the $44.00 balance of the SPECIAL $53.15 purchase price, at the rate of $4.00 per month. The title to remain in you until fully paid for. It is understood that I have five days in which to examine and try the typewriter. If I choose not to keep it I will carefully repack it and return it to the express agent. It is understood that you give the standard guarantee for one year.

Name.....

Address.....

Every question which is likely to arise in the average home concerning Bible names, places, personages, uses and customs can be satisfactorily answered by reference to this volume

"Such a volume is a positive necessity to everyone who would be accurate and well informed on Bible topics. It is a real dictionary and not a compendium."—Education.

"But one consistently 'conservative' dictionary of the Bible of moderate compass and fully abreast of modern scholarship before the public."—Princeton Theological Review.

An Inseparable Companion to the Bible.

DAVIS BIBLE DICTIONARY

THIRD REVISED EDITION

By Professor JOHN H. DAVIS, Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.,

With the cooperation of Professor B. B. WARFIELD, D.D., LL.D., and the late GEORGE T. PURVIS, D.D., LL.D.

Price, Cloth, $3.00, postpaid.

Half Morocco, gilt top, $3.75, postpaid.

Full Morocco, $6.00, postpaid.

"The pronunciation of Biblical names is made easy, while numerous illustrations and an excellent set of maps add greatly to the value of the book."—Presbyterian Advance.

THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION

(THE WESTMINSTER PRESS)

Headquarters: PHILADELPHIA, Witherspoon Building

New York, 156 Fifth Ave.

Chicago, 125 N. Wabash Ave.

Cincinnati, 420 Elm St.

Nashville, 711 Church St.

St. Louis, 411 N. Tenth St.

San Francisco, 278 Post St.

Pittsburgh, Granite Building, Sixth Ave. and Wood St.

My Way of Teaching Piano Made Plenty of Enemies

All the old fogeys who are down on anything new—especially correspondence study—made it pretty hard for me when I first started 25 years ago.

And the fact that in spite of their opposition, I obtained more students every year seems to me pretty good evidence that my method isn't wholly bad.

I now have far more students than were ever before taught by one man. There isn't a State in the Union that doesn't contain a score or more skilled players of piano or organ who obtained their entire training from me. They learned in quarter the usual time and at quarter the usual cost. I will gladly refer you to any number who will soon convince you of the excellent results they gained from my instruction. My free booklet "How to Learn Piano or Organ" will interest and inform you. But don't send for it if you're afraid of being convinced.

My way of teaching piano or organ is entirely different from all others. Out of every four hours of study, one hour is spent entirely away from the keyboard—learning something about Harmony and The Laws of Music. This is an awful shock to most teachers of the "old school," who still think that learning piano is solely a problem of "finger gymnastics." When you do go to the keyboard, you accomplish twice as much, because you understand what you are doing. Within four lessons I enable you to play an interesting piece not only in the original key but in all other keys as well.

I make use of every possible scientific help—many of which are entirely unknown to the average teacher. My patented invention, the COLOROTONE sweeps away playing difficulties that have troubled students for generations. By its use transposition—usually a "nightmare" to students—becomes easy and fascinating. With my fifth lesson I introduce another important and exclusive invention, QUINN-DEX. Quinn-Dex is a simple hand-operated moving picture device, which enables you to see, right before your eyes, every movement of my hands at the keyboard. You actually see the fingers move. Instead of having to reproduce your teacher's finger movements from MEMORY—which cannot be always accurate—you have the correct models before you during every minute of practice. The COLOROTONE and QUINN-DEX save you months and years of wasted effort. They can be obtained only from me and there is nothing else, anywhere, even remotely like them.

Men and women who have failed by all other methods have

Marcus Lucius Quinn Conservatory of Music
Studio C. R.—Social Union Bldg. Boston, Mass.

DR. QUINN AT HIS PIANO—From the famous sketch by Schneider, exhibited at the St. Louis Exposition.

quickly and easily attained success when studying with me. In all essential ways you are in closer touch with me than if you were studying by the oral method—yet my lessons cost you only 43 cents each—and they include all the many recent developments in scientific teaching. For the student of moderate means, this method of studying is far superior to all others, and even for the wealthiest student, there is nothing better at any price. You may be certain that your progress is at all times in accord with the best musical thought of the present day, and this makes all the difference in the world.

My Course is endorsed by distinguished musicians who would not recommend any course but the best. It is for beginners or experienced players, old or young. You advance as rapidly or as slowly as you wish. All necessary music is supplied without extra charge. A diploma is granted. Write today, without cost or obligation, for 64-page free booklet, "How to Learn Piano or Organ."

FREE BOOK COUPON

QUINN CONSERVATORY, Studio C. R.,
 Social Union Bldg., Boston, Mass.

Please send me, without cost or obligation, your free booklet, "How to Learn Piano or Organ," and full particulars of your Course and special reduced Tuition Offer.

Name.....

Address.....

A Great Triumph—Just Off the Press

Songs of Liberty

(THE PITH OF AMERICANISM IN SONG)

Compiled by HUBERT P. MAIN

Every Well Known Song

160 Pages

Patriotic	Sacred Songs
Popular War Songs	Scripture Readings
The Allied Anthems	National Airs
Gospel Hymns	Home Ballads
	Plantation Melodies

Undeniably the best collection ever published for Community Choruses, Patriotic Gatherings, Service Clubs, Sunday Evening Services.

An Incomparable Book for the American Home

Attractively Bound

$30 per 100 in quantities, carriage extra.

Send 35c today for a postpaid "HOME COPY"

The Pilgrim Press

21½ West Jackson Street Chicago

JUST OFF THE PRESS

Herald of Praise

"The King of Song Books"

Edited by 200 Leading Evangelists and Ministers

Contains 256 pages of the best old and new hymns. Regardless of cost the editors tried to make this

The Greatest Song Book Published for Churches, Sunday Schools, Evangelistic Services and Young People's Meetings.

Best manila binding, 20c.; 100, $15.00 (not prepaid).

Flexible cloth binding, 25c.; 100, $20.00 (not prepaid).

Cloth board binding, 35c.; 100, $30.00 (not prepaid).

5 per cent discount for cash with order.

Send for free returnable sample copy.

The Glad Tidings Publishing Co.

202 S. Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

Free Service to Missionaries

We can cooperate with you to your great advantage in planning your overseas outfitting. Our Missionary circular will give you details and will be sent free on request.

Ask for our big new catalogue. We will send it free too.

Montgomery Ward & Co.

Missionary Bureau

Chicago, U. S. A.

An Important Work by a Prince Among Bible Students
Answering, Perhaps, Scores of Questions You Have Asked

DR. C. I. SCOFIELD'S QUESTION BOX

Compiled by ELLA E. POHLE,

For eleven years Assistant to Dr. Scofield in his Bible
Correspondence School.

A veritable treasure-house of sound exegesis of many puzzling phrases, verses and passages of Scripture, also Biblical teaching as to various problems of Christian work and experience. Consists of hundreds of answers (with their respective questions) given by this able student of the Word in public print, in personal correspondence, and to students of his correspondence school. As these are questions that are constantly arising the book is continually valuable.

GENERAL CONTENTS

Apparent Contradictions	Faith	Parables	Salvation
Assurance	The Holy Spirit	The Person and Work of Christ	Sanctification
Baptism	Inspiration	Prayer	Satan
Christian Conduct	Israel and the Church	Prophecy	Science and the Bible
The Church	The Judgments	The Rapture	The Sin Question
Civic Righteousness	Kingdom Truth	Rationalism	Tongues (Speaking in)
Death and the Eternal State	Law and Grace	Repentance	The Tribulation
Evolution	Manuscripts, Translations, etc.	Resurrection	Types
	Miscellaneous	The Sabbath	Woman's Ministry

Beside the Table of Contents a full Subject Index is provided, with page reference to Scripture passages explained—six pages of Index in all.

$1.25 net

The Bible Institute Colportage Ass'n., 822 No. La Salle Street Chicago

The TOURISCOPE Illustrated Lectures

The Touriscope meets a distinct need for wholesome, sane recreation and inspiration. It helps to broaden and uplift thought. It educates while it entertains.

In the church, Sunday school, club, young people's meeting, Y. M. C. A. or lodge, Touriscope lectures provide instructive, interesting and economical entertainments.

Touriscope Lectures include a wide variety of subjects. Burton Holmes Travellettes—each one selected and edited by the famous traveler-lecturer himself, accompanied by a complete and authoritative lecture reading.

The famous Pace cartoons—an exclusive Touriscope feature.

"The Life of Christ," International Sunday School Sets.
Boy Scout and Y. M. C. A. lectures.

These are only a few of the most popular Touriscope films.

Special sets made to order from your own negatives or pictures. The Touriscope projects both film and glass slides. Films may be either rented or purchased.

GEO. W. BOND SLIDE CO.

14 West Washington St.,

Chicago, Illinois

On the Write Road

The signs of writing comfort and satisfaction read—Moore's won't leak.

The Moore has more than one point of merit—

The pen point

No better has ever been made.

The non-leakable construction

The only pen shipped by mail and express to the dealer—filled with ink.

The ready-to-write feature

Pen is always wet with ink—no shaking to make it start.

Ask your dealer to demonstrate a Moore's. Make comparisons but don't accept substitutes.

THE MOORE PEN COMPANY
168 Devonshire Street Boston, Mass.

Lost, yesterday, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with sixty diamond minutes. No reward is offered, for they are gone forever.
—Horace Mann.

Do you realize how much VALUABLE TIME is WASTED each day?

Two hours a day means twelve working hours a week—or approximately fifty hours each month.

If you KNEW fifty wasted hours meant FIFTY UNEARNED DOLLARS, what would you do?

Write us NOW and we will explain how you can profitably use your spare time.

The Christian Workers Magazine,
153-163 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:
I am interested in your money-making plan for spare time.

Name.....

Address.....

City..... State.....

A Commendation and an Appeal from Dr. Gray

After the Bible, a concordance, a Bible dictionary and, perhaps, an all-round work like Angus' "Bible Hand-Book," the next book I would recommend as indispensable for the library of the pastor, missionary or Christian worker of today is, "Christianity and Anti-Christianity in Their Final Conflict," by Rev. Samuel J. Andrews, he who wrote "The Life of Our Lord," which is recognized as the best history of Christ, from the chronological standpoint ever published.

Dr. Andrews was not only a Bible student of exceptional insight and breadth of vision, but a prophet for these times beyond any man I know.

In this work he is dealing with the conflict in which we are now engaged, treating, first, of the teachings of the Old and New Testaments respecting the Antichrist and the falling away of the church, and then the tendencies which are preparing the way for the final climax of the age. These tendencies include modern philosophy, Biblical criticism, science, literature and Christian socialism, leading up to the deification of humanity. The book concludes with a foreview of the actual reign of the Antichrist on earth as the head of the nations, and a study of the Church of that period.

Pastors, missionaries, Sunday-school teachers and social workers, bear with me if I say, YOU MUST READ THIS BOOK. Here are no wild fancies, no foolish setting of times and seasons, no crude and sensational interpretations of prophecy, but a calm setting forth of WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ON THE MOST IMPORTANT SUBJECT FOR THESE TIMES. The Christian leader who does not know these things is NO leader, but the blind leading the blind. And, oh, there are so many of such leaders!

The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. JAMES M. GRAY,

Now Ready in Revised Edition

CHRISTIANITY AND ANTI-CHRISTIANITY IN THEIR FINAL CONFLICT

By Rev. Samuel J. Andrews

Fine cloth covers, 392 pages, 6¼x9¼ inches

Price reduced to $1.50 net, prepaid

The Bible Institute Colportage Ass'n, 822 N. La Salle St., Chicago

Baker Gospel
Tabernacles Are Built To Attract the Crowds and Give Service.

Send For Bargain
List of Second Hand Tents

Baker & Lockwood Tent Co. Kansas City, Mo.

WE INVITE YOU to share with us in the blessed work of Giving the Gospel to the Jews.

Through the Preached Word, and through our Tract Dept., we are seeking to reach the hearts of the "Ancient People."

OUR FREE DISPENSARY gives us an opportunity to tell the patients of "The Great Physician."

To carry on this work we need the prayers and Free-will Offerings of the Lord's people.

THE NEW COVENANT MISSION

Reed and Crawford Streets, Pittsburgh, Pa.

REV. MAURICE RUBEN, General Superintendent

REV. E. M. MCFADDEN, D. D., Exec. Sec.-Treasurer

PROPHETIC CONFERENCE ON BEHALF OF ISRAEL

Under the Auspices of the Chicago Hebrew Mission MAY 20 to 23

AUDITORIUM of the Moody Bible Institute
No. La Salle St. & W. Chicago Ave.

For information regarding program, speakers and entertainment, write

NORMAN H. CAMP, Superintendent, 1505 So. Sawyer Ave., Chicago

Free Book—on "Church Cushions"

Anyone interested should send for this 100-page book—illustrates cushions for pews, altars, chancels, kneeling cushions, hassocks, etc. We make new cushions to order, and renovate old ones, cheaper and quicker than you imagine. Write us for samples and quotations.

OSTERMOOR & CO., 116 Elizabeth Street, New York
Canadian Agency: The Parkhill Mfg. Co., Ltd., Montreal

OSTERMOOR

Listening for the Shout 10c

A Booklet on the Second Coming of Christ. Just off the Press.

—ALSO—

The World's Saturday Night.....10c. Down Grade.....10c. The Coming Storm.....10c.

Postage 1c Each.

Address D. R. Raiser,

:-:

:-:

:-:

Tiffin, Ohio.

GULL LAKE (MICH.) BIBLE CONFERENCES

July 6 to 19 August 3 to 10

CHRISTIAN FUNDAMENTALS—PROPHECY—DOCTRINE—DISPENSATIONAL TRUTH—EVANGELISTIC

SPEAKERS: A. C. Gaebelien, Editor "Our Hope"; Max Wertheimer, ex-rabbi; W. Leon Tucker, Editor "Wonderful Word"; R. E. Neighbour, of Macon, Ga.; C. E. Putnam and George E. Guille of the Moody Bible Institute Extension Department, Wm. L. Pettingill, Editor "Serving and Waiting," and others.

PLAN NOW to Spend Your Vacation Next Summer at Beautiful, Peaceful, Healthful Gull Lake. Combine Rest and Recreation with Profitable Bible Study Under Some of America's Most Able Expositors.

A Collage Among the Trees

For Information with regard to transportation, rates for board and lodging, also program, address

E. G. ZORN
Conf. Secretary

Boating on Gull Lake 7533 S. Sangamon St.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

STUPENDOUS

A friend writes: "It is with pleasure that I present to you this check for $..... to aid you in your stupendous task of evangelizing the Jews. I am sorry I cannot give more just now."

And who wouldn't use the word stupendous when he realizes the task? Two million Jews within the city limits of New York. Every third man a Jew. Less than 40,000 are members of their own synagogues; the rest outside the pale of any religious teaching! Thousands drifting to agnosticism, Eddyism, anarchy, shipwreck. There are more Jews in New York than in the combined cities of Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Boston, Cleveland, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Buffalo.

Do you see the enormity of the task? Have these scattered sheep no claim upon you? Was it not the Jew who gave the Gospel first to the Gentiles? Can you hush your conscience by a delusion that the "Jews are cast off now"? Suppose Paul had said in his heart, "the Gentiles are cast off," where would you be today? How many Jews will there be in heaven because you prayed? Or because you gave?

THE WORLD'S STRATEGIC JEWISH CENTER

And here we stand, where God has put us, in the midst of a teeming two million of Jews, ready to interpret a virile, sympathetic Christianity to them—your Christianity. We have the opportunity, the field is white; we have the message. God has given us that; we have the medium, a group of Jewish workers of recognized ability and consecration. In short, we have the anvil. But we need the hammer! We need your prayers, your sympathy, your money. Give us half the chance you give China, or India or Africa. The oldest people stand at the door of the youngest, and Zion calls to Columbia. Will you help?

Your gift will, of course, bring you our literature, whether you send a thousand dollars, or one. But write today.

WILLIAMSBURG MISSION TO THE JEWS

STATION A,

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

THE Christian Workers Magazine

May, 1919

Editorial Notes

"In all things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us."—Romans 8: 37.

"The man who is victorious through victory is a conqueror; but he who is victorious through defeat is more than a conqueror and that was the case with Paul.

"In the light of this read what he says in 2 Corinthians 2: 14, 'Thanks be unto God which always leadeth us in triumph in Christ' (R. V.).

"His purpose once had been to bring back Christians from Damascus bound to his chariot, and to lead them into the city of Jerusalem like a Roman conqueror rejoicing over them as slaves, and thus to have a triumphal entry. But instead of that the Lord met him on the way, and he was chained to Messiah's chariot. Therefore he says, 'Thanks be to God who always leadeth us in triumph.'

"His great joy is not only to be defeated, but to be led as a captive chained to Emmanuel's chariot. In this sense he was not only a conqueror, but more than a conqueror."

—A. J. Gordon.

✱ ✱ ✱

"The British Government eventually found by actual experience that it was better to make men moral than to try to make immorality safe." This luminous sentence occurs in an Army report attributing

Reconstruction the improved health of the soldiers to the personal influence of the commanding officers who induced their men to lead morally good, healthy lives.

The reference is primarily to sexual indulgence and its results in venereal diseases, but the application has a much wider scope. It is better to make men temperate and sober for example, than to try to get rid of the manufacture and sale of intoxicants.

However, our chief reason for quoting the remark bears upon the great function of the church to preach the gospel to every creature. Men are now talking about a reconstruction period and advancing theories about building up the social, political and moral fabric that has been so shaken by the war. It is all right for publicists and political reformers to talk about these things, but when theological professors, Christian pastors and editors are being carried away in the popular trend so as to talk about almost nothing else, one pauses to ask if they have forgotten their calling, or if they have any reason to believe that its potency is impaired?

Here is a young clergyman just returning from military service, who wishes information as to the "most helpful books in connection with the reconstruction of our thought life, the need of the world, thinking God, Christ, the problems of humanity, etc."

What possibly, can he mean? Is there any book capable of answering such a demand except the Word of God which liveth and abideth forever? One can understand that he may need an enrichment of his library along the line of hermeneutics or apologetics, and that his own experience may require quickening in the life of God, but outside of that will he say that either the world or humanity has changed? Is there any need existing today that has not in essence existed since sin first appeared? Is there anything new about God or about Christ, that will not break forth to our understandings from the page of inspiration?

To get back to the Army report, it is better to make men true disciples of Christ than to try to improve the world in which they live. This is not to say that there is no need of improvement, neither is it a sneer at the self-sacrificing efforts of humanitarians to whom all of us are under deepest obligation; but it is a call to the exponents of Christianity to do what the shoemaker should do, stick to his last.

This is the day for sound, evangelical preaching, for Bible teaching, for evangelism, for the family altar, for old-fashioned catechetical teaching of the children. If the church is to change its methods as the world is vociferating that it must, let it be a change in the direction of a spiritual renaissance. Let us get back to the days of Whitefield and Wesley; of Jonathan Edwards and David Brainerd; of Adoniram Judson, of Finney and Nettleton and Lyman Beecher; the days of Methodist revivals; the days when "Thus saith the Lord" was spoken with authority; when men trembled under conviction of sin; when the mourner's bench and the inquiry meeting had some meaning in them, and when the bells of heaven rang for penitent sinners returning to the Lord.

It is better to save men out of the world than to make the world safe for men to live in. And strange to say, the more men who are thus saved, the safer becomes the world in which they live.

Our chance has come at last, happy day! That is to say, it is at least in sight. We have waited long and almost without hope, but now that a Middle Class Union has been formed in England, may we not soon inaugurate one in the United States?

Middle Class Union This English union embraces in its present and potential membership all the millions who work with brain or pen, and is intended to protect them against legislative and industrial tyranny, and it is time. It will "fight to remove unfair burdens already placed on the middle class, to compel members of the working class to pay income taxes equally with the members of middle class and to prevent the passage of new laws which unjustly affect the middle class."

At a meeting in London early in March, earnest and passionate speeches were made, and the chairman denounced the government "for paying $5,000,000 a week out of work donations to people who, during the war, extorted extravagant wages from the necessities of the country, while during the same period the great middle class had received smaller incomes than normally and had done as much as any, in men, and money and courage, to win the war."

To be serious, we are not speaking for ourselves personally, nor indeed for any of the middle class in this country who know and who trust the Lord. We have suffered and are suffering, but we are not looking to labor unions nor human brotherhoods of any kind to aid us, but to the Living God who has never failed.

But we are speaking for the great mass of our fellowmen who, belonging to the middle class with ourselves, and yet not knowing the God whom we know, are suffering without any hope except as they shall be able to better conditions for themselves.

These men and women are between the upper and the nether millstones. What between the extortion of some of the big operators on the one hand and that of the Labor Unions on the other their case is hard. A union of some sort with the weapons of the strike and the boycott seems to be their only chance in this selfish and cruel world. For years it has been talked about, and now if it has really come, we may expect war to the hilt.

O, what a tangle is that of the human race today! Who but God can find the thread that will unravel it, and make it answer the real purpose of love and happiness for which it was created? Where, except in Christ, can real brotherhood be found? How long, O, how long, will it be ere men will come to know this, and willingly take that yoke upon them by which they shall find rest to their souls!

"The world is growing better all the time," is the slogan of the modern mind. And when you ask for proof, the multiplication of material comforts holds a large place in the argument.

Perils of Civilization But material comforts multiply moral crimes. For example, as roads are improved and automobiles are becoming more commonly used, robberies in small towns and cities are increasing in number and violence. To quote the Chicago Tribune, "Robberies are fortified in the use of fast cars and feel additionally secure as highways are bettered." The editor says relief lies only in a thorough system of police, and he advocates a state constabulary.

And so the ball keeps rolling. As we get more, we require more protection to keep it. And by and by the protection will need protection and we will provide that; and so we will keep piling up betterments on betterments until one day the pile will topple over by its own weight.

Nevertheless we believe in a constabulary. Let us have all the protection the world can give, for God often uses the things that are at hand for the execution of His gracious purposes toward His people. However, our business is to increase the number of His people by faithfully testifying to His Son. We are not looking for a better world without God, but we have little doubt that when His Kingdom is set up all the material comforts and advantages of "civilization" that are being increased in these days, will do their full share to make up the joys of that people as long as the earth shall stand.

The Chicago Hebrew Mission has arranged to hold its Annual Conference on behalf of Israel, at the Auditorium of The Moody Bible Institute (Chicago Ave. & N. La Salle St.) May 20-23 inclusive. Hebrew Conference The Institute faculty and students will co-operate with the Mission in making the Conference a blessing to the greatest possible numbers.

An announcement concerning the speakers and subjects will be made later; but friends of Israel, who discern the signs of the times, are asked to pray that this Conference shall be greatly blessed of God, and aid to bring about His purposes concerning this people, so long in spiritual blindness and unbelief. For information regarding the Conference, entertainment, etc., write Supt. Norman H. Camp, 1505 S. Sawyer Ave., Chicago, Ill.

During the months of January and February, the Chicago Hebrew Mission has conducted a systematic house to house distribution of tracts in the three large Jewish districts of Chicago in which they are laboring. The missionaries placed one tract in English and one in Yiddish in each home at which they called, and during the two months distributed a total of 86,526 tracts, making 40,028 calls, and in this way evangelizing approximately 200,000 people. The workers are now re-visiting this same territory with Bibles, Testaments, and Gospels. The readers of The Christian Workers Magazine are asked to pray for God's blessing upon this special effort to reach the 300,000 Jews of Chicago.

Advocates of woman suffrage who have expected it to reform and elevate politics, must have experienced a shock when the recent election in Chicago revealed that A Purer Ballot three out of every four women who voted, voted "wet."

The President and the Pope

Editorial

ONE of the strongest utterances of a politico-religious character that we have read for some time is that of Dr. R. A. Torrey, entitled, "Our President's Colossal Blunder." It appeared originally in The King's Business, and has since been put in leaflet form (1c each, 10c per dozen, at the Biola Book Room, Los Angeles, Calif.).

Copies of it should be widely scattered in our Protestant communities, not to extend criticism of the President, but to awaken sleepers to the increasing peril from the Roman Catholic hierarchy.

The article deals with the President's visit to the Pope, which, by the way, attracted so little attention from the press in the part of the country where we were at the time, that we do not remember having noticed it.

"King George of England came to see the President first" observes Dr. Torrey. "King Albert of Belgium welcomed him with great honor. The king of Italy visited him first in Paris and afterwards went a long ways to meet him in Italy. But President Wilson went to see the Pope instead of the Pope coming to see him, and permitted the Pope to make the conditions under which alone he would receive him."

But the startling thing in the article is the quotations it contains from Roman Catholic sources. After affirming that the two great perils of the country at the present day are Bolshevism and Romanism, the writer demonstrates that Rome is not concealing her aims regarding America by the following from the National Catholic Register: "It is God's plan that the Holy Father of Rome should be the spiritual and temporal head of His Kingdom on earth. It is the same today as in the time of the first Pope. The best way to accomplish this is through political power, through religious education and service."

"God has doubly blessed the Catholic Church of America by placing one of its most faithful sons at the right hand of President Wilson. Next to the President, Hon. Joseph Tumulty, Knight of Columbus, thirty-third degree, wields the greatest political power of any man in America, and as a true Catholic he is exercising the great trust which God has given into his hands for the glory of the holy church. Through his tact and holy zeal he has created a warm friendship between the Catholic Church and President Wilson, together with the Democratic Party.

"Other presidents have feared the power of the holy church and have courted its support, politically, by granting it childish favors, which deceived no one. But this is the first time in the history of the country when the president and a great political party have openly sought an equal and honest alliance with the Catholic Church.

"And before seeking this political alliance, the President and his party have shown their good faith by works. Through the efforts of Hon. Joseph Tumulty, President Wilson has practically granted that education in the Philippines shall be under control of the Catholic Church; and that religious activity in the great American Army shall be under the direction of the Knights of Columbus. This means the addition to the church of one million of the country's best and bravest young men, or at least their strong preference and sympathy for the Catholic Church.

"The Catholics will soon have an opportunity to prove their appreciation of President Wilson's friendship and at the same time increase their political prestige and strength." Further on the writer says: "Every Catholic must awake to his duty and stand by his church and President Wilson."

Dr. Torrey truly says that these Roman Catholic words should startle the most indifferent and somnolent of us and arouse us into a sense of the deadly peril of the hour.

Democracy at the Cross Roads

Editorial

WE HAVE recently been reading a smart little book with the title at the head of this article.

The Literary Digest speaks of its author, Miss Maude D. Petre, as England's foremost woman philosopher, a radical in politics.

In the book she thus speaks of herself:—

"In spite of contrary influences and surroundings, I was democratically disposed from my early years. I had even a romantic attraction for a purely communistic form of society in which all men should be equal, and still more, all men should be friends.

"Life, and the opportunities it has vouchsafed me of coming closer to all that I had only viewed from a distance, has not changed those dispositions, though it has taught me how easy it is to alter the form without changing the substance, and to take words for realities."

The genesis of her book was the remark of a wounded soldier to whom she ministered in a hospital, who said: "After the war we are going to have a workingman's world."

"To his uneducated mind," as she remarks, "the proper return of the people from any hardships they had endured, would be a world in which they could make everything good to themselves at the expense of others." Upon which she comments that "if such a spirit were to prevail, then the world might become safe for democracy, but democracy would certainly not be safe for the world."

In other words, in her view, the seat of power might be shifted from an aristocracy, or autocracy, to a democracy, without the elimination of its vices, and there might be new rulers with all the faults and ambitions of the old ones, minus the training and experience of the old ones. Or to put it in another way, a democratic form of political life is not in itself more disinterested than any other form. It may abolish selfish privilege in one way and initiate it in another. It may give men more advantages without leading them on to a nobler use of them. It may distribute values differently without changing the system of values. More money and less work is a good program, but it is not necessarily a program of human love and brotherhood, nor even of moral betterment.

Miss Petre does not believe that the poor as such are one whit better than the rich, or that material poverty has any essential connection with poverty of spirit. To speak bluntly, she thinks that the leaders of labor should have done with the faults of others and begin to think seriously of their own.

This author expresses the convictions we have held personally for a long while, and indeed no other convictions are possible to a student of the Bible which so plainly teaches that the individual is the key to the social and political, and that the world must be regenerated on the inside before it can be permanently and beneficently changed on the outside.

Therefore, whatever revolutions are taking place, or about to take place, the work of the gospel preacher or the Christian worker remains the same. He is to testify the gospel of the grace of God and proclaim the unsearchable riches of Christ. He is to seek to take out from among both Jews and Gentiles a people for the name of God, and he need expect no easier task in the future than in the past.

As a matter of fact, the democratic form of government is the last and supreme attempt of the Gentiles at world dominion, and it will prove a failure like all its predecessors. So supreme a failure will it be that the kings of the earth, the aristocrats and the autocrats will come together at length, and "for one hour," consent to give their power and authority to the "beast." The superman will thus take control and that will mean the end, not the end of the world, but the end of the Gentile age.

Christ will then come and slay that wicked one with the breath of His mouth and destroy him with the brightness of His coming. That is to say, "In the days of these kings, shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." (Dan. 2:44).

AMERICA'S ANSWER

By Mrs. Jessie Noble Phillips

We heard the call from Flanders' Field
Where Britons died but did not yield;
We grasped the torch and held it high.
'Twas not in vain that ye did die
On Flanders' Fields.

The poppies still their flaming red
Wave by each cross that marks your dead,
The larks sing sweetly as before,
But the voice of guns is heard no more
On Flanders' Fields.

Sleep, soldiers brave, the call ye gave
Found kindred hearts across the wave:
And God our arms with victory blessed.
Sleep on, ye brave, and take your rest
In Flanders' Fields.

Dr. Snowden's Book on the Second Coming of Christ

By Rev. J. H. Ralston, D. D.

OF THE many books appearing within the last five years on the second coming of the Lord, one of the most pretentious is by Rev. James H. Snowden, D. D., LL. D., Professor of Systematic Theology in the Western Theological Seminary at Pittsburgh, Pa. The volume is announced as "one of the first authoritative considerations of the subject published within the last half century." What authority is behind it is not clearly stated but the book is dedicated, it is presumed, con amore, to the president of the institution named, the Rev. James A. Kelso, D. D.

Two Methodist clergymen, Doctors Sheldon and Eckman, have put out books on the same subject recently. The Baptist, Professor Shailer Mathews, has written a booklet on the same subject that has received wide attention, and another Baptist, Professor Shirley Jackson Case of the University of Chicago, has written quite a formidable book. Now Dr. Snowden, a Presbyterian, comes out with his book, all these being post-millennial. Other books and booklets, and magazine articles on the same side, have been coming out in goodly number, all apparently attempting to stem the tide of premillennialism, that Mr. William T. Ellis, the well known newspaper man, says is widely prevalent, many clergymen devoting most of their sermons to teaching it.

As several of these books are written by professors in theological or divinity schools, it may evidence some concern lest premillennialism may prevent students from going to those schools, going rather to the Bible Institutes of the country where the belief is almost universally held. If the theological and divinity schools prefer to officially declare for postmillennialism, they may well ask whether their students, if given both sides of the controversy, would so elect. A prominent Presbyterian seminary recently had a debate on the second advent and the millennium, and when a vote was taken as to the strength of the arguments, it resulted in 34 to 29 in favor of the postmillenarians, almost an equal division. The traditions of the seminary were postmillennial, and the professor conducting the debate had been speaking very strongly against premillennialism previous thereto.

Dr. Snowden's Reversal of View

Dr. Snowden claims to have been a premillennarian, having accepted the teachings of the Rev. Samuel H. Kellogg, D. D., who occupied the chair of theology in the Western Seminary where Dr. Snowden was a student and who was driven from his position because of his premillennial teachings. Dr. Snowden now claims to have been converted to the postmillennial view by reading "The Second Advent" by Dr. David Brown, a postmillennarian who wrote some seventy-five or more years ago. It is interesting to note that Dr. Snowden has been recognized by his friends and admirers as belonging to the liberal school in theology, formerly holding the plural authorship of Isaiah, that the book of Daniel belongs to the second century before Christ, and other things that belong to higher critical teaching. He has written several books on metaphysics and Christian philosophy, and is looked upon as an idealist, his idealism coming to the surface more than once in the book under review.

The book might be criticized because of the inadequate treatment of some aspects of the second coming and the practical ignoring of others, but only those considered in the book will enter into this review, which will not take up the book chapter by chapter but will consider some outstanding features of the book without respect to where they occur in it. Indeed, some of these are considered, or touched upon, in different parts of the book. The aim has been to read and study the book carefully in order to discover its framework and to present its purport.

Pessimism and the Second Coming

This is spoken of first because it at once appeals to sentiment and prejudice, and with most people these are powerful, and shut the door to investigation. A pessimist can hardly be tolerated. Dr. Snowden is quite careful about depicting the present political and social aspects of the world, and changes the popular words, "All's right with the world" to "All will be right with the world." With him the premillennarian has everything wrong with the world and everything getting worse and worse. He quotes at considerable length from certain premillennarians who stress this matter. He is very careful, however, to keep the reader from looking beyond the premillennial unsatisfactory world to the glories and joys of the renovated earth at the coming of the Lord.

But we ask, who is the pessimist—the man who depicts things precisely as they are and cites Scripture as to what they will be, and then brings forward the certainty that present condition will be succeeded by a condition that will be beyond any Utopian dreams? Or, is it the man that insists that everything is satisfactory, when never in the history of the world were they more unsatisfactory and steadily growing worse, and insists that the only hope of the prevalence of righteousness and of universal peace will be the result of processes now going on?

Five years ago, Dr. Snowden and his friends were predicting the early furling of battle flags, the establishment of the federation of the world, the fulfilment of prophecy as to the swords and the spears. But what an awakening did they have! Is there much comfort to the person longing that permanent peace be attained, in the assurance that Dr. Snowden gives, that in some millenniums the process of world conversion will have been completed? Premillenarians do not worry a moment as to the outcome of present unprecedented world conditions. They know that they are but the symptoms of the day of deliverance which will come to all the creation travelling in pain together until now, when He who made all shall come to take His place as the fulfilment of God's oath.

"Watching" and the Second Coming

Advancing towards Dr. Snowden's chief argument, we must notice what he says about watching. He cannot shut his eyes to several injunctions to watch, and devotes an entire chapter to the topic. He first berates premillenarians that they do not define watching, and ridicules them by suggesting star gazing, jabbing of their noses against the window panes, while looking for Jesus. He says premillenarians make watching to be "the holding of prophetic conferences and carrying on a propaganda to convert Christians to their views."

If he had consulted Premillennial Essays from which he elsewhere quotes, he would find that the premillennial belief as to watching is "wakefulness, alertness, activity and circumspection." That is certainly sufficient, but it is something beyond what he says watching should be. He should keep in mind that this conception of watchfulness is precisely the conception of Dr. A. A. Hodge, one of his former teachers in theology, who says, "The designed effect of the attitude of uncertainty with regard to the time of the second advent and the general judgment, in which the saints are placed, is that they should regard it as always immediately impending" (Commentary on the Confession of Faith, page 536).

The premillenarian Paul, urged the Philippian Christians to have their conversation in heaven, from whence they were looking for the Saviour; and he said to the Thessalonian and Corinthian Christians that they should wait for the coming of the Lord; these injunctions containing the conception of watchfulness as defined above.

How does Dr. Snowden define watchfulness? It consists in just attending to our appointed duty and daily round of work. In brief, it is attending to our own business. Now all this is conceded by premillenarians as embraced in watching; but there must be the forward longing look, the longing that has been expressed in seraphic language by such saints as Samuel Rutherford, Richard Baxter, and scores of others, and in many of our most stirring hymns.

Dr. Snowden would have all Christians hard at work building up the kingdom of God, a work what he says will stretch over vast vistas of time before Christ will appear to "wind up the world." With the absolute certainty that the coming of Christ will not be until a very remote future, men will not trouble themselves to look for the coming Bridegroom, and they will do as the vast body of postmillenarians have done, absolutely ignore the whole question.

"Matthew 28: 18-20"

Dr. Snowden has what may be called his palm-ary argument in setting forth Matthew 28: 18-20 as being a command to convert the world. He sometimes befogs his readers by using the term "Christianize the world," but before leaving the subject he makes the terms "convert" and "Christianize" synonymous.

After giving, on pages 93 and 94, the positions of the premillenarians and postmillenarians, the first claiming that the purpose of the gospel is the witnessing to all nations, and the second claiming that the purpose is to convert all nations, he says, "This is the decisive point and difference between the two theories, and by this point they stand or fall." He then presents the passage of Scripture, and says that the injunction to "make disciples," means to "convert into disciples." "The preaching or evangelizing should result in actual conversion" (page 94). He says "all authority" and "I am with you" are the two abutments on which this mighty arch of the conversion of the world rests (page 102). He more emphatically rests his argument on that one passage than premillenarians rest their argument respecting the millennium on Revelation 20:1-10.

He seems astonished that premillenarians have not used Matthew 28: 18-20 to show the purpose of the gospel in the world, but have used instead Matthew 24: 14: "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in the whole world for a testimony unto all the nations; and then shall the end come."

The reason is not difficult to discover. Premillenarians take Matthew 24: 14 as presenting the purpose and Matthew 28: 18-20 as presenting the method of carrying out the purpose. The premillenarian in his witnessing does not simply give testimony, but he endeavors to make disciples and to teach all things that Christ would have them do. For nineteen hundred years no nation has been converted, although high hopes have been indulged now and then that certain nations were about to come over en masse to the Christian faith. It would be exceedingly difficult to find a community of any extent altogether converted. If Matthew 28: 18-20 expresses the purpose of the gospel, it has failed for nineteen hundred years.

Dr. Snowden brings the charge that certain missionaries flit from point to point "witnessing," and do not establish anything of permanence.

Premillennarians Do Permanent Work

Let it be answered that the method of Paul and the apostles was that of going from city to city witnessing, and in some cases not leaving anything behind them, as at Athens; but ordinarily the witnessing was followed by organization and permanence. As a matter of fact, premillennial workers together with their witnessing establish schools, hospitals, dispensaries, etc., and it is certainly unkind to intimate that such undertakings as those of the China Inland Mission, the Africa Inland Mission, and many other great missions, where the missionaries are exclusively premillennarians, are doing ephemeral and superficial work.

In this connection, Dr. Snowden should recall that the great church boards will not favor ephemeral work, and yet some of the secretaries of such boards are premillennarians, Dr. Robert E. Speer, for instance.

It might be asked, When will this conversion of the world be accomplished at the rate it is being done now, when there are far more heathen than ever before in the Christian era? Dr. Snowden tries to make provision for that, for he says that the coming of Christ is in the "remote future," that "the world is very young," that "humanity is in its infancy," and that the centuries stretch out before us in "vast vistas" (page 275). Yet how inconsistent is he, for elsewhere he says, "When He will come and how He will come, we do not know," and also, "The second coming of Christ is a great way off" (page 81).

He elsewhere says that it is a very remote event, in which statement he violates the principle as to setting a time. The premillennarian says, "Jesus Christ may come today, tomorrow, or not for a thousand years."

Unitarian Salvation

It is interesting to note how Dr. Snowden interprets the object of the great commission: "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I command you." Hearing is to be translated into doing, profession into practice, creed into conduct and character, and duty into deeds. This is the living gospel which is printed in human spirit and speech and bound up in flesh and blood; this is the gospel of reality that is alive and alert and active, the gospel that is read and known of all men; the gospel that the world sees and feels and to which it pays the homage of its respect and reverence. This is Christ reduplicated in Christians and multiplied in the world. This is the final end of the gospel, the fruit of the Spirit; this is the gospel that is the power of God unto salvation, this is salvation itself; and this is the kingdom of God in the world." (Page 101).

In spite of any protest that can be made, this is salvation by character—doing, practicing, conducting oneself properly, sustaining an admirable character, performing duty—"this is the final end of the gospel, this is salvation itself." Not a hint or a word about the "gospel" of the mercy of God in Jesus Christ, of the remission of sin, of the necessity of faith for justification, etc. This is in truth pure Unitarian salvation, the salvation for which we can hardly believe that the Western Theological Seminary stands.

In Matthew 28: 18-20 there is not a word about the method of man's salvation, but that method having been presented as Peter and Paul in their witnessing presented it, the method of carrying on the work is given. In that passage it is not commanded that the disciples preach the gospel. If Mark 16: 15 can be accepted as genuine we have that command. Dr. Snowden's great argument falls to the ground of its own weight.

"Logic" and the Second Coming

Dr. Snowden stresses "logic" and "tendencies" in opposing premillennialism. On page 196, he says: "All through this book we are not dealing with the personal motives of premillennarians, much less are we imputing to them unworthy motives; but we are dealing with the logic and spirit of their system."

It is well for Dr. Snowden to decline to deal with concrete cases of individuals as to the effects and results of premillennial views. His argument as a whole intimates that logically the adoption and practice of premillennialism would check, or entirely stop, the great work of giving the gospel to the world; or, probably, as he would prefer to put it, to stop the winning of the world to God.

He would probably insist that he is a pragmatist, and it is to that point we would like to draw his attention. The world needs, and the church is calling for, Christian beliefs that work.

Does Premillennialism Work?

In Dr. Snowden's book, he does not pretend to set forth what postmillennialism has done, and yet he has had from the third century to the sixteenth in which to find his facts. The premillennarians are not slow to say, "Come and see." For the first three centuries, A. D., even according to Dr. Snowden's concession, premillennialism was the prevailing belief of the church. In those centuries the church went forward by leaps and bounds. It spread over all the inhabited earth, and some think that the preaching of the gospel to all nations was pretty nearly realized. But, under Constantine the Great, postmillennialism came in, and for some twelve or more centuries the world was in Pagan and Romish darkness and superstition.

With the Reformation, premillennial views came to the front again. That era is still with us, and we do not hesitate to call attention to some people who are doing things and to point to them as premillennarians. Three-fourths of all the missionaries are premillennarians. The distinguished president of Foreman College in India, well known to Dr. Snowden and greatly admired and loved by him, told the writer last summer, that he was a premillennarian. Has he been a fruitless Christian, yielding to the "logic" of his belief? This distinguished man said that probably five out of six missionaries that he knew were premillennarians.

While the vast majority of the theological professors in the seminaries are postmillennarians, is it not significant that practically all the Bible teachers in the many Bible schools of the country are premillennarians? And this class of teachers will be greatly strengthened by the coming of Dr. G. Campbell Morgan and Dr. A. C. Dixon to this country in the near future.

Where is there another church in Christendom that can equal the accomplishments of the Reformed Episcopal Church of Dr. D. M. Stearns, of Germantown, Pa., every member of which is a premillennarian? If the Presbyterian Church would give to missions as that church has been giving steadily from year to year, it would contribute a hundred and thirty millions of dollars annually to that cause, while it is now contributing a little over two millions.

Presbyterian Moderators

Does the holding of premillennial views destroy the efficiency of a minister along denominational and popular lines? Of the last seven moderators of the Presbyterian General Assembly, including the present one, at least three of them are well-known premillennarians, Dr. Mark Matthews, Dr. John Timothy Stone, and Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman. Do we need to make an apology for any one of these? Mark Matthews is easily the greatest Christian leader on the Pacific Coast. John Timothy Stone is pastor of one of the greatest churches in the country, and his personal influence is second to none in the middle West. J. Wilbur Chapman, who departed to be with his Lord last Christmas, was the most influential minister of the Presbyterian denomination at the time of his death, and was at the head of the New Era Movement.

The great body of evangelists in this country are, almost to a man, premillennarians. In view of these facts, where does "logic" go? The logic of Calvinism would result in sitting with folded hands and letting predestination do the work, but the fact is that Calvinism is a most pragmatic belief.

"Scholarship" and the Second Coming

As might be expected, Dr. Snowden makes as much as he can of "scholarship." In his objections to premillennialism, he presents it as his last, and it is the unlucky thirteenth, argument.

But he walks a little softly here, for after taking a glance over the past, he admits that many scholars formerly held this view, and he is so uncertain of the present that he says, "We think scholarship is drifting in its thought and life more and more to the postmillennial view" (page 243).

Is the Christian church much concerned about what the scholarship of the present day says on religious questions? Scholarship has had its flowering period in Germany. To that country thousands have flocked from all over the world to become scholars, and some have succeeded. Many men with the ministry in view have gone to the German theological schools, where they have sat under professors who did not even attend religious services, and who treated religious questions from the purely godless and scientific standpoint. This scholarship has gone to science, and science gave Germany great cannons, air-ships, submarines, gases, powerful explosives, etc. Even preachers in Germany were proclaiming during the war that God had come to their relief in giving this great scientific knowledge, and Germany was invincible. Where is Germany today? Are the defenders of postmillennialism trying to get behind scholarship? The German Kaiser at Amerongen is safer than they.

The premillennarian has no contention with scholarship if it reveres the Word of God and has its eye open to all the great lessons of history and the events of the day. He little regards the musty tomes of the past, the skeptical speculations of the last quarter of a century, or the vagaries of mysticism, modern altruism and baseless optimism, but believes in the one Book, which, a brilliant writer in a southern journal recently said was "premillennial throughout."

"The Blessed Hope" and the Second Coming

Dr. Snowden cannot escape some notice of the "blessed hope." He makes that his tenth point, in the chapter, "Is the World Growing Better?"

What is the "blessed hope" in his judgment? It is the end of this world, the end of humanity, which will never be perfected on this earth. It can only be realized when Christ comes to the final judgment to sit on His throne, to summon all living and dead before Him, when He will "wind up" the affairs of this world. If Dr. Snowden had followed Dr. David Brown, the distinguished postmillennarian, whom he quotes approvingly elsewhere in his book, he would have found that he made the "blessed hope" to be the appearing again of the Son of God, and designated that appearing as "the polestar of the Christian church," and puts those words in capitals.

What shall we make of Titus 2: 11-13, where Paul says that "the grace of God hath appeared, bringing salvation to all men, instructing us, to the intent that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly and righteously and godly in this present world; looking for the blessed hope and appearing of the glory of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ?" Is there going to be violence done to that text by separating the "blessed hope" from the "glorious appearing" of Jesus Christ? Who cherishes "blessed hope," if we take Dr. Snowden's interpretation of it? It is something to be dreaded rather.

The Christian's "blessed hope" involves directly the personal coming of his Lord in accordance with His promise that engendered the hope, "I will come again and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also," to complete the great work of redemption. It is the "blessed hope" that prompts the followers of the Lord to cry out, "Even so, come, Lord Jesus. Come quickly."

"The Resurrection Body" and the Second Coming

In his zeal to destroy the literal interpretation of the Holy Scriptures as accepted by premillenarians, Dr. Snowden seems to travel entirely outside of the circle of evangelical truth. He teaches that there will not be a physical resurrection of the body, that Christ does not have a physical body now in heaven. He denies the literal fulfilment of the prophecies of the Old Testament concerning the coming Messiah in these words: "But the Jewish prophecies of the first coming of the Messiah and of His kingdom were not literally fulfilled, but were realized in the spiritual kingdom of Christ; and this disappointment was the tragedy of the Jewish nation" (page 151).

But we may ask, how about the prophecies as to the conditions of the birth of Jesus, its exact location, the opposition of men, etc.?

In Dr. Snowden's denial of the physical resurrection, he says, on page 151, "As to the resurrection of the body, Paul flatly denies that it is a physical body of flesh and blood. . . . Not only so, but he expressly argues this point and combats the view that the physical body is raised out of the grave, in his great chapter on the resurrection, I Cor. 15."

How different is this description of the resurrection body from that of Dr. Snowden's revered teacher, Dr. Kellogg: "A body which shall be formed by the energy of the immortal spirit, a body especially adapted to the cravings and necessities of the spirit, as this present body is to those of the animal life, a body which shall be an organism fit to be the perfect and glorious instrument for the holy activities of the man formed by grace into the perfect image of his Lord and Redeemer. . . . The resurrection body shall consist of matter organized . . .

which shall constitute it the fit and adequate instrument of the principle of the spiritual life!"

Dr. Snowden Versus Paul

This error of Dr. Snowden has been noticed by the editor of The Presbyterian, of Philadelphia, who treats the book kindly, but adversely.

Has any person with fair sanity ever gotten anything out of the fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians but that in it Paul is teaching about the resurrection body? It is body, body, body all the time, not spirit, not myth, but body. To say that the body of Christ, or the body of the believer, is spiritual, does not take away the fact that it is a body that is thus described.

Would Dr. Snowden deny the physical ascension of the body of Jesus Christ, as recorded in Acts 1: 9-11? The Scriptures have several references to the seeing of Jesus when He returns. If we would spiritualize 1 Corinthians 15 as Dr. Snowden does, is there anything in the Bible that is immune from the same treatment? By such a principle, the student of the Bible could not but be hopelessly bewildered, and certainly will never be able to teach others its great truths. It is precisely such teaching that sends out students from theological seminaries with no positive views, and they become blind leaders of the blind.

It is quite of a piece with all objection to the premillennial view of the second coming of Christ that the physical resurrection should be denied or questioned. It is, on the other hand, at that point that the premillenarian can ask with Paul, "Who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" He sees, with the eye of faith, not "after long vistas," the Lord Jesus descending in His glorified body, and has the assurance that his own body will be like Christ's glorious body. Therefore, it is perfectly natural that the glorious appearing should be his "blessed hope."

The Shaking of the Foundations

We are not so much concerned about the effect of such teaching on premillennialism as upon the whole frame-work of the evangelical faith. The rumblings in the theological world are not less real than those in the political, social and commercial world. Many who have in the last quarter of a century followed the vagaries of modern scholarship, have found themselves in shallow waters and are sending out the S. O. S. for help. Many of these also realize that their only hope is to return to the acceptance of the fundamental truths that the fathers believed, which made them what they were, and gave those of us who live today all the good we profit by and enjoy.

The book of Dr. Snowden is in a literary style that is fascinating. We cannot believe he had malice in his heart as he wrote, but we believe that possibly he wrote hastily, and we might paraphrase the words of David in his case and make him say: "I wrote in my haste that premillenarians were a deluded body of Christians"; but as the same paraphrase might be, "I wrote in my alarm, that premillenarians were deluded."

That the book will have wide reading, there is little doubt; but the trend of thought on the part of sincere students of the Bible or history or of current events is to the rejection of the postmillennial theory, a new hypothesis as Whitby called it, that the world is growing better until it is prepared for the coming of the Lord. Dr. Snowden himself is compelled, by a glance at the last nineteen centuries to give "long vistas" of time for the conversion of the world. On the other hand the premillenarian, with his Bible in his hand, and studying history and current events, sees that there is no hope of the world growing better under human government. His hope is the return of the world's Creator and Lord, to take the throne of His father David as to the flesh, and so to establish righteousness and social conditions on this earth, so that there will not only be peace among men of good will, but that there will be perfect harmony among all creatures, and all nature be smiling and happy when He is ruling in righteousness, but in love as well.

The Proposed World Church Union—Is It of God or Man?

By Rev. James M. Gray, D. D., Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

An Address Before The Graduating Class, April, 1919

THE phrase "World Church Union" is borrowed from a newspaper headline, the occasion for which was a regional conference, one of several in different localities, in the interest of an inter-church world movement.

Personally I did not attend the conference, nor have I seen as yet any official report of its proceedings, therefore, what I am about to say is in no sense a review or criticism of it, but only of the somewhat meager newspaper reports of it.

But the reason I refer to these is that the people who read them and are influenced by them, do not see the published proceedings. From them they gather their idea of such a conference, and their idea of the church and of Christianity which it represents. In this case the idea they would gather would be erroneous; in my judgment it would contradict the Scriptures, weaken Christian testimony, and dishonor God. Therefore, it becomes my duty as your teacher and spiritual leader for the time being, to place you on your guard concerning it as you go forth, in turn to be teachers and spiritual leaders of other people.

I

What Churches Will Constitute the League?

For example, one declaration, said to have been made by the conference, was that "a world league of churches is to be the result of the war." "The day is at hand for a tremendous new movement, nothing can stop it," it was said. It is "the greatest religious movement in four centuries."

These words in themselves are enough to raise a question in the mind of any thoughtful reader of the times to say nothing of the Bible. But the particular question that presses on our attention is: What churches are to be included in the league? A similar question has arisen as to the League of Nations, but it is not near as important as this.

To illustrate: Three Protestant Episcopal bishops are now across the seas seeking a conference on unity between the Russian Greek, the Roman Catholic churches and the Protestant churches of the world, "the first time since the reign of Henry VIII that Anglican bishops have waited upon the Pope," says The New York Evening Post. Surely it does look like "the greatest religious movement in four centuries," only we must control our enthusiasm because religion is a broad term and "is of many varieties," as Professor James says.

"It is recalled in this connection that the Holy See expressed its willingness to co-operate in a movement towards Christian unity in a letter from the Papal Secretary of State to Dr. McFarland, secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, and the present commission is expected to take advantage of those negotiations in presenting the plan to the Pope."

Here then we may see prophecy in process of fulfilment. That there is to be a league of nations is undoubtedly revealed in prophecy, and its secular head is designated as a beast with ten horns. But side by side therewith is another beast with two horns like a lamb, but which "spake like a dragon."

This is the false prophet, the ecclesiastical head of the nations, who exercises the authority of the ten-horned beast, and causes the earth to worship him; doing wonders, deceiving men, and causing "that as many as would not worship the image of the beast should be killed" (Rev. 13: 15). There are careful students of prophecy who believe that this two-horned beast symbolizes the papacy; but if this or a similar movement towards world church union should succeed then there could scarcely be any doubt about it.

Of course it may be said that this regional conference was not thinking of a union with the Roman and Greek churches, but only one of the Protestant churches. But again the question might be raised as to what churches of Protestantism are included. This war has furnished an illustration of what a union of that kind might effect.

"Unionizers" and Catholics Together

The Rev. J. B. Gambrell, D. D., a prominent Baptist minister of the South, reminds us that when the well-known and highly respected Rev. George F. Truett, D. D., of Dallas, Tex., desired to go overseas as a simple Baptist preacher, he was not permitted to do so. He had to wear a "Y" uniform or stay at home.

The Baptist boards desired to send other men but without success. Dr. Gambrell said they besought, they protested, they did everything they could to obtain some privileges, but in vain. As he puts it, "the unionizers and the Catholics working in accord, have had full swing in the greatest times we have ever seen. And they still occupy the war stage, all of it."

This explains my meaning when I say, that if such a world church union should be formed and succeed, it might easily be true that the two-horned beast symbolized the papacy, for the "unionizers," to borrow Dr. Gambrell's words, and the Catholics would then be found practically together in a great merger.

I will not pursue this part of my subject further. We all feel that, however the unionizing of the religious activities of the war was justified by events, it was nevertheless a body blow to evangelical Christianity, and an unutterable wrong to the spiritual interests of our fighting men.

II

Toleration Not Tolerated

The newspapers reported a declaration of the conference that was rather startling, and indeed suggested the unhappy days of the Inquisition. It told us that "the spirit of co-operation is in the air, and that sectarianism and the accompanying bigotry which it engenders will not be tolerated."

Let us examine these terrifying words. What is sectarianism? "It is devotion to, or promotion of, the tenets and interests of a denomination." What is bigotry? "It is an obstinate and unreasonable attachment to one's belief and opinions, with intolerance of beliefs opposed to them." This is what the dictionary says.

Therefore, if the World-Church Union, or an Inter-church World Movement, will not tolerate sectarianism, what is that but bigotry on the largest scale?

Not to tolerate, in this instance, is to refuse to allow to others the enjoyment of their opinions, and their chosen modes of worship and the like.

Are we therefore to understand that such an ecclesiastical trust, or merger, as a World Church Union, would attempt this? If so, what difference would there be between such a union and the tyranny of the Pope?

An evangelical preacher was heard to say recently, that if he lived another decade or so, and by the grace of God maintained his present testimony to the gospel, he expected to suffer for it by imprisonment or the shedding of blood. And he felt warranted in saying so, because, during the late war, some of the leaders of the present movement for the Inter-Church World Union, representatives of the liberal theology, had done their best to stir up persecution against premillenarians, calling them dangerous pacifists and German propagandists. Is it conceivable that this preacher may be a true prophet?

In bigotry we do not believe, and with grief we admit that sectarian quarrels have produced "bitterness, wrath, anger, clamour and evil-speaking." But still we believe in sectarianism in the dictionary sense of the term. We believe, in other words, that devotion to and promotion of the tenets and interests of a denomination is a good and a necessary thing in this age. Of course, we mean tenets and interests that are in harmony with the Word of God.

Value of Denominations

This is not a perfect age. We are still in our infancy as to apprehending the deep things of God. We are finite, truth is infinite. And just as woman is needed to complement man, so one side of a given revelation seems needed to balance another side. For example, there was a time in the history of the church in this country, when had it not been for the evangelical Adventists, the testimony to the coming of Christ would have suffered an eclipse. What if that testimony had been silenced by a World Church Union that would not tolerate it?

I am not a Baptist, but I am here to say that the insistent testimony of courageous Baptists to the holy ordinance which gives them name, has been a potent factor in restraining the apostasy of the church to this day. What if it had been successfully frowned upon by an Inter-Church Movement?

The principle of independency established by the Congregationalists, is a wholesome antidote to the prelatical pretensions of the body in which I was born and reared; while on the other hand, Episcopacy is a needed brake on a natural tendency in Protestant Christianity to run into spiritual anarchy. Close the mouth of either and the whole church would suffer.

The testimony of orthodox Friends to the inner witness of the Holy Spirit and simplicity of life in the seventeenth century and later, saved the church from an overwhelming flood of worldliness.

Evangelical Lutheranism is a strong support to the necessary outer framework of orthodoxy.

and a bulwark to the doctrine of the sacraments, which the body of Christ could not afford to lose.

The Methodist emphasis on free grace and human responsibility has been almost a synonym for revivals since the days of Wesley. What would we have done without it? While the opposing emphasis of Presbyterianism and the Reformed churches on divine sovereignty and the security of the saints seems vital to the appreciation of what free grace is.

Latterly I have been refreshing my mind in the history of some of the smaller denominations like the Christian Church, the Evangelical Association, the Methodist Protestants, the Mennonites, the Moravians, the Reformed Episcopal Church, the United Brethren, the Evangelical Church, and some others, and I have come to thank God for every one of them.

They were born in a revival, or they owe their origin to a new emphasis on an old and nearly forgotten truth, or a protest against some error. And their coming into being was in every case like an infusion of new blood in a decaying body, like a refreshing shower on the parched earth; like a renewal of life and faith in the eternal verities of God. I can say this with a good conscience even though I can not agree with all of them on some of their points either of doctrine or practice.

Separation Better Than Union

Indeed Dr. Riley, of Minneapolis, contends that the time has come for further separation rather than closer union. In his brochure, The Christian Confederacy, he affirms that Christianity, rightly defined, has come to a crisis of its existence, and that its entire future rests with the decision which must be made at once.

He says with perfect truth, as all of us can testify, that two men, belonging to different denominations may hold identical bases, while two belonging to the same denomination may be as remotely apart as Unitarian and Trinitarian, as the skeptic and the firm believer.

And he presents with striking force the incongruity of calling Dr. I. M. Haldeman of New York, and the late Professor Foster, of the University of Chicago, for example, both Baptists; of calling Dr. Reginald J. Campbell, of London, and Dr. G. Campbell Morgan of the same city, both Congregationalists; of calling Dr. L. W. Munhall, the evangelist, and the late Professor Terry, of Garrett Biblical Institute, both Methodists; of calling Dr. Mark A. Matthews of Seattle, and President Brown of Union Seminary, both Presbyterians." And might he not have added, of calling Dr. W. H. Griffith Thomas of Toronto, and some ritualist "Father" or broad churchman of the same denomination, both Anglicans?

These are cases of plowing with the ox and the ass together which the Bible condemns, and of two trying to walk together who are not agreed.

One argument for World Church Union that seems unanswerable to some is efficiency, by which is meant a maximum of result with a minimum of expenditure. But in the service of God that argument makes a discord. Christ answered it at Bethany, when He commended Mary for wasting the alabaster box of ointment on his head.

A writer in The Christian Advocate recently said with truth, that it is easier to raise a million for missions than to get a dozen strong men on their knees crying, "God be merciful to me a sinner." A world church union may get the million, but the small denomination and the small church in the denomination, in their separate struggle for life and maintenance are far more likely to get the sinners on their knees, and that is what the church is here for after all.

III

The Aim of the Proposed Union

In the newspaper reports of the conference on which I am commenting, it was the work proposed for the World Church Union that especially arrested my attention.

Churches must work together, it was said, to give expression on questions of civic reform, law enforcement, local moral questions, international morality and world peace.

Of course, no sane man will question the desirability or necessity of promoting these objects and no intelligent and balanced Christian will consider it well-pleasing to God to neglect proper occasion and opportunity as an individual to promote them. Personally, if the end will justify the allusion to myself, I am always interested, and actively so, in all of them. Part of my thought, and time, and means, as a citizen and a member of the great human family is devoted to them. In my capacity as editor of The Christian Workers Magazine I see that almost every issue touches upon some of these problems. To wilfully neglect my duty at the primary of the ballot box would trouble my conscience as a Christian man.

But the point is that these things are not the calling of the church considered either as an organization or an organism. And for the church throughout the world to become absorbed in them to the extent named, is practically for the bride of Christ to become a harlot.

By-Products of Christianity

To the extent named, the movement means local, state, national and international organization, according to the newspaper reports. It means a survey of world conditions; an elimination of competition in local church fields and in foreign missionary activities; a campaign of education; and a financial canvass next year "for probably $750,000,000, to realize the cause." Of what? World-wide Christianity, it is called;

but the truth is that these things are only by-products of Christianity, and that when Christianity itself, pure and undefiled, is promoted by the evangelization of men, then these by-products are as certain to follow as the grass is certain to spring up after rain.

Just imagine what it would mean for the whole church as such, to unite for these things! Who would be left to preach the gospel, to win souls to Christ, or to teach the Word of God to men? Indeed, who would be left with time and strength enough, to say nothing of desire, to listen to them?

And since men are men,—even regenerate men are still men with the same mental and moral functions as before—if all so-called competition in local church fields and foreign missionary activities were eliminated, what secondary incentive would be left to stir them to proper action in the gospel? And God uses secondary incentives thus to stir His servants.

Finally, in this connection, if a campaign is to be put on for such a purpose where will a campaign for evangelism find room? And if $750,000,000 must be raised for this, where can anything be raised for the advancement of fundamental Christianity?

IV

The Reconstruction Plea

The advocates of a World-Church Union are pictured in the newspapers, to whose reports I refer, as riding into power on the plea of reconstructing things after the war. They tell us that we are in a new world today, and that the church must adapt itself to new conditions.

This is being repeated so often, and in so many ways, that it may be well to look into it. Are we really in a new world, or is it the same old world trying to get a new grip on itself? As Major Kindersley says in his poetic address to the profiteers:

"No, the tale is the same as ever,
And the world will go on as before;
Our sons will be fooled and blinded,
As our fathers were of yore."

Has the nature of sin changed, or has it voluntarily weakened its hold upon humanity? Has any new and successful remedy been found for its ailment, or any better way of applying it than the old way? Has the gospel ceased to be "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," or is it no longer necessary that "the foolishness of preaching" should save men?

The claim of these "unionizers" is said to be that the church is failing to function because its membership is "absorbed in the salvation of their own souls while the world goes to the devil," to quote a critic.

But as Dr. Andrew Gillies, in The Christian Advocate, casually remarks, they who say such things are evidently unconscious of the humor of it, for their statement is the very opposite of the truth, and it has been so for more than a decade. During that time, and longer, there has been a steady change of emphasis from the glories and horrors of the future to the problems and duties of the present; from religion as a personal oneness with a divine person to religion as the performance of a set of duties; from the salvation of the individual to the salvation of society. And the danger that Dr. Gillies sees is the very danger towards which a World-Church Union would be steering us. It is the danger that the churches shall become mere agents of social service, "ethical asylums," as he calls them, instead of homes in which souls are born into a newness of life.

The Church and the Masses

And there is still another aspect of the question which Dr. Gillies does not touch. These "unionizers" charge the church with divorcing itself from the masses, and they urge their program of civic reform and law enforcement as necessary to hold the masses in allegiance to the church.

Without raising the query as to what spiritual advantage it would be to the masses to hold their allegiance to a church of that kind, it may be said that the facts refute their theory. During the past decades the church has been moving in the very direction they advocate; it has been doing more in politics and social service than ever before, and yet these same men affirm that our soldiers on returning from the battlefield will have nothing to do with the church until it is reconstructed. Does not this indicate that the reconstruction required should be on different lines?

The fact is that the policy of these would-be leaders is the very thing that is widening the breach between the church and the masses. The latter are coming to believe that the church is trenching on the prerogatives of the State. As a southern preacher puts it: "The church is endeavoring to enact into laws such ideals of morality and social reforms as she has been unable to inscribe on the tablets of the human heart. She is endeavoring to enforce by the strong arm of the government what she has failed to accomplish by moral suasion."

For this reason the masses are murmuring against the church. They are beginning to demand its abolition. They affirm that its abolition would not destroy religion, but democratize it, give it new power and life, while at the same time it would preserve the peoples' rights and liberties. And considering the church merely as a visible organization there is something in what they say.

V

Church Unity at Pentecost

Let me not close without seeking to build up on the ruins of that which has been cast down.

And yet I am not the builder. Thank God the construction was wrought by the Lord of glory long ago. The inspired apostle reveals it in the fourth chapter of Ephesians, where he exhorts Christians to walk worthy of the vocation wherewith they are called, and which vocation he has enlarged upon in his earlier words. We are to do this, he says:

"With all lowliness and meekness, with long-suffering, forbearing one another in love, "Endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. "There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling."

In other words, Christian union and in that sense, church union, is not something which we have to make, or which we can make. It is not our affair at all, as another puts it, either to create or produce it. It has been made for us and our obligation is solely to endeavor, or give diligence, to "keep" it.

On the day of Pentecost when, by one Spirit we all were baptized into one body (1 Cor. 12:13), Christian unity became an accomplished and eternal fact. The body into which we were baptized is the body of Christ, of which body we are all members, who have come, in the New Testament sense, to believe on and confess Christ.

As Professor Ströeter says: "It thus becomes idle and mischievous to attempt true Christian unity on the basis of doctrinal agreements or of church federation. All such efforts have in them the germ of death and come far short of the glory of God. They are obstacles in the way of attaining the divine purpose because they so closely resemble the genuine article that they prevent the latter from receiving its proper recognition."

Our duty then is to "keep" the unity which God has made. And He tells us how to keep it. Not by outward bonds of conformity, not by passing of resolutions, not by coming together in acts of neutral service, not by letting down the demands of truth to the level of a worldly understanding, not by compromising "the faith delivered to the saints once for all," not by substituting the ideals of men for the high calling of God, but by

"Lowliness and meekness, with long-suffering, forbearing one another in love."

Newspaper Advice

In all this present agitation for World-Church Union it has been left for The Baltimore Sun, a secular newspaper, to utter the truest word that I have read, when it said editorially:

"We believe the principles of the Christian religion are absolutely essential to the safety and the welfare of the world. But if they are to prevail, the churches themselves must be reconverted—not in creeds, but in spirit and in life. No elaborate platform of agreement is necessary to bring about a league of churches. The only thing necessary is that they should 'co-operate in Christian work as brethren.'

"To be 'brethren,' in truth and in deed, does not require surrender of creeds or compromises in faith; but it does require the eradication of hate and prejudice, and the supremacy of the Spirit of Christ, the spirit of brotherhood, the spirit of love. It is going back simply to the first and second Christian commandments—'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy soul, and all thy strength, and all thy mind;' and 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.'

"A long journey for hate and prejudice; but it must be made if the Christian church is to be saved and is to save the world."

Moreover, this unity thus made by the Holy Spirit is not one to evaporate in words, but manifests itself in deeds. "For unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ."

These gifts are apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers, who have a mighty and blessed service to render their fellowmen, even "the perfecting of the saints." And the perfecting of the saints in its turn is that they may engage in the work of ministering for the edifying of the body of Christ.

The Highest Altruism

Nor is this a selfish or self-centered work, since the church is set for the salvation and blessing of the whole earth. This is the highest altruism, the most enduring philanthropy, and the greatest of all forms of service for the social betterment of the human race.

As men and neighbors, therefore, as those of one blood and of one kin, let us do all that we can legitimately to reform the city and the state, to enact and enforce good laws, to promote international morality and world peace. As citizens let us be found working or fighting together shoulder to shoulder for these things; but when it comes to the formation of a World-Church Union or an Inter-Church Movement to promote them, let us beware lest we be found fighting against God, betraying the Lord for thirty pieces of silver, and selling our birthright for a mess of pottage.

[Following the delivery of the above address, requests were made by representative Christian leaders in the audience from several cities, that it be supplied for distribution in pamphlet form.

This suggests the question, How widely and to what classes of persons might it be desirable to distribute it? Also, whether any of our readers may be moved of God to furnish a fund for this purpose.]

The Present Rise and Ultimate End of Democracy

By Pastor D. M. Panton, B. A., Norwich, England

I

Democracy

DEMOCRACY is the world's last hope for achieving Utopia. Never was the clay—the brittle, unstable, fragile populace—more freely mixed in, yet hopelessly unamalgamated with, the hard crushing iron of imperialism (Dan. 2:43). Democracy has this year reached in England a force and flood nothing short of a bloodless revolution. The Reform Act of 1832 enfranchised half a million middle-class people. The Reform Acts of 1867 and 1884 added three millions of the working classes. In 1918 the poll has been far more than doubled at a stroke of the pen, making a total of twenty-one millions, in what the Times (Oct. 22, 1918) has described as “the most far-reaching representation of the people act in the history of the world.” The inclusion of seven million women has brought us within range of democracy's last possible development—adult suffrage, with cabinets and parliaments embracing both sexes.

II

God and Democracy

It is essential that we should grasp the attitude of the Most High to modern democracy. Democracy—“the government of the people, for the people, by the people”—is the long-suffering of God granting to the less cultured classes such political power as will prove whether the miscarriage of all human government is due to its form, or to its sin; so that, when moral disaster overtakes republics equally with empires, every mouth may be stopped, and every order of sinner—whether Chaldean absolutist, Persian satrap, Greek oligarch, Roman militarist or modern democrat—be proved, bysin, equally incompetent to control the world. To prove whether bad government springs from ancient barriers—monarchy, peerage, or sex—God grants adult suffrage at last, until the whole colossus—man—collapses in ruin. And it is exceedingly remarkable that an exactly parallel test, with a like piebald effect, holds good in the Christian church. For through Plymouth Brethrenism, probably the most democratic polity ever known in the church of Christ, God has appealed to a democratic age with a spiritual appeal of pure democracy; and so also the last church named in Scripture, and that which will precede the final crash, is Laodicea—“judgment by the people”—God's closing probation of the organized church, in which He entrusts the maximum power to the non-ministerial elements of the assembly. Be it also observed that, exactly as the iron runs parallel with the clay in the sphere of the State, so the birth of Brethrenism was simultaneous with the birth of the Oxford Movement—a sharp reaction to the most extreme form of the monarchic episcopate. For in both State and Church the whole organism is being tested (in grace and love) down to the last man.

III

Vast and Changing Forces

For now we see the goal to which God is tending. Every form of government, when administered by righteous men, brings ample blessings in its wake; it is iniquity, and not polity, that wrecks nations. At the same time it is true that, exactly as apostles, directly inspired and miracle-gifted, ruled God's ideal church, so even among nations wholly regenerate at last, God's ideal government is literally aristocracy—not rule by the good, much less rule by the many, but rule by the best. (Rev. 22:5). A Tsar who abandons Jehovah for a Rasputin is given over to be shot; a Red Republic, abolishing all law courts (Times, Sept. 10, 1918) and flinging open all prisons, goes down, sooner or later, in blood and fire. The vast and changing forces which we are now confronting, threatening not forms of government, but government itself, have been thus strikingly stated by a close and shrewd political observer, Mr. Frederic Harrison. “Would that men could see that we are living not only in the crisis of the greatest war that has ever afflicted mankind, but also in the advent of revolution, at once material, moral, and spiritual; wider, I believe, and deeper than any which in some thousand years has transformed civilization on earth. The Russian Revolution, in its scale of population and area, in its overwhelming changes, in its suddenness and velocity, exceeds any revolution yet known. Now in a state of revolution things move, change, appear and disappear with lightning velocity. Things which we imagine to be trifles swell up into incalculable forces: changes, which in normal times could hardly be worked through in generations, spring up completed in months or weeks.”—(Fortnightly Review, March, 1918). For spiritual agents in the unseen are precipitating a world-crisis at lightning speed. “In the course of the present Armageddon,” says Mr. A. P. Sinnett, the theosophist, “unseen powers embodying loftier knowledge than common humanity has yet reached are taking part in the struggle. Some of us are in conscious touch with them."—(Nineteenth Century, March, 1916).

IV

The Collapse of Democracy

For it is slowly dawning on careful thinkers that world-salvation is no more lodged in democracy than in monarchy. It was Grote, heart-broken over democracy, who said, "I have outlived my faith." The idea that the world is safe in the hands of any class of the unregenerate is a pure chimera. In 1906 labor groups, by a card-vote, advocated the expulsion of religion from the schools by 817,000 to 76,000; in 1907 by 1,239,000 to 126,000; and in 1908 by 1,433,000 to 131,000. "In all the Russian schools have been organized compulsory lessons, beginning with the youngest children, called 'Atheism courses,' to train them in the non-existence of a divine being" (Times, Dec. 28, 1918). How stern was the disillusionment that awaited Charles James Fox when he cried, on the fall of the Bastille: "By how much is this the greatest event that ever happened in the world, and by how much the best!" "I am sorry," exclaimed Kerensky, in the crisis of the Russian Revolution, "that I did not die two months ago; I should then have expired still dreaming the splendid dream that Russia had awakened to a new life. I no longer cherish my former certitude that what we see before us are conscious citizens and not mutinous slaves." (Fortnightly Review, Dec., 1917.) More than one democrat (like Rauschenbush) is said, since the war, to have died of a broken heart. For in democracy we have reached human bedrock; if this last trusteeship of power fails, there is nothing beyond. For the unregenerate democrat is as swift to shed blood as the unregenerate autocrat—in war, in civil strife, or in persecution. The red flag marches with the machine-gun and the black cap. "No prison for our enemies," cries Trotsky, "but the guillotine! It is not immoral for a democracy to crush another class; that is its right." (Times, Dec. 18, 1917.) For the internecine struggle of the iron and the clay points not alone to political conflict, but to military—that is, to civil wars. "As I think of the days that are coming," says Mr. Frederic Harrison, "days that I am too old to see, the idea haunts me that, immeasurable and unforeseen as the events of these four years have been, events even more incalculable and more prodigious may await this sorely-tried people." Class wars, industrial wars, religious wars, even sex wars may lie ahead; for "brother shall deliver up the brother to death," our Lord says, "and the father the child." (Matt. 10:21.)

V

Lawlessness the Cradle of Absolutism

But a further fact unfolds itself. Lawless democracy produces an invariable ultimate dictatorship. Iniquitous anarchy and iniquitous tyranny act and react in a vicious and ineludable circle. Napoleon, in his youth, was a fanatic for Rousseau, and carried with him to Waterloo the whole of the works of Voltaire: "It was I who closed the crater of anarchy," he exclaimed. "I alone can tame them." Only the iron hand can restore a community disintegrating into intolerable anarchy, and vast world forces are making a miraculous Napoleon inevitable. "The ideal of world-dominion," says Professor L. P. Jacks, "now prevalent everywhere, implies an enormous sense of power. Yet there is also a widespread feeling at work that the human world of today has grown too big to be manageable by any existing methods of political control, a consequence of the enormous increase of mass, measured in terms of population, which has taken place in all the great empires of the world; that no government is competent to deal with the immense and incalculable forces of which modern communities are the seat." (Land and Water, Feb. 28, 1918.) The world is waiting for a huge grasp, miracle-endowed. So the most advanced modern thinker, Nietzsche, says, "The greatest modern event is this, that God is dead"; and "Napoleon was the incarnation of the noble ideal of the superman." It was by democracy that Napoleon was thrown up into sovereign power, and by the guillotine and the bayonet that he kept it; and it is perfectly possible that, as the French Revolution created Napoleon, so revolution throughout Europe, the brain of the world, may create Antichrist. Bolshevism deliberately aims at world revolution as a stage towards universal centralization; and "Russian soldiers and peasants who hope for a return to civilized life—and there are thousands—say, 'The Emperor has left us. Only the allies are left. If they don't come, the Antichrist will.'" (Times, Dec. 28, 1918.)

VI

Messianic Democracy

For democracy, in common with imperialism and every other modern movement, betrays most dangerous Messianic symptoms. "What is happening now throughout the world," we are told, "is equal in importance to the events which occurred at the time of Christ and after. The Russian Revolution may be said to herald the second coming of Christ, the revelation of which will come again out of the East—out of Russia; not the end of the world, but the end of the false civilization of Europe." (English Review, June, 1918.) Lassalle, who was, with Karl Marx, the founder of Socialism, "is looked upon by his disciples," says Lavaleye, "as the messiah of socialism. After his death they venerated him as a demi-god. To them he is the object of a real worship. Numbers still (1883) believe that he did not die and that he will come again in his glory, to preside over the great revolution and reorganization of society." (Contemporary Social- ism, p. 54.) It is very remarkable that it is the most prominent republican in England, to whom all kings are "usurpers, accidents, and absurdities who bear crowns and scepters," who is the most urgent in proclaiming what can only work out as a god-emperor, as "the underlying spirit of democracy, the real thing in democracy." "The time is at hand," says Mr. H. G. Wells, "when God will come into the world and rule it; this time is close at hand; in a little while God will be made manifest throughout the earth, and men will know Him and know that He is King." (The Soul of a Bishop, p. 173.) "The East," said Napoleon, "only awaits a man." "I have never met a German soldier," says a captured German, "who did not regard the Kaiser as a god." (Times, Nov. 2, 1918.) Solemn indeed is the implication for ourselves. In the Finnish Revolution, a decade ago, the clergy were forbidden to preach on the last judgments. "Demos," says Sir Robertson Nicoll, "will not necessarily use his power with wisdom and justice; he will do the very reverse if he breaks away from the rule of Christ. An irreligious democracy will end in a state of society worse by far than has ever been witnessed in a Christian civilization." For it is the Beast, not the Woman—the imperial power, not the ecclesiastical—which the Spirit paints entirely scarlet (Rev. 17:3). Antichrist will be born in the cradle of anarchy. "Never was there such fanaticism as now, dominating Germany. During these last few days you could not go anywhere without seeing everything daubed red. Soldiers wear red in their caps or the red favors on their tunics. If a man is unable to show his color in any other way he lets a streak of red into his trousers or sleeves. Sometimes they cover their clothes with a light coat of red paint. Children are running all over the place in red knickers or frocks, their wooden sabots painted red. Crowds are continually rushing through the streets mad with excitement. Some members of them, armed with brushes and pots of red paint, visit all public buildings, laying claim to them for the Republic by setting upon them this unmistakable sign of the social revolution." (Times, Nov. 12, 1918.) In the French Revolution the Archbishop of Paris was compelled to declare—and did—publicly and formally in Notre Dame, that the Holy Scriptures are a forgery, and the Christian faith a fraud and an imposture. It is for us to deepen our grace-life incalculably if we are to confront the coming storms.

VII

Maranatha

"In the days of those kings"—could any music be sweeter to our ears?—"shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed" (Dan. 2:44). The epoch of the struggle of the iron and the clay is the epoch of the return of Christ. The advance of democracy over the ruins of monarchies is so sure and rapid that, were the advent indefinitely delayed, it is doubtful if many kings—assumed by prophecy as present at the end—would survive. The fallen thrones of the Tsars and the Kaisers; the seven monarchies swept away in Germany almost in a night; the sudden rise of new republics—China, Russia, Portugal; the twenty-two nineteenth century republics in South America—all warn us that the hour is late. The clay has come out master in the Great War, but the Iron will be Lord at last. Anarchy will create Antichrist, and both together will force the miraculous intervention of God. How constantly should one prayer, as expressed in the golden words of Richard Baxter, be upon our lips: "Hasten, O my Saviour, the time of Thy return! Delay not, lest the living give up their hopes; delay not, lest earth should grow like hell and Thy Church be crumbled to dust. Oh, hasten that great resurrection day, when the graves that received but rottenness, and retain but dust, shall return Thee glorious stars and suns. The desolate Bride saith, Come. The whole creation saith, Come, even so, come, Lord Jesus."

THE CALL FOR A CONFERENCE ON BEHALF OF ISRAEL

The remarkable events of the past year, the general interest in the Jewish question, the insistency of the Jews themselves, at the Peace Conference, for equal rights and recognition as an independent nation in Palestine, all of which are unmistakable evidences of the literal fulfillment of the "sure word of prophecy," make it highly important that another conference should be held in behalf of Israel.

The true church has a very important work in this hour of crisis. As the prophet Daniel "understood by books" the program of God for the Jews in his day, and gave himself to prayer that God's purposes should be accomplished, so we should discern the "signs of the times," and co-operate with God "while it is day," in order to hasten the consummation of His great plan for Israel and the nations.

We therefore cordially invite all who love the Lord and His people, to gather with us in a Jewish Prophetic Conference to be held, God willing, from Tuesday to Friday, May 20-23 inclusive, in the Auditorium of The Moody Bible Institute, corner N. La Salle St. & W. Chicago Ave., in Chicago. We urge all Christians to pray earnestly for God's blessing upon the Conference and to be present if possible, and co-operate with us in making it widely known.

The Chicago Hebrew Mission,
Headquarters, 1505 S. Sawyer Ave.

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD,
President.

WM. E. BLACKSTONE,
Vice-President.

NORMAN H. CAMP,
MRS. T. C. ROUNDS,
WM. R. McCARRELL,
Conference Committee.

The Queerest Book in the Bible

By Rev. Max Wertheimer

An Address at the Moody Tabernacle, Stenographically Reported

I SHALL speak this evening on the queerest book of the Bible. I once asked a person what he thought was the queerest book of the Bible and he replied: "O they are all queer."

Well that depends, of course, upon the speaker. I have in mind one particular book—the book of Ecclesiastes, and I want to give a few illustrations from the book itself to show its queerness.

Turn to the ninth chapter: "I returned and saw under the sun that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, neither yet bread to the wise, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor yet favor to men of skill; but time and chance happeneth to them all."

"Time and chance happeneth to them all." You see it's in the Bible.

Let me give you another. "For the living know that they shall die; but the dead know not any thing, neither have they any more a reward; for the memory of them is forgotten. Also their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished; neither have they any more a portion for ever in anything that is done under the sun."

And then in the tenth verse, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest."

A Source of Religious Hobbies

A good many people get their hobbies out of this book of Ecclesiastes. For instance, the Roman Catholic Church will prove from this book that no one knows now or at any time whether he is saved.

But, you say, "How do they get this doctrine?" Look at the fifth verse: "For the living know that they shall die; but the dead know not any thing, neither have they any more a reward; for the memory of them is forgotten." "The living know that they shall die, but the dead know not any thing." So, they do not know any thing.

The fatalist, the man who believes in blind faith, gets his hobby out of this book, too. For instance, the second verse says: "All things come alike to all men." If all things come alike, then what is the use of trying? Do you see? Well, that is the fatalist's idea.

Then the libertine, the fast man, gets his hobby out of it. It says in the second verse: "As is the good, so is the sinner." "If there is no difference between the good and the sinner, why we can live just as we want to." That is the hobby of the fast man.

Then the infidel gets a hobby: "Neither have they any more a reward"; he says the dead have no longer any reward. They have Scripture for believing as they do; but they get all these hobbies from this book of Ecclesiastes.

Do you not see how queer the statements of this book are?

"But it is in the Bible,"—all these folks tell us, and they can prove it, too.

The Key to the Book

Has there been a mistake made? When the Bible was compiled, was this book slipped in unawares? Did it get in by some mistake?

You know there is a great difference between theology and science. What is theology? It is man's reasoning about the Word of God. But what is science? It is man's reasoning about the works of God. See?

Some people have made a very queer statement. For instance, they reject Genesis because it does not agree with the latest ideas of science. Therefore they say that Genesis is not scientific. Others have said that because the book of Ecclesiastes does not come up to the theological standard of truth it has no place and it ought to have no place in the Bible. Well, they are all wrong.

Now, what seems to be the purpose of this book? Have you ever seen a palace with a great many doors and gates to it, and as you walk around it, you wonder how any one ever can get into a palace like that. You could walk around it time and time again, and never be able to get in through any of the doors. But suppose you have a little key and insert it into the lock and the lock opens, then you can get in without any difficulty at all.

Well, every book of the Bible has a key, and I want to give you a few key thoughts and key verses of this book.

For instance, one key thought that runs through the book is this: "Under the sun." That occurs twenty-eight times in this book. The phrase "Under the heaven" occurs three times. "Upon the earth" occurs four times.

Then we have another key verse which runs through the book which is "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity." That occurs twenty-eight times. Then we have still another: "I observed in my heart," which occurs twelve times.

In the Hebrew we have a peculiar word for man, "ish," but that word never occurs in this book. The word for man in this book is in the Hebrew, "adham," not unfallen Adam, but Adam as you meet him around the corner anywhere, any day. That word occurs forty times.

Then we have a peculiar word for God. The Hebrew word for God is Jehovah, but that word never occurs in this book at all. The word used here for God is Elohim, which occurs forty times.

What is this book about? People have speculated as to the authorship of the book, but instead of speculating, if they would only notice the latch keys of the door, at the very first verse of the first chapter, it would tell them exactly. Listen: "The words of the Preacher, the son of David, king in Jerusalem." There was only one son of David, king in Jerusalem, and his name was Solomon.

People have wondered and wondered what this book is about. Solomon got to thinking of life, and wondered if after all life was worth living. "Is there anything under the sun, under heaven, or on earth, which if a man pursues and finally gets hold of, and clutches to his bosom, he can say: 'Yes, I have got it now; I am happy now?'"

Is Life Worth Living?

He puts before himself this question: "Is life worth the living?" The first thing that he does is to get an answer from nature. Remember how it begins in verse four, of the first chapter: "One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh: but the earth abideth forever. The sun also ariseth, and the sun goeth down, and hasteth to his place where he arose. The wind goeth toward the south, and turneth about unto the north; it whirleth about continually, and the wind returneth again according to his circuits. All the rivers run into the sea; yet the sea is not full; unto the place from whence the rivers come, thither they return again. All things are full of labor; man cannot utter it: the eye is not satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing. The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done: and there is no new thing under the sun."

He observed all of nature, and what is the result? He found absolutely no answer to the question, and comes to this conclusion: "The eye is not satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing." The eye wants to see more, and the ear wants to hear more; therefore, no satisfactory answer was secured.

Then he says: "I am going to study, I am going to become a great student." You and I, in America, would say: "I will go to the library and look up all the statistics and tabulated facts, and compare and contrast until I can arrive at some conclusion." In the thirteenth verse, he says: "I gave my heart to seek and search out by wisdom concerning all things that are done under heaven: this sore travail hath God given to the sons of man to be exercised therewith. I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and behold, all is vanity and vexation of spirit."

There are lots of folks who think they can go to bed like a dunce and wake up like Shakespeare. Well, it can not be done. "I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and behold, all is vanity and vexation of spirit. That which is crooked cannot be made straight: and that which is wanting cannot be numbered."

"I communed with mine own heart, saying, Lo, I am come to great estate, and have gotten more wisdom than all they that have been before me in Jerusalem; yea, my heart had great experience of wisdom and knowledge."

"And I gave my heart to know wisdom, and to know madness and folly: I perceived that this also is vexation of spirit. For in much wisdom is much grief: and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow." He did not get the satisfactory answer for which he sought. A good many people in the city of Chicago, will, by sorrow and by sadness, by and by, come to the same conclusion.

"Well then," thought Solomon, "what is the use of pouring over volumes, when I can not find out what I want? I will just plunge in pleasure." "I said in mine heart, Go to now I will prove thee with mirth, therefore enjoy pleasure: and, behold, this also is vanity." "I said in mine heart, Go to now, I will prove thee with mirth, therefore enjoy pleasure."

"Enjoy pleasure"—that is the topic today. Listen now to what Solomon says: "Behold this also is vanity."

I may as well define this word "vanity." When you and I were children, we made bubbles, soap bubbles, which reflected every color of the rainbow, pretty things they were, but in a minute they were gone. Where? Why they burst into nothing! That is vanity. So that is the conclusion that Solomon arrived at.

"I said of laughter, It is mad; and of mirth, What doeth it?" Sometimes we see a lot of laughing going on, a lot of nonsense, what does it accomplish? Now, the very fact that he takes up another experiment shows that he did not find any satisfaction in this experiment.

A mother said to her daughter who wanted to go out and have a good time, and to run after the boys, and the like: "Daughter, do not go, do not go out. I did the same thing when I was your age, and I suffered for it later. I wish you would not do it."

"Well, mother, I want to go through the mill, too."

"All right, then suffer," her mother told her. You see, that's the way! Suffer! If you do not want to profit by somebody else's experience, and advice, why suffer!

Next, he says: "Since I can not find any satisfaction in pleasure, and in mirth, and in laughter and having a good time,"—I will tell you what I will do; I am going to stop thinking of it, and every time a thought comes to me, I will drive it out; I am going to drink heartily.

"I sought in mine heart to give myself unto wine, yet acquainting mine heart with wisdom and to lay hold on folly, till I might see what was that good for the sons of men, which they should do unto the heaven all the days of their life."

There is no satisfaction in drink. No drunkard has any real satisfaction in it. Other lecturers on temperance, and anti-saloon men have told you enough about that.

Having found no satisfaction in wine, and that sort of a life, Solomon now tries something else. He says, "I am going to get busy, and I want you now to notice how prominent the personal pronoun "I" is in the next few verses: "I made me great works; I builded me houses; I planted me vineyards; I made me gardens and orchards, and I planted trees in them of all kinds of fruits: I made me pools of water, to water therewith the wood that bringeth forth trees:

"I got me servants and maidens, and had servants born in my house; also I had great possessions of great and small cattle above all that were in Jerusalem before me: I gathered me also silver and gold, and the peculiar treasure of kings, and of the provinces:

"I got me men singers and women singers, and the delights of the sons of men, as musical instruments, and that of all sorts.

"So I was great, and increased more than all that were before me in Jerusalem: also my wisdom remained with me. And whatsoever mine eyes desired I kept not from them, I withheld not my heart from any joy; for my heart rejoiced in all my labour: and this was my portion of all my labour."

I tell you there are many more fools that would be willing to have that sort of an experience.

"Then I looked on all the works that my hands had wrought, and on the labour that I had laboured to do; and, behold, all was vanity and vexation of spirit, and there was no profit under the sun."

I dare say that 95 per cent of all the folks in Chicago will not believe this. Well, they will find it out by and by! How? By suffering!

Let me go now to the twelfth verse, where he gets to philosophizing again, and thinking: "And I turned myself to behold wisdom, and madness, and folly: for what can the man do that cometh after the king? even that which hath been already done. Then I saw that wisdom excelleth folly, as far as light excelleth darkness. Then said I in my heart, As it happeneth to the fool, so it happeneth even to me; and why was I then more wise? Then I said in my heart, that this also is vanity. For there is no remembrance of the wise more than of the fool for ever; seeing that which now is in the days to come shall all be forgotten. And how dieth the wise man? as the fool. Therefore I hated life."

"I was on the verge of committing suicide. I hated life." Did you ever hear of a multimillionaire, seemingly having everything he wanted,—and in the morning paper you found that, living as he did in exquisite environment, without any seeming cause for worry, he had committed suicide?

You say, "Why, why did that man kill himself?" He hated life.

There was a professor in college that the boys were very fond of. From morning to morning he spoke on psychology. Then one morning the college was stirred by the report that he had committed suicide. Why? He hated life.

There was a healthy man in Boston,—had everything under the sun that he wanted, he could change his dress three times every day; the doors of society were ever open to him. One day he left a note in his apartment to this effect: "I am committing suicide. I am sick and tired of this constant dressing and undressing." He hated life.

I want you to notice, beloved friends, that Solomon was on the verge of committing suicide. It was only the goodness and mercy of God, who had other purposes for Solomon, that withheld him from that step. Listen to what he says, "Therefore I hated life, because the work that is wrought under the sun is grievous unto me: for all is vanity and vexation of spirit." Every thing he tried proved to him that all was vanity. "All is vanity."

Now, let us go to the last chapter, because I cannot go through the whole book, the last two verses of the chapter: "Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man. For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good or whether it be evil."

Did Solomon ever keep those commandments? Is there any man that has ever kept them?

You say, "No." Well, what is the use to find out a thing that we can not do? Is it a failure again?

In every single chapter we have "Vanity of vanities"; even the last statement proves that no man has ever kept it. "Fear God and keep his commandments for this is the whole duty of man. For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good or whether it be evil." But who has ever kept His commandments?

What is this book for then? This book is a picture of a man without God, and without Christ, and without the Holy Spirit trying all the schemes and experiments he can discover to find out whether life is worth the living.

Is this book inspired? Why, this talk of Solomon's is exactly the way the natural man would talk.

Why Solomon's Life Was a Failure

Let us find out some reasons why it is that everything that Solomon undertook proved to be a failure.

The first is because sin is in man. Do not forget that! I want you to see that Solomon found this out. At chapter seven and the twentieth verse, he says: "For there is not a just man upon earth, that doeth good, and sinneth not"; and the last clause of the third verse of chapter nine, "the heart of the sons of men is full of evil, and madness is in their heart while they live, and after that they go to the dead."

Sin, sin, sin.

Try as he would, Solomon was always confronted with failure, and so it will be with any man who will omit the sin question, he will be confronted continually with failure and with vanities.

The second reason why everything Solomon undertook proved disappointing, is because sin is in the world.

You say, "Well that is the same thing." No, it is a very different thing. There may be sin in man and not in the world. After Adam and Eve had sinned, God cursed the ground, so that the ground should bring forth thorns, and thistles, and briars and weeds, and we are told in Romans eight that God has subjected the whole world unto vanity.

Oh, now we know where vanity is coming from! He has subjected the whole world unto vanity. That is what the Word of God says. "For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now. And not only they, but ourselves also, which have the first fruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body."

What seems to be the object of our waiting? Why, so that man should not concentrate his affections upon anything earthly, or get satisfaction from it. And man never will receive satisfaction from anything earthly.

Who can satisfy man completely? God. He is the only One. He can completely satisfy. Augustine said after he came to the Lord, having gone through several trying experiences, and failures, "Oh God, Thou hast made us for Thyself; our hearts are restless; but Thou alone canst give us rest."

In our hymn books, we find this:

"Change and decay in all around I see;
Oh, Thou that changest not, abide with me."

The third reason is because there is a devil. I shall not dwell on that now, because tomorrow I expect to tell you further about him. He is here, and he will sidetrack and counteract anything and everything that is good.

The fourth reason why everything he undertook failed, was because he would not listen to the Word of God. I want to read a few words from the seventeenth chapter of Deuteronomy: "When thou art come into the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, and shalt possess it, and shalt dwell therein, and shalt say, I will set a king over me, like as all the nations that are about me; Thou shalt in any wise set him king over thee, whom the Lord thy God shall choose: one from among thy brethren shalt thou set king over thee: thou mayest not set a stranger over thee, which is not thy brother. But he shall not multiply horses to himself, nor cause the people to return to Egypt, to the end that he should multiply horses."

Then verse seventeen: "Neither shall he multiply wives to himself, that his heart turn not away; neither shall he greatly multiply to himself silver and gold. And it shall be, when he sitteth upon the throne of his kingdom, that he shall write him a copy of this law in a book out of that which is before the priests the Levites: and it shall be with him, and he shall read therein all the days of his life: that he may learn to fear the Lord his God, to keep all the words of this law and these statutes, and to do them: That his heart be not lifted up above his brethren, and that he turn not aside from the commandment, to the right hand, or to the left: to the end that he may prolong his days in his kingdom, he, and his children, in the midst of Israel."

The Lord said, that a king should not multiply horses unto himself. This man, Solomon, turned his back on the Word of God, and multiplied horses unto himself like a fast man.

The Lord said a king should not love strange women; Solomon had seven hundred wives, women who were Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, and so on. He did just about as he liked. He had about a thousand women in his harem.

He turned his back upon the Word of God, hence he could never prosper in the things he undertook. And nothing we undertake will prosper if we turn our backs upon the Word of God.

Listen, now to my last point: Solomon failed in everything because his standard was too low.

What was his standard? Under the sun. Our standard is above the sun; risen with Christ, seated with Him in the heavenly places. That is above the sun.

Solomon failed because his wisdom was used for earthly purposes; a greater than Solomon is here tonight—the Lord Jesus Christ; and His wisdom is the wisdom that cometh down from heaven.

I am not a prophet, nor the son of a prophet, but I am willing to predict something; and I am willing to write the epitaph upon the tombstone of any man outside of the Christ of God, tonight, that turns his back against the light that is revealed in the Word of God, and rejects Jesus Christ.

I am willing to write the epitaph of the man, and I tell you what I would write: "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity," as far as success is concerned in God's holy sight.

Any one that is submissive to the lordship of Jesus Christ, I would write this epitaph: "For me to live is Christ; to die is gain."

Lydia the Responsive

By Professor A. T. Robertson, D. D., Louisville, Ky.

THERE are few characters in the New Testament more attractive than Lydia, of Philippi. Luke has drawn her portrait with wonderful clearness in Acts 16. She is not mentioned elsewhere. A number of points stand out very definitely.

1. A Progressive Woman of Business

There is a curious modernness about Lydia, of Thyatira, seller of purple in Philippi (Acts 16:14).

Strabo calls Thyatira a Mysian town, but Ptolemy locates it in Lydia. It was on the border of Mysia, but in Lydia, and was included by the Romans in the province of Asia. It was a flourishing trade center, though surpassed by Ephesus, Smyrna and Pergamos. It is one of the cities addressed in Revelation (2:18-29). There were numerous guilds like the clothiers, braziers and dyers. Lydia evidently belonged to the guild of dyers in Thyatira as "a seller of purple."

Purple was the color of the official stripe on the Roman togas worn at Rome and in the colonies. Thyatira was chiefly famous for the fine purple cloth manufactured there. The country of Lydia was the richest and most prosperous in Western Asia Minor.

It seems clear that Lydia was a woman of means to be able to deal in this expensive clothing. The very term "royal purple" is suggested by her business. It is not clear whether Lydia is her real name or merely "the Lydian" to the people of Philippi. Horace employs the name for Roman women and finally at any rate in Philippi she was called Lydia.

She is not mentioned in Paul's Epistle to the Philippians. She may have returned to Thyatira or she may have been dead by then. It is suggested that Paul refers to her under the name Euodia or Syntyche (Phil. 4:2). Renan has even argued that she was Paul's wife and is addressed in Philippians 4:3, "true yokefellow." But that carries one very far afield in the realm of mere speculation.

Since she had abundant means, it is quite possible that she could have met the expenses of Paul's first trial in Rome unless, as Ramsay thinks, Paul had come into possession of his father's patrimony. We are to think, then, of Lydia at the head of a large establishment that employed many women. (cf. Acts 16:13).

Philippi, like other cities in Macedonia, (Berea, Thessalonica) allowed more freedom to women than they enjoyed in Athens, Corinth or Ephesus (cf. Ramsay, St. Paul the Traveler and Roman Citizen, pp. 224, 227, 232). Macedonian inscriptions show that women enjoyed higher social positions and considerable freedom. In Thessalonica (modern Saloniki) Paul won "of the chief women not a few" (Acts 17:4) and in Berea many "of the Greek women of honorable estate" (Acts 17:12). It is quite appropriate therefore, now that women have won citizenship in Britain and in America (many states), to note their activity in Macedonia. In the recent war Lydia would have been at home and a leader beyond a doubt.

She was not discounted in Philippi because she had a trade. Indeed, we may see the day when the idle woman is the one to be pitied and who has to apologize for her idleness. The chief business woman of the world is the one who manages her home successfully and within her husband's income, especially if he happens to be a preacher. She is the excellent woman of Proverbs 31.

"Her clothing is fine linen and purple.
Her husband is known in the gates."

It is not known whether Lydia was married or not. If so, she was probably a widow. But certainly her husband would have said of her,

"Many daughters have done worthily,
But thou excellest them all."

2. A Zealous Proselyte of the Gate

She was "one that worshipped God" (Acts 16:14).

This is the technical description of the "God-fearers" or proselytes of the gate, as the later rabbinic language has it. Cornelius is so described (Acts 10:2, 22). See also Acts 13:16, 26, 50, etc. They stood at the gate, but had not formally entered into Judaism by the rite of circumcision. They were no longer polytheists, but were devout worshippers of the one true God. They attended the synagogue worship and contributed liberally to its support. And yet they ranked not technically as Jews in all ceremonial matters, for they had not taken the final step. So Peter apologizes for entering the house of Cornelius (Acts 10:28).

It is from these "God-fearers" that Paul usually wins his first converts from the Gentiles. So it is in Philippi. His first convert in Europe is a woman and a proselyte of the gate.

Lydia may have become interested in Judaism in Thyatira, for there was a large Jewish colony there. The cult of Cybele flourished among the heathen in Thyatira and this voluptuous nature-worship led to much immorality. There, as elsewhere, the higher type of the heathen turned to Judaism for help in the world of darkness about them. Certainly Lydia was earnest in her interest in Judaism, since she and her group of women went all the way from Philippi to the river-side (the Gangas or Gangites) some miles away in order to worship God in the "place of prayer."

This term is sometimes used for the synagogue and then again for any house or place when prayer is offered (3 Macc. 7:20). It is not possible to decide how it is employed here, though it may be noted that Luke has synagogue elsewhere as in Acts 17:1.

The location of the place of prayer so far from the city suggests that the Jews were a small group in Philippi. In Thessalonica they are a powerful body for it was a great commercial city. Philippi was a Roman colony and a sort of military outpost.

The river was convenient for the ceremonial ablutions of the Jews. But the point to note about Lydia is that she took the trouble to go to this out-of-town place of prayer to worship God with a small body of Jews. There were plenty of excuses that she could have found for not going whether she walked or rode a donkey. But she went. In these days of slackness about attendance at public worship the example of Lydia, the proselyte of the gate, is quite pertinent.

We are not surprised to find that Paul and his company went out there, even though it was not certain that there was a place of prayer in that locality. They "supposed" it to be there (Acts 16:13) and went on in the hope of finding it.

3. Listening to the Travelling Jewish Preacher

We do not know what it was that caught Lydia's attention in Paul's message. It was a common thing in the synagogues for the Jewish stranger present to be given an opportunity to speak a word of exhortation. At Antioch, in Pisidia, "after the reading of the law and the prophets the rulers of the synagogue sent unto them (Paul and Barnabas), saying, brethren, if ye have any word of exhortation for the people, say on." There by the river-side at the place of prayer no such formality may have been observed.

The fact that only women are mentioned in attendance seems to imply that it was not a real synagogue out here by the river, but only a place for prayer and ceremonial ablutions. Philippi was a Latin town and few Jews were there. The rabbinical rule was that ten men were necessary to form a synagogue.

It looked like a poor opportunity for the great apostle to the Gentiles to make a beginning for the conquest of Europe. He had responded to the Macedonian cry and found no opening in Philippi at all. And there seemed to be small promise here. Some men would have returned to Philippi without preaching to this handful of Jewish women, some of them proselytes. Indeed, it is likely that it was more conversation than public address, for Luke says "We sat down and spoke," (imperfect tense).

Perhaps each of the four (Paul, Silas, Timothy, Luke) engaged in conversation with a separate woman. Paul spoke to Lydia and by and by all may have listened. I heard D. L. Moody say that he knew of more souls saved by his conversation than by his preaching. One recalls Jesus and Nicodemus, and Jesus and the Samaritan woman at Jacob's well. It is more spectacular to deliver a public address and this has to be done. But it should never be above the will of the greatest preacher to talk to a single person about his salvation.

Lydia was at once interested in what Paul had to say. She kept on listening, (imperfect tense). Paul was no doubt eager to win this woman to Christ. He did not feel that it was a small beginning. Missionaries today have to start their work in just this way. One wins one. And Lydia was eager to hear it all.

4. Lydia's Heart Opened

"Whose heart the Lord opened to give heed unto the things which were spoken by Paul." Paul soon saw that Lydia was deeply concerned in what he was saying. That is what stirs a preacher most, when he sees a soul responding to the word of God.

Luke says that "the Lord opened" Lydia's heart. That is God's part. But Lydia listened and gave heed. She did her part and gave the word of God a chance to do its work. It is certain that more people would have their hearts opened if they listened attentively to the message. It is a hard thing for most people to concentrate their minds upon a given proposition for a half hour or so. Few are willing to face squarely and frankly for one hour their personal relations to God.

It is a solemn thing to have to deal with a soul in such a plastic moment. A false note may repel the inquirer. The preacher must become a fisher of men. He must know how to draw the soul to Christ. We need not worry for fear that the Lord will not open the heart of the seeker after light. That is God's task and responsibility. Let us be sure that we do our full duty in making the way plain and in making Christ attractive to sinners.

It is not clear that Lydia was converted on this first visit of Paul to the place of prayer, though that was likely the case.

Paul had this ground of joy, he had won Lydia to Christ, but he did not know what a prize he had captured. She was a prophecy of the great army of noble women through the ages who would rally to the standard of Jesus in Europe and in America. Jesus was to set the women of the world free in due time. It was an historic occasion when Lydia gave her heart to Christ. Woman can never repay the debt that she owes to Christ.

5. Following Her Lord in Baptism

Evidently Paul had spoken of baptism as the next step after conversion. Paul did not make baptism essential to salvation. He was not a sacramentarian as is plain from 1 Corinthians 1:17: "For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the gospel." And yet Paul did not belittle baptism as of no significance. He found in it a picture of the heart of the gospel: "We were buried with him through baptism into death" (Rom. 6:4). So Lydia gladly submitted to this ordinance that in a mystic sense proclaimed death to sin and resurrection to the new life in Christ.

Probably Paul himself baptized her, though his rule was to leave the baptizing to others (1 Cor. 1:16). There was apparently little delay on the part of Lydia. As yet no church seems to have been organized in Philippi, but that came soon.

6. Leading Her Household With Her

Lydia's "household" was baptized also. That was true of the household of Cornelius (Acts 10:44, 47; 11:14), of the jailor (Acts 16:34), of Stephanas (1 Cor. 1:16), and of Crispus (Acts 18:8).

In the case of Lydia it is not clear whether she was married or not. The word for "household" may mean her servants or workpeople. Euodia and Syntyche may have been in the number. But it is certain that this noble woman exerted her influence to bring her household, whether children, domestics, or employees in her business, to the service of Jesus Christ. She set an example for all parents in the home life to lead children and servants to Christ. She is a rebuke to all heads of business establishments who are afraid to take a positive stand for Christ.

It is much easier to make a contribution for mission work somewhere else than it is to do the work that lies right before one's eyes. We are prone to be cowardly before our own children and to be silent about the life in Christ before those who work in our homes, our store, our factories, or on our farms. There is no better way to spread the power of Christ than just this personal work with those near and dear to us. If we take Christ into our hearts, we should take him into our homes, and into our places of business. In the army religion has come to the front to help the morale of the men who fight. None the less do we need Christ in the quieter times of peace.

7. The Grace of Hospitality

"If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house and abide there" (Acts 16:15). Lydia was anxious to prove the sincerity of her conversion, as every new convert ought to feel. Gratitude to Christ prompts one to do something for His cause. The time to take up the work is at once. Those who put it off may drop back and then drop out. Lydia saw this much that she could do at once. She had wealth and a comfortable home. She probably had servants to attend to the wants of her guests. So she "besought us," Luke says, to come and to make her home their home.

She wanted all four of them. Hospitality is one of the finest Christian graces. It is commended and urged in the New Testament. It is not possible for all to do as much as Lydia in this respect. But hospitality brings rich reward to those who can exercise it. Many have entertained angels unawares. The sweetest memories in many homes linger about the visits of saints of God. The children carry with them through life the impress of these visiting angels who show the courtesy of Christ. Many of the best homes in the world swing open to those who are the servants of Jesus.

It is evident that Paul was reluctant to accept the invitation of Lydia. There were four of the party and they would probably be in Philippi for some time. Paul was the most independent of men. He was the last man in the world to impose upon the generosity of others. He knew how to make his living so as to be free, as he did in Thessalonica shortly afterward (2 Thess. 3:8). But Lydia was in earnest and she would take no refusal, especially on grounds like those just mentioned. "She constrained us," Luke says. Literally, "she forced us" to accept. She had her way in this matter, as she probably did in most things, for she had the gift of leadership.

Paul and his party were now in luxury. They richly deserved this generous treatment and they greatly enjoyed the charm of Lydia's home. Paul and Silas were soon to be thrown into prison in Philippi. Paul knew what rough handling was, for at Lystra he had been stoned and left for dead. Blessings on Lydia for giving some of the comforts of life to these servants of the Lord Jesus.

8. The Church in Her House

"And they went out of the prison, and entered into the house of Lydia; and when they had seen the brethren, they comforted them, and departed" (Acts 16:40).

It is plain that the brethren and sisters, now a church apparently, had met in Lydia's house during the time of the arrest of Paul and Silas. So in Jerusalem the home of Mary, mother of John Mark, had been the place of meeting as the saints prayed for Peter's release. It came to be a common thing for the believers to meet in the house of one who had a home capacious enough for that purpose. Lydia made her home the center of Christian influence in Philippi.

When Christ comes into the home, some other things go out. That is one reason that some do not wish Him to come in. Family worship is a blessing to the home. Lydia became the dominant spirit in this new church in Philippi.

9. The Church That Cheered Paul

Paul had much to try him in the churches that he founded as in Galatia and in Corinth. But the church in Philippi was the first that contributed to his missionary work and the most generous of all (Phil. 4:10-20). This was probably due to the enlightened liberality of Lydia. She had means, it is true. But not all Christians who have money have also the grace of liberality.

Lydia led the church out of the narrow selfishness that claimed so many. The story of Lydia has been repeated in the life of many churches since her time. Each of us can recall instances when the very life of the church turned upon the zeal of one woman. The men are hardened by love of money. The women are indifferent through love of worldly pleasures. One woman may have the insight and the courage to press on for higher things. In time the church will come to her ideals. Such a woman is the pastor's joy and hope.

Lydia was a promise of the great harvest that lay before Paul. Her noble spirit brightened his heart through dark days that were ahead. To be sure, Luke remained in Philippi several years. These two staunch friends of Paul moulded this church into a great missionary dynamo.

Giving Up

By Rev. R. P. McKim, Rector of St. Luke's Church, St. Johns, N. B.

The first of these meditations at the Quiet Hour of Wycliffe College, Toronto

THIS morning, consider with me the suggestion that some of the wilderness stones be made bread.

There is nothing unusual in our Lord being hungry and exhausted after forty days' abstinence and struggle. Of course, He needed something to sustain life and maintain strength and he needed it at once. No one can do his work if he is weak or half dead.

There are means by which to secure this sustenance—all He has to do is to put forth His hand, and yet—

Evidently our Lord considered it impossible to accept the suggestion.

But a man must have bread, else he will die. There is nothing wrong in bread or the use of it, or the need of it, but when it comes to the question of bread or something else, it depends on the value of the something else.

And besides that, if bread be necessary, there is the question of the proper method of securing it.

With our Lord there was something else, tremendously. And that something else must be accomplished even if He were to die in the doing of it.

Bread? He needed it. He knew He needed it. The devil knew. So did the angels know. Jesus refused the devil's suggestion and waited for the angels' ministry, and it came.

Caring for Self

There is an indulgence of self that is wrong, positively so, disastrously so.

There is a care of self that interferes and therefore is wrong.

For the most part we get by the first. But what about the second? That care of ourselves that is part of the instinct of self-preservation and self conservation; the sort of care for ourselves that sometimes really interferes with God's work, and removes us from, and renders us unfit for God's using. What are we to do?

The three young men on the Plain of Dura were sure their God was able to deliver them from the burning fiery furnace, and they hoped

He would; but if not, then they must die. They were steadfast. They went to the place of death, and there God delivered them, and gave them a resurrection testimony.

Let us take God's way, even to the going without. Let us taste death if need be. Let God have His own way. Trust Him. The angels' ministry will come; it will come in time even though its coming find us hungry.

Called to a Life of Giving

God's way is a way of giving. He whose coming to earth was a gift, whose earthly life was one continuous gift, whose dying was a gift,—asks us to be associates with Him, and He calls us to a life of giving.

I have been noticing it much lately, that Jesus laid great emphasis on giving, and He seemed to wish to get the lesson home on the men whom He had with Him at the first.

He called attention to the lilies of the field, beautiful bits of His handiwork, that live but to give every passer by of their brightness and fragrance. He talked about the birds of the air that do not sow nor reap. I think, as He did, every little songster within sound of His voice, stroked its beautiful plumage and trilled its heartening song with a new glad note.

The grass of the field gives its lovely verdure and sheen of beauty to cover the bare brown earth and then yields its life to the oven. The very stars of heaven seem only to live to give their light.

And then, in the midst of it, He turns to those men who have been listening to Him, and pointing to the hungry multitude He asks, "How many loaves have you?" It was not a question as to whether there were sufficient for the disciples, but what was to be done for the multitude who had no food. And when they come with the reply they are bidden to give.

"Give ye." That is the keynote. Give your loaves. Give your lives. Give yourselves.

When tidings came to Nehemiah that the wall of Jerusalem was broken down and the gates burned with fire, he might have mourned and wept. He might have expressed his sympathy. He might have promised to raise subscriptions among the court nobles, all of which would have been most commendable, but he gave. He gave himself.

Palissy wished to impart some rare tints of color to his china. "Put yourself into it" said his friends. In his ardor he interpreted the suggestion literally and threw himself into the furnace of the kiln.

God's way is a way of giving, but Satan suggests that it is necessary to get.

When that suggestion is listened to it's the death-knell of a man's ministry. The amount of salary is a consideration. The condition of the rectory or parsonage is of importance. Social and educational advantages for one's family are worth asking about, but never for one moment should these come first. Jesus said "Give."

Giving Is Costly

Giving will be giving up; it will cost (Phil. 2:5-8).

Christ gave up His home comfort, His hours of rest. If sick people wanted Him He would stay up late, and when prayer called He would get up early, a great while before day. He gave up earthly ambitions. When they wanted to make Him a king He refused. His whole life was a continual giving up.

He urged this upon His followers: "If any will come after me let him deny himself." "Take my yoke upon you." "Be not anxious, the nations strive after some things, but be you content to leave those things out."

The men whom He had chosen must be content to let some other very attractive things go.

Abram's inheritance of blessing involves a giving up. Moses might have been a prince in Egypt, but he gave it up to be the leader of God's people. John the Baptist did not wear soft clothing or live in a king's house. Paul counted many things loss that he might be a bond-slave.

When Chinese Gordon heard of the distress of the weavers of Coventry, he had no money at his disposal; but, effacing the inscription from the valuable medal which the Chinese Emperor had given him, he sent it to the treasurer of the fund, and made this entry in his diary: "This is the secret of bliss. Give away your medals. Measure your life by loss."

Failing to Give Is Costly

Failure to give up will cost (Matt. 10:38,39).

There were some men to whom Jesus would have given a place. If those men have tombstones it will exhaust the skill of the engraver to portray the intensity of the dark cloud of grief under which their lives went out.

That rich young man who could not give up his riches went away into a sorrow that has not left him yet. The man who could not sleep in a bird's nest and would not sleep in a fox-hole, missed the joy of losing his life for Jesus' sake and the Gospel's.

I went into a parish some years ago to take a short locum tenency. When I made a call I was offered the easy chair with the remark, "Be seated here, you must be tired." The same thing happened in another home. I noticed it when it took place a third time. I started. "My God help me never to want the easy chair." The life is more than meat. A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things that he possesseth.

At the well of Samaria the disciples were hungry and went away to the town to procure food. On their return they were surprised that Jesus was not eager for refreshment. "I have eating (see Greek) that ye know not of."

Nothing so quickly stamps a man as of the world as a noticeable desire to secure things. Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added.

The Door to Success

Giving up will open the door to success (John 17:1-5).

If Jesus had indulged Himself He never could have prayed thus. Neither could He have said, "I have given them thy word" for the people would not have been always crowding round Him. But they did gather round Him and listened to Him because they saw the purity of His self-sacrifice.

It was when Abram had given up his right of choice that God bade him lift up his eyes to the northward, southward, eastward and westward, and told him all would be his.

Joshua lowered his sword to the Captain of the Lord's Host, and acknowledged himself a subaltern officer. He even adopted what many would have called "fool-tactics" at Jericho, but his was a great success.

Mary yielded what a good woman values more than life—dishonour might breathe upon her character and tarnish it if need be, but she became the mother of the Lord.

Simon Peter let his breakfast wait for him while the Lord sat in his ship speaking to the people, and he was called to a place in the apostolate.

Paul and Silas quieted the complaint, buried the grouch and hushed the disappointment in the prison cell at Philippi, and God sent the earthquake that founded the Philippian church. Giving up will leave the door open for an angel's visit.

Right through this temptation the Lord maintained the place of dependence and trust, and just at the proper moment the angel's ministry was sent to Him.

We need not to provide (see Greek) either purse or scrip. The laborer is worthy of his hire, and our Heavenly Father knoweth that we have need of these things.

The Songs Behind the Victory

By Walter Noble Burns

I

GOSPEL songs will go down in history as among the war songs of the American army. "Onward, Christian Soldiers," "Hold the Fort," "Ring the Bells of Heaven," and a hundred others have gone up in rousing choruses from the North Sea to the Alps. They have tempered the dreariness of the trenches, soothed the wounded in hospitals, lightened the tedium of long marches. The Huns have heard them and been struck with dismay by their message of cheerful courage, for a singing army is a fighting army and the American army fights as it sings.

The history of singing in the American army is in itself an interesting chapter of the war. "The Star Spangled Banner," "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," old plantation melodies, songs of home, the new war songs like, "Over There," and "Goodbye Broadway, Hello France," all have had a part in the soldiers' repertory.

But ask any American soldier who has served overseas or any civilian war worker who has been with the army in the fighting zones and he will tell you that the most popular songs in the American army—the songs oftenest sung—are the old gospel songs that are sung in Sunday-schools every Sabbath morning from one end of the United States to the other.

They have been the most popular songs not because they are of more sympathetic and contagious tunefulness than other songs but because they carry a religious message of hope and solace that finds an echo in every soldier's heart in times of danger and death.

The war has proved a wonderful evangelist in turning the world to God. It has stirred the deep sources of emotion as they rarely have been stirred in history. It has created in the combatant nations a psychological tension, taut, quivering, raw-edged, that has found its relief and remedy in religion.

This is not mere fancy born of optimism. It rests upon the testimony of ministers and religious workers everywhere.

II

Several thousand American soldiers were crowded about a platform in an open-air theater in a training camp in France. The Y. M. C. A. gave them a show every evening to freshen them up after the hard grind of the day's routine on the drill grounds. It usually opened with a fifteen-minute moving picture film. Then customarily there followed a short Bible talk by a chaplain or a "Y" man, a vaudeville stunt, a prayer, a boxing match and a gospel song—an odd pot-pourri of religion and the varieties.

And while the soldiers waited for the show, the thudding boom of the big guns on the fighting front came to them out of the distance in continuous muffled thunder. The sheet stretched across the rear of the platform for the moving pictures was the theater's only visible background; but the real background of the theater and of all that scene was the brood of those distant guns—a background whose ominous and tragic suggestiveness was felt in the heart of every soldier there.

"Now, boys," said a "Y" man, "We will start off with a film."

"Is that necessary?" asked a serious-faced gray old chaplain, newly arrived in France, who had preached straight gospel all his life in a country meeting house somewhere back home, and whose religion had never been associated with moving pictures and vaudeville.

"O yes," replied the "Y" man, "we always start the services off with a picture. The boys seem to like it best that way."

"Let me try another way," said the chaplain. He stepped to the front of the platform and faced the soldiers.

"Boys," he said, "I have come here to tell you something about religion. Would you like me to begin at once or would you prefer a movie film first?"

There was silence for a moment—except for the booming of the guns. Then a soldier in the crowd got to his feet.

"To hell with the movies, chaplain," he shouted, "give us religion."

There wasn't any movie that night. There wasn't any vaudeville. The old chaplain was the whole show. He gave the boys pure gospel straight from the Bible and straight from the shoulder. He told them how to become Christians, how to live a Christian life and how to die a Christian death; of a God of love and a crucified Christ.

He didn't impress upon them the evils of drink and gambling and women. That sort of thing had been drilled into them from the day they donned khaki. He attempted no fine rhetoric or flights of oratory. Rhetoric doesn't help a man to die. He didn't regale them with funny stories. That distant drum-fire of death would have made a poor accompaniment for funny stories. He told them simply what it meant to live right with God and what it meant through eternity to die right with God.

Then he prayed for God's benediction upon them and after the prayer, the soldiers sang "Onward, Christian Soldiers" with a tumultuous enthusiasm that drowned out the lion-like coughing of the far-off artillery. At the close of the services they crowded to the front to shake the chaplain's hand and sign war-roll cards that read in this way:

"Being convinced that I am a sinner and believing that Christ died for me, I now receive Him as my personal Saviour; and with His help, I purpose confessing Him before men."

"Boy" Brown was with the American marines at Chateau-Thierry. He was a hero among the heroes who, in that immortal fight, saved Paris and started the Germans back toward the Rhine—and peace. He fell with a machine-gun bullet through his chest and lingered between life and death for weeks.

"I was as good as dead," said "Boy" Brown, "from the time I went down till I woke up next day in the hospital crowded with wounded. 'Y' men came in and talked and prayed with the boys. One talked to me about God. God had never meant much to me. I had inherited my God with my politics and a bad temper. He was a sort of heirloom in my family like an old gold watch they said my grandfather used to wear. The 'Y' man asked me if he might pray with me. I told him to go ahead; it was all right with me—I didn't want to be impolite. He prayed and passed on and that was all except that my wound hurt like the devil.

"Then a 'Y' man, standing at the head of the aisle between the cots, began to sing, 'Almost Persuaded.' That was different. He sang in a fine, clear voice and the ward was as still as a stone—the boys forgot to groan to listen. Every word of that old song went to my heart—'Almost persuaded now to believe'; 'Jesus invites you here'; 'Almost—but lost.' I felt the tears trickling down my face. He seemed to be singing straight at me. The song seemed written especially to fit my case. 'Sing it again,' I called to him and he sang it again. And when he had ended, I knew that I was fully persuaded—and saved. The exhortations and the prayers had left me cold but the gospel song got me."

A negro battalion was marching along a road in France on the way to battle. They were in earshot of the rumble of the guns. They could see, at times, death waving its black banners from afar off in the smoke of bursting shells. It was a thrilling and a solemn time. The nearness of conflict fired their fighting blood.

"When we angry Saxons gits our dander up," said one black soldier, "all hell cain't stop us."

The nearness of death sobered them to a religious mood. Suddenly above the pounding noises of the march, a single stentorian voice rose in measured chant:

"Not my mother, not my sister."

And in concert, the battalion thundered the response:

"It's me, O Lawd, standin' in the need o' prayer."

"Not the elder, not the chaplain," sang the leader.

And again the mighty refrain made the hills ring:

"It's me, O Lawd, standin' in the need o' prayer."

Over and over in reply to the words of the leader, the mighty chorus swelled:

"It's me, O Lawd, standin' in the need o' prayer."

Then the leader swung into another tune—not a gospel song but a gospel chantey of lead and fall-to chorus, a type of music dear to the negro heart.

"O moanah," (mourner) boomed his voice in long-drawn sorrowful cadence.

And the battalion answered:

"Doan' stay away."

"O backslider," wailed the leader. And once more the soldiers flung back the reply in sonorous diapason:

"Doan' stay away."

No soldiers in the American army sing with finer effect than the black troopers. Melody is the heritage of the race. In cantonments, at home in rest camps overseas old plantation melodies and later love songs like "Mandy" and "Lil Liza Jane" filled in the sunny hours of leisure. But when the day of battle drew on, it was the gospel songs, gospel chanteys and old-time religious hymns that inspired the negroes with the spirit that has given them equality in the brotherhood of heroes in a war where black and white bled red in the cause of liberty.

III

General Pershing sent back this message from across the seas: "Teach the boys to sing." He has been a soldier all his life and he knows the effect of songs on the morale of a fighting army.

The boys have been taught to sing. In every cantonment in the United States where drafted men were taught to fight, they were taught to sing—not merely urged to sing but taught by competent and systematized effort.

Y. M. C. A. singing leaders have worked hand in hand with religious work directors in every camp in the country. Bible messages have been delivered and gospel songs sung every evening in Y. M. C. A. service huts and at odd hours of the day in barracks and mess rooms. The soldiers have been given plenty of vaudeville, moving pictures, concerts, lectures, boxing matches and wrestling bouts but there have been few entertainments at which a gospel message was not driven home and a gospel song sung.

Forty thousand men have frequently gathered for religious services in an open-air amphitheater at Camp Grant near Rockford, Ill., and when 40,000 young men with healthy lungs swung into some gospel song, the mighty chorus shook the roof of heaven.

"I have been in evangelistic work for thirty years," said E. O. Sellers, religious work director at Camp Grant. "I have been the singing partner of some of the great evangelists. I have heard and studied them all—Moody, Whittle, Gipsy Smith, Paul Rader, Wilbur Chapman, 'Billy' Sunday, I have seen them play upon the emotions and work up an audience until the very air seemed surcharged with tense religious feeling as with electricity. But never under the spell of these wonderful preachers, have I seen such reaction to religious appeal as I have seen in the army. You don't have to play for emotion; it's there—just beneath the surface, in every soldier.

The men of the army are like wheat ripe for the harvest of God. They don't want and won't have any namby-pamby gospel or high-brow religion. What they want is a religion that will match their uniform—a gospel that will do the work for two-fisted fighting men. Give them that kind and they take it like meat and drink. They need it and they know they need it."

The same sort of work has been done in all the naval training camps as in the army cantonments. The non-sectarian character of all this work has been notably significant.

One hundred bankers, and business and professional men have been accustomed to go from Chicago every Sunday morning to teach Bible classes of jackies at Great Lakes, the big mid-western naval training station. No one asked to what church these Bible class teachers belonged—no one cared. Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists, Congregationalists, Episcopalians, Lutherans—more than twenty denominations were represented among them.

One night at religious services, led by "Dad" Elliott, 3,500 sailors signed the war-roll cards. Among them were 500 Roman Catholics. "God bless you, 'Dad,'" said Father Murphy, a Catholic chaplain who was present at the meeting, "I never in this world could have reached the most of them." And when at next communion Father Murphy prepared for 200 men in his battalion, 368 came.

The religious organizations of all kinds have won a distinctive place in the history of the war. The stories of great battles and famous victories will not be complete without a tribute to the courage and devotion of the noble men and women who labored day and night behind the lines through hardship and danger to minister to the physical needs and the spiritual welfare of the soldiers. They have made the war unique among the wars of the world by the constant intimate religious influences they have thrown about the fighting men.

IV

Church hymns are as old as religion itself, but gospel songs differ from church hymns in form and spirit. They have been defined as "songs that carry a gospel message emphasized by a chorus." Old church hymns with few exceptions are devoid of chorus.

But while, broadly speaking, the definition will serve, gospel songs have other points of differentiation in their brighter spirit and cheerier music. Solemnity, perhaps, is the dominant note of church hymns; optimism that of gospel songs. Hymns are the classic harmonies of the church; gospel songs its lighter melodies. One is devotional; the other inspirational and joyous.

Gospel songs are comparatively new. They date no further back than the first decade succeeding the Civil War. P. P. Bliss and Ira D. Sankey were among the earliest pioneers of the gospel song movement. Their work became suddenly a fount of inspiration to other composers and an extensive anthology of gospel songs sprang into existence.

George F. Root, George C. Stebbins, James McGranahan, George Alexander, D. B. Towner and others—some still alive and singing—took up the work of writing and singing songs and became the advance couriers of the singing evangelism of today.

If Bliss and Sankey were the inspiring spirits, Dwight L. Moody was the Napoleon of the new song revolution. He gave gospel songs their empire and though he could not sing a note, set the whole world to singing gospel songs.

Moody was quick to see that a gospel song, as a moving religious force, is sometimes greater than a sermon; that a sermon set to music is often more compelling than any pulpit rhetoric. When he embarked on his first tour of England, which established his fame and swept Great Britain with a new and wonderful religious fervor, he took Sankey as his singing partner.

At the English meetings, Sankey sang his own songs, some of the new American songs and certain English church melodies known as spirituelles. His new songs struck a popular note and developed a veritable craze for "Sankey stuff" throughout the British Isles.

Mr. Moody had the songs printed in a paper pamphlet which sold like wildfire. The pamphlet was the second book of gospel songs ever printed. Bliss, a few months earlier, had published the first in the United States. This was in 1874.

When Moody and Sankey returned to America, Mr. Moody with the co-operation of Sankey and Bliss published a new gospel song book which became as popular in the United States as the pamphlet had proved in Great Britain. Publishers had difficulty in printing enough copies to supply the demand. It marked the beginning of an era of religious music in this country completely dominated by gospel songs.

Moody never put a dollar of the income from these books to any personal use. His mission, as he saw it, was the evangelization of the world, and with noble unselfishness, he gave his all to the great cause to which he had consecrated his life. The royalties on the series ran up in time to more than a million and a half dollars from which Moody founded the Northfield Seminary for girls and the Mount Hermon School for boys in Massachusetts, and The Moody Bible Institute in Chicago, which equips men and women as Bible teachers, gospel singers and evangelists, to carry Moody's own virile, non-sectarian Christianity into all the world. These three institutions are Moody's greatest monuments and gospel songs were literally their foundation stones.

"The broad catholicity of the spirit that has marked the religious work in the army," said Dr. D. B. Towner, who succeeded Sankey as Moody's singing partner, "is a rainbow sign of promise for the future. One is ready to believe that out of the chaos of war, the world is emerging into the dawn of a day when all the churches will unite in one great human brotherhood of those who worship the God of the Bible and His Son who died to redeem the world.

"If the world conflict adds to its victories this glorious and crowning achievement, it will have been worth to humanity all its tragic cost."

Bolshevism and Education

By Bishop Warren A. Candler, in "The Atlanta Journal"

AS THE old cocks crow the young ones learn. Adult people cannot continue long any course of action without children and youths being affected by it.

This is being exemplified in ruined Russia most strikingly. Bolshevism is possessing the boys in school and is making the schools worse than worthless.

A correspondent of the Associated Press says, "Pupils, instead of teachers control the schools of Russia under the Bolshevik regime. Boys and girls are heralded indiscriminately, and there is no discipline. Pupils control the teachers.

"In a Kolmna school a youth of eighteen years was appointed commissioner of the institution and was in charge of all the teachers. On one occasion he closed the school for a week as a protest against the action of the teacher, who had reprimanded a pupil.

"If a teacher proves unpopular he is promptly ejected by his class. Often the teacher appears for his class work only to find the pupils engaged in a committee meeting which he must not disturb. Each class has its own committee, and the class committees direct the teachers.

"Pupils do exactly as they please, walking into the classroom and leaving it while a lesson is in progress. No punishment of any kind is inflicted upon pupils. Each pupil is his own mentor as to right and wrong.

"Attendance is not compulsory, or even regulated by rule, each pupil attending classes, or staying away as he sees fit.

"The same chaotic conditions exist in the universities and other institutions of higher learning as prevail in the common schools. Any boy of sixteen years of age may enter any institution of higher learning without any qualification. Even though he can not read, he may become an undergraduate, entitled to all the food and other advantages enjoyed by more advanced students who may be seeking such education as the demoralized system has to offer."

Submersion of the Family

Most people will be ready to say that under such a system a pupil can learn nothing, but this is not true. Unfortunately the pupils learn the lesson of insubordination to authority and acquire the worst habits of self-will and self-assertion.

A generation growing up under such a system will be trained to lawlessness and folly. It will be both ignorant and inflated. It will be destitute of virtue and intelligence. It will be lawless and will fancy lawlessness as liberty.

The next step after such a system of education if followed to its logical results will be the submersion of the family. Parental authority will be set at naught as a thing incompatible with the freedom of the individual.

In the final outcome conditions will become intolerable to even the men who have advocated Bolshevism; for they will not be able to endure one another. "The man on horseback" will then appear as the only hope for orderly government, and the last state of Russia will be worse than the first.

Out of such schools nothing but recklessness and ruin can issue.

When evil infects the schools of the nation its civic life is corrupted at the fountain. Such a condition marks moral decay already set up and foreshadows greater disorder for the future.

America Warned About Its Universities

And we in America should be warned in time that something close akin to Bolshevism is prevalent already in many of the richer institutions of learning in the United States. This has come out in the course of the investigation conducted by a committee of the United States Senate, known as the "Overman Committee," Senator Overman, of North Carolina, being its chairman.

A number of professors of "sociology" in several leading universities have been shown to be propagandists of the most abominable doctrines. These men have been teaching teachers for many years, and thereby they have been spreading the virus of their pernicious influence far and wide.

Captain Gustavus Ohlinger, in his able book entitled The German Conspiracy in American Education, exposed the methods used by the German militarists to dominate our country and the world by their "kulturpolitik" and showed how a considerable number of professors in American universities fell in with them.

But there is now, through the "sociologists" so-called, just as pernicious an influence at work. To overcome German militarism we have been forced to expend billions of treasure and sacrifice the lives of precious boys far more valuable than money. We have had to combat influences which issued from certain wealthy and irresponsible universities in the north.

We may now have to fight Bolshevism, issuing from some of the same sources.

Time to Clean House

It is time to have a house-cleaning at certain institutions. Parents must have a care in selecting schools for their sons and daughters. Because an institution is rich and has a large enrolment of students and ranks high in athletics is no reason for believing that its instruction is wholesome and sound. It may thereby attract thoughtless youths, but a boy is not competent to determine where he should be educated. His parents should settle so serious a matter as that. And unless parents wish their sons to imbibe dangerous doctrines they must have regard both for what a professor teaches and the textbooks he uses in his classes.

There lies before me now a text book which was written by a professor in one of the state universities in the west, and which is used extensively in many other institutions. The author criticizes Marx and other socialists, but proceeds to do so after accepting a socialistic platform. In the first paragraph of his chapter on socialism, he says, "In criticizing the most conspicuous of these schemes of social reconstruction, the so-called 'scientific socialism' it should be understood at the outset that there is no intention of questioning the general aims of the socialists. These aims, as voiced by their best representatives, are in entire accord with sound science, religion and ethics. That humanity should gain collective control over the conditions of its existence is the ultimate and highest aim of all science, all education, and all government."

Insidious Methods of Socialistic Professors

From that position as a starting point he proceeds to examine the system of Karl Marx, syndicalism, and other socialistic theories, condemning them all in a way, but really leading toward them in his own teaching.

This professor may be able to hold himself back from accepting the doctrines which he seems to condemn, being restrained perhaps by a prudential regard for holding his position in the university, but it scarcely admits of a doubt that his teachings will lead his students to accept the most pernicious forms of socialism.

Professor Herron's Mission

He is one of many. It is but a few years ago when Professor Herron went the fullest length of the worst forms of socialism, even adopting the doctrines of free love. It has amazed, not to say shocked, thoughtful people in the United States that this creature was recently appointed by the President to membership on a commission to confer with the Bolsheviks of Russia. Does such a man represent this nation? What influences conspired to secure his appointment?

It is undoubtedly true that a very large majority of college authorities in this country in their heart of hearts disapprove of intercollegiate athletics, for example; but they allow the system and outwardly encourage it. Why? They argue that boys choose the schools which they will attend, and that the coaches carry the boys whither they desire. Hence to secure patronage they must virtually turn over the institutions to the control of the coaches. Courses of studies and schedules of work must conform to the games to be played, for otherwise the boys under the leadership of the coaches will rebel.

Coach-Controlled Colleges

This does not differ so very much from the institutions in Russia of which the correspondent of the Associated Press has told us. A coach-controlled institution is no better than a boy managed affair.

A real teacher should not degrade his high calling by yielding subjection to coaches and immature boys in order to get patronage which otherwise would not come to his instruction. A teacher should stand upon an elevation like that of a minister of the gospel; he ought never to become a peddler of pedagogy, seeking to make a market for his wares by meretricious methods.

HEBREW MISSION ACTIVITIES

A Prophetic Conference was held April 6 in the Bethany Reformed Church, Roseland, Ill., Rev. Norman H. Camp presiding. Rev. Robert M. Russell, D. D., spoke on "God's World Purpose Through Israel"; Rev. B. B. Sutcliffe spoke on "The Future Jewish State and the League of Nations"; Mr. Camp spoke on "The End of the Age and the Work of the Hour." A similar conference was held at Perry, Ia., at the regular spring meeting of the Presbytery of Des Moines, the arrangements having been made by Rev. Carl A. Montanus. Arrangement for such conferences can be made by addressing Mr. Camp at 1505 S. Sawyer Ave., Chicago, Ill.

HARD TIMES.

"Yes, these are hard times. We throw away ashes and buy soap. We raise dogs and buy hogs. We grow weeds and buy vegetables and brooms. We catch fish with a $4 rod. We build school-houses and send our children to be educated away from home. And at last we send our boys out with a $40 gun, and a $19 dog, to hunt 10 cent game."—Nevada Picayune, Arkansas.

The Plea of a French Chaplain

By Rev. Daniel Couve, Chaplain in The French Army and Secretary of Paris Missionary Society

An Address Delivered at The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

MY DEAR friends, it is a great pleasure to be able to say a few words to you. I come as a friend to his friends, not with an address, but with a very simple message. I have come to this country as a delegate to the Protestant evangelical churches in France, and with the approval of my government, to tell some of the American people of the love of France.

We love America with a very special sort of love, a love that is born not only of sweet remembrance for things of the past, but also of very deep thankfulness for things of today, and also, and first of all, a love that is made of unlimited confidence in America for things of the future. I have come to play my little part in the strengthening of the ties that already unite our two nations, and I will speak to you about what I, as a Frenchman, and as a Christian, expect from American help in the days which are to come.

I come to you, as you may know, with a heart full of what I have witnessed for four years on the front. I have lived with the soldiers in the trenches, and I know what they have suffered. I have seen the sufferings of our poor French people in the northern districts of our country, and the old people and the small babes who have been driven out of their homes. I have walked and walked through our cities and our villages that have been destroyed by the enemy, but there is one thing that more than any other thing still haunts me at night and tears my heart.

The Great Cemeteries

It is the vision of the immense cemeteries that I have visited on the front line, cemeteries where thousands and thousands and thousands of soldiers' graves are seen in unlimited lines, not only graves of the white men of Europe and America, but of the brown men of India, and of the yellow men of China and French and Dutch China and of Madagascar, (our island of Madagascar has given more than fifty thousand men to France for the war); and also the graves of the black men of Africa; men of all colors, all tribes, all languages, all united in the same spirit of self-sacrifice, for the redemption of the world's freedom, and all of them now resting under our French soil. It seems to me our French soil has been made holy by the shedding of so many bloods, and when now I think of those graves they remind me of those words of the apostle writing to the Hebrews, speaking about the great cloud of witnesses with which we are compassed about, and who urge us to go on and to run with patience the race that is set before us.

O, my dear friends, those men have died for what purpose? They have not died in order that we, the privileged ones who have saved our lives, that we might go back to our business or to our pleasures or to our studies or even to the blissful joy of our family lives. Those men have died in order that something might be changed in the life of the world; and those witnesses are now urging us to change something in the life of the world, and to put into the work of the reconstruction of the world the same spirit of self-sacrifice, of unselfishness that they have put in the offering of their own lives. And as a Frenchman and as a Christian, I should like to tell you very briefly of a very special form of the race that lies before you. You have come to our country and you have helped us materially, magnificently.

France will never forget what America has done for France. We will never forget. I remember that the last fourteenth of July, the day of our great national feast, I was in Paris to attend the great deputation of all the allied troops who were to march through the streets of our city, and I stood to cheer the troops, and I cheered with all the power of my hands and all the power of my voice.

The American Boys, Our Saviours

There were all sorts of troops, the Belgians and the Serbians and the Scotch and the Irish and the English and the Canadians and the Australians, but I can assure you when the American boys came down the street I heard a voice at my back, and I turned back and it was an old crippled French woman, who said: "Sir, I beg your pardon, but you don't cheer loud enough, because these American boys are our saviours. The American boys are our saviours." That is the real feeling of our people of France toward America, and that old woman told perfectly what she meant to say. She was not an educated woman, but she knew, and you must not forget it, that we French people, we have suffered through the war much more than you have suffered naturally because the enemy has been on our soil not only, but because we have lost much more than you have lost.

We are a people of forty million inhabitants and we have lost one million and four hundred thousand men; and you have not lost one hundred thousand, and you have a nation of one hundred millions. To have lost the same as we have lost, you would have lost at least three million men. And do you realize what it is for France to lose fourteen hundred thousand men? Try to see on one side perhaps seven hundred thousand widows, and I do not know how many orphans, and on the other side seven hundred thousand men under twenty-five, the best of our youth, the flower of our sons. That is what we have lost, and when we face our great difficult reconstructive task that is set before us for the rebuilding of the new national life, we are very anxious, and that old woman knew that. But she knew also, and there is not one man or one woman in my country who does not know that if the one hundred thousand Americans who have died in France had not died as they did and at the very moment when they did, our fourteen hundred thousand would have died in vain. But the Americans came at the right moment, and they died at the right moment. Our sons have not died in vain, our liberty has been saved, the liberty of the world has been saved, and the world itself has been made safe for true democracy, and we all know that, and that is why we love America and why we are thankful toward America.

But now your work is not finished, because now that the war is over, now that we have made the experiment of your precious help, we are expecting of you something better than a material help. We are expecting from you the help of what is best in the moral and spiritual resources of America. Before the war our people knew very little of America, and it was the fault of America, because the American people we used to see in our country were not always the right people; they were wealthy people coming to us with a great deal of wealth, spending their dollars in all sorts of pleasure in Paris, and the women doing a great deal of shopping in our stores.

The Soul of America

We knew the wealth and the practical and business character of America, but we knew very little about the soul of America. But now through the war, as President Wilson said, in his speech in Paris, France has discovered the soul of America, and we are anxious to know now a little more of that yet. We have not only seen the soldiers of America and the President of the United States in France during the war but we have seen also the progress of the American Red Cross and the workers of the Y. M. C. A. and of the Y. W. C. A., and I can tell you that our people, when they have seen this benevolent organization working for them, even when it was only in the matter of material help that was given to our people, our people divined beyond that material help instinctively the presence, invisible but real, of a great moral and spiritual power; and now once more that the war is over our nation wants to know something more of what is the special power of America and I believe that, as a Christian, as an Evangelical Protestant, I know something about the special power of America that our nation knows.

Democratic Christianity

It is what I like to call the spirit of a really Christian democracy, or if you prefer of a real democratic Christianity. You American people do not realize your privilege. You have been brought up in a country of the mingling of the spirit of democracy and of the spirit of Christianity, and you have lived in a bath of Christianity. I remember that when I was a child my mother used to take me on her knees and tell me the story of the Pilgrim Fathers who left the continent because they loved the gospel and liberty, and came here to lay the foundations of a new world of liberty, political and religious; and my father, who was a Christian and a business man, used to tell me, "My son, if you look at the American democracy, she is the magnificent fruit of a magnificent tree that has grown out of the little seed that the Pilgrim Fathers have brought from our side to the other side, and the Americans have the fair chance, and we have not got it, and you know what is the situation on the other side." We know something of democracy. We know something of Christianity. Democracy in France has been fighting the gospel.

Hope for a Religion Not Oppressive

We are forty million people, on one side with fifteen million Roman Catholics, who are opposed to our improvements of the democratic idea; and on the other side we have twenty-five million people who were born Catholics, but because of the narrowness and the autocracy of the church, have left the church and become agnostic and who cannot believe that there could be a religion that is not oppressive; and in the middle there are six hundred thousand evangelical Protestants who are trying to give to their people the revelation of true Christianity. Do you realize what it is for those people to be crushed by between fifteen millions of narrow Roman Catholics and twenty-five millions of unbelievers? That is our situation, but now the Americans have come, and our people looking to the Americans have begun to discover that perhaps they are going to have a religion that is not oppressive, and perhaps there is going to be a religion that is stable and solid for the development of true democracy, and our people who have begun to discover the religious zeal of American democracy are anxious to know a little more.

Now you have come, or your brothers have come, as soldiers to our country. You have saved our liberty, and now we need you to come as fellow Christian workers to help us in the rebuilding of a real new national life. I do not know if France will ever become what we call a Protestant country. I do not believe France will ever become again a real Catholic country. But one thing I am sure of, and that is that we need France to become a Christian country. We want Christ to be given to France.

The Cross in the Snow

Finally, I want to tell you of a personal experience. I used to go to the trenches every morning during the war and visit the boys and encourage them; and one morning as I walked in the trenches, a man who was walking by my side, and who was very sad and depressed, said to me, "Do you see those graves over there in the snow?" I looked but could not see the graves under the snow, but merging from the snow I saw the cross, the cross of Jesus Christ that faces the war, that faces the dead, that faces the future, as the power of life and love; and as I looked unto the cross I went my way to my boys, and my heart was relieved, for one is comforted when looking unto the cross, and especially with you Americans to come and help us, not to plant a cross of wood on the graves of those who are dead, but to plant the Living Christ of the Living God in the living heart of my living country.

A NEW FIELD OF WORK

Rev. Archibald R. Wright has just resigned the pastorate of the Perseverance Presbyterian Church of Milwaukee, to accept the field secretaryship of the Ceylon and India General Mission. This mission works among the Telugus in South India and the Sinhalese in Ceylon. John W. Dawson, '14, and Mrs. B. R. Oppen, are former Institute students now working in that mission. Mr. Wright speaks a good word for the Institute on all occasions, directs some students to it, and has assisted some of its students to fields of labor. He is the son of Rev. Dr. William Wright, Newtownards, Ireland, and the grandson of the late Archibald Robinson, D. D., of the Assembly Presbyterian College, at Belfast, Ireland, and comes from a family well known by its contribution to the Presbyterian Church of Ireland, England and Australia.

Rev. Archibald R. Wright.

More Truth Than Poetry

OUR NATIONAL AIRS

(After We Have Joined The League of Nations:)

Our countries, 'tis of ye,
Sweet lands of liberty,
Of ye we sing,
Lands where our fathers, grandfathers and great-grandfathers back to Noah and Adam died,
Land of the Norman's, the Saxon's, the Caledonian's, the Caesar's, the Yugoslav's and the Czechoslav's pride,
From every mountain side
Let freedom ring!

* * *

When freedom from her several mountain heights
Unfurled her various standards to the air,
She tore the azure and otherwise-hued robes of night,
And set the divers and sundry stars of glory there.
Forever float those fifteen or twenty standard sheets
Where breathes the foe but falls before us,
With freedom's assorted soils beneath our feet,
And freedom's multitudinous banners floating o'er us.

* * *

Columbia, one of the gems of the ocean
One of the homes of the brave and the free,
One of the shrines of the patriot's devotion,
The world offers homage to thee.
Three cheers for the red, white, blue, orange, violet, yellow and black!
Three cheers for the purple, mauve, brown, green, pink and other shades which may be in the banners of our fellow league members!
The amalgamated armies and navies forever!
Three cheers for all the colors of the rainbow!

* * *

I wish I was in the land of cotton, of frogs' legs, of kilties, of spaghetti and of pretzels.
Look away! Look away, Look Away,
League of Lands!

* * *

And the Star Spangled Banner, the Tricolor, the Union Jack and the royal ensigns of fifteen or twenty other nations,
Long may they wave
O'er the lands of the free
And the homes of the brave!

—Atlanta Georgian.

CALL FOR CONFERENCES

TO BE CONDUCTED BY

The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

Eagles Mere, Pa., July 13-20, 1919

Castine, Me., August 24-31, 1919

Camden, Me., August 31-September 7, 1919

To the Christian Workers of the United States, and Especially Those Residing East of the Alleghany Mountains and Near the Atlantic Coast:

GREETING: The announcement above shows what we are planning for you in the way of Bible conferences this summer.

More beautiful and more invigorating locations could hardly be named, and there go with them those hotel and boarding accommodations, and those opportunities for out door physical enjoyments on land and water so desirable for wearied brains and bodies after a long year's toil.

"Come thou with us and we will do thee good!"

BIBLE conferences worthy of the name are those in which the Bible is really taught, in the sense that its sacred text is explained to the people; its great doctrines set forth; its authenticity and truth defended, and where the people receive training in its practical use in Christian service. The Moody Bible Institute aims to do this all the year round for the hundreds of students under its care, and when the summer comes its experienced teachers go out to these conferences to give the general Christian public the benefit of the same work.

METHODS of work are always secondary to the teaching of the Bible, and yet they have an important place. In these conferences specialists are to give instruction in personal soul-winning, Sunday-school teaching and management, and efficiency in church work, especially in the securing of finance. Young pastors will find this very helpful.

But instruction without inspiration would be a serious disappointment, as well as a positive loss. Hence provision has been made for this in joyous and soul-stirring singing, always a feature in the life and work of The Moody Bible Institute, and in the hours to be devoted to prayer and supplication, as well as to the old-time preaching of the Cross. The Bible Conferences of The Moody Bible Institute have always been seasons of revival, when not only have the saints been quickened, but sinners have been saved. And these conferences will be no exception to the rule unless God no longer answers prayer.

SINCE last summer the writer has attended several Bible conferences and ministered in different pulpits throughout the country. He has conversed with many people and kept abreast of current literature. He knows that it is in the air that this is "a reconstruction period," that we are in "a new world," and that the church must change its methods and its message to command the attention of our returning military and naval heroes.

BUT, dear Christian brethren, do not be misled or distracted by this din. Everything depends upon the nature and character of the method and the message. In some cases, perhaps in many, it were desirable that they be changed; but not if the message were the Gospel of Jesus Christ, and if the method were the teaching and preaching of the Word of God in the power of His Spirit.

IT IS the same old world that it ever was. The Moody Bible Institute has been in constant touch with the soldiers and sailors at the front and with religious workers among them, and therefore can speak with intelligence and authority so far as they are concerned. What the church needs—O, how much it needs it!—is a new quickening and new refreshing from on high, to enable it to meet the new responsibility and opportunity which these times have brought. And that is all it needs.

That these conferences at Eagles Mere, Camden and Castine may, by God's Grace, be the means of such blessing to very many of all denominations who will be able to avail themselves thereof, is the earnest and affectionate prayer of the Trustees, Faculty and the whole force of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, who are represented in this call.

By your true friend in Christ,

James M. Gray

Young People's Society Topics

May 4

Our Relation to God—Serving Matthew 20:20-28

Authority in the kingdom comes not by the tiny elevation of office holding, but by sacrificial serving. Verses 17-19 of this chapter contain a declaration of the purpose of Jesus to go to Jerusalem. Before Him lay the pain and travail of the cross, but beyond it lay the glory of the resurrection. The only way to resurrection glory was by the way of death. This the disciples would avoid. They did not understand the principle by the operation of which alone, victory can be achieved. They wanted the glory without the shame, the crown without the cross.

The mother of James and John was ignorant of this great principle when she came to Jesus with her ambitious request, seeking the elevation and dignity of office for her two sons. She is to be pitied rather than blamed. The answer of Jesus indicates her ignorance, "Ye know not what ye ask."

The two sons are to be admired. They stood the acid test so far as resolution was concerned. They were willing to pay the price. Probably they did not know all that was involved, but the fact of their willingness is commendable. Yet even this does not bring them the promise of the coveted place of honor, that is in the hands of the Father.

The indignation of the other ten shows that they were envious of the two. None of them had yet learned that "whosoever humbleth himself shall be exalted," and that "if any man serve me him will my Father honor."

Their envy and indignation brought out the teaching of Jesus in verses 25-28. He reverses the way of the world. The world believes in getting rather than giving, in saving rather than serving. "But it shall not be so among you, but whosoever shall be great among you, let him be your servant."

Service is the way to greatness in the kingdom, even as in the case of Jesus Himself, who came "not to be ministered unto, but to minister," no matter at what cost, and "to give himself a ransom for many." He was the servant of all and the sacrifice for all. We need the sacrifice first. We must be cleansed from sin before we can serve sinners. No one gets into the kingdom by service or sacrifice. He must be born into it, "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God" (John 3:3). We are "under sin" (Rom. 3:9), and under sentence of death, but He gave His life a ransom and loosed us from our sins by His blood (Rev. 1:5), and through His death delivered us from the power of death

(Heb. 2:13-15), and now the word goes forth, "Ye are not your own, ye are bought with a price" (1 Cor. 6:19, 20).

At this point, service comes in for consideration. Service is the result of relationship, and relationship is brought about through redemption. There is no other way. In the words of Luke 1:74, "We being delivered out of the hand of our enemies might serve him without fear in holiness and righteousness before him all the days of our life."

Some one has well said, there are three kinds of servants—slaves who serve through fear, hirelings who work for reward, and sons who work for love. The ransomed soul is in the latter class for, "We love him because he first loved us." Glorification without crucifixion is the way of fallen human nature, but the child of God, taught of the Spirit, reverses this order.

May 11

The Lure of the World 2 Tim. 4-10, 1 John 2:15-17

The words of our Scripture Lesson ought to be pondered by all our young people who prepare for, and participate in, the discussion of this topic.

The world we must not love is that system of things that excludes God. It may formally acknowledge Him to the point of convenience, but it ignores His salvation and resists His will. What is the "Lure of the World?" Not its corruption and vice, except to those who live in unrestrained sin; that is no allurements to those who will study this topic. It is rather the world's ways, the world's pleasures, the world's philosophy, the world's standards of value, the world's point of view, and even the world's religion. These are the things that tend to charm and captivate the natural heart. The glitter and glare of these things obscure the glory of that city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God. Against this, God has warned us in His word, both by precept and example. Demas in 2 Timothy 4:10, stands out as a warning. He loved this present world and this present world is, before God, an evil world (Gal. 1:4). Christ gave Himself that he might deliver us from it; from its spell, its spirit and its power, and this is "according to the will of God, our Father."

Demas was possibly a very respectable man, perhaps a cultured man, but he loved this present world and for present gratification he forfeited eternal good. The worldly man may be a very polished person, altogether attractive and agreeable; but he is dominated by the world spirit, and he knows not God. He may talk much of world betterment, but he mistakes culture and civilization for Christ. He may be very optimistic, for jaunty optimism is part of "the natural man," and that is just what he is according to the Bible, a natural man, a man born once and destined to die twice, for none but "twice born men" enter the kingdom and receive the gift of eternal life. "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, they are foolishness unto him, neither can he know them because they are spiritually discerned" (1 Cor. 2:14). Yet he talks much of improved conditions and world progress.

The yard-stick for the measuring of conditions differs with individuals and classes. The point of view of the moralist is the increase or decrease of morality. He looks "on the outward appearance." The business man uses another standard of measurement. With him it is a question of how a man keeps his word and meets his financial obligations. But with God the determining test is the attitude of a man's heart towards His son. God has decreed that "all men should honor the Son even as they honor the Father." "He that honoreth not the Son honoreth not the Father which sent him" (John 5:23). With this as our guide we can easily determine matters pertaining to betterment and world progress.

The world of pleasure and pretense, of pride and unholy ambition, the world as it is now and always, is antagonistic to God. It pushes Him out of the heart; we must choose between Him and it. It is only as we turn to Him with our hearts that we escape the corruption that is in the world. 2 Peter 1:4.

May 18

Life, the School of God, and Its Lessons

Psalm 119:1-8, 33-40

There is something inspiring in the thought of life as a school; a place where one takes a preparatory course for the future. In this school there are many lessons to be learned, and as we learn them we are enriched or "blessed."

In our Scripture Lesson we learn that "blessed are the undefiled in the way." In other words, blessed are they that have learned the lesson of cleansing from defilement and have been delivered from the guilt of their sins. This lesson of deliverance is the first great lesson of life. Until it is learned, the life is burdened and limited, and progress is impossible. In the chief text-book in the school of God we read of a fountain open for sin and defilement, and also that "the blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanseth from all sin."

Following in the order of our Scripture verses we discover that the second lesson is that of devotion, or walking in the law of the Lord, keeping His testimonies, and seeking Him with the whole heart. Whole-heartedness in devotion and duty is another great lesson to learn. "If thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light; but if thine eye be evil (that is, divided or wrongly focused), thy whole body shall be full of darkness." "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." Learn this lesson well; it is worth while.

The third lesson indicated in this Psalm is related to diligent Bible study, "Thou hast commanded us to keep thy precepts diligently." This is equal in importance to all that has gone before, yet how few have learned this lesson! School calls for study. The greatest hindrance is slackness and of course the greatest need is diligence. "Study to show thyself approved unto God." Adopt some good method of Bible study and diligently pursue that method. The knowledge of God and His ways comes largely through diligent Bible study. The person who knows God, knows all things, for God is the key to eternity. Strength for service is obtained through this channel. "They that do know their God shall be strong and do exploits" (Dan. 11:32).

Another important lesson may be learned in verses 33-40. Notice the cry of the Psalmist here: "Teach me." "Give me understanding." "Make me to go in the path of thy commandments." All of which proves the need of dependence on God, for all things.

Here then are the four lessons of our Scripture verses:

Deliverance from the defilement of sin.

Devotion to His will.

Diligence in the study of His Word.

Dependence on Him for guidance and control.

To learn these lessons and express them—this is life indeed.

May 25

God's Precious Promises

2 Peter 1:1-4

Let the leader of this meeting plan beforehand for "promise verses" to be repeated from memory. Then emphasize and illustrate and enforce in every possible way, the importance of memorizing Scripture. The Holy Spirit works in us through the Word. He cannot bring to memory that which has not first of all been stored there. Many a Christian goes down to defeat in the battle because of the lack of equipment in this direction. Even our Lord used Scripture verses in His conflict with Satan, and said three times, "It is written." Thus the conflict issued in conquest for Him.

Take such verses as Isaiah 41:10; 43:25; 44:22; Psalm 32:8; John 3:14,15; 5:24; 6:37; 10:28; 11:25,26. Have these memorized by the members of the society; they are part of the exceeding great and precious promises of God. The promises of God beget life. He hath given unto us "exceeding great and precious promises that by these ye might be partakers of the divine

(Continued on page 667)

Sunday-School Department

Exposition of the International Lessons

By P. B. Fitzwater

May 11

Sin and Its Consequences

Genesis 3: 1-24

(May be used as a Temperance Lesson)

Golden Text:—"The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Romans 6: 23.

An outlook upon the world proves that man is not what he should be, and, apart from gospel influence there is no sign of improvement. The only way of accounting for the discrepancy between what man is and what he should be is by the Fall. This is the way that the Bible accounts for it.

I. The Temptation (3: 1-6).

Man possessed a free will in the exercise of which he turned away from God and His commandment. This was done at the instance of the devil working through the serpent. He did not appear as he really was, but in disguise. The method employed was (1) finding the woman while alone. (2) Insinuating doubt into her mind as to God's Word and love. At his suggestion she began to believe that God did not mean what He said, and that He was unkind in placing restrictions upon them. In this the devil slandered God, even accused Him of jealousy and fraud. (3) Appeal to innocent appetite. (4) She gazed upon the fruit which God had forbidden. (5) She lusted after that which God had forbidden.

II. The Fall (3: 6-8).

From lusting to indulgence was a short step. This act of disobedience has brought on all the world woe and misery. Eve not only disobeyed, but involved Adam in her sin. Aspiring to be gods they became the slaves of sin. They came to know good and evil, but by sad experience. They knew sin without the power to free themselves from it.

III. The Consequences of the Fall (3: 9-24).

1. A Disturbed Relationship with God (vv. 9, 10). The familiar intercourse which man enjoyed with the Almighty was marred and broken by sin. Sin makes life intolerable in the divine presence. Adam and Eve not only hid from God's presence, but Adam began to make excuse and even laid the blame on God.

2. The Serpent was Degraded and Henceforth Became a Type of Sin and Satan (v. 14; cf. Num. 21: 9; John 3: 14; Rev. 12: 9). This doom was pronounced without trial. In the case of man it was not so.

3. The Undying Enmity between the Two Seeds (v. 15; cf. John 8: 40-45; Matt. 23: 33). The antagonism thus begun reached its climax in the crucifixion of Christ. Satan's seed has been ever since endeavoring to destroy the Lord's work and His workers.

4. The Ultimate Victory of the Woman's Seed (v. 15). Satan harassed the woman's seed; bruised his heel, but finally the stroke was made which crushed the serpent's head (John 12: 31; Heb. 2: 14; 1 John 3: 8). This was the first gleam of the glorious light of the gospel of Christ. The victory was marvelous, but the cost was infinite (Isa. 53: 2 Cor. 5: 21).

5. Judgment upon the Woman (v. 16). This relates to her as a wife and mother; also to her subordination to man. This is God's decree, and all efforts of freeing one's self from it are fightings against God.

6. Man's New Relationship to the Earth (vv. 17-19). The earth was cursed on his account. Because of the rank growth of thorns and thistles man must make an increased effort to exist.

7. Death (v. 19). This includes physical and spiritual death.

8. Expulsion from the Garden (v. 24). This was an act of great mercy. To have partaken of the tree of life and live forever in a sinful state would have been intolerable.

May 18

The Grace of God

Ephesians 2: 4-10; Titus 2: 11-14

Golden Text:—"We believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved, even as they." Acts 15: 11.

Grace means unmerited favor. God's grace means His kindness toward us through Jesus Christ (Eph. 2: 7). It is not a question of merit on the part of the recipient, but alone upon the goodness and mercy of God. God's mercy does not go out to men because they are good, but because He is good and desires to bestow that goodness upon lost and ruined men in order to make them good.

I. The Grace of God in Salvation (Eph. 2: 4-10).

Grace brings salvation; it does not send it. Jesus Christ who is the embodiment of God's love and grace came bringing salvation with Him. In order to apprehend what the grace of God has done, observe:

1. Man's Natural State (Eph. 2: 1-3). In the natural man is found all that is opposed to the will and purpose of God. (1) Dead in trespasses and sins (v. 1). The supreme need of the dead man is life, therefore he must have life from without himself. The characteristics of one who is dead are that he is (a) without sensation—"past feeling" (4: 19). The natural man, therefore, can neither love God nor hate sin until he is made alive. (b) Without motion. Activity is the demonstration of life. So far as God and holiness are concerned, they are motionless. They are as helpless as Lazarus was in the grave. (2) Under the control of fleshly and worldly lusts (v. 2). The carnal nature holds sway over their lives. (3) Under the domination of Satan (v. 2). All unregenerated men and women are ruled by Satan. Since he is the god of this age (2 Cor. 4: 4), the prince of this world (John 12: 31), all who have not been freed by Christ are under the rule of Satan. (4) Under the condemnation and wrath of God (v. 3). Over all these—death, worldliness, disobedience, lust of the flesh, hangs the wrath of God.

2. Man's State by Grace (2: 4-10).

(1) He is alive in Christ (v. 5). The Holy Spirit lays hold upon men dead in sin and quickens them into life. (2) Raised up with Christ (v. 6). God's grace not only makes lost men alive, but raises them up with Christ. (3) Association with Christ in glory (v. 6). Christ's incarnation has so identified Him with the race that those who are saved are raised up to be with Him and shall ultimately share His glory. The actuating principle of God which moved Him to thus lay hold upon lost men is His love (v. 4). Man's salvation is due entirely to God's grace. Not only the salvation has been provided in grace, but the faith which appropriates it is God's gift (v. 8). Works as ground of salvation are absolutely excluded. (4) The purpose of God in the salvation of men (vv. 7-10). (a) It is to display His grace in the coming ages. The demonstration to the inhabitants of the sphere in which sin has not entered in the ages to come will be the transformation of dead and lost men and their exaltation with Christ. (b) To glorify God through their good works (v. 10; cf. Matt. 5: 16). While good works have absolutely no part in the salvation of men, God's purpose in saving them was that they might do good works. God foreordained that good works should be done. Instead of men being saved by good works, good works constitute the proof of their salvation.

II. The Grace of God in Right Living (Titus 2: 11-14).

Grace is not only essential to salvation, but essential to right living. It teaches saved men (1) to deny ungodliness (v. 12). The saved man has the divine nature. The grace which has saved him teaches him the necessity of a denial of everything that is opposed to God. (2) Worldly lusts (v. 12). The redeemed man is surrounded with the things of the world which have a downward pull upon him. (3) Sober living (v. 12). The grace of God teaches the saved man self-control; to have the reins of his nature well in hand and to rule with a strong hand. (4) Righteous living (v. 12).

The saved man should live uprightly with reference to those about him. (5) Godly living (v. 12). It teaches him to so live in this present world as to enable him to meet God and abide in His fellowship. (6) It teaches the right motive in living (vv. 13, 14). The blessed hope of the glorious return of the Lord Jesus Christ is the grand incentive to holy living in this present world. He that has it will keep himself pure (1 John 3: 3).

May 25

Repentance

Jonah 3: 1-10; Luke 13: 1-5; Acts 2: 37, 38.

Golden Text:—"Repent ye, and believe the gospel." Mark 1: 15.

I. The Repentance of the People of Nineveh (3: 1-10).

The following steps are noted in their conversion:

1. Hearing the Word of the Lord (vv. 1-4).

The Lord commanded Jonah to go to Nineveh, a great and wicked city, and there "preach the preaching" that He bade him. Jonah's runaway experience (see chaps. 1, 2) was such that he was now willing to obey God. His chastisement was severe, but by God's grace he was now ready to execute the commission. "Jonah arose and went unto Nineveh according to the word of the Lord" (v. 3). So great was the city of Nineveh that it required three days to compass it; that is, to visit its centers of activity. Jonah, coming from Palestine, doubtless entered the city from the south, and during an entire day going from center to center cried, "Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be overthrown" (v. 4). Since the king's palace seems to have been in the south part of the city, Jonah's message soon found its way to him. If every preacher would preach what God bids him there would be more cities turning to God.

2. Believing God (v. 5). They not only believed that God would visit judgment upon them, but believed in God, and put their trust in Him for mercy and salvation.

3. Repentance (vv. 5-9). Their penitence was shown (1) by proclaiming a fast and putting on sackcloth (vv. 5-7). These marks of humiliation were shown by all, from the king on his throne to the most humble person. (2) By crying mightily to God (v. 8). (3) By turning from their evil ways (v. 8). The final test of penitence is turning from sin.

4. By being accepted of God (v. 10). When the Ninevites turned from their evils God refrained from executing doom upon them. When men repent from their sins His wrath is turned aside. This is what is meant by God repenting.

II. The Necessity of Repentance (Luke 13: 1-5).

Repentance is necessary on the part of all, since all are sinners. "The wages of sin is death." (Rom. 6: 23). While God is unalterably opposed to sin He is infinitely gracious. His holy nature compels Him to cause judgment to fall upon those who will not turn from their sins to serve Him. Repentance is not merely a matter of privilege, but of absolute necessity. It is not a question as to how great a sinner one is as to whether he needs to repent, since God cannot look upon evil: "For thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look upon iniquity." (Hab. 1: 13). God commands men to repent (Acts 17: 30).

III. The Blessed Results of Repentance (Acts 2: 37, 38).

1. Remission of Sins. Remit means to send away. The one who repents is rid forever of his sins.

2. Gift of the Holy Spirit. When one is regenerated he not only is rid of his sins, but God, the Holy Spirit, takes up His abode in him. He is his teacher, guide, and defender.

June 1

Faith: What It Is and What It Does

Hebrews 11: 1-40; 12: 1, 2

Golden Text:—"Ye believe in God, believe also in me." John 14: 1.

In Hebrews, chapters 1-10, the grounds of faith are clearly set forth. In this lesson its nature and glorious triumphs are displayed.

I. The Nature of Faith (11: 1-3).

1. Faith is the eye of the soul, enabling it to see the invisible (v. 1). It is not merely intellectual assent to that which commends itself as being reasonable, but it is the soul's attitude toward God.

2. Faith seizes the things of the future and lives and walks in their power in the present (v. 1).

3. It enabled the "elders" to obtain a good report (v. 2). It became the dominant force in their lives.

4. Faith enables us to understand how the worlds were made (v. 3). No man was present, so the foundation for our knowledge is the Word of God.

II. The Triumphant Victories of Faith (11: 4-38).

1. Faith of the Antediluvian Saints (vv. 4-7).

As representative of this period three men are pointed out: (1) Abel (v. 4), who displayed his faith in his worship. He took his place before God as a sinner and offered a bloody sacrifice, thereby showing that he looked forward to Christ's atonement which is substitutionary—a life for a life. (2) Enoch, who displayed his faith in his walk with God (v. 5). (3) Noah, who by faith stood loyal to God in a time of universal apostasy and wickedness (v. 7). Noah's task was a stupendous and difficult one. He executed it in the face of many a sneer and taunt, but his faith carried him through.

2. Faith of the Hebrew Saints (vv. 8-38).

(1) Abraham (vv. 8-10, 17-19). Abraham went out not knowing whither he went, but he knew that the Lord had spoken and that was enough. By faith he offered up Isaac, believing that God was able to raise him up from the dead and fulfill His promise that in Isaac the promised seed should obtain. (2) Sarah through faith received strength to conceive seed when she was old, counting Him faithful who had promised (vv. 11, 12). (3) Jacob by faith pronounced a prophecy concerning Joseph's sons (v. 21). (4) Joseph by faith foresaw the entrance of his people into the promised land and made them swear to carry his bones there for burial, for even his body must not be left behind in the land of judgment and death (v. 22). (5) Moses (vv. 23-28). Faith in the hearts of his parents caused them to disregard the king's decree. Faith caused him to turn his back upon the honors of Egypt and identify himself with his enslaved brethren.

III. Faith's Grand Exemplar (12: 1, 2).

Christ taking upon Himself human nature and passing through the trials of life to a triumphant goal is the supreme example for us. Those who fix their eyes upon Him will (1) lay aside every weight. To run with success all burdens must be cast off. (2) Lay aside the sin which doth so easily beset us. (3) Run with patience the race set before us. (4) Look unto Jesus. Having Him as our example we will endure the cross. To follow Jesus means suffering and trials.

Practical and Doctrinal Applications of the Lessons

By Robert M. Russell

May 11

Sin and Its Consequences

Genesis 3: 1-13

"Now the serpent was more subtle" (v. 1). Satan, the great enemy of God and newly created humanity, made his approach through the serpent, the most subtle of animal life. Satan, who before his fall had been an archangel of excellent beauty and power (Ezek. 28: 13-15), now assumes an incarnation for approach to man.

"Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden?" (v. 1). Satan made his approach by casting suspicion on the goodness of God. His question implied that God had placed an unreasonable restriction upon men. This is his favorite method of temptation. He is always urging men to question God's goodness.

"The woman said . . . We may eat . . . but" (vv. 2, 3). Eve's answer was a vindication of the goodness of God and a clear statement of God's command, but there seems in it a minimizing of the penalty. God had said, "Of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." Eve modified this expression to a mere possibility of death. Failure to discern the full penalty of sin opens the way for evil.

"The serpent said, Ye shall not surely die" (v. 4). Satan was a liar from the beginning, and this is his first lie to humanity. These words introduce "The Heresy of Satan," that men can break law and escape the results. This is a prevalent heresy today.

"For God doth know" (v. 5). Satan's first step was to awaken suspicion of the divine goodness. Having found a listener he next boldly charges that God is standing in the way of the fullest liberty and highest development of man. He declared that God knew that the partaking of the forbidden fruit meant new knowledge and an exalted state. God was pictured as jealous.

"When the woman saw that the tree was good for food" (v. 6). "The lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the vainglory of life," as described in I John 2:16, was manifested in connection with the first sin. The forbidden tree seemed "good for food." It was "pleasant to the eyes" and a tree to be desired "to make one wise." When desires exceed the restrictions of God, the door is opened to sin.

"She took . . . and gave . . . and he did eat" (v. 6). The very essence of sin lies in its voluntary breaking of God's law in defiance of knowledge. Adam's sin was equal to if not greater than Eve's. It took Satan with all his cunning and guile to lure Eve. Adam was lured to sin by a woman. Adam's sin was not the result of chivalry. He followed the same path of evil desire with Eve.

"The eyes of them both were opened" (v. 7). A sense of nakedness and shame came to our first parents through sin. The narrative does not so much suggest the sense of shame in the presence of each other as a sense of guilt and nakedness before God.

"They heard the voice of the Lord God" (v. 8). God had been accustomed to make special manifestation of Himself in the cool of the day, doubtless in the morning and evening hours. Before their sin, Adam and Eve had welcomed this fellowship with God. Sin separates from God. We ever shun those we have wronged.

"Where art thou?" (v. 9). In this call there is the accent of divine Fatherhood seeking for the lost. Because God uttered the call, it was a prophecy of that search for humanity which would mean the incarnation and the cross.

"I heard thy voice . . . and I was afraid" (v. 10). The first recorded utterance of God to sinful man is "Where art thou?" The first reply of sinful man was, "I was afraid." But mark the wonders of redeeming grace. Paradise is to be restored. The last call of God in the gospel is "Surely I come quickly," and redeemed man answers without fear, "Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus" (Rev. 22:20).

"Who told thee? . . . Hast thou eaten?" (v. 11). God made inquiry about Adam's sin, not because He did not know all about it, but because He would lead to repentance.

"The man said, The woman whom thou gavest," etc. (vv. 12, 13). The sinner is always furnishing an alibi. Adam did not so much blame Eve as God for having furnished this form of companion. The woman placed the blame on the serpent. God entered into no conference with Satan on his motive, but proceeded to issue judgment. Judgment followed on all who sinned. All breakers of God's law must face judgment. Happy they who accept Christ and who have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous. I John 2:1.

May 18

The Grace of God

Ephesians 2: 4-10; Titus 2: 11-14

"But God who is rich in mercy" (v. 4). God is love. Love is not so much an attribute of God as the sum total of His attributes. Just as the prismatic colors of the rainbow blend into the white light, so do mercy and justice and all the other attributes of God blend into the white light of love. Mercy is love looking upon the guilty and planning redemption.

"Even when we were dead in sins" (v. 5). "God commendeth his love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us" (Rom. 5:8). Man's creation was the highest expression of the creative power of love. Redemption is that same love going out to the unworthy. Eternity only will reveal the wonder of this love, directed not simply toward this little earth which floats like a grain of sand in the ocean of universal space, but to the infinitesimal specks upon it.

"Hath raised us up together" (v. 6). God's movement of grace toward men was through Christ. Men because "in Adam" became sinners, but by being in Christ become saints. The same power that caused the resurrection of Jesus "hath quickened us together with Christ" and in the divine purpose has raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus. All that God will do for us is already an accomplishment in His holy purpose. In the vision of God, we are already in the heavens.

"That in the ages to come, he might show the exceeding riches of his grace" (v. 7). God has an unending purpose of grace toward believers. Men are redeemed that God may throughout the unmeasured ages bestow His kindness upon them. What man's glory and joy will be through God's bestowments the loftiest imaginations cannot conceive.

"By grace are ye saved through faith . . . it is the gift of God" (v. 8). All that concerns salvation is through the grace of God. Grace furnishes pardon. Grace furnishes new life for the soul dead in trespasses and in sin. While faith appropriates the gift of God, the soul is vitalized for the act of faith by the gracious inworking of the Holy Spirit.

"Not of works, lest any man should boast" (v. 9). Salvation produces good works, but good works do not produce salvation. The believer works out his own salvation with fear and trembling, because it is God that worketh in him, both to will and to work, for His good pleasure.

"We are his workmanship" (v. 10). The believer is not a self-production, but the workmanship of God. Man cannot boast himself on account of his first birth and natural endowments; neither can he boast of his new birth and spiritual endowments. Salvation is an attainment not an attainment. "What have we that we have not received?"

"For the grace of God . . . hath appeared to all men" (v. 11). Salvation is by revelation. God spoke the word of truth to the fathers, but later the truth was incarnate in Jesus Christ.

"Denying ungodliness and worldly lusts" (v. 12). Christian living has a negative side. Methods of thought and methods of conduct that leave out God are to be denied. The desires of the flesh that would pass over law must be denied.

"We should live soberly, righteously and godly" (v. 12). The true life is to be lived soberly as regards our estimate of self and care of self. It is to be lived righteously as regards all our relations to others. It is to have a godly aspect in this present world, or a recognition that earth is overarched by heaven, and that God is over all.

"Looking for that blessed hope" (v. 13). That the believer is to live soberly, righteously and godly, is admitted by all, but many seem to forget that the believer should live "LOOKING." Looking for the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ, is the crowning of all our hopes. The coming of our Lord should be restored to its true place in creed and thought. Our Lord would purify unto Himself a peculiar people zealous of good works. The hope of His appearing is a source of purity. "Every one that hath this hope set on him purifieth himself even as he is pure" (1 John 3:3).

May 25

Repentance

Jonah 3:1-10

"The word of the Lord came unto Jonah the second time" (v. 1). God is patient in His dealings with His children. Jonah's submarine voyage had made him ready for obedience, and so God spake again. God was gracious with Paul, following him in mercy until in full surrender the apostle became His messenger to the ends of the earth.

"Arise, go . . . preach" (v. 2). God told Jonah where to go and bade him preach the preaching that He would furnish. This is still true of God's servants. He has our places picked for us and the message to be given is His. He who listens will get both God's directions and His message.

"Now Nineveh was an exceeding great city" (v. 3). The greatness of Nineveh was not confined to its walls and streets and population. It was great in wickedness and the sorrow that goes with sin. A great city is always a pathetic thing, as thoughts turn to its evils and sorrows and wretchedness. Jesus wept over Jerusalem. The great cities of the modern world appeal to the pity of God.

"Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be overthrown" (v. 4). God does not execute His judgments without warning men. Of the antediluvian world, God said, "My spirit shall not always strive with man . . . yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years." God gave the neighbors of Noah one hundred twenty years of grace, or warning, while to Nineveh He gave but forty days as a space for repentance. Before God's final judgments smite the world there will be plenty of warning for those who have a disposition to heed.

"The people of Nineveh believed God" (v. 5). All true repentance starts with believing God, or an act of the intellect. It is followed by sorrow for sin, which means the movement of the emotions; then come deeds meet for repentance, involving exercise of the will. The inhabitants of Nineveh went through all these processes.

"The king of Nineveh arose and laid aside his robe" (v. 6). All national repentance must involve the thought and action of political leaders. The poor cannot repent for the rich, nor the rich for the poor. National sins are the aggregate of individual sins, and national repentance is the aggregation of individual repentance. Salvation in its social form must ultimately deal with the individual.

"He caused it to be proclaimed and published" (v. 7). A proclamation from the throne was an aid for universal repentance. Happy that land whose political leaders have consciousness of the spiritual.

"Let them turn every one from his evil way" (v. 8). Turning from sin is the crux of repentance. Recognizing sin and sorrowing for sin are good points of preparation for repentance, but until the will acts, nothing has been truly accomplished. God is not so much concerned about our sorrow for wrong-doing as about our turning from our evil way.

"Who can tell if God will turn and repent" (vv. 9, 10). Every herald of the gospel of Christ can tell that God will turn from His purpose of destruction when the sinning soul turns from the way of death. This is the story of God's attitude both in the Old and the New Testaments. God's challenge is, "Have I any pleasure at all that the wicked should die, saith the Lord God: and not that he should return from his ways and live?" God's ways are just and merciful. Hell is at the end of the road for the wicked, but heaven's door stands open for him who takes the path of repentance.

June 1

Faith, What It Is and What It Does

Hebrews 11:1-10; 12:1, 2

"Now faith is the substance of things hoped for" (v. 1). Weymouth gives an illuminating translation: "Now faith is a well grounded assurance of that for which we hope, and a conviction of the reality of things which we do not see." Faith always has to do with fact. When we believe the things that in the long ago entered into world history, we have what is called historic faith. Faith has quite as large a place in science and business as it has in religion. Neptune was discovered when a scientist, accepting suggestions that came through the variations of planetary orbs, pointed his telescope where a new planet ought to be, and found it. Edison and Marconi have made their discoveries through scientific faith, believing that certain things would come to pass under certain conditions, and in faith arranging these conditions. The spring fields have been plowed in faith. Business men are laying in next winter's stock of goods in faith. All Liberty Bonds are faith bonds—faith in the future of our government.

"For by it the elders obtained a good report" (v. 2). This might be rendered "For by it the saints of old won God's approval." The chapter before us is largely a confirmation of this fact.

"Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God" (v. 3). Reason forces the decision that the material universe with its change and progress had a beginning. The Scriptures do not assert that God made all things from nothing, but only that "what is seen" does not owe its existence to that which is visible. Modern chemical science points to the conclusion that all matter is a form of force. The universe may well be viewed as the projected energy of God.

"By faith Abel offered unto God" (v. 4). Abel's acceptance with God was the result of a simple faith that accepted divine suggestion and command as to the form of his offering. Abel brought a lamb to God's altar, the emblem of vicarious sacrifice. Cain, with his self-conceit, brought of the fruits of the field—a bloodless offering, and stands as type of the moralist who would stand before God on his own merits.

"By faith Enoch was translated" (v. 5). God gave to each great historic period of world-life a demonstration, or proof, of immortality. In the antediluvian age, it was Enoch. In the subsequent age it was Elijah. Now for all time it is the risen Christ. Men believed in the translation of Enoch to an upper world, because he lived with the sunshine of another world in his face. When Enoch was missing, there was but one explanation—God took him. In the thought of the old colored minister, he walked every day with God, and one evening God said "Enoch, come home with me," and he went.

"Without faith it is impossible to please him" (v. 6). There is nothing more reasonable than this assertion, for no man can have dealings with God without believing that He is, and no one can heartily and hopefully obey the divine commands without believing that God is a rewarder of those who earnestly try to find Him.

"By faith Noah being warned of God . . . prepared an ark" (v. 7). Noah stands out as a model for Christian faith. Noah was "divinely taught about things as yet unseen" and reverently gave heed. Ancient science had not progressed far enough to know that a great watery canopy swung above the earth, whose fall would bring the last glacial epoch now known to science. But God knew about it, and God told Noah. There is much in the future which physical science does not reveal, but the gospel has revealed that "God has appointed a day in which he will judge the inhabited earth in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead" (Acts 17:31). The man who imitates Noah will accept God's word on this.

Noah also took God's way of safety. He built an ark which modern ship-engineering declares to have been of the best model for steadiness and capacity. The ark method if accepted by everybody would have secured the safety of all, just as the Christ method of salvation is offered all men. Nothing less than the ark method would have answered against the tides of the flood; nothing less than shelter in the heart of God through Christ will avail when the floods of judgment come. Noah obeyed God as to the time of entering the ark. He did not protest that his feelings were not warm enough, and lean against a tree outside the ark until the flood surged about him. He took God's word and entered. The man who obeys God when He hears Him say, "Now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation" will have emotion enough in the day of God's final judgment.

"By faith Abraham when he was called . . . went out" (vv. 8-10). Abraham and faith are almost synonymous terms. From first to last, Abraham walked by faith. He left his native land not knowing whither he went, but knowing that God was leading. He received the promise of a posterity, and yet waited twenty years before hearing child laughter in his tent. He looked at the stars and thought of his posterity. He lifted the knife above the heart of Isaac, allowing God to solve the problem of how Isaac could burn on the altar and still become the channel of a promised posterity. He who follows Abraham in such faith will find divine provision on the mountain peaks of trial and will find a new name for the camping grounds, even "Jehovah-Jireh"—Jehovah will provide.

"Wherefore seeing . . . let us" (vv. 1,2). The pathway of faith is not a lonely one. He who runs it now does not see from the distance simply some lone runner, but "a cloud of witnesses." Herein lies encouragement to prepare for the race by laying aside every weight and the sin that so readily entangles our feet. There is also the call for patient endurance, for the race may be long. The true method of running is by "simply fixing our gaze upon Jesus, our Prince-leader in the faith, who will also award us the prize." His inspiration can be ours: "He for the sake of the joy which lay before him, patiently endured the cross, looking with contempt upon its shame, and afterwards seated himself where he still sits—at the right hand of the throne of God."

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPICS

(Continued from page 660.)

nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world." Two natures are here mentioned, the divine nature and the nature that is corrupt. From this corrupt nature we are delivered, and made partakers of a new nature through the promises. It is through the promises that the Spirit woos and wins us to the Saviour and the power of the new life. This new life makes us capable to comprehend and love God's ways and will. The old life is not capable of this. We develop the qualities with which we come into the world. They inhere in a nature received at birth. We cannot create new qualities, the germ must be born in us. This is the reason why we must be "born again" and become partakers of a divine nature. The promises are intended to lead us to God from whom this new life is received. All Christlike qualities are enfolded in this new life. Their perfect unfolding is hindered by the old life, and this gives rise to the inner conflict that Christians everywhere experience. In this conflict we again need other promises, such as Romans 6:14; 8:2,32, 37-39. These are given for our encouragement, instruction and comfort. Let us not neglect them.

ROMAN CATHOLICS OPPOSE PROHIBITION

In a recent statement, William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, says that a Roman Catholic priest, John F. Belford, made the following statements as to the proposed constitutional amendment touching the prohibition of intoxicating liquors:

1. "It is an unjust law. No one is bound to obey it. No one should have the least scruple about evading it, breaking it or defying it."

2. "They (the prohibitionists) hired hundreds of spies, detectives and investigators, put them on the track of every legislator who would not support their iniquitous measure. Then when they had crawled through the sewers and strained the cesspools for scandal they produced their vile evidence and bade the victim deliver his vote or accept the infamy of exposure."

Mr. Anderson calls on Cardinal Gibbons to produce proof of certain charges that he made against the prohibition amendment, or to admit that he spoke without knowledge, or that he was misquoting, or tell exactly what he said.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

The American Bible Society sent the following letter to President Wilson at the Peace Table.

"Inasmuch as there are numerous parts of the world where, under various exercises of authority, religious freedom does not exist, and where Christian missionaries and Bible distributors cannot engage in their work, the American Bible Society respectfully urges the representatives of the nations about to convene in Paris to establish the foundations of, and provide the means for, ensuring permanent peace, to further their great object by making ample provision for securing and maintaining complete religious freedom throughout the world. We would not restrict this freedom in any manner so as to exclude any creed or profession of faith. We believe that no other foundation can be laid than that which is laid in the Holy Scriptures known as the Christian Bible, but we would leave all peoples free to follow God's leadings in their comprehension of His truth."

At the Great Lakes congress for a league of nations, a resolution was offered by a delegate which incorporated the phrase "with devotion to our historic Christian ideals," declaring American institutions essentially Christian and America a nation of Christian ideals. This was bitterly opposed by a Jewish rabbi, but when the vote was taken, the resolution was adopted by one hundred sixty-six to one hundred and thirty-eight. Former President Taft is reported to have said that the action was ill-advised and that if he had been present, he would have tried to stop it.

Missionary Department

More accessions to the Christian church are reported from Siam in the past five years than during the entire preceding fifty years.

More than one-half of the human race can neither read nor write a word of any language.

Only five out of every one hundred people in China are able to read.

There is hope today for a simplified writing. China is beginning to see that with the handicap of the sacred character, it will be hopelessly out-distanced by the world. Many missionaries, and now the government, are working on the problem of a syllabic writing. The difficulty is, of course, to indicate the thousands of identical sounds in phonetic syllables and make them as well understood as the ideograph is. Distinct progress has been made and the missionaries will have initiated an unmeasured blessing for the one-fourth of the people of the world.

Recently there has developed within the Chinese church a definite effort to carry the gospel into the unreached provinces of their country. At a personal workers' conference held last August in Kuling, a managing committee was appointed which has since increased to 84 members representing every part of China. Considerable publicity has been given the enterprise. . . . One worker collected and sent in over one thousand dollars. This is distinctly a Chinese movement, only Chinese being on the committee.

The first efforts are to converge on Yunnan, the southwestern most province adjoining Tibet, 146,000 square miles in area, possessing great mineral wealth, an ideal climate, and a population of 13,000,000. The people of this province are ignorant and unevangelized.

Before the war the German missions had 2,400 missionaries (including missionaries' wives) in non-Christian lands. They employed 9,000 native helpers, had 240,000 in all grades in their schools and 720,000 baptized Christians. The annual income of these Societies was $2,250,000. Almost the entire number have been withdrawn, and the work they carried on (mostly in British and German territory), must be taken up by others. Europe cannot now give much aid; hence the responsibility to care for this work rests with the missionary societies of North America.

It is estimated that there are 10,000 lepers in Siam. They are feared, hated, and cursed, are turned out from their homes by their families who do not know how to take care of them. They wander up and down the roads, begging and utterly hopeless in their dire misery. The North Siam Mission has established a leper asylum at Chiengmai into which 200 of these lepers have been gathered.

The China Inland Mission has a staff of 1,051 missionaries (including wives and associate members). There are also over 3,500 native helpers, some of whom are supported from mission funds and others provided for by themselves or by native contributions. This mission also maintains 1,600 stations and out stations manned by missionaries or native workers. There were 5,080 baptisms during 1917. There are now 44,500 communicants.

PRAYER AND MISSIONS

"The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." James 5:16.

"There are five outlets of power—through our life, our lips, our service, our money, our prayer. And by all odds the greatest of these is the outlet through prayer. . . . The greatest thing anyone can do for God and for man is to pray."—S. D. Gordon.

"The church has not yet discovered, still less begun to realize, the limitless possibilities of intercession. . . . The evangelization of the world is not primarily a matter of numbers, wealth, knowledge and strategy, but of the unhindered working of the Spirit of God. Such divine manifestation has been associated invariably with prayer."—John R. Mott.

"It is much more difficult to pray for missions than to give to them. We can only really pray for missions if we habitually lead a life of prayer; and a life of prayer can only be led if we have entered into a life of communion with God."—Prof. Warneck of Halle.

"When the Church sets itself to pray with the same seriousness and strength of purpose that it has devoted to other forms of Christian effort it will see the kingdom of God come with power."

Practical and Perplexing Questions

Answered by the Editors

Question: A lecture was given here recently in which it was said that the last part of the Lord's Prayer, "For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory forever, Amen," did not belong to it, or that the best scholars were agreed that it was not included in the best manuscripts. Will you please tell me if this is true and why Luke left it out.

Answer: By turning to the American Revised Version of the New Testament, Matthew 6, you will find that this conclusion of the Lord's Prayer is not in the text, but is supplied in the margin, with the remark that while many ancient manuscripts include it, the majority do not.

The scholarship of the Committee of Revision must be admitted, and doubtless there is good reason for supposing that these concluding words may not have been in the original manuscripts of Matthew's Gospel. We should not be dogmatic in the matter. It should be noted that while the conclusion to the Lord's Prayer may seem added to the original manuscripts, it is true, and all the facts stated are borne out by other Scriptures.

However, there is no need for the disturbance of our faith. The true view of all Bible inspiration does not claim that all versions are inspired, but that the original and autograph manuscripts of the books were verbally inspired. While we might wish it otherwise, the fact remains that certain verses in the Authorized Version of the Bible have been rightly omitted from the Revised Version.

This is pre-eminently true of John 5:4. Verse 4 does not appear in the Revision; and when we ask why, the answer is here. It did not occur in the original manuscripts, but some early copyist thought the moving of the water should be explained, and so put in a marginal note saying, "For an angel of the Lord went down at certain seasons of the year into the pool and troubled the water." This marginal reference would appear in following copies. Then later some copyist concluded to incorporate the marginal reading in the text, so that it came down to us in that way.

We have a similar case of interpolation in 1 John 5:7. This verse, "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word and the Holy Ghost. These three are one." is not found in the Revised Version; and therefore has not the support of the most reliable manuscripts. The doctrine, however, is true, and found its way into the text in much the same way as the verse in John 5.

Regarding all such matters, Christian scholarship must be both honest and fearless. We cannot claim that our Authorized Version of the Bible is without any error of translation; nor can we claim that even the Revised Version is absolutely in accord with original manuscripts; but we can claim that all variations are incidental, and that not a single vital doctrine of salvation is either endangered or impaired by any of the text variations called in question.

H. M. G., Bisbee, N. D. There is no absolute rule governing the application of the term "Thy Kingdom" to the future, as the following brief observation of the passages which you have adduced will show:

In all of these passages the Kingdom of God is considered from the moral angle. From the present aspect Luke 9:60 inculcates individual responsibility and Matthew 6:33 and Mark 12:34 give us individual privilege. Matthew 21:43 retrospectively uncovers national responsibility, and Luke 13:18 presents the mystery phase of national and individual privilege and responsibility, while Luke 17:21 gives national and individual privilege in relation to the past, present and future.

The subject is too extensive for treatment here. The Scofield Reference Bible, page 1003, shows five respects in which the Kingdom of God is to be distinguished from the Kingdom of heaven, but for fuller information see "Israel and the Church" by Dr. James H. Brookes. Both of these books can be secured through The Bible Institute Colportage Association, 822 N. LaSalle Street, Chicago.

A. A. J., Corwith, Ia.: Our advice is that you talk with the young pastor and get his viewpoint more clearly. He may not have meant to disparage the deity of our Lord, but only to dwell on the human side of His life.

As to your second question we do not think that "Kingdom of God" and "Kingdom of heaven" are used interchangeably in the Bible. The former is the broader expression of the two and seems to include the latter, but the two are not identical.

Reason, too late perhaps, may convince you of the folly of misspending time.

Nothing but harmony, honesty, industry, and frugality are necessary to make us a great and happy nation.

For Sermon and Scrap Book

WHEN TO CRITICIZE

When your heart is warm with love,
Even for your enemies;
When your words come from above,
Not from where the venom is;
When you see the man entire,
Not alone the faults he has;
Find a somewhat to admire
Underneath the paltry mass—
Not till then, if you are wise,
Will you dare to criticize.

When you see the thing that's wrong,
And—a way to better it—
Push a noble cause along,
Not with censure fetter it;
When your purpose is to build,
Not to tear the building down,
Use the sunshine that will gild,
Not the dark and dismal frown—
Not till then, if you are wise,
Will you dare to criticize.

—A. R. Wells.

THE PROGRESS OF FAITH

1. No faith, Mark 4: 40.
2. Little faith, Matt. 6: 30.
3. Weak faith, Rom. 4: 19.
4. Increased faith, Luke 17: 5.
5. Growing faith, 2 Thess. 1: 3.
6. Strong faith, Rom. 4: 20.
7. Great faith, Matt. 15: 28.

—T. B.

"LOOKING UNTO JESUS"

(Heb. 12: 2)

- Looking unto Jesus for salvation, Matt. 1: 21;
Heb. 7: 25.
Looking unto Jesus for daily strength, 2 Cor.
12: 9, 10, R. V.
Looking unto Jesus for support, Ps. 4: 22.
Looking unto Jesus for security, Isa. 25: 4;
1 Sam. 22: 23.
Looking unto Jesus for succor, Heb. 2: 18.
Looking unto Jesus for supply, Phil. 4: 19.

—R. T.

CHRIST'S SECOND COMING ILLUSTRATED IN SCRIPTURE

Mark 6: 46-50

We shall not only lay ourselves open to error, but to ridicule, if we do not wisely discriminate between "types" and "illustrations" of truth. Some have gone to great excesses in typical teaching, and so have not helped, but hindered, the true understanding of God's Word. In the passage before us we have not a "type" of the Lord's return, but a very full and beautiful illustration of it.

Seven points are here discernible:

1. His departure to, and intercessory work in heaven.
"He departed into a mountain to pray."
2. The church meanwhile among the nations.
"The ship was in the midst of the sea."
3. His continual observation of us from on high.
"He saw them toiling in rowing; for the wind was contrary unto them."
4. His return for His people.
"He cometh unto them."
5. The time of His return.
"About the fourth watch of the night."
6. The whole church sees Him, but some fear.
"They all saw him."
7. He speaks to them the word of perfect peace.
"He saith unto them, Be of good cheer, it is I; be not afraid."

—W. Graham Scroggie.

CERTAINTY OF DEATH

"We must needs die, and are as water spilt on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again."—2 Sam. 14: 14.

I. Death Is Certain.

Death stares us in the face upon all sides. The fields the other day were green; now they are brown. So God teaches in His word, "All flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away" (1 Pet. 1: 24).

II. Death Is Often Sudden.

Read the columns of the newspapers, and notice how many have been fairly hurled into eternity. How few really expect death when it comes!

"Ye know not what shall be tomorrow."

III. Death Ends All.

"Water spilt on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again."

Dives was told of a great gulf which was fixed. The foolish virgins found the door shut for all eternity.

"It is appointed unto man once to die, but after this the judgment" (Heb. 9: 27).

IV. A Preparation Is Necessary.

All realize this as far as this world goes, but few seem to realize its importance when the next world is taken into consideration.

Because we are strong it seems to us as if we would live always.

V. How We Are to Make This Preparation.

"I am the way, the truth and the life; no man cometh unto the Father but by me" (John 14: 6). Ps. 23: 4; 1 Cor. 15: 55.

—Edwin Locke.

THE CALLED OF GOD

1 Peter 2: 9, 10

- I. What We Are as the Called of God.
 1. A chosen generation.
 2. A royal priesthood.
 3. A holy nation.
 4. A peculiar people.
- II. Why We Are the Called of God.

To show forth His praises.
- III. What Were We Before God Called Us?
 1. In darkness.
 2. Not a people.
 3. Without mercy.
- IV. What We Should Be as the Called of God.
 1. Steadfast.
 2. Obedient.
 3. Holy.

—W. R.

NO NIGHT THERE

"And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light."—Rev. 22: 5.

Our text implies—

I. No More Sleep.

Some one might object and say there is no cause for satisfaction in this. The busy man, he would say, enjoys sleep. It is his refreshment after the labors of the day. Heaven would be none the better for having no time of rest. We answer, in heaven there will be nothing to sleep, either enjoyable or necessary. There will be no more fatigue. Yet, without sleep, in heaven "the weary are at rest."

II. No More Sleeplessness.

Few things in life are so unpleasant as lying awake at night. It is one of the things that "make night hideous." In heaven there will be no sleeplessness, because there will be none of the ills which cause it; e. g., (1) No sickness or sorrow. (2) No anxiety. (3) No anticipation of evil.

III. No More Fear.

Timid people are frightened most easily at night. Men and women have been found dead after a night's confinement in a dark and lonely place. Even good people are nervous and timid at night. Bad people are notably so. The conscience is an unpleasant companion in the dark. In heaven there will be no more fear.

IV. No More Sin.

There is more sin of every kind committed at night than at any other time. "Men love darkness rather than light, because their deeds are evil" (John 3: 19). "They that be drunken are drunken in the night" (1 Thess. 5: 7).

In the land of eternal day "there shall in no wise enter anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie: but they that are written in the Lamb's book of life." (Rev. 21: 27.) In heaven there shall be no more sin.

—F. St. John Corbett.

AN IMAGINARY LETTER

(What Paul might have written, but, thank God, did not!)

"Dear Sir and Brother:

"Doubtless you recall the invitation you extended me to come over to Macedonia and help the people of that section. You will pardon me for saying that I am somewhat surprised that you should expect a man of my standing in the church to seriously consider a call on such meager information. There are a number of things I would like to learn before giving you my decision, and I would appreciate your dropping me a line, addressing me at Troas.

"First of all, I would like to know if Macedonia is a circuit or a station. This is important as I have been told that once a man begins on a circuit, it is well nigh impossible to secure employment in station work. If Macedonia embraces more than one preaching place I may as well tell you frankly that I cannot think of accepting the call.

"There is another important item that you overlooked in your brief and somewhat sudden invitation. No mention was made to the salary I should receive. While it is true that I am not preaching for money, there are certain things that need to be taken into account. I have been through a long and expensive training; in fact, I may say with pardonable pride, that I am a Sanhedrin man—the only one in the ministry today.

"The day is past when you may expect a man to rush into a new field without some idea of the support he is to receive. I have worked myself up to a good position in the Asiatic field, and to take a drop and lose my grade would be a serious matter. Nor can I afford to swap 'dollar for dollar,' as the saying is among the apostles.

"Kindly get the good Macedonian brethren together, and see what you can do in the way of support. You have told me nothing beyond the implication that the place needs help. What are the social advantages? Is the church well organized?

"I recently had a fine offer to return to Damascus at an increase of salary, and am told that I made a very favorable impression on the church at Jerusalem. If it will help the board at Macedonia, you might mention these facts in Macedonia, and also that some of the brethren in Judea have been heard to say that if I keep on, in a few years I may have anything in the gift of the church.

"For recommendations, write to Rev. Simon Peter, D. D., Jerusalem. I will say that I am a first-class mixer, and especially strong on argumentative preaching.

"Solicitously yours,
"PAUL, THE APOSTLE."

—Vacancy and Supply.

HOW THEY KILLED THE CHURCH AT PODUNK HOLLOW

Deacon Rich wasn't particular how God's house looked, inside or out, but had to have everything up to date around his own home.

Brother Howler always insisted on the adoption of his views on all questions brought up before the church, and never gave in for the majority. "The old guard dies but never surrenders," was a favorite quotation of his.

Brother Fuss never attended Sunday-school. However, he admitted that it might be all right for little children, and old women of both sexes.

Sister Scold never sent her pastor word when she was sick; wasn't he supposed to find out himself? But for weeks afterward, Sister Scold would tell all the neighbors how her pastor, mind you, neglected her during her illness.

Brother Grumpy never encouraged his pastor, Dr. Faithful, but was constantly speaking of the good doctor's faults to others. No sermon ever helped Brother Grumpy, and if it had he wouldn't let the preacher know it for fear it would give him a swelled head.

Brother Selfish never tried to bring any one to church with him. He wasn't taking any chances on overcrowding the edifice.

Brother Ichabod never showed his face inside the door—unless it was to attend a funeral.

If Brother Slack did come he was sure to come late.

If too wet or too dry, too hot or too cold, Brother Easyman wouldn't even think of coming.

Whenever Brother Touchy saw any one taking hold and helping carry on any of the church work, he was sure to find fault and accuse them of trying to show off.

Brother Gloomy generally stayed away from prayermeeting, but when he did come always had a frown on his face, and was as silent as the sphinx.

Brother Spout never prayed for his pastor or fellow-members. Perhaps he thought it might hurt them.

Sister Pride treated the pastor very coldly if he didn't call at her home as often as she thought he should. Of course, the pastor had nothing particular to do and could have called oftener!

If a stranger showed her face in the congregation Sister Straightlace was careful not to shake hands with her or invite her to come again.

Brother M. T. Head refused to subscribe for the denominational paper. He found it cheaper to borrow his neighbor's copy.

Brother Pope wanted to run the church. The present church bosses had been elected by the devil, and a change was needed!

Brother Lazy believed in letting the pastor do all the work. Wasn't that what they hired him for?

Brother Tightwad, the treasurer, saw to it that the pastor's salary was always behind. He believed that a preacher ought to board in heaven even though he had to live on the earth.

Brother Fuss, one of the stewards, was always growling about foreign missions. "I don't believe in 'em, and I will not give to 'em," was his slogan.

Sister Faintheart always occupied one of the rear seats. She wouldn't go up front for fear people might think she was conceited.

Sister Fearful never joined in while the congregation was singing. She was afraid she would be heard if she opened her mouth.

Brother Crusty made a practice of bringing his telescope to the services. No, he wasn't interested in the stars of the heavens, but in the faults of heaven's ambassador. Brother Crusty didn't pose as a carping critic, but he had made a study of elocution and knew something about homiletics, so naturally he was the proper person to diagnose the faults of the pastor, and instruct the people as to what a sermon should be and how it should be delivered.

Brother Smallman never spoke to any individual about Christ. Why should he do personal work? Didn't he help pay a pastor?

Brother Stingy always left his pocketbook at home. However, he was willing his fellow members should give as much as they pleased to the benevolence of the church. Nothing mean about him. No, sir!

When he thought everything was working harmoniously, Brother Stinger would try to "start something"—and he generally succeeded. He didn't believe in letting the church go to the "bow-wows," and die of dry rot! He was a regular Samson. You remember Samson killed a thousand Philistines with the jawbone of an ass. Well, in every church row since then, the bone of contention has been the jawbone. And Brother Stinger surely had some jawbone.

Did they kill the church? Sure! The society was disorganized, and the edifice turned into a coffin manufactory. And in their tomorrow the persons responsible for the death of this local church must stand and give an account of the deeds done in the body.—R. L. Jones, in Herald of Holiness.

GOD IS FAITHFUL

1 Cor. 10: 13

"God is faithful"—not, He has been;
Not, He "will be"—both are true;
But today, in this sore trial,
"God is faithful" now to you!

—M. M. D.

The Evangelistic Field

SUGGESTIONS TO OUR CORRESPONDENTS

Evangelists and other Christian workers reporting items or contributing any matter for this department will please arrange to have copy reach the magazine not later than the 10th of the month preceding date of issue.

"The Evangelistic Field" department is intended for news in concise reports of revival meetings, soul-winning campaigns, and a record of evangelistic work in general. We do not invite statements eulogizing the leaders or participants in this line of work, nor can we promise to print them.—Editors.

H. Evan McKinley writes from London, Ky.: "My last three revivals were very successful, with houses too small for the audiences."

George Bennard conducted a revival meeting at the Methodist church, Wakefield, Neb., the past month, assisting Rev. Frank Williams.

James O. Duffey closed a three weeks meeting in the United Evangelical church at Kearney, Neb., March 23, with 60 conversions and many reconsecrations.

John Imrie, just returned from France, reports a meeting commencing March 30 at Charleston, W. Va., with Rev. S. A. Sheriff. Mrs. Imrie accompanies at the piano.

Singing Evangelist C. B. Brooks assisted the Rev. L. P. Kirk in a meeting in March at Scarborough, W. Va. Over 150 conversions was the result of the meeting, besides the churches of the town revived.

The McAuley Water Street Mission, New York City, has issued its Forty-sixth Annual Report, made up of a number of interesting testimonies, and a general report for the year, including a budget of $6,000.

Rev. Norman H. Camp gave four popular lectures on Bible prophesy at the West Side Auditorium, Chicago, March 23-April 13, on "The Time of The End" from the Book of Daniel, illustrated on blackboard and chart.

Joseph W. F. Hakes reports great blessing in his meeting at Brunswick, N. J. There were a number of souls saved and some family altars started. He writes: "I had the great privilege of preaching the second coming in that section."

The Lindgren-Erwin Party just closed a splendid meeting in Humboldt, Ia., with nearly 150 conversions. This point was founded by Unitarians and that atmosphere is still strong there. They report a splendid start at Pomeroy.

I. E. Honeywell is engaged in evangelistic work among the soldiers in France. He is stationed at 12 Rue d' Aguesseau, Paris branch, Y. M. C. A.

The John E. Brown Evangelistic Party is to spend the month of April in union tabernacle work, Long Beach, Calif. and the months of May and June in a city wide campaign in which all of the churches are united, in Vancouver, B. C.

Willett S. Colegrove with T. J. Bittikofer closed a fine meeting at Ovid, Mich., a large crowd of young people having come into the kingdom. Several of them consecrated their lives to the service, and two plan soon to go to The Moody Bible Institute.

Loren G. Jones received a cablegram calling him for special work in Paris under the Y. M. C. A. He will return September 1, in time to open a union campaign in Charlotte, N. C., with Rev. "Bob" Jones with whom he has been associated for the past four years.

Rev. C. H. Jack Linn closed a splendid meeting at Brownell, Kan., and later was at Osmond, Neb. He is now at Oregon, Wis. He expects to fill engagements in Arkansas and the South this summer. Mrs. Linn accompanies Mr. Linn as soloist and lecturer to women and girls.

H. P. Dunlop and wife report a work of grace in a meeting in the Presbyterian church at Brookfield, Mo., with some interesting conversions. The pastor reports, as a result of his meeting, an increase of fifty per cent in the Sunday-school, and scores brought into the church.

C. S. Thompson writes from Fostoria, O.: "Closed a wonderful work of grace with Rev. E. H. Wilson, U. B. Church, Willard, O., February 23. Two hundred and fifty were saved and the church wonderfully quickened. Began with Rev. C. W. May February 25 and closed March 16; forty-three saved to date."

Ray G. Swartzbaugh writes saying the Lord has been using him in a wonderful way. For the month of March he was with the First Presbyterian Church, Kansas City, Kan. He was engaged for April with the Admiral Methodist Church, Kansas City, Mo., and for May at the Grand View Methodist Church, Kansas City, Kan.

S. D. Goodale writes: "We closed a splendid meeting at Pickering, Mo. I held a meeting at this place five years ago. The meeting this time was not as far reaching in visible results as the first one, but in some ways was better than before. We begin our next meeting in Gresham, Neb. We have been shut out most of the winter on account of the epidemic, but the work is opening now."

The Rayburn-Wickland Evangelistic Party closed their second campaign of 1919 at Reedsburg, Wis., March 12. The campaign proved a great blessing to the churches there. Three hundred and fifty-three cards were signed by those who professed Christ and several men above seventy-five years of age were among those who for the first time confessed Christ. The next campaign opened at Richland Center, Wis., March 30.

George D. Enns and A. H. Crombie report a three weeks campaign in Michigan City, N. D., which was greatly blessed. They had 45 decisions and a good number of reconsecrations. The pastor, Rev. J. C. Peters was a former student at the Institute. They are now in meetings in Niagara and on the second night had the house nearly filled. They write: "We are expecting great things from God. Pray for us and our work."

Evangelist H. D. Kennedy held a meeting during March in Oshawa, Ont., Can. Large crowds attended; fully 200 professed conversion. Many family altars were set up and several broken family circles united. On March 23, Mr. Kennedy opened at Consecon, Ont. At the first altar call 32 persons sought the Lord. During June and July he expects to hold a union tent campaign in Peterboro, Ont.; Mr. G. W. Mulligan will conduct the singing.

Following his work in the military cantonments and stations of Australia, New Zealand and the United States, Dr. John H. Elliott has entered upon his duties as acting pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian Church of Atlanta, Ga., in the absence of the regular pastor, Dr. Richard Orme Flinn who has gone over to France under the Y. M. C. A. for a special evangelistic work among our soldiers. This church is one of the most aggressive churches of Atlanta.

E. R. Hermiston closed a helpful revival service at Chico, Calif., and 50 made public confession. At the time of writing he was in a meeting at Red Bluff, Calif.; and 20 had already come forward and all denominations were coming into the meeting. He writes: "We visited this place fifteen years ago and had sweeping revivals all along the line; it was here that Harry Mainard the saloon keeper and prize fighter was converted and the saloons were closed."

H. L. Fleming, in evangelistic meetings at Plattville, Wis., writes as follows: "Our meetings are moving along very well. Interest is growing from night to night. Our Sunday night crowds are the best. Sunday afternoon we had a patriotic service and had over 500 present. Our Sunday night crowds are over 600; so you can see folks are interested. Gave the first altar call Sunday night and 36 came forward. We are looking forward to a great meeting. Church people are really interested."

Rev. J. A. McCamey and Rev. G. W. Pierce, respectively pastor and recording secretary of the Grace M. E. Church, Warren, Pa., unite in commending the work of Professor William S. Dixon and wife, of Chicago, for the excellent work they did in the four weeks' campaign that closed recently. The chorus leading of Professor Dixon, and the work among women in meetings and in their homes of Mrs. Dixon, were highly commended. The booster choir feature seemed to have succeeded in an unusual way.

For fifteen days Evangelist F. A. Geisenheiner of Chicago labored with pastor and people of the Amberg, Wis., Presbyterian church in special meetings. Their labors were rewarded in the conversion of 34 persons and the receiving of many of the converts into the membership of the church. Mr. Geisenheiner is now assisting Rev. Rasmussen the Methodist minister at Dunbar, Wis. and the indications are that many will begin the Christian life at this place. Mr. Rasmussen is a former Institute student.

Rev. William Lofton sends a clipping from The Cameron Herald, (Tex.) reporting the meetings of Rev. J. Gordon McPherson at the Cameron Grove Baptist Church where a revival was in progress. An interesting incident mentioned was the conversion of an old negro, Harrison Hughes, said to be more than one hundred and eleven years old, an event without parallel in the church life of Texas, if not in America. Mr. McPherson is a colored preacher, and has been preaching acceptably both to the whites and the blacks in the South.

The special services, recently closed, in the Presbyterian church, Kouts, Ind., were wonderfully blessed. The town had never in its history realized such a spiritual awakening. A week of prayer preceded the meetings, which were only to last two weeks, but the people begged for it to continue; there were 101 conversions. Richard Low, a former Moody Bible Institute student, led the song service and the afternoon prayer service for boys and girls, and Rev. Aaron Egli and Rev. Samuel Bauer, pastor of the church, delivered the messages.

The World Conference on Christian Fundamentals has issued an announcement of the meeting to be held at Philadelphia May 25-June 1. Well known Bible teachers and preachers of the English speaking world have been invited, and they invite all believers to unite in a world-wide fellowship that shall be tentatively proposed at the Conference. They especially request the attendance of pastors and delegates, and literature and Conference programs will be sent on request by the Executive Secretary, Mr. J. D. Adams, 1721 Spring Garden St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Agnew Demarest have conducted fruitful meetings in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia. Mrs. Demarest, whose maiden name was Victoria Booth-Clibborn, is the evangelist, and Mr. Demarest is singer, pianist and organist. They report a good, old fashioned revival and hundreds were turned away from the church doors, and the results indicated permanency. All converts were dealt with individually. At

The Newell Evangelistic Party, composed of Rev. H. H. Newell, evangelist; Bert H. Newell, musical director and trombonist; and Miss Muriel Holt, soloist and accompanist, have just finished a series of campaigns throughout Westmoreland county in Pennsylvania. At Herminie the coal company kindly fitted the new and commodious brotherhood building into a regular tabernacle for the campaign. Among the large number of converts at this place were about 50 men, some of whom were professional gamblers. They have become live wires and since the campaign closed they have been conducting two prayer meetings each week, and the church has been filled to capacity. Commendable results were also achieved in two other towns—Arona and Middletown.

This party is scheduled to begin their next campaign at New Stanton, Pa., and the same will be a community effort, with the Reformed and M. E. Churches participating. The Newell

Mr. and Mrs. Agnew Demarest

St. Johns an evangelistic committee of the four Methodist churches commended the work very highly, and Rev. J. E. Darby stated that during the campaign over one thousand went to the altar.

Evangelist John M. Linden, Madison, Wisconsin, who has now associated with him Singing Evangelist Wm. S. Dixon of Chicago, is holding his first Canadian meeting at Gananoque, Ontario, and the Lord is wonderfully blessing. After laying a strong and deep Spiritual foundation during two weeks, the first opportunity was given for religious expression on Sunday, April 6th, and during the day nearly 300 people took some kind of a definite religious stand, of which 88 were new recruits, and the others were re-consecrations.

The Linden-Dixon Party will open at Swaledale, Ia., on May 7th, and then go on to the coast for several tent meetings.

brothers used a large, new tent for their summer campaigns.

FUTURE ENGAGEMENTS

Below are given the engagements, with dates as far as known, of the workers named. Our readers are earnestly invited to remember these laborers and their fields of appointments in their prayers.

William Asher—Y. M. C. A., Bayonne, N. J.
 J. V. Baird—Y. M. C. A., Waco, Tex.
 F. J. Balmont—Y. M. C. A., France.
 Berge Sisters—May 11, Chester, Va.
 W. E. Bilyeu—Y. M. C. A., Camp Cody, Deming, N. M.
 Chester Birch—Y. M. C. A., Fort Leavenworth, Kan.
 A. M. Bruner—Y. M. C. A., Until May, Bristol, Tenn.; May 5-18, Virginia; May 19-25, Durham, N. C.; July 31-Aug. 7, Summer School, Silver Bay, N. Y.
 Claire V. Bryan—Y. M. C. A., France.
 D. B. Bulkley—May 11-25, Bonita, La.
 Callis-Gossett Party—Until May 4, White, S. D.; May 7-25, Burke, S. D.; June 1-22, Chemung, Ill.
 W. S. Colegrove—April-May, Grand Rapids.
 W. H. Collisson—Y. M. C. A., Fortress Monroe, Old Point Comfort, Va.
 O. L. Cotterell—Spring months, Loveland, Colo.; Fitzgerald, Ga.; South Chicago, Ill.; Pierson, Ia.
 H. T. Crossley—Until May 11, Cardinal, Ont.
 A. B. Davidson—Y. M. C. A., England.
 John M. Dean—Chaplain.

E. R. Dow—Y. M. C. A., France.
 Jas. O. Duffey—May, Oconto, Neb.
 H. P. Dunlop and Wife—Apr. 28-May 18, Jesup, Iowa.
 John H. Elliott—Y. M. C. A., Various camps.
 John W. Erskine—May 4-25, Freesoil, Mich.; May 28-June 15, Cooner and Gulick, Mich.
 C. E. Faust—Y. M. C. A., Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.
 Eric A. Fernlund—May, St. Francis, Minn.; July, Stratford, Ia.
 J. A. Fitt—Y. M. C. A., Camp Logan, Houston, Tex.
 R. W. Frary—Y. M. C. A., Great Lakes, Ill.
 A. D. George—Y. M. C. A., France.
 Roy Gourley—Y. M. C. A.
 R. A. Hadden—Y. M. C. A., Camp Kearney, Linda Vista, Cal.
 Joseph W. Hakes—Until May 11, New Haven, Conn.
 Ham-Ramsey Party—Spring, 1919, Elk City, Okla.; Shawnee, Okla.; Sour Lake, Tex.; Brownsville, Tenn.; Hearne, Tex.; Clovis, N. M.
 John S. Hamilton Party—May, Welch, W. Va.
 E. C. Harding—Y. M. C. A., Chanute Field.
 Chester F. Harris—Y. M. C. A., Camp Funston, Fort Riley, Kas.
 Herbert C. Hart—April 20-May 4, Big Pine, Calif.; May 5-18, Independence, Calif.; May 20-July 1, Los Angeles, Calif.
 R. G. Heddon—Y. M. C. A., France.
 E. R. Hermiston—April, Cottonwood, Calif.
 Tillman Hobson and Miss Loretta Hobson—Army Camps in California.
 I. E. Honeywell—Y. M. C. A., France.
 W. H. Hudgins—Y. M. C. A.
 Harry James—Y. M. C. A., Columbus, O.
 Andrew Johnson—May, Collingswood, N. J.
 Loren G. Jones—Y. M. C. A., France.
 P. H. Kadey—April-May, Clifford, Mich.; May-June, Imlay City, Mich.
 F. O. Kelley—Y. M. C. A., Italy.
 H. D. Kennedy—May, Arden, Ont.; June-July, Peterboro, Ont.
 F. F. Leonard—Y. M. C. A., Curtis Bay, Md.
 Victor Lightbourne—Y. M. C. A., France.
 John M. Linden and Wm. S. Dixon Party—May 7-25, Swaledale, Ia.
 Lindgren and Erwin—June, Rockwell City, Ia.
 Eva R. Ludgate—Battalion of Prayer, New York City.
 J. C. Ludgate—Y. M. C. A., Overseas.
 Milford H. Lyon—Y. M. C. A., Various camps.
 A. R. Lytle—Y. M. C. A., Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill.
 A. S. Magann—Salvation Army Campaign, Wisconsin.
 J. W. Mahood and Daughter—Until May 12, Keokuk, Ia.
 T. G. Makin—Y. M. C. A., Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala.
 Frank Mathis—Until May 18, Fairmont, Minn.; May 25-June 22, St. James, Minn.
 Wm. McEwan—War Work, Various camps.
 H. Evan McKinley—Until May 11, Morristown, Tenn.; until May 18, Atlanta, Ga.; to June 8, Fletcher's Lake, Ind.; to June 22, Louisville, Ky.; November, Fulton, Ind.
 George A. McLeod—Y. M. C. A., Various camps.
 J. B. McMinn—Y. M. C. A., France.
 Leroy J. Mitchell—Until May 11, Lawrenceville, Ill.; May 18-June 8, Frankfort, Ill.; Aug. 1-30, Jerseyville, Ill.
 George E. Moody—Y. M. C. A.
 Earle Naftzger—Y. M. C. A., France.
 P. C. Nelson—Y. M. C. A., Camp Custer, Battle Creek, Mich.
 J. A. Nipper—Y. M. C. A., Various camps.
 Dr. French E. Oliver and Party—May, Salisbury, Mo.; June-July, Clinton, Mo.
 L. K. Peacock—Y. M. C. A., Camp Dix, Wrightstown, N. J.
 L. F. Peckham—Y. M. C. A., Camp Kearney, Linda Vista, Calif.
 Grace Sutton Powell—Y. M. C. A., California.
 E. B. Pratt—Y. M. C. A., France.
 Fred W. Rapp—Y. M. C. A., France.
 Homer Rodeheaver—Y. M. C. A., France.
 R. M. Sands—Y. M. C. A., Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill.
 Harold F. Sayles—May 4-18, Palo, Mich.
 Myrtle M. Saylor—May, Farson, Ia.
 J. H. Sawtell—Y. M. C. A., Great Lakes, Ill.
 Charles Reign Scoville—Y. M. C. A., Camp Funston, Fort Riley, Kan.
 Roud Shaw—Y. M. C. A., France.
 M. B. Simmons—Y. M. C. A., Camp Kearney, Linda Vista, Calif.
 C. C. Smith—Y. M. C. A., Various camps.
 Gipsy Smith, Jr., and Chas. F. Allen—May, Burlington, N. C.; June, Waynesboro, Va.
 D. L. Spooner—Y. M. C. A., New Brunswick, N. J.
 Morgan Lee Starks—May 6-25, Waynesboro, Va.; May 27-June 15, Front Royal, Va.; June 18-July 15, Rocky Mount, Va.
 H. E. Storrs—Y. M. C. A., Camp Travis, Tex.
 William A. Sunday Party—Until May 4, San Antonio, Tex.
 F. J. Thomas—Y. M. C. A.
 C. S. and Mrs. Thompson—Until Apr. 27, Great Valley, N. Y.

George Trimby—Y. M. C. A., Camp Dodge, Des Moines, Ia.
 Melvin E. Trotter—Y. M. C. A., Various camps.
 Thomas P. Ullom—Y. M. C. A., Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga.
 Ray G. Upson—City Y. M. C. A., Dayton, O.
 Vom Bruch Party—May, Wolverton, Minn.; June, July, Aug., Chicago, Ill.
 L. A. Wegner—Y. M. C. A., Camp Custer, Battle Creek, Mich.
 Owen O. Wiard—May 1-8, Nickerson, Kan.; May 9-10, McPherson, Kan.; May 18-24, Skidmore, Mo.; May 26-June 1, Worthington, Minn.; June 6-14, Wetonka, S. D.
 A. R. Willgus—Y. M. C. A., Waco, Tex.
 M. B. Williams—Y. M. C. A., Various camps.
 R. Hayes Willis—Y. M. C. A., Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill.
 Edward M. Young—April and May, Shafter, Santa Cruz and Los Angeles, Calif.
 Wm. M. Young—April 22-June 1, Grand Blanc, Mich.; June 1-30, Sicks, Mich.
 Parley E. Zartmann—Y. M. C. A., Camp Custer, Battle Creek, Mich.

FORTHCOMING CONFERENCES AND IMPORTANT DATES.

Bible Conference and School of Missions, Wooster, O., July 28-Aug. 6.
 Camden (Me.) Bible Conference, Aug. 31-Sept. 7.
 Castine (Me.) Bible Conference, Aug. 24-31.
 Cedar Lake (Ind.) Conferences:
 Bible Conference, June 18-July 6.
 Bible School, July 7-31.
 City Mission Workers Conference, Aug. 9-17.
 Victorious Life Conference, Aug. 24-Sept. 1.
 Chicago Hebrew Mission Conference, Chicago, May 20-23.
 Christian Workers Conference, Bible School Park, N. Y., July 24-Aug. 4.
 Eagles Mere (Pa.) Bible Conference, July 13-20.
 Erieside (O.) Bible Conference, July 18-27.
 Grove City (Pa.) Bible School, Aug. 8-17.
 Gull Lake Bible Conferences, Midland Park, Augusta, Mich., July 6-19 and Aug. 3-10.
 International Federation of Christian Workers Convention, Siloam Springs, Ark., July 27-Aug. 3.
 International Christian Convention, Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 5-10.
 International Sunday School Convention, Kansas City, Mo., June 19-22.
 The International Union of Gospel Missions, Philadelphia, Pa., May 20-25.
 Montrose (Pa.) Conferences:
 Ministerial Institute, July 14-31.
 General Conference, Aug. 1-10.
 Muskingum Bible Conference, New Concord, O., Aug. 1-10.
 National Council of Congregational Churches, Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 21-29.
 Northfield (Mass.) Gatherings:
 Young Women's Conference, 1st Division, June 11-18.
 Student Conference, Y. M. C. A., June 20-29.
 Summer School of Home Missions of the East, July 1-8.
 Summer School of Religious Education (formerly the Summer School of Religious Methods), July 18-28.
 Summer School of Women's Foreign Missionary Societies, July 9-17.
 Young Women's Conference, 2d Division, Aug. 1-17.
 General Conference of Christian Workers, Aug. 1-17.
 The last two in conjunction.
 Prophetic Bible Conference, Albany, N. Y., May 5-7.
 Victorious Life Conference, Whittier College, Whittier, Calif., June 21-29.
 Winona Lake (Ind.) activities for 1919: (Partial list):
 Church of the Brethren Conference, June 4-13.
 School of Missions, June 19-26.
 Presbyterian Young People's Conference, June 26-July 6.
 Disciples of Christ Congress, June 30-July 6.
 Older Girls' Conference, July 7-10.
 Winona Bible School, July 7-Aug. 4.
 Bethany Girls, entire season.
 Chautauqua Program, July 7-Aug. 21.
 Commercial Secretaries' Convention, July 21-26.
 Bible Conference, Aug. 22-30.
 Evangelistic Meetings, Aug. 15-22.
 Progressive Brethren Conference, Sept. 1-8.
 United Brethren Conference, Sept. 8-15.
 Chicago Boys' Club, entire season.
 World Conference on Christian Fundamentals, Philadelphia, Pa., May 27-June 1.
 World's Sunday School Convention, Tokyo, Japan, 1920.

Book Notices

Any book favorably mentioned below may be secured at price named from the Bible Institute Colportage Association, 822 North La Salle Street, Chicago.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

- Fleming H. Revell Company, New York.
 "After This or The Church, The Kingdom and the Glory." Philip Mauro. Cloth, 192 pages. $1.00.
 "The Apostles Creed in the 20th Century." Ferdinand S. Schenck, D.D., LL.D. Cloth, 212 pages.
 "The Blot on the Kaiser's Scutcheon." Newell Dwight Hillis. Cloth. $1.00.
 "The Changeless Christ." Edwin Charles Dargan. Cloth, 194 pages. $1.00.
 "For the Children's Hour." Stuart Nye Hutchison, D. D. Cloth. $1.00.
 "Church Officers." F. A. Agar. Cloth, 50 cents.
 "A Cyclopaedia of Twentieth Century Illustration." Amos R. Wells. Cloth, 468 pages. $3.00.
 "Five Young Men." Charles Reynolds Brown. Cloth, 122 pages. 75 cents.
 "Frontier Missionary Problems, Their Character and Solution." Bruce Kinney, D. D. Cloth, 236 pages. $1.25.
 "The Gist of the Lesson." Torrey. Cloth, 155 pages. 25 cents.
 "Guiding Boys Over Fool Hill." A. H. McKinney, Ph. D., D. D. Cloth, 228 pages. $1.25.
 "Jerusalem Past and Present." Gaius Glenn Atkins. Cloth. $1.00.
 "The Joyful Hours of Jesus." J. Gibson Lowrie, D. D. Cloth, 203 pages. $1.25.
 "The Laughter of God and Other Sermons." David James Burrell, D. D. Cloth, 217 pages. $1.25.
 "The Life of Service." James I. Vance, D. D., LL. D. Cloth, 219 pages. $1.25.
 "Making Good in the Ministry." Prof. A. T. Robertson, M. A., D. D. Cloth, 171 pages. $1.00.
 "The Maine Law." Ernest Gordon. Paper, 124 pages. 30 cents.
 "The New Church for the New Time." Wm. Allen Harper, D. D. Cloth, 153 pages. 75 cents.
 "Ornamented Orthodoxy." Edgar DeWitt Jones, D. D. Cloth, 221 pages. $1.25.
 "Pathfinders of the Soul-Country, and Other Sermons for Today." Josiah Sibley, D. D. Cloth, 209 pages. $1.00.
 "A Prince of the Church in India." J. C. R. Ewing, D. D., LL. D. Cloth, 128 pages. 75 cents.
 "Scripture Memory Work." Gerrit Verkuyl, Ph. D. Cloth, 120 pages. 75 cents.
 "The Second Line of Defense." Margaret Slattery. Cloth, 189 pages. $1.00.
 "Ten Lessons on the Lord's Return." Clinton C. Bell. Cloth, 148 pages. $1.00.
 "A Text-Book on Prophecy." James M. Gray, D. D. Cloth, 215 pages. $1.25.
 "Two Ancient Red Cross Tales." P. Whitwell Wilson. Boards, 64 pages. 50 cents.
 "The Unrecognized Christ." John Gardner, D. D. Cloth, 158 pages.
 "War-Time Hymns." Dr. Wm. P. Merrill, assisted by Clarence Dickinson. Paper, 32 pages. 6 cents.
 "The Way of Power." John Paul. Cloth, 190 pages. $1.00.
 "Will the Christ Return?" J. Stuart Holden. 88 pages. 50 cents.
 "Your Fallen Soldier Boy Still Lives." Edward Leigh Pell. 50 cents.
 "Love in Creation and Redemption." Dwight Goddard. Cloth, 278 pages. $1.25.
 "By This Sign We Conquer." P. Whitwell Wilson. 64 pages. 50 cents.
Book Stall, New York.
 "Is Atonement by Substitution Reasonable?" J. E. Conant, D. D. Paper, 98 pages. 25 cents.
 "Jerusalem." Mrs. George Soltan. Paper, 83 pages. 25 cents; cloth, 50 cents.
 "The Rapture of the Church." Jesse Forrest Silver. Paper, 42 pages. 10 cents.
 "The Second Coming of Christ." Mark Matthews. Paper, 105 pages. 25 cents.
Our Hope, New York.
 "Studies in Prophecy." Arno C. Gaebelien. Cloth, 166 pages. $1.00.
 "He That Is Spiritual." Lewis Sperry Chafer. Cloth, 151 pages. 75 cents.
Pickering & Inglis, Glasgow, Scotland.
 "The Journeys of Jesus Christ, The Son of God." A. T. Schofield, and G. Biddulph. Cloth, 190 pages. 65 cents.
 "Leslie's Short and Easy Method With the Deists." Charles Leslie. Paper, 80 pages. 12 cents.
 "1000 Miles of Miracles in China." A. E. Glover. 372 pages. 35 cents.
Association Press, New York.
 "The Assurance of Immortality." Harry Emerson Fosdick. Cloth, 116 pages. 60 cents.
 "The Enrichment of Prayer." David R. Porter. Cloth, 224 pages. 75 cents.
 "Five Minutes a Day." H. W. Gibson. Paper, 62 pages. 25 cents.
 "How God Calls Men." Frederick Harris. 123 pages. 60 cents.
 "Rural Problems of Today." Ernest R. Groves. Cloth, 181 pages. $1.00.
 "The Task that Challenges." Adams-Baker. Cloth, 50 pages. 25 cents.
Morgan & Scott, London, England.
 "The Approaching End of the Age." H. Grattan Guinness, D. D. Cloth, 372 pages. 5s.
 "Bear Ye One Another's Burdens." David Williamson. Cloth. 56 pages. 2s.
 "The Coming of the King." T. Fenwick Greves. Paper, 80 pages. 1s 4d.
 "Life's Dusty Way." The Rev. W. Y. Fullerton. Cloth, 191 pages. 3s.
 "The Love That Ceases to Calculate." Rev. Harrington C. Lees, M. A. 31 pages. 9d.
 "Ponnamal." Amy Wilson Carmichael. Cloth, 118 pages. 4s.
 "The Victorious Child." Kingscote Greenland. Cloth, 71 pages. 2s.
 "The Visions and Prophecies of Zechariah." David Baron. Cloth, 554 pages. 10s 6d net.
 "Ruling Lines of Progressive Revelation." W. Graham Scroggie. Cloth, 144 pages. 4s 6d.
Neale Publishing Company, New York.
 "The Perfect Man." Dr. Wm. Jas. Heaps. Cloth, 79 pages. 85 cents.
J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia, Pa.
 "Religions of the Past and Present." Dr. J. A. Montgomery. Cloth, 425 pages. $2.50.
Western Printing and Lithographing Company, Racine, Wis.
 "The Profits of Religion." Upton Sinclair. 315 pages. Cloth. $1.00.
Meigs Publishing Co., Indianapolis, Ind.
 "Sermonettes in Verse." Charles D. Meigs. Cardboard, 81 pages. 75 cents.
Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.
 "The Shorter Bible, The New Testament." Charles Foster Kent. Cloth, 299 pages. $1.00.
Tuttle, Morehouse & Taylor Company, New Haven, Conn.
 "Sister of a Certain Soldier, The." Stephen J. Maher. Paper, 48 pages. 25 cents.
Marshall Brothers, London, England.
 "Spiritual Churchmanship." F. S. Webster, M. A. Cloth, 95 pages. 2s 6d.
 "The Starting Place of the Day." Sir Joseph Maclay Bart. Cloth, 96 pages. 2s 6d.
 "The Starting Place Series, No. 2. The Starting Place of Glory." Rev. David M. McIntyre. Cloth, 96 pages. 2s 6d.
 "The Starting Place of Bible Study" No. 3. Rev. James Dinwoodie. Cloth, 95 pages. 2s 6d.
 "The Comfort Book." W. Hoste, B. A. Cloth, 158 pages. 2s 6d.

"Ada R. Habershon—An Autobiography and Memoir," compiled by her sister.

Many of our readers will be pleased to learn of this little book, the autobiographical part of which gives some early recollections of this devoted servant of God, lets us into some of the secrets of her poetry and hymn writing, and speaks of her friendships including her visit to America at the invitation of D. L. Moody. Part two, contributed by her sister, refers to her love for the Bible, her faith in the power

(Continued on page 689.)

The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

RECENT FACULTY ENGAGEMENTS

Dr. Gray: Assisted at two Bible conferences under the auspices of the Baptists in Atlanta and Chattanooga, and lectured at the Bible Institute of Toccoa Falls, Ga.

Mr. Gosnell: Union Bible Class, City Rescue Mission, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Dr. Fitzwater: Union Bible Class, Detroit, Mich.; Bible conference, Zeeland, Mich.; North Shore Congregational Church.

Dr. Ralston: Lecture on life of D. L. Moody, Crerar Presbyterian Church; address, Marcy Center.

Dr. Russell: Denominational Conference, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Woodlawn United Presbyterian Church; Chicago Hebrew Mission Conference.

Mr. Pace: First Reformed Church, Englewood; Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church; North Shore Congregational Church; Bible Study Series, Oak Street Church of United Brethren in Christ, Dayton, O.; Bonebrake Theological Seminary, Dayton, O.

Mr. Meeker: Class in prophecy, Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church; Morton Park Congregational Church; Camp Custer.

Dr. Towner: Evangelistic meetings, Parkersburg, W. Va.; Wilkinsburg, Pa.

Mr. Bittikofer: Evangelistic meetings, Ovid, Mich.

RECENT SPECIAL SPEAKERS

March 13, 20 and 25—Rev. William N. Blair, missionary under the Presbyterian Board, Pyeng Yang, Korea.

March 14—Dr. Daniel Couve, France.

March 16—Mrs. William N. Blair, missionary under the Presbyterian Board, Pyeng Yang, Korea.

March 18—Rev. A. P. Franklin, Swedish Alliance Mission.

March 18-22—Rev. C. H. Woolston, D. D., pastor, East Baptist Church, Philadelphia, Pa.

March 19—Miss Alice Finley, missionary to Japan.

March 23—Miss Jean Lamont, evangelist, Chicago, Ill.

March 19-20—Mrs. A. Louise Angelini, representing the Waldensian Church, Italy.

March 22—Mrs. William B. Allison, missionary, Guatemala, C. A.

March 22—P. Whitwell Wilson, American representative of the London Daily News, London, Eng.

March 23, 25, 26, 28—Rev. E. C. Faithfull, British representative of the South Africa General Mission.

March 27—Miss Lila Buyers, worker among the mountaineers of Kentucky.

April 2—Rev. William Evans D. D., Wheaton, Ill.

April 3—Dr. William B. Allison, missionary, Guatemala, C. A.

April 9—Miss Lenora Scarlett, missionary to South China.

April 9—Rev. W. H. Danner, secretary, American Mission to Lepers.

A MANUAL ARTS AND COOKING EXHIBIT

A steady stream of visitors viewed an exhibit of the students' work illustrating the Institute's courses in sewing, manual arts and cookery at their new quarters, 812-14-16 N. LaSalle St., Friday, April 4. This work is under the direction of Miss Leah May Gaymon and Mrs. Myra A. Rugg, and requires twelve different classes to accommodate all the students. The display included reed and raffia basketry, book binding, paper tearing, cutting and folding, clay modeling, scroll sawing and toy making. The work in sewing included children's garments showing the various operations in drafting, cutting, joining and finishing. The cookery display demonstrated not only the art of preparing a well balanced meal but the serving as well. The up-to-date laboratory, serving room, and pretty dining-room with its snowy table linen, silver and pretty china gave the impression that much practical work is done here. The knowledge gained in these courses is put in practice every day by the students as a means of gaining access for the gospel message in boys' clubs, mothers' clubs, settlements, community centers, etc.

HAMMONTREE'S ARMY WORK

Homer A. Hammtree, '10, who has been associated with "Mel" Trotter and his quartette of Institute singers for the past eighteen months, has just concluded the greatest experiences of his life. During that time he travelled 30,000 miles, visited 57 army camps, sung to a half million soldiers, and saw 15,000 men take their stand for Christ as their Saviour in after-meetings where thorough personal work was the rule. He will continue with Mr. Trotter in evangelistic work.

JUNIORS ENTERTAIN SENIORS

The Institute junior class entertained the seniors on the evening of Monday, March 31. Following supper at 5:30 and a devotional service, the company repaired to the Lecture Room for the program of the evening. "Ingenuis and nimble fingers had transformed the staid classroom into a Japanese garden in springtime." The program included a mock graduation exercise and an illustrated lecture abounding in kindly pleasantries which were thoroughly enjoyed. The greetings of the seniors to the juniors were expressed in a song composed by one of their number.

ARMY AND NAVY MEN BACK IN THE INSTITUTE

Front row, left to right—C. J. Glittenberg, Hugh Cork (Institute Army and Navy Secretary); Fred G. Crown. Middle row—W. L. Rugg, George E. Bostrom, N. Jorjorian, Nils H. Hanson, E. J. Kent, Lieut. James H. Weir, Nels J. Christensen, Wendell Pontius. Back row—C. H. Trigsted, I. H. Lindgren, H. M. Griffin, M. O. Burford.

STUDENT VOLUNTEERS' BANQUET

The annual banquet of the Chicago Union of Student Volunteers was held on Thursday evening, April 3, in the Institute dining room, with an attendance of more than 300 representatives of the schools and colleges of Chicago and vicinity—an increase of fifty per cent over last year's attendance. The president, Mr. George B. Dutton, presided, and addresses were made by Dr. Arthur Hays of McCormick Theological Seminary, and Mr. Fennell P. Turner, the general secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement. Mr. Turner emphasized the need for more thorough preparation for missionary work. The volunteers expecting to go out to the field were recognized and congratulated.

HOW THEY STUDY AT MUSKOGEE

In Muskogee, Okla., there are quite a number of Bible classes which are following definite courses of study under the supervision of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. The total number enrolled is 297. The time and place of meeting for these classes is as follows:

First Baptist church, Mrs. O. T. Graham teacher. The Synthetic Bible Study Course, The Chapter Summary Course, Thursday afternoon at 2:00; The Scofield Course, Thursday afternoon at 3:15.

First Methodist Episcopal church, corner F and Houston streets, Miss Mae Adams, teacher. Chapter Summary course, Sunday evening, 6:30; The Prophecies, Friday afternoon, 2:30; The Prophecies, Friday evening, 7:30.

First M. E. church, South F and Okmulgee streets, Mrs. H. B. Spaulding, teacher. The Scofield Bible Course, Monday afternoon at 2:15.

The Bethany Presbyterian Church, Rev. Harry C. Shiffler, teacher. The Scofield Bible Course, Tuesday evening, 7:30; The Synthetic Bible Study Course, Wednesday afternoon, 2:30.

First Presbyterian Church, Mrs. R. W. Achor, teacher. Scofield class for young women, Tuesday evening at 7:30. The Scofield class, Friday afternoon at 2:00, The Synthetic Bible Study Course, Friday afternoon, 3:30.—Muskogee Weekly.

EXTENSION DEPARTMENT NOTES

During the last week in March Mrs. Margaret T. Russell gave a series of Bible studies in a Bible conference conducted by the First Baptist Church of Palestine, Tex. While at Gainesville, Tex., she visited Marietta, Okla., a neighboring community, to address a Bible class taking the Scofield Correspondence Course. The population of the town is one thousand, and a hundred women attended the meeting, fifteen of whom are members of this class. The invitation came through Mrs. Hudson, a sister of Mrs. O. T. Graham, connected with the large Correspondence Department work at Muskogee, Okla.

Dr. Henry Ostrom's evangelistic preaching in Lancaster, Pa., aroused great interest. The Daily Intelligencer said recently that St. Paul's Reformed Church was crowded to the doors to hear him, and that for more than an hour he held the attention of his large audience in "one of the greatest sermons ever preached in this city." From Lancaster Dr. Ostrom went to Philadelphia to lead evangelistic meetings in Calvary M. E. Church.

Rev. George E. Guille, in association with Rev. Lewis Sperry Chafer, conducted a Bible conference in the Presbyterian church of Athens, Ga. The members voted to make the conference a permanent feature, and a committee was appointed to arrange for the next one. Mr. Guille gave Bible lectures also in the Bradentown (Fla.) Presbyterian church, and then returned to the Reformed church of Xenia, O., where he lectured less than six months ago.

Mr. C. E. Putnam used his chronological and dispensational charts in teaching the Bible at Atlanta and Toccoa, Ga., and Asheville and Biltmore, N.C. At all of these places he received an invitation for return engagements. At Atlanta he spoke at the Gideons' Mission; at the Missionary Tabernacle, of which Mr. J. D. Fant, a godly railroad engineer, is the acting pastor; and the "Arcade," under Y. W. C. A. auspices. At Toccoa he addressed the students of Toccoa Falls Institute, and a union meeting of Presbyterians, Methodists and Baptists. At Biltmore his meeting was held in the Baptist church of which Rev. C. K. Turner, a former Institute student, is the pastor. At Asheville, N. C., he visited Alida Orphanage, a faith work superintended by Rev. Lucius B. Compton.

Mr. John R. Riebe preached at St. Paul's Evangelical Church of LaPorte, Ind., and the Presbyterian church of Paxton, Ill., and taught a Bible class of students at Wheaton College.

"What the Bible Says About a League of Nations" was Dr. Gray's subject at the noon meeting in connection with the conference in Pittsburgh, Friday, April 25, which marked the close of the Union Bible Classes taught by the Rev. John C. Page at Pittsburgh, Butler, Greensburg, Wilkinsburg, Homestead, Bellevue, and classes at the Third United Presbyterian Church and Olivet Mission of Pittsburgh, during the past season. These eight classes sent delegations to this meeting.

Besides Dr. Gray, the speakers were Mr. Page, Dr. Henry Ostrom, Mr. W. G. A. Millar, chairman of the Pittsburgh class, and representatives of the various classes.

UTAH GOSPEL MISSION WORKERS

This picture was taken at Smithfield, Utah.

Left to right—Thomas Hodge, '99; John Dillin, '13; Charles W. Higgins; John Oliver, '16; J. D. Nutting.

Mr. Oliver writes from American Falls, Idaho, that he will close a two years' work with the Utah Gospel Mission in May.

MR. MOODY'S PRAYER AND LOT 153

There has been considerable variation in the stories concerning the lot on which the building of The Moody Bible Institute, known as No. 153, now stands, and the prayer of Mr. Moody. The popular story is that Mr. Moody was standing on the site of the lot, in the attitude of prayer, and when asked what he was doing, replied that he was praying that the Lord would give him money with which to erect a building in which men and women who could not go to the theological seminaries might be trained for religious service. Mr. John Morrison, now an elder of the Moody Church and a contemporary and friend of Mr. Moody, furnishes the following as to the facts, in a letter to the Associate Editor of this magazine:

"Mr. Moody was to speak in the church auditorium; I had charge of the ushering. I was making my rounds to see that the exits were all right. The northwest corner was not used except in case of emergency, when the house was packed, as it was on this night. I pushed the door out (it opened in and out as the doors do now). Outside of the door there were no steps, just a door ledge or step. On pushing the door it struck against something and I heard a voice say,

"'Who is there?'

"I answered, 'Morrison.'

"He answered, 'Come out here.'

"I stood beside him and he said, 'Do you see that lot?' pointing to the 153 lot.

"I said, 'Yes.'

"He said, 'Let's ask the Lord to give it to us for a school.' He at once began to pray and when he got through he said, 'Now you pray.' I did. After prayer he asked if the house was be on the continent again. Dr. William Evans was in Honolulu for three weeks and conducted a Bible conference which proved to be a great blessing. Former Moody Bible Institute students who were present at the conference are named below.

Left to right—W. E. Pietsch, '12; Mrs. E. MacKenzie, '05; William Evans, '90; Mrs. F. R. Dudley, '14; F. R. Dudley, '15; Anna Dram, '15; O. H. Hornung, '95. Mr. Pietsch is superintendent of a gospel mission; Mrs. MacKenzie, superintendent of the Beretania Chinese mission; Anna Dram, superintendent of women's work at Elizabeth Mission; A. H. Hornung, Hospital Sergeant, Medical Department, United States Army. Dr. Evans is well known to all M. B. I. people.

M. B. I. Reunion in Honolulu full. I told him it was, and he went upstairs. The prayers covered about three or four minutes. About a month after I had a letter from Mr. Moody, saying we had the lot for the school."

FROM FAR HONOLULU

Frank R. Dudley, '15, writes from Honolulu, under date of March 4, of an Institute reunion there, in which the old songs were sung, special prayer for the Institute offered, and the former life in the Institute lived over again. Mr. Dudley is Y. M. C. A. director of religious war work, Hawaii, but as his present work closes May 1, both he and Mrs. Dudley will likely soon

PERSONALIA

Louis H. Stafford, '16, has received his discharge from the army. His address is 1909 North Sawyer Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Carl Knudsen, '16, is with the Army of Occupation in Germany. His address is Co. H, 112th Infantry, A. P. O. 744, A. E. F.

Ernest R. Frey, '12, asks for the prayers of the Institute family. He is pastor of the Murray Baptist Church, Murray, Utah.

Orlando Alves, '18, has returned to Brazil, S. A., where he will do missionary work among his own people, under the Baptist Board.

Miss Mildred Ewing Ross, '16, has charge of the work for girls and young women in the First Presbyterian Church, Wheeling, W. Va.

Otis D. Ironmonger, '13, formerly of San Fernando, Calif., is now assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Oakland, Calif.

Norman V. Anderson, '14, located at Webster City, Ia., writes that he teaches the Bible to a class of young married people in the M. E. Sunday-school.

J. S. Flacks, '13, has been received into the Presbytery of St. Louis, Mo. He has recently been engaged in evangelistic work at Goodrich, N. D.

Miss Rachel Jarrett, '19, sailed April 5 for Brazil, S. A., to take up her work as missionary after a year's furlough, a part of which she spent at the Institute.

Miss Sara Eddy, '18, Y. W. C. A. Religious Work Director, Duluth, Minn., has returned to her work after a ten days' vacation at Gray's Lake and the Institute.

Holice B. White, '16, recently ordained a Presbyterian minister at Paris, Tex., has been called to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church, Greenville, Tex.

Charles B. Allnatt, '15, began his pastorate of the Baptist church, Bainbridge, N. Y., March 1. He expects to graduate from Colgate Theological Seminary in May.

William H. Swann, '12, has charge of the M. E. church circuit of Montrose, White Oak and LaDue, Mo., with a parsonage at Montrose. He requests the prayers of the Institute family for his work.

Miss Etta Brooks, '19, who left the Institute on account of illness, is improving rapidly at her home in Greenville, Tenn. She asks prayers for herself and her mother, who has also been seriously ill.

Charles S. and Mrs. Foster, '13, Blanche Memorial Mission, Kasempa P. O., North Rhodesia, South Central Africa, ask prayer for nine native evangelists they are training to take charge of out-stations.

J. G. Stephenson, '13, and wife, of Machakos, via Mombasa, British East Africa, send kindest regards to the Council and the new students, and ask for prayers that more wise and tactful spiritual work may be done in their field of labor.

A letter has been received from Walter J. Satterfield, April '17, who is with the Army in France. His address is Bat. E, 317th F. A., A. E. F. A. P. O. No. 791. He is well but longs for a chance to visit the Institute again.

James E. Kelly, '18, U. S. N., writes Mr. Kirk that he has been privileged to visit Rome, Athens, and other places of historical interest. He asks for the prayers of the Institute family. His address is, "The Zrinyi" via U. S. S. Olympia, c-o the postmaster.

Charles F. Robel, '91, who has been Y. M. C. A. Religious Work Director at Camp Cody, N. M., and later Camp Beauregard, La., is taking a much needed rest at his home in Omaha, Neb. His daughter, Miss Grace M. Robel, is a student in the Institute.

Word comes to us of the passing away of Rev. Harry F. Phillippi, '11, pastor of the Central Church of Christ, Streator, Ill., following an operation for appendicitis. He was a member of the Streator Ministerial Association, was active in Y. M. C. A. work, and was highly commended for his services as a "Y" worker in the Students' Army Training Corps at St. Paul, Minn. Interment was at Decatur, Ill., where seven years ago he was married to Miss Helen Burks, '12.

Lieut. Philip M. Gray, son of Dr. James M. Gray, Dean of The Moody Bible Institute, has been promoted to a captaincy in the 305th Regiment of the 77th Division because of distinguished services in the Argonne fighting. This is one of the very few promotions resulting from Secretary Baker's modification of his order stopping the advancement of officers after the cessation of hostilities.

BORN

To Charles S. and Mrs. Foster, '13, Kasempa, North Rhodesia, South Central Africa, December, 1918, a son.

To J. G. and Mrs. Stephenson, '13, Machakos, British East Africa, January 12, a daughter, Marian Eileen.

To E. and Mrs. Rohloff, '17, Gladwin, Mich., a son, Gordon Henry.

MARRIED

Charles B. Allnatt, '15, and Miss Honorine W. Saunders, March 22, at the Baptist church, Georgetown, N. Y.

Parke O. Bailey, '17, and Miss Nellie May Lauer, '17, April 10, at Joliet, Ill. At home after June 1, Polo, Ill.

Harold M. Harper, '16, and Miss Margretta Stulen Righter, '17, January 14, at East Lansdowne, Pa. At home after March 1, 5 Primrose St., Rochester, N. Y.

Rev. L. J. Beebe, acting pastor of the Presbyterian church, Chieng Rai, Bangkok, Siam, and Miss Mary A. Neiderhauser, '15, superintendent of the Girls' School of the same place, October 16, 1918.

DIED

Ian F. Cruikshanks, '17, January 9, at Timmins, Ontario, Canada, where he was pastor of a home mission church under the Canadian Baptist Board.

The Gospel in Print

"ONLY A TRACT"

It's only a tract! You may tear it,
And crumple it up in your hand;
The wind, as it passes, may bear it
And scatter it over the land.

It's only a tract! You may spurn it,
And deem it unworthy a thought;
May ridicule, trample, and burn it,
Despise it, and set it at naught.

It's only a tract! But it telleth
Of holiness, happiness, heaven;
Where God in eternity dwelleth
With sinners His love has forgiven.

It speaks of a future in glory,
Of present enjoyment and bliss;
And will you neglect such a story,
So loving, so joyous as this?

It whispers, "No matter how hardened,
No matter how vile you have been,
You may at this moment be pardoned,
And saved from the bondage of sin."

It points to the Substitute dying,
The Sinless, for sinners like you.
Oh, soul, on His merits relying,
Come, prove that its message is true!

It is but a tract! Yet its warning
Is whispered in Jesus' own voice;
And at thy acceptance or scorning
Either heaven or hell will rejoice!

—Selected.

HOW TO TEST A BOOK FOR THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LIBRARY

The first mark of a suitable book is its power to interest the reader. It must have that quality, otherwise it will not be taken from the library, or, if taken, it will not be read. But the book must be more than interesting. Mere interest means little to the child. Some of the most pernicious books in the world are entrancingly interesting to a child.

The second mark, then, of a book is its power to make the reader think. Does it stimulate thought? Does it crystallize interest into judgments? Does it exercise the higher powers of thought? If not, throw it aside. It is useless, and may be worse than useless.

The third mark of a good book is its power to make the reader live a better life. Can the lessons of the book be applied in every-day life? Does it teach conduct? Does it mold character? Does it influence will? Is it a book that makes life richer by making action truer? Not one of these tests, but all of them, must be applied to every book. If the book fails, as many will, to pass this threefold test, exclude it from the library.—M. G. Brumbaugh, in The Making of a Teacher.

FREE GRANTS OF BOOKS

The following donations of the Moody Colportage Library books, "Emphasized Gospels," "Pocket Treasury," etc., have been sent out on account of the several book funds named, from March 1 to 31, 1919, inclusive:

Army and Navy Book Fund:

Illinois, 452 books, 5,200 Pocket Treasury.
New Jersey, 78 books, 400 Pocket Treasury.
Ohio, 87 books.
Georgia, 530 books.
South Carolina, 500 books.
Virginia, 100 books, 500 Pocket Treasury, 500 Gospels.
Kansas, 300 books.
Texas, 300 books.
Germany, 6 books, 4 Pocket Treasury.

Prison Book Fund:

Illinois, 375 books, 250 Pocket Treasury, 200 Gospels.
Missouri, 175 books, 175 Pocket Treasury.
Oregon, 50 books, 100 Pocket Treasury, 100 Gospels.
Iowa, 235 books, 35 Pocket Treasury.
New York, 100 books, 25 Gospels.
Massachusetts, 24 books.
Kansas, 30 books, 10 Pocket Treasury, 40 Gospels.
Wisconsin, 250 books, 250 Pocket Treasury.

Spanish "Way to God" Book Fund:

South America, 200 books.

Mountain Book Fund:

North Carolina, 50 books, 25 Pocket Treasury, 25 Gospels.
Tennessee, 100 books.

Lumber Camp Book Fund:

Georgia, 200 books, 200 Gospels.

Hospital Book Fund:

Minnesota, 55 books.

MR. MOODY'S BOOK FUNDS

The following contributions have been received from March 1 to 31, 1919, inclusive:

Africa Book Fund:
2 Contributions.....	$ 1.50
Alaska Book Fund:
1 Contribution.....	.50
Army and Navy Book Fund:
294 Contributions.....	1,233.41
Hospital Book Fund:
2 Contributions.....	15.00
India Book Fund:
1 Contribution.....	1.00
Lodging House Book Fund:
2 Contributions.....	2.00
Lumber Camp Book Fund:
19 Contributions.....	65.25
Military Camp Book Fund:
3 Contributions.....	56.00
Mountain Book Fund:
4 Contributions.....	39.00
Prison Book Fund:
12 Contributions.....	48.50
Seamen's Book Fund:
1 Contribution.....	1.00
Spanish "Way to God" Book Fund:
2 Contributions.....	45.00
Miner's Book Fund:
1 Contribution.....	5.00
Free Tract Fund:
4 Contributions.....	1.87

Pray for the "Book Missionaries" who carry the gospel in print to those homes of the people.

Has GOD Called YOU?

I secured 120 subscriptions in two months, while soliciting in Wisconsin. I would advise anyone desiring to secure a scholarship to begin early, as it is less difficult to secure the required amount, and you will enjoy the work far more than if put off until a few weeks before entering the Institute. I am still soliciting subscriptions.—P. J. Andreasen

It affords me pleasure in recommending The Christian Workers Magazine in a scholarship plan to anyone hungry for a broader knowledge of God's Word. I won the scholarship in four weeks. What has been done can be done again. I praise God for the trials and difficulties which He led me into while canvassing for this scholarship. If God has called you, go to day.—D. A. Chapman

I am glad to recommend the offer given by The Christian Workers Magazine as a desirable and profitable means of obtaining a scholarship in the Moody Bible Institute.—Sadie Poage

I take pleasure in recommending to anyone this plan, who is contemplating coming to The Moody Bible Institute. I am now enrolled in the Institute and enjoy my work very much. The spiritual as well as mental training is wonderful.—Mildred Couch Robinson

I wish to thank you for the opportunity to secure subscriptions to your magazine, to help pay my expenses through school; the task was very easy. I secured 125 subscriptions in two weeks; all I met were willing subscribers, and my friends are still sending in subscriptions, and I can recommend this plan to anyone that has not the necessary funds to start their schooling with.—C. E. Taylor to do Christian Work

If you feel the Lord is calling you to do more definite work in winning souls, remember He has provided for you a place to be thoroughly trained for that work. Christian people are providing the funds for your education. All they ask is that you pay for your board, room and washing. This training is offered to you FREE at

The Moody Bible Institute

You may have a catalog giving full particulars, about the courses of study in the Bible, and music on request.

Are You Delaying The Work

by not responding to the call?

If it is because you need funds for your board and room, we offer you a plan of self-help by securing new subscriptions to The Christian Workers Magazine as follows:

Scholarship Offer

To any earnest young man or woman, pastor or Christian worker who desires a better preparation for Christian work and is accepted as a student of The Moody Bible Institute, who shall send in 115 new annual subscriptions, cash with order, within five months from the date of acceptance of this offer, The Christian Workers Magazine will provide a scholarship for one term (fifteen weeks) stay at the Institute, consisting of board and room (with another), heat and light (tuition being free). The student will be amenable to the same rules and conditions as apply to other students enrolled.

Candidates will send orders to The Christian Workers Magazine, 163 Institute Place, Chicago, and must complete the payment for the required total of 115 subscriptions within the specified time. In case of failure to fulfil this condition, the publishing agent will refund to the candidate the usual agent's commission on every subscription.

The acceptance of this offer insures (1) a helpful business experience, (2) a valuable training in how to meet and interest people, and (3) untold good done by the circulation of a helpful religious magazine.

Suggestions

An entire young people's society or Bible class may work for a scholarship, nominating one of its members to use the same.

A pastor needing a trained layman to assist him, will find the scholarship plan an advantageous one for educating a young man or woman from his own congregation.

The scholarship plan may be used to extend the term of training for a student already in attendance at The Moody Bible Institute.

A series of scholarships may be planned, insuring the beneficiary, for instance, at least a year's uninterrupted stay at the Institute.

The Christian Workers Magazine
163 Institute Place Chicago, Illinois

I heartily recommend this method to obtain the comparatively small amount of funds necessary to secure what I believe to be the best instruction in the Bible or in Bible Music, that can be obtained anywhere.—Minerva S. Well

We are very glad to recommend this plan for securing a scholarship to anyone wishing to enter The Moody Bible Institute. We are now soliciting subscriptions for the magazine.—Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Young

I encourage every prospective student to act upon this splendid proposition. My testimony as a member of the Senior class, is this: I considered no effort too great, which would enable me to enroll as a student in The Moody Bible Institute, upon which the richest blessing of God continually rests and where I have enjoyed the happiest two years of my life preparing for the service of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.—Geo. F. Orloff

I am grateful for the opportunity presented by The Christian Workers Magazine to secure a scholarship to The Moody Bible Institute, and would recommend this plan to anyone who loves the Word of God and is anxious to study it. I also recommend to anyone to begin work immediately. As a rule it requires some time and effort to secure the necessary number of subscriptions. I worked four months to secure the necessary number. Some may succeed in less time.—Myrtle P. Harrod

It is with pleasure I recommend obtaining subscriptions to this magazine to secure a scholarship or money towards the expense of attending The Moody Bible Institute. I was able to obtain about forty subscriptions in ten days during our summer vacation, most of them among the church members of Des Moines. It enabled me to leave this Magazine in homes of people where the Word of God is appreciated, and to come into personal contact with the people and, in many cases, to speak a word for my Saviour.—Beulah Mae Millan

ATTENTION

Church Societies in the South and West

Books, Magazines and Waste Paper are of great value in carload lots. Write for our attractive cash prices. :: :: :: :: ::

MISSOURI PAPER STOCK CO.

22nd to Scott Ave.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

Here is the Book for the Times A Help to Daily Reading of the Bible or Family Worship

Through the Bible Day by Day

REV. F. B. MEYER'S COMMENTS ON THE BIBLE, BOOK BY BOOK

Set of seven volumes $3.50 net; or, by mail, $3.80
Separate volumes 50 cents net, each; or 58 cents, delivered

MAY BE HAD AT ANY BOOKSTORE OR FROM THE PUBLISHER

AMERICAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION, 1816 Chestnut St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

BILHORN FOLDING ORGANS

28 STYLES BEGINNING with W.

Send for Catalog. Makers of the famous 3 and 5-ply OAK CASES

BILHORN BROTHERS, 136 West Lake St., Chicago Style O

TELL THE BEST on SALE

PRECIOUS PROMISE PORTIONS

SOMETHING UNIQUE AND USEFUL

The Promise Box is a collection of 150 of the choicest promises in the Bible, touching the many phases of Christian life and service—counsel, comfort, exhortation, encouragement, etc. Some texts are short and to the point, quickly grasped in time of need.

The slips are neatly rolled and easily replaced in box.

The actual size of the box is about 4 x 5 inches and one inch deep. It is covered with embossed paper, hinge lid, with the words appearing on the outside, as seen in the cut.

It makes a splendid gift for a friend.

One box, carefully packed, postpaid, 35 cents; 3 boxes, $1.00; 6 boxes, $1.85. Stamps taken. Order today.

HEBRON TRACT SOCIETY,

560 N. 20th Street

Philadelphia

Dear Brother Pastor: WOULD YOU LIKE TO MAKE YOUR PRAYER MEETING the most interesting and largely attended meeting of the week except on Sabbath and your Congregation a company of Bible readers and students?

BIBLE TEACHERS TRAINING SCHOOL

D. WEBSTER WYLIE, Principal.

122 East 25th Street, New York City, N. Y.

Will tell you how, if you write us.

SILENT PREACHERS

1,000 Gospel Tracts—15 Kinds.....$1.50
Gospel Blotters.....15 cents per dozen

Send 20 cents for 100 Assorted Tracts, Cards and Blotters

PIONEER TRACT SOCIETY

815 HANNAH AVE

FOREST PARK, ILL.

QUINCY PHOTO SUPPLY CO.

KODAKS

Cameras and Photographic Supplies. Developing, Printing and Enlarging. Orders sent by mail will have prompt and Careful attention.

Kodak With Us By Mail.

412 MAINE ST.

QUINCY, ILLINOIS

For the Clergyman's Requirements

No Other Typewriter

Can do as will the

Multiplex Hammond Writing Machine

THE distinctively personal appearance of the work is not to be had in other machines. Change your type in an instant from one style or language to another, keeping two type-sets on the machine at once. "Just turn the knob" and change from one to the other.

No Other Typewriter Can Do This

Write MANUSCRIPT in a standard body-type, emphasize in ITALICS or make insertions in another language-type all on the same machine.

No Other Typewriter Can Do This

Large type if reading from a Rostrum. Miniature type for Church Record Work and Membership Card Index. All on the same machine.

No Other Typewriter Can Do This

SERMON OUTLINES in a variety of type-sizes.

Also—a PORTABLE Model
Only About 11 Lbs.

New, light-weight, aluminum model. Full capacity. Write for special folder.

Full Circular Matter Sent Upon Application and Without Obligation

HAMMOND TYPEWRITER CO.,

568 East 69th Street, NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
Ask for SPECIAL TERMS to Clergymen.

"Your outlines are fine."

Sermon Helps for Helpful Sermons.

Outlines that are "alive." Send one dollar for five.

THE HOMILETIC SPUR

Box 104, Aberdeen, Miss.

Special service for Special occasions.

PREACHERS AND TEACHERS A Labor-Saving Tool

Indexes and Files Almost Automatically

"There is nothing to compare with it."—Dr. Griffith Thomas.
"An invaluable tool."—The Sunday School Times.

"A great help. Simple and speedy."—Prof. Amos R. Wells.
"To be commended without reserve."—The Continent.

Send for circulars, or the Index itself on approval.

WILSON INDEX CO., Box K, EAST HADDAM, CONN.

FABER FOLDING ORGANS

They are the most compact, have the largest volume and sweetest tone of any Folding Organ on the market. Send for illustrated catalogue, price list and free trial offer.

Folds like a suitcase.

HOMO FABER Dept. 101
2066 W. Flournoy St. Chicago

DO YOU know a dear old Lady or Gentleman who would appreciate a large, clear type Bible?

OXFORD OLD FOLK'S BIBLES

have large type that can be read with comfort, and being printed on Oxford India paper they are very easy to hold. Make someone happy today with a gift of one of these beautiful Oxford Bibles.

Your Bookseller will be glad to help you select an Oxford Old Folk's Bible or literature will be sent by us

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS
AMERICAN BRANCH
35 West 32nd Street
New York

Individual Cups

Every church should use. Clean and sanitary. Send for catalog and special offer. Trial free.

Thomas Communion Service Co. Box W Lima, Ohio

TELL OTHERS!

Great discovery by pastor. Carbon Remover cleans 20 cylinders, $1.00. Motor-Tonico intensifies 110 gallons gasoline, $1.00. Guaranteed harmless. Increases mileage, power, speed.

Special to pastors in U. S. One box, either kind, 75 cents. Box of each, $1.40, delivery free. Satisfied or money returned. Agents wanted.

JUBILEE FACTORY

235-C Bond Street,

Johnstown, Pa.

MONEY RAISED For PHILANTHROPIC INSTITUTIONS

Leaders provided for short-term campaigns. All forms of financial movements for Institutions, Colleges, Churches, Libraries and Hospitals engineered. Financial managers supplied. Membership Campaigns. Ample references given.

WILBOR A. BOWEN, 280 Madison Ave., N. Y.
Financial Leaders' Agency

Helps for "Evangelistic" Meetings

"Truth in a Nut Shell." (1-2 million.) For enquirer and convert. 16 pp. 2c ea. 15c per doz. $1.00 per 100. "The Word for the Work." (250,000.) To tip in Bible: 30 subsects. 2c ea. 25c per doz. $1.00 per 100. "Truth for Sower and Seeker." Personal work made easy. 128 pp. 15c paper, 25c cloth, 35c leather. "First Steps With Christ." By Henry Ostrom, for converts. Foreword by Dr. Chapman. 10c paper, 25c cloth. "Winning Souls." By Dwight E. Marvin. A book full of suggestions. 15c paper, 25c limp cloth. "The Gospel of John." (Marked in red.) To stimulate reading the Bible. 5c ea. 50c per doz. A sample of each of these sent for 25c.

EVANGELICAL PUB. CO., LAKESIDE BLDG., CHICAGO.

A GREAT BOOK ON

DISPENSATIONAL TRUTH

A BOOK CONTAINING 41 SPLENDID PROPHETICAL CHARTS EACH 9 X 20 INCHES, AND 22 CHAPTERS OF DESCRIPTIVE MATTER. THE CHARTS ARE UNIQUE, SIMPLE, CLEAR, UNIFORM IN SIZE AND STYLE, AND PRESENT EVERY PHASE OF "DISPENSATIONAL TRUTH"

TITLES OF THE CHAPTERS

- "The Prophetic Word."
- "Rightly Dividing the Word."
- "The Jews."
- "The Gentiles."
- "The Church."
- "The King."
- "The Kingdom."
- "The Spirit World."
- "The Resurrections."
- "The Judgments."
- "Satan."
- "Antichrist."
- "The Satanic Trinity."
- "The Seven Churches."
- "The Tribulation."
- "Babylon the Great."
- "Renovation of the Earth."
- "The Covenants."
- "The Mysteries."
- "The Feasts."
- "The Offerings."
- "Scripture Numerics."

Published by the Author
CLARENCE LARKIN
 Pastor Bethany Baptist Church
 FOX CHASE, PHILA., PA.

Price Postpaid, $2.50

Remit by P. O. Order

God's Plan and Purpose in the Ages

This Book is the result of thirty years' study of Dispensational Truth and four years have been spent in its preparation. It is SANE! not a "TIME-SET-TER!" contains no speculative matter! is based on the "FUTURIST" SCHOOL; of interpretation; is clearly will be of permanent value and a standard authority on "Dispensational Truth" and is a mine of information on Prophetic Truth, and of incalculable value to every Bible student.

The Book is said to be the Greatest Book on "Dispensational Truth" in the world, and is highly commended by the leading Prophetic scholars of the day and is having a wide sale.

DANIEL 2: 31-45

TITLES OF CHARTS
 Rightly Dividing the Word.
 The Creative Ages.
 Mountain Peaks of Prophecy.
 Perspective of Prophecy.
 The Jews.
 The Gentile Nations.
 Prophetic Chronology.
 The Book of Daniel.
 The Church.
 The King.
 The Kingdom.
 The Book of Ezekiel.
 The Millennial Land.
 The Spirit World.
 The Threefold Nature of Man.
 The Resurrection and Judgments.
 Satan.
 Antichrist.
 The Book of Revelation.
 Messages to the Seven Churches.
 Daniel's Seventieth Week.
 The Covenants.
 The Book of Genesis.
 The Book of Exodus.
 The Book of Leviticus.
 The Tabernacle.
 The Feasts of the Lord.
 The Types and Antitypes.
 The Weeks of Scripture.
 The Prophetic Days of Scripture.
 The Mysteries.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST

This is an Introductory Booklet on the above Work for circulation among those who desire information on the Second Coming. It contains over 30 pages of Descriptive Matter, is illustrated with 8 fine new charts 4 1/2 x 8 inches, and is beautifully printed.

SINGLE COPIES, 25 Cents. 5 COPIES FOR $1.00

WHAT NEXT IN GOD'S PROGRAM? READ

How Near is the End of the Age? (Elderdice).....	10c
The World's Approaching Crisis (Scofield).....	10c
The War and the Prophetic Word (Cook).....	5c
Why Does God Allow This War? (Pollock).....	10c
Jerusalem and the Jews (Reiley).....	10c
The Ruined Race Restored (Monroe).....	15c
Christendom,—Its Course, Corruption, Consummation (Monroe).....	20c
"Shall So Come" (Overton).....	10c
Pre and Post Millennialism (Neighbor).....	10c
The Coming Bridegroom (Reitzel).....	5c
The World War and the Bible (Blanchard).....	10c
What is the Great Tribulation? (Matthews).....	5c

All sent post paid for a dollar bill, or, one or more, post paid at list price (stamps accepted)

SWORD & SHIELD TRACT SOCIETY
 Market Arcade, Buffalo, N. Y.
 (New catalog listing 1000 titles free)

What OPTIMISTIC VOICES Does

Disperses Clouds, Spreads Sunshine, Evokes Good Cheer, Revives Hope, Quickens Sympathy, Strengthens Courage, Excites Ambition, Stimulates Endeavor, Promotes Happiness

Attractive Booklet, 80 pp., printed in two colors

Over two hundred inspirational selections from the best authors and Christian in tone

FIFTEENTH THOUSAND

Beautiful Gift Book, Suited for Every Occasion
 Price, 50c, postpaid. Discount on Quantity

O. S. HOFFMAN, Publisher
 8 University Ave. Battle Creek, Mich.

ECONOMY! ECONOMY!

This has been the cry for months, until we wonder if there is anything else we could possibly economize in.

Yes, There Is!

ECONOMIZE TIME!!

Economize Those Spare Moments. Just as surely as wasted food means wasted money—so wasted hours mean unearned dollars.

"A penny saved is a penny earned" is a wise saying—and "a dollar unearned, that might have been earned, is a lost dollar" is just as wise. Let us tell you how you can profitably use your spare time.

WRITE NOW

The Christian Workers Magazine
 153-163 Institute Place, Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:

How may I profitably use my spare time?

Name.....

Address.....

City..... State.....

Health Culture

JOURNAL OF PRACTICAL HYGIENE

PARTIAL CONTENTS FOR MAY

Indigestion

Reginald S. Oswald, M.D.

Reposeful Sleep

Carica Le Favre

Malarial Fever

Causes, Symptoms and Treatment
S. W. Dodds, M.D.

Lung Remedies

Orrin McCrea Corwin, M.D.

Low Protein Diet

Alexander Haig, M.D.

Beauty for Women

Ella Van Poole

Value of Water in Diet

Morse Hudders

20 cents a copy. $2.00 a year.

Trial offer 3 months 25 cents.

HEALTH CULTURE

114 St. James Bldg., New York City

Investment in health pays big dividends, ask yourself!

TIRES Tubes and "ARMOR"

5,000 Mile Guaranteed Quality at Wholesale Prices

	Tires	Tubes	"Armor"
30 x 3	$13.60	$2.90	$3.00
30 x 3 1/2	17.00	3.45	3.60
32 x 3 1/2	19.65	3.60	3.60

Other sizes quoted on request.

Order these 5,000 mile Beacon "Rib-Skid" Tires, Red Tubes and "Inside Armor" at above prices on money-back approval, or write at once for full description and our plan of selling First Grade, Fully Guaranteed Tires, etc., direct-to-you at wholesale prices. Give size of tires and name of car. Address

MODERN TIRE CO., 634 7th Street, RACINE, WIS.

THE RECENT WAR

In the light of
BIBLE PROPHECY

A pamphlet of 53 pages, 2 charts and a War Map of Bible Lands

By WILLIAM M. SMITH,
Supt. Union Bible Seminary

Conductor of Correspondence Courses

25c Postpaid

The Friends Minister Westfield
Indiana

For Second Hand Theological Books

WRITE TO SCHULTE'S BOOK STORE

Over 50,000 Volumes Classified by Subject in Stock
WE BUY AND SELL
Correspondence Solicited

Schulte's Book Store 80 and 82 Fourth Ave.
NEW YORK CITY

VICTORY—PEACE

POCKET SOUVENIR TEXT COINS

Showing the date of the

—ARMISTICE—

Commended by Sec'y. DANIELS, U. S. Navy, for our returning heroes or for Sunday Schools.

SCRIPTURE GIFT MISSION AMERICAN
119 SOUTH FOURTH STREET, BRANCH
PHILADELPHIA

Price $2.50 per 100 coins { ARMY OR NAVY

Sample package of 10 coins for 25c

"The King's Business"

A Thoroughly Orthodox Religious Magazine
FOR HOME AND CHURCH

STANDS FIRM FOR THE OLD GOSPEL
INTERNATIONAL S. S. LESSONS
BY SIX SPECIALISTS

Best Thoughts of Great Preachers
PER YEAR $1.00; FOREIGN $1.25. ASK FOR SAMPLE

BIBL. INSTITUTE OF LOS ANGELES, LOS ANGELES, CAL.

SHORTHAND IN ONE MONTH

Wonderful, New, Easy, Scientific System, Boyd Syllable. 100 to 150 words a minute in 30 days guaranteed. No "shading," no "word-signs." Dictation first week. Typewriting free. Send today for Catalog, and Money-Back Guarantee.

Chicago Home Study Schools,

531 Reaper Block, Chicago, Ill.

Church Plans

CATALOGUE FREE TO MINISTERS

Price's Window Paper

Send for Circular and Samples

Max Chas. Price, Architect, Punta Gorda, Florida
Formerly, Atlantic Highlands, N. J.

TYPEWRITERS

Special Prices to Ministers and Bible Students. All makes, Underwoods, Remingtons, Smiths, Royal, Corons, Hammond, Blickensderfer. Have sold over 375 Typewriters to students of The Moody Bible Inst., McCormick Seminary, Bethany School and others.

EDWARD LA ZELLE, 615 N. Clark St.
Phone Superior 4506 CHICAGO, ILL.

Write

Evangelist A. T. Swanson

Chariton, Iowa

for

Summer Campaigns

Owner of large tent. Excellent helpers, union or single. Terms, free-will offering and expenses.

(Continued from page 677)

of prayer, and her hope of the Lord's coming.

We count it among our privileges to have known the Misses Habershon and to have enjoyed the hospitality of their delightful London home.

86 pages. 5x7 inches. Morgan and Scott Ltd., London, E. C. 2s. 6d. —J. M. G.

Scripture Memory Work: a Handbook Containing Fifty-two Selections with Helps for the Leader, by Gerrit Verkuyl, Ph. D., Educational Secretary, North Central District, Presbyterian Board of Publication and Sunday School Work.

These selections are chosen equally from the Old and New Testaments and treat of God's works, His teaching, thanksgiving and prayer, the life and teaching of Christ, and the Holy Spirit. Suggestions for the leader and a child's version help to make the teaching clear. The memorizing of such passages will furnish a "thus saith the Lord" upon many practical questions and will store in the mind some of the choice portions of Scripture for help and comfort in later years.

120 pages, 5 1/2 x 7 3/4 inches. Fleming H. Revell Co., New York and Chicago. 75 cents, net. —M. S.

WHAT GOOD WILL IT DO?

A booklet giving 36 eminently practical and blessed results which the hope and preaching of Christ's Return produce upon the heart and life, 10 cents. GOD'S PURPOSES IN THIS AGE. Full of clear Scriptural teaching. Very instructive. THE COMING GOLDEN AGE. Its glorious characteristics clearly portrayed, 15 cents. PARABLE OF THE MUSTARD SEED. Showing that it teaches the very opposite of what is generally read into it, 15 cents. GOD'S WONDERFUL DEALINGS WITH MAN. Shows up the lessons taught by the various dispensations, 25 cents. 22 worth of above, assorted, postpaid $1.50. SECOND COMING TRACTS. Upwards of a dozen different subjects. Scriptural, helpful, convincing. Assorted package, 25 cents.

A. SIMS, Dept. C., 5 Simpson Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Free Catalogue.

White Pipe-Tone Folding Organs 16 STYLES

are SWEETEST in quality of TONE.
STRONGEST in volume of TONE.
LIGHTEST in WEIGHT.
MOST DURABLE in CONSTRUCTION
EASIEST to OPERATE.
PRICES the most REASONABLE.
GUARANTEE the BEST.

A. L. WHITE MFG. CO.

215 Englewood Av., Dept. C.W., Chicago, Ill.

NARRATIVE OF

ANDREW DUNN'S CONVERSION

By Reading the New Testament

The Complete and Original Narrative. A true and exceedingly interesting story of conversion to God. Is not concerned with the political activities of Roman Catholic Church, but sets forth clearly the religious teachings of that church.

5 CENTS PER COPY

Single Copies by Mail, 6 cents

BIBLE HOUSE OF LOS ANGELES

643 S. Olive St. Los Angeles, Calif.

The Best Way to serve Communion. It is reverent, sanitary, and increases attendance at the Lord's Supper. Our services are chaste and beautiful. Made of finest materials and best workmanship.

Send for illustrated price list.

INDIVIDUAL COMMUNION SERVICE CO.

1701 Chestnut Street,

Philadelphia, Pa.

The Kansas City Baptist Theological Seminary

Evangelistic in Spirit, Missionary in Outlook, Devoted to the Integrity and Inspiration of the Bible, and to the Faith Once Delivered to the Saints.

Splendid Location, able Faculty, three comprehensive Courses—Regular, Greek, English. Also Training School for Women. Address

PRESIDENT P. W. CRANNELL, D. D.,
Kansas City, Kansas.

MILTON UNIVERSITY

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND

Be a PHARMACIST. Study at Home. Three years' Course. Tuition per year only $15.00.

Full course for the price of one year to the first twenty answering this advertisement.

Also resident and correspondence classes in High School. Collegiate and graduate subjects. For particulars address

THE PRESIDENT, 310 W. Hoffman St., Baltimore, Md.

Byron W. King's School of Oratory

Summer Session June 10 to July 18

New Building and Dormitory

Courses for Teachers, Lecturers, Lyceum and Chautauqua Work. Speech defects, stammering, loss of voice, sore throat, positively cured. Largest school of speech arts in America. Send for prospectus. Mt. Oliver, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Sermons That Are Seen

attract and interest the unsaved and inspire the Christian.
The most complete series of

EVANGELISTIC, EXPOSITIONAL, STEREOPTICON SERMONS

ever delivered before the public. Given Anywhere, Inside, Outside, Summer or Winter. Write for MY proposition and available dates NOW.

IRA P. DEAN, 1953 Rudy Street, HARRISBURG, PA.

Would You Like REAL BIBLE STUDY

a Course of

A New Light on THE OLD GOSPEL?

Send for 24 lessons on The Second Coming of Christ, for Individual, Class and Summer Conference. Single copy, 25c; 50 copies, $12.00; 100 copies, $22.50, prepaid.

W. W. BAARS,

114 1-2 E. Capitol Ave., Little Rock, Ark.

Object Lessons of Scripture

7 Pamphlets Illustrated No. 1 to 7
12 Object Lessons in each Pamphlet

Get the Seven, price 15c, each postage prepaid. Order by number

Rev. Chas. Eickenberg, 4029 N. Hermitage Ave.
CHICAGO, ILL.

CHURCH FURNITURE

Pews, Pulpits, Chairs, Altars, Book Racks, Tables, Desks—EVERYTHING. The finest furniture made. Direct from our factory to your church. Catalog free.

DeMoulin Bros. & Co. Dept. 89. Greenville, Ill.

Lest we forget what happened to the Lusitania—lest we forget what happened to Belgium—lest we forget what War means to the ones we love—let's get back of the Victory Liberty Loan with an overwhelming subscription.

Buy to your limit, and do it today.

Victory Liberty Loan Committee

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

Continuing THE INSTITUTE TIE
Published on the first of each month by
The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

JAMES M. GRAY, Editor.
J. H. RALSTON, Associate Editor.
S. A. WOODRUFF, Publishing Agent.

Subscription price, either in the United States or to any foreign country, $1.50 a year. Single copy, 15 cents. Remittances should be sent by bank draft or postal or express money order, payable to The Christian Workers Magazine. Personal checks must be accompanied with 5 cents additional for exchange.

Clubs of five or more, $1.00 a year each.

Change of Address—In sending notice of change of address give both old and new addresses and at least fifteen days before the first of the month.

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

Publication Office, Mount Morris, Ill.
Editorial and Executive Offices: 153-163 Institute Pl., Chicago.

Entered as second-class matter, January 9, 1919, at the post office at Mount Morris, Illinois, under the Act of March 3, 1879. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized on June 18, 1918.

Where to Get What You Want

Advertising under this heading, 3 cents a word.
Minimum, 45 cents.

EVANGELISTS AND SINGERS

C. B. BROOKS, EVANGELISTIC SINGER, DESIRES to assist pastors or evangelists in their campaigns. Member I. A. E.—several years of experience. Address: 153 Institute Place, Chicago.

ORDAINED CONGREGATIONAL PASTOR WANTS pastorate in church desiring live minister to serve them according to second Timothy 4: 2. Correspondence invited. Rev. H. F. Banks, Whitehall, Michigan.

CHRISTIAN WOMAN EXPERIENCED AS SUPPLY pastor desires position as pastor's assistant, or as stenographer for some Christian organization. Address—Mrs. A. B. Parry, 1346 Sherman St., Denver, Colo.

WANTED TO HEAR FROM CHURCH NEEDING Pastor who is experienced, fully trained (Carleton, Moody, McCormick), preaches infallible Bible and a Returning Lord, 38, small family, good health. Write H. C. Payne, Robbinsdale, Minn.

TRACTS, BOOKS AND PAMPHLETS

JESSE J. MILLER, RETURNED SOLDIER, GOSPEL soloist and chorister. Write for terms and references. Permanent address, Collinsville, Ill.

READ WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT THE LAST days, in Pastor I. R. Dean's latest book entitled "The Time of the End," 75c. Evangelical Publishers, 858 College Street, Toronto, Canada.

25,000 SECOND HAND BOOKS FOR CHRISTIANS. All subjects. Catalog free. Have you books to sell or trade? Write us. The Westminster Press, 125 No. Wabash Avenue, W. P. Blessing, Manager.

GOOD TRACTS—ATTRACTIVELY PRINTED—BY Pierson, Spurgeon, Torrey, Gordon, Muller and others; large assortment. 25 cents postpaid. Bible House of Los Angeles, 643 S. Olive St., Los Angeles, Cal.

A GENUINE LEATHER COVER, LOOSE LEAF MEMO. Book, 50 sheets paper. Your name stamped in gold on cover. Postpaid, 50 cents. Loose Leaf Book Co., Box 6, Station L, New York City, Department No. 9.

LOOKING FOR BRAND NEW SOLOS, DUETS AND choruses? You will be delighted with the new Gospel songs and Hymns just published by Evangelist Geo. Bennard, 1754 Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Price 15c the copy or two copies for 25c.

CHARACTER AND CLAIMS OF FREEMASONRY, by Charles G. Finney, who began life as lawyer and Freemason and became one of the greatest Evangelists America and Europe had known; 272 pages; cloth, 75 cents. National Christian Assn., 850 1-2 West Madison St., Chicago.

FREE—SAMPLE COPY OF THE EVANGELICAL CHRISTIAN and Missionary Witness—Interdenominational monthly—Contributors, Rev. W. H. Griffith Thomas, D. D., Rev. Jos. Kemp, Rev. P. W. Philpott, and others. $1.25 a year. Evangelical Publishers, 858 College Street, Toronto, Canada.

SPECIAL PRICES ON SCOFIELD BIBLES IN COMBINATION with a subscription to The Christian Workers Magazine. Write for circular. Also liberal offers made on No. 79X Scofield Bible. $9.00 edition given for 14 new subscriptions. No. 70 Bible given for 3 new subscriptions. Address The Christian Workers Magazine, 163-B Institute Place, Chicago.

SECRET SOCIETIES—"MOODY CHURCH PULPIT Testimonies." Every pastor, from Moody to Dixon, declares himself on this subject. Contains thirteen portraits; fifty pages; fifteen cents, postpaid. "Christian Workers Tracts," assorted, package, 25 cents, postpaid. National Christian Association, 850 1-2 West Madison, Chicago.

THREE GREAT BOOKS. VOLUME 1 CONTAINS 290 Revival Sermons by many of the world's greatest preachers. Price, 75 cents. Volume II contains 150 Revival Sermons. Price, 50 cents. Volume III contains nearly 1,000 Religious Anecdotes. Price, 50 cents; or the three books for $1.50. Money back if not pleased. THE CO-OPERATIVE PUB. CO., KIRKWOOD, MO.

REVELATIONS REVEALED—THE GREATEST PROPHECY made plain. Armageddon is past—the great earthquake just before us—soon the marriage feast. Hosanna to the Lamb! Cloth, $1.00. W. A. Hunter, 1032 11th, Boulder, Colo.

A. NEEDLECRAFT, 12 MONTHS FOR 50 CENTS, stamps. B. Every Child's, $1.50 a year, trial copy for three 3-cent stamps. Address: James Senior, Lamar, Mo.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS TRACTS, ON SECRET SOCIETIES—"Why I Left the Masons," "Two Nights in a Lodge Room," "Ethics of Marriage and Home Life," "Church and Lodge," etc. 25, each different, for 25 cents. National Christian Association, 850 1-2 West Madison St., Chicago

MISCELLANEOUS

PHONOGRAPH RECORDS EXCHANGED, 15c EACH. W. Hollingsworth, Overton, Nebraska.

THE HONEYWELL COMPANY, CHURCH ARCHITECTS, Kokomo, Ind. Large book of plans, $1.00. Write them.

PRINTED SCRIPTURE PENCILS SIMPLIFY CHURCH and Sunday School Problems. Send stamp. Grabill & Co., Lancaster, Pa.

SPEECHES, LECTURES, SERMONS, ORATIONS. Material expertly prepared. Authors Research Bureau, 500 Fifth Ave., New York.

INDIAN BASKETS, SALABLE AT CHURCH BAZAARS. I pay postage and take back all unsold; wholesale. T. Gilham, Highland Springs, Cal.

FOR SALE: NO. 9 BLICK TYPEWRITER, FAIRLY good condition, with carrying case, $20.00. Address, W. S., c-o The Christian Workers Magazine.

EARN $25 WEEKLY, SPARE TIME, WRITING FOR newspapers, magazines. Experience unnecessary; details free. Press Syndicate, 539, St. Louis, Mo.

WRITE THE WORDS FOR A SONG. WE REVISE poems, write music and guarantee to secure publication. Submit poems on any subject. Broadway Studios, 183-C Fitzgerald Bldg., New York.

FIBRE BROOMS GUARANTEED 1 YEAR. CHURCH societies making big money holding sales. Sample and sales plan, $1.25, postpaid. Keystone Fibre Broom Co., 618 S. Duquesne Way, Pittsburg, Pa.

MEN—WOMEN, 18 OR OVER, WANTED IMMEDIATE-ly. U. S. Government positions. Commence $92 month. Vacations. Common education sufficient. Hundreds Permanent Peace Positions. Write immediately for list. Franklin Institute, Dept. E117, Rochester, N. Y.

AMERICAN CITIZENS, 18 TO 60, INCLUDING WOMEN, investigate immediately your rights to government employment. Let me send you Form RK 2038 for free advice. Earl Hopkins, Washington, D. C.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS WANTED. SOMETHING new. An opening for a few energetic ministers and other workers for part or full time. If you want to engage in some Christian work that will add several dollars a week to your present income, write us. B. B. Kirkbride Bible Co., Dept. 3-C, Indianapolis, Ind.

"BOVOLOGY" AND SOCIAL HYGIENE THE GREAT-est campaign of education ever offered. Three wonderful lectures by a man with thirty years of remarkable success as a helper of boys, illustrated by the most marvelous educational motion pictures yet produced. You can easily start in your community an influence that will be felt for a hundred years. Ask how. New-Idea Service System, Vinton, Ia.

WANTED: AGENTS FOR THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS Magazine in every church and community. Since the war closed more people feel free to subscribe for magazines and periodicals and The Christian Workers Magazine desires to get in touch with a number of representatives. If you can give a few hours a week, write for terms to agents. Liberal commission. THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE, 163-L Institute Place, Chicago.

NURSES IN BIG DEMAND—GRADUATES EARN $30 to $35 per week. Applicants with one year's high school will be accepted until July 1, 1919, after that date two years will be required. This modern hospital, which is beautifully situated in one of Chicago's most attractive suburbs, offers a three-year course of training; its graduates are recognized by the State Board. Room, board, laundry, uniforms and a money allowance are furnished pupils. Write today for further information to The West Suburban Hospital School for Nurses, Oak Park, Ill.

BUILD A $5,000 BUSINESS IN TWO YEARS. LET us start you in the collection business. No capital needed; big field. We teach secrets of collecting money; refer business to you. Write today for Free Pointers and new plan. American Collection Service, 685 State St., Detroit, Mich.

When you receive your copy of The Christian Workers Magazine, will you not kindly show it to a neighbor with a suggestion that she subscribe for the balance of 1919 for 75 cents.

THANK YOU!

To the several thousand friends who are reading this copy of THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE for the first time.

Greeting:

We count it a privilege to place in your hands this particular number because of the very timely article on The Proposed World Church Union—Is It of God or Man? by Rev. James M. Gray, D. D. Will you not do us the favor of loaning this copy to your pastor or other active Christian workers in your church? And, may we make announcement also that following Dr. J. H. Ralston's very able review of Dr. Snowden's book on "The Second Coming of Christ," on page 628, we have arranged with Dr. W. H. Griffith Thomas, of Wycliffe College, Toronto, to begin a series of articles in criticism of Dr. Snowden's book. The titles of the articles are:

The Lord's Coming and the Divine Authority of the Bible
The Lord's Coming and the Proper Meaning of the Bible
The Lord's Coming and the Supreme Theme of the Bible

These contributions, with many others of like nature, and timely, make it desirable to subscribe AT ONCE. To those who respond to this advertisement, we will make a SPÉCIAL OFFER TO SEND THE MAGAZINE UNTIL DECEMBER, 1919, FOR 75 CENTS, including the JUNE TO DECEMBER numbers.

We also call attention to the SPECIAL OFFER made in connection with a yearly subscription at $1.50, on page 694, where, with a year's subscription, we will give FREE a copy of the book, "How to Memorize."

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

163 INSTITUTE PLACE

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Date.....

To THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE,
 163 Institute Place,
 Chicago, Ill.

Find enclosed 75 cents for subscription from June to December inclusive.

Name.....

Address.....

City.....

State.....

May, 1919 Issue

How Well I Remember!

My wedding day; the time I was nearly drowned; the fall out of the old tree; my first red dress; when our new piano was delivered; the last spell-down at school; when I received my grammar school diploma; the big party at Mary's; the first honorable mention for writing a story; the first day I went to work; the first raise in my pay envelope—when I first fell in love! Do you?

What Memories We Have!

For certain events in our lives. But when we try to remember some of the most simple incidents we want to remember, it is almost impossible, it seems, to recall them. Why?

We cannot explain it, but we know other people can remember names and faces, prices, advertisements, recite poems, quote long passages from the Bible, chapter and verse and book, remember the pastor's text for the Sunday morning sermon, tell what they read in the daily paper, and do all these remarkably well, considering they only heard or read only one time the things they tell about.

Have You a Good Memory?

Can you remember having read an advertisement recently, suggesting what an advantage it would be to you to have a good memory, to be able to remember faces, names, Scripture references, things you intend to do if you "don't forget?" Which is longer—your "forgetter" or your "rememberer"? Do you want to improve your memory? Do you want to join my class? I am not the teacher, only the organizer.

One Day Mr. William Norton and I talked about selecting some books to give to new subscribers to The Christian Workers Magazine, or to anyone who would secure a new subscriber at the regular price, $1.50 a year. On December 10, 1918, he wrote as follows: "Dear Mr. Woodruff: I would suggest your choice of the following named books in your list of 'free books'—How to Memorize, William Evans,"—etc. On December 11, I wrote a circular letter to send to a list of names offering among other books, How to Memorize, by Evans. I noticed some of the people were interested at once in that book and several were sent out.

Then In January

when we were putting the pages together for the February Christian Workers Magazine, I had an opportunity to write an advertisement to put on page 436. Well I have been hearing from it ever since. It was the same offer again, to give free, a copy of How to Memorize, to anyone who would secure a new subscriber. And to make it easy, anyone could just send 50 cents deposit to get the book at once, and a dollar with a new subscriber's name, or even a renewal of a present subscription for another year, within the next two months!

Well, You Ought to See Those Books Go!

About four hundred people joined my class in How to Memorize, and they are joining every day, even now, five to ten a day!

Now See What Happened!

On April 8 Mr. Norton wrote: "Dear Mr. Woodruff: Now with regard to a quotation on How to Memorize, by Evans, listed at 75 cents net: We offer to supply you with 500 copies at — cents and give you 5,000 four page circulars printed in two colors. . . . On 1,000 copies we offer you," etc., etc. "We have somewhat less than a thousand copies . . . but will deliver the rest out of the next edition, which we will put to press at once." Then on April 11 Mr. Norton wrote: "Thanks for fine order of 1,000 How to Memorize. . . . will make delivery . . . the remainder later, according to your own terms."

What Do I Want All Those Books For?

I want every one of those 1,000 books to represent a new yearly subscription to The Christian Workers Magazine! And somehow or other I just feel that thousand won't go round. I believe it's the biggest and best offer since Dr. Gray's Christian Workers' Commentary was first offered to our subscribers. and it's still a leader even though the price has gone up to $2.75. But to get back to How to Memorize, I am writing this advertisement, first, to take this way as one means to help double our subscription list, second, to bring a real blessing to a thousand more people who feel the need of training their minds for the Lord's service.

Why Pay $5.00, or Even More for a so-called "course" in a memory "school," when sane and practical results are reached by the consistent application of the principles, rules and suggestions set forth in this book How to Memorize?

I Renew My Offer

Send me one new subscription for one year at the regular price, $1.50; or a renewal of your own or another's subscription—I will send you Free, postpaid, a copy of How to Memorize.

To Make It Easy

For you I will make the following exceptional offer: Deposit 50 cents at once—the book will be mailed by parcel post—then send only one dollar with the name of a subscriber within the next two months. You do not lose anything—you do not forfeit anything—if you forget to send the subscription in 60 days.

But

If you improve your memory as I believe you will by a thorough study of "How to Memorize" by Dr. Evans, you will be glad to remember me and send me that one subscription.

Enclose 50 cents or $1.50, as you prefer—your name first for "How to Memorize" and the subscriber's name last. Thank you!

The Publishing Agent.

Just Tear This Off

Date.....

The Christian Workers Magazine,
163 Institute Place, Chicago.

Sender (for book).....

Address.....

New Subscriber or renewal (C. W. M.):

Name.....

Address.....

Amount, $.....

The Lord's Return

By

Rev. Jesse Forrest Silver

Revised Edition, with index; 311 Pages.
Regular Price.....

$1¹⁵

This new book, which has passed through several editions, has gained an international reputation. A copy should be in the hands of every student of the Word of God. The author, who was a firm postmillennarian, was converted to the opposite view while engaged in exhaustive research on this subject.

Professor W. H. Griffith Thomas, D. D., says: "When any writers are able to disprove the contentions found in this book it will be time for premillennialists to capitulate." R. A. Torrey, D. D.: "It is simply invaluable."

We offer this book with a year's subscription to The Christian Workers Magazine, new or renewal, for only.....

or to anyone who will send us two new yearly subscriptions, we will send a copy of the book, postpaid.

$2²⁵

CHRISTIAN WORKERS MAGAZINE

163 INSTITUTE PLACE
CHICAGO - ILLINOIS

Wenona Falls—A typical beauty spot on one of the many bypaths at Eagles Mere, Pa., where The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago will conduct the third annual Bible Conference, July 13-20, 1919

15 CENTS A COPY

$1.50 A YEAR

JAMES M. GRAY
Editor

J. H. RALSTON
Associate Editor

rested in the lives of souls recently accepted Him."

Bridewell. "Some 150 men took a stand for Christ in public. The next day more than forty had private interviews with Mr. Balfe" (the religious superintendent.)

Maxwell St. Jail. "Five men accepted Christ there, and the group went home praising God for answered prayer."

La Salle St. Jail. "Of all the great days we have had at the LaSalle St. Jail Sunday, March 2, is the greatest. . . . We credit the results absolutely to our utter dependence on the power of the Spirit. . . . Twenty-five took Christ as their Savior."

East Chicago Jail. "The men in the cells (seven in all) were deeply moved, and four accepted Jesus as Redeemer."

West Chicago Jail. "There were twelve inmates. Eleven were dealt with personally, and all saved. The other man said he was saved, and we prayed with him also. There are from nine to fourteen saved at this jail every Sunday and I believe it is because we have a praying group."

Desplaines Jail. "We had eleven conversions. The Holy Spirit surely was there in mighty power."

Cook County Jail, Boys' Section. On the same Sunday there were ten conversions.

The work in the jails is only one of many avenues in which the Institute's resident students are constantly giving out the gospel throughout Chicago and its suburbs.

There's a day coming of glad surprise and unimaginable joy and thankfulness for God's faithful stewards who give their money to train consecrated young men and women to proclaim the glorious gospel of the Son of God.

The Moody Bible Institute

153 Institute Place

Chicago, Ill.